"Have fun! Do well! Forget about your tests!" calls Bayard Littlefield, the Clean Water Action group's spokesperson from her tiny work space as three canvassers head out the door of the Northampton office. It is exam time, but instead of studying, the students are canvassing Florence for three hours tonight.

Amy Poueymirou, a University of Massachusetts environmental science junior, who took this semester off, seems like the type of person who never has a bad day. She works full time at CWA and having worked there for seven months, she has moved up in the organization. Her responsibilities include recruiting and training canvassers.

Earlier tonight Poueymirou had given a short pep talk to Jessica Peace, a freshman at UMass, and Tom Champlin, a junior environmental law student at Westfield College, before they trek out into the chilly spring evening.

"Phew! It's pretty bad," says Poueymirou, as we all climb into the blue Dodge Caravan that smells like wet dog. It just so happens that a dog vomited in the van last night, but everyone just grins and bears it. After a few tense seconds when the engine doesn't respond, Poueymirou starts up the van, informs everyone of a bottle of fragrant soap up front to sniff if the smell starts getting to them, and steers out into the traffic.

After dropping off Champlin, Poueymirou and Peace drive to another part of Florence, park and split up to canvas opposite sides of the street. The sun is setting rapidly and as it is still early spring, the cold is creeping in steadily with the night.

At the first door Poueymirou knocks on, a woman in her mid–50s answers. Smells of dinner time waft out the door. After introducing herself, Poueymirou explains the Battery Bill.

Poueymirou later walks away from her first house with a signature, a $36 check, and a promise that the woman has made to write a letter to her representative, which Poueymirou will collect later.

At the second house, an elderly man says, "Thank you, I'm not interested," before Poueymirou has finished introducing herself. She thanks him and continues to the next house.

"Listen, honey, I am so sick of the EPA taking money, of giving them money, that I don't want to hear any of it," says the sixty–ish man at another house before closing the door.

Rejection is a part of the game. But the canvassers have each been raising an average of $85 and collecting about six letters per night. Although the CWA canvassers have faced the dry spell of the recession and competition for people's time and dollars from other environmental canvassing

Turn to CWA, page 7

You believe in the Man in the Moon. You believe in the Tooth Fairy. Your mother tells you in at night. Look to top it all, you have the Massachusetts Daily Collegian. Looks like you're gonna be single.

The Mighty Martian Space Patrol did not take kindly to young folks... That's why it was no surprise when little Max, Brad, and tiny tot Andrew were thrown in the Intergalactic Slime Pen. "Why is it always the good ones that suffer?" whined Andy. "Shaddup!" replied Maximillian and Brad. Andy ignored the older boys, as he scavenged another twist-tie. He had plans. BIG plans. He didn't plan on sticking around.
Collegian
"Just another brother on intergalactic lockdown."

COTTON T-SHIRTS

MAIN STREET - NORTHAMPTON - OPEN 7 DAYS

DON'T BE LEFT OUT!

PUFFTON VILLAGE
Look What We Offer:

- 1,2, and 3 Bedroom Units
- Rents Starting from $475/Month
- Heat & Hot Water Included in Rent!
- PVTA Bus Stops in Complex
- 1/2 Mile to University, 1 1/2 Miles to Downtown Amherst
- Pool, 5 Tennis Courts & a Basketball Court On-Site!
- Our Office is Open Mon-Fri 8:30 to 4PM

Now accepting rental applications for Summer and Fall. Don't be left out of one of Amherst's best housing deals; prime location, spacious units, individual entrances, on-site parking and cable TV hook-up through Dimension Cable.

PUFFTON VILLAGE APARTMENTS • 1040 North Pleasant St., Amherst, MA
~ Resident Manager 549-9145 ~

The dictionary has at least three definitions for "value." So do we.

Macintosh Quadra® 650 8/230, internal AppleCD™ 300i CD-ROM Drive, Macintosh® Color Display, Apple® Extended Keyboard II and mouse.

PowerBook® 165 4/160 with internal Express Modem.

Macintosh Quadra® 660av 8/230, internal AppleCD™ 300i CD-ROM Drive, Apple® AudioVision™ 14" Display, Apple Extended Keyboard II and mouse.

Giving people more value for their money has made Macintosh® the best-selling personal computer on campuses and across the country for the past two years.* And that's a trend that is likely to continue. Because there are Macintosh and PowerBook® models available within your budget. Meaning you get it all. Power. Quality. And affordability. It's that simple. So, if that sounds like value to you, visit your Apple Campus Reseller today. And leave your dictionary at home.

Affordable computers from Apple.

Apple

UNIVERSITY STORE

Computer Department
Campus Center
545-2619

MONDAY - FRIDAY 9AM-5 PM
SATURDAY 11AM-3PM

*Dataquest, 1994. ©1994 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the Apple logo, Macintosh, Macintosh Quadra and PowerBook are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. AppleCD, AppleColor and AudioVision are trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. Courtesy of Multicom Publishing, Inc.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY COLLEGIAN

COLLEGIAN

The Largest-circ. Daily Newspaper in New England - Founded in 1890 - Published Daily Since 1967

MICHAEL MORRISSEY Editor-in-Chief
Managing Editor DARIENNE HOSLEY | MICHAEL MCRAE Business Manager
Arts & Living Editor EMILY A. MARINO | LISA REZOWSKI Production Manager
Black Affairs Editor RODNEY POWELL | DANIELLE YANIRO Advertising Manager
Developing Nations Editor JUAN J. CHACON QUIROS | STEPHANIE SHORE Finance Manager
Editorial/Opinion Editor MIKE CARVALHO | ANDREW DAVIDSON Night Graphics Manager
Gay Lesbian Bisexual Issues Editor STEPHEN C. CAMPBELL | JIM BRUNEAU, CAITLIN OLSON Day Graphics Managers
Jewish Affairs Editor JACOB W. MICHAELS | JEREMY DAGGETT Circulation Manager
Multicultural Affairs Editor EVELYN A. DE JESUS | ERIC ABENAIM Subscriptions Manager
News Editor TRACY MONAHAN | MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI Senior Bookkeeper
Photography Editor NATHAN MARTIN | BLAKE PHILLIPS Graphics Professional
Sports Editor ARTHUR STAPLETON JR. | MARTY PAPPAS Classified Advertising
Women's Issues Editor VANESSA ANN | TURLEY PUBLICATIONS Printing Services

113 CAMPUS CENTER BASEMENT - UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS - AMHERST, MA 01003 - (413) 545-3500 - FAX (413) 545-1992

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday-Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. Letters to the editor are encouraged and will be printed on a space-available basis. All submissions must be typed, kept to a maximum of 400 words, and should include the writer's name, address, year and major as well as a phone number for verification purposes. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, length and libelous wording. Students wishing to submit guest columns should contact the Editorial/Opinion editor in advance. The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily represent those of the Collegian. Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Editorial Board.

Explanation needed for Whitmore firings

The issue: Chancellor Scott dismissed three top UMass administrators last Thursday without offering concrete reasons for his decision.

Our opinion: This sudden and harsh action should be accompanied, at the very least, with an explanation as well as a plan for the future.

Last Thursday, Chancellor David K. Scott abruptly announced that Provost Glen Gordon and vice chancellors Samuel Conti and Daniel Melley would be stepping down from their positions at the end of the spring semester.

These three administrators have long records of dedicated service to the University of Massachusetts, and Scott's decision to remove them in such a harsh manner has many members of the campus community wondering why.

Gordon has worked at the University of Massachusetts since 1964 when he joined the faculty of the political science department. He has acted as provost, the chief academic officer on the Amherst campus, since July 1991.

Melley, who earned a bachelor's degree in English from UMass, started his involvement with the campus as assistant news and publications editor in 1961. He has been in charge of public relations, alumni affairs and fund raising since 1990.

As vice chancellor for research and dean of the graduate school since 1980, Conti has been responsible for great deal of growth in industry and research grants at the University.

All three men were experienced, dedicated and well-liked on the UMass campus. The question, then, is why were they removed from their offices so abruptly?

Scott's explanation has not been forthcoming.

When the decision was announced last Thursday, the chancellor praised the three top administrators for their years of service to the University, but offered no concrete reasons for their dismissal.

Concerned faculty members, many of whom suspected that the order to remove the three officials had come from the Boston office of President Michael Hooker, called a meeting of the Faculty Senate which was held last night in Bowker Auditorium.

The Chancellor appeared before over 700 anxious faculty members last night to answer that same question: Why? Scott was unable to answer that question to the satisfaction of most in attendance.

Scott said that he would rather think of the dismissals as being a "catalyst for change," saying that they represent part of a bold 10-year plan for the Amherst campus. Details of that plan, however, were not readily available.

It is reasonable to expect that, as the new chief administrator of the Amherst campus settles in, there will be some personnel changes made in Whitmore.

Scott made that abundantly clear when he created two new administrative positions last semester, with a total salary price tag of $185,000, and then immediately filled them with two of his former colleagues from Michigan State University.

But while some change can be positive, change without direction can do nothing but promote dissatisfaction, distrust and disunity.

Faculty members are right in demanding to know the reasons behind these abrupt firings. Scott owes that explanation to the faculty, to the students and, especially, to Gordon, Conti and Melley, three men whose only fault seems to have been their many years of service to the University.

Opinion

TV's mental pat on the back

it's sick! TV's "Jeopardy" is a sick pleasure. Alex Trebek is the prevailing wizard over a kingdom of minutia. And we are his servile masses. What is this country coming to when we receive our most ebullient highs from good sex, good drugs and assured knowledge of the Daily Double? What is perversity, Alex?

Almost as routine as brushing one's teeth (probably more routine for some), or praying to higher pastures, the viewing of "Jeopardy" is as habitual a practice as any. Alex enters dorm rooms and living rooms nightly with the irritable, yet impossible to refuse regularity of an unwanted neighbor with weed. Answering in the form of a question is nothing short of a national pastime.

The "Jeopardy" ritual not only provides an intellectually acceptable tool of procrastination for students, it seems to provide a much needed ego–assuaging for those who answered a question in German 240 in a little known dialect some classmates compared to Gaelic, or just a self–esteem kicker for those feeling a little dumb.

Odd, but when Alex Trebek proclaims, "This Northeast capitol is well–known for its legumes," and you triumphantly blurt out "What is Boston?" in surest oi confidence, and Dan, the librarian from Topeka, Kansas moronically responds, "What is Albany?" and is promptly reprimanded by Alex just before Jean, the homemaker from Santa Barbara, Calif. earns herself $200 for the right answer, "What is Boston?", you feel reassured. Reassured that you are indeed a bright individual, even though the answer was insultingly obvious.

Granted, it's degenerate, but Alex gets big credit for being the supportive parent we never had (at least not those of us who watch "Jeopardy" for self–esteem). He does get overly– critical when his trio of contestants produces inane responses, but it's deserved. He doesn't spank us, just makes us feel appropriately foolish. But, no worry, there is redemption in Potpourri for $800.

The "Jeopardy" ritual not only provides an intellectually acceptable tool of procrastination for students, it seems to provide a much needed ego–assuaging for those who answered a question in German 240 in a little known dialect some classmates compared to Gaelic, or just a self–esteem kicker for those feeling a little dumb.

Adam Goulston

In all honesty, this column is a failed apologia for an offensive theory. I once hypothesized that people watch "Jeopardy" to feel smart. I then realized my theory could be misconstrued as an attack. After all, that's why I watch "Jeopardy;" I'm good at it, for what it's worth. i may not have been able to carry the conversation in my Literary Journalism class but i did know enough about the element Einsteinium to earn an imaginary $1,000.

Thanks to Alex's half hour respite from inadequacy that one self–deprecating day, I was reborn as a savant of the world, owner of wisdom to govern the masses. And just to add another feather to my pride–tickling, Alex ranked on his three cretins for me.

"Jeopardy" gives me a mental pat on the back after a day of kicks in the teeth and for this, I am thankful. But if there was another way of finding a similar pleasure, I would gladly pursue it. It seems a tad twisted that I need bolstering from a moustached pseudo–intellectual in a glowing box serving as a supportive surrogate.

For now, I, and for all I know, some of those I offended, will continue to endure the torture of "Wheel of Fortune" (a dolt's "Jeopardy") knowing that it's 30 minutes closer to the warped drug of choice.

Adam Goulston is a Collegian columnist.

The truth could save lives

"...an AIDS education that accepts children's sexual activity as inevitable and focuses only on 'safe sex' will be at best ineffectual, at worst itself a cause of serious harm. Young people should be taught that the best precaution is abstinence until it is possible to establish a mutually faithful monogamous relationship. . .Until it is possible to establish and maintain such a relationship, abstinence is the safest."

— William Bennett, former Secretary of Health, and C. Everett Koop, former Surgeon General

Everyone wants protection from the HIV virus and no one wants to be an AIDS statistic. There are two areas that have received much attention. One is IV drug use, the other is sexual activity. With regard to drug use two solutions have been offered; rehabilitation and clean needle distribution.

No matter where people stand with regard to the solution, the message has remained clear. Most people realize that using a dirty needle will probably result in acquiring HIV.

Unfortunately, the message regarding sexual intercourse has not been as straightforward. Generally, society sees all young people as sexually active. The belief that teens can abstain is laughed upon. The idea that, once sexually active, it is possible to abstain, is viewed as equally impossible.

The media and local health facilities will gladly hand out condoms and instruction concerning proper use. This seems appropriate. After all, if the virus is not transferred then it will not spread. The question is, does using a condom stop the virus from infecting an uninfected person?

Much of the research carried out is in favor of abstinence. However, three studies demand particular attention. The first is the study done by Dr. M. Fischel at the University of Miami. In the study, several couples engaged in vaginal sexual intercourse, using a condom as protection, in each relationship one spouse was HIV positive, one was not. Dr. Fischel found "in the initial study there was a 10 percent rate of transmission of HIV. After 18 months it was 17 percent."

The claim that spermicides, when used with a condom, will stop the virus has also been challenged. The AIDS virus is extremely PH sensitive. One part bleach to 10 parts water will kill the virus.

The New England Journal of Medicine reveals "Spermicides are designed to be acidic in order to work. A woman may use a sponge loaded with spermicide, but after about 20 minutes the spermicide undergoes phase conversion, commingling with bodily fluids it becomes the same PH as the other fluids in the body and actually ends up protecting the virus instead of killing it!"

The media and local health facilities will gladly hand out condoms and instruction concerning proper use. This seems appropriate, after all, if the virus is not transferred then it will not spread. The question is, does using a condom stop the virus from infecting an uninfected person?

Diana D'Avanzo

The most shocking study was carried out by the Journal of Testing and Evaluation. The study challenged the Federal Drug Administration's use of water in testing for condom leakage. The belief was that the use of a surfactant solution (similar to bodily fluid) instead of water, would make the tests much more effective.

The research involved testing already punctured condoms for leakage using water and surfactant solution. While all of the condoms filled with surfactant solution leaked, only 25 percent of the condoms filled with water leaked — even though all of these condoms were punctured. The failure rate for condoms is actually much higher than we are led to believe.

Condoms have a documented failure rate of 17–30 percent, yet we are encouraged to trust our lives to our rubber friends. This is death we are talking about, not the chicken pox!

This has nothing to do with suppression or challenging traditional standards and everything to do with short– changing young people. Why does society feel that people can alter drug use and relationship violence but, are incapable of altering sexual practices? Self–respect and education concerning the physical and psychological effects of pre–mature sexual relations is a key to combating the HIV virus. Perhaps the truth would save many lives.

Diana D'Avanzo is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Explanation needed for three dismissals

To the editor:

I am writing to express my dismay over the recent dismissals of three key administrators at the University of Massachusetts, Vice Chancellors Daniel Melley, Samuel Conti and Provost Glen Gordon.

While I have seen strides made at the University over the past four years, as a whole we have been dealt tuition increases, a reduction in faculty and continual budgetary problems. These three gentlemen have shown exceptional dedication to this University, especially when problems for this campus began to intensify.

What confuses me is that there has been no official explanation given by the University. Who made these decisions and for what reasons? Did Chancellor Scott do this on his own, or was President Hooker involved in the decision? These are questions the University community deserves to have answered.

We should not deny the Chancellor the opportunity to build his own staff, but is it proper to dismiss three people who have dedicated their professional lives to enhancing this institution? Does anybody care about loyalty anymore?

What is also disheartening is that there has been no student outcry over this action. Although these gentlemen might not have been in the student spotlight, I can tell you from many interactions that they are dedicated to improving the University.

As a graduating senior and future alumnus, I can only hope that the administration at UMass come forward with a full explanation and restructuring plan that will include participation by the University community.

To the three gentlemen who showed us undying dedicatrion, not everyone at UMass holds such disregard for loyalty.

Mark D. Preston
Journalism/history senior

Candidates respond to recent attacks

To the editor:

Given the well–orchestrated, and rather juvenile, campaign to vilify me as a rabid racist, I would like to clarify my record. In a nutshell, what earned me the infamous label was my attempts, along with others, to prioritize the funding of the Legal Services Office and the Off Campus Housing Office over the Graduate Voice in the budget discussions of the GSS.

We believed, innocently enough, that graduate students might prefer to see their GSS tax invested in those agencies rather than in the Voice. The current exec, and friends (Venugopal, Cavell and Mathis) favored funding the Voice over the agencies. Unfortunately, as has become customary with these characters, they chose to accuse us of having a racist agenda rather than engage in a reasoned defense of the Voice.

It is tactics like these that have transformed the Senate into a pandemonium this year. I certainly hope graduate students will see through these dishonest and vicious personal attacks. Please go out and vote.

Pierre Laliberte
Economics dept.

To the editor:

I would like to take the opportunity to address several libelous remarks which appeared about me in the latest issue of the Graduate Student Voice. In one instance, the editor characterizes me as follows: "Delle... lacks an understanding of wider graduate student issues and concerns."

I would like to state, for the record, that I spent nine months negotiating the latest GEO contract, during which time I and the rest of the negotiating team prioritized the establishment of domestic partner benefits, a 100 percent increase in the funds for Minority Graduate Student Recruitment, the inclusion of Assistant Residence Directors in GEO, a comprehensive harassment policy, and a wage raise for all TAs, RAs and PAs. To suggest that I "lack an understanding of wider graduate student issues" is an unwarranted and vicious attack on my record.

Furthermore, I have been faulted for not being present on campus this January when, in fact, I was in Jamaica pursuing my dissertation research on the racist policies of the British government following the emancipation of slaves in the 19th century. This is a blatant character assault which, unfortunately, graduate students are currently funding.

I hope that the Collegian will be less one–sided in their coverage of the election.

James A. Delle
Candidate for GSS vice president

Editor's note: Due to the space constraints, the Collegian will not be able to print letters endorsing candidates for positions in the Graduate Senate elections until Thursday's issue. We regret any inconveniences this may cause.

Doonesbury

by Garry Trudeau

Black Affairs

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian.

"The problem of the twentieth century is the problem of the color line." — W.E.B. Du Bois

Racism: The most challenging issue

The challenge of race unity

Racism is the most challenging issue confronting America. A nation whose ancestry includes every people on earth, whose motto is E pluribus unum, whose ideals of freedom under law have inspired millions throughout the world, cannot continue to harbor prejudice against any racial or ethnic group without betraying itself. Racism is an affront to human dignity, a cause of hatred and division, a disease that devastates society.

–Opening paragraph of "The Vision of Race Unity: America's Most Challenging issue" a statement by the National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of the United States.

Today is the second day of South Africa's first all–race elections in its entire 350 year history After 50 years of Apartheid rule, 10 years of international sanctions and many long years of political imprisonment by Nelson Mandela and others, the deaths of countless South Africans have not been in vain. The Apartheid regime is one of the brutal regimes of its kind in human history. Today, April 27, 1994, the world watches as this system of oppression takes a giant leap back towards the dustbin of history.

On the weekend of April 15–17, 1994, the 5–college Baha'i Club held a conference on Race Unity at the Campus Center. As today's political debate centers on the future of democracy in South Africa, it is crucial that we engage in a comprehensive debate on race unity, the issue which lies at the heart of the future of the South African people, America, and the world.

Defining Racism

We may all agree that racism is morally wrong. However the debate on racism in America has confused people as to what is racist and what isn't. The media will lead us to believe that in order to be a "racist", you must either wear a white hood, burn a cross, or lynch someone due to their

> Not only is solving the race problem in America key to her future development as a nation, but the example set will ultimately allow for the healing of racial and ethnic tensions on a global scale race. In reality there are far more pervasive and destructive manifestations of racism in our society. From various forms of symbolism which can be found throughout the english language, to institutionalized practices and stereotyping, racism serves as tool of repression and division while it adds and subtracts from us our humanity, and rations out our dignity on the primary basis of skin pigmentation.
>
> Martin F. Jones

Post Traumatic Slave Syndrome: America's Legacy of Enduring Injury

Slavery lies at the historical roots of the race problem in America. Racism as a social ideology is a direct consequence of the Atlantic Slave Trade and the slave institution in the U.S. Despite the changes that have occured in our since that time in our past, America continues to suffer from a "post–traumatic slave syndrome."

Joy DeGruy, a PhD. candidate in Psychology from Pacific State University was the keynote speaker on the topic of post traumatic slave syndrome. in her speech, Ms. DeGruy discussed the continuing effects of this legacy of enslavement, the forced removal of millions of people from their homeland, the blatant hypocrisy of our so–called "democracy," and the continued denial of the crime. Racism is an issue that strikes a chord to this day because of the mountain of guilt that was built up over four centuries of horrific crimes against the human family, crimes that still go unpunished.

Healing Racism in America

Today, America stands as a symbol of human freedom at its greatest capacity. In no other country is the promise of organic unity more immediately demonstratable than in the United States because it is a microcosm of the diverse populations of the earth. Given this reality, the importance of the healing of this rift is crucial towards healing racism around the world. Not only is solving the race problem in America key to her future development as a nation, but the example set will ultimately allow for the healing of racial and ethnic tensions on a global scale.

Martin F. Jones is a Junior Journalism Major

The Minuteman: A loaded symbol

What do Aunt Jemima, Uncle Ben, Uncle Ferina, Marilyn Monroe, Superman and the Minuteman have in common? They are all symbols of America. As such they represent our psychic structures in the way in which our lives are ordered.

Let's look at them closer. Aunt Jemima is as American as apple pie, yet she represents a stereotype of a subservient, plumb black woman that serves the master with a smile. The same is true of Uncle Ben and Uncle Ferina. They are products of the American imagination and they say somthing about place. Their place in America.

What about Marilyn Monroe, also an American symbol. She represents the oppression of women, both white and black, and the marketing and packaging of women as a product of the American male imagination. This oppression is confirmed with the statistic that shows that $300 million a year is being spent on cosmetic surgery to compete with Marilyn's image, the fantasy woman in the American male psyche. This is corporate America, plastic beauty is sold to us as better than real, there can be no doubt that symbols affect our lives.

What about Superman and the Minuteman? Is one of them real and the other one false? First, we have to realize that fiction is a substitute for real life. Hero worship in America is of one kind, the male kind. The Minuteman as a symbol is larger than life and reality. He is considered by some a sacred cow, beyond mortal criticism and therefore not to be questioned.

Symbols, as those working in computers know, represent the program, in order to know the program one must be able to decode the symbol. So again I ask you about Aunt Jemima, Uncle Ben, Marilyn and the Minuteman.

Historically, the Minutemen where a class of wealthy white men, property owners and merchants with voting rights. They wanted "their" freedom from the British Empire in order to establish the American Empire, or what we have today as corporate America. It was not about "We the People" as the Constitution, marketing and packaging, has lead us to believe.

The promise of liberty, justice and the pursuit of happiness, faiis short through the economic cracks of America, where we see women still fighting for equal pay, and millions of Black Americans without education and employment. We see also Los Angeles and the video of Rodney King surrounded by the local militia.

Some people say the mascot is a small issue but what it represents is not. No symbol symbolizes the establishment, domination and contro more than the Minuteman.

No symbol is better suited to represent corporate America

To end, I want to invoke another icon, Tina Turner, for her song, Beyond the Thunder Dome. in it, she sings, "We don't need another hero. . .living under the fear till nothing else remains. . .all we need is tomorrow. . .beyond the Thunder Dome." The worship of violence is a problem in America. Can we get beyond the Thunder Dome, beyond the Minuteman?

Sharon Cousin is a BDIC student at the University of Massachusetts.

BMCP to host Funk–O–Thon

By Rodney Powell
Collegian Staff

The Black Mass Communications Project has provided the ALANA community of the Five–College area; as well as Western Massachusetts, Northern Connecticut, and Southern Vermont with a variety of radio, video, and public service programming for twenty–five years.

As a Registered Student Organization, BMCP encourages students on and around campus to become involved with one of the premier organizations in the Five–College area. BMCP has sponsored and co–sponsored many events this year and in the past, and has also established a reputation for being an organization that RSOs can come to for assistance.

This year will mark the fifteenth Funk–O–Thon dance party organized by BMCP for the Five–College community. Originally created to serve as a means to increase BMCP's revenue, the Funk–O–Thon has since grown in size and popularity to become the largest college dance party of its kind in the New England area; drawing patrons to the University of Massachusetts campus from as far away as Texas and Florida.

The Funk–O–Thon is not just a party, it has become a tradition. This year the Funk–O–Thon is scheduled to take place on Friday, April 29, 1994 in the Campus Center Auditorium, on campus. The time of this event will be 10 p.m. Tickets are $6 in advance and $8 at the door; available at the Fine Arts Center (413) 545–2511. There will be tight security, so come in peace! For other questions or for more info call BMCP at (413) 545–2426.

There will also be a Funk–O–Thon security meeting/General Body Meeting on Thursday, April 28 at 7 p.m. in the Campus Center, room 905–09. Security is still needed so all who are interested are strongly encouraged to please attend.

Also, the last General Body Meeting for BMCP will be held on Thursday, May 5, at 7:00 p.m.. Room to be announced. This is another opportunity to become a member this semester. NOTE: BMCP Members can get into any BMCP event for half price.

BMCP is currently in the process of organizing a UMass (BMCP) versus Springfield Technical College (WTCC– Radio) basketball game. The game is intended to foster community relations between the minority populations of the two learning institutions. It will prove to be a fun and worthwhile tradition — one worth continuing. For information on the game date, time, and location or information on how to participate, contact the BMCP office at 402 Student Union Building, or call (413) 545–2426.

Black Student Union Supports: Venugopal, Johnson, Mathis, and Cavell

To the Editor:

In this time of great economic hardship, when many of us are desperately clinging to our educational opportunity, it is vital that we as individuals and as a community are represented by those who understand our plight.

We, as a University community, are coming into a period of great cultural realignment, as we attempt to come to grips with the demands of an increasingly diverse campus.

During this period, candidates like Prasad Venugopal for President, Julia Johnson for Vice–President, Ruth Mathis for Treasurer, and Colin Cavell for Executive Officer of the Graduate Student Senate are of increasing value.

So, on behalf of the Black Student Union and the 600 students it represents, I feel honored to endorse such fine candidates as Venugopal, Johnson, Mathis, and Cavell.

They've shown poise, courage, and the temperament necessary to build coalitions and forge a vision that encompasses all the students of the University of Massachusetts.

Shomwa Shamapande,
President, Black Student Union

Support the Slate of Venugopal, Johnson, Mathis, and Cavell

To the Editor:

I am writing to strongly endorse the slate of Prasad Venugopal for President, Julia Johnson for Vice–President, Ruth Mathis for Treasurer, and Colin Cavell for Executive Officer of the Graduate Student Senate.

Each of these candidates has a record of working on graduate student issues, building coalitions between student communities and advocating for the interests of a diverse graduate student body.

As graduate students, we have a historic opportunity of electing into office a team that not only strongly represents the cultural and social diversity on campus, but articulates a clear vision for serving the common purpose of excellence, accessibility, and equity in graduate education.

We should not let this opportunity pass. Vote for Venugopal, Johnson, Mathis, and Cavell.

Vanessa Harris,
Office of Minority Graduate Student Recruitment

BEE BOP
If you've got a good vibe you can snap your fingers, you can whistle, and you can hum.
Mass Daily Collegian tickle my tummy honey

Eating Disorder Programs • Spring 1994

Sponsored by University Health Services

Eating Disorder Treatment Program
For individuals - with Nutritionists, Mental Health Clinician, Physician and/or Nurse Practitioner. Mondays or Wednesdays - Confidentiality Assured. Call 549-2671 x233 or 234, Clinic 4.

Friends and Family Group
Single session for those concerned about somebody with an eating disorder. Call 549-2671 x233 or 234, Clinic 4.

Peer Support Group
For those struggling with anorexia, bulimia, chronic dieting, or compulsive overeating. Mondays (except holidays) 4:30-6:00 p.m. Campus Center Room Number posted by elevator. No registration necessary. Confidentiality Assured.

For more information on these programs or other eating disorder concerns, call 549-2671 x233 or 234 Confidentiality Assured.

407-004

artEventives
UMass Arts Council Presents
performance interventions at public art sites and courtyards

April 21

Detail, Civility Mural

Traditional Tibetan Folk Music & Dance
Nawang Chophel, Tenzin Chophel & Sonam Pumtsok from the Tibetan Institute of Performing Arts (TIPA, Dharamsala, India. Project Coordination: Robin MacRuairi
12:00 Civility Mural Courtyard
1:00 Whitmore Courtyard

Jonathan Kuhrman, Civility Mural, 1989

April 28

University of Massachusetts Gospel Choir
11:45 Civility Mural Courtyard
12:30 Whitmore Courtyard

Panpipes & Song of the Ancient Andes
David Gallardo & Robin Tinholt
12:30 Civility Mural Courtyard
1:15 Whitmore Courtyard

Klezamir Band of Amherst
Traditional Yiddish Music
1:15 Civility Mural Courtyard

Native American Poetry
Poetry Artists: Bright Trace, Abenaki; Cheryl Savageau, Abenaki; Aimee Whitaker Vincent, Cherokee; Blackfire, Professor Ron Welburn, Cherokee/Coney. Traditional Native American Flute music, Black Wapmar. Project Coordination: Monique Fordham, Abenaki, of WMPA's TOTA
2:00 Civility Mural Courtyard

May 5

Bagpiper, Jim Martin
11:30 Campus Pond Sites, and the Helen Curtis Cole Garden

George Trakas, Isle of Vieux, 1981-83

The University of Massachusetts Arts Council, 103 Hasbrouck Hall, 413/545-0202. Support from the Director and staff of Campus Center Building Services. Whitmore Office of Student Management, Peer Student Union (PSU), the Dr. Josephine White Cape Cultural Center South Asian Dance/Music Program, Marianthe Center of Discipline Studies and Dr. Diane Tsimbouli

CAREER CENTER NEWS

Incredible Co-op Opportunities

◆ Cain Foods
Opportunities in the research and development labs. Performing tests on new products. Majors: Food Sci, Chem, Biochem. Ayre, MA. Summer.

◆ Central Transportation Planning Staff
Provide support of long range transportation planning. Majors: CE or Regional Planning. $8-10 per hour. Boston, MA. Summer.

◆ Edith Wharton Restoration
Non-profit organization which administers her home has openings for tour guides. Get a feel for historic preservation. Majors: Art Hist, Hist, Comp. Lit., Theater. Lenox, MA $7.00 per hour. Summer.

◆ EMC Corporation
Position in the operations test engineering group. Majors: Comp Sci, EE, CSE. Hopkinton, MA. Summer.

◆ Executive Office of Environmental Affairs
Create an evaluation report of pilot consumer pollution prevention project for submission to EPA. Majors: Res. Econ, Envi. Sci. Boston, MA. $7-10 per hr, 25 hrs per week.

◆ Fito-Lay
Sales Representatives. Majors: SOM, Mktg, Comm, Lib. Art. $450 per week. Cape Cod. Summer.

Call Jennifer at 545-6266/6265 for more information and stop by Rm. 16 Curry Hicks for an application.

Arts & Living

Family ties teem in Dining Room

By CHRISTINA ORWICZ
Collegian Staff

With a cast of actors from Mount Holyoke, the University of Massachusetts and Smith, the Mount Holyoke College Department of Theater Arts will present a production of A.R. Gurney's The Dining Room, directed by Stephanie Laffin.

The Dining Room is a play about the proverbial dining room of America, one found in any house, throughout the decades of the twentieth century. With it's non-linear plot structure, we are witness to a panoramic view of contemporary American life, allowing every walk of life to be shown in this nucleus of where families gather together.

In this narrative structure, which contains approximately twenty scenes, there are only six actors which must play more than forty character roles. This is what makes the production so accessible to all walks of life, the many different roles of one actor shifting so that all audience members can identify with someone.

In dealing with the challenge of assembling a set which could transcend the decades, Laffin used the addition of color to the set as the acts move on. The costume changes as well are subtle, as there is a rapid progression from scene to scene. Gurney's mastery of dialogue allows the transitions from character to character to be easily accessible to the audience, rather than emphasis being laid on props and scenery.

Stephanie Laffin, a senior Theater major at Mount Holyoke, has directed Beyond Therapy, the Junior Student Show at Mount Holyoke, and this past fall, Tennessee William's This Property Is Condemned as well as having assisted in the production of various other performances in the area. "I saw that everyone could identify with someone in the play," said Laffin in relating why she was drawn to The Dining Room.

This weekend's performance will be a welcome and refreshing display of theater in the Five-College area, with its non-traditional structure and display of talent on the part of it's cast.

The Dining Room is being shown this Thursday through Sunday, with performances at 8 p.m. with an added matinee at 2 p.m. on Saturday. Tickets may be reserved by calling 538-2406.

Disney's Beauty breeds true Broadway beast

By SHAWN McDONNELL
Collegian Staff

If the reaction of a packed Broadway house is any indication, then Beauty and the Beast — the stage adaption of Disney's movie which opened last week at the Palace — is a hit. The standing ovation that greeted the final curtain was so instant and so rapturous that I thought, for a moment, I was at Blood Brothers. Or at a rock concert. Or anywhere other than in the midst of the most overhyped, overblown theatrical circus since Chita Rivera dressed up like a spider.

The early verdict (and a sad one) is, yes, Disney's hollow $12 million stage beast will succeed — thanks to a built-in audience of day-trippers and theatre-tours looking for amusement park thrills without the troublesome lines.

Of course it got a standing ovation. This pseudo-cultured audience would have given a standing ovation to Aladdin on Ice.

For those who don't remember it, the original Disney Beast was a gentle romantic cartoon with a safely familiar story and wonderful Ashman-Menken songs. But as staged by Robert Jess Roth, the show now owes more to Andrew Lloyd Webber than to Gentle Walt.

The production team behind the Broadway adaption have stretched material which once moved carefully and effectively — inserting magic tricks aplenty, plugging in a half dozen new tunes, and doubling the original running time without deepening the text in any way.

The new songs (penned by former Lloyd Webber word- man Tim Rice) are insipid bordering on insulting. The play's first act builds to a laughable Rice-concocted anthem, in which the Beast belts out garbled generic nonsense about pain getting deeper and this love being a keeper — or something to that effect.

Director Roth even sabotages the strongest existing number (the ubiquitous "Be Our Guest") by interrupting the blazing pyrotechnics and spinning tablewares for a five minute dance routine which smacks more of Lounge Act than Fairy Tale. An overcamped, incomprehensible lead vocal by the usually excellent Gary Beach does not help matters.

The one joy of the evening is newcomer Susan Egan, who sings valiantly as the Beauty of the title. But, like her engagingly oddball heroine, Eagan stands alone.

Stage-veteran Terrence Mann plays the Beast as a hip- swivelling hybrid of the Rum-Tum-Tugger and Inspector Javert, suggesting a whole new fairy tale along the lines of The Water Buffalo Who Thought He Was a Rolling Stone.

Worse still is Burke Moses, who plays the preening village vanity case Gaston with all the required arrogance, but with a voice that can't come close to backing it up; or the thoroughly lost Tom Bosley, as the Beauty's father, who seems to have confused acting with reciting lines.

Roth's band of amateur night playsmiths have attempted to take every flash and flourish of the animators' pens and bring them to the stage through lighting (such as that which blinds us when the actor playing the young price in the prologue switches places with the actor playing the Beast), puppetry (the ferocious wolves of the forest night unintentionally invoke Shari Lewis and Lambchop) or mirrors (which obviously hide the body of the actor playing a tea cup). What they have missed is the gentle humanity in the original story and characters. Watching an animated candlestick sprouting little flames was cute — watching a cloying forty-year-old in a gold tuxedo setting off a disguised blow torch is not.

The only monster here is a gimmick-hungry director, who imprisons an innocent musical in an expensive, but gloomy, dungeon. That's a fairy tale to try.

Energetic Austin Lounge Lizards promise cool tunes at Iron Horse

The Austin Lounge Lizards have earned the reputation of being one of the most entertaining and creative groups in the thriving Austin music scene. The Houston Post describes their hilarious lyrics and excellent musicianship as "More fun than the law will soon allow."

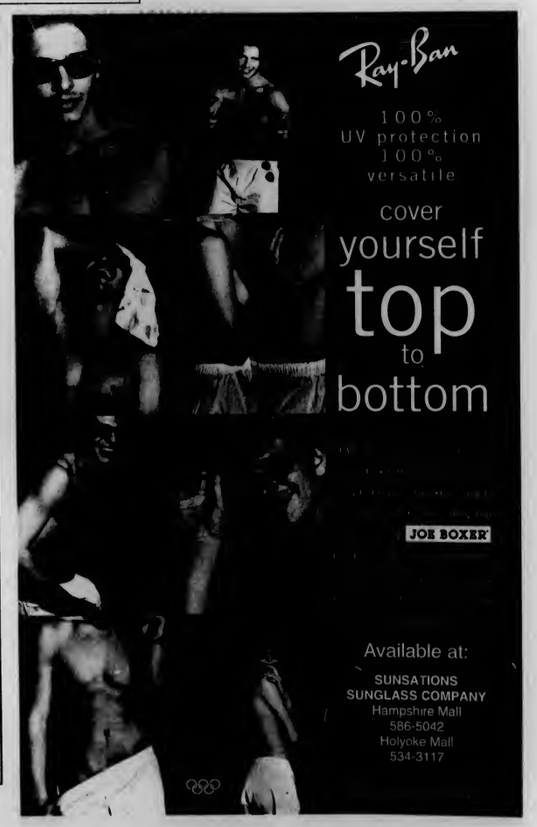
Their musical style mixes country, bluegrass, gospel, rock n' roll, cajun, blues, and touches of Frank Zappa into songs such as "Put the Oak Ridge Boys in the Slammer" and "Jesus Loves Me, But He Can't Stand You."

They have repeatedly been selected as Austin's best "None-of-the above" band by the readers of the Austin Chronicle.

The Austin Lounge Lizards will be performing their wacky and satirical music at the Iron Horse on Wednesday, April 27th at 7 p.m. Tickets are $7.50 in advance and are available at the Iron Horse and the Northampton Box Office 586-8686.

— MONICA MALDARI

ATTENTION: Arts & Living Staff!



There will be an informational meeting on Wednesday, May 4 at 5:30 p.m. in the newsroom where A&L staff can meet and hear the candidates for next semester's A&L Editor position. Make your vote a sassy, educated one.

Kate Millett speaks on
The Politics of Cruelty
An Essay on the Literature of Political Imprisonment
THURSDAY APRIL 28, 7:00pm
Helen Hills Hills Chapel, Smith College
Cosponsored by Lunaria, a feminist bookstore &
The Women's Resource Center of Smith College
For more information call 586-7851
Lunaria
a feminist bookstore

JOB OPPURTUNITY
OUTSTANDING CAREER OPPORTUNITY
WITH NATIONAL COMPUTER FIRM
TECHNICAL SUPPORT REPRESENTATIVE
Responsibilities include assisting our customers in system implementation, and product training and support -- both on site and via telephone. Must be willing to travel; UNIX, spreadsheet, database, and report generator experience necessary. Business and people orientation a must. Comprehensive salary/benefits provided. Send resume and salary history in confidence to:
Customer Services Manager
P.O. Box 178
Springfield, MA 01101

YOU ARE INVITED
UCLA
SUMMER SESSIONS
Session A: June 27 - August 5
Session B: July 18 - August 26
Session C: August 8 - September 16
Also Special 8 to 10 week Programs
- Open Admission
- Simple Registration - No Transcripts Required
- Summer Courses Carry Full Academic Credit
- No Out of State Fees for U.S. Residents
Call for a Free Catalog
1 - 8 0 0 - 3 2 1 - 8 2 5 2
CHALLENGING THE FUTURE 75th UCLA

■ meeting

continued from page 1

about rumors that implicated University President Michael Hooker as being involved in the decision to remove Conti, Melley, and Gordon.

"It was my decision. It was my idea entirely," said Scott. "I don't have an evil agenda. I am taken aback by how rumors can move across this campus . . . within minutes it seems."

At the conclusion of the evening, Scott said that, "If Michael Hooker had ordered me to do this, my resignation would be on the table right now."

■ catnap

continued from page 1

needs permission to come in the house," Cameron said.

Gold admits knowledge of the cat, but denies the allegation that he kidnapped Boo-boo.

"I knew there was a cat but I didn't take it," Gold told the Daily Hampshire Gazette. Gold was unable to be reached for further comment last night.

Alan Reynolds and Jonathan Gurfein, who live at 12 Sunset Court, witnessed Gold taking Boo-boo. Gold denied taking the cat, then questioned the witnesses' reliability, said Cameron.

"They know exactly what he looks like because they are his tenants, but he still denied taking Boo-boo," Cameron said.

The tenants filed a complaint with the Amherst Police Department on Sunday night after speaking with Reynolds and Gurfein.

"We filed a complaint with the police, and they said he had no legal right in taking the cat," Cameron said.

The students' lease prohibits Gold to be on the property or in the house without 24 hours notice. The cat was taken from the yard of another tenant who has the same clause in the lease. After consulting with the UMass Legal Services Office, Camcron says they are going to press charges against Gold.

"We went to Legal Services and they said that we could bring criminal charges against him. Two of my roommates are going down to the courthouse tommorow to file charges," Cameron said.

Cameron's roommate Lisa Klawsnik, also a UMass senior, says that it isn't the first time Gold has violated their lease.

"He has come in the house without even knocking before, and he was trespassing when he took the cat," Klawsnik said.

■ CWA

continued from page 3

groups, they all say they enjoy what they do.

"I love it!" says Peace, who seems more excited than apprehensive about knocking on strangers' doors.

Peasymitou says she likes her job because it gets her outdoors and talking to people. But most of all, she says, "It makes me a part of the political process."

Canvassers are also an essential part of CWA's process, too. They raise 98 percent of the group's revenue by asking for donations, which goes to pay salaries and running costs. But they are also the vital link between the public and the legislators.

"One person's handwritten note is more effective [than a simple petition signature]," said Littlefield, "and we spend $1 for every $25 that other lobbyists spend."

■ pot

continued from page 1

"As a marijuana legalization activist, I think Lester Grinspoon is the most valuable asset our movement has," said Aaror, Wilson, the president of the UMass Cannabis Reform Coalition. "His books form the core of what our movement is made of."

Grinspoon began studying marijuana in 1967 because he wanted to examine the "terribly destructive drug that everyone was talking about." Grinspoon said that he discovered that the greatest harm was that the government was arresting over 400,000 people a year.

"I discovered that I had been brainwashed like most people in America," said Grinspoon. "Marijuana is far less harmful than alcohol and cigarettes."

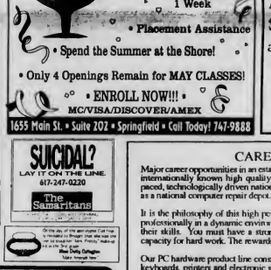
According to Grinspoon, the government has kept a false position on marijuana and should "reconsider marijuana with its medical uses."

Grinspoon also cited the important medicinal uses of marijuana in the treatment in multiple sclerosis, AIDS, epilepsy, glaucoma, and nausea.

"He is a credible source — the man is brilliant," said Wilson. "He is not some long-haired kid, he is a credible doctor from Harvard. He has such honesty and integrity for what he does." Wilson also said that Grinspoon will be not be charging a speaking fee.

SUMMER JOBS AVAILABLE
Evening security workers wanted for Bright Moments Festival on July 14, 21, 28 for approximately 5-6 hours/shift. Limited number of additional hours available. UMass students returning in Fall only. Fine Arts Center is an AA/EO employer. Description and application available at 2 Curry Hicks.
DEADLINE MAY 6

Resumé Package
• 50 copies on Your Choice of 25% Cotton Paper
• 2 Business Day Service
• 1 Page Typeset
•With Coupon• $19.95!!
CopyCat PRINT SHOP
We Specialize in Impossible Deadlines!
228 Triangle St., Amherst 549-3840
32 Pleasant St., Northampton 586-1332



Gilreath Manor Condos
-on Hobart Lane-
3 Bedroom • 1 1/2 baths
Heated Basement
New Gas Heat and Hot Water
1/2 mile to campus • On Bus Route
Showings Start In April
for June or September Occupancy!
Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St • 253-7879

STUDENT TRAVEL
1-800-777-0112
STA TRAVEL

1994 HANES/ATLANTIC 10 COMMISSIONER'S CUP
Hanes
ATLANTIC 10 Conference

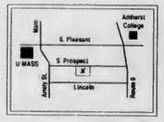
THE VERTEX NIGHTCLUB
18+ Always • 3 Minutes from UMASS!
Call to bok your team/organization's private party now!
<<<< Upcoming Locals >>>>
MAY 6
UMASS Football Party
RT. 9 HADLEY • 413-586-4463 • TICKETMASTER

Rafters
SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT
THE 1994 RAFTERS COLLEGE TOWNE CLASSIC
SUNDAY, MAY 1, 1994
12:15PM
Registration starts at 11am
8k course outside, hilly but fast
post-race BARBECUE at Rafters
T-SHIRTS to all participants
Cash Prizes:
1st open (M&F) $100
2nd open (M&F) $50
3rd open (M&F) $25
1st Master (M&F) $50
1st Team in Each Category: open, masters, seniors (M&F) $50
PRIZES TO TOP THREE IN EACH AGE DIVISION
START AND FINISH AT RAFTERS
ENTRY FORMS AVAILABLE AT RAFTERS, THE PUB, SEASONS
FOR INFORMATION, CALL FRED WELLMAN AT 413-586-7411
University Drive & Amity
Amherst • 549-4040

My eyes teared as I hacked my desert dry cough at the road dust that swirled up from behind the passing semi. Yes, I was lost... a long way from the rotting New York cul-de-sac I had called my home. Why HAD I eaten that moldy bread. Why DID I let that circus bear break my heart.
Mass. Daily Collegian
Wherever you go, There you are!

THE UMAS. THEATRE GUILD Presents:
The Two Gentlemen From Verona
In the Rhododendron Garden
FREE ADMISSION • April 27-30
Rain Date: May 1 at 4 & 8pm
Questions? Call 545-0415
Blanket Spaces Available

Immigration Law
Hans & Curran, P.C.
30 Years of Experience in Immigration Law
1180 Main Street Springfield, MA 781-8370
12 Old South St Northampton, MA 584-3282
50 Congress St. Boston, MA 1617) 722-0043
Free Consultation for Five-College Students/Faculty



Tired of Roomates?
Come live by yourself for as little as $320.00/Month
College Inn Apts.
mgmt. by Kamins Real Estate
253-2515

BOSTON BARTENDERS SCHOOL OF AMERICA
Train Now For Your Summer Job
• If you are 18 or older, be a bartender
• Day/Evenings 1 Week
• Placement Assistance
• Spend the Summer at the Shore!
• Only 4 Openings Remain for MAY CLASSES!
• ENROLL NOW!!! •
MC/VISA/DISCOVER/AMEX
1655 Main St. • Suite 202 • Springfield • Call Today! 747-9888

SUICIDAL?
LAY IT ON THE LINE.
617-247-0220
The Samaritans

COMMUTER AREA GOVERNMENT ELECTIONS
Positions are available for the Commuter Area Government officer positions of President • Vice President & Treasurer.
Nomination papers are now available at the Commuter Area Government office 430 Student Union. 25 signatures are needed.
Nomination papers are due Friday, April 29.
Elections are May 9.

STEINBECK COLLISION REPAIR & AUTOBODY
53 So. Prospect -Amherst Center
256-8157 • 256-1385

• Imports & other unibody vehicles are our specialty.
• State of the art equipment for precision frame and unibody straightening (+or-1/2mm)
• Over 90 years staff experience.
• Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass replacement.
• Advanced European Technology Painting and Refinishing Systems.
• User of Sikkens paint products
Remember it's your car and your choice of repair facilities.
Shop Registration # RS1212

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES
Major career opportunities in an established rapidly expanding Bedford based leading provider of internationally known high quality personal computer hardware. We are a high growth, fast paced, technologically driven national direct marketer of PC hardware and service parts, as well as a national computer repair depot.

It is the philosophy of this high performance company to encourage its employees to develop professionally in a dynamic environment using state-of-the-art computer technology to enhance their skills. You must have a strong desire to grow, be motivated, be aggressive, and have a capacity for hard work. The rewards reflect your success.

Our PC hardware product line consists of a wide variety of computer systems, CPU's, monitors, keyboards, printers and electronic sub assemblies such as logic boards, disk drives, power supplies, etc. We serve a large diverse customer base ranging from consumers to business, education and other types of institutions, as well as the wide world of the service and repair industry.

Our environment is challenging and positive within an exciting growth industry.

DEAL MAKERS
PERSONAL COMPUTER PURCHASING
You will help meet current inventory needs for computer hardware and their electronic sub-assemblies and will develop vendor prospects in business to business relationships. You will develop and execute inventory and purchasing programs and procedures to meet corporate goals. You will be part of a strong professional buyer team that develops vendor selection, qualification and quality assurance programs in non-OEM/non-standard sourcing channels.

You should thrive on both the hunt for difficult to find sources and the evaluation and negotiation of purchasing opportunities in a deal making environment. You must have good computer skills and have a strong desire to learn about the technicalities of computer hardware. We seek a high energy person with basic knowledge of personal computer systems and hardware.

You will enter an outstanding Training Program that will give you professional competency in product knowledge, negotiating skills, operations skills and personal development tactics. A combination of study and real time practice in a live environment mentored by experts will develop your skills.

PERSONAL COMPUTER SALES
Enjoy the high earnings potential of an inside sales person.

You will help our customers meet current needs for computer hardware and their electronic sub-assemblies and will develop prospects in business to business relationships.

You must have good computer skills and have a strong desire to learn about the technicalities of computer hardware. You should be aggressive and enjoy the sales process. Sales or customer service experience in any industry is a major plus.

You will enter an outstanding Training Program that will give you professional competency in product knowledge, selling skills, operations skills and personal development tactics. A combination of study and real time practice in a live environment mentored by experts will develop your skills.

MARKETING ASSOCIATE
You will assist in developing, managing and executing marketing programs and tactics in product pricing strategy, product line development, marketing research and other marketing activities.

You must have very strong computer skills and analytic ability. You must have good technical knowledge about personal computer hardware and a strong desire to learn about the technicalities of their electronic sub-assemblies.

Experience in the personal computer industry, a technical background and a marketing MBA are major pluses.

If you are a career achiever and can make a contribution to this dynamic entrepreneurial company, please send resume and details of your computer knowledge to:
Pre-Owned Electronics, Inc.
205 Burlington Road
Bedford, MA 01730
Attn: Linda Gagnon

■ women's lax

continued from page 10

day, it was definatly not one ot our better ganies of the year."

"They [Vermont] didn't stop us, we stopped ourselves," said Splaine. "We just didn't execute what Coach was asking us, and our attack wasn't performing well."

Vermont outhshot the Minutewomen, 29–7. UMass freshman goalkeeper Patricia Diffenedetto did an outstanding job, turning aside 16 Catamount shots.

Diffenedetto and the UMass defensive corp have led the Minutewomen all year and was impressive against the Catamounts on Saturday.

Coach Den Hartog and the Minutewomen are hoping to bounce back on Thursday when they travel to New Hampshire to face the Wildcats.

"We're expecting a game much like Hofstra on Thursday," said Walsh. "We have been using Hofstra as a standard for our upcoming games."

The Minutewomen played possibly their most inspired game of the year against Hofstra two weeks ago when they came from six goals back only to lose a heartbreaker by one goal.

"We have to regroup after this loss and set our sights on finishing out the year on a good note," said Den Hartog.

SHOOT FOR THE COLLEGIAN

New photographers are always welcome at the Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England

Stop by the Collegian 113 Campus Center Basement
Talk to Melissa Marvin, Photo Editor

Call For Our Special Offer

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST

Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience

- On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
- Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian.
Something for everyone.

Summer Japanese Study

Intensive 6 wk program at Lewis & Clark College in Portland, OR July 18-Aug 28. Earn 12 quarter hrs. Study lang. (all levels) & culture with Japanese students on theme "Nature & the Environment." Three-day wilderness program included. Prior language study not required.

Oregon/Japan Summer Program
222 SW Columbia, Suite 1750
Portland, OR 97201
Tel. (503) 223-7918
Fax (503) 223-3946

GOOD USED

CLOTHING
RECEIVE
50% OFF
BY PRESENTING THIS AD.
SPECIAL GOOD THROUGH MAY.
ORANGE TAGS
EXCLUDED.

SALVATION ARMY THRIFT STORE
253-4747
130 No. Pleasant St.
Behind Bess Mobil
Amherst (Parking in Rear)

Taking advanced management education beyond the classroom into the global marketplace with the

M.I.B.S. Program

- Earn two degrees in 24 months - a Master of Business Administration (AACSB accredited) plus a Master of Science with a concentration in International Business (MIBS).
- Placement in a university-arranged corporate internship in international business. Companies located in U.S., Europe and Latin America.
- Scholarships are available for U.S. and international students.
- Ongoing language training and skills enhancement seminars enrich the educational experience.
- Miami is a major hub of international business.
- Graduate Business Placement Center which networks and assists in job placement exclusively for graduate business students.

University of Miami

THE MOST COMPLETE PROGRAM IN INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS AVAILABLE TODAY

For more information, write to MIBS/Graduate Business Admissions, University of Miami P.O. Box 248505, Coral Gables, Florida 33124-6524. U.S.A.
Phone: 305-284-3750 or toll-free 800-531-7137

take Kaplan and get a higher score...

MCAT

The MCAT is August 20.
Register now for classes in Amherst, or anywhere in the country.
549-5780
KAPLAN
The answer to the test question

CELEBRATING 26 YEARS 1968-1994

THE PUB

Fun, Food & Spirits

TONIGHT
SETTIE
Any Menu Nachos
Only $2.00
9:30-10:30

15 EAST PLEASANT-AMHERST

Yes, It's always a fine day for a barbeque. Ahh nothing like the hot coals to cause a man to break down in a fit of hysterical crying. "WHY DIDN'T I LISTEN TO MY MOTHER AND BECOME A DOG GROOMER!!!!"

COLLEGIAN
NEVER TOO LATE TO CHANGE

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

Major career opportunities in an established rapidly expanding Bedford based leading provider of internationally known high quality personal computer hardware. We are a high growth, fast paced, technologically driven national direct marketer of PC hardware and service parts, as well as a national computer repair depot.

It is the philosophy of this high performance company to encourage its employees to develop professionally in a dynamic environment using state-of-the-art computer technology to enhance their skills. You must have a strong desire to grow, be motivated, be aggressive, and have a capacity for hard work. The rewards reflect your success.

Our PC hardware product line consists of a wide variety of computer systems, CPU's, monitors, keyboards, printers and electronic sub-assemblies such as logic boards, disk drives, power supplies, etc. We serve a large diverse customer base ranging from consumers to business, education and other types of institutions, as well as the wide world of the service and repair industry.

Our environment is challenging and positive within an exciting growth industry.

DEAL MAKERS
PERSONAL COMPUTER PURCHASING

You will help meet current inventory needs for computer hardware and their electronic sub-assemblies and will develop vendor prospects in business to business relationships. You will develop and execute inventory and purchasing programs and procedures to meet corporate goals. You will be part of a strong professional buyer team that develops vendor selection, qualification and quality assurance programs in non-OEM/non-standard sourcing channels.

You should thrive on both the hunt for difficult to find sources and the evaluation and negotiation of purchasing opportunities in a deal making environment. You must have good computer skills and have a strong desire to learn about the technicalities of computer hardware. We seek a high energy person with basic knowledge of personal computer systems and hardware.

You will enter an outstanding Training Program that will give you professional competency in product knowledge, negotiating skills, operations skills and personal development tactics. A combination of study and real time practice in a live environment mentored by experts will develop your skills.

PERSONAL COMPUTER SALES

Enjoy the high earnings potential of an inside sales person.

You will help our customers meet current needs for computer hardware and their electronic sub-assemblies and will develop prospects in business to business relationships.

You must have good computer skills and have a strong desire to learn about the technicalities of computer hardware. You should be aggressive and enjoy the sales process. Sales or customer service experience in any industry is a major plus.

You will enter an outstanding Training Program that will give you professional competency in product knowledge, selling skills, operations skills and personal development tactics. A combination of study and real time practice in a live environment mentored by experts will develop your skills.

MARKETING ASSOCIATE

You will assist in developing, managing and executing marketing programs and tactics in product pricing strategy, product line development, marketing research and other marketing activities.

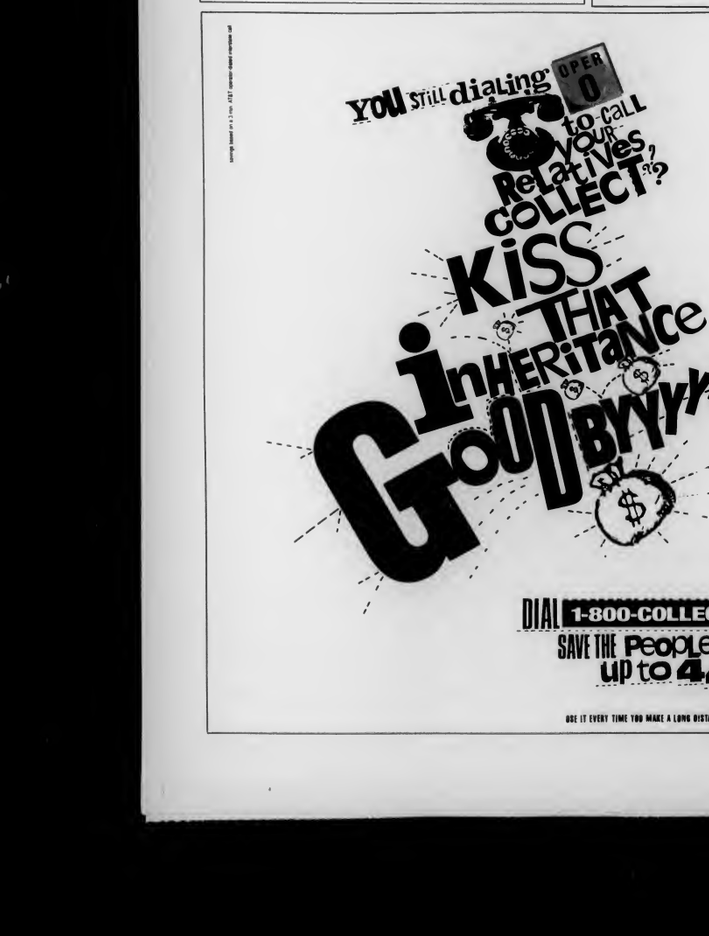
You must have very strong computer skills and analytic ability. You must have good technical knowledge about personal computer hardware and a strong desire to learn about the technicalities of their electronic sub-assemblies.

Experience in the personal computer industry, a technical background and a marketing MBA are major pluses.

ACCOUNTANT/FINANCIAL ANALYST

You must have solid general accounting skills with a strong emphasis on financial analysis and reporting. You must have excellent computer skills to work with advanced computerized accounting systems and the creative ability to produce analytical projects for management.

PERSONAL ASSISTANT



This is a significant opportunity to gain a wide range of experience at the senior management level.

As Personal Assistant to the Executive Committee, you will work with the three principals in their personal affairs in such activities as insurance and legal administration, real estate, investments, professional and community affairs and the general administration of their private and business functions.

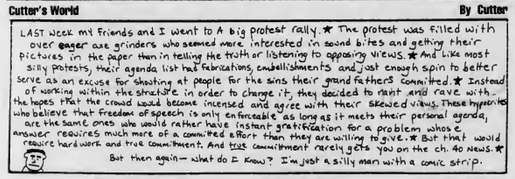
You must be a results driven independent worker and have highly developed skills with personal computer programs including word processing and spreadsheets, in addition to general management level organizational skills and excellent written and verbal presentation abilities. You must have the professional level corporate decorum to be effective at the senior executive management level.

If you are a career achiever and can make a contribution to this dynamic entrepreneurial company, please send resume and details of your computer knowledge to:

Pre-Owned Electronics, Inc.
205 Burlington Road
Bedford, MA 01730
Attn: Linda Gagnon

Calvin and Hobbes By Bill Watterson

Jim's Journal By Jim



Bruno By C. Baldwin

Urban Shocker By Deg

Cutter's World By Cutter

Daily Crossword

Edited byTrude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 — at the pauth
5 NCOs
9 Adjoyd one
13 Maskelpiece in ind Greece
15 Fix East weight
16 " — but the brave"
17 Small hawks
18 Competent
19 Swear at 20 Unconscious
22 Employs
23 Weird
24 Man's man
26 Go for the gold watch
30 Abet
31 Id
32 Manufacture
35 Bunsbe by scribe Puhyon
39 Sattopes
41 Social gathering
42 Oven
43 Large crowd
44 Pitcho's maxine
46 Superman's girlfriend
47 Notion
48 Convicts
51 Weird
53 Length x width
55 Roman garb
56 Indoctrinate
62 Saudi
63 "Anything —"
64 Concerning
65 Work hard
66 Word from Orwin Twist
67 Fiberly
68 — of Clives
69 Social insecto
70 Oscoins

DOWN
1 H H. Munro
2 Not "lo"
3 Something to cost or draw
4 Kilner subject
5 Series of steps
6 Heyes of the eaters
7 Relete
8 Hiding place for an ace
9 Blameless
10 Drench
11 Beginning
12 Fewer
14 Ed of TV
21 Appess to be
25 "Hawkeye" player
26 Novelist Ayn
27 Arab title
28 Josip Broz
29 Carteio
30 Cad
33 Eben of Israel
34 New Zealand parrot
36 "The — and Sixpence": Maughom novel
37 Roman poet
38 "Untouchable" Eliot
40 Make over
45 Sharp
48 Puzzle
50 South Americien parrot
51 Element, symbol B
52 Once more
53 Wad off
54 "The Sun Also —": Hemingway novel
55 Cheerio
57 When both hands are up
58 Wading bird of Africa
59 Something to pick
60 Clive Boothe —
61 Stonme summere

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

4/27/94

4/27/94

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Hamburger	Baked Chicken
Hungarian Noodle Bake	Szechuan Beef
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Hungarian Noodle Bake	Szechuan Tofu
Lentil Chili	Baked Chicken

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Dan Wetzel
Copy Editor ..... Brian Gormley
Photo Technician ..... Matt Kahn
Production Supervisor ..... Jim Ganley
Production ..... Mami E. Hellner
Tara Dixon

Scrambled Eggs By Pete Woodbury

Your Horoscope

By Jonne Dixon

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Sweet reason helps you find logical answers to problems. Dull and outdated concepts and ivy something new. Travel generally to a young person will be rewarded in tangible ways. Cultivate a serene disposition.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Friends play a major role on today's plans. Call for the help you so richly deserve. Your eyes for improvements could lead to a financial bonanza. Key does it on the home front: soft spot duly disappointing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Listen to an intelligent friend's suggestions, then act accordingly. Jeopardizing your financial standing would be a mistake. Avoid pain-busing non-essentials, even if the pain gnaws perval. Keen clear or better, financial the power of romance on the rebound.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Unexpected financial gains are featured. A long, sought-after dream within reach. Realize that each step you take brings you closer to the finish line.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Remember, a taste for evil will win nothing. By being more assertive, you can convince others that you are on summit. Academic work could be an uphill struggle right now. Hand in there — you will succeed!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Work is your therapy when your emotions thrust on so overwhelm you. Let higher ups know that you are eager to carry out a tough assignment. A sense of humor will help you get through anything.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Friendships, travel and good will are the keynotes today. A voice from the past could bring welcome news. Romance could complicate a longtime acquaintance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Do not look askance at someone who experiences unusual ideas. You may be able to make use of the person's more practical suggestions. Higher ups may be skeptical.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Working in the familiar will bring you good fortune this week. Family ties, home affairs and outside influences are favored. Relationship or decorating matters your surroundings much more comfortable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Rule out unnecessary risk taking. Following a hard and true path will produce the best results today. Unfamiliar territory or terrain could lead to heavy financial losses. Guard against getting off on your ego's electrical basket.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Put family needs first today. Help an older relative who has been very kind to you. Routine tasks do not have to be boring. Keep your schedule flexible in order to entertain unexpected guests.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Keep your eyes on your goal and work towards it at a steady pace. Procrastination is the enemy of progress. Make decisions promptly and carry out your plans without delay. Adventure beckons tonight.

Quote of the Day

"I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it."

—Voltaire

■ lacrosse

continued from page 10

"I'm definitely not the vocal leader," said Depp. "My leadership is on the attack. I try to settle those guys down."

Depp has only one aspiration left in his collegiate lacrosse career.

"My goals have been trying to get the team into the final four," said Depp.

Depp and the Minutemen will try to take the next step toward that goal today as they will play the Boston College Eagles at Bentley College at 3 p.m.

■ Beanballs

continued from page 10

Camden Yards is in its third season and nobody has hit the warehouse beyond right field during a game. You'll remember that Ken Griffey hit the warehouse during the home run contest at last season's All-Star contest. Griffey almost duplicated the feat on Sunday when he dropped a home run just 25 feet from the warehouse.

Speaking of Griffey — A generation of baseball fans grew up with two stars who were larger than life. Mickey Mantle and Willie Mays. If you haven't noticed there a two guys forming their own legends right now. Ken Griffey Jr. and Frank Thomas.

These two are the types of players that command attention when they are at bat and on the field. If you haven't seen much of them on television or at the ballpark, go out and catch them in action or you just might regret it down the line.

Who has a dad or other relative that will talk about Mantle and Mays until their blue in the face? Someday that will be you when asked about Griffey and Thomas. They're that good.

Bill Balfour is a Collegian staff member.

On the day of the apocolypse Gail finally revealed to Bridget that she was the one to steal her "Mrs. Pretty" make-up kit in the 3rd grade.
Mean Daily Collegian
"Make Amends Now"

Classifieds

- 20¢ per word per day for students
- All ads must be paid in cash 2 days in advance
- Ads may be placed at 113 Campus Center, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

ACROSS FROM CAMPUS

3 floor, 3 bedroom condo on Sunset Ave. Avail. June 1st. call 549-8103

ACTIVITIES

Nyc bustrip April 30. Leave UMass 1:00 pm. leave NYC 2:00am. $35 per person. Sign up in 428 Student Union- Commuter Services Center.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Attention Greek exec Thinking of starting a meet plan or empowing yours? Call 256-8093 for more info.

Attn. All univ. women open rush IGU Tonite 4/27 9-7pm. Eats, food + drinks! Call Jess 549-5946. For more info.

Bed and Breakfast downtown Amherst ideal for visiting parents and friends 549-0737

Dance Party on April 30 9:00-1:00am in Student Union Ballroom. $2 before $3 at door. All welcome!

Eurailpasses!! Save with the best prices available for railpasses and discount airfare! Join International Backpackers Union. Call for a free brochure 1-800-313 PACK.

Planning a graduation party? Exp chef established in local area. Best price. Call 256-8093.

The UMass Theatre Guild presents Two Gentlemen of Verona in the Rhododen dron Garden FREE ADMISSION April 27 30 Plain Dare May 1 4&6pm ?s call 545-0415

UMass Credit Union has car, personal, and computer loans. Rates as low as 7.95% 314 Student Union Building 545-2800

ATTENTION PROFESSORS

Don't put off painting your home or home office again! Call Rhilegs Brothers Painting now for early spring bookings. Free estimates. Fast reliable service. Commercial and residential painting. Light carpentry work. Specialize in fine interior work. 584-7285 ask for Blake.

AUTO FOR SALE

82 Toyota SR wagon $475 585-0843

85 RX7 Mazda sunroof, cassette, 5 speed, going $2,700. Call Jason 549-6928

1986 Escort wagon $500/ B.O. Good brakes + little rust. Sharn 549-1160

Dodge Aries 1980 wagon 106000mi Well maintained AC/AT $1200 BO 548-4643 Toby

Toyota Starcet 1983 red hatch only $630 call Sarah @ 256-8758

CAPE COD RENTAL

West Yarmouth 6 room 4 bedrooms keeps fl near everything 253-7436 508 775-4776 $6,000

FOR RENT

1 bedroom apt. N. Amherst Quiet location with big yard, laundry facilities, and AC. Pets negotiable Take over lease June 1st. Call Marc 549-8244

1 bedroom apt Pulfton 442/month Cindy Fred 549-4050

1 bedroom avail. May1. farmhouse in Hadley on bus. $275. 585-0843

1 mile from campus 4 bdrm, on lease. Call 549-8139

2 bedroom apt Quiet great location Cheap includes heat, hot water. 549-1521

2 bedrooms N. Pleasant St. Good location close to bus starts June 1st. Call 549-9951

2 bedroom 3 story condo. 2 full baths. Come to upstown. On bus route. Avail June 1st. Call 253-6603

2 bedroom apartment at Brandywine. 3rd floor poindside. $770/ month including heat. Available June 1st. Call 549-5465. Tracey or Beth

2 story, 2 bedroom I'll rent 1 bdr. in shutfeeather on bus route. $570 + utils. 253-7892

3 bdrm. Pulfton apt. Take our lease over. Call now. 549-4053

3 bdrm Townehouse 1 1/2 baths on 2 bus routes take over lease 6/1. Call 549-7809

3 on 4 bedroom house cheap utilities big yard. near bus stop. 253-3165

4 bedroom, 4 5 people 2 car garage Avail June 1. $1040 call 549-7177

4 bedroom townehouse ideal for 5 people on busline. Available June 1 with fall option. Call 549-7730

4-5 bedrooms 2 full baths. Close to upstown. On bus route. Avail June 1. Call Randy 549-9339 $1,100/ month.

5 bdr house a 5 miles from campus lease starts June 1. $1,100/ bl. 549-1868

Big house on Sunset Ave Across from College Pizza + Gift. 3 full bathrooms Huge backyard. Call 549-6890 or 549-7291

Blue room for rent $195 + utilities. Norm Hadley. Call after 5PM 4787

Brandywine 2 bdr top floor. New carpet. Only $695/ month. Available June 1 549-6067

Brandywine 1 bedroom apt. sublet or take over our lease. hot water, gas included. 549-7972

Cape Cod Duplex 5/28 9/3. 3 people $3150. Call Micah 549-4704

Center of town 1,2,& 3 bedroom apts. For 6/1 or 9/1. Now being shown. Call for appointment. Lincoln Real Estate 253-7879

Quarantee a 2 bedroom apt. in Pulfton. Take over our lease starting June 1. Call 549-8112

Huge room Hobart Ln $170/ month. Call Scott 549-4166.

Large 1 br All utilities w/ cable $590/ month. 6/1. 2 min from campus 549-4888

Large 3 bedroom townhouse on bus route Call 549-7615

Large 6 bedroom house on Main St. 2 full baths. CAll 253-2847

Live in Pulfton! Immaculate three bedroom apartment with closet already moved. Plus option to buy our unbelievable restaurant style ber- a must see! Call Stephanie, Julie, or Lisa at 549-8871

Mill Valley 2 bedroom avail. June 1. call Dan. 253-4225

Mill Valley 3 bdr. 2 bath AC furnished + 1 with fall option. 256-4690

One bedroom apt Pulfton Village Available May 31. Call 549-6014.

Rent 7rm, 4 br. 2 bath house. On bus route with deck. 1000 a month plus utilities. Avail. June 1st. Call 1-783-6433

Sign early -3 bedroom in Pulfton 549-8707

Summer sublet w/ fall option. 2 bdr Brandywine apt. inc. heat and hot water. Call soon! 549-3937

Take over our lease 6/1 Brandywine 3rd floor! $549-4546.

Take over our lease Brandywine apt Get a free month's rent. Some furniture included. Avail June 1 549-6819

Take over our lease. Huge 4 br 2 bath $880/ month/ incl ht/ hw. Call 253-3752

FOR SALE

Color tv $120. Mini bike $50 546-7025

Furniture kugs mountain bike. Call 253-4164

Gibson Lespaul studio guitar $475 546-6860

Kerosetor with CO2 tank. Converted from fridge. $200/ BO. 253-7395

Macintosh Plus, Imagewriter II, external harddrive, 3 1/2 inch disk, cases, software $85-5702, reliable.

Magnavox tv with remote and magnavox boom box. Both great condition (make me an offer. Trey 546-5722.

Slats pool table, great condition w/cloth/ recievor, sticks and balls included. $500 or best offer. call Josh 549 7177

GOOD HUMOR ICE CREAM

Drivers wanted College students, to sell Good Humor Ice Cream from one of our vending trucks. Work outdoors this summer. Be your own boss. Routes available in your area. Earn $650 to $950 weekly. Male or female. Apply now. Call Mon-Sat 9am to 3pm only. 203-366-3641

HELP WANTED

Alaska fisheries summer employment Earn up to $15,000 this summer in canneries, processors, etc. Male/ female. No exper. necessary. Room/ board/ travel often provided! Guaranteed success! (919) 929-4398 ext. A109.

Alaska summer employment Earn up to $5000+ in two months. Room + board! Transportation! Male/female. No experience necessary! (206) 545-4155 ext. A5001.

Counselors Camp Emerson, coed Massachusetts Swimming, tennis, landsports, arts/crafts, theatre, woodworking, hockey, archery, computer, yearbook, photography, video, radio, more! Superkids, great food, friendly fun! No general counselors 800-955-CAMP

Earn $$ and experience - WMUA, student radio at UMass is looking for energetic, dedicated undergrads to become departmental directors starting in September. Applications are available in WMUA lobby cc 105, across from the Collegian. Application deadline: April 29. Interviews: April 30

Exotic dancers wanted. Good shift pay. Excellent working conditions. Apply in person. Diplomat Lounge, 1515 Riverdale St. West Springfield. 736-2201 / 736-9436.

Receptionist needed 20-25 hours per week to answer incoming calls and help with various marketing tasks at local computer integration firm. Pleasant phone manner required. 549-0701.

The Jewish community of Amherst religious school seeks teachers for 1994/1995. Jewish studies, Hebrew, pre-school music. Resume to Principal JCA 742 Main St. Amherst, MA 01002 or call 665-4372

INTERNATIONAL FAIR

International students association presents 16th International Fair April 30 11:00-5:00pm. Student Union. Free admission.

LOST

Black leather jacket lost in the Hatch. Please call Anmet 545-4634. 549-7224.

Large silver "infamia" pendant. If found please call Mecca 546-4858.

Lost student daily planner and blue fabric pencil bag in GRT 14th floor. Reward 253-8175.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

1982 Suzuki GS 450T. low miles- mint condition. extras! $900 549-6708

1985 Kawasaki GPZ 550. Black paint w/ red stripe. about 9000 original miles. Very clean! $1800/ B.O. Call Marc 549-8332.

MUSICIANS

Band seeks mate vocalist 4 all styles 546-6312 Pete

PERSONALS

Alpha Chi Omega is proud to welcome Gina, Meghan, Jeanne, Robin, Kelli, Joy, Alison, Patrice, Julie, Diana, Heidi, Jessica, Michelle, and Jen to sisterhood! Congrats! We love you!!

Brenda Thanks for everything. You're the best! I owe your little sis Ali.

Cheryl W Happy big/ lil day! Good luck with your new job! I'll miss you next year! Keep in touch Your lil Jen B

Cristina Happy 20th Birthday Sweetie! P.F.

Happy Birthday
Bhebba buff
Overzealous sensor
Neurotic MW fan
A+ indecisive decision maker
Loyal Pulp queen
Nan

Michael Hang in there! Punch the clown! I'll be thinking of you. Priscilla

Michael There is no explanation. Look to the love in your heart. I'll wait for you there. Priscilla P.S. Good luck with calculus!

Rebecca Happy big/ lil day! Have fun next semester! I'll miss ya! See you in the spring! Love your big, Jen B.

Sigma Kappa congratulates the spring '94 initiates! Amy, Dimple, Deirdre, Jen, Nancy, Audrey, Susan C., Kim, Susan H., Bonnie, Alex, Shannon, Heather, Kelly, and Lisa! Phew!

Susan- dude/ secretary/ cowlover this one really IS for you.
good luck with "your" show
love your mimee and the girl with no middle name

Tara, Happy Birthday!
Love, Tom

REWARD

Missing-"Boo Boo" Black & white domestic cat w/ bright pink collar. Any info please call. 549-8412

RIDE NEEDED

Need a ride to College Park MD. Fri. Will pay for gas. Call 546-7499

ROOMMATE WANTED

1 bedrm in N. Hadley house. 187/ mo. 5 min. from UMass. 586-4711

1 F roommate to pay 180/ mon or 1 M + 1 F to pay 180/ mon, all utl incl in a 2 br apartment in Sunderland Call Kris 546-3731

Have your own single in Pulfton For more info call Ellen 549-0385

One person for large room $170.00 Call 665-7604

Roommate needed for one br uptown Call 253-3752

Summer sublet with fall option 2 bedroom hot water included on bus line $450 549-8445

SERVICES

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring, confidential support 549-1906

Professional repair Most brands audio equipment + VCRs. Sound + Music 351 Pleasant Street, Northampton 584-3547

Purchasing a used car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your rights? Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center. 545-1995.

$Scholarship$ matching! International Students too! 24 hr. mes sage! (800) 434-6615 ext 500

SPRING CONCERT 5/8/94

Security volunteers needed Must attend one information meeting- 4/20, 4/28, 5/4 from 7-9pm in the Cape Cod lounge. Call UPC at 545-2882 for more info.

Volunteers needed for 5 days of fun in the sun! Spring concert cannot happen without your help. Come to a UPC general committee meeting on Tuesday 5/3 at 5pm in cc 165-69 Help wanted for security, hospitality, promotions, advertising, and stage crew.

SUMMER SUBLETS

2 BDRM PUFFTON

Take over our lease starting June 1 with option for fall renewal call Ted at 549-7648

1 bedroom in 2 bedroom Apt. Cheap! Near campus. Ombudsme 549-1418. Take over lease option

1 large bedroom Colonial Vill. 2 bedroom apt. ideal for 2. Avail June 1st 270/BO Call Vanky. 253-2565

1,2, or 3 bedrooms in house on Pine St. Call 549-2660 or 8130.

2 bedroom Brandywine. May 25 to Sept 1 includes everything and free cable!!! Only 564% /mo w/ fall option 3 couches and cable incl. 549-4781

2 bedroom apartment $550 a month Includes everything. 256-1960

2 bdrm in 7 rm house. Many amenities on bus route. avail 6/1. Call 546-3957, 546-4269

2 bdrms in 3 bdrm cape. Big yard, near Puffers Pond, tennis + bball courts. 549-5147

2 big bdrm apt South Amherst on bus route. June-Aug. Fall option. $450. 253-4624.

2 bdrm apt furnished. On bus line. 350/mo negotiable. 253-5734.

2 bedroom Brandywine Apt. fall option. $645/ mo. Includes everything. 549-6928

2-3 bedrooms available in 4 bedroom apartment. Fully equipped, AC, busline. June until August 549-8233

3 bedrooms. 50 yds from bus stop Hadley. May 31- August 31. $500 negotiable + utilities. Call 586-6438.

3 bedroom sublet Pulfton $/neg. May 27-Sept 1. New carpeting, appliances. Call 546-5649

3 bedrooms. On busline. Really close! Call us! 253-7694

5 bedroom house in Amherst Available June 1 with fall option. 253-7374

Bdrm avail. in furnished condo. Large yard on bus route. Rent negotiable. 256-4609

Beautiful summer sublet in Mill Valley. Three bed Two full baths. $700/ month 256-1222. Get it before it's gone!

Brandywine 2 bedroom. June 1 to Sept 1. 3rd Floor Pondview. 549-7791

Cheap and close 2 min walk to campus $595 a month. Beautiful house call 549-3704

Cheap! Pulfton Village sublet 1, 2, or 3 bedrooms available. Pool & tennis courts. Call Lori 546-3182

Take over our lease Brandywine apt. Get a free month's rent. Some furniture included. Avail June 1 549-6819

Take over our lease. Huge 4 br 2 bath $880/ month/ incl ht/ hw. Call 253-3752

Sigma Kappa congratulates the spring '94 initiates! Amy, Dimple, Deirdre, Jen, Nancy, Audrey, Susan C., Kim, Susan H., Bonnie, Alex, Shannon, Heather, Kelly, and Lisa! Phew!

Susan- dude/ secretary/ cowlover this one really IS for you.
good luck with "your" show
love your mimee and the girl with no middle name

Tara, Happy Birthday!
Love, Tom

REWARD

Missing-"Boo Boo" Black & white domestic cat w/ bright pink collar. Any info please call. 549-8412

RIDE NEEDED

Need a ride to College Park MD. Fri. Will pay for gas. Call 546-7499

ROOMMATE WANTED

1 bedrm in N. Hadley house. 187/ mo. 5 min. from UMass. 586-4711

1 F roommate to pay 180/ mon or 1 M + 1 F to pay 180/ mon, all utl incl in a 2 br apartment in Sunderland Call Kris 546-3731

Have your own single in Pulfton For more info call Ellen 549-0385

One person for large room $170.00 Call 665-7604

Roommate needed for one br uptown Call 253-3752

Summer sublet with fall option 2 bedroom hot water included on bus line $450 549-8445

SERVICES

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring, confidential support 549-1906

Professional repair Most brands audio equipment + VCRs. Sound + Music 351 Pleasant Street, Northampton 584-3547

Purchasing a used car? Having your car repaired? Do you know your rights? Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center. 545-1995.

$Scholarship$ matching! International Students too! 24 hr. mes sage! (800) 434-6615 ext 500

SPRING CONCERT 5/8/94

Security volunteers needed Must attend one information meeting- 4/20, 4/28, 5/4 from 7-9pm in the Cape Cod lounge. Call UPC at 545-2882 for more info.

Volunteers needed for 5 days of fun in the sun! Spring concert cannot happen without your help. Come to a UPC general committee meeting on Tuesday 5/3 at 5pm in cc 165-69 Help wanted for security, hospitality, promotions, advertising, and stage crew.

SUMMER SUBLETS

2 BDRM PUFFTON

Take over our lease starting June 1 with option for fall renewal call Ted at 549-7648

1 bedroom in 2 bedroom Apt. Cheap! Near campus. Omb

Sports

Shaw provides UMass heroics

By SEAN P. HAYDEN
Collegian Staff

Michele Shaw's two–out, seventh–inning single down the third base line scoring Chris Martens from third capped a two–run rally that led the University of Massachusetts softball team to a 6–5 come–from–behind win over Providence College in the second game of yesterday's doubleheader at Totman Field.

The Minutewomen (21–12, 7–1 Atlantic 10) dispatched of the Lady Friars 4–2 in the first game behind the pitching of junior ace Kelly Daut and the hitting of sophomore Amy Powell.

Shaw's single was her fourth of the game and fifth of the doubleheader, including two towering doubles off the left field fence. The sophomore catcher drove in three of Massachusetts' six runs in the nightcap.

Martens and freshman Sam Cardenas also played the Totman version of Wall–Ball with doubles that on any normal day at breezy Totman, could've been round–trippers.

"We hit the ball well today," said Minutewoman Coach Elaine Sortino. "We hit a lot of fences."

Massachusetts would not have needed the heroics of Shaw had it not collapsed and surrendered the 4–0 lead it held after two innings and allowed PC to take a 5–4 lead in the sixth.

A couple of bloop hits, a walk and a throwing error by Martens led to a three–run fourth for the Lady Friars that appeared to signal the beginning of the end for Minutewoman starter Dani Ortega.

"I thought we let them back into the game," Sortino said. "We tend to go flat for no apparent reason. The important thing is we fought back."

Sortino stuck with the freshman who went on to retire five in a row before giving up four hits and the lead in the sixth.

"I didn't feel like she got herself into trouble," Sortino said. "We got her into trouble. She was still strong, that's why I stuck with her."

Massachusetts stormed out to a 3–0 lead in the first inning due in part to the control problems of PC starter Kelly Taber. After Cardenas led off the inning with a double to the fence in left, Taber walked Michelle Methot before uncorking the first of four wild pitches in the inning.

With the sacks juiced courtesy a walk to Martens, Cardenas scored on a wild pitch before Shaw blooped a single to shallow center plating Methot and Martens.

Ortega, who worked out of a bases–loaded, nobody–out jam in the first, upped her record to 8–7 despite surrendering 10 hits and four walks.

PC ace Amy Kvithaug (18–5) took the loss in relief of Candi Erickson. Kvithaug, who also suffered defeat in the first game, allowed only one hit (Shaw) and one walk, but was victimized by a Meaghan Murray error.

With two down, Murray dropped a line drive off the bat of Massachusetts freshman Jodi Sorenson, opening the door for Shaw.

"We haven't gotten a break all year," Sortino said. "We deserved one."

Powell put the Minutewomen on the board in the first game with a second–inning single to center that scored senior Rachel Lawson and had the game–winning hit in the sixth when her single to center was misplayed by Alana Blahoski, allowing Shaw to score all the way from first.

Daut picked up her eleventh win of the year, going the distance while allowing two runs on three hits.

GORDON HAMMES/COLLEGIAN
Catcher Michele Shaw (seen here with game one battery mate Kelly Daut) drove in the winning run in the bottom of the seventh with two outs of game two against Providence.

Women's lax fall to UVM

Sights set on match with New Hampshire Wildcats

By MIKE PINDER
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team dropped a tough matchup against national powerhouse Vermont over the weekend at Totman Field.

The Minutewomen fell to 3–8 on the season with the 14–4 setback on Saturday.

Senior co–captain Rachael Splaine led the way for the Minutewomen scoring two goals in the loss. Also figuring in the scoring was a duo of star freshmen, Stephanie Walsh and Sarah Goddard, both tallying a goal apiece.

"We played well sometimes, but we have to be more consistant," said Walsh. "I felt pressured because they [Vermont] were covering us really well."

Vermont played a tough defense, by having 11 players on offense and then coming back with 11 players on defense," said Coach Francesca Den Hartog. "It got very crowded in the defensive zone and our players were covered really well."

Leading the way for Vermont was Carrie Towers (four goals) and Liz Grote (three goals).

With the Catamounts up 2–1, Towers scored one of her four first–half goals to give Vermont a 3–1 lead. After a Rachael Splaine goal that closed the Catamount lead to 5–2, Towers went to work netting the next three goals of the game and upping the score to 8–2 by the end of the half.

The Minutewomen struck first blood in the second half on Splaine's second goal of the contest. Unfortunately for the Minutewomen, they could not get back into the game, mustering only one more goal in the half via Walsh.

"Our practices were flat all week and it showed in the game," said Den Hartog. "We had an off

Turn to WOMEN'S LAX, page 8

Duo is bright spot in loss

By MICHAEL REISS
Collegian Staff

Freshman Ankur Baishya and sophomore Darren Tow are both young members of the University of Massachusetts men's tennis team. Both play with spunk and an attack–minded philosophy.

Over the past week, the duo has played exceptional tennis. First, at the Atlantic–10 Championships, the third doubles team of Baishya and Tow upended a George Washington doubles tandem that hadn't lost a match all tourney.

Both carried their exceptional play into yesterday's match with visiting Hartford at the upper Boyden courts.

Although the UMass squad lost 6–1, it was Baishya that played the best tennis of the day for both teams. At the second singles slot, he disposed of the highly–touted Todd Kane, 6–4, 6–3. Kane had lost but one match all year.

"Everything changed for me when we went to the A–10 Championships," said Baishya after the match. "We all had to step it up, and with the team's help, I pumped up my game. Today was simply a carryover from the A–10s."

Tow lost a hard fought decision at sixth singles, 6–3, 6–3, but his play of late has made him one of the big success stories of the year. Originally at No. 12 on the team, Tow has climbed the singles ladder up to the six spot.

"[Coach] Judy [Dixon] has worked on my game, a game that focuses on serve and volley play," said Tow. "Now I'm more of an attack player than a defensive player."

"Darren's main strength for a player of his size (6–foot–4) is his solid groundstrokes," said Dixon. "Most players of his size don't have the groundstrokes of his caliber."

Baishya also credits Dixon in turning his game around.

"In the A–10s, Judy told me that my game was coming out," said Baishya. "Now my game is more attacking the net, hoping to put the point away with the volley."

"He's the only recruit on this team," said Dixon of Baishya. "He has a tremendous strength in driving his groundstrokes. We've been working with him to finish his volleys, a style that is completely new to him."

The attacking style is one that the whole team seems to have adopted. Eric Peters epitomized that play in his exhibition win, as he clearly was the aggressor in the match.

Depp crucial in lax run for NCAA playoffs

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

With the 1994 University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse season drawing to a close, so is the illustrious career of senior attacker Wes Depp.

As the team makes a run at a possible post–season appearance, Depp's play will be counted on heavily during these crucial games.

"If he has big games down the stretch it will help us achieve our goals," said Massachusetts Coach Ted Garber.

Last Saturday against Rutgers, Depp reached the 100–point plateau in his career, but neither Depp nor his coach place too much emphasis on the milestone.

"It's just another way of illustrating how well he's done here," said Garber, who is also a member of the century club. "To him it's probably just a number. He'll be happier if the team makes the tournament than if he got a hundred."

"It's a pretty good feeling," said Depp. "There are lot of great players who have more than 100 but it's something I can say I've done."

Depp was one of several talented lacrosse players to come out of one of the top high school lacrosse programs in the country at Garden City High School. He was named to the All–County team and played at the Empire State games in 1989.

After a strong performance at the Empire Games, the recruiting offers started rolling in. He and high school and current teammate Adam Kohart were recruited by UMass. Depp was originally skeptical of UMass, but Kohart convinced him to check out the program.

Former Coach Dick Garber made such an impression on Depp that he decided that UMass was the place.

"I was reluctant at first, but i came for a weekend to check it out," said Depp. "When I met Dick Garber, I was in awe of the guy. I thought he was pretty amazing. His attitude on the game an how it should be just seemed pretty impressive. After that weekend I told him right away that this was where I wanted to go."

He never did get to play for the elder Garber as he retired that spring, but Depp is pleased with his coach now, the former coach's son.

"They're pretty compatible," said Depp. "He tries to take many of his father's philosophies out on the field."

Garber believes that getting a player like Depp from such a prestigious high school is good for the program.

"Anytime you get a player from that school, as good as he was, it's a feather in your cap as far as recruiting goes," said Garber.

After a freshman year during which he saw limited playing time in, Depp quickly became a key part of the Gorilla attack.

"He rapidly developed into a starting attackman basically because of the strong background from high school," said Garber.

In his junior year, Depp exploded offensively scoring 35 goals and nine assists, finishing second only to Mark Millon in scoring.

With Millon gone to graduation, Depp came into the 1994 season as UMass' premier scoring threat, and after starting slowly, he has come on strong lately, including four games in which he has scored three or more goals.

"He's a dangerous scoring threat, anywhere within 10 or 15 yards of the goal," said Garber. "It's hard for people to defend him, because you don't know when he's going to strike."

In addition to being a sniper, this season Depp has improved on assist totals as well. His 11 assists this season are a career high.

"He does look for the open man. He has good vision out there," said Garber. "A lot of times if someone is a premier shooter, they don't even look for the open man. He's a real unselfish player."

ARAM COMEAU/COLLEGIAN
Senior attacker Wes Depp garnered his 100th point last weekend, yet won't rest until the Gorillas make the playoffs and, he hopes, the final four.

As one of four captains, Depp's veteran leadership on this young team is as important as his scoring.

"He has a lot of emotional control, and that's important for the younger players," said Garber. "He doesn't get rattled or blow a lid when things aren't going well. He hustles hard after ground balls."

Turn to LACROSSE, page 9

Swiiing batter...

ARAM COMEAU / COLLEGIAN
The University of Massachusetts baseball team will be in action today at Earl Lorden Field against Siena. Game time is 4 p.m. Yesterday's game with Maine was postponed because of weather.

Worst is first way out West

There just may be a need for an investigation into the teams competing in the West Division of both the American and National Leagues. Three weeks into the season, only one of the eight teams in the two divisions is playing above .500, the San Francisco Giants. The Giants are 11–8 and then its goes straight downhill highlighted by the San Diego Padres who are 6–14 (after winning three straight) and the Texas Rangers, who sport a lofty 5–11 record.

Bill Balfour's BEANBALLS

The California Angels are playing at a .421 clip and lead the AL West. Is there any way the league can take away the playoff spot that the division winner gets and give it to a team in the East Division?

Last season, Jeff Kent played in 140 games and finished with a .270 average, hit 21 home runs and had 80 RBI in a surprising offensive season for the Mets. This season, Kent is proving he's no fluke. Through Monday, Kent was fourth in the leading in hitting with a .380 batting average. He's also first in home runs (8), second in RBI (23), first in total bases (57), third in hits (27), and second in slugging pct. (.851).

Has anyone taken notice of what Tim Naehring is doing? Naehring is playing everywhere in the infield and is seeing time at the designated hitter spot. Naehring is leading the Red Sox in hitting with a .379 average and has four home runs and 16 RBI on the season. it's good to see Naehring contributing on a regular basis after some tough injuries a few years back.

Sunday afternoon was a first in the short career of Sox pitcher Aaron Sele. It marked the first time he had given up more than three earned runs in one start. He had made 22 previous starts.

Scott Cooper has been hot over the past week. He hit .476 with four home runs and 10 RBI last week and showed a glove on defense. Wow, power and defense from Cooper.

Padre Andy Benes, the No. 1 pick back in 1988 and former U.S. Olympian, won for the first time on Sunday. His record is 1–4 with a 4.72 ERA. If their is any player in baseball that deserves to be somewhere else, it's Benes. With a decent team, Benes could win a Cy Young Award.

Without turning this space to the weekly Braves update, I'll only mention them briefly. The Braves lost four in a row last week and lost Monday night, but are still 14–6.

Not to long ago people were hailing Cleveland catcher Sandy Alomar as a future star. Since then, injuries have limited his effectiveness. Alomar played in only 64 games last season and Sunday returned to his usual residence; the disabled list. Alomar was placed on the 15 day DL after suffering a freak hand injury.

The Mets were dealt a serious blow Monday when it was announced that ace Dwight Gooden will be sidelined 4–6 weeks with ligament and cartilage damage to the big toe on his right foot.

The comeback story of Yankee pitcher Bobby Ojeda has taken a sad turn. Monday, Ojeda was designated for assignment.

Turn to BEANBALLS, page 9

Marshall will leave UConn, bypass senior year for NBA

By THOMAS BECHER
Associated Press Writer

STORRS, Conn. — All–American Donyell Marshall announced Tuesday he will pass up his senior year at Connecticut to make himself available for the NBA draft.

"It was a dream I had as a youngster growing up," Marshall said at a news conference at the school. "I just feel this is a very good opportunity i feel I can grab right now."

Marshall, the Big East Player of the Year, met with coach Jim Calhoun on Monday and decided to put an end to speculation about his future. He had until May 15 to make his decision.

"It was a very tough decision to make and that's why it took so long," he said. "I feel that I'm ready to move on."

The 6–foot–9 Marshall, expected to be a very early pick in the June 29 NBA draft, led the Huskies to a 29–5 record last season, averaging 25.1 points per game, scoring a school–record 853 points. His season ended on a sour note, however.

Against Florida in the NCAA East Regional semifinals, Marshall was fouled with 3.4 seconds left and the game tied 57–57.

A 76 percent free–throw shooter, Marshall missed both foul shots and the Huskies lost in overtime as he scored just 16 points.

Calhoun has said he did not believe Marshall's performance in the last game would affect his standing among NBA scouts.

"I see no reason why he couldn't still be considered one of the best players in America," Calhoun said.

A. L. Weekly: Two Gentlemen of Verona meets Mother Nature Page 7

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
Thursday
April 28, 1994
Volume CIII Issue 115
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Weather
partly sunny, high in the mid 60s

World

South African elections under threat

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police said they crushed a right–wing bombing spree Wednesday, but South Africa's historic election came under threat of collapse from mile–long lines of voters and a shortage of ballots.

Police announced they had arrested 31 white extremists suspected of being behind a bombing spree that has killed 21 in recent days. The latest bomb exploded Wednesday at Johannesburg's Jan Smuts airport, injuring 18.

But nothing could stop the great tide of voters on the second day of the three–day elections, nor the euphoria felt by many blacks as they cast the first ballots of their lives. On Tuesday, handicapped, elderly and ex–patriate voters had their turn.

Responding to the floods of voters, the government began printing millions of new ballots, saying it would have 5 million more ready by Thursday morning. The army said it would help print and transport ballots, which never arrived at some stations. And the government was discussing extending the vote by a day.

Conservative gov't gets nod in Italy

ROME (AP) — Media magnate Silvio Berlusconi was to report Thursday to the presidential palace, where he was expected to receive approval to form Italy's first conservative government in its post–World War II history.

President Oscar Luigi Scalfaro had been expected to tap Berlusconi on Wednesday. There was no immediate explanation for the delay.

In a communique Wednesday night, the Quirinal palace said Berlusconi will meet the head of state at 5 p.m. Thursday. Scalfaro is expected to ask him to form Italy's 53rd government since the war.

Italian TV networks suggested Scalfaro may have wanted time to make certain differences among the three–party coalition will not hamper a Berlusconi government. He must also resolve potential conflicts between his political and business interests.

National

Kevorkian testifies over latest assisted suicide

DETROIT (AP) — Dr. Jack Kevorkian testified Wednesday he helped a gravely ill man commit suicide, defending the action as humane and compassionate, although he acknowledged a fascination with death.

"Nothing matters but the welfare of the patients, and it was his welfare that motivated my actions," Kevorkian told jurors in Michigan's first assisted–suicide trial.

The 65–year–old retired pathologist said he wanted only to help end the suffering of Thomas Hyde when he hooked him up to a carbon monoxide canister in the back of his van and placed a plastic mask over his face.

Hyde, 30, suffered from the degenerative nerve disorder Lou Gehrig's disease that left him unable to walk, talk or feed himself. He died Aug. 4 after inhaling the gas.

"Was your intent to cause his death?" asked Kevorkian's lawyer, Geoffrey Fieger.

"No," Kevorkian said. "To end his agonizing existence and end his suffering."

Clinton rethinking China status

WASHINGTON (AP) — China is preparing for another nuclear test and it could take place about the time President Clinton must decide whether to renew the nation's favored trade status, a senior administration official said Wednesday.

China broke an international moratorium last October when it detonated a nuclear device underground. President Clinton immediately directed the Department of Energy to prepare for possible resumption of U.S. underground tests.

Additional Chinese tests were widely expected and the senior official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said preparations are under way at its Lop Nor testing site.

The U.S. official would not speculate on the timing of the next Chinese test.

SGA dismisses plan to support firings

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts Student Government Association last night rejected a proposal to support Chancellor David K. Scott's firing of three University Administrators.

Last Thursday, Scott told Provost Glen Gordon, Vice– Chancellor for Research and Graduate Studies Samuel Conti and, Vice–Chancellor for University Advancement Daniel Melley that their administrative duties would end at the end of this academic year. Their positions will be filled with interim people for two years while search committees look nation wide for replacements. Conti was reportedly planning to retire at the end of the year anyway.

The three administrators are also faculty members, and will be allowed to continue to teach and to do research even after their administrative duties end.

Last night's SGA motion called for not only an endorsement of the firings, but a request that the ensuing search committees be made up of at least 50 percent students. Student Center For Education, Research and Advocacy Student Coordinator Lynn Robitaille said she was sorry that Conti was not allowed to retire with dignity, but she also said she not at all sorry to see either Melley or Gordon go. She said Vice Chancellor Melley did an poor job of raising money for the University, and that Provost Gordon is hostile to students.

"Think of the amount of money we have lost because of an ineffective vice chancellor for university advancement. if we had a really excellent vice chancellor for university advancement he would pay his own salary," Robitaille said. "As for Provost Gordon, in my experience he has been very hostile to students. When people don't feel the need to work and the students become anti–administration, it's time to make a change."

Senator Peter Dunn said the SGA should not support the motion. His said that since the fired administrators are likely to remain on the University payroll as faculty members, the firings in effect create three new positions that will be filled with three more people earning over $70,000 per year. He also said the SGA should not endorse the way Conti was treated.

"The way Conti was treated was completely classless, and an approval of his firing reflects on this body," Dunn said. "[The firings] create three new positions making over $70,000 a year. Think of how many kids could go to school for that much money."

There were 15 votes for the motion, 10 votes against the motion and 15 senators refused to vote. Since so many senators abstained, the motion failed.

Turn to SGA, page 6

Vonnegut sparks laughs at FAC

ARAM COMEAU/COLLEGIAN
Author Kurt Vonnegut

By A.J. STEWART
Collegian Staff

Before a standing room only crowd in the Fine Arts Center, Kurt Vonnegut spoke on politics, education, and writing. His speech displayed both his liberal beliefs and a deadly wit — often with humorous results.

Vonnegut talked about his beliefs as a humanist. He is the honorary president of the American Humanist Association, succeeding Isaac Assimov. In what Vonnegut termed, "an essentially functionless capacity." One of the points he stressed throughout is the need for people to be kind to one another.

He discussed the human need for extended families. In an earlier press conference, Vonnegut reasoned that people rally out of loneliness. Of the protest over the Minuteman logo, Vonnegut stated "The protestors become an extended family. The people who are around them, that are chanting the same things, become that. People need this and don't get enough of it."

Vonnegut's speech addressed censorship. Of the school boards who have banned his books he says, "Communities that burn books used to burn black people, so we're starting to get somewhere." The large crowd proceeded to roar its' approval.

The speech then addressed the state of modern literature. "Part of the reason young authors struggle is that there is no market for writing. This is due to the difficulty of reading," claimed Vonnegut. "People give up on it because television is simpler." He then poked fun at his audience. "I assume that two–thirds of this audience can read and write, this being a great university."

Vonnegut continued by discussing transcendental meditation. Sitting In a chair and muttering "Ay–eem, Ay– eem" lowered his blood pressure and made him more relaxed. After doing this for awhile he realized that it had the same effect as something he had done for years: reading. But books are better, he claimed. "Books use our heads."

The acclaimed author described his daily routine. He says that while he has a word processor, he doesn't use it. He has a secretary to type his material, and he isn't about to fire her. "If this means that we're not going to beat the Japanese, then so be it." He enjoys spending his day meeting and talking to people, and is wary of machines that remove the need for people to come in contact with each other. He would sacrifice competitiveness to be rid of

Turn to VONNEGUT, page 6

Show moved to the Vertex

Despite efforts, concert remains UM students only

By JUSTIN DOYLE
Collegian Staff

The Pink Floyd tribute band The Machine is coming to the Vertex in South Hadley as a private party for students at the University of Massachusetts, despite the efforts of the Van Meter House Council to keep the show open to the general public.

The Council planned to have The Machine and the opening act Synaesthesia, a UMass band, play in Van Meter as previous bands had.

"The Machine is a great show. The light show is unreal. If you close your eyes and just listen to the music, they are Pink Floyd. They are that good," said John Milestone, Council president.

Problems began with the show began when the Van Meter's Resident Director, Theresa Frecker, contacted the Public Health and Environmental Safety Department. Frecker called in reference to the amount of people Van Meter could hold in one room without violating safety regulations said Michael O'Neill, Council vice president.

"The Department restricted the amount of people who could be in Van Meter to 175," said O'Neill.

The Machine and Synaesthesia is costing the Council approximately $3500 to book, said Milestone. The Council needs approximately 470 people to attend the show to cover their costs.

"We do not want to take the loss. The Council is responsible for a $1600 deposit to book The Machine.

Turn to VERTEX, page 13

Nursing programs get grants

By JACOB W. MICHAELS
& TRACY MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

Because of the work of University of Massachusetts nursing students, $182,350 of grant money has been given to five local programs in Western Massachusetts.

Undergraduate and Graduate Nursing students worked in the community nursing program, determining local needs and sources of funding.

"The program is of tremendous educational benefit to our students, not to mention the potential benefit to the local community as well," said assistant nursing professor Dolores Shapiro.

The five local programs that received funding are:

• Graduate students found that $79,000 was available through the new tobacco tax for a comprehensive health education program for the schools that comprise the Hampshire Regional School District.

• The "With Child Program" at North Adams Regional Hospital received $92,000. It provides health services to pregnant teen–agers and their newborn babies. The grant was written by egistered nurses studying for a bachelor's degree in the UMass nursing program offered at Berkshire Community College.

• El Arco Iris Arts Program of Nueva Esperanza In Holyoke received $5,000. The program addresses the causes of teen pregnancy, substance abuse, and school dropouts through art. The grant was written by four Graduate students and is from the Community Foundation of Western Massachusetts.

• An AIDS prevention pamphlet being translated into Spanish for the Latino population of Springfield will receive $2,000. A grant for $1,000 was obtained from Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co. and

Turn to NURSING, page 3

Double vision?

EDWIN TANG/COLLEGIAN
Arnold Hall has two heads ... Are two heads better than one? Don't adjust your sets, folks, it's only an optical illusion.

GSS elections underway

Allegations persist about unfair process, coverage

By BEN GEMAN
Collegian Staff

Elections for the Graduate Student Senate are taking place amidst allegations the election proccess and media coverage of the campaigning has been unfair.

The coalition consisting of write–in presidential candidate Jaimee Saliba, vice presidential candidate Jim Delle, candidate for treasurer Pierre Laliberte and candidate for executive officer Laura Hermer allege they were unfairly prevented from submitting endorsements for their candidacies in the most recent Issue of The Voice, the graduate student newspaper.

The four candidates said that the deadline for submitting endorsments to The Voice was Wednesday, April 20, but was later extended without their knowledge, and as a result they failed to pursue written endorsments because they believed they could not be printed in The Voice. They said that the other coalition of four candidates was able to submit endorsements after April 20.

The other coalition consists of presidential candidate Prasad Venugopal, vice presidential candidate Julia Johnson, with Ruth Mathis running for treasurer and Colin Cavell seeking the executive officer position.

The coalition of Saliba, Delle, Laliberte and Hermer say endorsements in The Voice from the Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Graduate Student Organization and students from the Physics and Astronomy were submitted after April 20.

"We weren't informed of any extension of the deadline," said Delle. "The number of endorsments they have is reflective of this inside information."

Laurel Shortell, co–speaker of the GLB–GSO, said yesterday that she didn't endorse the statement of support for the coalition of Venugopal, Johnson, Mathis and Cavell that appeared in the issue of The Voice released Monday until Friday, April 22.

Hussein Ibish, editor of The Voice, said all sides were given the same opportunity to submit endorsments.

"People are trying to use the issue of the Voice in order to avoid the real issues of the campaign," Ibish said yesterday.

Saliba, Delle, Laliberte and Hermer have also raised questions concerning the role of Ibish in the election. Ibish yesterday was distributing flyers supporting the candidacies of the other coalition.

Delle said yesterday it was wrong for the editor of The Voice to participate in the campaign of a candidate.

"We feel that these positions, at least nominally, should appear neutral," said Delle.

Ibish said past editors of The Voice had taken positions regarding GSS elections.

Boo–boo returned, but mystery lingers

By JUSTIN DOYLE
Collegian Staff

The wait is over for the six seniors at the University of Massachusetts who live at 215 Sunset Dr. in Amherst. Their missing two–year old cat, Boo–boo, was found unharmed yesterday at 231 Patton Village, but questions about her disappearance remain.

Although the cat was found, Boo–boo's owners continue to allege that their landlord, Richard Gold, removed her illegally.

"There is no doubt that Gold took the cat. We have two witnesses that said they would testify against Gold, said Jennifer Cameron.

"She disappears for a week, then neighbors come forward saying Gold took Boo–boo. She was found miles away from her home, close to where Gold lives," said Julie Cameron.

Police are investigating reports made by Alan Reynolds and Jonathan Gurfein, two neighbors

Turn to BOO-BOO page 17

"Democracy and Revolution in Nicaragua"

with

Jaime Wheelock

- Former Minister of Agriculture of Nicaragua
- Member of the FSLN National Directorate
- JFK School of Government

Thursday, April 27

8 p.m. Campus Center 162-75

THE MASS. DAILY COLLEGIAN

Lecture Series Spring 1994

Co-sponsored by the UMass Latin American Studies Program and Lectures combat prejudice

Religious right's tactics examined at discussions

By STEPHEN C. CAMPBELL
Collegian Staff

The Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns has taken an active role in combatting the religious right's stand on homophobia and GLB issues.

The tactics of the religious right to gain control through the media and grass roots campaigning was the topic presented by Margaret Cerullo on April 13th in the Campus Center.

This lecture "Divide and Conquer: The Right's Multicultural Agenda" was the first of three events under the "Whose Family, Whose Values?" series sponsored by the Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns.

Cerullo spoke on methods and language used in anti-gay initiatives, like the Hancock Amendment in congress which would ban federal funding to schools that "promoted and encouraged" education on gay, lesbian and bisexual lifestyles. This phrasing is often used by the Right referring to term "recruitment," an imaginary belief that the gay rights movement is out to turn the children of this country gay.

Joseph Kennedy, a congressman from Massachusetts, put his signature on the bill. When asked why Kennedy signed, he said that he supported civil rights for gays and lesbians.

Cerullo continued to inform the audience that the Right doesn't care if it loses in the courts. An initial bill may be rejected, but they will gain ground on the grass roots level. Their door to door, school to school, propaganda styled campaigning is out to create and spread disinformation about the true purpose of the gay rights movement, which is not to have special privileges, but equal rights.

Skipp Porteous, a former fundamentalist minister, spoke on April 21, in lecture on the religious right and their endeavor to gain political power in the United States. "Challenging the Christian Right: In Word and in Deed" also part of the "Whose Families, Who's Values?" series.

Porteous is the current president of the Institute for First Amendment Studies and national expert on the Right. He spoke on the tactics used by Religious Right organizations like the Christian Coalition and Focus on the Family. They use scare tactics, minority tension and the spreading of distorted truths and often out right lies regarding the gay rights movement to bring people over to their side.

The Right has told parents that if they let sex education and teaching that alternative families, like single parent house holds or gay and lesbian parents, are good and acceptable ways of living; then pornography, sex and condoms would be pushed down the throats of their elementary school children. This is a complete lie.

"They (those who support the Christian Right) are the ones who vote. They are ones who are getting on to the school boards," said Porteous. That is why they are putting school prayer, anti-abortion rhetoric, and family values where the father works and the wife stay at home with the children, back in to the schools.

"The Christian Right's War with Images," a lecture, video and discussion on the response of the GLB community to the attacks of the Religious Right, was presented by Cyrille Phipps. This was the last of three events under the "Whose Family, Who's Values?" series.

Phipps presented Sacred Lives, Civil Truths a film she co- produced that deals with the religious lives of those in the queer community. The discussions that followed reviled that Christian Right picks and chooses what parts of the scripture the say they believe in.

Claim your bikes

The following list of bikes and bicycle parts are currently being stored at the University of Massachusetts Police Department. If you believe that any of these bikes are your property, contact officer Robert J. Waskiewicz at the police department.

The bikes are: two Trek mountain bikes, three Cannondale mountain bike, a Univega mountain bike, one Kuwohara bike, three Bridgestone mountain bike, one Hardrock mountain bike, one Mongoose mountain bike and one Cannondale mountain bike frame.

The bicycle parts are: Three Shimano gear levers, two Dia-compe brake handles and one set of Scott handlebars with cables.

You can contact officer Waskiewicz at 545-2121.

—GERI SAHN

ATTENTION UNIVERSITY OF MASS EMPLOYEES:

Take a closer look at CHP.

We think you'll like what you see.

The CHP Amherst Health Center is hosting an open house for our current members, and anyone who is considering joining CHP. Come and meet the staff and tour the facility. Light refreshments will be served. For information and appointments call 413/549-1212.

May 5.....5:30-7:30 p.m.

CHP Amherst Health Center
29 Cottage Street
Amherst, MA

Andrew Hall, M.D.
Andrew Larkin, M.D.
Brian Scanlan, M.D.
Amy Metzger, C.N.M., M.S.N.
Pamela Drexler-Lopez, C.N.M., B.A.
Lisa Kuczarski, R.D.

Community Health Plan

You and CHP, a healthy partnership

"One day I decided to sell my bike and my car, and in the spirit of Walden Woods & Don Henley, I would walk everywhere from now on.

I also decided that the best way to get rid of them and make a whole lot of cash (that I wouldn't donate any of to a worthy environmental cause) was to advertise in The Collegian Classifieds.

Needless to say, I sold my bike and car, but when I looked to see my classified in the paper I saw a really cool classified for a motorcycle. Screw the environment, now I ride with the wind and death at my side."

Collegian Classifieds They really work.

Campus Center Basement 113
545-3500

COMPLETE OPTOMETRY EXAMS
AT THE UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES

We offer...

...quality, comprehensive vision care at a reasonable cost.

...courteous, friendly, professional staff.

...reduced rates on eye glasses at participating opticians with a complete optometric examination at the University Health Services for Student Plan members.

...a comprehensive contact lens service.

uhs
EYE CARE PROGRAM

Convenient hours and on campus location.
For questions or appointments, call 549-2671 X244

GOOD USED
CLOTHING
RECEIVE 50% OFF BY PRESENTING THIS AD. SPECIAL GOOD THROUGH MAY. ORANGE TAGS EXCLUDED.
SALVATION ARMY THRIFT STORE
253-4747
150 No. Pleasant St.
Behind Gas Mobil
Amherst (Parking in Rear)

Nicaraguan leader to speak

By JUAN J. CHACON QUIROS
Collegian Staff

CAMBRIDGE, Ma. — In 1979, after more than four decades of battles against the Somoza Dictatorship, the Sandinista Revolution finally won.

It gave millions of Nicaraguans hope for a better future filled with opportunities for peace, understanding and reconstruction. However, shortly after the triumph of the revolution, the U.S. became deeply involved in Nicaragua. As a result, most of that hope was shattered by a decade of war for the defense of Nicaragua's sovereignty.

Today, the University of Massachusetts at Amherst will have the chance to hear from a man who was part of the dream. Jaime Wheelock will be speaking tonight at 8 p.m. in campus center rooms 162–175. The even is part of the Collegian sponsored Spring Lecture Series. The Latin American Studies Program and the Peace and World Securities Studies (PAWSS) are also sponsors of this event.

Wheelock studied law and sociology in Chile. In 1970, he was deeply involved in the fight against the Somoza dictatorship. He became one the nine commanders who led the country after 1979. A renown scholar, Wheelock took charge of the Ministry of Agriculture and the Minister of Agrarian Reform until 1990. As a supporter of agrarian reform, he gave land back to thousands of peasants and created agricultural cooperatives to insure their financial well-being.

Currently part of the Hanson program at John F. Kennedy School of Government, Wheelock is the author of 10 books, among them; The Final Offensive (1976, during the revolution), FSLN: Forefront of the Revolution, The Sandinista Agrarian Reform (1990), The Truth About the Transfer of Property in Nicaragua (1991).

Wheelock will be speaking on democracy and revolution in Nicaragua. The focus of the lecture will be on the current situation, the prospects for democracy and the legacy of the revolution.

"I will be giving some facts about the revolution ... in order to understand the current situation we need to look at both elements," Wheelock said.

Questions in Spanish will also be answered by Mr. Wheelock.

Alec Baldwin to speak in Central

Actor to spread Kennedy's message to UMass students

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

Film star and Democrat Alec Baldwin will be speaking at the University of Massachusetts on April 30, 5:30 p.m at Greenough basement in Central.

Baldwin — a longtime supporter of Senator Edward M. Kennedy — will be speaking about Kennedy's campaign and its "Students for Kennedy" plan.

Baldwin has appeared in The Hunt for Red October, Malice, Glengarry Glen Ross and his most recent film with Kim Basinger, The Getaway.

He will be joined on Saturday by Michael Kennedy, Senator Kennedy's campaign manager.

Baldwin will be talking about youth in politics and why it is important for college students. He will also be speaking about Kennedy's plan for the upcoming voter registration drive.

A main part of Kennedy's campaign is to get college students to participate.

"Ted Kennedy has always had a deep commitment to college students and he wants to keep up that tradition," said Steven Cohen, president of the University Democrats club.

Besides Cohen, junior Neil Carpenter helped organize the event. First year student Chris Doherty was the main contact to the Kennedys. They began organizing the lecture three weeks ago.

On Saturday, Baldwin will speak at seven other colleges besides UMass. They include Harvard, Smith and Mount Holyoke College, Boston University and Boston College.

ASSOCIATED PRESS
Alec Baldwin

■ nursing

continued from page 1

was matched by the Red Cross.

• A summer recreational program for children of the Old Hill neighborhood in Springfield was funded by the city. UMass graduate students applied for funding to meet the needs of the low-income children of the Brookings school, but the grants were denied. The students persevered and got the city to raise the funds.

Other communities are using programs developed by UMass nursing students.

Children were specifically targeted in programs in Hatfield, Northfield, Hadley and Ludlow. Hatfield is working with the students proposal involving adolescent substance abuse. Northfield is using a fluoride rinse program for elementary schoolchildren. Hadley and Ludlow will have after-school programs for latch-key children.

Other communities are also instituting programs based on the students suggestions. Granby is using radon testing to prevent lung cancer; West Springfield will have healthy elderly with an exercise program specifically aimed at them; and Ware will provide health education for adults taking literacy classes.

On the day of the apocolypse Dan finally revealed to Bridget that she was the one to steal her Mrs. Pretty make up kit in the 3rd grade.

Maze Daily Collegian
"Make Amends Now"

4 Seasons
Thank you for your patronage
The Krupczak Family
Rte.9 • Hadley • 584-8174
HOURS: MONDAY - SATURDAY 9:00-11:00

Not Responsible for Typographic Errors

DISCOUNT LIQUORS
BEER • WINE • KEGS • ICE

ST. PAULI GIRL 24 12oz Botts $17.49 + Dep	COORS Lt & Gold 24 12oz Botts $12.49 + Dep	MICHELOB & LT 24 12oz Botts $12.99 + Dep	BUD ICE 24-12oz Botts $12.99 + Dep	BUD DRY 24-12oz bott $10.99 + Dep	BUSCH & LT 24 12oz Cans $9.99 + Dep
GORDONS VODKA $10.99 1.75L	FINLANDA VODKA $19.99 1.75L	JIM BEAM $6.99 .750ml	Ballatore Spumante $3.99 .750ML	Andrea Champagnes $2.89 .750ML	Spring Special! 24oz BUD & BUD LT $1.00 + Dep
1/2 BBL BUD, & LT $38.99 + Dep	1/2 BBL BUD ICE $38.99 + Dep	1/2 BBL Natural Lt $32.99 + Dep	1/2 BBL Michelob & Lt $38.99 + Dep	1/2 BBL BUSCH $36.99 + Dep	1/2 BBL ICE HOUSE $41.99 + Dep

WELCOME BACK ALUMNI!

WE DELIVER

Sale Thru 5/4/94

SALE

save 20% OFF regular price on all

Champion® Sportswear

on sale for ONE WEEK ONLY...

April 25-April 30

FINAL DAYS
SALE ENDS SATURDAY

UNIVERSITY STORE

Campus Center
545-2619

M-F 9AM to 5PM
SAT 11AM to 3PM

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

MICHAEL MORRISSEY Editor-in-Chief
Managing Editor DARRINE HOSLEY MICHAEL MCRAE Business Manager
Arts & Living Editor EMILY A. MARINO LISA JEZOWSKI Production Manager
Black Affairs Editor RODNEY POWELL DANIELLE TANIMO Advertising Manager
Developing Nations Editor JUAN J. CHACON QUIROS STEPHANIE SHORE Finance Manager
Editorial/Opinion Editor MIKE CARVALHO ANDREW DAVIDSON Night Graphics Manager
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor STEPHEN C. CAMPBELL JIM BRUNEAU, CAITLIN OLSON Day Graphics Managers
Jewish Affairs Editor JACOB W. MICHAELS JEREMY DAGGETT Circulation Manager
Multicultural Affairs Editor EVELYN A. DE JESUS ERIC ABERAMN Subscriptions Manager
News Editor TRACY MONAHAN MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI Senior Bookkeeper
Photography Editor NATHAN MARTIN BLAKE PHILLIPS Graphics Professional
Sports Editor ARTHUR STAPLETON JR. MARTY PAPPAS Classified Advertising
Women's Issues Editor VANESSA AMIN TURLEY PUBLICATIONS Printing Services

113 CAMPUS CENTER BASEMENT • UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS • AMHERST, MA 01003 • (413) 545-3500 • FAX (413) 545-1592

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday–Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. Letters to the editor are encouraged and will be printed on a space-available basis. All submissions must be typed, kept to a maximum of 400 words, and should include the writer's name, address, year and major, as well as a phone number for verification purposes. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length. Persons wishing to submit guest columns should contact the Editorial/Opinion editor in advance. The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily represent those of the Collegian. Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Editorial Board.

President Nixon remembered

The following are excerpts from editorials on President Richard Nixon.

The Blade-Citizen*, Oceanside, Calif.:

Richard Nixon was much more than the dark caricature created by his political opponents. ...

It was Nixon who opened the door to mainland China, reversing two decades of surreal denial. Nixon was a staunch anti-Communist, but he was pragmatic enough to realize the folly of pretending a fifth of the world's population simply didn't exist.

It was Nixon who moved the United States and the Soviet Union into detente, a mutual respect for each other's interests. ... And it was Richard Nixon who finally got us out of the Vietnam quagmire that his equally well-intentioned predecessors had gotten us into. ...

Yes, Nixon broke the law in covering up the Watergate break-in. For that, he paid dearly — as he should have.

But Nixon's crimes cannot erase his many years of service to his fellow citizens. It seems only just that in the 20 years since he left office, Nixon was able to earn back some of his personal reputation.

Our living ex-presidents are a treasure. With Richard Nixon's passing, this national depository of wisdom, experience and sage advice has been deeply diminished.

Observer-Dispatch*, Utica, N.Y.:

It is trendy to canonize Richard Nixon as a statesman victimized for letting some pals get out of line.

The imagery flows of peaks and valleys, of equal parts good and bad.

That's appropriate. Blurring the truth so that it is no longer sharp would be how Nixon would have it. That would be wrong. Yes, Nixon can look good in a chronology if you say he opened relations with China and began detente with Russia. Those two peaks were tiny points. The valleys of Vietnam and Watergate were vast and deep. Nixon, more than any other politician, defined my generation. He personified the Red mania of the '50s. In Congress, he was using distortions and innuendo to help Americans look for Reds under their beds. As vice president, he told off the big old Russian bear. ...

How do we sum up Nixon? He had great vision for things distant and great viciousness for things near. The latter undid the former. He was a marvelous manipulator, a professional politician and a crafty conniver. Statesman? Hardly. A man who built his career on hate, fear and distortion; surrounded himself with a web of lies when he was president and has fought bitterly until long after the end to keep secret the full truth of Watergate is no statesman. ... Nixon put his stamp on an era of American politics, and left it a worse place than before he arrived. That, not some political saint-hood, is his legacy.

Hooker's headache remedy

This space is once again mine, yet only by default. Oh, well, life in the Basement is juiced up one more time ...

There are many pencil–pushing figureheads on this campus who affect students by the papers they fill out, the phone calls they make, and the decisions they hand down — which creates a lot of disillusionment.

Well, I'm here to say that some higher–ups at the University of Massachusetts won't treat you like a number. Take University President Michael Hooker, for example. This guy is on the Boston–Amherst shuttle almost every weekend, trekking out here to experience life with the students.

Okay, so I've only seen him at University sporting events — football games, basketball (men's and women's) games, field hockey games, baseball games and lacrosse (men's and women's) games. But he shows more enthusiasm and school spirit than Chancellor David K. Scott ever has — and Hooker's his boss.

This past weekend I was in the baseball press box when Hooker decided to pay a visit. Boy, it was enjoyable, even if I did have a fever and a headache. He was cheering more than any of the stiffs at the Wichita Coliseum did during the NCAA Tournament.

At one point, he asked me if I was feeling O.K. because I didn't look too well. I explained my situation and asked around the press box for aspirin. No one had any. In between innings, Hooker left the press box, went to his car, and got me some Tylenol.

The Prez came back to cure my cold. The President of this University went to his car and got me Tylenol. Whoa.

The next time I get a headache, I'll call a Hooker.

Speaking of nice guys, Thorr Bjorn could be the nicest around. Yes, the man many students call the Ticketmaster probably cares too much about this University for his own good. I've never seen someone care more about the students here in Amherst — I guess those who realize this about Bjorn have met him ... and become his friends.

Maybe the Chancellor should call Hooker and Bjorn and ask them about personality. He needs one.

• • • •

Anyone other than me care about security in the dorms? I mean, Southwest reminds me of a prison, or at least what I've heard of prisons. I've never been in one. Honest.

Anyhow, here's a little story I'd like to tell — my roommate's younger brother came up to visit last week. When we tried to sign him in, the security guard asked for identification and, because he's not old enough to have a license to drive, the guard wouldn't let him in.

He is 15 years old and a poster boy for purity. The guard had to "ascertain whether or not" he was my roommate's brother. They look alike, for God's sake.

But a battery of tough questions like, "What's your mother's maiden name?" and "What is your parent's anniversary?" followed. How many 15–year–olds know those answers?

Finally, we were allowed to pass through.

Housing's security policies are so ridiculous. After all, at midnight all you need is one person with a key to get into the building because the security is off–duty.

• • • • •

The Campus Barbecue is no more. This D.C.–wide event is now moving to the William D. Mullins Center. Dick Rossi, the director of Food Services, said they rented out the building for next Thursday. The event is being called "Touring America: A Culinary Celebration," and it features different types of food from various regions of the United States.

Rossi estimated that the cost of the event would be between $10,000–12,000, a couple of thousand higher than in past years.

One thing that impressed me about Mr. Rossi is how much he was concerned about reactions from the students.

"This year we're going to have a little bit more food than in past years. If we ever ran out of food, it would be awfully bad P.R.," Rossi said.

I hear ya. More food, I'm there.

• • • • •

Last week, the Girl Scouts were here selling cookies on the concourse. A couple of *Collegian*ites decided to bring the young girls on a tour of our campus, including the dorms. Because they were such big fans of the Minuteman basketball team, the fearless leaders decided to bring the youngsters to meet their favorite, Donta Bright. Here's a thanks from the crazies, Donta.

Even when the season is over, the fanfare continues.

• • • • •

What would be an edition of Notes be without mentioning our friends from the SGA? It seems as though they've gotten their Constitution ratified. Hmm, let's play the numbers game. The number of people the SGA got to go to Boston? A little over 100. The number of people the SGA got to vote for Matt Pavesi in his effort to get elected to the Select Board? A little over 100. One final kicker: how many students voted to ratify the Constitution?

Yeah, you guessed it — a little over 100. (Okay, they got 175 votes. Not exactly a mandate.)

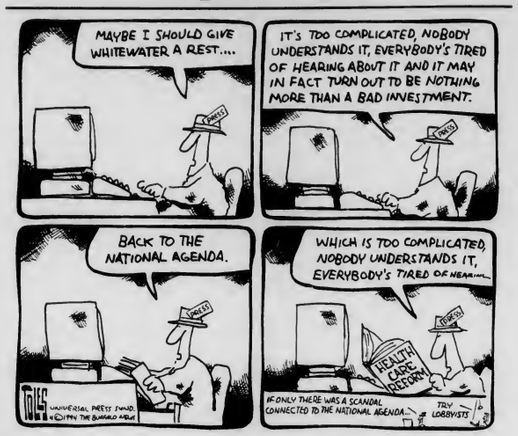
How can an organization which calls itself the largest RSO on campus and thinks it is the most powerful only get a little over 100 out of a possible 17,000 undergraduates to support them?

I mean, there were about 100 people to protest the Minuteman. Enough said.

• • • • •

I know we've been through this Spring Concert thing before, but I'd like to comment on UPC. Hey, no matter who you bring, no matter what you do to humiliate yourselves, thousands will still show up to the Pond if the weather is nice. Oh, yeah, provided that most of 'em can get loaded, too.

Don't you think that anyone who wanted to see your beautiful letter explaining that embarassing list read it when it was printed? Then why'd you put it up in the case in place of that stupid list?



I still think Pearl Jam will be here. So will U2. Trust me.

Arthur Stapleton Jr. is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury

Opinion

It's time to respect women

I'm your average guy. I don't have any progressive piercings. I like loud music and driving fast. I like Sega and Kawasaki Ninjas. I'm into sports and fitness. I'm 21–years old and I'm a feminist.

Perhaps it's my worship of women that has brought this on. This is now my second year as an avid supporter of the women's movement, and it brings me more pride than anything else I believe in. I am proud to be working toward the good of society as men can only benefit from the advancement of women. But this was never a political decision for me. And this is not a political column.

Mike Einhorn

I wrote this column as a man speaking to men. I believe having a woman close to you who you not only admire physically but can also look to for support, insight, and strength, is much better than having someone who is passive and dominated by our patriarchal society. If you know she is a person of power, and she allows you to be close to her it will validate love, not just a need for sex.

It's time to open your eyes.

Most men equate feminism with femininity, but I do not. I see and feel the same need to be strong and demonstrate a sense of control in my life. This is what being masculine is about. Men, myself included, express this need for strength and control by ability in sports, excelling in activities and even the way we walk. Without this look of control and discipline, society will consider us weak and unimportant. Feminism is not about traits or beauty; it's about equality, and it is far from weak.

This world is not just difficult for women. It is difficult for everyone who isn't perfect and powerful. It causes us all to want to be stronger, more perfect and more powerful. This notion, along with the society it lives in, is the primary reason for violence against women. The individual stereotypical man is caused by a need for more confidence and more control–to verbally and physically hurt women. I live in Southwest and I see it every day.

So it is normal men, not the psychotic murderers on the nightly news, who are committing violence against women. And since this power hierarchy is such a cruel thing, all men feel, in some way, out of control. This fear is what causes the controlling behavior, the abuse, and the many murders. it's time to stop the immaturity and the fear. It's time to break the societal chain of oppressive behaviors and take control of yourself for change.

It is time to respect women.

There has to be an end to the inequality between the sexes. There has to be an end to the injustice surrounding issues of violence. There has to be a larger population of men working on these issues. Four women are murdered every day by their husbands or boyfriends in the U.S., and sixty percent of all police calls are domestic violence calls. If you think, 'Why should I worry, I would never do that,' you're dead wrong. You have to take the Initiative. You have to look at all the women in your life as equals or you are as good as those murdering bastard boyfriends. In this country it is a crime to watch another crime and not try to stop it.

It is a crime to sit and watch and not get involved in this movement. It is a crime to remain silent as women are being beaten and killed by the very men they love. To fear the "feminist" title is unjustified and outright immoral considering what you are allowing by not speaking up.

People are dying! They are dying while you have the nerve not to care, and you continue to hide behind some abstract political definition of the word and the movement. If you don't speak up you are allowing the inequality, the crime, and the oppression to continue.

It is time to stand up and stop the violence.

Turn off your television. Turn off your defenses and your socialization's that make you fear this cause. Turn off your denial! Feminism is not a new thing for men. I know many average men who derive their masculinity from fighting for women. They feel proud and in control since they are fighting for equality, unity, and peace between the sexes. Start by calling the closest female to you a woman.

Thirty American women were beaten while you read this column. it's not about politics; it's about crime. And gentlemen, it's about time.

Mike Einhorn is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Anti–Minuteman rally a disservice to campus

To the editor:

I am rather annoyed at the ignorance that I witnessed being displayed on the front steps of the Student Union on Tuesday. The rally, which was put on by POWER, a women's rights organization here on campus, was meant to advocate the changing of the minuteman symbol, a white man holding a gun, to a neutral mascot that would represent an inclusive campus. The other issue at hand was renaming the tower library after W. E. B. Du Bois.

I would like to point out that this rally was an extremely poor representation of the students on this campus. It was an unorganized free–for–all where people were arguing their rights to speak.

What concerned me was that students of this accredited University stood at the microphone, preaching non–violence, swearing left and right because they lacked better terms to get their points across. Is this the way we want to see our University represented?

I am not saying that it was only the women of POWER who did this, but also UMass students who chose to speak and address their concerns.

Shallow comments, such as "the library looks like a penis" were made so ignorantly that it makes me question the level of thought that this University represents and promotes. As far as I knew, the library is a high–rise, rectangular building.

Other remarks made during the rally simply insulted the intelligence of students on this campus, telling us that we should learn our history. Well, as a white woman on this campus, how come I know who W.E.B. Du Bois was and what he stood for? Someone must have taught me.

As a matter of fact, I have studied Du Bois in two of my classes this semester. One is taught by a white professor who requested that we visit the W.E.B. Du Bois collection that is presently being displayed at the tower library.

I also would like to state that i find it rather contradictory for a women's groups such as POWER to be advocating that the library be renamed after a male. Aren't there women in history who have achieved enough to be represented at this University? Why don't you advocate them?

Another problem I had with many of the speakers was the anti–American attitudes they were espousing. Find me another country where you even have the freedom to speak such ludicrousness, and then come tell me how awful America is!

It is my understanding that all of us are at this University to become educated and, hopefully, to take some of the knowledge that we acquire and teach it to others. There is no sooner time than now for us to begin to do so. So rather than preaching to stop the violence, racism, and sexism, how about if we simply stop the ignorance? Wouldn't that take care of all of the above?

Merideth Love
Political science junior

'Girl with the gum' not taken seriously

To the editor:

This letter is in response to all of Marni E. Helfner's columns since the initiation of the new Collegian format at the beginning of this semester. I want to know how Miss Helfner can expect any rational human being to take her seriously when the picture above her name is so obnoxious.

A girl blowing a huge bubble while staring at a camera does not leave a good first impression and, since I have never had the pleasure of meeting Miss Bubble Gum Face, it is the only impression I have.

Helfner could try to become recognized and respected as an intelligent journalist someday, but UMass students will always remember her as the girl with the gum. If she wants to be taken seriously, she has to go into her photo album and pull out a new picture.

Jeff Emig
School of Management sophomore

by Garry Trudeau

Editor's note: The following letters were submitted to the Collegian with regards to the current elections for the Graduate Student Senate. Letters were not solicited. Due to space constraints, they could not be printed until today. Elections continue today outside the Grad Lounge.

To the editor:

As graduate students who have served in the Graduate Student Senate, we would like to note that too many of its meetings this year were marked by unnecessary acrimony that, in effect, demoralized its members and rendered the Senate a less–effective organization.

While espousing ideals of inclusiveness and diversity, the GSS executive committee engaged in divisive and needless polemical attacks both on campus organizations such as the Everywoman's Center and the Legal Services Office, and on senators who defended those organizations.

Worse, the acrimony led to a standoff during this year's budget hearings that resulted in a budget deficit of $20,000 and potential increases in the GSS tax of up to $20 per year, starting in fiscal year 1995–96.

In the end, they have left the GSS a weakened organization and effectively isolated the GSS from the rest of the campus community.

In the hope of fostering a change, we would like to endorse the candidacy of Jaimee Saliba for president, Jim Delle for vice president, Pierre LaLiberte for treasurer and Laura Hermer for executive officer.

In addition to a record of effective organizing and experience in student affairs, we believe this slate offers a commitment to fair process that will make the Senate a more effective organization, and a better place for graduate students.

Please go out and vote.

Phil Blau, mathematics
Michael Desena, entomology
Pilar Hernandez, education
Regine John, German
Kenny Levin, economics
Sabine Merz, sociology
Dave Sampson, sociology
Bruce Tull, economics
Joseph Yeh, philosophy

To the editor:

We would like to offer our strongest support to the Graduate Student Senate slate that includes the following candidates: Prasad Venugopal for president, Julia Johnson for vice president, Ruth Mathis for treasurer and Colin Cavell for executive officer.

We have worked extensively with Prasad Venugopal on GEO's Racism and Social Justice Committee and have found him to be an effective leader. Prasad is a visionary with a deep sense of justice who is also very skilled at working with people to make change.

The other members of the slate share this vision and have impressive track records in working for the interests of graduate students and graduate employees. Julia Johnson's work with GEO's committees, including child care and her work over the summer with the Coordinating Committee, Steward's Assembly and the Racism and Social Justice Committee on issues of diversity and harassment have been highly effective.

Through their work in the GSS and GEO, the members of the slate have spearheaded a number of efforts to help the University become more inclusive and responsive to the concerns of all graduate students, including graduate women, students of color, international students and other under– represented groups. They have also fought hard to keep the University accessible and affordable.

We hope that you will take this opportunity to make your vote count in the struggle for justice. We encourage you to cast your ballot in the Grad Senate election for the Venugopal, Johnson, Mathis and Cavell team.

Mary Jo Connelly, former GEO co–speaker
Greg Maney
Priya Arora, former chair GEO Steward's Assembly

To the editor:

Since Prasad Venugopal's friends rushed to endorse him in your pages Tuesday, it is only fitting that a colleague of Jaimee Saliba, Jim Delle, Pierre LaLiberte and Laura Hermer take some space to responds.

In the circus called the Grad Senate this year, graduate students' tax dollars have paid for attacks upon the very services which provide the diversity that Prasad's slate claims to support.

The current Exec (which is basically indivisible from the team running with Prasad) has tried to destroy the Everywoman's Center and the Legal Services Office, has squashed debate in the Senate by answering any disagreement or criticism with cries of "censorship" and "racism," and has created a climate of hostility towards GEO and the SGA.

The heated battle over the budget finally ended with an unprecedented and irresponsible $20,000 deficit which will eventually have to be made up for with a fee increase.

Since the Voice is now the propaganda arm of the reelection campaign for Prasad's team, graduate students may not have much information on their opponents. Saliba, Delle, LaLiberte and Hermer stand for real diversity: keeping the University and the Senate in fiscal shape so that campus services that protect all of us can continue.

The current Exec treats the University just as one would expect a bunch of spoiled children to do: they fund their friends' organizations, name call and spout divisive rhetoric, knowing that more responsible people will have to pick up the pieces.

Vote Saliba, Delle, LaLiberte and Hermer so that integrity can be restored.

Karen Graubart, economics dept.

To the editor:

I have been following the GSS election, and let me state that I am horrified and shocked by some of the tactics being employed.

The racially divisive politics coming out of the right–wing slate of Saliba, Delle, LaLiberte and Hermer are becoming even more odious.

This all–white ticket has already appalled the campus by preposterously accusing its multicultural opponents, Prasad Venugopal, Julia Johnson, Ruth Mathis and Colin Cavell of racism in a flyer over the weekend.

Now, in a new burst of racial aggression, the right–wing slate has dubbed their opponents the "Johnson–Cavell slate" in their most recent flyer. This underscores the prejudices of the right–wing group, since they give prominence only to the two whites running against them, and ignore the candidates of color, treating them as irrelevant or second–class.

This is even worse since Johnson and Cavell are running for vice president and executive officer, while Venugopal and Mathis, the candidates of color invisible in the eyes of the all–white ticket, are running for the more powerful posts of president and treasurer.

The racial politics of the right–wing, all–white ticket are uncalled for and beyond the pale. Let us try to get beyond such divisions and move forward in unity by voting for Venugopal, Johnson, Mathis and Cavell.

Martin F. Jones, journalism junior
Sharon Cousin, BDIC

To the editor:

We would like to urge all fee–paying graduate students to vote in the GSS elections for the multicultural slate of Prasad Venugopal for president, Julia Johnson for vice president, Ruth Mathis for treasurer and Colin Cavell for executive officer.

This diverse ticket is comprised of dedicated individuals who have fought for student empowerment, lowering tuition and fees in collaboration with undergraduates and for a campus community that is hospitable to all students.

The ticket of Venugopal, Johnson, Mathis and Cavell has pledged not to raise the GSS fees, to work in coalition with the SGA and the unions on campus to fight for increased state appropriations and to hold the administration accountable to the students.

They have demonstrated a commitment to work on the recruitment and retention of women, ALANA students and financially disadvantaged individuals.

The newly formed all–white opposition slate appears to be in support of a $20 increase in the GSS taxes for next year. The right–wing ticket represents an opportunistic alliance that is attempting to polarize the graduate community along racial and gender lines. The all–white slate spearheaded by Mr. LaLiberte has engaged in negative campaigning, lying and slander.

Mean–spirited individuals such as LaLiberte are using well–meaning but inexperienced individuals on his ticket to further his own agenda, one of which appears to be the squandering of graduate student monies. Why else would Mr. LaLiberte, who was president four years ago, continue to cling desperately to this office?

We request all graduate students vote for a multicultural slate that is representative of all the students on campus, for a slate that will fight for the rights of all graduate students. Vote for Prasad Venugopal, Julia Johnson, Ruth Mathis and Colin Cavell.

Shyamala Ivatury
Darrin Shaffer

To the editor:

As a senate member representing the economics dept., I have been disappointed and angered. While I have consistently supported the issues pursued by this year's executive committee, I have steadfastly rejected their tactics. I am convinced that their approach to student government has only been counter–productive.

As a result, I urge people to look closely at the record and decide whether they want to continue this "brand" of politics. Both slates in this year's election will work for multiculturalism, social justice and student rights, but only one will do it with integrity and competence.

I intend to vote for Saliba, Delle, LaLiberte and Hermer. I hope the rest of you will have the good sense to do so too. Let's bring order and responsibility back to the Senate.

Kenny Levin, economics dept.

To the editor:

The unified coalition of Mr. Prasad Venugopal for president, Ms. Julia Johnson for vice president, Ms. Ruth Mathis for treasurer and Mr. Colin Cavell for executive officer represents, in my opinion, the most capable and the most experienced leaders for a new administration.

This coalition represents a diversity in gender, race and educational backgrounds that best expresses our University community.

My interactions with Mr. Venugopal and Ms. Johnson have shown me that communication and integrity are two of their strongest qualities.

With their previous experience in leadership positions and the added experience of Ms. Mathis and Mr. Cavell, we now have the opportunity for unity in our graduate student government like never before.

Bryant C. Nelson, vice president of the Graduate Chemistry Assoc.

To the editor:

I am writing to you about the most recent issue of the Voice, the monthly graduate student newspaper, dated April 1994. The entire issue, which appears to be the work of only one person, is a political statement in favor of a slate of candidates for the graduate student elections being held this week. This issue of the Voice was akin to the Minuteman in its failure to publish unbiased news.

James Delle, a candidate for vice president, was the victim of the Voice's character assassination to which I must responds.

In a reference to the "all–white" slate, the Voice commented that Mr. Delle spent the winter in Jamaica. The implication was that Mr. Delle was a rich white male vacationing in sunny Jamaica, engaging in the continued oppression of the locals in order to avoid the harsh New England winter.

In fact, Mr. Delle did spend January, February and March in Jamaica but, to gauge by his complexion, he was not dallying on the beach, sipping "Planter's Punch." Mr. Delle spent those three months conducting his dissertation research (on colonialism).

The writer commented that Mr. Delle "didn't bother to show up at candidate's night." Apparently, neither did the writer.

Mr. Delle had a colleague read his statement, prefacing it with a paragraph which was not distributed. In this paragraph, Mr. Delle apologized for his absence, explaining that he was presenting a paper at the Society for American Archaeology annual meeting in Anaheim, Calif.

Considering that graduate students should try to give papers at their discipline's national meetings, this was not an unreasonable use of his time.

Mr. Delle's statement was entirely ignored by the Voice, perhaps because it could not be ridiculed. Mr. Delle has an admirable record for his participation in campus politics., including his active voice in the creation of GEO during his first year at UMass and while serving on GEO's bargaining committee this year.

I do not know the other candidates on Mr. Delle's slate. However, if they were used by the Voice as was Mr. Delle, perhaps my fellow graduate students should reconsider their choices in light of the Voice's deliberate bias.

I recommend that all fee–paying graduate students vote carefully for the candidates of their choice, and ignore the Voice.

Mary Robinson, anthropology graduate student

PEKING GARDEN
A MANDARIN & SZECHUAN RESTAURANT
Open 7 Days a week
20 % OFF MEALS FRI. AND SAT. EVENING WITH COMEDY SHOW with this ad
Comedy Shows Friday and Saturday at 8:30pm with dinner
Monday -Thursday Dinner Buffet $5.99 Sunday Brunch $6.99
586-1202 FREE PARKING
北京園
ON RT. 9 HADLEY
VISA MASTER CARD

5 guys 4 legends 3 lovers 2 friends 1 band

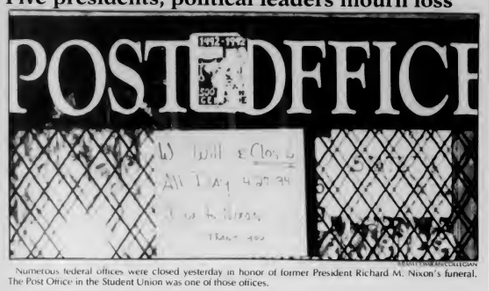
BACKBEAT
You know the music, but only half the story.
THE BEAT IS COMING TO A THEATRE NEAR YOU!
OPENS THIS FRIDAY

Disconnecting your phone service has never been easier.

Now there's an easy way to disconnect your phone service. It's automated, and you can do it from a touch-tone phone anywhere in the NYNEX area. To place an order to disconnect your service just call 1 800 244-3737 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. weekdays, and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays.

Here's how it works. After you call, you'll be asked to enter your telephone number and customer code. This code is the three-digit number that appears after your telephone number on the Summary of Account page of your bill. Without this code the transaction can't be completed.

If you use this system, your final bill will be sent to your existing billing address. So remember to file a change of address card with the post office.



Call 1 800 244-3737. We'll be happy to disconnect you.

NYNEX.

© 1994 NYNEX Corporation

Nixon fondly remembered

Five presidents, political leaders mourn loss

Numerous federal offices were closed yesterday in honor of former President Richard M. Nixon's funeral. The Post Office in the Student Union was one of those offices.

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press

YORBA LINDA, Calif. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon completed his remarkable and contentious life's journey Wednesday, honored in death by five other American presidents. President Clinton said his achievements overshadowed humiliation and added: "May the day of judging President Nixon on anything but his entire life come to a close."

Twenty years after he resigned the presidency in disgrace, Nixon was bidden farewell by 2,800 mourners who gathered under leaden skies at an outdoor funeral 100 feet from the home where he was born 81 years ago.

Henry Kissinger, Nixon's secretary of state, turned to the casket and saluted his former boss with a nod of the head before delivering an emotional eulogy. Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole broke into tears after praising Nixon as "the most durable public figure of our time."

One last time, Nixon was saluted by "Hail to the Chief," the trumpet herald that announced him so often during his troubled presidency.

Nixon's successors were all there to pay final respects: Gerald Ford, who had spoken of Nixon's Watergate saga as "our national nightmare;" Jimmy Carter, the Democrat who wrested the office from Ford partly because of the pardon Ford granted Nixon; Ronald Reagan and George Bush, whose Republican nominating conventions treated Nixon as a pariah not to be invited.

They were all accompanied by their wives.

There were only veiled mentions of the Watergate scandal in the eulogies. Instead, the speakers focused on Nixon's foreign policy successes and his dogged triumphs over adversity.

"In the conduct of foreign policy, Richard Nixon was one of the seminal presidents," said Kissinger. He praised Nixon for opening relations with China and pursuing arms negotiations with the Soviet Union even while he was dogged by the Watergate scandal.

"Richard Nixon would be so proud that President Clinton and all living former presidents of the United States are here, symbolizing that his long and sometimes bitter journey has concluded in reconciliation," Kissinger said.

"He achieved greatly and he suffered deeply but he never gave up," Kissinger said.

And Dole said, "He was a boy who heard the train whistle in the night and dreamed of all the distant places that lay at the end of the track. How American!"

"He was a grocer's son who got ahead by working harder and longer than anyone else. How American!"

Clinton delivered the final tribute.

"Oh yes, he knew great controversy amid defeat as well as victory," Clinton said, standing beside Nixon's flag-draped casket. "He made mistakes and they, like his accomplishments, are part of his life and record.

Drinking high in Pioneer Valley

Since the majority of the population in the Pioneer Valley are college students, the amount of underaged drinking in the area is extremely high.

On May 3, a forum will be held in room 101 of the campus center, to discuss underage drinking. The University of Massachusetts Health Services, in collaboration with the Massachusetts Underage Drinking Task Force will be running the meeting.

The meeting will give students, faculty, public officials, health agencies, police, alcohol vendors and members of the community a chance to give their opinions and suggestions about underaged drinking and ways to prevent it.

Pamela Gonyer, director of the health education division at Health Services, said in a press release, "We invite all interested people to attend and contribute their ideas and energy to the prevention of alcohol abuse."

The goal of the forum is to bring together people who are concerned about underaged drinking, and are willing to find ways to obstruct it.

The forum will also be a chance to gather information about what kind of legislative changes are available to reduce alcohol abuse.

"By combining the resources, skills and commitment of all those involved, we will be better able to ensure that effective action can be taken," she said.

— GERI SAHN

Rep. Story receives appointment

By BEN GEMAN
Collegian Staff

Ellen Story, state representative for the Amherst–Pelham district, was appointed vice chair of the House of Representatives Committee on Ethics last Thursday.

The appointment of Story, who has served on the committee since January, was made by House Speaker Charles Flaherty.

The 11-member committee considers rules and ethics violations by house members, and recommends whether punitive measures should be taken.

If the committee decides that an infraction of house rules or ethics has occurred, it can recommend the reprimand, censure, removal from an authority position or expulsion of a house member.

Story said the work of the committee is "highly confidential."

"This is, as you can imagine, a super–sensitive committee," Story said.

"Representative Story has served on the Committee on Ethics with distinction, and with the respect of her colleagues. I am pleased to have the opportunity to promote Ellen to vice chair of this important committee," said Flaherty in a press release.

As vice–chair, Story will be called upon to run committee meetings in the absence of committee Chair Stephen Doran, a seventh term representative from Lexington who graduated from the University of Massachusetts in 1978.

Story is also currently a member of house committees on Ways and Means, Criminal Justice and Education, Arts and Humanities.

■ Vonnegut

continued from page 1

them.

"We are here to fart around, and don't let anybody tell you differently," he stated to thunderous applause.

Vonnegut closed out his speech by graphing the plots to famous stories on a blackboard. He diagrammed Hamlet, Cinderella, The Meturmorphosis, and the average half–hour television program. The X–axis charted the story's progress from beginning to end, while the Y–axis represented the protagonist's level of happiness. Cinderella's graph, for example, starts out low, increases with the visit from the fairy godmother and the royal ball and drops suddenly at the stroke of midnight. But when the glass slipper fits, the curve increases astronomically. They live happily ever after.

Not everyone in attendance agreed with Mr. Vonnegut's politics, religion, or story graphing, but many found a lot to laugh about. Most of the crowd went home smiling and repeating his jokes. At 71, Kurt Vonnegut still brings laughter wherever he goes.

■ SGA

continued from page 1

SCERA Legislative Coordinator Amy Lloyd expressed outrage that so many senators abstained from voting. And she was also dismayed that the senators did not at least accept the part of the motion that said students should constitute half of the search committees.

"I am embarrassed by the actions of the senate. Very few questions were asked [about the motion] and most people abstained," Lloyd said. "The majority of people voted with complete lack of understanding of the motion or what it implies. By voting down the entire amendment, the senators are saying that we [the students] do not even want to be part of the search committees."

I checked in to the Rusty Nail Motel and asked the owner if he knew of any swinging sushi bar deli joints where I could hook up with a fix of Tofu Mokt and Knackwurst on Rye. "The eternal question," he said, "is how to get the mouse out of the bottle." I thanked the wise old man and checked into room six sixty six. I opened up my suit case cum brown paper bag and pulled out the Collegian. "We put the mouse in the bottle."

THE VERTEX Hours MON-THURS 8-1 Sunday 1:30-1
18+ Always • 3 Minutes from UMASS!
Call to book your team/organization's private party now!
<<<< Upcoming Events >>>>
MAY 6
UMASS Football Party
RT. 9 HADLEY • 413-586-4463 • TICKETMASTER

DESIGN SUPPLY STUDIO
Pastels Portfolios
10% off WITH THIS AD
Posters Special Orders
HOURS: Mon.-Fri. 9-8 Saturday 9:30-5:30 Sunday 12-5
65 South Pleasant Street Amherst, MA 01003 413-253-5592

Main St RECORDS
Two Floors of Cassettes, Compact Discs and Vinyl
- New and Used -
586-5726
213 MAIN ST • NORTHAMPTON, MA

R & P Liquors
Convenient to Brittany & Riverglade
253-9742
505 West Street • South Amherst

JOB OPPORTUNITY
OUTSTANDING CAREER OPPORTUNITY WITH NATIONAL COMPUTER FIRM
TECHNICAL SUPPORT REPRESENTATIVE
Responsibilities include assisting our customers in system implementation, and product training and support – both on site and via telephone. Must be willing to travel; UNIX, spreadsheet, database, and report generator experience necessary. Business and people orientation a must. Comprehensive salary/benefits provided. Send resume and salary history in confidence to:
Customer Services Manager
P.O. Box 178
Springfield, MA 01101

Gilreath Manor Condos
-on Hobart Lane-
3 Bedroom • 1 1/2 baths
Heated Basement
New Gas Heat and Hot Water
1/2 mile to campus • On Bus Route
Showings Start In April
for June or September Occupancy!
Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St • 253-7879

The TOC LOUNGE
Tonight: NBA Playoffs 7:30
Friday & Saturday: NHL & NBA Playoffs
Sox vs. Angels 10:00
DRINK SPECIALS • MUNCHIES
11TH FLOOR CAMPUS CENTER•POSITIVE I.D. REQUIRED

ANYONE can be a part of the BEHIND-THE-SCENES action of
SPRING CONCERT
Help out with SECURITY!
It's fun! It's rewarding! And you get a free shirt!
To work Stage Crew, Hospitality, or Promotions, or if you have questions, call UPC at 545-2892 or stop by 406Student Union
Three informational meetings will be held. Volunteers must attend one.
•April 28 •May 4 Cape Cod Lounge 7:00 pm
Brought to you by your pals at University Productions and Concerts

LBG
PEER COUNSELLING COLLECTIVE
Call: 549-2671 ext. 316
or
Walk in 371B
University Health Services
Tuesday & Thursday 5-9 pm

BOSTON BARTENDING SCHOOL OF AMERICA
Train Now For Your Summer Job
TIPS
• If you are 18 or older, be a bartender
• Day/Evenings 1 Week
• Placement Assistance
• Spend the Summer at the Shore!
• Only 4 Openings Remain for MAY CLASSES!
• ENROLL NOW!!! •
MC/VISA/DISCOVER/AMEX
1655 Main St. • Suite 202 • Springfield • Call Today! 747-9888

A.L. Arts & Living Weekly

Shakespeare goes to summer camp

Innovative production introduces The Two Gentlemen of Verona to Mother Nature

By EMILY MARINO
Collegian Staff

Spring means a lot of things for many people, and thanks to the University of Massachusetts Theatre Guild, it means taking William Shakespeare to summer camp.

The guild is currently presenting Shakespeare's The Two Gentlemen of Verona, innovatively performing the show outdoors.

The show constitutes the first to take place outside in over a decade. Verona will take be performed in the rhododendron garden by University Health Services.

"The garden provides such a setting that you can never represent on a stage or in a theatre," said Production Manager Donald Medeiros. "Our challenge was to incorporate as much of the garden into the whole concept [of the play]."

Shakespeare's story is of a love triangle which develops when two friends fall in love with the same woman. When Proteus (Rob Murphy) leaves his lover, Julia (Wendy Remington) to go to summer camp, he falls in love with Silvia (Rachel Korn), who is also the apple in the eyes of his friend, Valentine (Tim Plankey).

Medeiros said that the dark, mystical rhododendron garden creates elements that enhance the strong theme of love that underlies Verona, though the guild's interpretation of the play is basically comical.

The guild came up with the idea of an outdoor production last semester, when it received a $5000 grant from the Student Government Association. The SGA allocates funds to the guild every year, but they are rarely used.

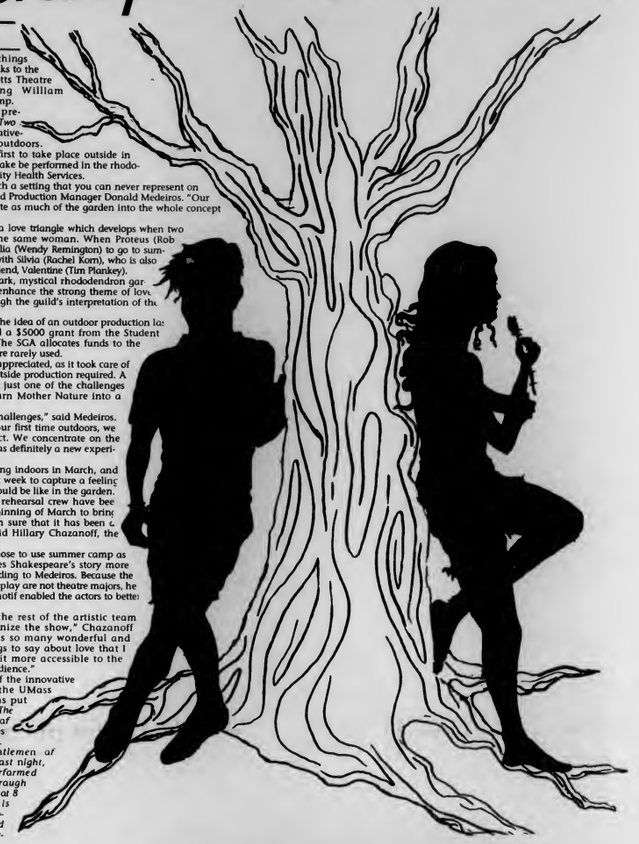
This year, the grant was appreciated, as it took care of the unique expenses the outside production required. A $2500 lighting system was just one of the challenges posed by attempting to turn Mother Nature into a stage setting.

"It offered a lot of new challenges," said Medeiros. "Basically, because it was our first time outdoors, we weren't sure what to expect. We concentrate on the learning aspect, and this was definitely a new experience."

The guild began rehearsing indoors in March, and finally moved outdoors last week to capture a feeling of what the performance would be like in the garden.

"The cast of 15 and the rehearsal crew have been working hard since the beginning of March to bring this show together, and I'm sure that it has been a wonderful experience," said Hillary Chazanoff, the director of Verona.

The fact that the guild chose to use summer camp as the setting of Verona makes Shakespeare's story more available to students, according to Medeiros. Because the majority of the actors in the play are not theatre majors, he also said that the modern motif enabled the actors to better relate to their characters.



"I, along with the rest of the artistic team decided to modernize the show," Chazanoff explained. "It has so many wonderful and applaudable things to say about love that I wanted to make it more accessible to the mainly student audience."

In light of all of the innovative hard work that the UMass Theatre Guild has put into preparing for The Two Gentlemen of Verona, it promises to be a great show.

The Two Gentlemen of Verona opened last night, and will be performed tonight through Saturday, April 30 at 8 p.m. Admission is free, seating is provided as well as blanket and picnic space. For more information call 545-0415.

The A.L. Interview: Studying up on broadway understudy Sam Samuelson

By SHAWN McDONNELL
Collegian Staff

Sam Samuelson is a minor Broadway celebrity, in the worst sort of way — the brilliant understudy to a star with box office pull. Standing by for actor/singer Shaun Cassidy in the musical Blood Brothers, Samuelson quietly turns in one of the strongest performances currently on the Broadway boards.

Those familiar with the production, like myself, are likely to argue that his portrayal of Edward Lyons (a lower-class child who is separated from his twin brother and adopted by a wealthy couple) is the finest the production has seen. But when the theatre announcer gloomily intones that Shaun Cassidy is not performing, Samuelson must often contend with a hostile audience.

I spoke with him about his experiences in the wings and on the stage during Blood Brothers' first anniversary party.

Collegian: Blood Brothers took ten years to make it to Broadway, from Landan's West End. You could say that producer Bill Kenwright spent much of that time assembling the perfect cast for New York. Yet you were cast at the last minute.

Sam Samuelson: The show was in Toronto for five months, with the British leads and a Canadian supporting cast. Then we were cast — the Americans. We were replacements. We just slipped right into their roles and then we had two weeks of rehearsal. Which is unheard of.

How terrifying was this, as an understudy? Learning everything in only two weeks?

Terrifying. I didn't even know [the role of Eddie] for the first couple of weeks. As a matter of fact — did you know, — the understudy for Mickey [the other lead role] went on without having a rehearsal? Con O'Neill got sick in the middle of one of the show, and Phillip Lehl had to go on for the second act. Luckily, I got to have a lot of rehearsals. I was ready when I went on.

Tell me about your starring Broadway debut — your first time going on as Eddie.

Broadway has a sort of mystique for me — this unattainable thing. When you're up there you can't believe you're on Broadway. But after the mystique leaves, it feels like any other show you've done before.

When the British cast left, the show had not yet earned the title of "hit." If it had, you might have been moved up to the star slot. Instead, the producer wanted a box office draw. Shaun Cassidy.

And all of a sudden, you're backstage getting ready to go on as Eddie — knowing there are carloads of Shaun Cassidy fans who want to kill you, because they drove all the way from Newark to see a TV star, and they've never heard of you.

It's awful. You step out there, and you can feel the audience saying "prove it." And you have to win them over. But sometimes people are more surprised with understudies because they expect them to be bad. If you do a fairly decent job, they're usually like: "Good for you. You were supposed to be bad, but you're good."

Looking at your past credits — Grease; Big River, where you played Huck Finn — you seem more comfortable playing rascals, troublemakers. But you weren't cast in the obvious part — Mickey, the spitting, stone-throwing street urchin. You were cast as a very reserved, upper class "posh."

When I was cast, I was surprised that I was the understudy for Eddie. I always play characters like Mickey. But then, it might work better that way, because there's built-in conflict. I look a certain way, but my spirit is the opposite.

The week I was on, when Shaun was on vacation, I started to build in the role: I felt comfortable, I was finding new things — BAM! It stops. It's hard to create and build a character like that.

Now you're listed as the secondary understudy for Mickey — which means you know both vocal parts of the brothers' duets. Have you ever...

Messed up? (Laughs) Yes. But David Cassidy [who plays Mickey] has never noticed! Which is a blessing.

Blood Brothers is one year old today. For a while it didn't look like it was going to have a birthday.

When the British cast left, we were all freaked out. We didn't know what was going to happen.

One of your co-stars actually left the show so he could open in a play which had won the Pulitzer Prize. But it didn't outlive Blood Brothers. Now he's back where he started.

Isn't that weird? The funniest thing would be leaving the stage door: Philip [Lehl] would be in his dressing room across the street and he'd yell "Hey Sam!"

Do you know — we've been here so long that we've seen three different shifts of shows open and close in the theatres over there. I don't think anyone can believe we're still here!

June Fifth. The Cassidys are leaving.

Bill Kenwright, the producer, told us he's keeping the show open. "Don't worry, just relax. Keep doing your job." But we don't know what's going to happen.

Any chance you'll take over the lead?

I would love to. I have been offered other things — the Sound of Music tour, The Boys From Syracuse in Atlanta, which is slated for Broadway — but I don't want to go out of town. I just got married. Actually, Mary Beth [Dolan, whom Samuelson married in October] is going out of town next week to do a show in Michigan. So that'll kind of bite.

"That will kind of bite," said Samuelson.

(Laughs) Are you going to print that? "I am really stupid," said Samuelson. "That would kind of bite."

It sounds like you'd prefer to settle into long-running, stationary shows.

I'd still like to hop out on the road, or do some television. Something else. I just want to learn. And make good money!

But I'm also staying with this because there is a chance I'll get bumped up. Maybe not. But you know — in a way, it doesn't matter. This has been a great experience anyway.

Broadway newcomer Sam Samuelson.

Brainscan is brain–dead

By DANIEL PELLEGRINI
Collegian Correspondent

Reminder: if any of you, by chance come across James Cameron in the near future, ask him this: why did you have to make Eddie Furlong a star by casting him in T2?

Yes, the annoying little poster–boy for pre–pubescent rebellion is back in the fatal Brainscan. Already being typecast into these MTV horror films (anyone remember Pet Semetery Two?) Furlong's whiny volce proves only to be salt pourring on this open wound ot a film.

In this one, he plays Michael Brower, a computer software and horror junkie whose mother's death and father's business trips leave him confined in his room, alone all day with nothing to do but play video games.

In comes Brainscan, a virtual reality–like horror game that mysteriously arrives in his mail from out of nowhere. The audience is never made clear of how exactly this game works, but Michael plays it, and assumes the role of a brutal serial killer who has to commit at least one murder in a certain time frame, or he loses.

But here's more. After watching the news the next day, Michael discovers that there was a murder in his town, and guess what? It was the same murder scene from the video game the night before and — are you ready for this — it was Michael who did it! Wow! What originality! Wargames meets American Werewolf in London!

It's sad to say these are the horror films for our generation. Two hour rock videos with maximum gore and minimal fright. The blood and guts in Brainscan, the only reason why it garnered and "R" rating, are laughable and ridiculous in the same way

> Hollywood may be selling out a traditional genre so it will appeal to the more adrenalized audiences who seek nothing more that a cheap thrill; like seeing a close–up of two eyeballs being gauged out or a tongue being ripped off.

Sam Raimi's Evil Dead II were, only this time we're not supposed to laughing and shaking our head at the same time. In one scene, a dog is running through the woods with a victim's foot hanging from its choppers, an almost exact mirror of Dead II.

Does this film constitute a cry for something new in Hollywood? Or is the horror genre just dying altogether? Remember when the seventies gave us classics like The Exorcist and Jaws, films that were based solely on the notions of scaring people, and didn't rely on any hard–core rock music, in–your–face slashing or cute one liners to sell them?

The truth is, as Hollywood moves in new directions, away from the classical conventional cinema, and towards an alternative, independent, non–genre cinema structure, it is losing as much as its gains. With every Quentin Tarantino that emerges and offers us a new way of looking at film, there is an Alfred Hitchcock or a Roger Corman that is being forgotten.

Notice the recent, declining chain of Stephen King films (with the exceptions of Rob Reiner's horredys), and compare: Sleepwalkers, Needful Things, The Lawnmower Man and Graveyard Shift, to Kubrick's The Shining and DePalma's Carrie.

Hollywood may be selling out a traditional genre so it will appeal to the more adrenalized audiences who seek nothing more that a cheap thrill; like seeing a close–up of two eyeballs being gauged out or a tongue being ripped off.

So could a film like Brainscan be marking an end to a dying breed? Whether it is or not, someone's at fault for making this picture. It tries to make itself a psychological exploration of fear, but the virtual reality angle is virtually hopeless.

In order to see Brainscan — the last thing you need is a brain. D– (Hampshire Six)

Exhibit boasts a natural style

DAYMON SMITH/COLLEGIAN

Students enjoy the artwork of Susan Minnich in Herter Gallery.

By ASHLEY E. VONDRASEK
Collegian Staff

"What food, Which culture, Whose planet?"
Herter Gallery
April 24–29, 1994
11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

On Sunday, April 24 from 4 to 6 p.m. at Herter Gallery the opening reception ot the exhibit "What food, Which culture, Whose planet?" was held.

Though Haigis Hoopla was taking place outside on its second and last day, not far from the gallery, quite a number of people attended the opening reception. The crowd consisted of students, as well as adults and children.

The Exhibit

The exhibit is actually an MFA thesis done by Susan Minnich, who has had formal training in art and worked in the art field as a tapestry weaver and graphic artist.

"I'm hoping for my art to develop an activist role," said Minnich. "I would like to expand its role in the community and have it address issues that are critical to us all."

Minnich explained that she hopes to deal specifically with environmental issues. After hearing from Nobel prize winners a couple of years ago that damaging effects on the environment will be irreversible in approximately 20 years, Minnich became concerned.

Another factor that interested Minnich in the subject matter was the reality that farmers who grow food are getting sick from pesticides, which Minnich said is "unacceptable" and "terrible."

The exhibit occupies two separate, yet connected rooms, and is unique in that it enables the viewer to actually be physically involved.

The first room occupies art work created with a total of 2200 natural resources, including burnt sticks, vials of water and seeds, jars ot oil, and soil wrapped in mesh material. Separated by resource, many materials are tied onto individual nylon strings that are hung next to one

Turn to MINNICH page 9

SUICIDAL?
LAY IT ON THE LINE.
617-247-0220
The Samaritans

Jumpin' Jack got his work done in a flash!

You can get your work done fast, too. Take a fast, easy-to-use computer back to your room today and complete your work with ease. Cheap rentals on all Macintosh® computers. Rent for a week, month or a semester. And when you're ready to purchase a system of your own, we'll help you make the best decision at the best price.
YES is the Answer
58 Main Street • Northampton, MA • 585-0007
YES COMPUTERS

Call now. Or get stuck in the rush to disconnect your phone.

Now there's an easy way to disconnect your phone service. It's automated, and you can do it from a touch-tone phone anywhere in the NYNEX area. To place an order to disconnect your service just call 1 800 244-3737 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. weekdays, and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays.

Here's how it works. After you call, you'll be asked to enter your telephone number and customer code. This code is the three-digit number that appears after your telephone number on the Summary of Account page of your bill. Without this code the transaction can't be completed.

If you use this system, your final bill will be sent to your existing billing address. So remember to file a change of address card with the post office.

Call 1 800 244-3737. We'll be happy to disconnect you.

NYNEX.

© 1994 NYNEX Corporation

UNIVERSITY STORE • BLUEWALL CAFETERIA • COFFEE SHOP • CATERING • HATCH • CONFERENCE SERVICES • BUILDING SERVICES • BLUEWALL COFFEEHOUSE • GRADUATE LOUNGE • TEXBOOK ANNEX • VENDING • HOTEL

Lay It On the Line

A Customer Comment Line for the Campus Center

We want to know what you think so we can keep on doing what you like and improve those things you don't like. If you shop at the University Store, eat at any Campus Center dining location, stay in the Hotel, attend a conference, use a meeting room, visit a rest room–let us know what you think.

Twenty-four hours a day call us at 545-1661. If you want a personal response to your comment just leave your name and telephone number. The appropriate manager will respond to you.

In-house telephones in the Campus Center are located at the Information Desk and in the hallways on the 8th and 9th Floors

CALL 545-1661

PRINT SHOP • TOP OF THE CAMPUS • GAMES ROOM • MINI STORE

■ Minnich

continued from page 8

another. This creates five "curtains" that viewers must walk around in order to see each one, as well as enter the second room.

The art work symbolizes natural resources that could possibly become non-existent if they continue to be used at the current high rate by members of the industrial agriculture field. According to Minnich, there is a need for something to be done to insure they will be here for later generations.

To get the community involved, Minnich decided to later donate the natural materials used in her exhibit to places in the community, such as food stores. Minnich will deliver the materials dressed in a burlap costume decorated with such things as food labels and egg cartons. She will give away brown paper bags containing pieces of her art work, pencils and bookmarks covered with bits of information about the agriculture industry to people within the community.

The second room of the exhibit is full of pamphlets and videos that cover topics from local food banks to eating disorders. Both pamphlets and videos were obtained by sending letters to addresses found in bibliographies of books used for research. The letters requested literature, explained Minnich's thesis, and included part of her grant application.

Related Events

Throughout the week, related guest speakers have and will be featured every day at noon. On Monday, Naomi Alson, owner of Naomi's Herbs in Lenox, talked about "Women, Gardens, Flowers & Medicine Plants," and discussed how plants pertain to women in history.

Traditionally, throughout history, women have had gardens in which they grow medicine plants. For instance, a woman with a family prone to skin rashes would grow chickweed. If necessary, neighbors would trade plants with one another if they did not grow a plant they needed for a family member.

Alson also spoke about monarch butterflies and jewel weed. By consuming jewel weed they do not taste appealing to birds, therefore discouraging birds from eating them.

> "I'm hoping for my art to develop an activist role...I would like to expand its role in the community and have it address issues that are critical to us all."
> -Susan Minnich

Tuesday's speaker, Sharon Stowers, R.D., from the Department of Anthropology and Department of Nutrition, spoke about food guides from the past and present, and how they are influenced by social and political forces. The discussion was entitled "Nutrition, Ideology and the State: Deconstructing Food Guides."

Stowers spoke of how food guides do not adequately apply to everyone, and argued that the guide is made with only Anglo Saxons in mind. Stowers' own practical food guide devised food into the following broader groups: luxury food, health food, fast food/take food, and cash crop food.

Wednesday's speaker, David Sharken, is the director of Food Programs at the Food Bank of Western Massachusetts. Sharken's discussion was entitled "The Changing Face of Hunger." The Food Bank is a "community supported agriculture farm" as described by Minnich. The bank collects food from manufacturers, after which the food is wholesaled, warehoused and finally distributed to places in need of food, such as soup kitchens and survival centers.

Today's speaker, Daniel Kaplan, is the assistant manager at Brookfield Farm, located in South Amherst. Kaplan's talk is entitled "Community Supported Farming: Farming for the Future." Kaplan will discuss how to achieve strong local farms that can provide food to the community. According to Kaplan, a benefit of this type of farming is that it allows a community to not only grow nutritious organic food, but to keep prices down as well.

Friday's speaker, Jennifer Dugan, is a facilitator of Peer Support Groups of UHS. Her talk entitled "Overcoming Eating Disorders" will also include the showing of a video. Dugan's discussion will cover such topics as overcoming eating disorders, and the influence of the fashion industry on eating disorders.

The remainder of the week's events will enhance Minnich's exhibit, "What food, Which culture, Whose Planet?" The events also exemplify local concerns about which the artist feels strongly.

"My feet and essence are really firmly located in the Berkshire Hills," said Minnich, who lives in a solar electric house.

In light of the fact that Minnich was "almost completely absorbed in it (the exhibit) for at least six months," a stroll through the Herter Gallery is definitely worth the time.

The Wailers carry on tradition of Bob Marley at Pearl Street

COURTESY ASSOCIATED BOOKING CORP

The Wailers will bring legendary reggae jams to Pearl Street tonight.

By JONATHAN RATCLIFF
Collegian Staff

"Right before Bob died, he said: 'Please keep the band together and concentrate on the quality of the songs.' So we began playing again, intending to build on the foundations he set up, and to live up to his musical standards."

The Wailers Band vocalist/guitarist Junior Marvin reflects on the difficult loss of world renown reggae legend Robert Nesta Marley, whose death in 1981 saddened millions of fans worldwide.

The impact Marley had on the music industry was tremendous. His music has been the most effective vehicle to deliver reggae to the western world, proving that artists from all spheres of the globe are able to succeed outside of the commercially controlled music industry. Marley even created his own Tuff Gong record label.

Marley demonstrated the power that music has to confront a wide range of social issues — from discrimination and oppression, to love and religion. Marley achieved this by singing songs that not only strike home for him and his fellow Jamaicans, but speak also for, as Marley said, "all that live and move on the earth."

All the while, the Wailers were there, providing the essential musical body of Marley's genius, a key ingredient in the success of the outfit both on stage and in the studio. Their musical talent is evident on all their recordings, and on the stage today: exemplifying what the world knows what the world knows as Jamaican reggae.

How does a band carry on after losing a figure as important as Marley's? The Wailers Band continued to tour, true to Marley's wish, reforming in 1984 for a successful tour with Alpha Blondie.

Turn to WAILERS, page 12

ATTENTION: Arts & Living Staff!

There will be an informational meeting on Wednesday, May 4 at 5:30 p.m. in the newsroom where A&L staff can meet and hear the candidates for next semester's A&L Editor position. Make your vote a sassy, educated one.

FOR 26 WAYS to help save the EARTH CALL 1-800-488-8887.

BUY BEER & WINE on SUNDAYS from Noon to Closing.
Montague Mini Mart
Discount Prices!
10 Minutes From UMASS Campus
• Reasonable Cigarette Prices •
from Amherst: 10 miles north on Rt. 63 to Rt. 47N
from Northampton: 14 miles I-91 north to Rt. 116 to Rt. 47N
(Follow signs to Montague Center • Proper ID Required)
Open 7 Days from 9-9 • 367-9551

Spirit Haus
LIQUOR STORE

Miller Genuine Draft & Miller Genuine Draft Light 12oz. cans	3.50/six $11.95/case
Rolling Rock 12-Pk. Bottles	$7.39
Natural Light 12-Pk. Cans	$4.69
Bud Ice 12-Pk. Bottles	$7.39
Miller Reserve Light	$3.99/six
Catamount Bock	$4.49/six
Newcastle Brown ALe	$6.99/six
Tanqueray Gin 1.75 Liter	$20.49
Gordons Vodka 750ml	$5.79
Southern Comfort 80° 750ml.	$6.99

All Beer Prices Plus Deposit
Ice • Kegs • Mini-Kegs • Mixers
"Your Full Service Party Source"
OPEN 9am - 11pm
Rte. 9E College Street • 253-5384
One mile east of Amherst Center on Rte.9
VISA & MASTERCARD ACCEPTED

SAVE on SERVICE CHARGES this SUMMER

We'll waive the service charges on your BayBank account over summer break.

SAVE MONEY.
Your account will be free of all service charges during the summer as long as you're not using your account.

SAVE TIME.
Use your BayBank Card at anytime and your account will automatically be reactivated. There's no paperwork and no need to order new checks.

IT'S EASY.
Just call 788-5000 anytime or stop by your nearest BayBank office.

BayBank®

Member FDIC

Calendar of Events

The Fops appear Thursday night at Hampden Theater in their new production, Fop In The Name Of Love.

THURSDAY

THEATER — Mount Holyoke College's Department of Theater Arts will present A.R. Gurney's The Dining Room, directed by Stephanie Laflin, at the Alice Withington Rooke Laboratory Theater at 8 p.m. $4 general, $2 students/seniors. Also April 29, 30, May 1 at 8 p.m. and April 30 at 2 p.m.

CONCERT — Mark Nomad, the Northampton based blues monster, will perform at the Black Sheep Cafe in Amherst at 8 p.m. $3, $2 for students and seniors. Tickets available in advance and at the night of the show. Call 253- 0679 for details.

CONCERT — The Wailers will perform at Pearl Street Nightclub in Northampton at 8:30 p.m. $11 in advance, $13 at the door. The Equalites will open. Call 584–7771 for further details.

CONCERT — Borderland will periorm at the Hatch Bar in the UMass Student Union. 21+.

CONCERT — The Pioneer Valley Cappella will present a choral program of 16th and 17th century English and Italian sacred and secular music at Grace Church in Amherst at 8 p.m. Open to the public. A donation will be requested at the door.

Immunity will be performed by the Amherst College Department of Theatre and Dance Thursday through Sunday at 8 p.m. in Fayerweather Studio Theater

FRIDAY

CONCERT — Leticia will perform with Craig Eastman at the Black Sheep Cafe in Amherst at 8 p.m. $5 at the door.

CONCERT — The Battlefield Band will perform at the Iron Horse in Northampton at 7 p.m. Tickets are $14.50 in advance. Tickets are available at the Iron Horse, 20 Center St., Northampton, and at the Northampton Box Office (413) 586–8686 or by calling 1–800–THE–TICK.

COMEDY — Local comedy troupe The Fops is pleased to announce its Spring production, Fop In The Name Of Love. The show is a sketch comedy revue, similar to "Saturday Night Live," "Monty Python's Flying Circus," and "The Kids In The Hall." The Fops will set their irreverent gaze on subjects from the everyday to the obscure, including pop culture, Generation X, the battle of the sexes, and Jedi knights. 8 p.m. Hampden Theater, UMass. $3 students, $5 non–students. Sponsored by the Student Valley Productions. Also April 30 at 8 p.m.

THEATER — The Victory Players will be "Broadway Bound" during their annual production of the Neil Simon play at the Easthampton Town Hall Theater at 8 p.m. Also April 30 at 8 p.m. General admission is $7.50 and $6.50 for children under 12 and seniors over the age of 65.

CONCERT — Anson Funderburgh and the Rockets will perform at Pearl Street at 8:30 p.m. $8 in advance, $10 at the door. Wolfgang will open. Call 584–7771 for details.

Young Girl and Old Dog, by Philip Evergood is just one of the many pieces up for auction on Sunday at the Hotel Northampton. Benefits go to UMass FAC.

SATURDAY

CONCERT — Rap group Arrested Development will perform with special guest Nefertiti at Mount Holyoke College at 8 p.m. The concert will be held in Chapin Auditorium on the Mount Holyoke campus. Tickets are $15 and can be purchased at Blanchard Information Desk (MHC), The Northampton Box Office (800)–THE–TICK, For the Record in Amherst, and Tix Unlimited in the UMass Campus Center.

THEATER — The University of Massachusetts Department of Theater will present Lanford Wilson's classic drama of small–town life, The Rimers of Eldritch at 2 p.m. at the Curtain Theater, UMass Fine Arts Center. Tickets are available through the Fine Arts Center Box Office 545–2511. Admission is $5.50 for the general public and $3.50 for students and senior citizens. The Curtain Theater is wheelchair accessible.

CONCERT — The Art Steele Blues Band will perform at Pearl Street tonight. $5 at the door. Call 584–7771 for showtime and details.

CONCERT — Lyn Hardy and the New Nohemians will perform at the Black Sheep Cafe tonight at 8 p.m. $5, $4 for students and seniors.

SUNDAY

The Five College Early Music Collegium, directed by Robert Eisenstein, will present a program of Spanish music from the 15th–17th centuries at 7 p.m. Buckley Recital Hall, Amherst College. Works for voices and instruments of all sorts will be featured, followed by a reception. Admission is free and open to the public.

CONCERT — Gold medalist of the Ninth Van Cliburn International Piano Competition, Italian pianist Simone Pedroni will give a recital at Bowker Auditorium at 2 p.m. Tickets for the recital are $18 and $13; half–price tickets are available to 5–College students and tickets for students age 18 and under are $8. For tickets or more information call the Fine Arts Center Box Office at 545–2511 or 1–800–999– UMAS outside the local calling area. Bowker Auditorium is accessible to the physically challenged.

GREEK EASTER CELEBRATION — El Greco, Isle of Mykonos Greek Restaurant at 460 West Street (Rt. 116) in South Amherst will usher in the spring with a Greek Easter celebration. A sumptuous Pascal feast will begin with mageritsa, a lamb soup, complemented by Greek salad, homemade Greek country bread and red Easter eggs, and will culminate with a traditional roasted lamb dinner. A vegetarian dinner will also be available. Music will be provided by vocalist and santouri player Sophia Bilides, who will present a program of Greek songs from her Asia minor heritage. The evening will begin at 6:30, with music following dinner. There will be only one sitting, so space is limited and reservations are necessary. For more information, contact El Greco at 253–9239 or 256–4196.

AUCTION — Works of art by leading national and regional artists will be put up for auction to benefit the UMass Fine Arts Center. The auction will take place at the Hotel Northampton with Peter Imler of Stanton Auctions serving as guest auctioneer. The art will be on display at 5:15 p.m. The auction is sponsored by the Thronja Art Gallery and the Hotel Northampton.

CONCERT — "Namaskar," an Indian Classical Dance Concert, will be presented at Hampden Theater, UMass, at 7:30 p.m. A pre–concert reception will be held at 7 p.m. in the theater lobby. All are welcome to attend. Tickets to the concert are $5. For reservations call the FAC Box Office at 545–2511 or 1–800–999–UMAS.

Pianist Simone Pedroni performs Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium

Come Clean With Us!!
Speedwash
11 Pray St. Amherst • 549-1665
Open 24 Hours
Drop-off service available:
Mon. & Tues. 2pm - 10pm
Wed., Thurs. & Fri. 2pm - 10pm
Sat. 10am - 6pm
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St. South Amherst
Open 7 days/week, 7am - 10pm

CAMISOLES
NATURALS
EYELET EMBROIDERY, TUCKS & PLEATS. LOTS OF STYLES. WHITE AND NATURAL COTTON. $16.95
MAIN STREET - NORTHAMPTON - OPEN 7 DAYS
Basic DUDS at Faces

Spring is finally here!! "Spring" over for great values at ...
LIQUORS 44
BEER WINE LIQUORS
BUD, LIGHT, DRY & ICE $12.99 +DEP CASE OF 2-12 PK. BOTTLES
MILLER $9.99 +DEP CASE OF 24-12 OZ. CANS
PETES WICKED ALE & LAGER $9.49 +DEP 12 PK. BOTTLES
CORONA $4.49 +DEP 6 PACK BOTTLES
ICE HOUSE, ALL BUD & MICHELOB BARRELS $39.99 +DEP
PETER VELLA $7.99 5.0L 5.0 LITER BAG-IN-A-BOX CHABLIS, BURGUNDY, RHINE, BLUSH, CHENIN, WHITE GRENACHE
SUTTER HOME $7.49 1.5L CHARDONNAY & CABERNET SAUVIGNON
GLEN ELLEN WHITE ZINFANDEL $3.49 750ML
RIUNITE WINES $5.99 1.5L ALL FLAVORS
BOONES WINES $1.99 750ML ALL FLAVORS
SMIRNOFF VODKA $13.99 1.75L
TANQUERAY GIN $19.99 1.75L
SEAGRAMS V.O. WHISKEY AFTER REBATE $12.99 1.75L SALE $16.99 MAIL-IN REBATE -$4.00
CLAN MACGREGOR SCOTCH AFTER REBATE $12.49 1.75L SALE $14.49 MAIL-IN REBATE -$2.00
CAPTAIN MORGAN SPICED RUM $15.49 1.75L
We Accept All Cans and Bottles for Redemption
AT STOP & SHOP PLAZA IN
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln St. 534-4555
SALE PRICES THURS 4/28/94 THRU WEDS. 5/4/94
NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

Central Area Government Proudly Presents
Chucklehead
April 30, 1994
12:00-2:00 P.M.
On The Van Meter Basketball Courts
In Central Residential Area
Absolutely Free

Cape Verdean student group hosts Andrade–Watkins' film

By MALKES GOMES
Collegian Staff

The Cape Verdean Student Alliance is proud to present Dr. Claire Andrade–Watkins, associate professor of film at Emerson College in Boston, Mass. Dr. Andrade–Watkins will be speaking in the Campus Center room 174–176, on Friday, April 29 at 6:45 p.m. This event is free and everyone is welcome.

Dr. Andrade–Watkins will present her film entitled The Spirit of Cape Verde, a film which looks at Cape Verdeans in New England.

She will also be discussing her role in the realm of film. Dr. Andrade–Watkins is a second generation Cape Verdean– American. Her documentary, The Spirit of Cape Verde was the first historical documentary on Cape Verdeans in New England.

Recently, Dr. Andrade–Watkins worked as an assistant to the producer on SANKOFA, an internationally acclaimed film on slavery by Ethiopian director Haile Germina.

During the summer of 1993 she traveled to the Cape Verdean Islands and to Mozambique to research African film. She also participated in the making of Leon Lopes' Ilheu Contendo film in Cape Verdean this summer.

Dr. Andrade–Watkins received her doctorate in African Studies and history from Boston University. She has published various items in scholarly and popular publications in cinema in francophone and lusophone Africa.

Dr. Andrade–Watkins has also been a producer of numerous documentaries for national and regional television. Presently she is working on her next documentary called Saudade de Cabo Verde (a longing for Cape Verde) which examines Cape Verdeans in America during the present decade.

Everyone is encouraged to come and take part in what will be a very dynamic presentation.

Neighborhood news delivers

By BOB SALSBERG
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON – It may seem a little rough around the edges at times when compared with the newscasts seen every night on Boston's commercial television stations. But for many residents, Neighborhood Network News is the only way to get past blaring headlines to get a realistic perspective on what's happening in the city.

"We don't have to worry about advertisers, we don't have to worry about how many people are watching," says Charlie Rasmussen, news director for the nightly program pumped into the homes of about 110,000 cable subscribers in the city.

"We don't cover fires, we don't cover shootings," adds Rasmussen, who says his newsroom doesn't even have a police scanner. He says he prefers to focus on the larger issues of public safety and violence in the neighborhoods, as well as the everyday issues like water bills, tax bills, fuel assistance and day care. Neighborhood Network News is celebrating its 10th anniversary next week with a live program from Faneuil Hall followed by a birthday bash at a downtown nightclub.

The 30-minute program airs three times each week night, at 5:30 p.m., 9 p.m., and 11 p.m. on the city's cable access channel, Boston Neighborhood Network (BNN-TV, Channel 3). Student writers from Boston University team up with staff reporters and neighborhood "correspondents" – generally longtime residents and activists who periodically give capsules of goings-on in their area of the city.

"I look for the kinds of stories that no one else is going to cover," says Rasmussen, who became news director in 1985 after working in city government and as a labor negotiator.

Unlike commercial station reporters who are often limited to one or two minutes of air time, Neighborhood Network News reporters can devote more time to stories in a commercial-free format.

"They get into the meat and potato issues of the neighborhoods on a daily basis," says Boston City Councilor John Nucci. "It's the video equivalent of the local weekly newspaper."

Politicians like Nucci, forced to speak in eight-second sound bites on other stations, are often afforded as much as 12 minutes of air time during newscasts to talk about issues that can be as mundane as the need for a stop sign at a city intersection. Neighborhood activists and leaders of the minority community are also given a chance to speak in length about issues they are concerned about.

Nucci says he would like BNN to go one step further, by televising city council meetings live, as do many cable access channels in cities and towns around Massachusetts.

* * * * *

WFXT-Fox 25 is presenting brief profiles of four women activists during the children's programming on the station leading up to Mother's Day (May 8).

The 30-second, 60-second and 90-second vignettes feature singer, songwriter and Native American civil rights activist Buffy Sainte-Marie, poet and abolitionist Lola Rodriquez de Tio, women's rights crusader Cady Stanton and black suffrage organizer Fannie Lou Hamer.

All four also shared something in common: They were all mothers.

The second anniversary of the Los Angeles riots will be the subject of a radio program produced by WGBH (89.7 FM) in Boston. Anna Deavere Smith, an actress and playwright who has created one-woman theatre pieces based on interviews with people from all walks of life, recently interviewed more than 200 people for her latest production, "Twilight: Los Angeles, 1992."

In the radio program, entitled "Reflections on Los Angeles," Smith discusses her personal experiences in putting together the show. The one-hour program airs on American Public Radio stations nationwide, including WGBH, Sunday, May 1 at 4 p.m.

Filmmakers Robin Hessman and James Longley of Andover, Mass., examine daily life in Russia through the eyes of a young orphan in the film "Portrait of Boy With Dog."

The film airs Tuesday, May 3 at 11 p.m. on WGBH-TV/Channel 2, as part of the public television station's weekly series showcasing the works of independent filmmakers in the Boston-area.

The 30-minute documentary, shot in black and white, uses the boy named Gosha's experiences as a reflection of the remarkable transformations that have occurred in his country during his lifetime.

A little sun in your eyes?

Psychology sophomore Joe Rose, communications freshman Cathy Dione, and pre–veterinary freshman Heather Navin enjoy the spring sunshine, but didn't someone have a class?

The word is out...

After much anticipation, four gigs have been thus far confirmed for Spring Concert on May 8. Look forward to seeing:

Black Uhuru
Buffalo Tom
Taj Mahal
The Violent Femmes

Cheers to UPC, who set up a table on the concourse to answer students' questions. Stay tuned for more information.

BOB says, "It is a poor fool who waits until dawn to settle his affairs of the heart."
But then again, we stoped listening to him a long time ago.
The MassDaily Collegian
Deeper than Bob

Ever Get A Pal Smashed?

Resumé Package
• 50 copies on Your Choice of 25% Cotton Paper
• 2 Business Day Service
• 1 Page Typeset
•With Coupon• $19.95!!
CopyCat PRINT SHOP
228 Triangle St., Amherst 549-3840
32 Pleasant St., Northampton 586-1332

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian.
Something for everyone.

Lincoln Real Estate
has the best selection of 1, 2, & 3 bedroom Uptown Apartments with Gas Heat.
We begin showing apartments in April and May for June or September Occupancy.
253-7879 • 25 N. Pleasant St.

1-4 Bedrom Houses & Apartments
Most on Bus Route
Amherst & Surrounding Communities
Free Landlord Referral Service
D.H. JONES
15A Pray St. (2nd Floor)
Amherst, MA 01002
549-7757 • 8:30am - 5:00pm M–F

THE UMASS THEATRE GUILD Presents:
The Two Gentlemen of Verona
in the Rhododendron Garden
FREE ADMISSION • April 27-30
Rain Date: May 1 at 4 & 8pm
Questions? Call 545-0415
Blanket Spaces Available

KATHLEEN TURNER
"AN OUTRAGEOUS, WILD & CRAZY COMEDY. KATHLEEN TURNER IS HILARIOUS." – Susan Granger, CBS/AMERICAN MOVIE CLASSICS
"'Serial Mom' is a killer comedy." – Bruce Williamson, PLAYBOY MAGAZINE
SAM WATERSTON RICKI LAKE
SERIAL MOM
A New Comedy By John Waters.
NOW SHOWING
SHOWCASE CINEMAS WEST SPRINGFIELD
RIVERDALE RD. • 733-5131

CELEBRATE SPRING AT SCOTTS AND SAVE!!
Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN: Mon.-Sat. 8 A.M.-11 P.M. Tel: 549-2692
BUD DRY 24-12 oz. bar bottles $10.99 +dep.
BUD ICE 24-12 oz. bottles $12.99 +dep.
LITE ICE 24-12 oz. cans $13.79 +dep.
POPOV VODKA 1.75 Ltr $10.49
GILBEY'S GIN 1.75 Ltr $11.99
Coors EXTRA GOLD Draft 24-12 oz. bar bottles $10.99
GALLO WHITE ZINFANDEL 1.5 ltr $4.99
WE WANT TO BE YOUR FAVORITE LIQUOR STORE!
Tele-check for your personal check.
6 University Drive at Newmarket Center, Amherst
We now have all Mass Lottery games!
Quantity Discounts Available

Pearl Street Nightclub
DANCE CLUB
▼ Wednesday ▼
GAY NIGHT
MUSIC BY SPIN, INC.
Saturday, May 7 - Tea Dance following The Pride March 3-7pm
• Thursday •
18+ DANCE PARTY
AREAS BIGGEST DANCE PARTY
Music By SPIN Inc.
• Friday •
JAMMIN' TO CLUB MUSIC with DJ LANCE
9:00pm-1:00am
Free Admission with this Ad.
• Saturday •
WHMP 99.3FM & PEARL STREET TEAM UP FOR AN EXPLOSIVE LIVE RADIO DANCE PARTY!!!
CLUB HMP
WITH MUSIC BY SPIN INC.
Every Saturday 9:00pm - 1:00am
"Free Admission with this ad before 10pm"
LIVE MUSIC
Thurs., Apr. 28 8:00pm
Reggae Dance Party
THE WAILERS
The Equalites
Fri., Apr. 29 8:00pm
ANSON FUNDERBURG & THE ROCKETS W/SAM MYERS
Wolfgang
Sat., Apr. 30 9:00pm
ART STEELE BLUES BAND
Tues., May 3 7:30pm/All Ages
BLACK MARKET FLOWERS
DANDELION
Wed., May 4 6:30pm/All Ages
THEY MIGHT BE GIANTS
Brian Dewan
Thurs., May 5 8:00pm/18+
"ART IN YOUR EAR"
w/Electric Noodle Factory
Meristem, Synesthesia, Knuckle Sandwich, & More
Fri., May 6 9:00pm/Rock '102
Pink Floyd Tribute
THE MACHINE
Sat., May 7 9:00pm
R & B/JAZZ/FUNK
HEAVY METAL HORNS
Tues., May 10 7:30pm/All Ages
TREE / STOMP BOX
Thurs., May 12 8:30pm/18+
MERL SAUNDERS & The Rain Forest Band
Fri., May 13 8:30pm/18+
SKA from New York
THE TOASTERS
Knuckle Sandwich
Sun., May 15 8:30pm
J GEILS BLUES TIME
Sun., May 22 7:30pm/WKSI
FERRON
Tues., May 24 8:00pm/WKSI
JOHN HIATT
Coming
6/3 - QUEEN LATIFAH
6/6 - GWAR
6/10 - NRBQ
6/11 - ROOMFUL OF BLUES
6/13 - KING SUNNY ADE
6/17 - ADRIAN BELEW
Tickets available at Pearl Street, Strawberries, Tix Unlimited, Northampton Box Office: 586-8686, For The Record in Amherst 10 Pearl Street Northampton 584-7771

All the good dirt from Hollywood

NEW YORK (AP) - Seinfeld is funny. Carson and Letterman crack him up. But nobody could make Jay Leno laugh like his mom. "My mother had a 'Gracie Allen' type of humor, a knack for unforgettable one-liners that left you guessing whether she was kidding or serious," Leno wrote in the May 17 issue of Family Circle.

Leno's mother, Catherine, was abandoned by her parents and immigrated from Scotland by herself at age 15. Her sense of humor helped get her through the hard times, Leno writes. She died last June.

She always took her role as Jay's mother seriously, "The Tonight Show" star said.

"Once after she saw me perform my monologue, she said, 'I just wish he wouldn't slouch. All that money he makes, and he's slouching on national TV,'" Leno said.

* * * * *

NEW YORK (AP) - It could have been bigger than Tom and Roseanne, gaudier than The Donald and Marla - a wedding of the century uniting Madonna and rapper Vanilla Ice.

It almost happened, Ice says in the May issue of Spin magazine. "It was pretty serious. I dug her," the 25-year-old rapper says of their eight-month romance.

Well, not always.

"She would change personalities a lot," he said. "Sometimes she acts like a shy little girl, but all of a sudden she'd change and start yelling and you'd hate her."

But Ice learned a little about image-changing from Madonna. His new album, Mind Blowin', features a dreadlocked Iceman doing gangsta rap. That's the real Ice, he says; his old image was a phony.

"They made me to look like Evel Knievel, you know?" he said. "Some teen idol or something. And that just ain't me."

* * * * *

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Rock 'n' roll is here to stay but Grace Slick is going to have to drop out for a while - six months in jail or a rehab program.

The former lead singer of Jefferson Airplane pleaded guilty Tuesday to one count of brandishing a shotgun at police officers on March 5. Officers had gone to her home in Tiburon after a neighbor complained that a drunken woman was firing a gun.

She accepted a plea bargain that reduced felony and misdemeanor charges of her arrest to a single misdemeanor. That reduced her potential jail time from three years in state prison to six to 12 months in county jail.

She could avoid doing jail time if Superior Court Judge William Stephens paroles her to a six-month residential treatment program for alcoholism. Sentencing is scheduled for June 6.

* * * * *

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) - Even people with the ultimate right stuff can lose their lunch.

Gen. Chuck Yeager, the first man to break the sound barrier, says he got airsick the first time he flew.

"I never saw an airplane until I was 18 years old," said Yeager, who is in Australia on a speaking tour. "It was 1941 and I joined the Army Air Corps when I came out of school.

"I finally rode in one and got sick, and then applied for pilot training."

Yeager, 71, broke the sound barrier in 1947 and said he plans to do it again in 1997, the 50th anniversary of his historic supersonic flight.

■ Wailers

continued from page 9

Afterwards, they produced their first post-Marley album, appropriately entitled I.D. Since then, they have been busy playing in Europe and America, continuing Marley's legacy.

Some may remember The Wailers Band at the UMass Spring Concert in 1992, and know that they have retained the high level of dynamic, message-carrying music that was found in the days when Marley was present.

"People still need the message in the music," said Wailers percussionist Irvin "Carrott" Jarrett. "Irrespective of whether they respond or not, you just have to give it to them. You know, if you have to get up in the morning, you buy an alarm clock, or you'll never get up — you have to be jarred and nudged into reality. So we find it necessary to express these thoughts, these attitudes in music," Jarrett explained.

The Wailers have been a band in transition. As Marley said, "The group is whoever play with the Wailers." In 1967, bassist Aston "Family Man" Barrett, (who remains with the Wailers band to this day) and his brother, drummer Carlton Barrett, joined forces with Marley.

"The Wailers was the best vocal group and [my] group was the best backing band," Aston remembered. "So we say; why don't we come together and smash the world?"

And smash the world they did, creating with Marley what was arguably the best reggae band in history. Carlton's pioneering reggae drumming style gave the Wailers their unique percussive signature.

Carlton played with the Wailers until he was murdered in 1987, illustrating the sometimes violent social and political unrest in Jamaica.

Carlton was replaced by capable percussionist Michael "Boo" Richards, who has worked closely with Jimmy Cliff for several years. In the absence of Marley, Junior Marvin, (who joined the group back in 1977) has filled the gap on lead vocals.

For devout fans, and even those with only mild interest in Reggae music, this area appearance of The Wailers Band is not to be missed, for it is sure to be a highlight in almost anyone's live music experiences.

The Equalites, who have been the backbone of the Valley's local reggae scene for several years, kick off the show.

The Wailers Band, with special guest The Equalites will play tonight at Pearl Street Nightclub in Northampton. Doors open at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $11 in advance or $13 at the door. Call 584-7810 for more information

Looking for a J–O–B?

The Collegian Graphics Dept. is looking to fill positions for the Fall 1994 Semester

If you are:

- Hard – working
- Dependable
- A returning student
- Have an interest in Graphic Arts & Design

Come down to Camus Center 103 & fill out an application or call 545-1864
Ask for Andrew Davidson, Jim Ganley, or Marni E. Helfner

Experience is helpful, but not necessary.
Work-Study & Non-Work-Study Students are encouraged to apply.
The Collegian is an Equal Opportunity Employer

EXPLORE SUMMER '94 AT RUTGERS

Over 1,000 Courses
Convenient times - A.M. and P.M.
Undergraduate and Graduate Level

Also...

- Courses Abroad
- Language Studies
- Certificate Programs
- Personal and Professional Development

CALL NOW for a Rutgers-New Brunswick Summer Session Catalog.

1-800-HI-RUTGERS THE STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW JERSEY RUTGERS

Judie's

"Let's go get some of those great French Fries at Judie's... I love that Barbecue Sauce... it's great for dipping!.. come on.. you're making me hungry!..."

"WHY DON'T WE GO TO JUDIE'S"

51 N. Pleasant Street • Amherst • 253-3491

HELLCATS
JOIN THE PACK
RIDE WITH DEATH
THE COLLEGIAN

Look at What We've Done Now...

THE BOULDERS

The BOULDERS 256-8534

Leasing Apartments Now!

- New Huge 2 Bedroom Apartments Available:
  ☆ NEW APPLIANCES ☆ NEW COUNTERS/CABINETS ☆ NEW CARPETS & TILE ☆
- New Exercise Facility
  ☆ STAIRMASTER ☆ LIFECYCLE ☆ UNIVERSAL ☆
- Newly Renovated Hallways, Stairways & Entrances
- Free Heat/Free Hot Water/5 College Bus Stop on Property
- New Parking Areas & Landscaping

The Boulders Apartment Complex is conveniently located 1/2 mile from Downtown Amherst. Come check out our "Move In Special" for the fall today. When you stop by we will be renovating so pardon our dust. THANKS!

Directions to THE BOULDERS from Amherst Center & Route 9

essex PARTNERS An Essex Partners' Community, Formerly Brittany Manor

CLIFFSIDE APARTMENTS
248 Amherst Rd.
Sunderland, MA 01375
(413) 665-3958
Office Hours: M-F 8:30-5:30 Sat. 10-2

Cliffside - Priced to Let You Live Alone!

- Eff., 1, 2 & 3 Bedroom Apartments
- Rents from $460 includes all utilities
- W/W Carpeting • On Site Laundry Facilities
- On Bus Route (Free Fare) • Pool & Tennis Courts
- 28 Acres of Wooded Hiking Trails

Only Minutes to UMASS, Shopping & Rt.91

UM partner benefits explored

By STEPHEN C. CAMPBELL
Collegian Staff

The fight to extend benefits to domestic partners of students and employees has come to UMass.

Over the past decade, many universities, municipalities and employers throughout the United States have extended "spousal" benefits to unmarried employees and students who are in long–term, committed relationships with adult partners.

These partnerships have been defined to include both lesbian and gay couples, as well as unmarried heterosexual couples.

Last November, the Subcommittee on Domestic Partnership Benefits of the Chancellor's Task Force on Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Matters issued its "Report on the Extension of Domestic Partnership Benefits" to Chancellor David K. Scott.

This report has been well received and was followed up by a forum on Domestic Partnership benefits, held at UMass in February. At this forum, Scott spoke in favor of the extension of these benefits.

Additionally, the Graduate Employee Organization has taken a leading role in the struggle to attain these benefits at UMass.

The GEO's new contract, ratified by the Board of Trustees in early April, includes a clause which calls for the formation of a joint GEO/Administration committee which "shall work towards implementation for the Fall 1994 semester of the extension of family [health] plan benefits to domestic partners of graduate student employees."

This committee, GEO members, GSS representatives, undergraduates and administrators, has been meeting throughout the semester and plans to issue its recommendations by the end of the semester, according to Wendy Mataya, the Co–Speaker of the GEO.

> "Since UMass has a self funded health plan for students, it will be very easy for the Administration to implement these benefits for all undergraduate and graduate students."
> –Wendy Mataya

"Since UMass has a self funded health plan for students, it will be very easy for the Administration to implement these benefits for all undergraduate and graduate students. In other words, the health plan pays for its self, so there would be no additional costs in the extension of these benefits," said Mataya.

A coalition of employees at each of the five UMass campuses has formed to address this issue.

The inclusion of domestic partner benefits for state employees requires the Group Insurance Commission to change its definition of "family" to be inclusive of gay and lesbian couples and unmarried couples. This must be done legislatively.

Governor Weld's Commission on Gay and Lesbian Youth issued a report entitled "Making Colleges and Universities Safe for Gay and Lesbian Students," in July of 1993.

This report issues a strong recommendation that universities "ensure equal access and equality of all benefits and privileges granted to all state employees and students."

Until the laws are changed that make the extension of the benefits a reality, the Subcommittee on Domestic Partnership Benefits believes that UMass should find an alternative means to insure the domestic partners of employees.

One such method is to give employees cash grants to purchase health care coverage. This method was used by the University of Minnesota after insurance companies refused to extend coverage to domestic partners.

The Subcommittee also believes that all other benefits currently available to married heterosexual couples should be extended to lesbian and gay and unmarried heterosexual couples.

For instance, benefits such as the use of the athletic facilities, admission to University sponsored child–care programs, and tuition wavers for domestic partners of employees, should be available to domestic partners as well as spouses of University employees.

"The University of Massachusetts has taken a strong stand on defending the equal rights of lesbians, bisexuals and gays by including 'sexual orientation' in its non–discrimination clause and prohibiting discrimination on the basis of 'marital status'."

"It is time for the University to back its words with actions and extend these important and valuable benefits to lesbian and gay couples and unmarried heterosexual couples," said Mataya.

■ Vertex

continued from page 1

We do not have the funds to pay it," said O'Neill.

The Council investigated into getting space for the show to be in the Campus Center and Student Union. According to O'Neill, the University will not rent space to student organizations that are not Registered Student Organizations.

"We then went to other places on campus. We went to the Newman Center, Theta Chi, etc. They basically said no one had the funds to pay for the show," O'Neill said.

The Council then contacted the Vertex who agreed to host the show this Friday night at 8 p.m. Due to a contract clause, The Machine and Synaesthesia show will be a private party. Students need to show UMass identification at the door to get in, said O'Neill.

"Flash Group Concerts, the company who manages The Machine, has a contract with Pearl St., in Northampton which says The Machine cannot play within 10 miles of Pearl St.," O'Neill said.

The Council is offering bus rides to and from the show for UMass students. The bus will run from 8 p.m. to 1:30 a.m. and can be picked up at the Haigis Mall. Tickets are $9 a piece and can be purchased at the door.

DRUNK DRIVING DOESN'T JUST KILL DRUNK DRIVERS.

Rafters SPORTS BAR & RESTAURANT

THE 1994 RAFTERS COLLEGE TOWNE CLASSIC SUNDAY, MAY 1, 1994 12:15PM

Registration starts at 11am
8k course outside, hilly but fast
post-race BARBECUE at Rafters
T-SHIRTS to all participants

Cash Prizes:

- 1st open (M&F) $100
- 2nd open (M&F) $50
- 3rd open (M&F) $25
- 1st Master (M&F) $50
- 1st Team in Each Category: open, masters, seniors (M&F) $50

PRIZES TO TOP THREE IN EACH AGE DIVISION

START AND FINISH AT RAFTERS
ENTRY FORMS AVAILABLE AT RAFTERS, THE PUB, SEASONS
FOR INFORMATION, CALL FRED WELLMAN AT 413-886-7411

University Drive & Amity Amherst • 549-4040

And now, for my next trick ...

CHERYL DIRUSCIO/COLLEGIAN

What — no flaming knives! Doug Keady, a Chinese and economics major shows off his juggling skills in the beaming rays of the sunshine by the campus pond.

Sunday May 12

CARDS & GIFTS Faces main st., northampton

take Kaplan and get a higher score...

MCAT

The MCAT is August 20.
Register now for classes in Amherst, or anywhere in the country.
549-5780
KAPLAN
The answer to the test question

FORUM ON UNDERAGE DRINKING
A COMMUNITY DIALOGUE

May 3, 1994
3:30 - 6:30 pm
Room 101 - Campus Center

Guest Presenters
Massachusetts Underage Drinking Task Force

Local Campus & Community Speakers followed by open dialogue

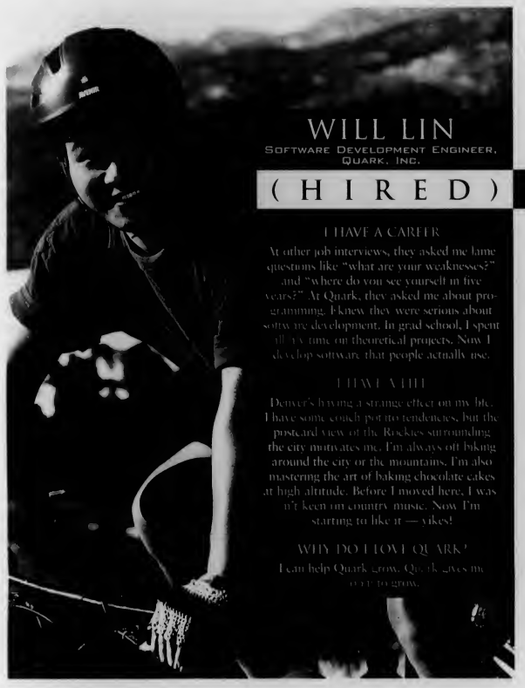
- What are the issues ?
- What has been done... successfully & unsuccessfully ?
- What is next...future strategies ?

Open to local communities of parents, schools, colleges, teenagers, college students, public officials, health agencies, police, alcohol vendors, businesses, human service professionals and the media. We invite all interested people to attend and contribute their ideas and energy to the prevention of alcohol abuse.

Sponsored by the University of Massachusetts Health Services, Dean of Students Office and the Student Health Advisory Board

Anthony's
"The Biggest Stars Shine Only at Anthony's"

THERESA PRESLEY



THRU SATURDAY • APRIL 30th
Penthouse Centerfold

18 & Over Allowed!
7 DAYS A WEEK!!!
Limited Seating • Positive ID Required

May 10-14
The Morrell Twins

Sun-Tues 5pm-2am • Wed-Sat 12pm-2am
500 New Ludlow Rd. South Hadley, MA
Rt. 91 North to Mass Pike East to Exit 5
left on Rt. 33, turn right across from BigY (413) 536-0502

QUARK IS NOT JUST GROWING,

WE'RE EXPLODING

WILL LIN
SOFTWARE DEVELOPMENT ENGINEER, QUARK, INC.

(HIRED) HIRING!

I HAVE A CAREER

At other job interviews, they asked me lame questions like "what are your weaknesses?" and "where do you see yourself in five years?" At Quark, they asked me about programming. I knew they were serious about some my development. In grad school, I spent all my time on theoretical projects. Now I develop software that people actually use.

I HAVE A LIFE

Denver's having a strange effect on my life. I have some couch potato tendencies, but the postcard view of the Rockies surrounding the city motivates me. I'm always off biking around the city or the mountains. I'm also mastering the art of baking chocolate cakes at high altitude. Before I moved here, I was n't keen on country music. Now I'm starting to like it — yikes!

WHY DO I LOVE QUARK?

I can help Quark grow. Quark gives me room to grow.

Quark is the international leader in electronic publishing software and related technologies. Our innovative products have set a new standard of excellence for those with ideas to share. Quark's vision is to provide publishing solutions designed to convey ideas — around the globe or around the corner.

With tremendous growth in the last year, and more expected in 1994, Quark is not merely bucking economic trends; it is defining them. Now, Quark is ready to seize new opportunities as it links a promising future to a proven, 13-year track record.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT POSITIONS

What's it like working in R&D at Quark? Intense, wild, free. Quark is an anomaly in the software industry — because we don't believe in limiting people. Everyone expresses their ideas, develops the software at every level, explores new technologies, and takes on challenging responsibilities. And, when it's time to unwind, everyone tosses the frisbee around the cubes and "researches" flight simulators.

Our engineers design and develop leading-edge, multilingual software for the electronic publishing industry. They combine innovative programming skills with creative interface design abilities. Quark products are customer-driven — we listen to our users and develop features that make sense to them. We also anticipate our users' future needs and provide vital new technologies to meet those needs.

R&D is divided into small, focused teams that allow engineers to direct and take responsibility for their assignments. The project leaders and managers are engineers — they actually write software in addition to providing leadership and focus to their teams.

Positions include:

PROJECT LEADERS

Responsibilities: Direct a team of engineers in the development of a specific product. Combine leadership abilities with programming and user interface design skills.

Qualifications: Strong background in leading all phases of software development projects. Expertise in "C" is preferred.

SOFTWARE DEVELOPMENT ENGINEERS

Responsibilities: Design and develop leading-edge multilingual software for the publishing industry.

Qualifications: Creative "C" programming skills on Microsoft Windows, Macintosh, or Power Macintosh. Knowledge of user interface design or networking is beneficial.

INTERNATIONAL SOFTWARE DEVELOPMENT ENGINEERS

Responsibilities: Design and develop software tailored to the international publishing market.

Qualifications: Creative programming skills in "C." Knowledge of user interface design or networking is beneficial. We have an immediate need for engineers fluent in Japanese, Chinese, Korean, Hebrew, Arabic, and Farsi; engineers fluent in other languages are also encouraged to apply.

ADDITIONAL OPPORTUNITIES

SOFTWARE SUPPORT TECHNICIANS

Responsibilities: Provide telephone, fax, or online support to Macintosh and Windows customers experiencing technical production problems.

Qualifications: Proficiency with Macintosh or Windows. Experience in an electronic publishing or printing environment. Excellent written and oral communication skills; troubleshooting experience.

TECHNICAL WRITERS

Responsibilities: Write and edit software documentation, programming documentation, "help" files, and technical newsletter articles for electronic publishing software. Write and coordinate other projects as assigned.

Qualifications: Bachelor's in Technical Communication, English, or related field, and proficiency with Macintosh or Windows. Some positions require a degree in Computer Science.

TRANSLATORS

Responsibilities: Progress from proofreading, to editing, to translating software documentation and marketing materials. Develop expertise in electronic publishing. These positions are located in Denver.

Qualifications: Excellent grammar, spelling, and writing skills in a native language other than English. Computer literacy is required. We have an immediate need for a Swedish translator.

As Quark continues to grow, we will be hiring translators fluent in Danish, Dutch, Finnish, French, German, Greek, Italian, Norwegian, Spanish, Swiss-German, and many other languages.

DISCOVER DENVER

So, who lives in Denver? Cowboys and skiers, right? Sure, and mountain bikers, musicians, runners, artists, socialites, and everyone else. Denver has it all. You can play pool, drink at microbreweries, listen to jazz, slam espressos, and dance all night downtown. In Denver, you can ride your bike to work, eat lunch in the park, and attend the symphony at night. Athletes and fans have it made with professional football and basketball, major league baseball, and recreational sports teams.

The sun shines more than 300 days each year in Denver, yet the weather's always changing. In this refreshing atmosphere, a snowy Friday can lead to a balmy Sunday. On the weekends, get away to the Rocky Mountains or stay in the city and enjoy the parks, museums, restaurants, and the best shopping in the region. With its combination of urban, cultural, and recreational activities, Denver's diversity is ideal — for everyone.

EXPLORE THE POSSIBILITIES

Quark provides a creative work atmosphere and a comprehensive benefits package, including medical, dental, and life insurance, a very generous 401(k) plan, and tuition reimbursement. For consideration, please send your resume to:

Quark, Inc.
Attention: Recruiting, Department 1005
1800 Grant Street
Denver, CO 80203

Quark is committed to providing equal opportunity for all employees and applicants regardless of race, color, national origin, disability, religion, creed, sexual orientation, age, or gender.

QUARK.

Burnt out

CHRISTOPHER KALISH/COLLEGIAN

Hadley Fire Lt. Czerwinski inspects a possible stolen car set on fire on Crosspath Rd. in Hadley.

Grad students on to D.C.

Pair awarded Presidential Management Internships

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Staff

Two University of Massachusetts graduate students are on their way to Washington D.C.

Grad students Amanda Barlow and Kristin Mory have been awarded two-year Presidential Management Internships through a career-development program geared to attract the "the best and brightest" into the federal government after graduation. Only 169 finalists were chosen from 1,189 applicants nationwide.

The PMI program started during the Carter administration in 1977 to recruit talented students. Since the beginning of the program, 20 UMass graduates have been selected.

"It's a great opportunity to learn a lot and a great way to start a career," said Barlow. "I'm still an idealist. I think I can go into government and make a difference."

Barlow and Mory will be graduating from the university's Master's of Public Administration program in the political science next month.

From 1989 to 1991, Barlow was an administrative coordinator for the research department for the Economic Policy Institute. During the summer and fall of 1993, she did an internship at the Human Resource Association of the Northeast.

Mory works for the University's Office of Economic Development as the key staff support person. She also was a research associate to the Western European Trade Representative in the International Trade Development Unit of MassPort from June 1993 to January 1994.

Barlow and Mory will headed for the nation's capital this week for a federal government job fair and for interviews at several agencies.

Nominees for the PMI program embark on a tough and competitive screening process. The applicant undergoes a comprehensive application review conducted by a panel of academic and government officials. Next, the nominee goes through a regional screening competition that includes group and individual exercises and a writing sample.

"Nowadays, there is a bad rap against government service and not many people are willing to go into it," said Mory. "But I always wanted to go into government service. I see it as my responsibility to give something back to society."

Mory wants do to her internship in either the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency or the U.S. Department of Commerce. Barlow is interested in the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

Gorazde trying to recover

By SRECKO LATAL
Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — After air strikes were averted at Gorazde on Wednesday, aid workers struggled to restore a semblance of normal life to the battered town.

The three-week Serb pounding of the mainly Muslim enclave destroyed its water plant, wrecked its hospital and stranded thousands of hungry refugees whose villages were destroyed. NATO and the United Nations held off threatened air strikes early Wednesday, saying Serbs had met a 2:01 a.m. deadline to pull heavy weapons at least 12.4 miles from the center of Gorazde.

"There is effective compliance at this time," said Yasushi Akashi, the senior U.N. official in former Yugoslavia, shortly before the deadline.

That hardly meant a return to normal for Gorazde. U.N. officials said Serb forces destroyed outlying villages, sending refugees fleeing into town.

"Where to accommodate 12,000 people is the key question in Gorazde these days," said Fahrudin Becic, a ham radio operator, in a broadcast monitored in Sarajevo.

Gorazde is the center of a 130-square-mile U.N.-declared "safe area" of about 65,000 people. A worker in Gorazde for the U.N. Children's Fund estimated 35,000 to 50,000 people are in the town, up to half of them refugees.

> "Where to accommodate 12,000 people is the key question in Gorazde these days."
> – Yasushi Akashi
> U.N. Official

"We're obviously concerned that (conditions) are going to be a breeding ground for disease," said Alison Warner, a UNICEF spokeswoman in Sarajevo.

A Red Cross convoy arrived Wednesday with a pump, pipes, chemicals and other equipment needed to restore a safe water supply.

"The water situation in Gorazde is desperate," the Red Cross said in a statement. "The population does not have access to an adequate supply of potable water, and the threat of an outbreak of epidemics is growing daily."

Becic and another local ham radio operator, Enes Musovic, disputed U.N. contentions that Serbs had all but left the 12.4-mile exclusion zone.

Musovic said Serb forces shelled the village of Osanica, seven miles southwest of central Gorazde, on Wednesday.

"Our statement says Gorazde is calm," said a U.N. spokesman in Sarajevo, Cmdr. Eric Chaperon, when asked about the allegation. In Brussels, Belgium, NATO officials promised a "robust reconnaissance" to make sure no heavy weapons remained.

U.N. officials clearly were relieved that air strikes were avoided. U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali sent an effusive message of thanks to U.N. commanders and Akashi.

"Your professionalism, devotion to duty and calmness under pressure exemplified the highest traditions of the United Nations," said a text of the message released in Zagreb.

NATO officials conceded privately they could not be sure all Serb guns were gone from the rugged terrain around Gorazde. U.N. officials often have tolerated truce violations to avoid requesting air strikes that could escalate fighting, derail talks and endanger peacekeepers.

Sigma Kappa sisters host alumni

By GAYLE DOUGHERTY
Collegian Correspondent

The Beta Eta chapter of Sigma Kappa sorority recently celebrated its 50th anniversary during the weekend of April 15 and 16.

Friday evening, April 15, the sisters held a welcome reception for alumni. In the spirit of a 50-year tradition, the chapter held its annual banquet at the Lord Jeffrey Inn Saturday night.

Chancellor David K. Scott, Assistant Director of Greek Affairs Michael Wiseman and Pan-Hellenic Advisor, Carla McKay attended the dinner, as well as one founding sister and four other charter members.

"The focus of the weekend was to honor the women who started this chapter 50 years ago," and to provide an "opportunity for our alumni to come back and reacquaint themselves with the house," said Angela Kimball, a senior psychology major.

Angela, and her fellow sisters Elizabeth Hoime, a junior family consumer science student, and Antonia Vasilakis, a sophomore psychology major, organized much of the weekend's activities.

In December of 1942, the Beta Eta chapter was conceived by Elizabeth M. Jordan and Dorothy L. Maraspin who were juniors at Massachusetts State College (now UMass).

Since then Sigma Kappa has grown as a member of Greek life. Last Saturday the sorority initiated a pledge class of 15 new members. Other recent activities include sponsoring blood drives, and co-sponsoring Run for the Horizons, the annual UMass benefit road race, in which many of the sisters participated.

In addition to their on-campus contributions, Sigma Kappa's main philanthropies include gerontology research for Alzheimer's disease, Inherit the Earth and the Maine Seacoast Mission, which focuses upon bringing food to Maine islanders.

Totman pool reopens after delay

By GINA LARSON
Collegian Correspondent

The Totman Gymnasium swimming pool was closed and drained two weeks ago after the State Building Inspector disclosed problems with the filtration system.

An inspection was made of all the gymnasiums on campus; Curry Hicks, Totman and Boyden, after the State Department of Public Health questioned the safety of the facilities. No other problems were reported except for an imbalance in the pH of the water at the Curry Hicks pool.

The state inspector raised concerns only about the filtration system of Totman. The Athletics Department was warned of the problem and shut down the pool as a precautionary measure. The official order to close the pool came in on April 11.

The pool's filtration system, according to Donald Robinson, director of Environmental Health and Safety, is located under the pool near other electrical equipment. If a flood was to occur, it could pose a hazard.

The project of repairing the pool will be handled by the Physical Plant Department, although a date to begin the construction has yet to be scheduled. Estimates on the cost to fix the system are appraised at $10,000.

The closing of the pool has affected many activities, such as General Physical Education classes, varsity practices and recreational swims. The Intramural Office reported that the pool will be closed for the remainder of the semester.

To inquire about adjustments in pool hours for the rest of the semester at Boyden or Curry Hicks, call the Recreation Facility Hours Info Line at 5-2050.

Mechanical gorillas to direct traffic

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — State transportation officials have gone ape over traffic — and a little bananas.

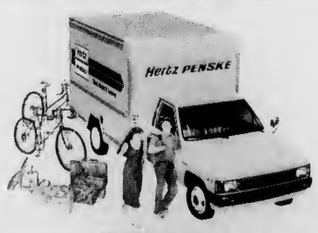
Two mechanical black gorillas, flashing teeth through a no-nonsense grin, will be put to work directing cars around road work.

Each gorilla sits atop a barrel and wears a yellow hard hat, orange-striped vest and yellow gloves. They hold a rotating, flashing sign that says "Stop" or "Slow."

"Research showed people didn't get as irritated at being made to wait by an automatic flagger when it looks like this," said Jim Merrill, a chief of maintenance with the Alaska Department of Transportation.

"They can laugh while they wait."

Ed Flanagan, who represents the flaggers' union, wasn't laughing.



"It's not April 1, is it?" Flanagan asked. "I've got my doubts that it's going to be as effective or react as quickly as a human."

It is cheaper. Merrill said the gorillas cost a total of $3,100 and could pay for themselves in a couple of weeks. Human flaggers cost up to $35 an hour, he said.

RUSSELL'S LIQUORS
Discount Discount
18 Main St. Downtown Amherst 253-5441

S.S. Pierce Vodka $8.99 1.75L.
Busch & Busch Light $9.99 case cans (Quantity Discounts Available)
Lionshead Pilsner $7.99 case bots.
Post Road or Catamount $9.95 12/pk. (your Choice)
American Beer $7.29 cse. (10 cases or more $6.99 cse.)
Bud 16oz. bots. $3.99 6/pk.
Heineken cans $8.49 12/pk.
Absolute 80° $11.99 750ml. Beringer W. Zin. $3.99 750ml.
Pilsner Urquell $5.69 6/pk. bots.
Brooklyn Lager or Brown Ale $4.99 6/pk. bots.
Sam Adams $9.95 12/pk (your choice)

All Beer plus Deposit
Visa/Mastercard accepted on Keg Deposits • Many More In-Store Specials (especially on wines)
Delivery Available

• Low Rates
• Rent It Here-Leave It Here
• 24 Hr. Emergency Road Service
• Easy to Drive Trucks

Hertz PENSKE Truck Rental

• Packing Materials Available
• Air-Conditioned Trucks Featured
• Many Trucks with Auto. Trans., and Loading Ramps
• Unlimited Mileage on One-Way Rentals

AMHERST 256-8224 NORTHAMPTON 586-8391
HADLEY 586-4322 CHICOPEE 594-5186
RESERVATIONS 1-800-222-0277

COLLEGE STUDENTS
10% OFF LOCAL TRUCK RENTAL
$50 OFF ONE-WAY TRUCK RENTAL
10% OFF MOVING SUPPLIES (Boxes, Tape, Rope, Etc.)
College ID Required • With this coupon NOT VALID WITH ANY OTHER OFFER One per truck rental • Subject to availability
Hertz PENSKE Truck Rental

DON'T BE LEFT OUT!
PUFFTON VILLAGE
Look What We Offer:

• 1,2, and 3 Bedroom Units
• Rents Starting from $475/Month
• Heat & Hot Water Included in Rent!
• PVTA Bus Stops in Complex

• 1/2 Mile to University. 1 1/2 Miles to Downtown Amherst
• Pool, 5 Tennis Courts & a Basketball Court On-Site!
• Our Office is Open Mon-Fri 8:30 to 4PM

Now accepting rental applications for Summer and Fall. Don't be left out of one of Amherst's best housing deals; prime location, spacious units, individual entrances, on-site parking and cable TV hook-up through Dimension Cable.
PUFFTON VILLAGE APARTMENTS • 1040 North Pleasant St., Amherst, MA
~ Resident Manager 549-0145 ~

Batter up

ABAM C OMEAN / COLLEGIAN

Spring is a nice time for softball.

JOBS! JOBS! JOBS!

Accounting/Finance Human Resources — Sales/Marketing Administration Support

Put yourself on-line to potential career opportunities with

BFS Networking Services!

✔ FREE and confidential referral services to clientele in MA, RI, ME & NH!
✔ Inexpensive (and optional) career counseling and resume services!
✔ TAKE ADVANTAGE OF OUR COLLEGE GRAD'S.

RESUME SPECIAL!!!

Mention this ad and have your resume professionally composed for just $75.00!!! The better you look to our client companies, the better we look...

Call (617) 270-0659 270-0659 or FAX (617) 238-6791
BFS Networking Services
25 Burlington Mall Road Suite 300 • Burlington, MA 01803

playoffs

continued from page 18

decline, the Bulls win in five.

ACS: Jordan can't beat the Cavs for the third straight year. Damn. Who is Bobby Phills, anyway? The only Phil who is going to shine in this series is Jackson. The prettiest highlights will come from Mark Price. Price will do everything in his power for the Cavs, yet Chicago will take it in four.

Now on to the West:

Denver (8) vs. Seattle (1).

ACS: George Karl said weeks ago he fears the Nuggets. Uh, if the Sonics are afraid of Denver, they should pack their bags now. Mahmoud Abdul Rauf is smooth, but Gary Payton could be the difference. Even Karl can't screw this one up — Seattle in four.

AG: The Nuggets have about as much of a chance of winning this series as Chris Ford does of winning Coach of the Year. The Supersonics have added the pieces to win it all, whether or not they've gelled is the only question.

It would be a shock if Denver won a game, the Sonics won't be tested until the conference finals. Seattle in three.

Utah (5) vs. San Antonio (4)

ACS: One strike against the Admiral for scoring a selfish 71 points. But think of this: if he did that to win the scoring title, how much will Robinson do to win the West? Hornacek has made the Jazz better and the backcourt of he and Stockton should dominate the Spurs. However, it's the Worm going to round two, disposing of Utah in five games.

AG: Great contrast, the inside power of the Spurs against the great backcourt of the Jazz. Utah swept the season series but is a perennial playoff disappointment. Karl Malone will frustrate Dennis Rodman and get him off his game.

Can the Spurs advance with Vinny Del Negro and Negele Knight at the point guard spot? Absolutely not. John Stockton will control the play, now he has outside gunner Jeff Hornacek to help Malone with the scoring. The Admiral will put up big numbers, but the Jazz come out on top. A mild upset, Utah in four.

Portland (7) vs. Houston (2).

ACS: Portland has no shot. Period. The Rockets have too much of one thing: Hakeem. Sssswwwweeeeeeeeep.

AG: Hakeem Olajuwon is the MVP of the league; he will eat up a doughnut-like Portland team. Mad Max will come to play against Clyde Drexler.

Too much defense — Houston and Rudy T. in four.

Golden State (6) vs. Phoenix (3).

ACS: By far the best first round series. I want the Warriors to take it, mainly because of Don Nelson who still doesn't get the respect he deserves. Barkley vs. Webber should be fun, but like I've said before, Paxson won't beat 'em this year.

AG: Charles Barkley wants the title in what will be his final season. The Suns can go back to the finals, although the Warriors can almost match them in talent. KJ will make a difference.

Golden State may hurt Phoenix's chances by pushing them in the first round. Suns in four, look out for a lot of three- point bombs to connect in this one.

Anthony Guido and Arthur Stapleton are Collegian columnists.

pipes

continued from page 18

The Red Wings' season-long goaltending troubles have continued as coach Scotty Bowman shelved Bob Essensa for rookie Chris Osgood. After a shutout in Game 2, Osgood has not been able to carry the Wings.

Detroit was also without Steve Yzerman for the first four games of the series, allowing San Jose's checking lines to concentrate more heavily on Sergei Fedorov.

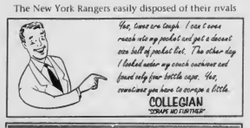
A San Jose series win, when given a closer look, should not be all that surprising. The Sharks were the NHL's second-best team over the last quarter of the season, and are anchored by Russians Sergei Makarov and Igor Larionov, and a fine defense featuring Sandis Ozolinsh and Jeff Norton. Throw in All-Star goalie Arturs Irbe, and you've got the making of an upset.

* * * * *

The New York Rangers easily disposed of their rivals from Long Island in a four-game sweep. Though many picked this as a grudge-match type series, it never amounted to anything more than a Ranger cakewalk.

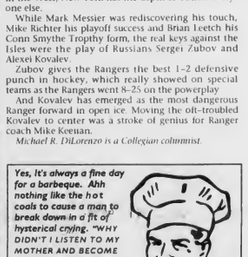
Have the Broadway Blues finally begun to exorcise the demons of 1940? Demons that broke Ulf Nilson's leg as the Rangers marched to the '79 Finals? That snapped Brian Leetch's ankle in Toronto, several days before the playoffs started? That steered Ron Francis' 70-foot shot between Mike Richter's pads that gave Pittsburgh the momentum to eliminate the Rangers in 1990?

Yes, yes, yes and yes.



With Pittsburgh looking shaky in its first-round series versus Washington, and nobody a serious threat in the West, New York has the depth to outlast everyone else.

While Mark Messier was rediscovering his touch, Mike Richter his playoff success and Brian Leetch his Conn Smythe Trophy form, the real keys against the Isles were the play of Russians Sergei Zubov and Alexei Kovalev.



Zubov gives the Rangers the best 1-2 defensive punch in hockey, which really showed on special teams as the Rangers went 8-25 on the powerplay.

And Kovalev has emerged as the most dangerous Ranger forward in open ice. Moving the oft-troubled Kovalev to center was a stroke of genius for Ranger coach Mike Keenan.

Michael R. DiLorenzo is a Collegian columnist.

We Deliver
Kai Chi
Chinese - American Cuisine
Restaurant & Bar
LATE NIGHT DINNER SPECIAL!
WE DELIVER
Appetizers up to 30% OFF!
Wednesday thru Sunday • 9pm - Closing
No other promos apply. • Entrees atarting at $4.50
Kai Chi Restaurant
MT. FARMS MALL • RTE 9 • HADLEY • 586-2774
Open Mon. - Thurs. 11:30am - 11pm.
Fri.-Sat. 11:30am - midnight.
Sunday 12 noon - 10:30pm

BANANARAMA
fabulous frozen YOGURT
NONFAT SOFT FROZEN YOGURT
GREAT TOPPINGS BAR
NONFAT YOGURT BIRTHDAY PIES
Call for Flavors • 253-2774
One Boltwood Walk (down the alley), Amherst

What Color Is Your CAREER?!?!?!
Start an effective and individualized Job Search with AVANTI Career Management
Student Discount / Free Consultation:
- Local Job Search (private sector)
- Nonprofit Organization Search
- Career Counseling / Interview Advising
- Professional Resumes & Cover Letters
- Career planning for foreign students & international career planning also

(413) 584-8409 • Fax 584-4558
17 New South Street, Sullivan Sq.
Northampton, MA 01060
AVANTI Career Management

Hatch Bar Specials

Specials Last from 4/26 to 5/2

BUDWEISER 12OZ. BOTTLE ...$1.50
ICE HOUSE 12OZ. BOTTLE $1.50
CAPE CODDER $1.50

Entertainment

TONIGHT at 9:00pm/21+/
BORDERLAND

TOMORROW at 9:00pm/21+/
POPPIES & PELORUS JACK

the hatch
GROUND FLOOR STUDENT UNION

HATCH FOOD SPECIALS

4oz. HAMBURGER
w/ Mushrooms & Swiss Cheese, Grilled & Served on Toasted Bread $1.99

THE HATCH COMBO
12" Grinder • 1/2 Sausage & 1/2 Meatball $3.50

FREE 12oz. COKE FOUNTAIN
Soda with any Stir Fry Order.

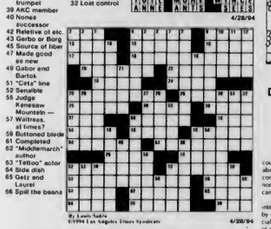
Calvin and Hobbes — By Bill Watterson

Propaganda — By Gleeson

Urban Shocker — By Deg

Bruno — By C. Baldwin

Lost Horizons — By Douglas Collinori



Daily Crossword

Edited by Freda Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Ice T tune
4 Leading
9 Look ahead
13 On a par, in Paris
15 Speechify
16 Lomax or Kowalski, e.g.
17 Boxa, in Rome
18 Biretta member?
20 Heng in
22 Head out
23 "— Man"; 1984 film
24 Preservative
25 Certain Fauvist paintings
29 Something to roll in 33 Insipid
34 Be in a pool
36 Moreno from Hurlbecue
37 Cleaning implement
38 Davis on trumpet
39 AKC member
40 Nonex successor
42 Relative of etc.
43 Gerbo or Borg
45 Source of lobe
47 Made good as new
49 Gabor and Burton
51 "Cats" line
52 Senable
55 Judge Kenesaw Mountain —
57 Waitress, at times?
59 Buttoned blade
61 Completed
62 "Middlemarch" author
63 "Tattoo" actor
64 Side dish
65 Getz and Laurel
66 Spill the beans

DOWN
1 Kind of hall, for short
2 Getting agent
3 Fast-burning candle?
4 Large bookie
5 Golf club
6 Unready
7 Procedural measures
8 Buttocness
9 Test official
10 Actor Rob
11 Nautical location
12 Campus jerk
14 Chinese noodle dish
19 Hot dog holder
21 Church area
25 Simulate
26 « pole
27 Send out
28 Battery or flare
30 Snake cleaner?
31 Chopin work
32 Loot control
35 Soccer legend
38 Assortments
41 Farmers, at times
43 Memorable actress Anne
44 Covered with growing trees
46 Maintain
48 Wise ways
50 Circus "elevator"
52 Drip unit
53 Spot
54 Eye layer
55 Author Uris
56 Evening, in Venice
58 — Veneto
60 Tolkien tree

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

By Louis Sabin
©1994 Los Angeles Times Syndicate
4/28/94

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Grilled Sneeze	Chicken Fingers
Ocean Munchies	Shrimp and Scallop
BASICS LUNCH	Creole something
Sneeze on Wheat	BASICS DINNER
more Fish Munchies	Tri Bean Casserole

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Jon Lupo
Copy Editor.....Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Photo Technician.....Aram Comjean
Production Supervisor.....Lisa Jezowski
Production.....Marni E. Helfner, Greg Iafrate

Scrambled Eggs — By Pete Woodbury

Difficult moments in Jim Henson's childhood

Your Horoscope

By Jonne Ekan

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your courage wins you new laurels. Be honest about your motivation. An important conference is scheduled for this afternoon. Career pressures may force you to cancel certain social plans.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The intensity of your emotions may take you by surprise. Go all out to secure a financial agreement. You can get to the heart of any problem.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Try to be more objective about a sensitive situation. Major personal choices must be made. You enjoy being the power behind the throne. In time, even a mistake can be turned to your advantage.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Greater candor will improve your relationships. Do not let someone pressure you into doing something that goes against your instincts. A brief encounter could spark romantic fires tonight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Stay on best of terms with influential people. Spending more time alone helps you sort out your feelings. Compromise starts the healing process with loved ones.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your penetrating insights receive new attention. Someone influential may urge you to change professions. An unexpected visitor brings the answer you have been longing to hear.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): An opportune time to seek a new job, schedule interviews and promote your special talents. Career advancements will be swift and sure. Reduce household expenses as painlessly as possible.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You will have to work hard for what you want today. A compromise may try to show you up or undermine your position. Trust your intuition. Make copies of all forms for future reference.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Analyze your bills. With luck, you will find a way to reduce expenses and still buy a few luxuries. Go out of your way to apologize and make amends to someone you have wronged.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Close friends can help you make a dream come true. Let them know exactly what is needed. A commercial scheme holds great promise; consult experts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You may have to go over the same ground today. Remember lessons learned in the past when deciding what financial moves to make next. A business offer may look more attractive than it really is.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The emphasis now is on making new contacts and creating exciting business opportunities. A beneficial change is in the works. A child will do you proud.

Quote of the Day

"Bad officials are elected by good citizens who do not vote."

—George Jean Nathan

briefs

continued from page 18

Trade offers have come from the New York Jets and Kansas City Chiefs - with Kansas City, he would again back up Joe Montana. He says both have offered more than San Francisco appears willing to pay.

Bono says things might have been different if the salary cut had been suggested earlier.

Al denies Budig

NEW YORK (AP) — The American League denied Wednesday that University of Kansas chancellor Gene Budig has been recommended by a search committee to succeed Bobby Brown as league president. Budig, the Kansas chancellor since 1981, said he had not been offered the job, and two members of the search committee said no decision had been made.

The New York Times, citing two unidentified executives familiar with the committee's deliberations, reported Wednesday that the search committee had recommended Budig, a member of the Kansas City Royals board of directors.

Classifieds

- 20¢ per word per day for students
- All ads must be paid in cash 2 days in advance
- Ads may be placed at 113 Campus Center, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

ACROSS FROM CAMPUS

3 floor, 3 bedroom condo on Sunset Ave Avail June 1st, call 549-8103

ACTIVITIES

Nyc bus trip April 30. Leave UMass 1:00 pm leave NYC 2:00am $70 per person Sign up in 428 Student Union- Commuter Services Center

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Attention Greek area Thinking of starting a meal plan or improving yours? Call 256-8063 for more info

Attn: All univ. women -- open rush IGU Friday 4/29 5-7pm bbq food + drink call Jess 549-9961 for more info

Bed and Breakfast, downtown Amherst Ideal for visiting parents and friends 549-0733

Bus trip to New York City Sat April 30 rd trip $29. Leave UMass 1pm -leave NYC 2am. Sign up in 428 SU. (OCHO)

Dance Party on April 30 9:00-1:00am in Student Union Ballroom. $2 before $3 at door All welcome!

Planning a graduation party? Exp chef establishes in local area. Best price. Call 256-8093

The UMass Theatre Guild presents Two Gentlemen of Verona in the Rhododendron Garden FREE ADMISSION April 27-30 Rain Date May 1 4&8pm ?s call 545-0415

UMass Credit Union has car, personal, and computer loans Rates as low as 7.99% 314 Student Union Building 545-2800

ATTENTION PROFESSORS

Don't put off painting your home or home office again? Call Phillips Brothers Painting now for early spring bookings Free estimates Fast reliable service Commercial and residential painting Light carpentry work Specialize in fine interior work 584-7765 ask for Blake

AUDITIONS

Auditions for Not Really For Bedtime Players will be held on May 5 1994 at 7:00 at the Campus Center For further information contact Daymon Smith at 546-1289

AUTO FOR SALE

82 Toyota 5S wagon $475 585-0843

85 RX7 MAzda sunroof, cassette, 5speed, asking $2,000 Call Jason 549-6928

86 Toyota excellent $1600 546-5741

1982 Chevette 102K $300 firm Runs great 584-3437

1986 Escort wagon $500/ B.O. Good brakes + little rust Sherri 549-3160

Dodge Aries 1982 wagon 106000mi Well maintained AC/AT $1200 BO 549-4643 Toby

For sale 1984 Volvo 240 Good condition Needs minor work $50 call 323-0151 best offer

Toyota Starcel 1983, red, hatch only $630. call Sven @ 256-8756

CAPE COD RENTAL

West Yarmouth 6 room 4 bedrooms sleeps 8 near everything 253-7436 508-775-4778, $6,000

FOR RENT

1 bedroom apt. N Amherst Quiet location with big yard, laundry facilities, and AC. Pets negotiable. Take over lease June 1st. Call Marc 549-8244

1 bedroom apt Puffton 442/month Chris/ Fred 549-4850

1 bedroom avail May1 farmhouse in medley on bus $375 585-0843

1 bedroom Brandywine Pondside Available June 1. Call 549-1902

1 mile from campus 4 bdrm, oil heat, Call 549-8239

2 bedroom apt Quiet great location Cheap includes heat hot water. 549-1571

2 bdrm puffton Take over our lease starting June 1 with option for fall renewal! call Ted at 549-7648

2 bedrooms N Pleasant St Good location close to bus starts June 1st Call 549-9951

2 bedroom 3 story condo 2 full baths Close to uptown On bus route Avail June 1. Call 253-4603

2 bedroom apartment at Brandywine, 3rd floor, pondside $1700/ month including heat Available June 1st Call 549-9465 Tracey or Beth

2 story, 2 bedroom Harv/ 1 sty, 1 bath, dishwasher, on bus route $572 + utils #253-7892

3 bdrm Puffton apt Take our lease over Call now 549-4053

3 bdrm Townehouse 1 1/2 baths on 2 bus routes take over lease 6/1. Call 549-7609

4 bedroom townehouse ideal for 5 people on bus/drive Available June 1 with fall option. Call 549-7730

4-5 bedrooms 2 full baths Close to uptown On bus route Avail June 1 Call Barb 256-8938 $1,300/ month

5 bdr house 2 5 miles from campus lease starts June 1 $1200 Call 549-1856

Big house on Sunset Ave Across from College Pizza + SW. 3 full bathrooms Huge backyard! Call 549-6890 or 549-1291

Blue room for rent $195 + utilities North Hadley Call Juan 586-4782

Brandywine 2 bdr top floor New carpet Only $650/ month Available June 1 549-8062

Brandywine 1 bedroom apt sublet or take over our lease hot water gas included 549-7972

Brandywine Apts. Take over our lease 6/1 2 bedrooms 2nd floor pondside Rent negotiable for June & July 549-2953

Cape Cod Duplex 5/28- 9/3 3 people $3150 Call Micah 549-4704

Corner of town 1,2 & 3 bedroom apts For 6/1 or 9/1 Now being shown Call for appointment Lincoln Real Estate 253-7879

Free furniture! If you take over our lease Puffton 1 bedroom 549-8521

Guarantee a 2 bedroom apt in Puffton Take over our lease starting June 1 Call 549-8112

Huge 1 bedroom Brandywine lease Takeover/ sublet Fits 3 easily 549-5878

Huge room Hobart Lin $170/ month Call Scott 549-4166

Large 1 br All utilities w/ cable $590/ month 6/1 2 min from campus 549-4888

Large 3 bedroom townhouse on bus route Call 549-7615

Large 6 bedroom house on Main St 2 full baths Call 253-2867

Live in Puffton! Immaculate three bedroom apartment with closet already moved Plus option to buy our unbelievable restaurant style bar- a must see! Call Stephanie, Julie, or Lisa at 549-8671

Mill Valley 2 bedroom avail June 1 call Dan 253-4225

Mill Valley 3 bdr 2 bath AC furnished 9/1 with fall option 256-4690

One bedroom apt Puffton Village Available May 31 Call 549-6014

Rent 7rm, 4 br, 2bath house On bus route with deck 1000 a month plus utilities Avail June 1st Call 1-783-6437

Sign early 3 bedroom in Puffton 549-8707

Summer sublet w/ fall option 2 bdr Brandywine apt inc heat and hot water Call soon! 549-3927

Sunny one bedroom apt Hardwood floors Center of Amherst Available June 1. 253-4852

Take over our lease 7br Brandywine 3rd floor starting 6/1 You won t find cheaper 5645/ mo Call 547-0829

Take over our lease Brandywine apt Get a free month's rent Some furniture included Avail June 1 549-6819

Welcome college students Cape Cod summer rentals All locations 1 to 8 bs houses Honey Spirco Broker 508-394-2857 or 508-398-9367

What a deal! We will pay you $500 to take our 2 br Brandywine apt. or sublet for $500/ month. Call 549-5096

FOR SALE

Bed twin/ king very cheap Call 549-3569

Color tv $120. Mtn bike $50 546-7026

Furniture rugs mountain bike Call 253-4164

Gibson Lespaul studio guitar $475 546-6860

Kayakator with CO2 tank Converted from Indigo $700/ BO 253-7395

Macintosh Plus, Imagewriter II, external hard drive, 3 1/2 inch disk, cases, software 665-8102, rehable

Magnavox tv with remote and magnavox boom box- Both great condition I make me an offer Troy 546-5122!

Slate pool table great condition autoball recever, sticks and balls included. $500 or best offer call Josh 549-7177

GOOD HUMOR ICE CREAM

Drivers wanted College students to sell Good Humor Ice Cream from one of our vending trucks Work outdoors this summer Be your own boss Routes available in your area Earn $650 to $950/ weekly Male or female Apply now Call Mon- Sat 9am to 3pm only. 203-366-5641

HELP WANTED

Alaska fisheries summer employment Earn up to $15,000 this summer in canneries, processors, etc. Male/ female. No experi necessary. Room/ board/ travel often provided! Guaranteed success! (919) 929-4398 ext A109

Alaska summer employment Earn up to $6000+ in two months Room + board! Transportation! Male/female. No experience necessary! (206) 545-4155 ext A5001

BeIndependent PT/FT summer jobs Help the world and to $70/hr Call immediately Reservations 546-1681

Camp Athletic Director Coed camp in Adirondack Mts Must have teaching and or athletic director background 1-800-ITS-FUN (487-3866)

Counselors Camp Emerson coed Massachusetts Swimming, tennis, land/ water sports arts/crafts, theatre, woodwork, rag rocketry, archery, computer, yearbook, photography, video /radio more! Superb, great food, friendly fun! No general counselors 800-965-CAMP

Earn $$ and experience- WMUA, student radio at UMass is looking for energetic, dedicated undergrads to become departmental directors starting in September Applications are available in WMUA lobby cc 105, across from the Collegian Application deadline April 29 Interviews April 30

Exotic dancers wanted Good shift pay Excellent working conditions Apply in person Diplomat Lounge, 1515 Riverdale St West Springfield 736-2207 736-9436

Extra job? Yard and house surround maintenance Reasonable Refrainces Please 549-0413

Postal Jobs Available! Many positions Great benefits Call 1-800-436-4365 ext P3306

Receptionist needed 20-25 hours per week to answer incoming calls and help with various inter office tasks at local computer integration firm Pleasant phone manner required 549-0701

The Jewish community of Amherst religious school seeks teachers for 1994/1995 Jewish studies, Hebrew, pre school, music Resume to Principal JCA 742 Main St, Amherst, MA 01002 or call 665-4372

INTERNATIONAL FAIR

International students association presents 16th International Fair April 30 11:00 5:00pm Student Union Free admission

LOST

Large silver "infiniti" pendant Ill found please call Macca 546-4859

Lost student daily planner and blue fabric pencil bag in ORT 144h floor Reward 253-8175

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

1982 Suzuki GS 450T low miles- mint condition extras! $900 549-6708

1985 Kawasaki GPZ 550 Black paint w/ red stripe about 9000 original miles Very clean! $1800/ B.O Call Marc 549-6332

MUSICIANS

Band seeks male vocalist 4 all styles 546-6312 Pete

PERSONALS

Kelly Conwell OK, now I just have to get you the stuffed bunny and you'll have everything you've ever wanted! Pls love your Guess who ???

Michael Hangin there! Punch the clown! I'll be thinking of you Priscilla

Don't run away It's Danny's birthday. Love Kerri, Bethany, Heather + Wendee s

Susan- dude/ secretary/ cowlover this one really IS for you good luck with "your" show love your mmee and the girl with no middle name

Tara, Happy Birthday! Love, Tom

Thanks for a great time on Saturday Delta Upsilon!

To the pretty lazy Jersey at Newman All of our promises have been kept. I waited for you , and now we've slept Though all our time o-heaven sent, time spent with you in time well spent Je suis desole 'o cella semble indicate mais j'essaie defferre de mon mieins love, your buddy

REWARD

Missing--"Boo Boo" Black & white domestic cat w/ bright pink collar Any info please call 549-8412

RIDE NEEDED

Need a ride to College Park MD Fri. Will defy for gas. Call 546-7499

ROOMMATE WANTED

1 bedrm in N. Hadley house 187/ mo 5 min from UMass 586 4711

1 F roommate to pay 180/ mon or 1 M + 1 F to pay 160/ mon, all utl incl in a 2 br apartment in Sunderland Call Kris 546-3731

Looking for 2 people to share room in 3 br Puffton apt Call Ellen 549-0385

One person for large room $178.00 Call 665-7604

Roommate needed for one br uptown Call 253-3252

Single, sunny room in renovated 2 bdrm apt. on bus route $199/ mo + utl 665-3618

Still avail, 2 mmates for cape house, any quiet Call Munjo 253-4114

SERVICES

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring, confidential support. 549-1906

Professional repair Most brands audio equipment + VCRs Sound + Music 351 Pleasant Street, Northampton 584-9547

8Scholarships matching! International Students Just 24 hr message! (800) 434-6015 ext 500

SPRING CONCERT 5/8/94

Security volunteers needed. Must attend one information meeting- 4/26, 4/28, 5/4 from 7-9pm in the Cape Cod lounge Call UPC at 545-2892 for more info

Volunteers needed for 5 days of fun in the sun! Spring concert cannot happen without your help! Come to a UPC general committee meeting on Tuesday 5/3 at 6pm in cc 165-69 Help wanted for security, hospitality, promotions, advertising, and stage crew

SUMMER SUBLETS

1 bdrm apt available end of May On bus line- close to town Take over lease option 256-6490

1 bedroom in 4 bedroom apt on bus route 274/mo 253-7188

1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt Cheap Near campus On bus line 549-1418 Take over lease option

1 large bedroom Colonial Wl 2 bedroom apt Ideal for 2 Avail June 1st 27G/BO Call Verity 253-7565

1 bedroom Puffton Village Available June 1. $440 mo. 549-1949

1,2, or 3 bedrooms in house on Pine St Call 549-2660 or 8230

2 bdrms avail June 1 Female roommates 253-9568

2 bedroom Brandywine May 25 to Sept 1 includes everything and free cable !!! Only 564$/ mo w/ fall option 3 couches and table incl 549-4261

2 bedroom apartment $550 a month Includes everything 256-1960

2 bedroom Puffton 220/per single Jun 1- Aug 31 546-2850

2 bedroom summer sublet available in Presidential with fall option $700/ mo or highest offer Call Ashley 549-1920

2 bdrm in 7 mn house Many amenities, on bus route avail 6/1 Call 546-3957 546-4768

2 bdrms in 3 bdrm cape Big yard, near Puffers Pond tennis + b'ball courts 549-5141

2 big bdrm apt South Amherst on bus route June Aug Fall option $450 253-4624

2 bedroom Brandywine Apt fall option $645/ mo Includes everything 549-6028

2 bedroom quiet on bus line, June Aug, furnished 253-4724

2-3 bedrooms available in 4 bedroom apartment Fully equipped, AC, busline June until August 549-8733

3 bedroom 2 bath Puffton Free cable summer sublet June Aug 31 549-5940

3 bedrooms 50 yds from bus stop Hadley May 31- August 31 $550 negotiable + utilities Call 586-8436

3 bedroom clean close to campus, pool, parking 549-3303

3 bedroom sublet Puffton $ neg May 27- Sept 1 New carpeting appliances Call 546-5649

3 bedrooms On busline Really close! Call us! 253-7694

5 bedroom house in Amherst Available June 1 with fall option 253-2174

$135 per huge bdr w/bath 665-0485

$275/ mo single 1 block from campus 665-0485

8drm avail in furnished condo Large yard on bus route Rent negotiable 256-4609

Beautiful summer sublet in Mill Valley Three bed Two full baths $700/ month 256-1222 Get it before it's gone!

Brandywine 2 bedroom June 1 to Sept 1 2nd floor Pondview 549-7701

Cheap! Puffton Village sublet 1, 2, or 3 bedrooms available Pool & tennis courts Call Lon 546-3182

FREE LAUNDRY
Looking for a place to live for the summer w/ fall option? Free laundry On bus route Interested? Call Matt 253-4207

Have a car? I have a Luxury 2 bed rm 2 bathroom pad for the summer solstice Large living area, dishwasher, ac all $650/ mo includes heat/ hot water. Call 256-8843 ask for Fleaboy Yum!

Huge rm in 2 bdrm Cliffside Apt Rent negotiable incl heat hot water Electricity on bus rt Pool laundry Parking trails 665-8939

If you have a car I have a perfect summer sublet $725 plus cheap utilities Call Andrew 545-1864 day, 549-4452 evenings

Looking for a summer sublet Call Donna at 253-4823 spacious + furnished

Phillips Street 5 bedroom room Can be double or single Only $185- 546-3894

Puffers Pond 2 bdrm $450/mo web/why b hall Call Nicole/ Laura Bus route 549-8306

Puffton Village 3 bdrm- pool Avail 6/1 to 31 $695- rent negotiable Call 549-0758

Room available for one or two people Mill Valley Estates Price is negotiable Call Mike 256-8766

Rooms downtown Quiet, private Fall option 253-4236 9am-9pm

Sublet pink house for summer on campus + 5 min walk to town 175/ month or BO 4 bdrms, furnished, will rent singles 549-5306

Summer sublet 2 bedroom on bus route $450 month heat/ hot water 253 4617

Summer sublet Large bedroom cheap! Looking for 1 or 2 females Presidential Apts Please call 549-1975

Summer sublet w/ Wellington 10 min from UMass on bus routes 2 bedrooms room for 2 3 people; clean quiet sunny! 549-8119

Take over lease 2 bdr Brandywine Available 6/1 only $435 month 549-0491

The best double room closest to Amherst Summer Fall! 253-4726

Two rooms available Mill Valley large bungalows 2 baths AC 2 mins to bus $700/ mo call 253-9476

TRAVEL

Europe this summer? Fly only $169 California- $179 es vay now! Caribbean $189 R/T Ask-tch 1-800-575-TECH

Sunny Beaches $189 R/T Cancun or Mexico Europe $169 Ashtech 617-354-2819 Call for program descriptions!

WANTED

Sublets, rooms, housing needed this summer Contact Theresa for UMAC at 586-8166 10 am-8pm

Wanted Jan 1st sublet for Spring semester Amherst/ Northampton area Call 546-4944

Wanted 2 male/ fm to share room Must be neat, non smoking, 5 min to campus on bus route $185/ mo not incl util 549-9387

YOU STINK

Let us clean your clothes Professional laundering service with pick up and delivery 89 cents/ lb 549-8727

Sports

ARAM COMERAN / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse team will head north to take on No. 1 Syracuse on Saturday. The Gorillas crushed Boston College 20-7 yesterday afternoon.

Gorillas dominate BC Eagles 20–7

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

WALTHAM - Thump.

Led by Mike Valente's one goal and eight assists, the University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse team trounced Boston College 20–7 at Bentley College yesterday.

The Eagles appeared to be in awe of the Gorillas as UMass contolled the flow of the game throughout.

"They just didn't look like they were into it. I think they were intimidated," said UMass Coach Ted Garber, who was pleased with his teams performance.

> "That's exactly what we wanted, just to take the momentum out of their hands, get them down early and crunch them."
> –UMass Head Coach Ted Garber

"That's exactly what we wanted, just to take the momentum out of their hands, get them down early and crunch them."

Less than a minute into the game, Wes Depp found Brendan Glass for his first of two early goals to give UMass a 1–0 lead. This was as close as it would get.

Led by three first half (four overall) goals by Jeremy Murphy, the Gorillas opened up a 10–goal lead before BC even got on the board.

Both teams scored two more goals as the Gorillas took a 12–2 halftime lead.

BC made an attempt at rallying early in the second half, as they outscored UMass in the third quarter 4–1.

The comeback bid was short lived as the Gorillas stormed back in the final period, out scoring the Eagles 7–1. Garber emptied his bench, and the UMass subs dominated the BC regulars. Freshman midfielder Jim Kennedy scored his first collegiate goal with 8:39 remaining.

The story of the game, though, was the amazing performance of Valente. He shredded the Eagles' defense, finding open men who converted for eight goals throughout the game. His only goal proved to be the game winner. Valente was modest about his performance.

"It felt good," said the junior attacker. "I was just passing them. They were putting them in the net."

Tom LoPresti was as sharp as he has been all year, collecting 15 saves, including some from in close.

"Things are definitely coming together both mentally and emotionally," said LoPresti. "It's a good time too, because it's coming down to the wire. We've got three of the biggest games of the season left."

"That's what we needed out of him," said Garber. "He's got to make some big, big saves for us down this homestretch. If he plays like that, we'll be in pretty good shape."

Several positive signs came out this victory. Murphy, who was out for several games found his scoring touch, and Jay Robbins who has been out since April 6th, returned for limited action, giving Garber a full squad for the remainder of the season.

The other plus that stood out for UMass was its killer instinct. In some previous games, the Gorillas have had lapses when they have been up by several goals. Against the Eagles, they were strong until the end.

Next up for the Gorillas is their toughest game of the season, as they head to Syracuse for a battle with the No. 1 Orangemen, Saturday at 1 p.m.

"If we can move the ball, like we did today, and we should get opporunities against Syracuse, it should be a hell of a game," said Garber.

Ferrari driving Minutemen

Senior ace sets the tone for pitching staff, team

By BILL BALFOUR
Collegian Staff

Yesterday afternoon was a dark day for the University of Massachusetts baseball team. Its game with Siena College was postponed after a lengthy rain delay. The season, on the other hand, has been filled with bright spots, especially where pitcher Peter Ferrari is concerned.

Ferrari has emerged as the ace of the Minuteman pitching staff. Ferrari is 5–1 with a 1.79 ERA and leads the team with five complete games. Ferrari's only loss came against Rollins College back in March, his first start of the season. The opposition is only hitting .244 against him and he has given up only nine earned runs in 45 and one third innings pitched.

"Everybody has a lot of confidence in him and he's got confidence in himself," Coach Mike Stone said. "That picks everybody up."

Ferrari is the type of pitcher that can provide UMass with a boost during a big series.

"When he starts the first game of a weekend series, it makes a difference," Stone said. "He sets the tone for the whole series."

Ferrari hasn't changed anything in his pitching motion since last season and Assistant Coach Tom Clark said the only difference is in his mental approach.

"He worked last year but he worked better this year," Clark said. "He worked his tail off and the results are there."

Last season Ferrari struggled with injuries but had a strong summer season playing in the Boston Park League. He continued with a strong fall that led to his success this season.

"I had a lot better command of all three of my pitches coming into this year," Ferrari said. "I used to try to throw it by people but I learned that my game is to keep the ball low and move it around."

Stone said Ferrari has learned to become a pitcher this season as opposed to being a thrower.

"He's really done a nice job," Stone said. "He's developed as a pitcher instead of a thrower. He's worked real hard too, harder than he ever has."

Ferrari's pitching this season has had an affect on the Minutemen both on and off the field. His consistent pitching has given confidence to the defense behind him and his leadership in the dugout is invaluable.

"He's really become a leader, not by just talking but by doing it," Clark said. "I think the other kids look up to him."

Nate Murphy, a freshman centerfielder for the Minutemen, said having Ferrari on the mound is calming for the defense.

"He definitely feel more confident," Murphy said. "He gets a lot of kids out."

The fact that Ferrari keeps his pitches low also aids the defense.

"He keeps the ball low," Murphy said. "Everything is right in front of us."

Peter Ferrari has turned in a strong season with a lot of hard work and is ready to help take UMass to the next level.

"He may not be the hardest thrower in our league but he's a pretty good pitcher," Clark said, which is all UMass will need as the Minutemen aim for the post season.

ARAM COMERAN / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts baseball team will travel on the road to face the University of Maine today at 4 p.m.

Hardwooders make picks

With the NBA playoffs set to begin tonight, we, as the resident experts on the pros, are about to give you our predictions, along with some special surprises. Here they come, starting in Hotlanta.

Miami (8) vs. Atlanta (1).

Anthony Guido: The Hawks finished up strong and now have more of a passing offense led by Danny Manning. Atlanta has the best defensive backcourt in the league, Miami has never even heard of defense. Atlanta sweeps Miami, too much height, power, and defense for the underachieving Heat to handle.

Arthur G. Stapleton Jr.: No, Gweeds, no sweep. The Hawks ruined their chances at a sweep when they traded away the Human Highlight Film. In the playoffs, you need a guy who can control a game and get that boring Omni crowd into a frenzy. Manning's passes that bounce out of bounds will just get them upset. Atlanta over Miami in four games.

Indiana (5) vs. Orlando (4).

AG: Oh, what a thriller this series will be. No, Larry Brown is not Coach of the Year and the Pacers will not be able to make playoff noise. Shaquille O'Neal will break toothpick Rik Smits in half. Shaq and company in four.

ACS: Shaq is going to take out the Admiral's 71 points on Toothpick Rik. The Magic get less respect than Rodney Dangerfield. Remember what happened in Back to School when Rodney got his chance in competition?

Orlando and the Triple Lindy in four games over Indiana.

New Jersey (7) vs. New York (2).

AG: This is the series with the most intensity as a local rivalry gets better. Pat Riley is a terrific coach, he can outfox almost anyone, except Chuck Daly.

Kenny Anderson will dominate this series; if Derrick Coleman wants it bad enough, the Nets can do it. Watch Daly match wits with Riley, the Knicks will make it a rough battle, but the Nets can play that style. New Jersey pulls the major upset in five brutal games.

ACS: Let's hope the Nets have a better series than our Isles did, Gweeds. Kenny A. is nasty, but the key to the series will be Johnny Newman and whether he can provide much–needed scoring from the bench.

This series may start off a little rocky for N.J. in MSG, but with Daly at the helm, they should settle down for the rest and win it in four. DC doesn't miss lay–ups like Charles Smith.

Cleveland (6) vs. Chicago (3).

AG: Cleveland could have paid back Chicago for all the torment the Bulls have given them in post–season action. Now, without center Brad Daugherty and others, the Cavs have no shot. The Bulls are looking for a remarkable four titles in a row. Scottie Pippen and Horace Grant (contract push) will be able to carry them over Cleveland. In a series of two teams on the

Turn to PLAYOFFS, page 16

Rangers' depth, defense key to playoff wins

Despite the 100–degree temperatures we are laboring through in Amherst, the NHL playoffs are still chugging along in arenas throughout North America.

As predicted, there were a few first round surprises. While this columnist had picked Dallas to top St. Louis, no one believed it would be a sweep. While the Stars had good performances from Mike Modano and goalie Darcy Wakaluk, the real factor in the Blues' demise was depth. Beyond Brett Hull and Brendan Shanahan, the Blues are desperate for top–notch players.

BETWEEN THE PIPES
Mike DiLorenzo on the NHL

Sure, Craig Janney is a nice player, but he can't be expected to butt heads with the top centers around the league and come out on top. While he possesses good hand skills and great vision, has there ever been a player who worked harder to avoid contact than Janney? The former Bruin/Blue/Canuck is strictly second–line material. Peter Stastny's not the answer, either.

* * * * *

Teams who feel they can contend often talk about needing the proverbial hot goaltender.

Hot has not been the word to describe the play of the men minding the net for this year's playoff teams.

Thus far, goalies have shut out the opposition a combined eight times in the postseason. Consider last year there were only seven shutouts for the entire playoffs.

* * * * *

Apologies to the Dallas Stars. Last week in this space, my colleague referred to them as Minnesota. Next thing you know he'll be calling New Jersey the Kansas City Scouts.

* * * * *

Boston and Montreal have waged their annual playoff war and the cry from the Hub is that Patrick Roy is stealing the series.

There is some validity to this, as Roy has been spectacular. However, this is made possible by Boston's lack of gifted scorers. The Bruin problem is too many Dave Reids, Brent Hughes' and Ted Donatos. These guys have a way of finding the crest on Roy's jersey or the blade of his skate rather than the spot between his pads or the space under his arm. Good goal scorers find the holes.

The Bruins outshoot the opponent every night, giving the illusion of being a superior team when that is not really the case.

Truth is, Boston has to play that style or they would get run out of the building every night. Other teams have scorers who can pick their spots and capitalize on Bruins mistakes. Boston, however, has no consistent scoring threats and consequently must work twice as hard for goals.

Roy is a great goaltender, the best in the business. But Bruin forwards are making him look good all too often. Make no mistake, if the New York Rangers put 60 shots on Roy, as Boston did in Game 5, they will score at least five times.

* * * * *

Another great goaltending battle is going on in the Toronto–Chicago series. Ed Belfour stood on his head in the last four games to keep Chicago from bowing in the first round for the second consecutive year.

And take nothing from Felix Potvin who has two 1–0 shutouts of the Blackhawks.

* * * * *

Many feel the biggest first–round surprise has been San Jose, which leads Detroit 3–games–to–2 after a 6–4 victory Tuesday.

Turn to PIPES, page 16

Sports Briefs

Vancouver awarded NBA team

NEW YORK (AP) — The NBA Board of Governors today granted a franchise to a Vancouver group headed by Arthur Griffiths, owner of the NHL's Vancouver Canucks.

The team will begin play in the 1995-1996 season.

Vancouver joins Toronto, which was approved by the NBA in November, as the second expansion team. The two Canadian franchises will increase the NBA to 29 teams.

"We're thrilled to welcome Vancouver into the NBA," commissioner David Stern said. "The Griffiths family has been a model of professional sports ownership for many years."

To gain admission to the league, Toronto and Vancouver had to get NBA betting removed from their provincial lotteries. The NBA said it wouldn't award franchises to those cities unless the betting was banned.

Vancouver will have to pay a $125 million fee to enter the league.

Griffiths said one of his first priorities will be finding an administrator to run the team.

"I'd like to think it's quite a long-term commitment, so I'll look for somebody who would be on the younger side ...," he told the Vancouver Sun. "There are some people with great credentials out there like that."

Griffiths said he has already talked with potential candidates who aren't currently working in the NBA.

"I'll interview a few of the people on the list that aren't in play right now," he said. "Then, as it comes down to the wire, check with some of the teams that have employees that we should spend some time with."

The team was expected to be called the Mounties, but Griffiths said he's now looking for another name because of objections by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and licensing problems.

Bono and the Bay

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Steve Bono, one of the NFL's top backup quarterbacks, says he hasn't ruled out a return to the San Francisco 49ers, but is looking closely at feelers from two other teams.

In Wednesday's San Francisco Chronicle, Bono says he's leaning towards leaving the 49ers, who have been talking about cutting his $1.55 million salary for the coming season to make room under the salary cap. The Niners want Bono, who has two years left on an unguaranteed contract, to take a cut to $750,000 to back up starter Steve Young.

If he departs, it would leave the 49ers with Elvis Grbac, who didn't play during his rookie season last year.

Turn to BRIEFS, page 17

Say What?

"If I play the way I am capable of playing then I think I'll do a great job for my team."

– NJ Nets point guard Kenny Anderson

Mount Holyoke College celebrates Jewish Awareness Week Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967
Friday
April 29, 1994
Volume CIII Issue 116

Weather
Rain today with possible t'storms. High 55-60.

World

Gaza signing set for May

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A historic accord to launch Palestinian self-rule on land held by Israel is due to be signed Wednesday if a few remaining sticky disputes can be settled.

For the Palestinians it will be the first step toward what many hope will be a state. For Israel it is a chance to end bloody conflict between two peoples who claim the same land.

"It's the end of a long voyage and the beginning of a new chapter in relations between the Palestinian people and ourselves," said Israel's foreign minister, Shimon Peres, long an advocate of conciliation toward the Arabs on all fronts.

The date was set by Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, who played a pivotal role in the breakthrough, even as Secretary of State Warren Christopher abandoned a passive U.S. stance to help Peres and PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat narrow their differences.

National

Government accounts for Russian spies

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — The government today provided the most complete accounting so far of high-level Russian military and intelligence officers whose spy work for the United States was revealed to Moscow by Aldrich H. Ames.

In a statement accompanying the federal indictment of Ames, the government listed code names of 11 compromised agents and said there were others it did not specify.

It also said Ames had revealed secrets about U.S. signals intelligence — those top-secret systems and activities which allow the government to listen in on foreign government and military conversations.

The code names of compromised agents were: Accord, Cowl, Fitness, Blizzard, Gentile, Million, Prologue, Weigh, Tickle, Pyrrhic and Motorboat. In some cases the agents were killed, the government said, but in some cases their lates remain uncertain.

Prosecutors said Ames had agreed to the statement listing the compromised agents.

"It is our understanding that people were killed as a result of his spying," U.S. Attorney Helen Fahey said. "Many were executed, imprisoned or just disappeared." She said the Ames case was "the most damaging spy case in the history of the country."

State/Regional

Welfare reform on the way in Mass., N.Y.

BOSTON (AP) — Massachusetts is trying to match computer records with all the New England states and New York to spot whether any welfare recipients are collecting checks in more than one state, officials said Thursday.

Joseph Gallant, the state welfare commissioner, said Massachusetts has reached an agreement with New York and is about to enter a similar pact with Connecticut.

Massachusetts also has made contact with the other New England states and has received positive responses, although no formal agreements have been worked out, said Robert Bliss, a Department of Welfare spokesman.

The goal is to weed out fraud by uncovering "double dippers."

But Gallant said he couldn't estimate how much of a problem exists.

"We are going to see if there is a problem," he said. "You have to start to dig into this to see how big it is." Gallant said Massachusetts started inquiring with other states last year to set up the system, but he said there were no incidents of fraud that triggered the program.

Richard Cauchi, of the Massachusetts Law Reform Institute, which advocates for welfare recipients, said the computer crackdown could be worthwhile if it turns up significant fraud.

ARAM COMERAN / COLLEGIAN

A group of women educated passersby on the problems of rape by staging an impromptu demonstration inside the Student Union Thursday.

Five women stand up, speak out against rape

By BARBARA A. CANNISTRARO
Collegian Staff

The sharp sound of five whistles brought the front lobby of the Student Union to a stand–still yesterday at approximately 12:30 p.m.

For a moment the rushing masses paused as five women stood up on chairs, blew into silver referee whistles and called attention to rape.

"One in three women will be raped in her lifetime!" shouted senior Johanna Rodrigues, quoting the 1985 Los Angeles Com-mission on Assaults Against Women, as each woman took turns citing statistics and retelling elements of true rape accounts.

After the whistle–blowing, the five–minute speak–out, organized by seniors Amanda Collings and Emily Stanford of the Not Ready for Bedtime Players, held the attention of approximately 50 people, mostly women.

Several men did remain throughout the duration of the event and their presence did not go unnoticed.

"This raises public awareness," said Erin Molito, a sophomore nursing major. "It was nice to see men stopping and listening."

According to Collings, the event was "important for everyone because people don't know how common rape is."

For men, Collings said, "it will help them to deal with [rape] when they are confronted with it — when it happens to girlfriend, a sister, a mother."

> "It's hard to do something like this and not have men feel like they are being attacked. We are just asking everyone to be a part of the fight against violence toward women."
> — UMass senior Johanna Rodrigues

"For women," she continued, "it helps them see that they are not alone."

"It's hard to do something like this and not have men feel like they are being attacked. We are just asking everyone to be a part of the fight against violence toward women," Rodrigues said.

According to participant Kathy Day, the event was a success because people did stop and listen, and the participants of the group lend "a face to rape."

Graduate student Grant Koilet saw value in the speak–out. "It was really pretty intense, and it got people's attention for a while," he said.

UMass bike thieves receive jail sentences

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

NORTHAMPTON — Two University of Massachusetts students pled guilty on Thursday in Northampton District Court after being caught in a bicycle theft operation in their dormitory room.

Adrian J. Erdman, 20, of Bedford, and Brian L. Galloway, 20, of Lexington, were charged with 10 felony counts. The counts included possession of burglary tools, larceny of property and illegal possession of alcohol.

Erdman and Bedford were also being charged for possession of two stolen tanks of nitrous oxide which were reported missing in October from The University Health Services. The two tanks were worth $3,235.

> ■ Police holding recovered bicycle parts. Complete list, page 2.

Judge Michael Ryan sentenced them to one year in the House of Corrections and 30 days direct. Both Erdman and Galloway must also complete 100 hours of community service, cooperate with the UMass Police Department to help locate bike owners and pay a restitution fee of $30.

Erdman and Galloway will also be on probation for a year and be under supervision for an additional year.

Assistant Northwestern District Attorney Melinda Soffer said Erdman and Galloway are not juveniles and should take the consequences they deserve. Soffer also argued that their thefts were premediated.

"This was a business. Their peers are now stuck without a mode of transportation because of their business," Soffer said.

The theft operation was discovered on Dec. 9, 1993, when Erdman and Galloway were stopped by two UMass police officers for driving a car with an expired registration sticker of a Ford Fairlane.

Police said when they pulled the vehicle over, two officers, Robert Wasklevicz and Stephen Westerling, saw three bicycle frames in the back seat. The police then obtained a search warrant to look in their rooms in Butterfield Residence Hall.

Police said they found over $8,000 worth of bicycle parts, as well as several bicycles, stolen tools, a hacksaw, and cable and bolt cuters.

Erdman originally withdrew his guilty plea because he did not want a guiit charge on his record. His attorney, James Couture of Northampton, said, "If he gets a guilty on his record, it will close the doors on him for the rest of his life."

Couture requested that Erdman serve one year at the House of Corrections, perform 100 hours of community service, work in cooperation with the UMass Police Department and volunteer work hours in the bicycle riding community.

Galloway's attorney, Sarah Schooley of Amherst, also originally requested to drop any guiit charges on their record.

"Without a conviction, he [Galloway] would have a number of career opportunities. Incarceration can't rehabilitate anybody. And I think service is more than enough," Schooley said.

Judge Ryan said the case is clearly a "criminal enterprise of organized crime." He stressed the charges made on Galloway and Erdman by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts were lenient.

After Ryan's decision, Galloway and Erdman said they did not want to take the case further and accepted the court's disposition.

Funding fight continues

Rosenberg and Story demand state restore funding

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Staff

The fight for more funding at the State House just keeps going... and going.

The budget for the second most expensive public school in the county was once again a topic of discussion in Boston yesterday, as the debate for more funding continued.

State Sen. Stan Rosenberg (D–Amherst) and state Rep. Ellen Story (D–Amherst) urged the Senate House Ways and Means Committee to support the University of Massachusetts' request for an additional $21.8 million for 1995 and increase the budget of each segment of the state public higher education system.

"The Committee's leadership in advancing the restoration of our public higher education system's capacity is urgently needed," said Rosenberg and Story.

Rosenberg and Story presented a letter to Senate Ways and Means chairman Thomas F. Birmingham and House Ways and Means chairman Thomas M. Finneran proposing an increase in the universities' budget and said it is "time to stabilize our public higher education system."

They also said the increase is vital in continuing to rebuild the budget, following cuts made during the peak of the state's fiscal crisis in the late 1980s. During fiscal year 1989, 39 percent of the state's funding to public education was cut.

According to the letter, the public higher education system and most local aid accounts supporting the public K–12 system, endured the most substantial cutbacks in state funding.

"These dollars will help rebuild programs, repair buildings and buy books, materials and equipment," Rosenberg and Story said. "These dollars will also help to begin to restore a reasonable balance between state appropriations and tuition and fees."

Rosenberg and Story also urged the committees to endorse the requests for an additional $12.1 million for the community college system and the Higher Education Coordinating Council's recommendation of $11.3 million for the state college system.

The legislators cited the significant increase in local and general aid to K–12 education funding, and said that "a similar commitment is needed for public higher education."

Rosenberg and Story could not be reached for comment by press time.

Leader praises democracy

Speaker assesses results of Nicaraguan revolution

By JUAN JOSE CHACON QUIROS
Collegian Staff

"It was 10 o'clock at night, we were losing [the elections], someone asked if it was possible to change the results ... It was. We thought about it and ... we did not fight a revolution to commit fraud, we wanted to bring change and democracy... what sense would it make to govern when the majority of the people doesn't want us to be in government."

Jaime Wheelock, former Minister of Agriculture and one of nine commanders of Nicaragua's Revolution, spoke last night at the University of Massachusetts as part of the Collegian sponsored Spring Lecture Series. The Latin American Studies Program and PAWSS were also sponsors of the event.

Wheelock gave a precise description of the role of the Sandinista government in creating change after the overthrow of Dictator Anastacio Somoza. He divided the Revolution in three periods. The first one was period of "de-facto advances," changes that came from below like the occupation of Somoza's land (25 percent of all land) by peasants.

In the second period "what people demanded was a legitimization of those actions," Wheelock said. This phase of institutionalization gave the country a liberal framework in a mixed economy regime.

The government tried to end politically the war against the U.S. in a third period. According to Wheelock, Nicaragua could not fight militarily any longer: "it was a period of concessions, of opening the country," he said.

As a result of this opening, elections were held in 1990. According to Wheelock, the Sandinista electoral defeat was a proof of the element of democracy they had brought about.

"The FSLN lost the elections but we won the war, the Nicaraguan people achieved peace," Wheelock said. He praised their current role by adding that "we have to get used to losing elections, to working in opposition."

Wheelock reminded the audience of the achievements of the revolution. "We ended the Somoza dictatorship ... we brought changes to the economic structures ... and we led a democratic process and later loss through that same process," Wheelock said. According to him the achievements are historical.

"We thought people how to read and write, how to become organized ... we transformed landless peasants into people with economic security," Wheelock said.

Regarding the present situation, Wheelock stressed the need to build consensus in Nicaragua as "the first responsibility, you have to govern for everybody."

He blamed the neo–liberal economic policies of international agencies for the country's 65 percent rate of unemployment since they fail to give credit to the agricultural engine of growth.

SILVIA ELIA / COLLEGIAN

Jaime Wheelock, former minister of agriculture in Nicaragua, spoke last night about revolution and democracy in Nicaragua. Wheelock was the first speaker in the Collegian Lecture Series which will continue this semester through next year.

UMass delegates return from national conference

By JUSTIN DOYLE
Collegian Staff

For the first year ever, the University of Massachusetts was represented at the National Conference on Undergraduate Research.

Eight UMass undergraduates attended the conference, which was held at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo, Mich., on April 14 to 16. For the first time UMass was represented at the conference, along with 44 other colleges and universities.

The conference is an annual event which was first held in 1987. it brings together over 1,200 undergraduates and 400 advisors and administrators to discuss undergraduate creative and scholarly work.

> The focus on undergraduate research is expanding and UMass is very much a part of it, said Dr. Linda Nolan, director of the Honors Program.

The focus on undergraduate research is expanding and UMass is very much a part of it, said Dr. Linda Nolan, director of the Honors Program.

In past years, such schools as Texas A&M, Michigan and Penn State were a formidable presence at the conference. UMass is now joining those ranks with the size and the quality of this year's contingent, said Nolan. Students who attended the conference represent a variety of disciplines including everything from business to the performing arts.

"Basically they are trying to get people from all the disciplines that comprise education at this conference," said Joel Swenson, a senior zoology major.

The students who represented UMass in Michigan were nominated by their departments and the trip was sponsored by their college deans and the Honors Program.

Amy Giantris, Matthew Daube, Christopher McClure, Matthew Saronson, Michael McClean, David Amsbary, Shawn K. St. Jean and Swenson made presentations of their research at the Conference.

"My presentation revolved around information about the disease Leishmaniasis, a tropical disease and fighting it with natural plants and herbs," Swenson said.

"There is a big area looking for research on natural pharmaceuticals, especially from plants in the tropical rain forests which are being depleted."

The conference was just part of a banner year in which Honor students have represented UMass in several prestigious events.

In November, McClure and Swenson gave a poster presentation at the regional meeting of the American Society of Microbiology.

Stacy Wagner, a psychology major, spoke in February at the national meeting of the Society for Research on Adolescence.

Heather Golm and Rachel Whitmer, also psychology majors, attended the Eastern Psychological Association annual conference on April 14.

For Your Information

This are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian c/o the News Editor.

Friday, April 29

Concert — "In a Sentimental Mood: A Night of Jazz/Blues," featuring Montenia, will be held from 8 p.m. to midnight in the Grad Lounge. Graduate students and faculty welcome; cash bar and hors d'oeuvres. Sponsored by the Office of Minority Graduate Student Recruitment.

Film — Spirit of Cape Verde will be presented by Claire Andrade-Watkins at 6:45 p.m., Campus Center Room 174-6. Part of Cape Verdean Awareness Week.

Service — A student-led creative musical Shabbat service will be held at 7 p.m. at Hillel House. A regular service will also be held.

Tag B'omer — Lag B'omer will be celebrated with a barbecue at noon at Chabad House, 30 N. Hadley Rd., Amherst. Cost is $4 adults, $2 children.

Registration — Pre-registration ends today for CPR training to be held Sunday. Bring $5 fee to the table on the Campus Center Concourse between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Performance — Peter Lobdell's Immunity will be performed at 8 p.m. at Fayerweather Studio Theater, Amherst College. No admission charge, reservations suggested; call 542–2277 weekday afternoons.

Saturday, April 30

Broadcast — Valley Access Network will show the compiled works of Five College film/video students at 8 p.m. on UVC Ch. 19.

Lecture — Alec Baldwin and Michael Kennedy will speak on youth and politics and Sen. Edward Kennedy's campaign at 5:30 p.m. in Greenough Residence Hall basement. Sponsored by University Democrats.

Vigil — The 7th Annual Vigil for Palestinian Human Rights and Middle East Peace will be held from noon to 1 p.m., Amherst Common.

Fair — The 16th Annual International Fair will be held from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Student Union Ballroom, Commonwealth Room and Cape Cod Lounge. Admission is free; sponsored by the International Students Association.

Volunteer — The 2nd Annual into Amherst Community Service Day will be held all day. Volunteers can sign up by calling 545–4368 or 256–4057. Sponsored by ViVA.

Conference — The Cape Verdean Awareness Day Conference will be held from 11 a.m. to 6:15 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium, followed by dinner and a dance from 6:30 p.m. until 2 a.m. in the Blue Wall. Admission to dinner and dance is $3 students, $6 general public.

Dance — "Global Jam," featuring hip hop, techno and reggae, will be held from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Student Union Ballroom. Cash bar. Tickets are $2 in advance, $3 at the door. Sponsored by International Students Association, SACEF and Arts Council.

Volunteer — The 2nd Annual Kids Karnival to benefit local homeless and underprivileged children will be held today. To volunteer, call VIBES at 545–5590.

Conference — Conference on Economic Conversion will be held by the American Friends Service Committee. Call 584–8975 for details.

Observation — Free public observing will begin at 9 p.m. in clear at Amherst College Wilder Observatory.

Performance — Peter Lobdell's Immunity will be performed at 8 p.m. at Fayerweather Studio Theater, Amherst College. No admission charge but reservations suggested; call 542–2277 weekday afternoons.

Owners of stolen bikes should contact police

The following bikes and bicycle parts are currently being stored at the University of Massachusetts Police Department. If you believe that any of these bikes are your property, contact officer Robert J. Waskiewicz at the police department.

The bikes are: two Trek mountain bikes, three Cannondale mountain bikes, a Univega mountain bike, one Kuwohara bike, three Bridgestone mountain bikes, one Hardrock mountain bike, one Mongoose mountain bike and one Cannondale mountain bike frame.

The bicycle parts are: Three Shimano gear levers, two Dia–compe brake handles and one set of Scott handlebars with cables.

You can contact Officer Waskiewicz at 545–2121.

— GERI SAHN

Correction

In yesterday's page one story, "SGA dismisses plan to support firings," Lynn Robitaille and Amy Lloyd were identified as representatives of the Student Center for Educational Research and Advocacy. The two were speaking as undergraduate senators.

The Collegian regrets the error.

DU members band together for Jimmy Fund

By KRISTEN ROUNTREE
Collegian Correspondent

Incoming traffic may have been heavy last weekend at the University, and Haigis Hoopla wasn't the only reason.

For the eighth consecutive year, Delta Upsilon Fraternity held their annual Chariot Pull last Friday and Saturday to benefit the Jimmy Fund. A welcoming party, open to the public and featuring the band Synaesthesia, was held on their front lawn in conjunction with the fundraiser, said DU brother Jim Elliot.

The Chariot Pull required that two brothers at a time pull a chariot for 110 miles, the distance from Boston to Amherst along Route 9. The chariot left the DU chapter at Massachusetts Institute of Technology Friday morning, said Elliot, and arrived at the midway point in Spencer later that evening.

The chariot continued its trip from Spencer Saturday morning, arriving at UMass at 2:30 in the afternoon. WHMP, who helped sponsor the event, announced at Haigis Hoopla the fraternity's arrival.

Two vans, donated by AMI Leasing in Medford, rode along with the chariot and carried the rest of the brothers. The chariot ran continuously, said Elliot, pulling over only when traffic backed up too heavily.

At each traffic light, the brothers in the vans would jump out with Jimmy Fund cans and collect donations from other motorists stopped at the light.

Speed of the chariot averaged 5–8 miles per hour. "It was a bit tiring," admitted Elliot, adding that each brother ran 10 to 15 miles.

Along with the Chariot Pull, the fraternity held a raffle, giving out cash prizes of $250, $175, $100, and $75. The remainder of the proceeds were donated to the Jimmy Fund.

With the Chariot Pull and the raffle, a total of $4,400 was given to the Jimmy Fund, said Elliot. A total of $5,200 was raised, but state law requires that the fraternity pay taxes earned from the raffle.

Originally, the fundraiser began as a "keg roll," with an empty keg rolled "like a wheel" for the 100 miles, according to Elliot. Due to the Jimmy Fund's discomfort with the use of a keg, the fraternity started using the chariot in 1987.

With almost $5,000 to donate, the fraternity calls the Chariot Pull "a definite success," and they plan to continue holding it in the future.

"We'll have it again next year, third weekend in April," said Elliot.

'Daughter Day' a huge hit in workplaces of America

A spirited army of girls invaded the U.S. workplace Thursday as the second annual "Take Our Daughters to Work" day proved even more popular than the first, despite scattered objections to its girls-only focus.

The event, involving thousands more employers than last year's hastily organized debut, was designed to boost girls' self-esteem and expand their career horizons.

"These girls are so different when they know we're focusing on their dreams when they're not competing (with boys) for attention," said Marie Wilson, president of the sponsoring Ms. Foundation.

Girls visited workplaces from the White House, where more than 200 daughters gathered for lunch, to a Cincinnati house where a stay-at-home mom prevailed over a school principal who said homemaking wasn't a job.

At BP America's headquarters in Cleveland, girls mixed chemicals to make slime. At the Aurora Fire Department near Denver, girls wrestled with fire hoses. At the New York law firm of Debevoise & Plimpton, girls sat through a seminar called "Thinking Like a Lawyer."

A few employers, including the Chrysler Corp. and the city of Bellevue, Wash., refused to participate, saying the program wasn't fair to boys.

"We believe it would be fairer to sponsor events that would welcome all children to explore career options," Chrysler spokeswoman Karen Stewart said.

Other employers did just that, inviting boys and girls.

— ASSOCIATED PRESS

We're glad you're okay, Boo-boo.

This photo was scanned at 150dpi on a Microtek ScanMaker 600ZS, then imported into Quark XPress where type and boxes were added. The image was printed as a halftone at 77lpi on a QMS 860 Hammerhead 600dpi plain-paper imagesetter. Using an Olfa model 180 cutter with blade snapper and Nensco Supertack 807 wax, the finished product was added to the camera-ready pages and delivered to the publisher. If you read this whole thing — or even part of it — and are interested, why not fill out an application for a fall position in day or night graphics at the Collegian? We offer great experience, competitive pay and a fun atmosphere. Applications are available in room 103 of the Campus Center. E/O/E.

Check Out Strawberries Annual Midnight Madness Event! music mania
Friday April 29th. One Day Only! Everything In The Store On Sale!

Priority New Releases

Flycatcher ovulation
Dieselmeat happily your choice
11.89 CD 7.99 Cass each
Arson Garden the belle stomp
Sons Of Elvis glodean

Sale Ends 4/29
Strawberries
MUSIC AND VIDEO STORES

HADLEY, Russel St. & Route 9	(413)256-3160
HOLYOKE, 2275 Northampton St	(413)536-2222
PITTSFIELD, 241 North St.	(413)499-0357
SPRINGFIELD, 1550 Boston Post Rd.	(413)543-1517
W. SPRINGFIELD, Memorial Ave.	(413)737-4128
ENFIELD, CT.,Rte. 190 Hazard Ave.	(203)741-3030

Central Area Government Proudly Presents
Chucklehead
April 30, 1994
12:00-2:00 P.M.
On The Van Meter Basketball Courts
In Central Residential Area
Absolutely Free

UMass Summer Session 1994

- Missed a course? Make it up!
- Advance in next semester's work
- Fulfill a requirement
- Learn something new

Over 200 credit courses offered.

Two, six-week sessions:
First session: June 7-July 15
Second session: July 19-August 25

Register Now!

Catalogs available all over campus or at the Division of Continuing Education, 6th floor Goodell Building, 545-2414.

A quality education at affordable prices.

Call For Our Special Offer
BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
Brandywine offers Country Living with convenience
- On Umass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
- Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open Daily 10-4
549-0600

Setting up shop

STEVEN PISCIOTTA/COLLEGIAN

As part of a project in conjunction with Union Video Center and The Center For Teaching, a video camera was set up yesterday and today outside by the campus pond from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. in order to film different perspectives on teaching and learning. The result will be a 15 to 20 minute video produced by for the University. Don't miss out on your chance to speak out. Stop by today! And tell Joe the ducks sent you.

Panel talks about solidarity

By ADA MICHELLE LUGO
Collegian Correspondent

Reminiscing about the past solidarity and alliance between minority communities, University staff and students held a panel discussion about the issue of fragmentation between people of color on campus.

"People of color all have a similar history. We may have done it differently but with a similar purpose," said Sidonio Ferreira, an academic advisor for the Collegiate Committee for Education of Black and Other Minority Students.

The panel, composed of two graduate students and two undergrads, met last night and agreed that ALANA communities were closer and more supportive of each other during the '80s. After the Southwest riots in 1986, there was an extensive communication network between the minority group at the University of Massachusetts.

They recalled how more than 1,500 Blacks, Latinos, Asians, and other students of color, as well as White allies, met in Mahar Auditorium within three hours of the riots. They doubt that the same results can be accomplished today.

According to the panel, ALANA communities have slowly become more isolated from each other because they do not understand their past and the struggles overcome to obtain academic and cultural programs, resources, minority faculty and increased minority enrollment.

Ferreira attributed this attitude to the "divide and conquer" mentality of the Reagan years which he said emphasized getting a job as the college student's most important goal. Because of this mentality, students are reluctant to get involved in non-academic socio-political causes.

Students of color do not understand what it took for former students of color to obtain the resources the University currently has available for them, he said.

"People have spent hours sacrificing academically and time-wise," said Justin Harris, president of the National Society of Black Engineers.

"Sacrifices have been made to get what they [students of color] have, it did just not happened," said Harris, who is also president of Phi Beta Sigma.

Not all ALANA students are aware of these resources, the panel members concluded. There are cultural centers, computer labs designated for use of minorities and academic advising programs among other resources from which they can benefit, Harris said.

Israel Awareness Week on tap

By JACOB W. MICHAELS
Collegian Staff

Two Mount Holyoke College students organized Israel Awareness Week on the Mount Holyoke campus in order to "do a week of education and awareness at Mount Holyoke College for Israel."

Lynne Wolfson, a sophomore who is trying to create a Judaic Studies major, said she and Lindsay Rosenberg, a politics and English double major, were supported in their endeavour by the Jewish Students Union and the United Jewish Appeal, as well as Hillel. The week began last Monday, April 23, and it ends on Sunday, May 1.

According to Wolfson, Mt Holyoke College is "three to four percent Jewish, about 100 people out of 1,800." She also said, however, that they are "very active and very vocal, with a higher percent of turnout than many other groups on campus."

The main feature, said Wolfson, is a table, sign, flag and videos running constantly from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Blanchard Campus Center. Wolfson said that at the table there are "tons of brochures and books and the response has been tremendous."

Wolfson said she was doing it because of "an extreme love for Israel." She said she wanted to "educate the public about the side of israel the media never shows. It's a beautiful, wonderful Democratic country." Wolfson has spent two and a half years in Israel in high school, college, and on a kibbutz. Kibbutzim (plural of Kibbutz) are farming communes that are common in Israel. She said it is "not political or controversial, just Israel the way we see it."

Rosenberg said she put on the week to let people know "Israel is a place with a people. It is actually quite beautiful."

On Wednesday night, April 27, there was an Israeli students night at the Mt Holyoke College Hillel kitchen, followed by folk dancing later.

On Friday night, April 29, Einot Wils, an israeli woman, will be speaking in Eliot House on Mt. Holyoke College. A 23–year old Harvard student, she will be speaking about her experiences in Israel's intelligence service and in America.

Scientists find internal clock gene within laboratory mice

WASHINGTON (AP) — A gene for the internal clock that sends the body wake-up alarms in the morning and brings on slumber at night has been located in laboratory mice, a finding that may prompt a similar discovery in humans.

Joseph Takahashi of Northwestern University, senior author of a report to be published Friday in the journal Science, said the research could lead to drugs that will overcome jet lag, keep night workers from falling asleep on the job and solve narcolepsy, one of the most common sleep disorders.

The biological clock, located in the brain, controls the daily, or circadian, rhythms of life. It somehow triggers changes that invigorate or slow down the body on a 24-hour cycle. It is the circadian rhythm that is disrupted by rapid flight across time zones, causing jet lag.

Circadian rhythms have long fascinated and confounded scientists, prompting research into sleep and into how humans adapt to daylight and darkness. But the work by Takahashi and his group is the first to locate in a mammal the gene that plays a key role in the cycle.

Takahashi said researchers in his lab located the gene by finding and then breeding mice that lacked the gene.

"We isolated the mutation which affects the circadian clock in the mouse," he said. "With this mutation, the mouse loses (its) circadian rhythm completely."

ATTENTION UNIVERSITY OF MASS EMPLOYEES:

Take a closer look at CHP.

We think you'll like what you see.

The CHP Amherst Health Center is hosting an open house for our current members, and anyone who is considering joining CHP. Come and meet the staff and tour the facility. Light refreshments will be served.
For information and appointments call 413/549-1212.

May 5.....5:30-7:30 p.m.

CHP Amherst Health Center
29 Cottage Street
Amherst, MA

Andrew Hall, M.D.
Andrew Larkin, M.D.
Brian Scanlan, M.D.
Amy Metzger, C.N.M., M.S.N.
Pamela Drexler-Lopez, C.N.M., B.A.
Lisa Kuczarski, R.D.

Community Health Plan
You and CHP, a healthy partnership

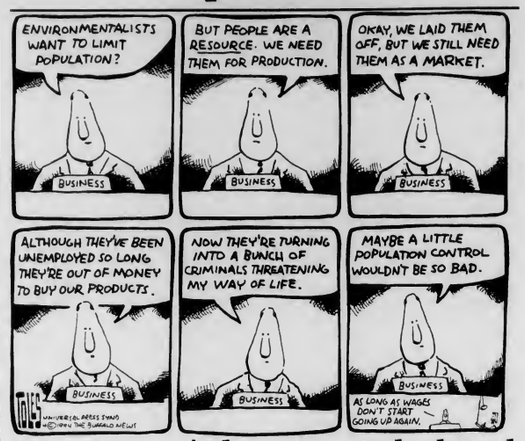
100% BEEF
2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
Great Burgs! Great Deal!
QUARTER POUNDERS® OPEN YEAR ROUND
585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY MA

SUMMER JOBS AVAILABLE
Evening security workers wanted for Bright Moments Festival on July 14, 21, 28 for approximately 5-6 hours/shift. Limited number of additional hours available. UMass students returning in Fall only. Fine Arts Center is an AA/EO employer. Description and application available at 2 Curry Hicks.
DEADLINE MAY 6

From $199 Each Way LONDON
Eurail Passes Issued on the Spot!
All other Rail Passes Also Available
Hong Kong $469
Paris $219
Brussels $252
* Departure from New York
Council Travel
Fares are 1/2 round trips Departure from Boston unless otherwise indicated. Taxes and surcharges not included. Fares subject to change. Student or Faculty I.D. may be required.
79 S. Pleasant Street, 2nd Floor Amherst, MA 01002
413-256-1261

HELGATS
JOIN THE PACK RIDE WITH DEATH
THE COLLEGIAN

College Pro Painters
Get a tan painting this summer
Positions available all across New England Great Pay!
Call 1-800-346-4649



THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

MICHAEL MORRISSEY Editor-in-Chief
Managing Editor DARIENNE HOSLEY
Arts & Living Editor EMILY A. MARINO
Black Affairs Editor RODNEY POWELL
Developing Nations Editor JUAN J. CHACON QUIROS
Editorial/Opinion Editor MIKE CARVALHO
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor STEPHEN C. CAMPBELL
Jewish Affairs Editor JACOB W. MICHAELS
Multicultural Affairs Editor EVELYN A. DE JESUS
News Editor TRACY MONAHAN
Photography Editor NATHAN MARTIN
Sports Editor ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Women's Issues Editor VANESSA AMIN
MICHAEL MCRAE Business Manager
LISA JEZOWSKI Production Manager
DANIELLE YANNO Advertising Manager
STEPHANIE SHORE Finance Manager
ANDREW DAVIDSON Night Graphics Manager
JIM BRUNEAU, GAITLIN OLSON Day Graphics Managers
JEREMY DAGGETT Circulation Manager
ERIC ABENAIM Subscriptions Manager
MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI Senior Bookkeeper
BLAKE PHILLIPS Graphics Professional
MARTY PAPPAS Classified Advertising
TURLEY PUBLICATIONS Printing Services

113 CAMPUS CENTER BASEMENT · UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS · AMHERST, MA 01003 · (413) 545-3500 · FAX (413) 545-1992

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday–Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. Letters to the editor are encouraged and will be printed as space available. Such submissions must be typed, kept to a maximum of 400 words, and should include the writer's name, address, year and major as well as a phone number for verification purposes. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, length and libel. Persons wishing to submit guest columns should contact the Editorial/Opinion editor in advance. The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian. Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Editorial Board.

Opinion

Finding the American dream

Growing up poor in 1960s China with four brothers and sisters, Joe often dreamed about going to college and living a simple life with simple pleasures. He worked hard in school hoping to become an engineer, but schools in China were extremely competitive and not everyone could succeed. But his friends saw his talents when he built his first radio out of spare parts when he was only 10 years old.

During his high school years, with Joe's potential running high, China's cultural revolution began. The government suddenly began telling each citizen what to do with their lives. Joe was ordered to drop out of school and take up farming for the rest of his life. Joe's hopes and dreams were crushed. He farmed for about two years and realized that he had nothing worth striving for.

David Chan

There was only one solution. Joe and his two friends, one boy and one girl, planned to escape from China and go to Hong Kong where there was freedom. They couldn't tell anybody, not even their families. If Joe had told his father, he would have gotten a good beating.

The journey to China's border was hard and dangerous. They had to quietly travel at night through forests (with no flashlights, of course), hoping that guards or policemen wouldn't see or hear them. Along the way, the girl got sick and the boy got lost, and they weren't even half way through the journey Joe had to go it alone.

After three straight days of walking with no food, Joe had reached China's shoreline. Quietly and cunningly, he had to creep to the shore without the border guards seeing him. When the low tide came, he swam for about three miles until he saw the lights of an island — Hong Kong.

Now that Joe was in Hong Kong, he had to find a job and a place to stay. Joe had never been away from home before. He had to depend on his courage and self-reliance because he was a stranger at the mercy of anybody he met. Anyone could have turned him in. There was also no turning back or he would have been imprisoned for life.

Joe rented a tiny, dirty room in an old lady's broken down apartment. He also found an under-the-table job at a stationery factory. Joe forced himself to eat less and live poorly so that he could save up as much money as he could.

Curious about what happened to his two friends, he wrote back to China. He found out that the two had secretly returned back to their homes that night. They'd attempted another escape a few days after but unfortunately, the girl drowned along the way and the boy was caught and put in a labor camp.

Joe also wrote back to his family. He hadn't talked to them for almost a year. During Joe's absence, government officials had gone to Joe's house to look for him. But his family had no idea where he was. Joe's mother actually went to a fortune teller to ask where he was. The fortune teller predicted that Joe was probably dead. She sobbed until she received Joe's letter.

In the old apartment that Joe was living in, the old lady had a daughter about Joe's age. He was interested in her but she wasn't interested in him. She knew that he was from China. In Hong Kong, people from China have a bad reputation. They are seen as uneducated, greedy, heartless people who would take advantage of you if given the chance.

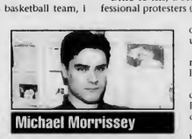
But Joe was able to spend some time with this girl and she soon saw that Joe was different. She saw that he worked hard, took action towards his goals and asked no favors. Joe was a man. He wasn't the typical refugee from China.

A year later, the two married and had a baby boy. Joe loved his son and he suddenly had new dreams. Joe wanted to live in the United States. He wanted that simple, American life. But, most importantly, he wanted the best for his new family.

Joe quickly took up night classes to learn English. It was hard because of his lack of education, but his desire to learn kept him going. At the classes, he met a friend who also planned to move to America. This friend had a relative in the U.S., so he went first. When he got there, he promised he would help Joe follow him there.

When Joe's family received their immigration papers, the baby was nine months old. Again, Joe was a stranger in a strange land. But this time, he had a family to support.

With the help of his friend, Joe was able to find an apartment and a job in Boston. He worked at a Chinese restaurant. With his willingness to improve his English, he made conversation with people and learned from his mistakes.



After living in various apartments in Boston for four years, Joe bought a house in the suburb of Quincy. He had worked extremely hard again to save up money for this dream (it was only 10 years before that he'd been ordered to be a farmer for the Chinese government!). While in Quincy, Joe and some friends decided to open their own restaurant together.

Through hard work again, Joe saved enough money to own a share of the restaurant. Joe works as the bartender and the host in his restaurant because of his poor English. His friendly personality helped him make many friends through the bar.

Now Joe is living his dream of the simple, satisfying life. If you see him, you'd probably call him a "Joe–average– guy." But what he's accomplished is quite an achievement compared to the life that he could've lived.

David Chan is a Collegian columnist.

Morrissey's leaving it behind

Michael Morrissey

To all those who have the perseverance to read this column through to its completion, I bequeath a year of A. J. Stewart's sarcastic clips.

To all those who write for or are writing for the Collegian editorial page next year, I bequeath three years of hate mail from the oh-so–intelligent and righteous five–college community.

To John Calipari and the UMass basketball team, I bequeath my 1994 NCAA Tournament bracket, which had them advancing against Duke in the finals. I bequeath a first– and second–round bye in next year's tournament as well.

To Alec Baldwin, the new member of the Kennedy clan (an club), I bequeath Thomas C. Reeves "A Question of Character," where Mr. Baldwin can read about JFK's rampant use of amphetamines, his tales of marital infidelity and his general lack of moral fiber. And you thought Ted was a weasel!

To Ted Kennedy, I bequeath the help wanted section of The Boston Herald. Maybe you'll be looking for a job like me come November. If not, maybe the Herald will burn some common sense into your alcohol-soaked skull.

To President Michael Hooker, I bequeath my right ear, although he can probably already hear the faculties' screams from Amherst.

To Chancellor David Scott, I bequeath my backbone. I think you need it more than I do.

To Professor Walter Denny, I bequeath a Morrissey Purple Heart Award for your unrelenting quest to improve the horrendous conditions at this University.

To Professor Vincent Bevilacqua, I bequeath my Porsche. I know you can always use another.

To Professor Albey Reiner, I'd bequeath a cure for cancer and an antibody for AIDS if I had them. I know you'd be perfectly happy to teach the course with these new twists.

To Professor Karen List, I bequeath a date with Attorney Floyd Abrams.

To Professor Howard Ziff, I bequeath my "Bush–Quayle '92" sign for your own disposal. I don't need it anymore.

To Joel Stanley, I bequeath a refrigerator box.

To Martin Jones, I bequeath a stand–in role for Chris Rock on Saturday Night Live. And my Minuteman tee–shirt.

Ditto to Iss. Doctress Neutopia and the other professional protesters (not the Chris Rock role).

To Al Lizana, I bequeath a copy of the Collegian constitution. Read up, my friend.

To Mirtan Raphaely, I bequeath my mini–recorder so that you may listen to your future speeches.

To Matt Malone, I bequeath my can of "No More Grudge" spray. Four years is a little long to carry a chip on your shoulder, isn't it?

To the Board of Governors, I bequeath my magic lamp, so that you can be reincarnated after your impending death. Remember, two more wishes.

To Laurel Mayhew and the many others who anonymously called and wrote me over the years, I bequeath my sincere thanks. It was the support from my fans that kept my going when times were tough.

To Sean P. Hayden, I bequeath a year's supply of Buffalo wings. Sorry, I already ate them.

To Arthur Stapleton Jr., I bequeath my smiley face pin to help you keep that positive outlook. And I'm stealing all of your Billy Joel, Chicago and Phil Collins discs.

To all of my female friends, I bequeath an apology because of my unwillingness to name you by name. Also, my "How to be a Male Chauvinist" book.

To Bryce and Greg, I bequeath Nicoderm.

To Gleeson, I bequeath my magnifying glass to read the fine print of your fine comic. Also, I bequeath my pot plant.

To Justin Doyle, crack reporter for the Collegian, I bequeath an example to follow. I didn't say it was a good one. Also, I bequeath Boo–Boo.

Michael Morrissey is a Collegian columnist.

Deja vu at the Student Union

Are people really protesting the Minuteman again? Get over it. Rallies, protests, hunger strikes, strap yourself to Mullins Center in protest, it's not going to work. We are the University of Massachusetts Minutemen, and that's not going to change.

Recycling is a major theme in the Pioneer Valley, so POWER has decided to recycle lame protest ideas. With all the issues out there to take a stand on, you pick a mascot?

At every protest there is some yahoo that lowers the credibility of the movement even more. "Doctress Neutopia" Libby Hubbard took the honors this time.

"We need to get a new library that doesn't look like a dick," she said at the rally.

Did I hear that right?

I'm pretty sure that when the library was built and designed it wasn't intended to be a phallic symbol. Hey, wait a second... Isn't this the same library you want renamed after W.E.B. Du Bois? Is there a connection implied here? I hope not.

This University is strapped for cash, and you people want a new library because of a vague resemblance to a penis? Next time, spend more time studying inside the library instead of analyzing the outside of it.

Matthew Vautour

This University is strapped for cash, and you people want a new library because of a vague resemblance to a penis? Reality check please. Next time, spend more time studying inside the library instead of analyzing the outside of it.

Is their a major in protest studies? If not, these people need less free time to spend creating noise pollution around the Student Union.

Take a nickel and head to K–Mart. I heard clues were on sale. Get one.

• • • • •

A friend of mine explained our new Chancellor: "If you hire dumb people, they are going to do dumb things."

Just when you thought anybody would be better than Dick O'Brien...

• • • • •

How does the SGA expect people to take them seriously? On critical issues, they can't even get enough members to show up to make quorum so they can even take a vote.

If you're going to gain respect, then you have to show up.

• • • • •

Is it true that the marching band is headlining Spring Concert? I heard a rumor...

• • • • •

Why can't people on the 10–meal plan eat on weekends? Beer and pretzels might be good at night, but some people like other things for breakfast.

And shouldn't guest meals be proportionate to your meal plan? Chances are if someone is on the 19–meal plan that they eat three meals on most days. If they have a guest, they can only bring them to two.

Guest meals should just be taken from the total for the week. We paid for them, we should be able to use the meals any way we want. If we want to go to the DC only once in the week and bring 19 friends, so be it.

But the DC does make sure we get 100 percent of our yearly allowance of scrod.

• • • • •

Did I really see Spin Doctors advertised as a "super group?" Not quite.

There is a UMass band operating out of Sylvan without a drummer that is more of a super group than that wanna–be grunge bunch.

Matthew Vautour is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Letters to the Editor

Minuteman ralliers thanked for nothing

To the editor:

I would like to congratulate, with all my heart and soul, the anti–Minuteman ralliers for their steadfastly dedicated attempt to achieve nothing.

People in this country are slowly dying for want of food and shelter. Women, especially in inner cities, are being raped, beaten and tortured at an alarming rate. Education and literacy are an intangible luxury for a large, voiceless sector of our society. People are dying of AIDS and no one will help them.

You couldn't have picked a better time to be ridiculous.

Let's face it. As university students, we lead some of the most pampered lifestyles available to human beings not related to Aaron Spelling.

We have it made. We are given the opportunity to learn, to achieve our goals and perhaps to make a difference.

At this point in our lives, our aspirations, our energies and our egos are at their absolute pinnacle. We have a responsibility to use this energy to better our society.

Unfortunately, changing the face of a school's logo is not going to help those who are dying and suffering. It is not going to put food in the mouth of a starving child and it will not guarantee our children a chance at an education.

Think about it. Not only are your energies misplaced, but your total lack of focus makes those individuals who are actually fighting for worthwhile causes look stupid.

Close scrutiny of the campus architecture for brick penises in an attempt to prove patriarchy is ridiculous in any context.

By nitpicking and making crude comments, you make yourselves and your cause laughable, thereby diminishing the causes of intelligent feminists and alienating men and women who may have listened.

So pat yourselves on the back for me. You have managed not only to focus your efforts on a totally meaningless cause, but you have also served to place a stigma of idiocy and intellectual "me"–ism on legitimate social concerns on this campus.

A thousand thank–yous.

Kristen E. Coughlin
English sophomore

Amherst connection in Key West, Fla.

To the editor:

Hopefully you can help me by printing this letter.

I winter in Key West, and on the night of March 20th, I took a spill on my bike. I hit a large cement flower pot and received head injuries.

The first person to help me was a young lady and her gentleman friend. I remember her calling for Rescue 911 and I remember her getting me a drink and wiping the blood from my head. She stayed with me until the medics arrived.

I did ask if she was a student. Imagine my surprise when she said she was a student of U of M in Amherst, Mass.

Here I was, 2,000 miles from my house in Amherst, and one of your students came to my rescue.

I want to find her — when the medics arrived I asked her what her name was. She said, "I'll find you, I'll be here a week," and she and the young man rode off on their bikes.

She did tell me she was from New York, but I don't know her name.

I am now home, still recovering, and I would sure like to see and thank this young lady. Can you help?

Many thanks.

P.S. The world is still full of wonderful young people!

Pearly Keyes Jr.
Amherst

We have a right to decide for ourselves

To the editor:

I have just finished reading the account in today's Springfield Union-News in regards to the anti–abortion pamphlet which was distributed in the Collegian.

As a UMass alum (Class of 1992), I wish to support your stand that "the newspaper is a voice for all sides," not just for any one group.

As a woman and an American, I have the right to decide what I want to read. The group POWER has a right to voice their opinion, but they should not be allowed to control or limit what is published in the paper.

Cheryl Popp, M.Ed.
Class of 1992

Earth Day celebrated with grass–roots support

By BEN GEMAN
Collegian Staff

Environmental preservation was advocated and celebrated on the Amherst common last Saturday during an Earth Day event featuring speakers, bands, raffles and games.

Bill Richardson, director of the Amherst chapter of the grass roots environmental organization Greenpeace, spoke to the audience about environmental problems associated with nuclear power.

"The only truly effective way of solving the radioactive waste problem that faces our state and our nation is to stop it at the source," said Richardson, who went on to advocate the use of alternative energy sources such as solar power, wind power and increased conservation efforts.

Ellen Story, state representative from the Amherst–Pelham district, also addressed the crowd at the event.

"It was a beautiful day," Story said yesterday. "People were feeling hopeful that we're at least starting to go in the right direction."

Other events included face painting and a mock–voting booth in which people cast their ballot for the most wastefully and inefficiently packaged product they could think of.

Bicycle World Too, a bicycle store in downtown Amherst, donated a mountain bike which was raffled off to fund the placement of signs and maintenance of trails on conservation land in Amherst.

At the raffle booth, people were informed of responsible "low impact" mountain biking habits, such as preventing soil erosion by avoiding trails when they are wet.

The bands Cameron's Way, Sneaky Project, Electric Noodle Factory, Sons of the Corporate Dog and Meristem played throughout the day.

The event was organized by the University of Massachusetts and Amherst College chapters of the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group.

Latina author engages in fundraiser

By SONIA PAZ
Collegian Staff

A celebrated Latina author visited Smith College Wednesday night to read from her collected works.

Margaret Randall, author of Sandino's Daughters, Gathering Rage, and Dancing With the Dog, spoke to a crowded room in the Neilson Library. The event took place to celebrate the release of Randall's new book, Sandino's Daughters Revisited.

Sandino's Daughters Revisited is actually a sequel to a previous book that Randall wrote in 1981, entitled Sandino's Daughters. The first book is a collection of interviews with Sandinista women in Nicaragua.

The second book was a continuation of these interviews a decade later. The interviews captured the lives of these women after 10 years of the Sandinista government and another two years of a conservative government.

Apart from her latest book, Randall read much of her poetry from her books Dancing With the Doe and This is About Incest. Her poems ranged from the comical to the moving and dealt with everything from her experiences, and the experiences of other women in Latin America, and to her own experiences in dealing with incest.

Besides listening, Randall read and spoke of her experiences and many of the woman had a chance to meet the author personally. A special reception prior to the reading was held at the Green Street Cafe in Northampton, where Randall was able to sit with many of her readers to talk about current affairs.

This event turned out to be a multi–faceted event: besides the reading and book signing, it was also a fund–raiser for feminist Aid for Central America and a book collection for the Belize Rural Women's Association.

The money that was raised will be distributed among such groups as Colectivo de Mujeres de Matagalpa in Nicaragua, and Women's Health Cooperative of Cantel, Quetzaltenango in Guatemala. All these programs are aimed to better the lives of the women and their families in many parts of Central America in their struggle for social and economic justice.

Many of the programs, with help from Feminist Aid to Central America, have set up all kinds of support groups, collectives, family planning centers and community education centers. All of these are things that are in desperate need in many parts of Central America.

The organizations which co–sponsored the event include Five College Inc., Smith College Latin American Studies and Department of Spanish and Portuguese, Hampshire College Center for Population and Development, UMass Latin American Studies and Women's Studies and Mount Holyoke College Women's Studies and Department of Politics.

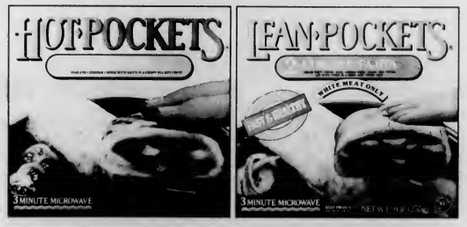
Gilreath Manor Condos
- on Hobart Lane -
3 Bedroom • 1½ baths • Heated Basement
New Gas Heat & Hot Water
1/2 Mile to campus • On Bus Route
Showings Start in April
for June or September Occupancy!
Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St • 253-7879

THE UMASS THEATRE GUILD Presents:
The Two Gentlemen of Verona
In the Rhododendron Garden
FREE ADMISSION • April 27-30
Rain Date: May 1 at 4 & 8pm
Questions? Call 545-0415
Student Season Available

The Provost of the University of Massachusetts, Dr. Glen Gordon, and the Phi Kappa Phi Chapter of this University are proud to announce the following list of new members invited from the Junior and Senior classes as well as the Graduate School and Faculty, and approved by the Chapter in accordance with the bylaws of the National Society.

Phi Kappa Phi was originally founded in 1897 at the University of Maine and was subsequently named Morrill Society, in honor of the sponsor of the Congressional Act which provided for land-grant colleges and universities. In 1900 it was transformed into a national society by the Presidents of the University of Maine, the University of Tennessee, and Pennsylvania State University. The next chapter to join was the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, which remains the fourth-oldest chapter in the United States. The society renamed Phi Kappa Phi in 1900, from the initial letters of the Greek words forming its adopted motto: Philosophia Kristelo Photon, "Let the Love of Learning Rule Mankind".

To be eligible for membership, Juniors must have a CPA of 3.85 and Seniors a CPA of 3.7. Only two Graduate students per program are nominated by their Graduate Directors. In addition, two faculty are chosen for membership each year based on recommendations from their respective Deans.



The Phi Kappa Phi Initiation Ceremony will be held in the University Rhododendron Garden, below the Chancellor's Residence, at 11:00am on Sunday, May 1, 1994. Initiates are invited to bring family members and friends.

The Honor Society of Phi Kappa Phi

- UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS -

Deborah A. Adams	'94	ANIMAL SCI	Kenneth P. Kaplan	'94	HISTORY	Kelly A. Spang	'95	POLI SCI/JOURNALISM
Andrea E. Arant	'94	SPANISH/BDIC	Kristy Lee Kedia	'95	HONORS PSYCH	Michelle Elizabeth Stapel	'95	ACCOUNTING
Noel Logos Artime	'95	CSE	Kristy Lee Kedia	'95	ENGLISH	Jennene Stolfo	'94	ACCOUNTING
Patti Lynn Barrows	'95	PSYCH	Rabecca Anne Laverdure	'95	EDUC/PSYCH	Geraldine R. Swanson	'94	POLI SCI
Holly Anne Belenardo	'94	ECON/DANCE	Stephanie Lianne Koch	'95	WILDLIFE BIO	Andrew J. Tacke	'94	MECH ENG
Luis Benitez	'95	ANIMAL SCI	Lusanne Marie LaRose	'94	EDUC	Audrey Ann Tague	'95	PHILOSOPHY
Tania I. Bernardes	'95	MANAGEMENT	Melina Lester	'95	PSYCH	Chia May Tan	'94	ACCOUONTING
Christine E. Brush	'94	JAPANESE	Wai Lim Lambda Li	'94	ECON	Gene C. Taylor	'95	COMP GRAPHICS
Zachary D. Burnham	'95	EXERCISE SCI	Brandon M. Loikits	'95	SOM	Diane L. Tharp	'94	COMMUNICATION
Amy S. Burns	'95	FRENCH/ART HISTORY	Craig MacAlister	'95	HISTORY			DISORDERS
Brian J. Cail	'95	CHEM ENG	Michaela Maria MacDonald	'95	SOM	Erika A. Thulin	'94	MUSIC/EDUC
Sean David Campbell	'95	ECON	Lisa S. Manness	'95	ANIMAL SCI	Suzanne M. Timmermann	'95	SOC/EDUC
Susan L. Casey	'94	FINANCE	Emily A. Marino	'95	JOURNALISM/COMP LIT	Paul J. Timmins Jr.	'95	FINANCE
Chan Jo Fei, Alice	'95	HRTA	Heidi Lin Martin	'95	MUSIC EDU	Allison M. Todd	'95	SOM
Jeffrey S. Clouter	'95	THEATER	Christopher H. Masterman	'95	PHIL/HISTORY	Joanna Torow	'94	PRINTMAKING BFA
Amy M. Corey	'95	CERAMICS	Anne B. McDowell	'94	JOURNALISM	Frances E. Truitt	'95	PSYCH
John Ross Crawford	'94	BIO CHEM	Joseph R. McEacharn	'95	SPORT MGT	Christopher E. Van Atten	'94	RESOURCE ECON
Michelle Elaine Crouse	'94	ART HISTORY	Michael J. McHugh	'94	CHEM/PHIL	Danil Wehle	'95	PSYCH/EDUC
Arup De	'95	BIOLOGY	Christine McLean	'95	ART HISTORY	John Fielder Wentworth II	'94	U.W.W./PROSE WRITING
Sharon N. Dratch	'94	ANTHRO	Kristin B. Miner	'94	INTRIOR DESIGN/ART	Mark Alan Wightman	'94	U.W.W./ADMIN STUDIES
Colleen Elizabeth Dunham	'94	COMMUNICATION	Andrea S. Moolenbeek	'94	ANIMAL SCI	Cherie R. Willoughby	'95	POLI SCI/JOURNALISM
John P. Dziegiel	'95	FORESTRY	Alisa Kali Moyer	'94	BDIC	Ivan C. Yim	'95	ACCOUNTING
Julianne E. Eagan	'95	ENGLISH	Paula J. Muise	'94	SOCIOLOGY
Kathryn Regina Eisman	'95	RUSSIAN/ENVIRO SCI	Erika Helene Murphy	'94	ENGLISH	- GRADUATE STUDENTS -
Sarah Adele Elliot	'94	BDIC(ARTS MGT)	Ethan Jay Nedeau	'95	WILDLIFE BIOLOGY	Albert Andze Acquaye	'94	M.S. RESOURCE ECON
Darleen E. A. Emerick	'95	ENGLISH	Truth R. Nissenbaum	'95	PLANT PATHOLOGY	Edward R. Austras	'94	INDUSTRIAL ENG
Brandon T. Farris	'94	JOURNALISM	Holly E. Ordway	'95	ENGLISH	Michelle Sandrine
Cristina M. Gaeta	'95		Jennifer Orenberg	'95	EDUC/PSYCH	Catherine Bacholle	'94	M.A. FRENCH
David A. Greenberg	'95	MARKETING	Christianna H. Pearce	'94	THEATER	Peter W. Callas	'94	Ph.D. PUBLIC HEALTH
Andrea Sharon Griffin	'95	ANIMAL SCI	James Robert Pomeranz	'94	POLI SCI	Alison Kadlec Donle	'94	Ph.D. PUBLIC HEALTH
Robert Paul Grimard	'94	PSYCH	Kathy W. Puckett	'95	COMMUNICATION	Stacy Dea Evans		Ph.D. SOCIOLOGY
Jeffrey D. Hallen	'94	CHEM ENG			DISORDERS	Andreas W. K. Graham		M.A. RESOURCE ECON
John B. Harris	'94	POLI SCI	Lucy Quinton	'95	ENGLISH	Mark S. Hoddie	'94	Ph.D. ENTOMOLOGY
Steven Paul Harris	'95	PHIL	Carey Annmarie Rosebush	'94	EXERCISE SCI	Meredith A. Maust	'w	SOCIOLOGY
Deborah Elyse Hoffman	'95	PSYCH	Stephanie L. Rosenberg	'95	FINE ARTS	Christine Leiz Murray	'95	Ph.D. MANAGEMENT
Lisa M. Holmgren	'94	MICROBIO	Jason W. Saart	'95	MANAGEMENT/ACCOUNTING	Tara A. O'Brien	'95	M.S. PLANT & SOIL SCI
Susan Maleita Homrock	'95	PSYCH	Sheryl L. Sanphy	'94	EXERCISE SCI	Lori A. Paige	'94	Ph.D. ENGLISH
Nicholas Alan Hopley	'94	SOM	Catherine Savini	'95	ENGLISH	Deborah C. Robson	'94	M.A. COMMUNICATION
Danenne J. Hosley	'95	JOURNALISM	Heather Beth Scranton	'94	CIVIL & ENVIRO ENG	Peter A. Sokolowski	'94	M.A. FRENCH
Raymond A. Howard	'94	HIST/CLASSICS	Alisa T. Schwartz	'95		Pennie Ticen	'95	Ph.D. ENGLISH
Marilyn Spillane Judah	'95	PAINTING/ART EDU	Roger Alan Skilling	'94	ENGLISH	Linda H. N. Zhang	'96	Ph.D. SCHOOL of MANAGEMENT
Toshiko Kaneda	'94	SOCIOLOGY	Jennifer E. Smith	'94	JAPANESE

U-Mass Students Love These Tasty Hot Meals in a Pocket!

America's #1 On-The-Go Meal
8 Delicious Varieties:
• Pepperoni Pizza • Ham & Cheese • Beef & Cheddar • Barbecue • Turkey & Ham with Cheese • Chicken & Cheddar with Broccoli • Sausage Pizza • Pepperoni & Sausage Combo Pizza

Healthy Fast Food You Will Love
6 Delicious Varieties:
• Chicken Fajita • Turkey, Broccoli & Cheese • Beef & Broccoli • Sausage & Pepperoni Pizza Deluxe • Glazed Chicken Supreme • Chicken Parmesan

Available at Foodmart, Big Y, Stop 'N Shop and other fine stores in your area (in the freezer section)

MFG. COUPON EXPIRES JULY 31, 1994
Save $1.00 ON TWO
When you buy any 2 packages of Hot Pockets or Lean Pockets (any combination)
1034
This coupon good only on purchase of product indicated. Any other use constitutes fraud. COUPON NOT TRANSFERABLE. LIMIT ONE COUPON PER PURCHASE. To the retailer: Chef America will reimburse you for the face value of the coupon plus 8¢ if submitted in compliance with the terms of this offer. Void only if redeemed by distributors of our merchandise or anyone specifically authorized by Chef America. Cash value 1.20¢. Chef America, CMS Department 42005, One Fawcett Drive, Del Rio TX 78840.

REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS
FOR FALL, 1994

The Chancellor's Multicultural Advisory Board is soliciting proposals for activities which have at least one of the following goals and affects more than one individual:

Criteria:
- presentation of programs and events focussing on multicultural and ethnic diversity;
- promotion of the understanding and appreciation of a variety of cultural perspectives;
- educational programs concerning diverse racial, social, and economic groups;
- promotion of mutual respect and civility across cultures.

New programs and collaborative projects are particularly encouraged.

Eligibility: Undergraduate and graduate students, staff, and faculty.

Timeline: Activity to take place between September–December, 1994.

Proposal Requirements:
- type written
- sponsor(s) clearly identified with a contact name, summer address, and telephone number listed
- description of project and how it will meet criteria listed above
- timeline
- proposed budget, including other sources of funding

Groups that receive assistance through this fund must provide the funding committee with a report about the event within three weeks of the conclusion of the program. A reporting form will be mailed out with the grant award.

Award Ranges: $250 to $2,500, with total of all awards not to exceed $7,500 for each semester. (Note: the deadline for spring '95 events will be November 1, 1994.)

Submission Deadline: Friday, May 20, 1994.

Mailing Address: Review Committee for Proposals
Multicultural Advisory Board
C/O FAC Director's Office
129 Herter Hall

Information: Call Julie Fifield at 545-3517.

fallpro

MUSIC MANIA • STRAWBERRIES ANNUAL MIDNIGHT MADNESS EVENT!

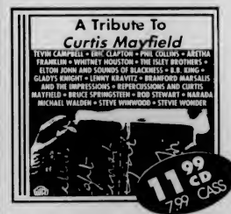
EVERY SINGLE ALBUM TITLE CD REG. 14.99 OR LESS

10.99 CD OR LESS

TODAY EVERYTHING

IN THE STORE ON SALE!

EVERY SINGLE ALBUM TITLE CD REG. 14.99 OR LESS



10.99 CD OR LESS

ALL COMPACT DISCS • ALL CASSETTES • ALL VIDEO • ALL STRAWBERRIES LOCATIONS!

TODAY • EVERY CD ON SALE • ONE DAY ONLY!

ALL VIDEO 20% OFF • ALL CHILDREN'S 20% OFF • ALL ACCESSORIES 20% OFF

9.99 each VIDEO
Mickey's Fun Songs
"Camp Out At Disney World" & "Let's Go To The Circus"

7.99 each VIDEO
Classic John Wayne Movies!
8 Titles To Choose From

18.99 VIDEO
Bryan Adams So Far So Good

14.99 VIDEO
Paul McCartney Live-in Concert

17.99 VIDEO
Penthouse Pet of the Year

14.99 VIDEO
Penthouse Classics Vol II

2 Pak Video! 6.99 VIDEO
Six titles to choose from

Check Local Stores For special Late Night Hours!

Strawberries
MUSIC AND VIDEO STORES

Wherever You Are We Are, With A Convenient Location Near You!

HADLEY, Russel St. & Route 9	(413)256-3160
HOLYOKE, 2275 Northampton St	(413)536-2222
PITTSFIELD, 241 North St.	(413)499-0357
SPRINGFIELD, 1550 Boston Post Rd.	(413)543-1517
W. SPRINGFIELD, Memorial Ave.	(413)737-4128
ENFIELD, CT., Rte. 190 Hazard Ave.	(203)741-3030

Arts & Living

Secret songs and friendship pins

Music biz bites an '80s letdown

Sometimes I can not help but feeling gypped. Maybe It is just a case of being born at the wrong time, maybe I am just being ungrateful. But why is it that every decade has had some sort of great musical extravaganza except the one I grew up in: the eighties.

The sixties brought the world peace and love and hordes of bands that have now become permanent fixtures on classic rock stations across the country. The seventies (as we are just beginning to realize) were not as bad as we originally thought they were. Hell, we got disco (come on, you like it!), punk rock and aahh ... hordes of bands that have now become permanent fixtures on classic rock stations across the country (PLEASE no more Peter Frampton!).

So what exactly did we get in the eighties? Bad haircuts and new wave? Synthesizers and psuedo British accents? While our older siblings were grooving to Led Zeppelin and Marvin Gaye, we were bopping to Men At Work and New Edition. It just does not seem fair, does it?

Well, the sad truth of the matter is this music is all we got. We have been eternally cursed with the fact that everytime we hear Nena's "99 Red Balloons" or Eddie Grant's "Electric Avenue" we will be magically whisked away to a world of silver boomboxes, Bugle Boy parachute pants, leg-warmers and friendship pins.

So in the end, what choice do we have but to embrace this musical era and call it our own? It may not be as cool as grunge or as controversial as gangster rap but, unfortunately, it is all we got. Granted, our kids will not be overly impressed when we whip out our vintage cassette of The Flock Of Seagulls Greatest Hits and say, "Back when I was kid ...," but that is just the burden that we will have to live with.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rick Springfield, cream of the '80s rock crop.

SOUNDS FROM THE VALLEY
Compiled by Brian Babineau & Matt Audette

So do not hang your head in shame and curse your parents for feeling unnaturally "frisky" when they did. Stand tall and be proud of your musical heritage. Me, I think I am going to go listen to some old Rick Springfield.

* * * * *

Don't mistake this column. If you read my mixed tape article, then you understand that I do like to share music with people. It's just that I don't like to share my music with everybody. Let me explain.

I take great pride in finding and enjoying songs and groups that not many people have heard of. When I find a song that I feel is absolutely incredible, and means something to me, then I want to keep it for myself. In some sort of twisted way, I feel cheated if the song becomes popular and high school kids across the country are moved by that particular song in the same way I was. It makes the song less personal and cheapens it. If it becomes overexposed, the same song that gave me such a rush could become hackneyed.

I remember first having this feeling when U2 released Joshua Tree, and "With or Without You" was sandwiched between Whitney Houston and Madonna on your radio station that plays all of today's hottest hits ...

Then Peter Gabriel's gorgeous, euphoric "In Your Eyes" was the love song for the movie Say Anything, and everybody and their grandmother was buying So.

In 1991, I heard an REM song whose lyrics described obsessive love so poetically and perfectly I couldn't believe it. I wrote the lyrics down an put them on my wall. Then "Losing My Religion" joined the heavy rotation on MTV, and I think that poster came down immediately.

Now I don't mean to say that everyone else should not enjoy the same wonderful music that I do. I just have a few select songs that I wish record companies, MTV, and their ilk would leave alone, and let those lucky people who discover the songs on their own enjoy their finds.

There is a very obscure Bryan Ferry song I found many years ago. I won't tell you the name, and I won't tell you where I found it, but it is awe-inspiring, and every listen still moves me. It is my song to listen to and share. But it has now appeared on a recent soundtrack and I am nervous that other people will again dig up my buried treasure, only to sell it and cheapen it.

Matt Audette is a friendship pin collector and Brian Babineau's lips are sealed regarding Bryan Ferry.

Dance takes on a new life

By SUSAN BOYD
Collegian Correspondent

The University of Massachusetts Dance Department student organization, Alive With Dance, will perform exciting, original choreography in Bowker Auditorium this weekend.

The performance consists of 10 pieces, six of which are senior theses. Each thesis is a culmination of a dance major's four-year course of study and is researched and created during the student's final year at UMass.

OTP pieces have been choreographed by student, with exceptional dancing and creative skills. The Alive With Dance organization has a strong reputation for producing entertaining movement combined with artistic expression.

Examples of the pieces to be performed range from Broadway style jazz with a Latin flair to a flashy tap number accompanied the music of Glenn Miller.

Inspirational sources of movement in some of the numbers stem from a wide variety of social issues and the boundaries many face.

Experiences and/or tragedies many times inspire artistic expression, as illustrated in some of the themes of tonight's show, including physical disabilities, date rape, interracial relationships, alcoholism. The poetry of Emily Bronte is also used as an inspiration for movement in tonight's performance.

Tonight's performance begins at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. Tickets are $5 general/$3 for students and senior citizens, and may be purchased through the Fine Arts Center.

COURTESY FRANK WARD

Alive With Dance will perform tonight in Bowker Auditorium.

amc THEATRES
$2.50 (TWI-LITE) SHOW DAILY LIMITED TO SEATING
MT. FARMS 4 MT. FARMS MALL ROUTE 9, HADLEY 586-0152
Call Theatre For Showtimes
Braincan (R)
Four Weddings and a Funeral (R)
With Honors (PG-13)
White Fang 2 (PG)
The Paper (R)
HAMPSHIRE 6 HAMPSHIRE MALL 584-7500
Call Theatre For Showtimes
The Favor (R)
Serial Mom (R)
No Escape (R)
Bad Girls (R)
Threesome (R)
Cops & Robbersons (PG)
PCU (PG-13)

5 guys 4 legends 3 lovers 2 friends 1 band

BACKBEAT
You know the music, but only half the story.

PolyGram FILMED ENTERTAINMENT and SCALA PRODUCTIONS present A SCALA/MOBILE/POLYMEDIA COMPANY and CHAPTER ONE PRODUCTIONS release THE BEATLES in the film BACKBEAT ... PAUL TOMAN

R RESTRICTED

THE BEAT IS COMING TO A THEATRE NEAR YOU!

OPENS THIS FRIDAY

On the day of the apocolypse Gail finally revealed to Bragart that she was the one to steal her "Mrs. Pretty" make-up kit in the 3rd grade.
Mass Daily Collegian
"Make Amends Now"

Lincoln Real Estate
has the best selection of 1, 2, & 3 bedroom Uptown Apartments with Gas Heat.
We begin showing apartments in April and May for June or September Occupancy.
253-7879 • 25 N. Pleasant St.

COLLECTIVE COPIES
•ACID-FREE PAPER
at the lowest price in town!
DISSERTATION, THESIS & RESUME COPYING
29 S. Pleasant St., Amherst 256-6425

College Students
Would 100% Free Tuition Put a Smile on Your Face?

That's right! The Massachusetts Army National Guard offers 100% Free Tuition for state colleges and universities in Massachusetts. The commitment is only about one weekend a month and two weeks a year. And there's more...
You'll receive up to $6,800 in education assistance with the Montgomery GI Bill and you'll earn a salary over your six-year enlistment.
You'll receive job skills training in technical fields such as electronics, communications, or computers and have the adventure of your life!
Let your local Massachusetts Army National Guard recruiter put a smile on your face today.
CALL: 413-586-8681/8682
OR 1-800-322-1338
MASSACHUSETTS ARMY NATIONAL GUARD
Americans At Their Best.
The Army National Guard is an Equal Opportunity Employer

Summer at Brandeis University
Session I — June 6-July 8
Session II — July 11-August 12
• Small classes taught by Brandeis faculty
• Competitive tuition
• Easy access from Rtes. 128/95/90
• Free parking
Liberal Arts
Near Eastern and Judaic Studies
Premedical Sciences
Foreign Languages: intensive, on-campus and overseas
Chamber Music Workshop
Internship programs in: Law, Medicine and Health Policy or Public Service and Social Analysis
Information, catalog and application:
Summer Program Office
Rabb School of Summer, Special, and Continuing Studies
Brandeis University
P.O. Box 9110
Waltham, MA 02254-9110
(617) 736-3424
FAX: (617) 736-3420

We Deliver
Kai Chi
Chinese - American Cuisine Restaurant & Bar
LATE NIGHT DINNER SPECIAL!
WE DELIVER
Appetizers up to 30% OFF!
Wednesday thru Sunday • 9pm - Closing
No other promos apply. • Entrees starting at $4.50
Kai Chi Restaurant
MT. FARMS MALL • RTE 9 • HADLEY • 586-2774
Open Mon. - Thurs. 11:30am - 11pm,
Fri.-Sat. 11:30am - midnight,
Sunday 12 noon - 10:30pm

THE EDWIN M. ROSSMAN ALUMNI CAREER FORUMS
VETERINARY AND ANIMAL SCIENCES
DATE: Tuesday, May 3, 1994
TIME: 5:00pm
LOCATION: Campus Center 804-808
SPONSORED BY:
MATHER CAREER CENTER
ALUMNI ASSOCIATION
VETERINARY AND ANIMAL SCIENCES
This is an opportunity to meet with alumni and discuss their experiences in the working world. Don't miss this important panel discussion!
ALUMNI/AE PANELISTS:

Maribeth Cunniff-Cherry, '91	Research Assistant Genzyme Corp. Framingham, MA
Gordon Cook, Jr., '69	Production Agriculture Hadley, MA
Ronna S. Kabler, D.V.M., '78	Adams Animal Hospital Athol, MA
Thomas McRae, '78	Territory Manager D.V.M. Pharmaceutical, Inc. Miami, FL

For more information, please contact:
Mather Career Center • 545-2224

Attention Arts & Living Staff!

There will be an informational meeting on Wednesday, May 4 at 5:30 p.m. in the newsroom.

A&L staff can meet and hear the candidates for next semester's A&L Editor position.

Make your vote a sassy, educated one.

Arrested Development hops to Mt. Holyoke

By BRIAN BABINEAU
Collegian Staff

In 1992, a new and exciting sound was heard emanating from the world of hip-hop. This sound was a combination of rap, spiritual singing, thick and loping beats and an uplifting message which created a joyous new musical tapestry. The perpetrators of this sound were none other than Arrested Development.

This sound was a combination of rap, spiritual singing, thick and loping beats and an uplifting message which created a joyous new musical tapestry.

With the release of their debut album in 1992, 3 Years, 5 Months and 2 Days in the Life of ..., they received an enormous amount of both critical and popular attention. The first three singles off the album were hits, from the spirituality of "Tennessee," the call to unity of "Everyday People," to the tale of the homeless "Mr. Wendal." Arrested Development even garnered a coveted spot in last summer's hipper-than-thou music festival, Lollapalooza 3.

Now they are heading back out on the road to promote their new, and as of yet, unreleased album, Zingalamaduni, stopping in only a few select spots to translate their recordings into a celebratory and uplifting live show.

One of these select spots happens to be Mt. Holyoke College, right here in our very own Happy Valley, so head on out and join the life music jam.

Arrested Development will be playing at Mt. Holyoke College on Saturday, April 30, at 8 p.m. with special guest Nefertiti. Doors open at 7 p.m.. Tickets are $15, and available at Tix Unlimited and For the Record in downtown Amherst.

BEE BOP

If you've got a good vibe you can snap your fingers, you can whistle, and you can hum.
Mass Daily Collegian
tickle my tummy honey

On the day of the apocolypse Gail Fealy is revealed to Bridget that she was the one to steal her "Mrs. Pretty" make up kit in the 3rd grade.
Mass Daily Collegian
"Make Amends Now"

DON'T BE LEFT OUT!

PUFFTON VILLAGE

Look What We Offer:

- 1,2, and 3 Bedroom Units
- Rents Starting from $475/Month
- Heat & Hot Water Included in Rent!
- PVTA Bus Stops in Complex
- 1/2 Mile to University, 1 1/2 Miles to Downtown Amherst
- Pool, 5 Tennis Courts & a Basketball Court On-Site!
- Our Office is Open Mon-Fri 8:30 to 4PM

Now accepting rental applications for Summer and Fall. Don't be left out of one of Amherst's best housing deals; prime location, spacious units, individual entrances, on-site parking and cable TV hook-up through Dimension Cable.

PUFFTON VILLAGE APARTMENTS • 1040 North Pleasant St., Amherst, MA
– Resident Manager 549-0145 –

OPEN FORUMS TO MEET CANDIDATES FOR THE POSITION OF ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR OF HOUSING SERVICES FOR RESIDENTIAL EDUCATION

Candidates for the
ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR OF HOUSING SERVICES FOR RESIDENTIAL EDUCATION will be on campus May 2-13. Open forums will be held and the University community is invited to attend. Each candidate has been asked to give a short presentation on the topic:
"Residence Halls 2000, Issues and Challenges: Planning for Now and into the Future."

All open forums will take place in the Campus Center at 2:00-3:30pm (Check with Campus Center Information Desk for Room #.)

Monday, May 2, 1994.....Nadine Schiavo
Tuesday, May 3, 1994.....Regina Rousso
Wednesday, May 4, 1994.....Marc Capozza
Monday, May 9, 1994.....Janice Freehill
Tuesday, May 10, 1994.....Timothy Lewis
Wednesday, May 11, 1994.....Thomas Kane
Thursday, May 12, 1994.....Peter Perhac

ATTENTION STUDENTS:
If you are unable to attend any of these day forums, there will be a special meeting held at 7:00-8:30pm on these same days for you to ask questions and meet the candidates. (Check with Campus Center Information Desk for Room #.)

Battlefield band sets out

COURTESY FOLKLORE PRODUCTIONS

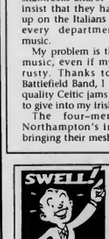
Scotland's Battlefield Band will light up the Iron Horse with a few good jigs tonight at 7 p.m.

By EMILY MARINO
Collegian Staff

I have had this dilemma surrounding my relationship to Celtic music ever since I started debating the merits of the Irish culture with my Irish friends.

You see, I am of Italian descent, and the majority of my friends who own at least one item sporting shamrocks and/or "Fighting Irish" insist that they have at least one up on the Italians in pretty much every department, including music.

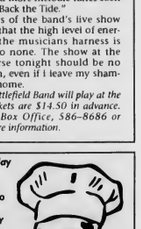
My problem is that I like Celtic music, even if my jig is a little rusty. Thanks to the Scottish Battlefield Band, I can enjoy some quality Celtic jams without having to give into my Irish friends.



The four-member band headlines at Northampton's Iron Horse tonight at 7 p.m., bringing their mesh of traditional and self-penned tunes to life. The Battlefield Band is known for creating rich, unique sounds that incorporate both ancient and modern instruments, including bagpipes (my favorite), fiddles, synthesizers, guitars, flutes, citterns and accordion.

The Battlefield Band is known for creating rich, unique sounds that incorporate both ancient and modern instruments, including bagpipes, fiddles, synthesizers, guitars, flutes, citterns and accordion.

The band has played with artists such as Van Morrison, Mike Oldfield and Paul Brady, and is currently promoting their recent album, Quiet Days. This 12-track album features a variety of upbeat jigs like "The River" and more melodic tunes such as "Hold Back the Tide."



Reviews of the band's live show concede that the high level of energy that the musicians harness is second to none. The show at the Iron Horse tonight should be no exception, even if I leave my shamrocks at home.

The Battlefield Band will play at the Iron Horse at 7 p.m. Tickets are $14.50 in advance. Call the Northampton Box Office, 586-8686 or 1-800-THE-TICK for more information.

I checked in to the Rusty Nail Motel and asked the owner if he knew of any swinging sushi bar doll joints where I could hook up with a fix of Take Maki and Knockwurst on Rye. "The eternal question," he said, "is how to get the mouse out of the bottle." I thanked the wise old man and checked into room six sixty six. I opened up my suit case cum brown paper bag and pulled out the Collegian. "We put the mouse in the bottle."

Yes, it's always a fine day for a barbeque. Ahh nothing like the hot coals to cause a man to break down in a fit of hysterical crying. "WHY DIDN'T I LISTEN TO MY MOTHER AND BECOME A DOG GROOMER!!!!"
COLLEGIAN
NEVER TOO LATE TO CHANGE

Can You Afford
$105/month* For Rent?
Only 8 minutes from campus at
LANTERN COURT
For more information call:
Kamins 253-2515
*rate based on 4 people per 2BDR

Resumé Package
• 50 copies on Your Choice of 25% Cotton Paper
• 2 Business Day Service
• 1 Page Typeset
With Coupon
$19.95!!
CopyCat PRINT SHOP
228 Triangle St., Amherst 549-3840
32 Pleasant St., Northampton 586-1332

Textbook Buyback

★RIGHT:
"Students Need to be Paid Higher Prices for Their Books!"

We agree. That is why the Annex and the Board of Governors have instituted a campaign to get faculty to order their books for next semester now. If faculty submit their order before the buyback starts the Annex can pay 50% of the price of a new copy for books that we need for the fall. If we don't need the book a wholesale company will pay you their price. Since they re-sell those books nationally, the price will always be less than the Annex pays.

★WRONG:
"I can't sell it at the Annex unless I bought it there."

Many people think that unless they purchased the book at the Annex they can not sell it back there. Not true! We will buy any book that has wholesale value.

Buyback starts May 11

Visit our Buyback locations at the Textbook Annex, Hampden Student Center in Southwest and our new location in the Campus Center next to the ATM machines.

UNIVERSITY STORE'S Textbook Annex UMASS AMHERST

"One day I decided to sell my bike and my car, and in the spirit of Walden Woods & Don Henley, I would walk everywhere from now on.

I also decided that the best way to get rid of them and make a whole lot of cash (that I wouldn't donate any of to a worthy environmental cause) was to advertise in The Collegian Classifieds.

Needless to say, I sold my bike and car, but when I looked to see my classified in the paper I saw a really cool classified for a motorcycle. Screw the environment, now I ride with the wind and death at my side."
Collegian Classifieds
They really work.

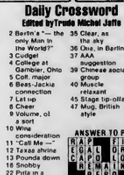
Calvin and Hobbes By Bill Watterson

Jim's Journal By Jim

Virtual Reality By Mark Warnat

Bruno By C. Baldwin

Without Porpoise By Kennet Dell



Daily Crossword
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Actress Menna Maidenn
8 Military pro
10 One of a Latin trio
14 Pallid
15 "— Ben Adhem"
16 Special performance
17 Gadget
18 Cheese city
20 Slippery
21 Michelangelo works
23 Sound enhancer, for short
24 Cut off
26 Gadgets
28 French painter — Rousseau
29 Festive occasion
30 Buddy
31 Netherlands river
34 Stress result, perhaps
36 Gadget
41 Nevada razort
42 First appearance
43 — day at a time
44 Amateur sports org
46 Picture puzzle
48 Gadget
51 Took out
53 — y Pluto
54 Montana motto
56 Metal worker
58 Calgary a prov.
59 Celebrity
61 Gadgets
63 Beehive state
64 Scat queen
65 Defendants: Abbr.
66 Dannon and namesakes
67 Thick slice of bread
68 A Bean

DOWN
1 The way the bell bounces
2 Berlin's "— the only Man in the World?"
3 College!
4 College at Geneseo, Ohio
5 Colr. major
6 Bees-Jackie connection
7 Let up
8 Cheer
9 Volume, ol a sort
10 Wine consideration
11 "Call Me —"
12 Texas shrine
13 Pounds down
18 Snobby
22 Pista in a particular place
25 Reduce the cost
27 Sweet talk
28 Sounds of lun
29 Spare tire
30 Part of an oz
32 Actress Thompson
33 Scottish uncle
35 Clear, as the sky
36 Oxs. in Berlin
37 AAA suggestion
39 Chinese asociat group
40 Muscle relaxant
45 Stage tip-offs
47 Mug, British style
48 Java accompaniment
49 Up in arms
50 Itinerant
51 — Gay
52 Restored bldg
55 Ea Steelers coach Chuck
57 Steno slip-up
58 Org
60 Ques sounds
62 — Megnon

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

4/29/94

4/28/94

The Far Side By Gary Larson

"Oh, and a word of warning about Mueller over there. ... He's got a good head on his shoulders, but it's best not to mention it."

Your Horoscope
By Jonne Dixon

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Show your efficiency by accomplishing as much as you can. An agreement brokered today will end your good fortune. Try an ethnic restaurant for a fun meal and relaxing dinner.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A letter may bring a family warning. You get a new client or a casual acquaintance. Someone you have always disliked could have lost of clay. Take all those new colored glasses for a spin.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Acting on a friend's suggestions could garner helpful. Victor letter- and phone influential people. Evening an old project could produce news galore.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You may not receive credit for a valuable idea if someone else steals it. Review those to be this happen again! Put clever concepts on paper to remind others. But you are on the ball.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your efforts are being evaluated by those in authority. Continue to produce the same excellent work. Getting the green light for a special project makes you happy. Write while the mood is hot.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A rather routine day has ahead. Try not to let your mind wander. Your instincts could be worth big. Lunch with a new acquaintance is okay for household items. Treat home to a commendable refuge tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Guard against careless errors today even minor mistakes can cause costly delays. Hidden resentment may be taking its toll. Watch how you speak and act when around friends and family.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A change you have long contemplated may come to pass. Expect to give up something valid in order to gain something new. A patient, affectionate approach will help you get through to a child.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You should be able to solve right through your work this morning. A better job may open up. Be ready for it. Watch out for romantic overtures. Stay cool when partners turn up the heat.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your managerial talents can be a big plus in matters of the arts. Become a leader in your community or profession. Romance from new interests in an engagement.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A good day for those who enjoy shopping or selling. You are able to find a buyer for something you no longer use. Be alert for new trends. Expressing your beliefs brings mental profit.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A good day for launching a construction project or purchasing materials with those who really count. Casual get-togethers can be more enjoyable than formal affairs.

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Chicken a la King	Manicotti in Sauce
Tacos	Southern Fried Steak
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Chicken a la King	Manicotti in Sauce
Veggie Tacos	Roman Rice and Beans

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Michael Morrissey
Copy Editor.....Barbara Cannistraro
Photo Technician.....Steven Pedulla
Production Supervisor.....Mike Carvalho
Production.....Christopher Strider Cook, Tony Morse, Michael Landon

Quote of the Day

"I've decided I'm going to play another year. Whether that's with the Celtics or with another team, that's yet to be seen."
— Robert Parish

'Big Dog' to decide Monday

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Purdue's Glenn Robinson, who swept national Player of the Year honors after his junior season, has apparently made up his mind about moving on to the NBA.

Robinson, touted by many as the probable No. 1 selection in the June 29 draft, announced Thursday he would hold a news conference Monday to disclose his plans.

The 6-foot-8, 225-pound forward led the nation in scoring with a 30.3 average last season. Robinson previously said he planned to remain in college and would call a news conference if he changed those plans.

"It's a decision that I will make, deciding what's best for Glenn Robinson and what he wants to do with his future," he said earlier.

"I imagine because he's having a press conference (he is) leaving. We talked about it after the Duke game," Purdue coach Gene Keady said Thursday referring to the NCAA tournament Southeast Regional final. "He didn't ask for advice, but I gave it to him."

JOB OPPORTUNITY
OUTSTANDING CAREER OPPORTUNITY WITH NATIONAL COMPUTER FIRM
TECHNICAL SUPPORT REPRESENTATIVE
Responsibilities include assisting our customers in system implementation, and product training and support -- both on site and via telephone. Must be willing to travel; UNIX, spreadsheet, database, and report generator experience necessary. Business and people orientation a must. Comprehensive salary/benefits provided. Send resume and salary history in confidence to:
Customer Services Manager
P.O. Box 178
Springfield, MA 01101

Classifieds

- 20¢ per word per day for students
- All ads must be paid in cash 2 days in advance
- Ads may be placed at 113 Campus Center, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

ACTIVITIES

Nyc bus trip April 30. Leave UMass 1:00 pm leave NYC 2:00am. $20 per person Sign up in 428 Student Union- Commuter Services Center

Cape Cod Duplex 5/28- 9/3 3 people $315/0 Call Micah 549-4704

Center of town 1,2,& 3 bedroom apts For 6/1 or 8/1 Now being shown Call for appointment Lincoln Real Estate 253-7879

Free furniture! If you takeover our lease Puffton 1 bedroom 549-6521

Huge 1 bedroom Brandywine lease Takeover, sublet. Feb 3 months 549-6178

Huge room Hobart Ln $175/ month Call Scott 549-4166

Large 6 bedroom house on Main St 2 full baths CAll 253-2847

Live in Puffton! Immaculate three bedroom apartment with closet already moved Plus option to buy our unbelievable restaurant style bar - a must see! Call Stephanie, Julie, or Lisa at 549-8871

Mill Valley 2 bedroom avail June 1 call Dan 253-4225

Mill Valley 3 bdr 2 bath AC furnished +/- 1 with fall option 256-6690

Please! Take our Northwood Apt 2 bedroom $399 mo. Quiet, scenic, amazing 665-4606

Practically new 2 bdrm Brandywine apt Take our lease 549-4036

Sign early 3 bedroom in Puffton 549-8707

Summer sublet w/ fall option 2 bdr Brandywine apt inc. heat and hot water Call soon! 549-3937

Sunny one bedroom apt Hardwood floors Centre of Amherst Available June 1 253-4652

Take over our lease 5/1 Brandywine 3rd floor! 549-4546

Take over our lease 2br Brandywine 3rd floor starting 6/1 You won't find cheaper $645/ mo. Call 549-6629

Take over 3bedroom Puffton lease Available June Call 549-8193

Take over our lease. Huge 4 br 2 bath $880/ month/ incl. ht/ hw Call 253-3752

Welcome college students Cape Cod Summer rentals All locations 1 to 8 br houses Honey Spence Broker 508-394-7878

What a deal! We will pay you $500 to take our 2 br Brandywine apt. or sublet for $500/ month Call 549-5096

CAPE COD RENTAL

West Yarmouth 6 room 4 bedrooms sleeps 6 newly everything 253-7436 508 775-4776 $6,000

FOR RENT

A nice place to live!
2 bedroom apartment on bus line 5 minutes from campus Heat, hot water included, cheap electricity Hardwood floors Huge living room, big bedrooms Nice, quiet area $420/ mo summer w/fall option 253-3977 Available to move-in for end of May - leave message

1 bedroom apt. N Amherst Quiet location with big yard laundry facilities, and AC Pets negotiable Take over lease June 1st Call Marc 549-8244

1 bedroom apt Puffton 442/month Cindy Fried 549-4650

1 bedroom avail May1 farmhouse in Hadley on bus, $725 585-0843

1 bedroom Brandywine Pondside Available June 1 Call 549-1902

1 br Puffton available 6/1 renew lease 549-4706

1 mile from campus 4 bdrm, oil heat, Call 549-8239

2 bedroom apt Quiet great location Cheap includes heat Hot water 549-1571

2 bedroom apt Colonial Village $480 month Avail June 1st 253-4719

2 bedroom apt Rent very negotiable Available ASAP 546-0160

2 bedroom Brandywine apt 635/ mo inc heat available June 1 549-6503

2 bdrm puffton Take over our lease starting June 1 with option for fall renewal Call ed at 549-7648

2 bedroom 2 story condo 2 full baths Close to uptown On bus route Avail June 1 Call 253-4603

2 bedroom apartment at Brandywine 3rd floor pondside $775/ month including heat Available June 1st Call 549-5465 Tracey or Beth

2 story, 2 bedroom 1½ bath dishwasher on bus route $577 + utils gas 253-7892

3 bedroom 1 bath on Main St $825/ month includes electric Starts June 1st Lee 256-3470

3 bdrm Townehouse 1 1/2 baths on 2 bus routes take over lease 6/1 Call 549-7609

4 bedroom townehouse ideal for 5 people on busline Available June 1 with fall option Call 549-7730

4 br house Main St. Call 253-4710

4-5 bedrooms 2 full baths Close to uptown On bus route Avail June 1 Call Beely 256-8938 $1,100/ month

Blue room for rent $195 + utilities North Hadley Call Jean 586-4782

Brandywine apt 2bdr 3rd floor pondside 695/mo Take over my lease Call Jaime 549-8881

Brandywine 2 bdr top floor New carpet Only $655/ month Available June 1 549-6062

Brandywine 1 bedroom apt sublet or take over our lease Hot water gas included 549-2972

INTERNATIONAL FAIR

International students association presents 16th international Fair April 30 11:00-5:00pm Student Union Free admission

LOST

Large silver "nefertiti" pendant If found please call Mecca 546-4859

Lost student daily planner and blue fabric pencil bag in GRCI 14th floor Reward 253-8175

Lost in 3 bdrm cape Big yard, near Puffers Pond, tennis + bball courts 549-5147

2 big bdrm apt South Amherst on bus route June-Aug Fall option $450 256-4624

2 bedroom Brandywine Apt fall option $645/ mo Includes everything 549-6928

2 bedroom quiet on bus line June-Aug, furnished 253-4724

2-3 bedrooms available in 4 bedroom apartment Fully appianced, AC, busline June until August 549-8013

3 bedroom 2 bath Puffton Free cable summer sublet June-Aug 31 549-1998

3 bedrooms 5 0 yds from bus stop Hadley May 31- August 31 $550 negotiable + utilities Call 586-6438

3 bedroom clean, close to campus, pool parking 549-5303

3 bedroom sublet Puffton $ negi May 27-Sept 1 New carpeting appliances Call 546-5649

3 bedrooms On busline Really close! Call us!! 253-7694

5 bedroom house in Amherst Available June 1 with fall option 253-2234

$125 per huge dbl w/bath 665-0485

$225/ mo single 1 block from campus 665-0485

Bdrm avail in furnished condo Large yard on bus route Rent negotiable 256-4609

Brandywine 2 bedrooms June 1 to Sept 1 3rd floor Pondview 549-7291

Cheap! Puffton Village sublet 1, 2, or 3 bedrooms available Pool & tennis courts Call Lori 546-3182

FREE LAUNDRY
Looking for a place to live for the summer w/ fall option? Free laundry On bus route Interested? Call Matt 253-4207

Have a car? I have a Luxury 2 bed mi, 2 bath option for the summer sublease Large living area, dishwasher, at all $600/ mo includes heat/ hot water Call 256-8943, ask for Fleabay Yum!

Huge rm in 2 bdrm Cliffside Apt Rent negotiable incl heat hot water Electricity on bus rt Pool laundry hiking trails 665-8939

If you have a car, I have a perfect summer sublet $275 plus cheap utilities Call Andrew 546-1864 day, 549-4452 evenings

Looking for a summer sublet Call Donna at 253-4823 spacious + furnished

Phillips Street Spacious room Can be double or single Only $185 546-3994

Puffers Pond 2 bdrm $450/mo negotiable try to call Call Nicole Laura Bus route 549-5326

Room available for one or two people Mill Valley Estates Price is negotiable Call Mark 256-6166

Rooms downtown. Quiet private Fall option 253-4236 9am-9pm

Share vineyard house 2 single rooms available 253-9445

Single, sunny room in renovated 2 bdrm apt on bus route $199/ mo + utils 665-3618

Still avail, 2 immares for cape house, enjoy ques call Murph 253-4114

SERVICES

Legal questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring, confidential support 549-1906

Professional repair Most brands audio equipment + VCRs Sound + Music 253 Pleasant Street, Northampton 584-9547

$Scholarships$ matching!
International Students too! 24 hr messages! 800-434-8015 ext 500

SPRING CONCERT 5/8/94

Security volunteers needed. Must attend one information meeting- 4/20, 4/28, 5/4 from 7-9pm in the Cape Cod lounge Call UPC at 545-2892 for more info

Volunteers needed for 5 days of fun in the sun! Spring concert cannot happen without your help Come to a UPC general committee meeting on Tuesday, 5/2 at 8pm in cc 165-69 Help wanted for security, hospitality promotions, advertising and stage crew

SUMMER SUBLETS

1 bdrm apt available end of May On bus route 224/mo 253-7188

1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt Cheap Near campus Only $ us line 549-1418 Take over lease option

1 bedroom Puffton Village Available June 1 $440/ mo 549-1969

1,2, or 3 bedrooms in house on Pine St Call 549-2660 or 8030

2 bdrms avail June 1 female, nonsmokers 253-9968

2 bedroom townehouse On bus line Great location! $560/mo 256-1908

2 bedroom Brandywine May 25 to Sept 1 includes everything and free cable! Only $645/ mo w/ fall option 3 couches and table incl 549-4261

2 bedroom apartment $550 a month includes everything 256-1960

2 bedroom Puffton 220/ per single Jun 1 Aug 31 546-2850

2 bedroom summer sublet available in Presidential with fall option $700/ mo or highest offer Call Ashley 549-1920

3 bdrm old mix house Many amenities, on bus route avail 6/1 Call 546-39? /, 546-4269

3 bdrms in 3 bdrm cape Big yard, near Puffers Pond, tennis + bball courts 549-5147

2 big bdrm apt South Amherst on bus route June-Aug Fall option $450 256-4624

2 bedroom Brandywine Apt fall option $645/ mo Includes everything 549-6928

2 bedroom quiet on bus line June-Aug, furnished 253-4724

2-3 bedrooms available in 4 bedroom apartment Fully appianced, AC, busline June until August 549-8013

3 bedroom 2 bath Puffton Free cable summer sublet June-Aug 31 549-1998

3 bedrooms 5 0 yds from bus stop Hadley May 31- August 31 $550 negotiable + utilities Call 586-6438

3 bedroom clean, close to campus, pool parking 549-5303

3 bedroom sublet Puffton $ negi May 27-Sept 1 New carpeting appliances Call 546-5649

3 bedrooms On busline Really close! Call us!! 253-7694

5 bedroom house in Amherst Available June 1 with fall option 253-2234

$125 per huge dbl w/bath 665-0485

$225/ mo single 1 block from campus 665-0485

Bdrm avail in furnished condo Large yard on bus route Rent negotiable 256-4609

Brandywine 2 bedrooms June 1 to Sept 1 3rd floor Pondview 549-7291

Cheap! Puffton Village sublet 1, 2, or 3 bedrooms available Pool & tennis courts Call Lori 546-3182

FREE LAUNDRY
Looking for a place to live for the summer w/ fall option? Free laundry On bus route Interested? Call Matt 253-4207

Have a car? I have a Luxury 2 bed mi, 2 bath option for the summer sublease Large living area, dishwasher, at all $600/ mo includes heat/ hot water Call 256-8943, ask for Fleabay Yum!

Huge rm in 2 bdrm Cliffside Apt Rent negotiable incl heat hot water Electricity on bus rt Pool laundry hiking trails 665-8939

If you have a car, I have a perfect summer sublet $275 plus cheap utilities Call Andrew 546-1864 day, 549-4452 evenings

Looking for a summer sublet Call Donna at 253-4823 spacious + furnished

Phillips Street Spacious room Can be double or single Only $185 546-3994

Puffers Pond 2 bdrm $450/mo negotiable try to call Call Nicole Laura Bus route 549-5326

Room available for one or two people Mill Valley Estates Price is negotiable Call Mark 256-6166

Rooms downtown. Quiet private Fall option 253-4236 9am-9pm

Share vineyard house 2 single rooms available 253-9445

Single, sunny room in renovated 2 bdrm apt on bus route $199/ mo + utils 665-3618

Still avail, 2 immares for cape house, enjoy ques call Murph 253-4114

SERVICES

Legal questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring, confidential support 549-1906

Professional repair Most brands audio equipment + VCRs Sound + Music 253 Pleasant Street, Northampton 584-9547

$Scholarships$ matching!
International Students too! 24 hr messages! 800-434-8015 ext 500

SPRING CONCERT 5/8/94

Security volunteers needed. Must attend one information meeting- 4/20, 4/28, 5/4 from 7-9pm in the Cape Cod lounge Call UPC at 545-2892 for more info

Volunteers needed for 5 days of fun in the sun! Spring concert cannot happen without your help Come to a UPC general committee meeting on Tuesday, 5/2 at 8pm in cc 165-69 Help wanted for security, hospitality promotions, advertising and stage crew

SUMMER SUBLETS

1 bdrm apt available end of May On bus route 224/mo 253-7188

1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt Cheap Near campus Only $ us line 549-1418 Take over lease option

1 bedroom Puffton Village Available June 1 $440/ mo 549-1969

1,2, or 3 bedrooms in house on Pine St Call 549-2660 or 8030

2 bdrms avail June 1 female, nonsmokers 253-9968

2 bedroom townehouse On bus line Great location! $560/mo 256-1908

2 bedroom Brandywine May 25 to Sept 1 includes everything and free cable! Only $645/ mo w/ fall option 3 couches and table incl 549-4261

2 bedroom apartment $550 a month includes everything 256-1960

INTERNATIONAL FAIR

International students association presents 16th international Fair April 30 11:00-5:00pm Student Union Free admission

LOST

Large silver "nefertiti" pendant If found please call Mecca 546-4859

Lost student daily planner and blue fabric pencil bag in GRCI 14th floor Reward 253-8175

Lost in 3 bdrm cape Big yard, near Puffers Pond, tennis + bball courts 549-5147

2 big bdrm apt South Amherst on bus route June-Aug Fall option $450 256-4624

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

1982 Suzuki GS 450T low miles- mint condition extras! $900 549-5708

MUSICIANS

Band seeks male vocalist 4 all styles 546-6312 Pete

PERSONALS

Congratulations to our new RA Ellen O'Rourke Good luck P- head!

Happy 19th Birthday to Amy Elizabth Manning from Beeves

JJ, Happy 20th birthday! I promise that I'll spend c with you next year! I love you very much! Love always, Andy

Michael Happy Anniversary! Don't go too far because we might not find our way back Let's just be happy! I love you! Priscilla

Rusty Happy 6 month anniversary! I love you with all my heart. Julie

Susan— bubs! secretary/ cowlover this one really IS for you good luck with "your" show love your rimmie and the girl with no middle name

Tara, Happy Birthday! Love, Tom

To the beautiful pedaler who smiled at Mass Ave. beside Goodell Thanks for making my day brighter. The woman in the blue flowered dress.

To the pretty face knew at Newman All of our promises have been kept, I waited for you, and now we've slept. Though all our time is heaven sent, time spent with you is time well spent Je sus desire is cela semble ridicule mais i essaie defaire de plus mieux. love, your buddy

REWARD

Missing- "Bow Boy" Black & white domestic cat w/ bright pink collar Any info please call 549-8417

ROOMMATE WANTED

1 bedrm in N Hadley house 1/3 mi 5 min from UMass 586-4711

1 F roommate to pay 1/3 rent on 1 Mi x 1 F to pay 1/3 rent, all utl incl in e 2 br apartment in Sunderland Call Kris 546-3731

F/ nonsmoker to share townehouse w/ 3 F Rolling green, Rt 9 on bus rt 170/ month all utilities included Call 253-2448

Four females Big Hyannis house Cheap rent Call 549-7357

One person for large room $170.00 Call 665-7604

Roommate needed for one br w/ town house 253-3752

Share vineyard house 2 single rooms available 253-9445

Single, sunny room in renovated 2 bdrm apt on bus route $199/ mo + utils 665-3618

Still avail, 2 immares for cape house, enjoy ques call Murph 253-4114

SERVICES

Legal questions? The Student Legal Services Office offers free legal assistance to fee paying students. Contact us at 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring, confidential support 549-1906

Professional repair Most brands audio equipment + VCRs Sound + Music 253 Pleasant Street, Northampton 584-9547

$Scholarships$ matching!
International Students too! 24 hr messages! 800-434-8015 ext 500

SPRING CONCERT 5/8/94

Security volunteers needed. Must attend one information meeting- 4/20, 4/28, 5/4 from 7-9pm in the Cape Cod lounge Call UPC at 545-2892 for more info

Volunteers needed for 5 days of fun in the sun! Spring concert cannot happen without your help Come to a UPC general committee meeting on Tuesday, 5/2 at 8pm in cc 165-69 Help wanted for security, hospitality promotions, advertising and stage crew

SUMMER SUBLETS

1 bdrm apt available end of May On bus route 224/mo 253-7188

1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt Cheap Near campus Only $ us line 549-1418 Take over lease option

1 bedroom Puffton Village Available June 1 $440/ mo 549-1969

1,2, or 3 bedrooms in house on Pine St Call 549-2660 or 8030

2 bdrms avail June 1 female, nonsmokers 253-9968

2 bedroom townehouse On bus line Great location! $560/mo 256-1908

2 bedroom Brandywine May 25 to Sept 1 includes everything and free cable! Only $645/ mo w/ fall option 3 couches and table incl 549-4261

2 bedroom apartment $550 a month includes everything 256-1960

TRAVEL

Europe only $169
Coast to coast! $129
Cabo/ Mex $189
Aviritch 1-800 326-2009
Call for program descriptions!!

Sunny Beaches $189 Rt! Cancu or Mexico Europe $169 Aviritch 617-254-2819 Call for

Sports

A rematch in the Carrier Dome

By ANDREW BRYCE
Collegian Staff

The all-important game.

While true to the saying of every game is significant, the University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse team's game against Syracuse on Saturday is of major importance for several reasons.

First of all, Syracuse (10–1) is the No. 1 team in the country, having beaten powerhouses like North Carolina, among others. Second of all, the No. 14 Minutemen (8–3) will have to take on the Orangemen up north at the Carrier Dome, where they have won 48 out of the last 50 games. Third, Massachusetts needs a victory (or a very spectacular showing in a loss) for any postseason chances.

And finally, regardless of the No. 1 ranking at this time, or where the game is being played, or of qualifying for the postseason, there is another simple reason — this is UMass.

The Gorillas were fortunate enough to play the Orangemen already this season (in the Fleet invitational earlier in the month), though unfortunately losing 16–9. Massachusetts spent the week prior to the tourney practicing on pavement and prepared the day of the game in the dining room of the hotel.

"We're looking forward to it," said Coach Ted Garber. "We've already played them. It's like taking an exam and already knowing the answers."

How the Gorillas adjust to their knowledge of Syracuse and how they execute will be key. Now that the season is nearing to a close, Massachusetts has played on grass several times and the hotel may not be a necessity for pregame warmups. This will be the true test, since all parties involved have the season's experience underneath their belt.

For the Orangemen, midfielder Roy Colsey leads in scoring with 42 points, including 32 goals. Fellow middie Charlie Lockwood is up next with 39 points (25 goals) and Jim Morrissey has 34 (24 goals). Rounding out the list of those who have scored over 30 points are Matt Doyle and Dom Finn (33 and 30, respectively).

The Gorillas are coming off a 20–7 victory against Boston College. All-America candidate Mike Valente exploded for a career-high eight assists to go along with a goal, while Jeremy Murphy scored 4 goals. The twenty shots which made it past the BC posts also represented a season-high for Massachusetts.

As for the up-to-date scoring leaders, Valente took over the team lead after his nine point effort with 37 points (26 assists). Brendan Glass and Wes Depp are tied for second with 35 points. Glass' total includes a team-leading 29 goals, while Depp has 23.

CHRISTOPHER RACUSA / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts looks to keep itself alive in the playoff hunt and avenge an earlier loss to the Orangemen when they play Syracuse Saturday afternoon at the Carrier Dome.

For the defense, goalie Tom LoPresti looks to be the projected starter for tomorrow's contest after coming off a 14–save day against BC. Garber said he was pleased to see his junior goaltender play well after a bit of a slump.

"Of the 14 saves, there were many real good saves," said Garber. "He's playing like the old Tom. If Tom comes up with the big saves like he did (on Thursday), we'll be in pretty good shape."

Looking back more closely to the tournament game between the Gorillas and Orangemen, one thing was certain. The second half was a different game than the first, as Massachusetts played the Orangemen to a 6–6 tie in the last 15 minutes. Yet, the spurt was unable to erase the seven- point first half deficit.

You can put money on it that Syracuse is preparing for the stronger Massachusetts squad, that of the second half success.

"We did play well in the second half," said Garber. "What we need is some quick-jump defense. We have been working on different things in our zone defense, but we really don't know what we are going to use just yet."

The Gorillas are going up against the creme de la creme of men's lacrosse. Still, Garber says his team "rises to the occasion," and is confident that if they play up to their capabilities, it will be a great game.

"If we play as well as we're capable of, it could be an interesting game," said Garber. "I never go into a game thinking we're going to lose."

"We've seen them before," said LoPresti. "We know exactly what we have to do to beat them. We know what they have. Hopefully we can do the right thing."

Minutewomen defeated twice by Hofstra

By SEAN P. HAYDEN
Collegian Staff

Hofstra University is not a very gracious host.

The University of Massachusetts softball team traveled to Hempstead, N.Y., and got doubled up by the Flying Dutchwomen, losing a tough 2–0 decision in the first game before being decisively beaten in the nightcap, 9–1.

With the losses, the Minutewomen fall to 21–14 on the season. The sweep improves Hofstra's record to 29–12 and holds secure its No. 2 rank in the Northeast Region.

In the first game, Massachusetts ace Kelly Daut and Hofstra starter Stacy Jackson threw donuts at the opposition until the Flying Dutchwomen broke through with the winning run in the fourth and the insurance run in the fifth.

Senior Crystal Boyd scored the game-winning run for Hofstra and also went 3–for–7 with three runs batted in and three runs scored in the doubleheader.

Daut, who hadn't lost since April 2, saw her record fall to 11–5. She allowed the two runs on six hits.

Jackson picked up her 19th win against four losses this season by shutting the Minutewomen out while scattering five hits.

The Flying Dutchwomen put a five-spot on the board in the second inning to pull away in the second game. The most damaging blow was a Boyd triple with the bases loaded.

Freshman Dani Ortega, whose record has hovered around the .500 mark for most of the season, evened her record at 8–8 with the loss.

Freshman Chris Martens was the lone offensive bright spot for the Minutewomen, going 3–for–5 in the two games. Martens has now hit safely in 27 of her last 28 games.

Massachusetts returns to Totman Field tomorrow for a 1 p.m. doubleheader against Rhode Island and a Sunday doubleheader with Long Island University in which senior co-captains Rachel Lawson and Tracey DuEst will be honored prior to the first game.

Tennis could finish on top

By BILL BALFOUR
Collegian Staff

This weekend, the University of Massachusetts women's tennis team will conclude its season at the Fairfield–ITA Tournament in Fairfield, Conn.

The tournament's field will consist of eight teams highlighted by the United States Military Academy and UMass. The University of Vermont should also play a role at the tournament.

"The women have the opportunity to win or come in second," Coach Judy Dixon said. "Anything less will be a disappointment to me and to them."

The Minutewomen defeated UVM earlier in the season which gives Dixon the belief that UMass can finish at the top of the field.

"We've already beaten Vermont this year so I suspect that we have a chance to do extremely well."

The draw for the tournament will be something different from other tournaments. In singles, all of the No. 1's and No. 2's will play each other, as will the No. 3's and No. 4's and the No. 5's and No. 6's.

In doubles, the No. 1 teams, the No. 2 teams and the No. 3 teams will all play each other.

Liesl Sitton is seeded No. 1 in the flight containing the No. 1 and No. 2 players and is expected to do well. Dixon said she believes UMass has the opportunity to win in each of the flights.

Dixon will use the same lineup she has gone with for most of the season. Elizabeth Durant will play at No. 2 singles, Sonnybelle Martinez will be in the No. 3 spot, Stacey Scheckner at No. 4, Lesley Watts at No. 5 and Mary Edwards will be in the No. 6 spot.

UMass should also be in the top two in each of the doubles flights, which would put the Minutewomen in good shape overall.

The weekend will mark the first time that the Minutewomen will enter a tournament expected to compete for the top spot.

"We have not had the opportunity to play in a tournament with the expectation of doing well," Dixon said. "This is going to be the first time for that."

The UMass program has fought for recognition and should get the chance to view the competition from the top.

"I would like to see what this team does from that place," Dixon said.

Hixon's successor named

Former UM star Donnelly new field hockey coach

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

The waiting is over for the University of Massachusetts field hockey program as Rhode Island Coach Megan Donnelly has been named the interim head coach for the next two years.

Coach Pam Hixon announced in December that she would be accepting the job as head coach of the United States National Field Hockey team until the 1996 Olympics in Atlanta, creating a coaching vacancy at UMass. After a five- month search, Donnelly was chosen.

The move was a homecoming for Donnelly, who played at UMass from 1982–85. She was an All-American all four years and played on the 1988 Olympic team in Seoul, Korea. In 1983, she helped lead the Minutewomen to the Final Four, where she was named to the NCAA All-Tournament Team.

"The department is very excited about having Megan return. She was a great player here," said Associate Athletic Director Al Rufe. "There were some strong candidates for the position. Speaking for Elaine Sortino, Bob Marcum, and Pam Hixon, we're thrilled to have her return."

Donnelly said she was pleased at getting the position.

"I'm pretty excited. It's my alma mater," said Donnelly. "It's an honor to be taking Pam's place. I know some of the players pretty well. They're good kids."

Donnelly is one of the fastest rising young coaches in the sport. She had stints as an assistant at UMass in 1988, Stanford, Boston College and Penn State. She has coached at URI for the last two years, returning URI to the Atlantic 10 Tournament.

"It's been really fast. I'm not even 30. It's come a lot quicker than I expected," said Donnelly. "This is a good opportunity."

Donnelly said that her parting with Rhode Island was amicable.

"They understand. The first few days were tough," said Donnelly. "It was emotional. The URI kids will be up for that game (UMass versus URI)."

Donnelly said she understands that this is only temporary spot.

"I'm going to take it from the point that I'll only be here two years," said Donnelly of her future.

Donnelly will officially begin coaching May 9.

Guido grades the '94 NFL Draft

The Colts choked, the Pats stood pat and defense was the order of the day at the NFL Draft last Sunday and Monday in New York City.

The Cincinnati Bengals tried forever to trade the number one pick. The Bengals did select Dan Wilkinson, defensive tackle from Ohio State. The financially-strapped Bengals will struggle to sign "Big Daddy," offering less money than the last two number one picks received.

Anthony Guido

The Indianapolis Colts could have set up their offense for the next 12 years as they had two of the top five picks after some adept trading. The Colts smartly chose super-back Marshall Faulk from San Diego State to form a running game around.

After moving up, the Colts selected linebacker Trev Alberts (a borderline top–10 prospect) with the number five pick. Stupid move. Jim Harbaugh is your starting quarterback. If your goal is to improve every year, then you'll never be in position to draft a franchise QB again. Trent Differ of Fresno State fell all the way to six as the lowly Tampa Bay Buccaneers finally got a break.

Oh, the New England Patriots also may have reached a bit in selecting DE/OLB Willie McGinest of Southern California with the fourth pick. The Pats could have traded down to add depth to the roster. Coach Bill Parcells chose the best defensive player on his board.

Understandable, if you look at past failures the Pats have had in trading down in the draft. They've missed out on players like Jerry Rice, Cortez Kennedy and Junior Seau. However, new owner Robert Kraft gave Parcells free reign to take gambles. Parcells didn't; this draft will not make New England significantly better.

The Patriots traded for RB Marion Butts to be the big, bruising runner Parcells covets. Butts may be a little over the hill; big backs take a lot of hits — just ask Christian Okoye.

Tampa Bay has set up a decent future with rifle-armed Differ and second-round selection RB Errict Rhett, a sleeper and local hero out as a Florida Gator.

The Washington Redskins took the only other offensive player in the top 12 with QB Heath Shuler of Tennessee, a better athlete than a lot of the running backs in the draft.

The San Francisco 49ers traded up to select DT Bryant Young of Notre Dame after dealing LB Bill Romanowski to Philadelphia. Young isn't the pass rusher they need but will be a rock on the defensive line.

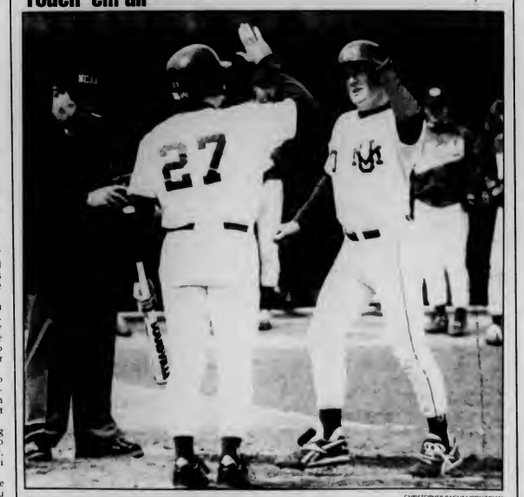
Next up the Seattle Seahawks went for DE Sam Adams — the knocks on him are about his desire. Adams has a great up side; he will team with Kennedy to form a combination reminiscent of Reggie White and Clyde Simmons. Moving down for Adams, who can play on every down, would have been a better move for the Patriots.

The Cleveland Browns chose cornerback Antonio Langham with the ninth pick, for some reason passing over the faster, more athletic and versatile Aaron Glenn. The New York Jets had Glenn, a top eight prospect, fall into their laps at 12.

The Los Angeles Raiders, with the worst running game in the league, waited until the third round to draft Calvin Jones out of Nebraska. Unbelievable, especially with first-round talents LeShon Johnson and Bam Morris still available.

The Heisman trophy winner went undrafted for the first time since 1943. Sorry, Charlie, but maybe you have a better shot in that NBA draft on June 29.

Hey, Mel Kiper, Jr., calm down and get another hobby!



Anthony Guido is a Collegian columnist.

SPORTS NOTICE:

On Tuesday, May 10 at 3:30 p.m. on Lower Boyden Field near the Water Treatment Plant off Mullins Way, a fund-raising activity/game will take place between the UMass women's soccer team (ranked No. 3 nationally) and a team of faculty members.

The match is being billed as a contest of "Youth and Talent" versus "Age and Guile." Any faculty/staff member who might like to participate should call Coach Jim Rudy at 545–4343.

Touch 'em all

CHRISTOPHER RACUSA/COLLEGIAN

Rightfielder Bill Knight is congratulated by senior Justin Howard after blasting a home run, which landed near the hockey practice rink, last weekend in a game against West Virginia. The Minutemen entertain Atlantic 10 foe Duquesne for a three-game series, a doubleheader on Saturday and the finale on Sunday.

One writer's tribute to Bart Simpson Page 5

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Weather
Partly Sunny with highs in the mid-50s. Same for Tuesday.

Monday
May 2, 1994
Volume CIII Issue 117

World

Mandela has momentum

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Nelson Mandela's African National Congress rolled toward a decisive victory Sunday as election officials counted millions of paper ballots in South Africa's first free election.

The vote, which ended Friday, will propel Mandela into the presidency of a new, democratic South Africa. He will lead a coalition government that is expected to include the outgoing president, F.W. de Klerk.

Despite its strong showing, the ANC was in danger of missing the two-thirds majority that would give it power to write a new constitution single-handedly. It also trailed in voting for legislatures in two of the nine provinces.

Vote counting had been scheduled to begin at dawn Saturday, but many of the 800 counting centers did not start until evening. By Sunday afternoon, with 11 percent of the nationwide vote tallied, the ANC had 1,384,277 votes, or 53.9 percent, to 856,125, or 33.4 percent, for de Klerk's National Party.

Arafat and Rabin to sign agreement Wednesday

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Israeli and PLO delegates opened their expected final round of talks on Palestinian autonomy Sunday, with both sides expressing confidence they would meet a Wednesday deadline.

In Jerusalem, the Israeli Cabinet gave its approval for signing the agreement for limited Palestinian self-rule in the occupied Gaza Strip and West Bank town of Jericho.

National

Program for women at VMI

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — A federal judge approved a plan by the all-male Virginia Military Institute to set up a similar, military-style program for women at Mary Baldwin College.

U.S. District Judge Jackson L. Kiser ruled late Friday that the proposed Virginia Women's Institute for Leadership must be operational by fall 1995. Mary Baldwin is a private all-female college in Staunton.

The U.S. Justice Department had sued VMI, claiming the exclusion of women at the state-supported school is discriminatory. An appeals court agreed, but gave the state the option of setting up a similar program for women.

Under the plan, the leadership school would not include the 24-hour military atmosphere of VMI, established 155 years ago. There would be no spartan barracks and no boot-camplike indoctrination.

But women would be required to wear uniforms and participate in Reserve Officer Training Corps.

"We are very pleased with the decision," said Lt. Col. Michael Strickler, a spokesman for VMI, in Lexington. "It's a victory for single-sex education - for both all-male and all-female schools."

State/Regional

Boston cop charged with rape

BOSTON (AP) — A veteran Boston police officer was arrested early Saturday on a charge of raping a woman in a downtown parking garage while on duty.

Leo Coogan, 60, of Milton, turned himself in at 1:40 a.m., police said.

The victim reportedly was a 28-year-old prostitute, who said Coogan picked her up in his police cruiser and threatened to arrest her if she did not give him oral sex.

"He scared me into doing it, his weapon was his badge," the woman told WBZ-TV. "You know, he didn't have a gun or a knife at my throat, but he did have his badge where he was going to arrest me, and I didn't want to go to jail. So I did."

Police officials called the incident an isolated incident. "I want to express my personal anger and disappointment over the incident, over the apparent abuse of power and violation of trust," Police Commissioner Paul Evans said.

Students REAP program benefits

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

Early on a Sunday morning last March, freshman Joe was awakened in his dormitory room at the University of Massachusetts by police officers.

After a night of hard drinking, Joe blacked out in his room without remembering that the night before he was so drunk that he came back to his dormitory and tried to enter the wrong room, thinking that it was his. He scared the woman who lived there, who thought he was trying to break into her room.

The dormitory Residential Director, who actually explained to Joe exactly what he had done, gave him two options: he could move out of the dormitory or he could go to the Residential Educational Alcohol Program (REAP).

REAP is a program designed to help students with alcohol and drug problems. REAP also strives to educate students on the dangers of sexually transmitted diseases. Students can be sent to REAP for a variety of alcohol-related offenses in the dormitories, offenses that range from carrying an open container of alcohol in the hallway to becoming abusive and harming school property or other people.

Sandra Johnston-Whitcomb, a UMass graduate, is the director of the program. She said when students come to REAP, she aims to get them to take a look at themselves and their drinking patterns, and not to make them feel self-conscious.

"Our goal is not to embarrass or humiliate the students," Whitcomb said. "We try to get them to think about how much they drink and why they got into trouble. We are not trying to cut people down to size. We just want them to take an honest look at their drinking so that they can change their behavior and not get into trouble again."

Students who attend REAP are required to attend three educational sessions, complete homework assignments outside of the classroom and write a paper about

Turn to REAP, page 3

Local kids have blast at volunteer carnival

By GAYLE DOUGHERTY and TRACY MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

Time, friendship and enthusiasm were donated by college students and local businesses Saturday afternoon to provide a day filled with activity and fun for children living in local homeless shelters.

The children crowded the School of Management lawn at the University of Massachusetts to participate in and enjoy the second annual "Kid's Carnival."

The carnival was sponsored by the Volunteer Initiative Blending Education and Service and gave the children a chance to play in the sun.

Helen Plosky, one of the organizers of the event, said children from local homeless shelters were the participants in the day's event.

"We have invited about 150 children from shelters in Northampton, Amherst and Holyoke to the carnival," Plosky, a sophomore School of Management major, said.

Plosky, Amy Sullivan, Melissa Piskocz and Jen McCue organized the event.

Youngsters snacked on popcorn, cotton candy, ice cream and punch while strolling through the grounds and listening to the music.

Two young boys showcased their baseball skills by hitting homeruns at the mini-wiffle ball field.

Children with steady hands successfully practiced their shaving techniques on colorful balloons.

They also took turns ringing the bell of an Amherst fire engine. Other activities included the basketball throw, ring toss, Twister, water balloon toss, face painting and a toy booth.

Turn to KIDS, page 2

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN

Film star Alec Baldwin.

Baldwin lends hand to Senator Kennedy

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

"As young people, you are an important part to future campaigns."

On April 30, over 250 people gathered outside of Greenough residence hall at the University of Massachusetts to hear film star and Democrat, Alec Baldwin, speak about Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's (D-Mass.) campaign.

The event was organized by Neil Carpenter and Steven Cohen, both juniors, and the main contact to the Kennedys, freshman Chris Doherty.

Baldwin — a longtime supporter of Sen. Kennedy — said students should be concerned about who is elected as Senator.

"The most important reason I'm here today, is because the senate is a nationwide, deliberant body. The composition of the United States Senate is important to us all," Baldwin said.

Baldwin said he feels that Sen. Kennedy has done, and will continue to do, many great things for the state and country.

He said Kennedy has been fighting for women's rights, gay rights and gun control.

"Kennedy has for 32 years lent a certain progressive strife and progressive force to the U.S. Senate," he said. "One of the most respected senators is that of Ted Kennedy. His political stances are politically correct."

Baldwin was also joined by Sen. Kennedy's nephew, Michael Kennedy. He also talked about what Kennedy has done and why he should be reelected.

"The thing that separates the Republicans from the Democrats in this state is the ability to fight street to street and war to war, and Sen. Kennedy can do this," Kennedy said.

One of the main goals of the Kennedy campaign is to reach the local campus communities and get the students involved with politics.

Baldwin said it is important for students to be aware of political issues.

"Take this time of your life to put your political beliefs in to action," he said.

Baldwin also spoke at seven other colleges in Massachusetts, including Harvard University, Smith College, Mt. Holyoke College, Boston University and Boston College.

Students sample the world

International fair gives chance to share cultures

By EVELYN A. DE JESUS
Collegian Staff

It is possible to go around the world at the Student Union Ballroom. More than 2,000 people proved it last Saturday.

Dances, colorful flags, typical food and students in costumes representing at least 46 countries composed the 16th annual International Fair, sponsored by the International Students Association.

"People come to ask about the music and the food, then they come back to say they liked it," said a student from the Dominican Republic table, which was selling rice and beans, stewed chicken and potato salad among other typical food.

Joe Soonthornsawad, a School of Management junior from Thailand, said it took eight hours to make a Thai Rainbow Pearl (Tab Tim Krob), a dessert punch which was sold on the Thai table, along with the Thai iced tea.

The sweet punch is made out of water chestnuts, coconut milk, jack fruit and taploca starch, and is garnished with sliced jack fruit and topped with ice.

One of the Thai students said that what is special about Thailand is that the country has never been a colony from an European country.

"It's a culturally enriching experience," said Stockbridge senior Doug Paul about the activity.

Students walked around all the time browsing around the different handcrafts: Australian boomerangs, a table figurine of a woman in horse made out of donkey and horse skin from the Dominican Republic, Haitian wood sculptures and jewelry from Latin American and East Asian countries.

People's names could be written in Japanese language at the Japanese table, which also had origami displays.

For some students, the International Fair was an opportunity to look for support, like in the Bosnian cause.

Students from Bosnia had a table display in which the public could sign a petition against Bosnian genocide or write a letter for the cause.

The petition condemned aggression and genocide and enforced the United Nations Security Council resolution, giving priority to human assistance and protection.

"They show a lot of support and good feedback," said Ahmet Inceli, a doctoral chemistry student who expressed his satisfaction for the 200 people who signed it.

Petitions were going to be mailed on Monday,

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN

The International Fair brought entertainment from all over the globe.

incell said.

For Puerto Rican students, there are no political barriers when it comes to display at their table either.

"We [Puerto Rico] are not a country, but we need to have our table," said Frances Rodriguez, a Hotel Restaurant and Travel Administration exchange student from the University of Puerto Rico. "We consider ourselves a country, we have our own culture."

"People come to ask us to teach them how to dance salsa," Rodriguez said.

The countries' tables were set around a stage in the Ballroom, Commonwealth Room and Cape Cod Lounge. More than 33 flags of different countries were hanging from the Ballroom's walls.

There were performances of Middle East dances, Taiwan, Malaysia, Spaniard flamenco, and Latin

Turn to FAIR, page 2

Judge lays down laws in course on civil rights

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Staff

When you register for Judd Carhart's legal studies classes, you might be getting more for your lab fees.

Returning to his alma mater, Superior Court Judge Judd Carhart is teaching classes in the legal studies department. This semester, 60 students are taking his course, Individual Right and Legal Practices, and last spring he taught Civil Rights and the Law. Carhart plans to teach Civil Rights again next semester.

"I really enjoy it," said Carhart. "I learn a lot from the students. I'm interested in the questions they have and what they see as important issues in the law."

"It is very evident that Judge Carhart is deeply committed to educating citizens and working with students to increase their understanding of the relationship between individuals and the law," said Ethan Katsh, the chair of the legal studies department.

"I could listen to him for six hours and never want to go home," said Bari Zell, a senior legal studies major. "He is like no other professor I have ever had. He is fair, kind and so learned."

Carhart graduated from the University of Massachusetts in 1971, and was appointed to the bench in April 1993. He served as district attorney for the Northwestern District from 1988 to 1993 and was president of the Massachusetts District Attorneys Association from 1989 to 1990. In 1990, he was appointed by the Supreme Judicial Court to the Commission to Study Racial and Ethnic Bias in the Courts and to the Superior Court Criminal Justice Study Committee in 1991.

Turn to LAWS, page 2

Sorority lends a hand to help Survival Center

The Amherst Survival Center's kitchen and pantry was in desperate need of a new paint job and wax sealing for the floor. That is until the University of Massachusetts chapter of the sorority Chi Omega showed up to give a hand.

Nineteen members of the sorority were on hand to help the center paint shelves and polyurethane the floors last week.

The Amherst Survival Center is a group that works in the local community and surrounding areas to bring emergency food and clothing to the needy.

They also will deliver clothing and day-old bread and food to those who do not have transportation access to the center.

The center runs the pantry and kitchen to bring lunches to those who may have nowhere to turn for a meal. The kitchen and pantry is located on North Pleasant Street in North Amherst.

Chi Omega is the largest national sorority. The UMass chapter consists of 42 sisters and 19 pledges.

The sorority is dedicated to community service and they urge their members to get involved in at least one project for the community a semester.

Besides volunteering their help at the Survival Center, Chi Omega has sponsored fundraisers for multiple sclerosis and participated in Workout for Hope, an aerobic marathon to raise money for AIDS.

— GINA LARSON

FYI

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Monday, May 2

Broadcast — Valley Access Network will air program two of their series on works of Five College film and video students at 8 p.m. on Ch. 19.

Elections — Union Video Center officer elections will be held until 5 p.m. at UVC. Call 545-1336 for more information.

Meeting — Progressive Organization for Women's Rights will meet at 8:30 p.m. in Student Union Room 306.

Tuesday, May 3

Lecture — Mab Segrest will discuss "Fighting Racism in the Nineties: The Transformation of a White Southern Lesbian" from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in Campus Center Room 804-08. Sponsored by STPEC.

Lecture — Jenny Daniels will speak on practicing social justice law from 1:25 p.m. to 3:20 p.m. in Herter Hall Room 202. Hosted by STPEC's career planning course; all STPEC students invited.

Lecture — Alex Pacheco, president of the People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, will discuss "Changing Minds, Changing Times" at 8 p.m. in Herter Hall gallery. Sponsored by the Animal Rights Coalition.

Wednesday, May 4

Lecture — Brian Egan will discuss "The History of the Polka: Part II" at 8 p.m. in School of Management Room 116. Sponsored by the Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures and the Program in Soviet and East European Studies.

Discussion — Barbara Kerewsky-Halpern and Muhamed Borogouac will be featured on a panel discussing, "After Gorazde: What Next?" at 8:20 p.m. in Prince/ Crampton House International Lounge.

Ongoing

Phone line — Peer Health Connections offers information and reiertals for a variety of issues. Call 549-2671 ext. 168 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; voice mail messages remain confidential.

Art show — The Senior Art Show, featuring the work of Sarah Elliott and Theresa Giammattei, is on exhibit at the UMass Tower Library reference section.

Volunteer — The Companion Program of Hampshire County needs volunteers to spend three to five hours a week with a local child. Call the Resource Center, a United Way agency, at 253-2591.

Study — Study hall with free coffee and tea is open from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday at the Berkshire and Worcester Dining Commons.

HIV hotline — The HIV Antibodies Counseling and Testing Hotline can be reached at 1-800-750-2016. Administered by Family Planning Council of Western Massachusetts.

Host family — A host family, preferably in the Amherst Regional School District, is needed for a Croatian high school student in the 1994-95 school year. Call 256-6445.

■ fair

continued from page 1

American merengues and salsa.

The audience's response of enjoyment would be heard with claps and cheers whenever their country's performance was presented or in the same way when they enjoyed a presentation.

According to Ishita Yeemen, an ISA officer, this is the first time students from the five college area got together to put up the fair.

"We have worked so hard to put up together," said Yeemen, who is an economics sophomore from Bangladesh. "I'm so happy people took interest in coming."

"Hopefully, next year it will better," Yeemen said.

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN

Senior mechanical engineering major Erika Henderson (left) and junior industrial engineering major Maria de Gracia are decked in "pollera" skirts with tembleques and hair pieces made of fish scales at the international Fair.

Cape Verdean identity discussed

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN

Joseph Moniz.

By SHAMELE STRAUGHTER
Collegian Correspondent

The 9th Annual Cape Verdean Awareness Day Conference came to a climax as keynote speaker, Joseph Moniz, delivered a speech encompassing Cape Verdean awareness and identity.

Moniz, attorney and chairman of the Foundation of Carbo Verde, originally prepared a speech, but altered it because of the audience's interest in his recent controversial speech given in Rhode Island.

That speech centered around Cape Verdeans and the lack of understanding of "who they are." He said some believe Cape Verdeans are Portuguese, but he said if they are "Portuguese than why do we look different."

Moniz encouraged the audience to view themselves as "first Cape Verdean, Cape Verdean American if you live here." He told the audience that "in the bigger picture we are African American."

"It only takes two things to know who we are, a map and a mirror," Moniz said.

The use of the map indicates that Cape Verde is an island off of the coast of Africa. The mirror reflects the fact that Cape Verdeans are of African descent.

Moniz said Cape Verdeans' disunified identity has been contributed to by colonialists who taught Cape Verdeans that they were better than the mainland Africans.

Carbo Verde was discovered in 1453 by an Italian and Portuguese navigator. The land was used as a port in which trade was done with mainland Africa. To inhabit the land Portuguese mixed with Africans creating the race of people which is now known as Cape Verdeans.

Moniz said during the colonization of Africa, there was the removal of Cape Verde's "most important resource, its people."

He said he believes that the controversy is a "result of people wanting to be what they are not." He proceeded to remind the audience that "many ethnic groups maintain their ethnic identity." However, Africans and descendants from Africa are "as much a part of us as we are of them."

Moniz also discussed the current state of Cape Verde. Due to the cultural revolution that is currently taking place in Africa, he said he feels that Cape Verde "will not be the same country that you know. For those of us who ignore this we don't realize that it is affecting our homeland."

Due to the greater amount of experience and resources that Cape Verdean Americans have, Moniz encouraged Cape Verdean students to return to Cape Verde and share their "collective experience and resources."

The Foundation of Carbo Verde was established two years ago with the "interest of giving back to Cape Verde."

■ kids

continued from page 1

Raffle tickets were given out at the registration table. Items to be raffled included gift certificates to Bertucci's, Classe Cafe and The Depot.

Twenty-five local and national sponsors aided the carnival festivities. Milton Bradley, Cape Cod Potato Chips, Friendly's, Price Chopper, the Lord Jeffery Inn and Soda and Pet Food City were a few of the sponsors who made contributions to the event.

■ laws

continued from page 1

He served as U.S. District Attorney from 1978 to 1981 and as an assistant district attorney in Norfolk County following his admission to the bar in 1974.

"These students will someday be the 'system', and as they gain responsibility they will be making policy," said Carhart. "I hope they are learning that the Constitution is alive and affects their daily lives."

"He is my complete inspiration," said Zell, who is going on to law school in the fall. "I want to follow in his footsteps."

Summer at Brandeis University

Liberal Arts
Near Eastern and Judaic Studies
Premedical Sciences
Foreign Languages: intensive, on-campus and overseas
Chamber Music Workshop
Internship programs in: Law, Medicine and Health Policy or Public Service and Social Analysis

Session I — June 6-July 8
Session II — July 11-August 12

- Small classes taught by Brandeis faculty
- Competitive tuition
- Easy access from Rtes. 128/95/90
- Free parking

Information, catalog and application:

Summer Program Office
Rabb School of Summer, Special, and Continuing Studies
Brandeis University
P.O. Box 9110
Waltham, MA 02254-9110
(617) 736-3424
FAX: (617) 736-3420

Two essential ingredients for a perfect date:

A date and this.

It's everywhere you want to be.

© Visa U.S.A. Inc. 1994

DRUNK DRIVING DOESN'T JUST KILL DRUNK DRIVERS.

Next time your friend insists on driving drunk, do whatever it takes to stop him. Because if he kills innocent people, how will you live with yourself?

UMass Summer Session 1994

- Missed a course? Make it up!
- Advance in next semester's work
- Fulfill a requirement
- Learn something new

Over 200 credit courses offered.

Two, six-week sessions:
First session: June 7-July 15
Second session: July 19-August 25

Register Now!

Catalogs available all over campus or at the Division of Continuing Education, 6th floor Goodell Building, 545-2414.

A quality education at affordable prices.

SUICIDAL?
LAY IT ON THE LINE.
617-247-0220
The Samaritans

College Pro Home Painters
Get a tan painting this summer
Positions available all across New England. Great Pay!
Call 1-800-346-4649

From $199 Each Way
LONDON
Eurail Passes Issued on the Spot!
All other Rail Passes Also Available

Hong Kong	$469
Paris	$219
Brussels	$252

* Departure from New York

Council Travel

Fares are 1/0 round trips. Departure from Boston unless otherwise indicated. Taxes and surcharges not included. Fares subject to change. Student or Faculty I.D. may be required.

79 S. Pleasant Street, 2nd Floor
Amherst, MA 0102
413-256-1961

■ REAP

continued from page 1

what they have learned in the program. But most of all, they are required to participate in the group discussions and to learn about the effects alcohol can have on the body.

"I learned that when you drink until you black out it kills an amazing amount of brain cells," Joe said. "Maybe that's why I feel really stupid the day after I drink a lot."

Joe also said he learned that his drinking patterns had put him into the "high risk" category of drinkers. He said his behavior was influenced by his roommate, John.

"John would buy a case of beer every weekend and I would split it with him, but he could handle it better and he wouldn't black out like I would," he said. "But I always thought, 'If he can do it, why can't I?'"

National statistics show that Joe's drinking patterns are not atypical of college students. According to a study by the Commission of the Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse at Columbia University, one out of three college students now drinks primarily to get drunk and that 10 to 15 percent of the college population can be classified as alcoholics.

The study also said students who think all of their friends drink, consume six times as much as students who say that only some of their peers drink.

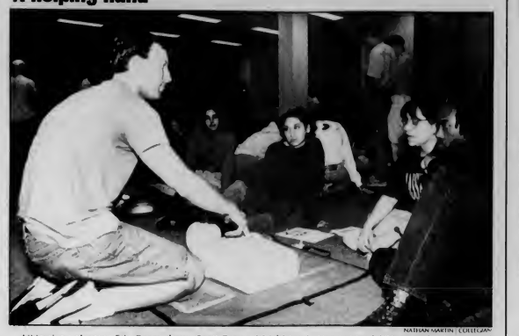
At the end of the REAP experience the students are asked to write a paper. Whitcomb said the paper is where the students, especially the shy ones, open up and examine themselves and their relationships with others that have been affected by alcohol.

"The papers are unbelievable," Whitcomb said. "They are filled with honest appraisals of who they are and what is going on in their lives. We hear a lot of perceptual stuff about date rape, parental abuse and other things people would not admit to in an open session."

Whitcomb admitted that the program has not helped all of its students. She said the students cannot be helped if they do not want to change.

Eric, a REAP veteran and an admitted heavy drinker, said he and other students went to the program with a cynical attitude about it, without much intention of changing their behavior.

"It didn't really do much," Eric said. "It's not really her [Whitcomb's] fault, the people don't really want to be helped. But Sandra is really nice. I run into her every once in a while and she remembers my name and she asks me questions."



Other students, however, do end up changing their behavior because of the program. And in the process, they make a new friend.

"I learned a lot from REAP, I had a really positive experience," said Anthony. "Sandra has become one of my best friends, I can go and talk to her about anything."

Overall, Joe agreed that REAP was a positive experience for him.

"I liked it. It gave me a chance to learn and to talk without worrying about being hauled away or people judging me. I learned a lot about what alcohol does to my body. And I learned that a lot of other kids were going through the same things i was," he said.

A helping hand

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN

UMassive volunteer Eric Beam shows Scott Brown ('94 history), Nancy Hand ('96 animal science) and Deborah Shanik ('95 communications disorders) the proper way to perform CPR.

Police invade 'Hobart Ho-Down'

AMHERST (AP) — Some area students complain that continued police pressure on underage drinkers is like a dark cloud over spring.

Police arrested 36 people and seized 12 kegs at one home during a weekend outdoor bash of 1,500 students.

"It's just forcing kids to drink and drive," one University of Massachusetts student and bar manager, who declined to give his name, said of new town bylaws that make it more difficult to purchase and drink alcohol.

Two years ago the town passed a bylaw requiring those who buy a keg to also get a permit from police. One year before, officials passed another bylaw outlawing open alcohol containers in a town with three colleges and three-quarters of the student population under the drinking age, some are complaining.

"It's nice out and everybody likes having parties outside," said the bar manager. "Kids need to release some energy, and it's hard if there are no outlets."

Saturday's party was well-orchestrated one, with plastic beer cups for $6 that read "Hobart Ho-Down '94," temporary fences and local bands playing in the sunshine. Several hours into the fiesta, 25 police officers broke up the party and arrested 36 students for charges including operating an illegal bar, selling alcohol to minors, open container violations and disorderly conduct.

"They don't let you do anything anymore," said Kim Nelson. Nelson, a bartender and student who was at the party, said students are frustrated.

"I don't know why (police) bust them up," she said. "There was no harm being done, except maybe underage drinking."

Police Sgt. John O'Connor said town alcohol retailers have complained that their business is going to neighboring communities, which sell kegs without permits.

News Briefs

Compiled by Marni E. Helfner

School of Nursing offers osteoporosis program

Osteoporosis, a disease that affects thousands of women across America, will be the focus of a program offered by the School of Nursing. Featuring Helen Carclo, assistant clinical professor of nursing, "Osteoporosis: A Practical Approach to the Premenopausal Woman" will be held May 12 at 6 p.m. in the Depot Restaurant.

The program will also recognize the physicians and nurse practitioners who have worked with and contributed to the work of the faculty and students of Graduate Primary Care Concentration.

The graduate nursing program has 63 enrolled students, with 14 completing their studies and preparing for certification as Nurse Practitioners this May.

HRTA profs travel to conference

The department of hotel, restaurant, and travel administration recently sent three faculty members to present papers sharing research and management application issues at the Northeast Recreation Research Conference in Saratoga Springs, N.Y.

Lawrence Klar Jr., Rod Warnick and David Bojanic all participated in the conference, for which the University was a supporting sponsor.

The conference coordinator was Gail Vander Stoep, a former faculty member of UMass.

High school students to get a taste of art

In an effort to provide an idea of what the UMass art community has to offer future students, the UMass art department is sponsoring a series of group visits for high school students.

The students and their teachers are from Central High School in Springfield, who visited on April 27th, and from Holyoke High School, who will be visiting on May 3rd.

The visit will include a tour of the campus, meetings with faculty members, and the opportunity to participate in a UMass drawing class.

Gilreath Manor Condos
- on Hobart Lane -

3 Bedroom • 1½ baths • Heated Basement
New Gas Heat & Hot Water
1/2 Mile to campus • On Bus Route

Showings Start in April
for June or September Occupancy!
Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St • 253-7879

It's 11p.m. Pulling an all-nighter. You have it all figured out. No Problem. You've procrastinated to the point that the laundry is done and you have called all your friends (twice). That 20-page paper is due in less than 10 hours. Your Macintosh just died.

Big Problem.

MacE.M.T.
549-4EMT
We Make Service Calls At All Hours

SUMMER JOBS AVAILABLE

Evening security workers wanted for Bright Moments Festival on July 14, 21, 28 for approximately 5-6 hours/shift. Limited number of additional hours available. UMass students returning in Fall only. Fine Arts Center is an AA/EO employer. Description and application available at 2 Curry Hicks.

DEADLINE MAY 6

Lincoln Real Estate
has the best selection of 1, 2, & 3 bedroom Uptown Apartments with Gas Heat.

We begin showing apartments in April and May for June or September Occupancy.

253-7879 • 25 N. Pleasant St.

BANANARAMA
fabulous frozen YOGURT

NONFAT SOFT FROZEN YOGURT
GREAT TOPPINGS BAR
NONFAT YOGURT BIRTHDAY PIES

Call for Flavors • 253-2774
One Boltwood Walk (down the alley), Amherst

ATTENTION UNIVERSITY OF MASS EMPLOYEES:

Take a closer look at CHP.

We think you'll like what you see.

The CHP Amherst Health Center is hosting an open house for our current members, and anyone who is considering joining CHP. Come and meet the staff and tour the facility. Light refreshments will be served. For information and appointments call 413/549-1212.

May 5.....5:30-7:30 p.m.

CHP Amherst Health Center
29 Cottage Street
Amherst, MA

Andrew Hall, M.D.
Andrew Larkin, M.D.
Brian Scanlan, M.D.
Amy Metzger, C.N.M., M.S.N.
Pamela Drexler-Lopez, C.N.M., B.A.
Lisa Kuczarski, R.D.

Community Health Plan
You and CHP, a healthy partnership

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
The Nation's Oldest Daily Newspaper on New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

MICHAEL MORRISSEY Editor-in-Chief

Managing Editor DARIENNE HOSLEY — MICHAEL MCRAE Business Manager
Arts & Living Editor EMILY A. MARINO — LISA JEZOWSKI Production Manager
Black Affairs Editor RODNEY POWELL — DANIELLE YANNO Advertising Manager
Developing Nations Editor JUAN J. CHACON QUIROS — STEPHANIE SHORE Finance Manager
Editorial/Opinion Editor MIKE CARVALHO — ANDREW DAVIDSON Night Graphics Manager
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor STEPHEN C. CAMPBELL — JIM BRUNEAU, CAITLIN OLSON Day Graphics Managers
Jewish Affairs Editor JACOB W. MICHAELS — JEREMY DAGGETT Circulation Manager
Multicultural Affairs Editor EVELYN A. DE JESUS — ERIC ABENAIM Subscriptions Manager
News Editor TRACY MONAHAN — MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI Senior Bookkeeper
Photography Editor NATHAN MARTIN — BLAKE PHILLIPS Graphics Professional
Sports Editor ARTHUR STAPLETON JR. — MARTY PAPPAS Classified Advertising
Women's Issues Editor VANESSA ARIN — TURLEY PUBLICATIONS Printing Services

113 CAMPUS CENTER BASEMENT · UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS · AMHERST, MA 01003 · (413) 545-3500 · FAX (413) 545-1592

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday–Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. Letters to the editor are encouraged and will be printed on a space-available basis. All submissions must be typed, kept to a maximum of 400 words, and should include the writer's name, address, year and major, as well as a phone number for verification purposes. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, taste and length. Persons wishing to submit guest columns should contact the Editorial/Opinion editor in advance. The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers or cartoonist and do not necessarily represent those of the Collegian. Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Editorial Board

May Day, a forgotten holiday

Sunday, May 1, was May Day, celebrated around the world as the international workers' holiday. However, even though it began in the United States, this is the only industrial nation which does not recognize it. The vast majority of Americans know nothing about it, or labor history in general, or even the contemporary role of the labor movement in our society.

The year 1886 was a momentous one in American labor history. This was the era of the "robber barons" — the tremendous growth in the size, wealth and power of industrialists and corporations in the U.S.

Unions had no legal rights to bargain collectively with their employers; the law and the courts were generally used against workers and their unions by corporations and their allies in government. Unions had few options other than strikes, often long and bitter, to pressure employers to negotiate fair labor agreements.

On May 4, 1886, union leaders in Chicago held a mass rally in Haymarket Square to advocate for the eight-hour day (something most American workers now take for granted, but was in fact achieved only after decades of struggle).

During the rally, someone — to this day no one really knows who — set off a bomb in the crowd which killed and wounded many, including eight policemen killed and over 70 wounded. Police then fired on the crowd, killing or wounding even more.

Almost immediately, authorities and the sensationalistic press of the time blamed several labor activists who organized or addressed the rally and a severe anti-labor sentiment was whipped up throughout the country.

Despite no evidence which linked them to the bombing, eight activists were convicted of the bombing on the theory that their political expression of "radical" ideas such as the eight-hour day directly caused the deaths and injuries at the rally. Amid an international outcry of protest, the eight were executed by hanging.

In honor of the Haymarket martyrs May 1st, or May Day, became the international workers' holiday everywhere except the United States where it all began.

Besides the eight-hour day, the labor movement went on to win many other victories for working people, such as laws prohibiting child labor, and establishing minimum wages, occupational safety and health rules, and social security and unemployment insurance.

Its support was crucial in obtaining passage of other progressive legislation such as civil rights and anti-discrimination laws, and will be crucial in the future if we are ever able to have meaningful national health care reform or laws to protect workers and their communities when corporations desert them for low-wage locations around the world.

However, unions have been in decline since their peak membership and influence in the 1940s to the point where they only represent about 15 percent of the private sector work force.

It is no coincidence that the decline in the labor movement has paralleled the decline in incomes, public services and other aspects of our standard of living, while the rich elite in our country have seen their incomes and control over the nation's wealth skyrocket in the past few decades.

It is no coincidence that the decline in the labor movement has paralleled the decline in incomes, public services and other aspects of our standard of living.

Tom Coish

While unions have their faults and have made mistakes, they have been singled out for generally negative treatment by the media which is largely owned and controlled by large corporations and conservative, anti-labor interests.

Many unions are struggling to reverse these trends through new, innovative organizing strategies and alliances with other grassroots community organizations with common progressive agendas, as well as labor unions and activists throughout the world.

The labor movement remains one of the largest and most progressive forces for economic and social justice both here and around the world. Without a strong and revitalized labor movement here and abroad, it is very unlikely that our serious social and economic problems can be solved, and the quality of life for most people will continue to erode. Learning about and remembering May Day and labor history could be an important part of such a revitalization.

The lack of knowledge of the history and significance of May Day and labor history in general among most Americans is largely the product of the ownership or control of our media, publishing industry and educational system by major corporations and anti-labor politicians.

Few Americans know much about unions and their economic and historical role in society other than stories of strikes and corrupt union officials. It is important for workers and others supportive of labor in general to inform themselves and others about the untold story of the American labor movement.

Tom Coish is an attorney at the Student Legal Services Office and a member of Local 509 Service Employees' International Union (SEIU), the professional staff union at UMass.

Don't take voting for granted

For many people in South Africa, the elections held last week offered them the chance to vote for the first time in their lives. Nelson Mandela is 75 years old and voted for the first time last week. People of all ages from all over South Africa stood in lines that went on forever in order to vote. And, for the first time, Whites stood in the same lines as Blacks in order to cast a ballot, a privilege Whites have enjoyed exclusively for far too long.

Obviously, this is a moving time for people all over the world, and history is now in the making. South Africans were shown on the news dancing in front of the State House in Boston after casting their absentee ballots. Many of these people were moved to tears of joy.

At the same time, when I think about the current elections in South Africa, I feel a sense of great sadness. Perhaps a better word is disappointment. So many people in South Africa have lost their lives in order to vote while, in this country, we are given the vote on a silver platter and we have taken it for granted.

I am a registered voter and many of my friends are also voters. Unfortunately, many more of my friends do not vote. Why? "My vote isn't going to make a difference," is an excuse I have heard quite a few times. Another one of my favorite excuses is, "I didn't vote because I didn't like who was running."

Both excuses are tired and played out. If you were too young to vote during the last elections, or if you are not a U.S. citizen then that's OK. For the rest of you, please try to make up more creative excuses; the rest of us are tired of hearing the old ones over and over again.

Something that annoys me is that these same people who do not vote are usually the ones complaining about the government. I think that if you are eligible to vote but did not, the next time the president does something that makes you angry, you should shut up about it. If you do not care enough to vote, then why should the rest of us care about your opinion?

Let's really think about this: people all over the world have lost their lives for freedom. Men and women in Nicaragua and El Salvador have been killed on their way to the polls. They have been intimidated to either vote for a certain person or party. Or they have been intimidated not to vote at all.

So many people in South Africa have lost their lives in order to vote while, in this country, we are given the vote on a silver platter and we have taken it for granted.

Sonia Paz

Even in this country there have been struggles for the right to vote. Let's not forget that, at one point, the only people that could vote in the U.S. were White men. Obviously this left out many people, namely women and Blacks. After hard-fought struggles, these people eventually got the right to vote.

Also, let's not forget that for a while many states in this country found loopholes in their voting laws to keep Blacks from voting. But again, after many struggles, everyone received the right to vote regardless of sex or color. With this in mind, what do many U.S. citizens do on election day? Nothing!

Maybe I sound like some kind of zealot patriot, but who cares? This time I happen to believe that I'm right. I believe that when we don't vote, we are insulting the people all over the world who gave their lives for the right to freedom that goes along with the right to vote.

For those of you who didn't bother to vote in the last election, the next time you disagree with the president's health care plan or anything else, don't express your feelings to me. I don't want to hear what you have to say.

Sonia Paz is a Collegian staff member.

Doonesbury

by Garry Trudeau

Opinion

Letters to the Editor

Anti-smoking zealots told to leave the Newman Center alone

To the editor:

Hark! Do i hear yet another bandwagon rolling through the Happy Valley? Anti-smokers, jump on while you have the chance! Don't get me wrong, smoking is unhealthy. I don't smoke and have no immediate plans to begin doing so — but why not outlaw obesity? Being overweight has just as many proven health risks as smoking does, but only one out of four adults smoke while an estimated 62 percent of all Americans are overweight. I guess it's always just easier to oppress a minority — ask any demagogue.

I am an employee of the Newman Center Food Services, and in my experience not one of my co-workers has had a problem with the policy of allowing smokers to frequent the establishment, not to mention the fact that few of us are paid with the money earned from our smoking patrons. We all knew in advance of our employment the risks involved with smoking and that the center was an establishment which had a smoking area. No one held a gun to our heads and made us take the job. We are adults, we thought for ourselves.

When Michael Begay surveyed the students as to where they purchased their cigarettes, why was he surprised to find that most of them came to the Newman? it's the closest place to campus where you can go to buy them. And if Mr. Begay is so concerned with the employees' welfare, then why didn't he come talk to us? i'm not speaking for anyone else, Mr. Begay — neither should you. One wonders what sort of a hidden agenda you must have when you try to impose your beliefs by hiding behind the excuse that you are "protecting the workers" — workers you have never discussed the issue with.

Some important facts: there are five air-cleaning machines in addition to powerful kitchen fans which maintain a safe and sanitary working environment; the Newman Center Food Services receives no funding from UMass, so the University's smoke-free policy has absolutely no bearing at all; and the Food Services area is a privately-owned business whose operations should not be dictated by an outside crusader.

Finally, Mr. Begay, if your goal is to become the savior of the entire student population, perhaps you should try to ban smoking in every aspect of the students' lives: uptown saloons, private automobiles, homes and apartments!

But, then again, that sounds a lot like censorship, doesn't it?

David Sykes
Newman Food Services
Night Manager

Editor's note: a letter expressing similar sentiments was submitted by Micah Roden, a student employee of the Newman Center, and was signed by six other Newman employees.

UMass should be proud to name library after W.E.B. Du Bois

To the editor:

In 1991, when I informed friends and colleagues that the U.S. Postal Service has issued a 29 cent W.E.B. Du Bois commemorative stamp, after expressing surprise and delight, invariably the remark came: "Well, it's about time!"

At the 100th anniversary W.E.B. Du Bois birthday tribute held on February 23, 1968, at Carnegie Hall in New York City, keynoter Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. said, "History cannot ignore W.E.B. Du Bois. Because history has to reflect truth and Dr. Du Bois was a tireless explorer and gifted discoverer of social truths. His singular greatness lay in his quest for truth about his own people. ... He symbolized in his being his pride in the Black man. ... He exemplified Black power in achievement and he organized Black power in action."

A year later, as if in response to Dr. King's assertion, a series entitled "1,000 Makers of the Twentieth Century" published in the Sunday Times Magazine of London on June 22, 1969, described Dr. Du Bois as "the prophet of Black Power," one of the 1,000 persons from around the world "who will one day be seen to have genuinely affected the life of ordinary people; those who have changed the shape of our world, colored our thinking, caught our imagination."

Perhaps, prompted by this posthumous assessment of Dr. Du Bois in so prestigious an English language periodical, The Wall Street Journal on September 27, 1971, featured on its editorial page a "reappraisal" of Dr. Du Bois by Edmund Fuller, long-time dean of U.S. literary critics.

Fuller asserted that Du Bois' peers are "perhaps only Frederick Douglass and Martin Luther King, Jr." and adds, the U.S. government treated him with "harsh obtuseness" and "shabbily," that he was "honored almost everywhere but at home." He concludes: "He was one of the great Black sons of America. The total implications of his life and experience need to be studied here."

Then, on January 21, 1977, the 75th anniversary edition of London's weekly The Times Literary Supplement, described by Time Magazine as "a stern arbiter of literary and scholarly quality," featured a reappraisal of 43 writers, scholars and artists of the most underrated and overrated books or authors of the past 75 years.

In that feature, Social historian Eugene Genovese wrote, "As for the underrated, the works of W.E.B. Du Bois — probably the greatest American of our century — [note, he does not say Black American] require international attention.

"His Souls of Black Folk alone," continues Genovese, "could educate nearly all opinion on the depth and meaning of the Afro–American contribution to modern civilization."

Time Magazine, in its February 7, 1977, report on the London Times Literary Supplement 75th anniversary issue, carried Genovese's assessment of Dr. Du Bois in full accompanied by a flattering photo.

The University of Massachusetts and every individual associated with it will be honored throughout the nation and around the world should the tower library be named after W.E.B. Du Bois.

David G. Du Bois
Journalism / African American studies

Minutemen were 'puppets' controlled by profiteering capitalists

To the editor:

Let's be clear on what is at stake when the symbol of the Minuteman is challenged. The issue is not the particular of the Minuteman. The critical issue is one of power relations and privilege.

This country, when founded, was not built on the power or freedom of the individual; it was built on the exploitation of humans as a source of capital. Its growth came not from individual opportunity but, rather, from an imported homogeneous labour force.

The indentured servants from the slave–master relation in Europe and the proletariat and slave from Africa and the Americas, were sold into the opportunity of the New World and, once they arrived, they sold their only possession to the Founding Fathers — their labour power.

This country attained its foundations and its form through the labour power of the masses. The slave–proletariat received their value only through the building of capitalist merchant ships and textile factories through which the capitalists increased their profit.

The Minuteman symbol represents a misplaced and misused value. It provides an illusion of what actions were at the base of this country's economic development. The Minuteman is better placed in the development of nationhood: it was a possessive, prideful act that drove the soldiers of independence.

But the drive to separate from England was no more nationalist than it was economic. In fact, it was purely economically motivated, and it was only the soldiers who were hoodwinked by the aura of patriotism into believing that they were fighting for national identity.

The need for greater capital accumulation drove the push for separatism. The puppets were the soldiers of independence, manifested in the Minuteman, while the puppet masters were the elite capitalists who foresaw a greater opportunity in this land from which to extract profit from the African slaves, from the many coloured proletariat.

Indeed, the Anglo–capitalists profiteered at the expense of American capitalists' exploitation of labour, since commerce and capital exchange grew undaunted by the independent United States.

The United States grew as a capitalist economy and rejected individualism while revering individual profit. This profit was extracted from the masses, and it is these masses who have been undervalued, underrepresented and who continue to be exploited.

We must confront the fallacy of the United States' foundations which were not determined by the idealized Minutemen and the barrel of the gun, but by the profiteering capitalists.

The Minuteman is merely the propaganda of patriotism which was used historically, and is still being used, by capitalists to enforce and enslave the American labour force, for it is not the Minuteman but profit which is the truly– valued ideal of capital.

Get it straight: Black, red, yellow or White, we all bleed the same color blood to serve the capitalist's lust for greenbacks.

Veronica deVos
Economics/history major

Arts & Living

Cheers, Cosby earn top slots

ASSOCIATED PRESS
Kirstie Alley watched "Cheers" persevere.

There are certain TV shows that wear out their welcome while they are still on prime time, and there are others that never get old, even in syndication.

On the Tube
By Caleb Cochran

Today I want to talk about two shows that never get old for me, even though I have probably seen every episode twice. These two legendary programs were once part of NBC's powerhouse Thursday evening — I'm not talking about "Family Ties," either.

The first one is the show that revitalized a dying NBC in 1984 and was a perennial top–five program during its reign: "The Cosby Show." A lot of people are sick of this show, and talk about how unrealistic it is, how predictable it is, etc., etc. I just think it's funny.

Bill Cosby is wonderful as the loveable Heathcliff Huxtable, and he is surrounded by a strong supporting cast, including Malcolm Jamal–Warner (Theo), and Lisa Bonet (Denise). Keshia Knight–Pulliam was hilarious as the young daughter, Rudy, in the show's early years, and then gave way to Raven Simone (Olivia) as the show's resident young cutie.

"The Cosby Show" remained strong throughout the years because it allowed the characters to grow and change without ruining the original chemistry of cast.

Theo graduated from high school and went on to NYU while still making frequent appearances on the show. Denise went to college, dropped out, got married and became a step–mother. Sandra, the oldest daughter, got married and had twins.

Through all of these changes, the show maintained funny and original plots. I could watch reruns all day.

"Cheers" is possibly the greatest syndicated show ever. It's tough to go through a day without coming across an episode of this on the tube. As with "Cosby," this show was great because of its ability to roll with the changes. Coach died, Diane left, Frasier and Lilith came, Woody entered, Kirstie Alley joined the crew, Robin Colcord became a regular character, and on and on.

Everyone has their favorite episodes of "Cheers," and I have a few myself. One of the classics is the episode in which Frasier tries to read Dickens' A Tale of Two Cities to Norm (George Wendt) and Cliff (George Ratzenberger). When they show a lack of interest, Frasier begins to twist the tale around, reading about "a bloodthirsty clown who swallowed children whole." Funny stuff.

While some shows turn to sappy sentimentality for their last episode, "Cheers" went out with a classy and intriguing finale which featured the return of Diane (Shelly Long). There was no group hug at the end, no crazy plot twist. Just a singular man, Sam Malone (Ted Danson) closing up his bar for the night, turning out the lights on one of the greatest television comedies of all time.

Caleb Cochran is a Collegian Arts & Living Associate.

McFerrin and Hard Choral at FAC

COURTESY BOBBY MCFERRIN
Soundmaster Bobby McFerrin introduces his quartet, Hard Choral, to the UMass FAC tomorrow night.

By TARA MK CONNELLY
Collegian Staff

On Tuesday night the Happy Valley will be able to experience the talent and moving music of McFerrin as he brings his group Hard Choral to the Fine Arts Center stage.

Hard Choral will dazzle the audience with its unique mixture of musical genres which will include and combine African, gospel, jazz, classical and pop music. The group will also incorporate storytelling, improvisation and encourage audience participation.

Bobby McFerrin is a hard person to forget. He is recognized by many for his unforgettable vocal appearances and his 1988 solo album Simple Pleasures which featured his chart–topping single "Don't Worry be Happy."

He embellished his musical career by performing in Ocean Spray and Levi's commercials, singing the weekly theme for The Cosby Show and teaching the alphabet song on Sesame Street.

His live album in 1984, The Voice, showcased McFerrin's unique ability to captivate an audience with the sole power of his voice.

Hard Choral is McFerrin's new quartet and they are visiting Amherst as a part of their debut tour. Their shows are extra special because they sing lyrics, rhythms and songs that are unique to each individual show.

McFerrin's quartet is composed of three diversely talented members he brought together from Voicestra: Rhiannon, Kirsten Falke and David Worm.

McFerrin and his group are dedicated to the belief that music has healing properties and their goal is to "bring light into people's hearts." Music is like a universal language that can be found in almost every culture from the dawn of civilization. McFerrin uses this language to touch people and get across his own message of peace.

To further get across his message, McFerrin may meet with 70 under–privileged children, brought to the show through the efforts of Roots Service Organization, backstage after Tuesday night's show. The children will hopefully be able to meet McFerrin and find out about life as an entertainer.

McFerrin's melodious tunes can be heard off through many of his recent recordings. Medicine Man demonstrates McFerrin's skills as an orchestrator; Hush, is a best selling duet album with famed cellist Yo–Yo Ma; and Play, featuring McFerrin with Pianist Chick Corea, is a mix of originals and "oldies" that

Turn to MCFERRIN, page 6

Reasons to wish Bart Simpson a happy birthday

By MIKE DiLORENZO
Collegian Staff

Last Thursday night, "The Simpsons" one of America's most popular dysfunctional families, celebrated its 100th episode with a special show.

Once only a vignette during "The Tracy Ullman Show," "The Simpsons" has blossomed into a cult favorite for a number of reasons.

First, it appeals on two levels; for those who don't understand much of the humor, there is a raw slapstick element. It also employs a brand of intelligent humor one can't find on any other show. I submit to you that it is the best–written show on television.

The reason for this is the unabashed apolitical correctness; the ability to poke fun at all topics without reservation. By doing this, "The Simpsons" spoofs the world we live in.

For instance, violence on television. Most know that in this day and age, it's a big issue. However, "The Itchy and Scratchy Show" portion of "The Simpsons" is the most gratuitously violent show possible, yet the Simpson kids go bonkers for it.

The exaggerated stereotypification of characters employed also adds to the humor of the show: Chief Wigham, the doughnut–eating police officer; "Diamond" Joe Quimby, the Ted Kennedyesque mayor; Montgomery Burns, the cantankerous owner of the nuclear power plant.

"The Simpsons" is comedically reflexive; that is, it often makes reference to itself as a television show or refers to its own network.

For example, an episode where the entire 22 minutes was not needed to wrap up the storyline; Homer sits there bewildered asking, "We still have some time left. What should we do?" Or when they belittled another character by saying he was "... once the head of programming for the Fox Network."

The show also makes references to other movies, such as an episode based on Cape Fear; or one in which Homer buys a pony for Lisa. The viewer is introduced to this pony with a view of its head in Lisa's bed, the sound of Nino Rota's score to The Godfather in the background. And special guest like Tom Jones and James Brown often make appearances.

Of course, the show has evolved over the 100 episodes. To begin with, the focus of the show was once Bart. However, accompanied by the erosion of his intelligence, Homer has come to the forefront. Consequently, he's gone from a father with some semblance of how to parent to a complete neglect of any responsibility.

With that in mind, here are my Top 5 "Simpsons" episodes of all–time.

Honorable mention: Softball episode where Mr. Burns hires Darryl Strawberry, Wade Boggs, et. al. to beat rival Shelbyville.

5) Homer likes Ned Flanders. After ultra–religious Ned takes him to a ball game, Homer takes a first–time liking to his next–door neighbor. Eventually, Homer wears on Flanders and Ned can't stand him. Classic final scene in which Ned tries to get away in the car and Homer, running behind, tries to latch onto the auto with a golf club, a la Terminator 2.

4) Valentine's Day. Lisa Simpson gives Ralph Wigham a Valentine out of sympathy and the homely Ralph takes it to mean she likes him. In trying to court her, Ralph utters the immortal pickup line of "So, do you like ... stuff?" Despite that, the best scene is Principal Skinner's Vietnam flashback to his buddy being shot in De Nang on Valentine's Day.

3) The Krusty Comeback Special. Overtaken by a new kids show, "Gabbo," Krusty retires. After a failed attempt as a porno star (he asks the studio for a second chance, telling them he was a little nervous that day), Krusty is convinced by Bart and Lisa to try a comeback. Aided by Luke Perry (who gets shot out of a cannon) and Bette Midler (whom Krusty owned a racehorse with. Horse's name: Krudler), Krusty makes a successful comeback.

Turn to BART, page 6

If everyone recycled this much of their daily paper, we'd save 9,000 trees a year.

CANS BOTTLES PAPER PLASTIC
You just separated your trash.
RECYCLE

Resumé Package
• 50 copies on Your Choice of 25% Cotton Paper
• 2 Business Day Service
• 1 Page Typeset
•With Coupon• $19.95!!
CopyCat PRINT SHOP
228 Triangle St., Amherst 549-3840
32 Pleasant St., Northampton 586-1332

Call For Our Special Offer
Brandywine Amherst
Brandywine offers Country Living with Convenience
• On UMass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
• Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
• One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
• Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
• Stop and we'll show you what we have to offer.
• Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).
BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open
Mon.-Fri. 9-5, Sat. & Sun. 10-3
549-0600

STEINBECK
COLLISION REPAIR & AUTOBODY
53 S. Prospect St. Amherst Center
Imports & other unibody vehicles are our specialty
User of Sikkens paint products
Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass replacement
REMEMBER
It's your car and your choice of repair facilities
256-8157 256-1385
Shop Reg #RS1212

THE EDWIN M. ROSSMAN ALUMNI CAREER FORUMS
VETERINARY AND ANIMAL SCIENCES
DATE: Tuesday, May 3, 1994
TIME: 5:00pm
LOCATION: Campus Center 804-808
SPONSORED BY:
MATHER CAREER CENTER
ALUMNI ASSOCIATION
VETERINARY AND ANIMAL SCIENCES
This is an opportunity to meet with alumni and discuss their experiences in the working world. Don't miss this important panel discussion!
ALUMNI/AE PANELISTS:
Maribeth Cunniff-Cherry, '91 — Research Assistant, Genzyme Corp., Framingham, MA
Gordon Cook, Jr., '69 — Production Agriculture, Hadley, MA
Ronna S. Kabler, D.V.M., '78 — Adams Animal Hospital, Athol, MA
Thomas McRae, '78 — Territory Manager, D.V.M. Pharmaceutical, Inc., Miami, FL
For more information, please contact:
Mather Career Center • 545-2224

Attention Arts & Living Staff!

There will be an informational meeting on Wednesday, May 4 at 5:30 p.m. in the newsroom where A&L staff can meet and hear the candidates for next semester's A&L Editor position. Make your vote a sassy, educated one.

■ McFerrin

continued from page 5

won McFerrin his 10th Grammy Award. He was also nominated for another Grammy this year (Best Jazz Vocal Performance) for his on-camera a cappella rendition of Henry Mancini's "Pink Panther" theme for the movie Son of the Pink Panther.

Tickets for the concert are $27.50, $2, and $19. Half priced tickets are available for Five College Students and tickets for children age 16 and under are $10. For tickets or more information call the Fine Arts Center Box Office at 545-2511.

■ Bart

continued from page 5

2) Duff Brewery episode. Homer skips work to go on a brewery tour, complete with free samples, with Barney. On the way home, he is pulled over and given sobriety tests. Having passed them all, a drunken Barney tells police to give Homer the breathalyzer, which he fails. In alcohol awareness class, while watching a grotesque film of car accidents, Homer thinks "this is funny because I don't know the people." Key to the episode is how Duff, Duff Light, and Duff Dry come from the same batch of beer and are packaged differently, and the rotating sign that says "Don't drink and drive"/"It's always time for a Duff" (as two guys, sitting on the hood of a car, hoist cans of beer).

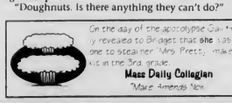
1) Monorail. Upon the advice of a shyster, the citizens of Springfield purchase a monorail with some donated money. Leonard Nimoy is there for the ribbon cutting (Quimby asks him "Weren't you in 'The Little Rascals?'). Homer is elected conductor, and the monorail goes out of control. The town in crisis, leaders Wigham and Quimby have this exchange in debating who has power in emergencies:

Wigham: Why don't you run along Quimby? I think they're dedicating a phone booth somewhere.

Quimby: Look you overblown tub of doughnut batter, I'm in charge!

Wigham: Oh yeah? I still have those pictures.

Quimby: That could be anybody's ass.



Homer comes to the rescue by harnessing a rope from the monorail to an "O" in a neon doughnut sign, bringing the train to a halt. He then ponders the age-old question:

"Doughnuts. Is there anything they can't do?"

The Collegian.

We bring you the news that counts. (Like Boo-Boo.)

On the day of the apocalypse Garfield finally revealed to Bridget that she was the one to steal her Mrs. Press... make-up kit in the 3rd grade.

Mass Daily Collegian
"Make Amends Now"

ARTCARVED PRESENTS

SAVE $150

SAVE $215 Save $25 on your 14K College Ring and receive a Getaway Weekend for 2, a $190 value.

$240 Save $50 on your 18K College Ring and receive a Getaway Weekend for 2, a $190 value.

* This offer does not include room taxes

For your Weekend Getaway you get 3 day and 2 night hotel accomodations for 2* at one of 133 different locations. You pick the time and the place.

ARTCARVED College Jewelry

UNIVERSITY STORE

Campus Center 545-2619

May 2 - May 4 10 am - 3:30 pm

250 Reasons to Return to Long Island

SUMMER

University at Stony Brook Summer Session

- 250 courses in 40 subjects
- Day and evening classes
- Low NYS tuition
- Register easily by mail or in person
- Live on campus or commute
- Two terms: May 23-July 1; July 5-Aug.12

For free bulletin, call 24 hours (516) 632-7070

Please send me the 1994 Summer Session Bulletin:

Name

Street/Box No.

City State Zip

Telephone Area of Interest

School currently attending Anticipated year of graduation

Summer Session Office
University at Stony Brook
Stony Brook, NY 11794-3730

STONY BROOK
STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK
An AA/EO educator and employer

UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AMHERST

Student Affairs Special Services
238 Whitmore Administration Building
Box 38180
Amherst, MA 01003-8180
(413) 545-3480

UNDERGRADUATE COMMENCEMENT
Sunday, May 22, 1994

Routes to Campus

There are three other commencements taking place in the Five Colleges area on the morning of Sunday, May 22, and several others off the routes to Amherst. Thus, traffic may be very heavy as early as 9:00 a.m., and without careful planning, delays may be encountered.

The major points of congestion are expected to be at the intersection of I-91 exit 19, at the intersection with Route 9 (Northampton); Route 9 immediately after crossing the Coolidge Bridge into Hadley; and routes off Massachusetts Turnpike exit 8 (Palmer), to Amherst.

Local area police officers will be directing traffic at some of these points and others en route to campus.

Further, arrangements have been made for radio traffic advisories to be broadcast. Tune to Amherst radio station WTTT (1430 AM) within approximately 25 miles of Amherst, or WRNX (100.9 FM), within 50 miles.

On arrival, University Police and security officers will direct drivers to designated parking lots from which frequent, free shuttle buses will take guests to and from the Stadium.

For services for mobility impaired guests, please call 545-0892.

The routing alternatives following have been suggested by the Massachusetts Highway Department.

A. From the Greater Boston Area:

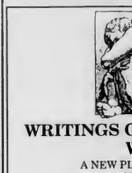
1. Massachusetts Turnpike to Exit 8 (Palmer) - directions at toll booth
2. Massachusetts Turnpike to Exit 7 (Ludlow) - Route 21 north to U.S. 202 north to 9 west
3. Massachusetts Turnpike to Exit 5 (Chicopee) - Route 33 north to 116 north
4. Massachusetts Turnpike to Exit 4 (W. Springfield) - I-91 north to exit 19 to 9 east to 116 north

B. From the South Shore and Cape Cod Areas of Massachusetts:

I-495 to Massachusetts Turnpike

C. From North of Boston:

Route 2 west to U.S. 202 south to "Route 9 and 116 Amherst" exit (Pelham)



D. From Connecticut, New York, New Jersey areas:

I-91 north through Hartford, or I-84 east to Hartford to I-91 north; I-91 north to exit 19 to 9 east to 116 north. For northbound I-91 traffic, if exit 19 is in gridlock, it may be desirable to continue further north to exit 24; onto routes 5 and 10 north; then immediate right to 116 south

E. From the North:

I-91 south to exit 24, left at end of ramp onto Routes 5 and 10 north, then immediate right to 116 south

For other Commencement-related information, please call the Visitors Center at 545-0306.

WRITINGS ON A FROSTED WINDOW PANE
A NEW PLAY BY JOHN BINNIE
MAY 3,4,5,6, AND 7 AT 8PM
MATINEE -MAY 7 AT 2PM
HAMPDEN THEATRE
FAC BOX OFFICE 545-2511

THE FINE ARTS CENTER
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

This project and John Binnie's Residency are funded in part by the UMass Arts Council, the Five College Lecture Fund, the UMass Student Activities Cultural Enrichment Fund, Hampshire College Theatre program, Smith College Department of Theatre, and the UMass Theater Department.

COLLECTIVE COPIES

•ACID-FREE PAPER
at the lowest price in town!
DISSERTATION, THESIS & RESUME COPYING
29 S. Pleasant St., Amherst 256-6425

Club Communications Elections

Available Positions Are:

President
Vice President
Treasurer
Secretary
Public Relations
Promotions

Come and Get Involved

Tuesday, May 3 at 6:00 pm
Machmer W-25

Hunan Garden 家酒園南湖 Restaurant

The Best Chinese Buffet

MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15

NEW
BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-8 p.m.
Sunday Brunch 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.99
Children under 10 - $3.50
Luncheon Specials served 11:30-3 p.m. - $3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 Chicken Fingers, 2 Chicken Wings, or Hot & Sour Soup

TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

Calvin and Hobbes By Bill Watterson

Calvin and Hobbes By Bill Watterson

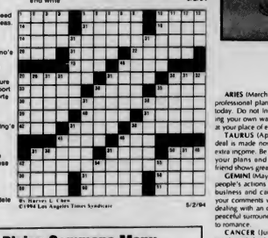
Jim's Journal By Jim

Without Porpoise By Kennet Dali

Big Man on Campus By Dave Schneider

Daily Crossword

Edited by Frode Michel Jaffe



ACROSS
1 Lie in the sun
5 Hedron of "The Birds"
10 Antarctic Sea
14 Jai —
15 Pungent bulb
16 Aware of
17 Trio of shoe-biz Georges
20 Physicians' gp.
21 Saucy
22 Boring tool
23 Columnist Buchwald
24 Fairy-tale villain
25 Woodland deities
29 Wan
30 Frequently, to a poet
33 "— nous la dérive"
34 Lucy's partner
35 He loved an Irish Rose
36 Trio of literary Georges
39 Takes small tastes
40 Hostelries
41 Painter's need
42 Football mess.
43 Remain
44 They foot the bill
45 Cherity Bono's mom
46 — da deux
47 Clip
49 Corrida figure
50 Fast transport
53 Trio of sports Georges
56 Peony
57 Carried
58 Baroness King's friend
59 Diamond arbiters
60 Lyric poem
61 Type of mose

DOWN
1 All —
2 Astringent
3 Poet Teasdale
4 Relations
5 Eiffel and Texas
6 Lifeless
7 Part of a quart
8 Group of seals
9 Incised carving
10 Cosmetic
11 Formerly
12 Luminary
13 Mayday!
15 Merger
19 Captivate
24 Kline
25 Impudent
26 Garden pest
27 Pitfalls
28 Evergreens
29 Indiana state flower
30 Unpleasantly plump
31 Office worker
32 Swiss archer and family
34 Casbah spending money
35 On vacation
37 Able to read and write
38 Think logically
43 Food fish
44 Holiday happening
45 Coppers
46 Prodded
47 Bridge feat
48 Heavenly instrument
49 Brot
50 Wedding month
51 Volcano
52 "They went — way!"
53 Energy meas.
54 Chair's tool
55 Kind of music

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

M	A	R	M		C	O	P	A		D	A	D	S
A	R	E	A		R	A	D	O	N		E	A	R	L
C	I	T	E		O	R	A	T	E		A	D	I	E
C	A	M	E	M	B	E	R	T		D	A	M	O	N
A	G	E		F	I	L	S		M	A	R	I	N	E
	P	I	A	N	O		C	H	A	I	R
C	O	O	P	S		C	H	A	I	N	E	R	S
C	U	R	A		S	H	A	R	E		A	G	E	S
D	I	E	T		E	A	T	S		S	C	O	L	D
B	U	R	N	S		U	N	O		A	R	I	E	L
	C	I	N	T	A		D	E	M	I
S	I	S	T	E	R		C	R	A	M	P	A	G	E
G	U	I	D	E		P	A	R	I	S		N	E	W
S	A	T	I	R		R	E	N	T		T	I	P	S
P	L	A	S	S		A	S	S	N		S	L	E	D

5/2/94

By Eugene T. Maleska
©1994 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

5/2/94

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Grilled Cheese	Roast Turkey
Chicken Pucks	Beef w/Snow Peas
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Grilled Cheese	Roast Turkey
Chicken Pucks	Beef w/Snow Peas

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Michael Morrissey
Copy Editor ..... Bob Dobbs
Photo Technician ..... Aram Comjean
Production Supervisor ..... Mike Carvalho
Production ..... Lisa Jezowski, Mike Stern, Sara Grossman

The Far Side By Gary Larson

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19): Your professional plans will be discussed today. Do not insist on always having your own way. A lot is going on at your place of employment.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20): A deal is made now that will bring an extra income. Be prepared to explain your plans and ultimate goals. A friend shows great loyalty.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): Other people's actions will influence your business and career plans. Temper your comments with kindness when dealing with an older person. Quiet, peaceful surroundings are conducive to romance.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): A good week for launching a pet project! Constructive suggestions speed progress. Exchange views with those who matter most in your life. Business travel proves profitable.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22): It is now possible to combine business with pleasure and come out ahead. Favorable end results are what you want. Be likeable on minor issues. Your words carry a sting tonight — think before you speak.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): You cannot ride for long on the crest of past successes. Be on the lookout for ways to reach a new audience. Adhering to traditional guidelines will improve your personal finances.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): An element of illusion is written into today's scenario. This means you may not have all the information you need!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): Although your authoritative manner commands respect, substantial financial assets will help you back up your demands. Be wise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): Great things can be accomplished now. Teamwork is the key to higher productivity and profits. By being on time to appointments you gain a reputations for reliability.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): It is natural for others to act resentful when someone throws their weight around. The best way to lead is by setting a good example. A platonic relationship could suddenly turn romantic.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18): An enthusiastic associate may be only too willing to spend your money. Take precautions to protect your interests. State your views, but show that you are also willing to listen.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): Opposition or delay is possible today. Take the sting out of an associate's hostility by being your most charming. Romance heats up. You feel certain that you can turn a disappointing situation around.

Quote of the Day

"Only dull people are brilliant at breakfast."
—Oscar Wilde

■ softball

continued from page 8

Kelsen's double. Theresa Squarcia then singled to center, and Kelsen tested Mareina's strong arm and was just safe at home.

The WRams took their first lead in the fifth, when Monks beat Jodi Sorenson's throw home following a grounder by Johnston. Johnston scored on a similar play, but this time it was DuEst's throw that was too late, making it 3–1.

UMass got one back in the home half of the fifth, due to a costly error at third base by Jeanne Ferrier with the bases loaded that allowed Cardenas to trot in from third.

URI added an insurance run in the seventh to make in 4–2, but UMass threatened in its last at bat, putting runners on first and second with no outs, but Methot was doubled off second on Rachel Lawson's line out. Michele Shaw singled to keep hopes alive, but Powell grounded out to end the game.

Daut earned her fifth shutout in the first game with the Blackbirds yesterday, allowing seven hits and striking out five while improving to 13–6. Between contests, Senior Day ceremonies were held in honor of co-captains DuEst and Lawson.

Dani Ortega, who struggled in her last outing against Hofstra and did not see action versus URI, returned triumphantly to the mound in game two with a complete game victory in which she allowed only four hits and struck out four. Ortega moved back over .500 to 9–8.

■ Murphy

continued from page 8

The Duquesne hitters were off balance at the plate for the rest of the afternoon, as Murphy regained control of his pitches.

"Once you get your control on, they know you can put it there and you can play with it a little. You get them fishing and you get them off balance and they're all done," Murphy said.

Gone fishing is what Duquesne was as Murphy used a variety of pitches to strike out at least two men in every inning except the second and fourth.

"I threw a lot of off-speed pitches just to make the fastball a little bit tougher to hit," Murphy said. "I was throwing my change-up and some curveballs for strikes. When they're looking for that to drop in for a strike, I just blew the fastball by them."

For Murphy, Saturday's victory gives him a strong performance under his belt as the Minutemen finish up the regular season and prepare for the Atlantic-10 Tournament.

"On a personal level, I want to get ready for the A-10s. As a team, we don't want to sit down and die now," Murphy said. "We want to win every game from here on in."

Murphy finished off the game by striking out the first two batters he faced in the seventh inning and after an error, he got Rick Krumenacker to ground out to first base.

A shaky start but one of the season's best finishes.

Classifieds

- 20¢ per word per day for students
- All ads must be paid in cash 2 days in advance
- Ads may be placed at 113 Campus Center, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bed and Breakfast, downtown Amherst ideal for visiting parents and friends 549-0733

UMass Credit Union has car, personal and computer loans. Rates as low as 7.95% 314 Student Union Building 545-2800

AUDITIONS

Auditions for Not Ready For Bedtime Players will be held on May 5 1994 at 7:00 at the Campus Center. For further information contact Daymon Smith at 546-1289

AUTO FOR SALE

85 RX7 Mazda sunroof, cassette, 5 speed, asking $2,500. Call Jason 549-6928

86 Toyota excellent. $1800 546-5741

1982 Chevette 102K $300 firm Runs great 584-3437

1985 Mercury Lynx 63,000 mi great shape $1400 549-5831

For sale 1984 Volvo 240. Good condition Needs minor work. $50 call 323-0151 best offer

CAPE COD RENTAL

West Yarmouth 6 room 4 bedrooms sleeps 8 near everything 253-7436 508-775-4778. $6,000

FOR RENT

A nice place to live!
2 bedroom apartment on bus line 5 min. utes from campus. Hot water included, cheap electricity. Hardwood floors. Huge living room, big bedrooms. Nice, quiet area. $430/ mo. summer w/fall option 253-9977. Available to move-in fall end of May. Leave message.

1 bedroom apt. N Amherst Quiet location with big yard, laundry facilities and AC. Pets negotiable. Take over lease June 1st. Call Marc 549-8244

1 bedroom apt Puffton 442/month Chris/Fred 549-4650

1 bedroom avail May1 farmhouse in Hadley on bus $725 585-0043

1 mile from campus 4 bdrm, oil heat, Call 549-8239

2 bedroom apt. Colonial Village $480 month Avail June 1st 253-4719

2 bedroom apt. Rent very negotiable Available ASAP 546-0180

2 bedroom Brandywine apt 635/ mo inc heat available June 1 549-6503

2 bdrm puffton/tara over curl lease starting June 1 with option for fall renewal call Ted at 549-7648

2 bedroom 3 story condo 2 full baths Close to uptown On bus route Avail June 1. Call 253-4603

2 bedroom 625 includes heat + hot water Call 549-1571

2 bedroom apartment at Brandywine, 3rd floor, pondside $770/ month including heat. Available June 1st. Call 549-5465 Tracy or Beth

2 story, 2 bedroom 11/2 bath, 1 bath, dishwasher on bus route $572 + utils #253-7892

3 bedroom 1 bath on Main St $825/ month includes electric Starts June 1st Call 256-3470

4br large bright walk to UMass, center Bok Laundry. $1000 mth heat + hw incl 586-0746

4 lg bd brick/yard, bus line BBQ porch privacy 1040 256-1270

6 br house Main St Call 253-4710

4-5 bedrooms 2 full baths Close to uptown On bus route Avail June 1 Call Beefy 256-8939 $1300/ month

Blue room ice rent $195 + utilities North Hadley Call Jean 586-4362

Brandywine apt 2bdr, 3rd floor pondside 665/mo Take over my lease Call Jamie 549-8861

Brandywine 2 bdr top floor New carpet Only $655/ month Available June 1 549-6062

Brandywine Apts Take over our lease 6/ 1 2 bedrooms, 3rd floor pondside Rent negotiable for June & July 549-2963

Cape Cod Duplex 5/28- 9/3 3 people $315/ Call Micah 549-4704

Center of town 1,2 & 3 bedroom apts For 6/1 or 9/1 Now being shown Call for appointment Lincoln Real Estate 253-7979

Huge double in two bedroom apt Great location on bus route 549-0177

Ideal for grad students 1 large room available in house- perfect summer sublet- lease option available Laundry facilities available pregirmless. Quiet neighborhood/ homey atmosphere 256-4611

Large Amherst five bedroom house Perfect for six Dishwasher, deposit deck Available June Call Joe at 617-545-2348

Please! Take our Northwood Apt 2 bedroom $399/ mo Quiet, scenic, amazing 665-8606

Practically new 2 bdrm Brandywine apt Take our lease 549-4036

Sign early 3 bedroom in Pullton 549-8707

Sunny one bedroom apt Hardwood floors, Center of Amherst Available June 1 253-4652

Take over our lease 6/1 Brandywine 3rd floor! #549-4546

Take over our lease 2br Brandywine 3rd floor starting 6/1 You won't find cheaper $645/ mo Call 549-8629

Take over 3bedroom Puffton lease Available June Call 549-8193

Townehouse four person apt two bus routes One and a half bathrooms Airconditioning Dishwasher Front porch Call 549-5203

What a deal! We will pay you $500 to take our 2 Br Brandywine apt, or sublet for $500/ month Call 549-5056

FOR SALE

1987 Jetta 5 spd AC etc $5000 OBO Rollerblades sz 10 $50
INFINITI+ circulator with extras $200
Yamaha electric guitar w/ case $250
Fender amp champ 112 $250/ both $400
Call Aaron 256-3486

Furniture rugs mountain bike Call 253-4164

Golf clubs, full set $150 or BO Lou 253-4710

Two matching chairs, footstools, table $40 or BO 256-4588

Unique bed w/ shelf & mattress $100 call Jen 253-7194

Watch batteries ear piercing hoop earrings Starting at $7.00, diamond studs, repairs Grad graduation gifts from glass to gold Silversmaker designs 254 N Pleasant Street 253-3324 open 7 days

HELP WANTED

Alaska summer employment
Earn up to $6000 + in two months. Room + board! Transportation! Male/female. No experience necessary! (206) 545-4155 ext A5061

Camp Athletic Director Coed camp in Adirondack Mts. Must have teaching and or athletic director background 1-800-TF FUNN (487-3866)

Counselors: Camp Emerson, coed Massachusetts Swimming, tennis, land/water sports, arts/crafts, theatre, woodworking, rocketry, archery, computer, yearbook, photography, video, radio, more! Super kids, great food, friendly fun! No general counselors 800-995-CAMP

Ever want to start your own monthly magazine? We ask for only time investment. Start now for great ed money back to school issue. We have student publishers who earn $3000 per month P/T. Valuable experience for advertising and marketing. Call Insider 708-673-3458

Lawn/ yard work Spring through fall Generous pay 546-9635

Receptionist needed 20-25 hours per week to answer incoming calls and help with various inter office tasks at local computer integration firm. Pleasant phone manner required 549-0701

Summer work Local branches of international marketing firm have several summer openings ideal for students Earn $9-$15 to start management opportunities Build resume Positions available throughout Mass, Conn, NY Amherst base call 549-5339 Greeter Split call 733-0057

HERBFEST 1994

Plant and sell 280 herbs, medicinal plants and tobacco— invite you to find out about herbal medicine cooking with herbs, and how to design and grow your own garden
Sample herbal foods, teas, & honeys!
Learn to use herbs in everyday life!
Don't miss it! Tuesday May 3, in the Student Union Ballroom See you there!

LIVE IN THE CHURCH

Beautiful, peaceful, gorgeous summer sublet w/ fall option Lovely renovated church 10 min to campus One double $400, one single $250 Must be seen to be believed 253-7357

LOST

Large silver "nefertiti" pendant ill found (nisha Cal Mecca 546-4058

Lost student daily planner and blue fabric pencil bag in GRT 14th floor Reward 253-6175

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE

1982 Suzuki GS 450T low miles- mint condition extras! $800 549-6108

MUSICIANS

Band seeks male vocalist 4 all styles 546-6312 Pete

PERSONALS

Congratulations to the new sisters of Sigma Delta Tau Chloe, Miriam, Tara, Amy, Samantha, Carolyn, Laurie, Tara, Alicia, Amanda, Tracie, Linda, Sherry, Erin, Stacy, Stephanie, Gina, Rebecca, Lauren, Lisa, and Erika! Welcome to sisterhood! We love you!

G thang I'm sorry. Please forgive me I love you very much- you know who!

My fellow cowlover You're the best roommate- dancing to the VF, hit em, hiem. We've shared a lot and you've made me a better person. Thanks for the continuous laughter. You're great but you already know that. What do you mean no U turn? Love, your California buddy

Susan— dude! secretary! cowlover May 31- August 31 $550 negotiable + utilities Call 586-6438

3 bedroom sublet Puffton $ neg May 27- Sept 1 New carpeting appliances Call 546-5649

3 bedrooms On busline.
Really close! Call us! 253-7694

4 br Amherst large bright great location heat, hot water incl reasonable 588-0746

$125 per huge dbl w/bath 665-0485.

$225/ mo single 1 block from campus 665-0485

$485 a month or best offer! 2 bedroom apartment in Colonial Village on bus route washer and dryer in basement summer sublet with fall option 253-7583

FREE LAUNDRY
Looking for a place to live for the summer w/ fall option? Free laundry. On bus route. Interested? Call Mari 253-4207

Needed: 2 F nonsmoking rmmrs for next year! Sept -May Ruth 256-0954

One more person for house in Falmouth all summer Call Dave 549-1669

One person for large room $170 00 Call 665-7604

Single, sunny room in renovated 2 bdrm apt on bus route $199/ mo + utils 665-3618

SERVICES

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring, confidential support 549-1906

Professional repair. Most brands audio equipment + VCRs Sound + Music 251 Pleasant Street, Northampton 584-9547

$Scholarship$ matching!
International Students too! 24 hr message! (800) 434-6015 ext 500

SPRING CONCERT 5/8/94

Security volunteers needed. Must sit/ tend one information meeting- 4/26 4/28 from 7-8pm in the Cape Cod lounge Call UPC at 545-2892 for more info

Volunteers needed for 5 days of fun in the sun! Spring concert cannot happen without your help. Come to a UPC general committee meeting on Tuesday 5/3 at 6pm or 185-89 Help wanted for security, hospitality, promotions, advertising, and stage crew

SUMMER ON CAPE COD

Summer on Cape Cod House cleaning service, seeking help, good pay. Flexible hours provide time for a second job or go to Nauset Beach housing available Kate 508-255-8432

SUMMER SUBLETS

1 bedroom in 4 bedroom apt on bus route $450/ month heat hot water 253-4652

1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt Cheap Near campus On bus line 549-1418 Take over lease option

1,2, or 3 bedrooms in house on Pine St Call 549-2560 or 8230

2 bs..ms sveit June 1 female, nonsmokers 253-9568

2 bdrm 5 min/ow from campus 399/ mnth Call 665-4713 Liv msg

2 bedroom townhouse On bus line Great location! 550/mo 256-1906

2 bedroom Brandywine May 25 to Sept 1 includes everything and free cable !!! Only $645/ mo w/ fall option 3 clouches and little bed 549-4281

2 br and 2br townehouses available in Sunderland for summer On bus route Option for fall rental $70 and $750 Squire Village 665-2293

2 bedroom apartment $550 + month Includes everything 256-1960

2 bedroom Puffton 270/ per single Jun 1- Aug 31 546-2850

2 bedroom summer sublet available in Presidential with fall option $700/ mo or highest offer Call Ashley 549-1920

2 bdrm in 7 rm house Many amenities on bus route avail 6/1 Call 546-3957 546-4269

2 big bdrm apt South Amherst on bus route June-Aug Fall option $450 253-4624

2 bedroom Brandywine Apt fall option $645/ mo Includes everything 549-6928

2 bedroom quiet on bus line, June- Aug, furnished 253-4724

2-3 bedrooms available in 4 bedroom apartment Fully appianced, A/C, busline, June until August 549-8233

3 bedroom in town 5 min walk to UMass fall option 253-2337

3 bedroom 2 bath Puffton Free cable summer sublet June Aug 31 549-5996

3 bedrooms, 50 yds from bus stop Hadley May-31- August 31 $550 negotiable + utilities Call 586-6438

3 bedroom sublet Puffton $ neg May 27- Sept 1 New carpeting appliances Call 546-5649

3 bedrooms On busline.
Really close! Call us! 253-7694

4 br Amherst large bright great location heat, hot water incl reasonable 588-0746

$125 per huge dbl w/bath 665-0485.

$225/ mo single 1 block from campus 665-0485

$485 a month or best offer! 2 bedroom apartment in Colonial Village on bus route washer and dryer in basement summer sublet with fall option 253-7583

FREE LAUNDRY
Looking for a place to live for the summer w/ fall option? Free laundry. On bus route. Interested? Call Mari 253-4207

Needed: 2 F nonsmoking rmmrs for next year! Sept -May Ruth 256-0954

One more person for house in Falmouth all summer Call Dave 549-1669

One person for large room $170 00 Call 665-7604

Single, sunny room in renovated 2 bdrm apt on bus route $199/ mo + utils 665-3618

SERVICES

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring, confidential support 549-1906

Professional repair. Most brands audio equipment + VCRs Sound + Music 251 Pleasant Street, Northampton 584-9547

$Scholarship$ matching!
International Students too! 24 hr message! (800) 434-6015 ext 500

SPRING CONCERT 5/8/94

Security volunteers needed. Must sit/ tend one information meeting- 4/26 4/28 from 7-8pm in the Cape Cod lounge Call UPC at 545-2892 for more info

Volunteers needed for 5 days of fun in the sun! Spring concert cannot happen without your help. Come to a UPC general committee meeting on Tuesday 5/3 at 6pm or 185-89 Help wanted for security, hospitality, promotions, advertising, and stage crew

SUMMER ON CAPE COD

Summer on Cape Cod House cleaning service, seeking help, good pay. Flexible hours provide time for a second job or go to Nauset Beach housing available Kate 508-255-8432

SUMMER SUBLETS

1 bedroom in 4 bedroom apt on bus route $450/ month heat hot water 253-4652

1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt Cheap Near campus On bus line 549-1418 Take over lease option

1,2, or 3 bedrooms in house on Pine St Call 549-2560 or 8230

2 bs..ms sveit June 1 female, nonsmokers 253-9568

2 bdrm 5 min/ow from campus 399/ mnth Call 665-4713 Liv msg

2 bedroom townhouse On bus line Great location! 550/mo 256-1906

2 bedroom Brandywine May 25 to Sept 1 includes everything and free cable !!! Only $645/ mo w/ fall option 3 clouches and little bed 549-4281

2 br and 2br townehouses available in Sunderland for summer On bus route Option for fall rental $70 and $750 Squire Village 665-2293

2 bedroom apartment $550 + month Includes everything 256-1960

2 bedroom Puffton 270/ per single Jun 1- Aug 31 546-2850

2 bedroom summer sublet available in Presidential with fall option $700/ mo or highest offer Call Ashley 549-1920

2 bdrm in 7 rm house Many amenities on bus route avail 6/1 Call 546-3957 546-4269

2 big bdrm apt South Amherst on bus route June-Aug Fall option $450 253-4624

2 bedroom Brandywine Apt fall option $645/ mo Includes everything 549-6928

2 bedroom quiet on bus line, June- Aug, furnished 253-4724

2-3 bedrooms available in 4 bedroom apartment Fully appianced, A/C, busline, June until August 549-8233

3 bedroom in town 5 min walk to UMass fall option 253-2337

3 bedroom 2 bath Puffton Free cable summer sublet June Aug 31 549-5996

3 bedrooms, 50 yds from bus stop Hadley May-31- August 31 $550 negotiable + utilities Call 586-6438

3 bedroom sublet Puffton $ neg May 27- Sept 1 New carpeting appliances Call 546-5649

3 bedrooms On busline.
Really close! Call us! 253-7694

4 br Amherst large bright great location heat, hot water incl reasonable 588-0746

$125 per huge dbl w/bath 665-0485.

$225/ mo single 1 block from campus 665-0485

$485 a month or best offer! 2 bedroom apartment in Colonial Village on bus route washer and dryer in basement summer sublet with fall option 253-7583

FREE LAUNDRY
Looking for a place to live for the summer w/ fall option? Free laundry. On bus route. Interested? Call Mari 253-4207

Needed: 2 F nonsmoking rmmrs for next year! Sept -May Ruth 256-0954

One more person for house in Falmouth all summer Call Dave 549-1669

One person for large room $170 00 Call 665-7604

Single, sunny room in renovated 2 bdrm apt on bus route $199/ mo + utils 665-3618

SERVICES

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring, confidential support 549-1906

Professional repair. Most brands audio equipment + VCRs Sound + Music 251 Pleasant Street, Northampton 584-9547

$Scholarship$ matching!
International Students too! 24 hr message! (800) 434-6015 ext 500

SPRING CONCERT 5/8/94

Security volunteers needed. Must sit/ tend one information meeting- 4/26 4/28 from 7-8pm in the Cape Cod lounge Call UPC at 545-2892 for more info

Volunteers needed for 5 days of fun in the sun! Spring concert cannot happen without your help. Come to a UPC general committee meeting on Tuesday 5/3 at 6pm or 185-89 Help wanted for security, hospitality, promotions, advertising, and stage crew

SUMMER ON CAPE COD

Summer on Cape Cod House cleaning service, seeking help, good pay. Flexible hours provide time for a second job or go to Nauset Beach housing available Kate 508-255-8432

SUMMER SUBLETS

1 bedroom in 4 bedroom apt on bus route $450/ month heat hot water 253-4652

1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt Cheap Near campus On bus line 549-1418 Take over lease option

1,2, or 3 bedrooms in house on Pine St Call 549-2560 or 8230

2 bs..ms sve

Sports

Domed from the beginning

By BRIAN PERILLO
Collegian Correspondent

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Taking on a team that is 84–5 in its home stadium can be awfully tough.

The University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse team almost made it 84–6 Saturday against defending national champion Syracuse in the Carrier Dome. Unfortunately for the Gorillas, their fourth quarter rally came up short, as the Orangemen (11–1) came away with the 11–7 victory.

After being down 8–2 at halftime, UMass (8–4) came charging back, outscoring the top–ranked Orangemen 5–3 in the second half.

"I told them [at halftime] we had to go out and win the third quarter," UMass Coach Ted Garber said. The Gorillas responded, and did just that, edging Syracuse 2–1.

Entering the fourth, trailing 9–3, UMass kept momentum on its side. Senior co–captain Wes Depp took over, scoring the next three goals in a row to pull the Gorillas within three, 9–6.

"Wes can really step up and stick it," Garber said, "He'll get it done." Depp finished with four goals and one assist.

Just when it looked like the Gorillas were going to make a run at it, Syracuse's leading scorer, junior Roy Colsey, stepped up and scored his fourth goal of the game on a hard shot from just in front of the net.

UMass would not back down, however, as sophomore midfielder Buddy Hoffman raced down the field and scored, bringing the Gorillas back within three, 10–7. That would be as close as UMass would get, as Syracuse goalie junior Alex Rosier turned it up a notch, making several excellent saves which squelched the Gorillas' comeback.

Syracuse's two–sport athlete Charlie Lockwood scored the last of his three goals with six seconds remaining to finish the scoring.

"We thought we had a great chance to comeback, but we couldn't," said Gorilla co–captain Chris Nentwich. "Their goalie made some great saves. You've got to just tip your hat to the keep."

"Rosier made some great plays, but so did (UMass goalie Tom) LoPresti," said Garber.

Despite giving up the 11 Syracuse goals, LoPresti played a great game, notching 17 saves, several in spectacular fashion.

Syracuse jumped out to an early lead, 4–0, before senior Jim Byrns broke the ice for UMass, scoring with under two minutes to go in the first quarter. Depp's first goal of the game brought the Gorillas within two, then the floodgates opened for the Orangemen.

Syracuse scored the last four goals of the half, including two by Jim Morrissey, which took the wind out of the Gorillas' sails.

"They caught us in transition," Nentwich said. "You've got to give them credit, they finished the plays."

Garber said that Syracuse Coach Roy Simmons Jr. called UMass one of the best teams in the country and that this was one of their toughest games all year.

The Gorillas face their biggest game of the year Wednesday afternoon at 3 p.m. against Brown. The game will determine the New England Championship and is a must win to make the post season.

The University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse team ran into the No. 1 team in the country, Syracuse University, this past Saturday and found itself on the losing end, 11–7.

Softball clinches A–10 title

By TED KOTTLER
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts softball team won three of four games at Totman Field this weekend, including an Atlantic 10 Championship–clinching triumph over Rhode Island Saturday, 7–0, in which Kelly Daut pitched a no– hitter.

UMass swept two from Long Island University, 2–0, 6–3, yesterday to improve to 24–15, 8–2 in the A–10.

URI took Saturday's opener 4–2, and Daut also went the distance in that contest, surrendering nine hits, walking none and striking out seven. If the WRams managed to sneak out of Amherst with a sweep, they would have taken the A–10 regular season crown with them.

ARAM COMBAN / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts softball team clinched its fourth consecutive Atlantic 10 regular season championship this past weekend when it defeated Rhode Island, 7–0.

The Minutewomen gave Daut all the support she would need for her somewhat tainted no–no (five hit batters, two walks) in the second, when they exploded for five runs. The first run came on Stephanie Mareina's bases loaded walk that scored Amy Powell. The next hitter, Sam Cardenas, sent a base–clearing triple into center field for a 4–0 UMass lead. Michelle Methot's sacrifice fly brought in Cardenas and it was 5–0.

Daut, meanwhile, began her masterpiece inauspiciously, hitting the first two batters. She then fanned four in a row and started a nifty 1–6–3 double play after walking Anne Kelsen in the third, the only baserunner she allowed until the fifth, when she hit Sara Monks.

Chris Martens led off the home half of the fifth with her first career home run at Totman, the only ball that made it over the fence there this season.

"I finally got all of the ball," Martens said of her fourth circuit clout.

Daut finished how she started with a nerve–wracking seventh frame. She hit leadoff hitter Kristy Knoedler, then issued a one–out walk to Pam Astl. She retired one more before hitting Dori Venditti to load the bases. Then the count went full on Erika Johnston, but Daut caught her looking with the payoff pitch.

"I was glad I got to pitch again because I really wanted to beat this team," Daut said. "The team played awesome. They made the plays behind me."

In the first game, the Minutewomen got on the board first, courtesy of Tracey DuEst's RBI single that plated Amy Powell.

URI tied it 1–1 via a two–out rally sparked by

Turn to SOFTBALL, page 7

Daut dazzles with no–no

Junior ace blanks Rhode Island for championship

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

Kelly Daut couldn't bring the Atlantic 10 regular season championship home for the University of Massachusetts softball team in the first game of Saturday's doubleheader against Rhode Island, losing the contest, 4–2.

So Daut took the mound in the night–cap, hurled her first career no–hitter and the Minutewomen captured their fourth– straight conference title, 7–0, over the WRams at Totman Field.

Massachusetts Coach Elaine Sortino said that the decision to pitch Daut in both ends of the doubleheader was an easy one, despite her rocky outing in game one.

"We've been struggling a little bit with our young kids. We knew we had to go out and take one; we thought it would be the first one, but either way, I was going to start her in both games," Sortino said.

The junior ace got stronger as the game went on, striking out six and walking only two, lowering her team–leading earned run average to 1.27, which ranks her among the top pitchers in the nation.

"I'm always up for any challenge. I wasn't happy after the first game. All I wanted to do was finish up strong," Daut said.

Daut was magnificent, fighting for the corners from the opening pitch in game two; she hit the first two right–handed Rhode Island batters, shortstop Anne Kelsen and rightfielder Theresa Squarcia, attempting to claim the inside corner of the plate. The first inning set the tone as she used good location, keeping WRam hitters off balance for the rest of the game.

"I just tried to work it in and out, getting strikes. The defense behind me has been solid all year long," said Daut.

"She was getting the corners and the umpire was giving it to her. She kept the ball down; It was coming up a bit in the first game," Sortino said.

ARAM COMBAN / COLLEGIAN

Kelly Daut pitched a no–hitter Saturday against Rhode Island.

In 1993, Daut put up great numbers — her ERA was a shy 1.87, she struck out 85 while walking 49, and she pitched 22 complete games. However, the Bucks County, Penn., native was the number two starter, behind then–ace Darlene Claffey. Claffey has since graduated, and Sortino has called on Daut to be the anchor of the staff.

Daut has responded, winning 12 games for the Minutewomen, including Saturday's masterpiece, the first no–hitter for Massachusetts since Claffey tossed a perfect game last season against Vermont.

With 159 innings pitched so far this season, is Daut tired?

"I've been sore, but we just have to go out and play. At any point, I do my best, keep my head up and keep it going," Daut said.

"You have to remember — she threw 12 innings two days ago [Thursday against Hofstra], then she throws 14 [Saturday]," said Sortino. "That's a lot of softball. And you could be sure she'll pitch [Sunday against Long Island University]. The golden arm goes."

Daut hurled another seven–inning complete game shutout yesterday, limiting LIU to seven hits, picking up her 13th victory of the season, 2–0.

So goes the golden arm.

Baseball clinches spot in post–season

By ANTHONY GUIDO
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts baseball team clinched a spot in the Atlantic 10 tournament but could only manage a split in a doubleheader with Duquesne at Earl Lorden Field on Saturday.

After dropping the first game 6–5, UMass (23–13, 15–4 in A–10) rebounded to win game two, 9–4. The Minutemen secured a place in the A–10 post–season tournament in Boyertown, Penn.

The Dukes surprised the Minutemen in game one behind a complete game by Damien Dubien (3–5), who pitched for the Canadian Olympic team in 1992. Dubien gave up three runs on six hits with four strikeouts to two walks.

Duquesne jumped on UMass starter Peter Ferrari (5–2) in the second inning. With a man on, Tony Rose connected on his first home run of the season. Ferrari took a line drive off his pitching hand in the inning, but shook it off to go the full seven innings.

Duquesne finished off its scoring in the fourth inning on an RBI single by Jeff Rojik. Mike Beimel then scored the sixth Duquesne run on an error by Ferrari.

Ferrari yielded six runs, only four earned, on 11 hits. The senior righthander struck out eight while walking just two.

The Minutemen began to claw back in the bottom of the fourth. After a Justin Howard double, Bill Knight smacked a RBI triple. Greg LaRocca followed with a single, plating Knight.

In the sixth, Knight lofted a fly ball to center field that was dropped by Beimel, scoring Howard. Knight then came around to score on a Jeff January single, which narrowed the gap to 6–4.

The Minutemen put runners at second and third base with one out in the seventh, but couldn't capitalize. Mark Pileski grounded out to score Justin Kelly, moving Nelson Ubaldo to third. Howard then grounded out third base to end the game.

Duquesne started quickly again in the second half of the doubleheader scoring four times in the second inning off UMass starter Jay Murphy. Rose launched

ARAM COMBAN / COLLEGIAN

Senior first baseman Jeff January and the Minuteman baseball team face Duquesne in the series finale today (11 a.m.) at Earl Lorden Field.

his second HR of the season to make it 2–0. Buddy Dice and John Wojciechowski each then connected on solo homers.

Nate Murphy tripled in the second inning and scored on a Brad Gorrie groundout. UMass scored again in the third on as January plated Knight (who had doubled) with an RBI groundout.

The Minutemen hustled their way into the lead in the fourth inning. Gorrie and Ryan Jette reached base on bunt singles and then picked up stolen bases. Two runs scored on Duquesne errors and a Pileski single.

The rout was on as UMass scored a run in the fifth on a Murphy RBI. A big sixth inning followed with RBI for Howard, Knight and a pair for January.

Jay Murphy (4–3) went the distance, yielding the four second–inning runs on five hits. He struck out a team season high 11 while only walking one. Duquesne's Ed Volz (1–4) lasted five and two–thirds innings, giving up nine runs on 13 hits.

Game three of the series, scheduled for yesterday, was postponed due to rain. The rubber game is now set for today at 11 a.m. at Lorden Field.

Collegian Sports Awards

There will be a meeting for all sports staff this Friday afternoon at 3 p.m. to discuss next semester and to hear the candidates for the next sports editor.

Be there — we may have pizza and give out awards. Only if you're nice.

Don't miss out on your chance at... free food.

Casey, Bruins get the jump on Devils

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Bryan Smolinski and David Shaw scored early and Jon Casey and the goalposts behind him made the lead stand up as the Boston Bruins defeated the New Jersey Devils 2–1 Sunday in Game 1 of their Eastern Conference playoff semifinal.

The opener of the best–of–7 series was a disappointment in that both teams seemed to be a little off their games. But maybe that was to be expected with both coming off emotional seventh game wins Friday with New Jersey knocking off Buffalo and Boston beating Montreal.

Game 2 will be played here Tuesday night.

While the level of play wasn't spectacular, there was plenty of excitement down the stretch as New Jersey tried to tie the game against Casey, who finished with 34 saves. The Devils came close at least five times.

Casey stopped Claude Lemieux on a short–handed breakaway early in the period, and then the goalposts came into play. Randy McKay hit the right one on a breakaway with 15:15 to play. Five minutes later, Bruce Driver hit the left post with a shot from the blue line and Bernie Nicholls, who scored the Devils' goal, was stopped by what appeared to be a combination of Casey's glove and the cross bar on the rebound.

Casey also stopped a knuckler from Driver with 4:00 to play. Devils goalie Martin Brodeur, who gave up just two goals in the final two games of the Sabres' series, gave up two in the opening 7:22.

Smolinski got the Bruins on the board at 5:02 with a counter–attack breakaway that was very close to being offsides. Smolinski took a pass from Stephen Heinze in full stride and beat Brodeur with a 30–footer that banged in off the right goalpost.

Murphy hit hard, settles down for win

By BILL BALFOUR
Collegian Staff

In the second game of Saturday's doubleheader with Duquesne, Massachusetts pitcher Jay Murphy found out why baseball isn't just a one inning game.

The second inning was disastrous for Murphy, who gave up four runs on three Duquesne home runs. After that, Murphy settled down and pitched a great game. Duquesne could only manage two hits off Murphy following its three–hit second inning.

Murphy (4–3) went the distance, walking only one and striking out a season team–high 11 batters.

Murphy began the second inning with a walk and back–to– back home runs by Tony Rose and Buddy Dice. Two batters later, John Wojciechowski blasted a home run to left field. Murphy escaped further damage when Nate Murphy made a diving catch to end the inning.

"I left the ball up and they jumped on me," Murphy said. "I made bad pitches."

Coach Mike Stone said he believed Murphy was pressing in the second inning, which caused a breakdown in his mechanics.

"When he does that, he slides towards the plate and he gets the ball up," Stone said. "Then he made an adjustment and got better."

Murphy shook off the rough start and got back on track in the third, giving up one hit while striking out two.

"I just bucked down and made better pitches," Murphy said. "Basically, I hit my spots and concentrated a little bit more."

Turn to MURPHY, page 7

CHRISTOPHER RAGUSA / COLLEGIAN

After giving up three home runs in one inning, Jay Murphy came back strong and picked up the victory for the Minutemen on Saturday against the Dukes, striking out 11.

Hillel seniors honored at in-house ceremony Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
Weather: Mostly sunny, high around 70
Tuesday, May 3, 1994, Volume CIII Issue 118
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

World

President elected in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Nelson Mandela proclaimed victory Monday in his lifetime crusade: a non-racial democracy for South Africa. As his supporters let loose in ecstatic celebration, the nation's first black president declared, "Free at last!" "This is indeed a joyous night for the human spirit. This is your victory too," said the beaming 75-year-old leader, his eyes glistening.

Supporters shrieked with joy in a hotel ballroom draped in the green-gold-and-black colors of Mandela's African National Congress. The celebrations spilled over into the black districts of Soweto and Alexandra, where thousands of people poured into the streets dancing ecstatically, laughing and waving ANC flags.

Mandela himself joined in the jubilation — dancing across a hotel stage with Coretta Scott King, widow of U.S. civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., and former Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda in tow. In the background, a choir sang the praises of "Madiba," Mandela's traditional clan name.

Accord to be signed soon

CAIRO, Egypt — An accord on Palestinian self-rule is almost complete, and Palestinians are "geared up at top speed" to take control of the Gaza Strip and Jericho, the PLO's chief negotiator said Monday.

Negotiator Nabil Shaath spoke to reporters after Israel's chief delegate left to brief Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Egypt began announcing plans for the signing ceremony on Wednesday. Rabin and PLO leader Yasser Arafat are to travel to Cairo to sign the agreement.

Rabin warned in Jerusalem that Wednesday's accord may unravel unless the PLO succeeds in reining in Islamic militants opposed to peace negotiations.

National

Dr. Death acquitted

DETROIT — Dr. Jack Kevorkian was acquitted Monday of breaking Michigan's assisted suicide law after a jury concluded he was only trying to help a gravely ill man end his suffering, not cause his death.

After the verdict, the 65-year-old retired pathologist challenged doctors who have secretly supported his crusade to go public.

"I know there are doctors who want to come forward," the self-styled death doctor said. "I want this intimidation by medical politicians to stop."

Kevorkian also said he is still receiving letters from sick people who want his help, but refused to say whether he would resume his assisted suicide practice any time soon.

"I think this opens the floodgates for Jack Kevorkian," said one of Kevorkian's most vocal opponents, Lynn Mills of the anti-abortion group Operation Rescue.

State/Regional

Hispanic voters unite

SPRINGFIELD — Members of Holyoke's fast-growing Hispanic population demanded more political power Monday as they opened a federal trial in a bid to renovate their old mill city's government.

The Hispanic residents hope to set an example for the increasing numbers of Hispanics in other towns and cities around Massachusetts.

"It would create an impetus to people to fight for their voting rights . . . and give people the courage to get involved," said Gloria Cabeller-Arce, one of those who lodged the lawsuit. She joined with several other Puerto Rican voters and two community groups to sue the city in February 1992 to strike down its systems for electing the City Council and School Committee. Their lawyers contend that at-large seats, which are elected by the entire city, discriminate against Hispanics by diluting their influence.

Stench fills library, air quality criticized

REBECCA PETERSON / COLLEGIAN

Amanda White, a sophomore BDIC major, browses through the card catalog.

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

On April 21, an odor from a leaking air conditioner caused a horrible smell on the main and entrance floor at the University of Massachusetts Tower library. The smell lasted for almost two weeks.

Library assistant Elizabeth McSheehy said the stench was so bad that employees were given permission to leave for the day. There was also a sign in the front entrance warning students about the smell.

"Once the smell got in here, it stayed. But we were given the option to leave. The smell was so horrible it was headache causing," McSheehy said.

The Environmental Health and Safety services were also in front of the library all day, making sure the odor was not harmful.

McSheehy also said the smell lingered in the microfilm area because there is no ventilation in that part of the library.

Many students and library employees at UMass also say the overall air quality in the tower library is poor. They feel the air is stuffy, unhealthy and too warm.

Kelly Phaelan, a senior Social Thought and Political Economy (STPEC) major, said the air in the library is very unhealthy because the windows are never open.

"It is very hard to study because the conditions are so bad. You can get tired so easily," Phaelan said.

Sophomore exercise science major, Josh Zykorle, said the air is very uncomfortable because "it is too hot in the winter and too cold in the spring."

"I think the air is poor and dry. Many people who work in the back near the microfilms have it bad," said Melinda McIntosh, who works in the microforms reference library on the main floor.

McSheehy said the main floor is lucky because they have the doors to the courtyard to open and get fresh air.

Stephanie Tache, a sophomore nursing major said she hates going to the library to study because she automatically gets a headache.

"The only time I go there is to do research. Otherwise, I feel as if I am suffocating when I am in there," Tache said. "Also, the lighting is bad. My eyes hurt every time I try to read there."

"Into Amherst" day cleans up the town

By HEATHER REDFERN
Collegian Staff

Over 150 University students, staff, faculty and alumni were greeted by sunny skies on Saturday to kick off the second annual "Into Amherst" community service day.

Volunteers gathered at the Amherst town common at 10 a.m. before departing on buses to donate their time to clean nearby conservation trails, paint town swimming pools, restore local school playgrounds, and help to repaint signs for the Amherst Survival Center.

> "I think this is the kind of activity that is going to grow over the next five years."
> David K. Scott

"I think this is the kind of activity that is going to grow over the next five years," said Chancellor David K. Scott while greeting students at the common.

"This should be a part of the education of all UMass students," said Scott.

Scott, who was an active participant in the community service day himself, said the day helped to foster a sense of community between UMass students and the residents of Amherst.

"We filled up seven trash

Turn to CLEAN-UP, page 10

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN

Into Amherst volunteers, Lisa Fillion and Liz Anderson, repaint at Amherst High School.

Grad senate elected after long campaign

By BEN GEMAN
Collegian Staff

Prasad Venugopal, Julia Johnson, Ruth Mathis and Colin Cavell were the official winners of last week's elections for the Graduate Student Senate.

"I believe that the graduate student community has mandated that we represent their interests," said Julia Johnson, vice president–elect.

Venugopal was elected president, Mathis was elected treasurer and Cavell won the race for executive officer.

Johnson said yesterday the elected coalition will pursue several goals, such as increased minority enrollment, health care coverage for all graduate students, renaming the library after W.E.B. DuBois, and opposing budget cuts and fee increases.

Venugopal said the coalition will work for the opportunity for graduate students to receive an "accessible, diverse education" and work toward the elimination of discrimination.

The election took place amidst charges of unfair campaign practices and biased coverage in the Voice, the graduate student newspaper.

The coalition of write–in presidential candidate Jaimee Saliba, vice presidential candidate Jim Delle, candidate for treasurer Pierre Laliberte, and executive officer candidate Laura Hermer had alleged the campaign coverage in The Voice was biased toward the other coalition, and that they weren't given an equal opportunity to submit letters of endorsement

Turn to GSS, page 10

Video gives students forum for perspectives

By JUSTIN DOYLE
Collegian Staff

After graduation, how will you remember UMass? Students who answered this and several other questions may be seen by Chancellor David K. Scott.

John Renaud, in association with the Union Video Center and Center for Teaching, have produced a video on the subject of undergraduate perspectives on teaching and learning.

"I worked with Katja Hahan–Derrico and Mary Dean Sorcinelli at the Center for Teaching and used UVC's equipment for filming," said Renaud, who is a member of UVC.

The video is a chance to have the undergraduate voice heard, and to effect change in the learning process said Renaud.

"We are trying to make a video to show undergraduate perspectives of teaching at UMass. We asked the students to talk about anything that facilitate or hinder learning at this university," Renaud said.

The 10 to 20 minute video will be shown to faculty, administration, and teaching assistants. The video might be shown to the Board of Trustees and state legislators said Renaud.

"The administration, faculty, and hopefully the trustees will hear what the students are saying about UMass education and facilitate a better understanding and maybe change," Renaud said.

Renaud hopes it will help to facilitate better learning at the University and build bridges and understanding between undergraduates and teachers.

"There is a definite lack of dialogue between the students and

Turn to UVC, page 3

School policies reviewed

University groups offer insight on sexual harassment

By VANESSA AMIN
Collegian Staff

Editor's note: This is the first in a two–part series concerning sexual harassment.

Do students really understand what sexual harassment means? When does sexual harassment occur and where can a student go to find these answers?

The University of Massachusetts provides students with information and counseling regarding sexual harassment.

According to the UMass Sexual Harassment Policy, sexual harassment is sex discrimination under Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 and Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Educational institutions are responsible for preventing sexual harassment of their students and employees.

Both informal and formal options are available for members of the university community to resolve sexual harassment problems. A person who feels they have been sexually harassed can go to the Affirmative Action and Equal Opportunity Office, the Ombuds Office, the Everywoman's Center, the Dean of Students and the Legal Services Office.

According to Mary Jane Quinn, the assistant director for the Affirmative Action Office, sexual harassment is unwanted behavior or attention of a sexual nature which can lead to a hostile environment.

There are three types of sexual harassment said Mary Wardwell, the assistant university ombudsperson. The first category is called "quid pro quo" which is Latin for "this for that," she said. This type of sexual harassment involves a situation where "something is given in exchange for a sexual manner," Wardwell said. An example of this type of sexual harassment is if a faculty member tells a student that "he/she will give the student an A in exchange for sex," she said.

According to Wardwell, the second type of sexual harassment is very broad which is called "hostile environment." This type of sexual harassment occurs when unwelcome sexual actions interfere with one's work "creating a hostile or offensive environment."

For instance, Wardwell said, a person in a position of power who displays unwanted touching, degrading or rude remarks, jokes of a sexual nature either verbal or written, and threats for resisting sexual advances.

The last type of sexual harassment, Wardwell said, is called "third party harassment." This is when a person, outside of the situation, witnesses the sexual advances or jokes and becomes offended. For instance, if a faculty member and a student are having a sexual relationship and other students know of this relationship, they may feel harassed because they are not receiving the same advantages, she said.

"Most of the time, it is usually men who harass women, but women have harassed men," Wardwell said. "Sometimes same sex harassment occurs."

Math students score high

By JUSTIN DOYLE
College Staff

Math students from the University of Massachusetts walked away from an awards ceremony last week feeling honored and a little wealthier.

On April 27, students received awards for their participation at the 9th Annual Department of Mathematics and Statistics Competition. Several UMass students received money for placing in the competition at an awards ceremony in Lederle Graduate Tower.

On April 6, 70 UMass students took part in the competition examination. The test took two hours and involved 10 questions covering basic calculus and high school algebra said Pavel Groisman, a Russian international student.

"The test wasn't easy, I thought it was pretty difficult," Groisman said.

COURTESY OF THE MATH DEPARTMENT

Front row (left to right) Russell Determan, Anurag Garg, and Jason Kanaley. Back row (l. to r.) Avinash Agarwal and Pavel Groisman.

Groisman, a mathematics major, was the first prize winner. Groisman, was presented with a check for $1600 by Pankaj Topiwala on behalf of the Mitre Corporation.

"There were about 20 to 25 people present at the awards ceremony. It was informal, some winners

Turn to MATH, page 3

Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Forum

Tuesday, May 3

Infosocial — The LBGA infosocial will be held from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the Campus Center.

Wednesday, May 4

Brown Bag Series — Laura Ramos, assistant professor of public health and Latino student advisor at Hampshire College, will discuss "Lesbians and AIDS" from noon to 1:30 p.m. in Campus Center Room 917.

Bi Rap Group — The LBGA Bi Rap Group meets at 7:30 p.m. in the LBGA office, 413 Student Union.

Thursday, May 5

Caucus — The LBGA Political Caucus meets at 8 p.m. in the LBGA office, 413 Student Union.

Friday, May 6

Grad group — The GLB Grad Group meets from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. in the Grad Lounge.

Saturday, May 7

Pride Day — Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender Pride Day will be held in Northampton. The Pride March, themed "Breaking Down Walls, Building a Community," will begin at noon at Lampron Park and end at Pulaski Park. Transgender author Leslie Feinberg, bisexual activist Robin Ochs and s/m issues speaker Jo Arnon will speak.

Sunday, May 8

Reading — Transgender author Leslie Feinberg will read from Stone Butch Blues at 6:30 p.m. at The Green River Cafe, 24 Federal St., Greenfield. Reading during dinner, admission is $6 with valid student ID, $10 in advance and $12 at the door.

Ongoing

Theater — John Binnie's Writings on a Frosted Window Pane will be performed at 8 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday, in Hampden Theatre. Tickets are available at the Fine Arts Center Box Office and are $3 students and senior citizens, $5 general public.

New Habitat helps humanity

By JILL WANSOR
Collegian Correspondent

The Five College Chapter of Habitat for Humanity has been an affiliate with the Pioneer Valley for just over a year, but has been involved with numerous volunteer projects.

Chartered as an affiliate in June of 1993, the Five College Chapter has grown with over 175 volunteers from the five college area. The organization is a community service program that seeks to eliminate poverty housing from the world through volunteer labor.

"It would link the five colleges together," said Michael Spanknebel, the Pioneer Valley affiliate, about the reason the group came to the area. "It's a huge resource of skilled and unskilled labor."

Spanknebel has been involved with Habitat for Humanity for over three years. It wasn't until George Goodwin, a retired University of Massachusetts professor, and Chris Carlisle, the Episcopal chaplain at UMass, got together that the group finally got recognition. They did some paperwork and set out to find volunteers.

David Amsbury and Charles Riccardi, both UMass students, met with three representatives, drew up a constitution, and the Five College Chapter was formed.

The group has participated in several events throughout the semester including the "Collegiate Challenge." Twelve students from the area sacrificed a traditional spring break and went to West Virginia to assist in the construction of affordable housing.

"The Collegiate Challenge is a great opportunity to get hands-on experience while helping other people help themselves," Riccardi said.

In the fall, the F.C.C. helped the Amherst Conservation construct a foot bridge and helped complete the Springfield chapter's current affordable housing unit.

This semester the Five College group played a large part with the UMass Service Council in the "Out of Amherst Day." They assisted in the repairs of four homeless shelters in Springfield.

Habitat for Humanity International was founded in 1976 by Linda and Millard Fuller. It is a Christian Housing Ministry that seeks to eliminate poverty housing from the world and to make a decent shelter a matter of conscience and action.

Habitat for Humanity is a grass-roots movement. Anyone who wants more information on the Five College Chapter should contact Michael Spanknebel at 586-8572; David Amsbary at 586-7348; or Mark Preston at 549-8138.

ARTCARVED PRESENTS

SAVE $150

SAVE $215 Save $25 on your 14K College Ring and receive a Getaway Weekend for 2, a $190 value.

$240 Save $50 on your 18K College Ring and receive a Getaway Weekend for 2, a $190 value.

GO For your Weekend Getaway you get 3 day and 2 night hotel accomodations for 2* at one of 133 different locations. You pick the time and the place.

* This offer does not include room taxes

ARTCARVED College Jewelry

UNIVERSITY STORE Campus Center 545-2619 May 2 - May 4 10 am - 3:30 pm

CELEBRATING 26 YEARS 1968-1994

THE PUB

Fun, Food & Spirits

TUESDAY

Live Entertainment with

New Horizons

and special guest

Mentos

Reggae - Calypso

9:30-1:00

Nachos $2.00 9:30-10:30

15 EAST PLEASANT-AMHERST

WRITINGS ON A FROSTED WINDOW PANE

A NEW PLAY BY JOHN BINNIE

MAY 3,4,5,6, AND 7 AT 8PM

MATINEE -MAY 7 AT 2PM

HAMPDEN THEATRE

FAC BOX OFFICE 545-2511

THE FINE ARTS CENTER
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST

This project and John Binnie's Residency are funded in part by the UMass Arts Council, the Five College Lecture Fund, the UMass Student Activities Cultural Enrichment Fund, Hampshire College Theatre program, Smith College Department of Theatre, and the UMass Theater Department.

Tired of Roomates?

Come live by yourself for as little as $320.00/Month

College Inn Apts.

mgmt. by Kamins Real Estate

253-2515

One of these high-speed, high-performance machines can be yours for low monthly payments. The other one is just here for looks.

Lamborghini Diablo VT with leather interior, cool wheels and a really, really, really fast engine.

Power Macintosh 6100/60 8/160 with an Apple® Color Plus 14" Display, an Apple Extended Keyboard II and mouse.

Right now, when you qualify for the Apple Computer Loan, you could pay as little as $33* a month for a Power Macintosh.† It's one of the fastest, most powerful personal computers ever. Which means you'll have the ability to run high-performance programs like statistical analysis, simulations, video editing and much more. Without wasting time. If you'd like further information on Power Macintosh, visit your Apple Campus Reseller. You're sure to find a dream machine that's well within your budget.

Power Macintosh for $33 a month.

Apple

UNIVERSITY STORE Computer Department Campus Center 545-2619 MONDAY - FRIDAY 9AM-5 PM SATURDAY 11AM-3PM

*Monthly payment is an estimate based on an Apple Computer Loan at 12.12% for the Power Macintosh 6100/60 8/160 shown above. Price and loan amounts are based on Apple's estimate of higher education prices as of February 1994. Computer system prices, monthly payments and loan amounts may vary. See your Apple Campus Reseller for current prices. A 5% loan origination fee will be added to the requested loan amount. The interest rate is variable, based on the commercial paper rate plus 3.5%. For the month of February, 1994, the interest rate was 8.54%, with an APR of 10.14%. 5-year loan term with no prepayment penalty. The monthly payment shown assumes no deferment of principal or interest (deferment will change your monthly payments). †An Apple Computer Loan is subject to credit approval. © 1994 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple and the Apple logo are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. Power Macintosh is a trademark of Apple Computer, Inc.

UVC

continued from page 1

administration. We want to bridge the gap between the two," Renaud said.

Camera interviews took place on April 28 and 29. Students voiced their ideas about both the positive and negative about the university. Renaud noticed students had some similar concerns.

"I talked to exchange students, people from different backgrounds, students from different economic backgrounds and their were some definite reoccurring themes," Renaud said.

"Tuition and fees keep getting higher and higher, but classes keep getting cut. The amount of money which we pay is not measuring up to the quality of education we are receiving. Students are very concerned," Renaud said.

Although interviews have been finished students are encouraged to get involved. For more information call UVC at 545-1336.

math

continued from page 1

brought their families," Groisman said.

Avinash Agarwal, an engineering major, took home second prize. Agarwal was presented with a $1000 check by Staci Leary, a 1988 UMass graduate and employee of United Technologies.

James Lawrence, a mathematics major, was the third place winner and received a $400 check donated by the Mathematics and Statistics Department. Lawrence did not attend the awards ceremony.

"I thought the test was easy, I thought I was going to win," said Lawrence.

Linda Slakey, dean of the faculty of natural sciences presented three $50 checks as honorable mention prizes to Anurag Garg, a computer science major, and Russell Determan and Jason Kanaley, both mechanical engineering majors.

The winners were treated to dinner at Seasons restaurant in Amherst by the department of mathematics and statistics.

Hillel bids its graduates farewell

By JACOB W. MICHAELS
Collegian Staff

Hillel House waved goodbye to its graduating seniors in a small ceremony on Sunday.

Thirty people, mostly students, watched as Eric Mirel, Andy Ramer, Dan Henderson, Mitch Kotler and Stephanie Follick were honored.

Also honored, but not present at the ceremony, were Hilary Chazanoff, David Glass, Tara Gorvine, Kim Judd, Lisa Katz and David Levenson.

The ceremony was opened by Hillel President Alan Weinfeld, who spoke of how it was a time to "reflect on the past and usher in new leadership."

Rabbi Saul Perlmutter then told a story of a couple that was upset because their house was too small. They went to their rabbi who told them to bring a chicken, a goat and a cow into the house. After they did this, the house was more crowded, so they went back to the rabbi and asked what to do.

The rabbi told them to take them animals out of the house and they did so, realizing how much room they now had in the house. He said the honorees had done the same thing, enhancing their already crowded life by bringing Hillel into it. He finish by saying "you certainly have enhanced the lives of the Jewish community."

Each of the present honorees were introduced and spoke briefly. Mirel, a member of the Student Alliance For Israel and the American Israel Political Action Committee, spoke of how he "enjoyed putting time and effort into Hillel."

Mirel then introduced Ramer, who had been very active in the Greek area. Ramer spoke of how he was "anti-protests" and his experiences of coming to campus as a Conservative Jew and seeing women on the bima, the place where the rabbi speaks from.

Henderson, the chair of the Black/Jewish relations committee, gave his thanks to everyone here and all who supported him and welcomed him into the community.

Josh Slomich introduced Kotler as a friend who, at times, was the religious committee. Slomich added that he was "a swell guy" who could always be counted on. Kotler spoke of how "Hillel has gone out of its way" to help out on campus and make people feel welcome.

Weinfeld then introduced Follick, the Hillel secretary. He called her the "queen of voice mail," and spoke of how she cared so much about everyone, and could see the good side in everything. Follick talked about how Hillel was the second stop on move-in day of 1990, and how she and Hillel had both grown so much since then. She extended many thanks, and ended by saying these "have been the best four years" of her life.

All the honorees received a certificate and a carnation.

Weinfeld then gave his outgoing president's speech. He talked about how Hillel had "opened the barn door and exploded on campus," and how they would fight for Jewish Students' rights and against anti-Semitism. He spoke of how he had travelled all over the world, representing the University of Massachusetts Hillel, and how "Jewish students are not going to be silent anymore." Weinfeld then handed the ceremonial gavel over to the new Hillel president, Nurit Ben-Harav.

Ben-Harav spoke of making Hillel "more professional and political than ever." She spoke of how the Hillel Constitution was being revised and plans to bring, in new members, and to send students to Israel. She said Hillel would reach out to the Jewish community on campus. To the graduating seniors, Ben-Harav said, "You will not be forgotten."

"One day I decided to sell my bike and my car, and in the spirit of Walden Woods & Don Henley, I would walk everywhere from now on.

I also decided that the best way to get rid of them and make a whole lot of cash (that I wouldn't donate any of to a worthy enviranmental cause) was to advertise in The Collegian Classifieds.

Needless to say, I sold my bike and car, but when I looked to see my classified in the paper I saw a really cool classified for a matorcyle. Screw the enviranment, now I ride with the wind and death at my side."

Collegian Classifieds They really work.

Summer Health Coverage - 1994

Coverage Period: June 1, 1994 - August 31, 1994
(if enrolled by 6/1/94)

Basic Health Fees: $188.50

Student Family Plan Fees: $424.00

Visit the Member Services Department located in the front lobby for enrollment - 549-2671, x192.

Eligibility: Amherst, Hampshire, Mount Holyoke, Smith and UMass students.
(only UMass students with Basic and SHBP are eligible for the Student Family Plan)

University Health Services / University of Massachusetts, Amherst

Commuter Area Government

PROUDLY PRESENTS

The 6th Annual Spring Comedy Show

with Jon Stewart

Host of MTV's The JON STEWART SHOW

AND A SPECIAL GUEST

THURSDAY, MAY 5, 1994 8:00PM

The Fine Arts Center

University of Massachusetts

$3.00 UMASS STUDENTS/$5.00 GENERAL PUBLIC

TICKETS ON SALE AT THE FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE (545-2511)

Tickets holders win a chance to be on

The JON STEWART SHOW

or receive MTV's

"ROCK THE VOTE"

T-SHIRTS

* This Program Benefits Student Voter Registration *

BUY BACK TIME

University Store's Textbook Annex announces a new Buyback location in the Campus Center!

TO MAKE IT EASIER AND MORE COVIENENT, BUY-BACK WILL NOW BE HELD AT THE FOLLOWING LOCATIONS: CAMPUS CENTER, TEXTBOOK ANNEX IN HAMPDEN SOUTHWEST. YOU WILL MAKE THE MOST FOR YOUR MONEY BY SELLING YOUR TEXTBOOKS DURING THE "CLOSING BUY". SO, PLEASE, TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE NEW LOCATIONS AND THE FACT THAT THIS IS THE BEST TIME TO SELL. STUDENT ID IS REQUIRED.

CAMPUS CENTER
(1st Floor by the ATM Machines)

May 11, 12, 13 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

May 14 11:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

May 16 and 17 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

May 18, 19, 20 9:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m

TEXTBOOK ANNEX

May 11, 12, 13 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

May 16, 17, 18, 19, 20 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

May 23 and 24 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

May 25 9:00 a.m. to noon

HAMPDEN IN SOUTHWEST

May 18, 19, 20 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.

TEXTBOOK SCHOLARSHIP DRAWING

$2,500 TO BE GIVEN AWAY IN $100 AWARDS
ENTRY FORMS AVAILABLE AT ALL BUYBACK LOCATIONS

DRAWINGS HELD ON THE CAMPUS CENTER CONCOURSE AT NOON MAY 16 THRU 20, 1994

SCHOLARSHIPS WILL BE AWARDED IN THE FORM OF UNIVERSITY STORE GIFT CERTIFICATES. SCHOLARSHIP FUND IS GUARANTEED TO BE $2,500. SEE THE ANNEX FOR DETAILS.

TEXTBOOK SCHOLARSHIPS DRAWING - ENTRY FORM
UNIVERSITY STORE'S TEXTBOOK ANNEX

DROP OFF COMPLETED ENTRY FORM AT THE UNIVERSITY STORE OR ANY BUYBACK LOCATION.

NAME: _____

HOME ADDRESS: _____ CAMPUS ADDRESS: _____

HOME PHONE: _____ CAMPUS PHONE: _____

EMPLOYEES OF AUXILIARY SERVICES AND SOUTH EASTERN BOOK COMPANY ARE NOT ELIGIBLE.
LIMIT ONE PRIZE AWARDED PER PERSON.
SCHOLARSHIPS WILL BE AWARDED IN THE FORM OF UNIVERSITY STORE GIFT CERTIFICATES.
ENTRY FORMS MUST BE FILLED OUT COMPLETELY.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

MICHAEL MORRISSEY Editor-in-Chief
Managing Editor DARIENNE HOSLEY — MICHAEL MCRAE Business Manager
Arts & Living Editor EMILY A. MARINO — LISA JEZOWSKI Production Manager
Black Affairs Editor RODNEY POWELL — DANIELLE YANIRO Advertising Manager
Developing Nations Editor JUAN J. CHACON QUIROS — STEPHANIE SNOW Finance Manager
Editorial/Opinion Editor MIKE CARVALHO — ANDREW DAVIDSON Night Graphics Manager
Gay/Lesbian/Bisexual Issues Editor STEPHEN C. CAMPBELL — JIM BRUNEAU, CAITLIN OLSON Day Graphics Managers
Jewish Affairs Editor JACOB W. MICHAELS — JEREMY DAGGETT Circulation Manager
Multicultural Affairs Editor EVELYN A. DE JESUS — ERIC ABENAIM Subscriptions Manager
News Editor TRACY MONAHAN — MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI Senior Bookkeeper
Photography Editor NATHAN MARTIN — BLAKE PHILLIPS Graphics Professional
Sports Editor ARTHUR STAPLETON JR. — MARTY PAPPAS Classified Advertising
Women's Issues Editor VANESSA ANN — TURLEY PUBLICATIONS Printing Services

113 CAMPUS CENTER BASEMENT · UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS · AMHERST, MA 01003 · (413) 545-3500 · FAX (413) 545-1592

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday–Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. Letters to the editor are encouraged and will be printed on a space-available basis. All submissions must be typed, left in a maximum of 400 words, and should include the writer's name, address, year and major as well as a phone number for verification purposes. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length. Persons wishing to submit guest columns should contact the Editorial/Opinion editor in advance. The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily represent those of the Collegian. Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Editorial Board.

Faculty voice dissatisfaction with Scott

Editor's note: The following letter was sent from the Chairs and Directors of the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences to Chancellor David Scott on April 29, 1994.

Dear Chancellor Scott:

We, the Chairs and Directors of the Departments and Institutes of the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences, wish to express our strong disapproval of your precipitous removal of outstanding administrators from their offices.

We believe that you have not yet provided a satisfactory justification for this action. Your primary justification is the need for "changes" of unspecified extent or direction. We need to learn the nature of the planned changes before we can support them.

You seem to assume that the faculty of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst will necessarily oppose any change and that you must wrest control of the University away from the faculty. We wish to assure you that you are wrong in this assumption, and to advise you that the only way to affect a change for the better will be to secure the support of the faculty.

You can expect serious and rational consideration of any proposals you put to the faculty with the public and formal opportunity to help shape change. Despite symbolic overtures, you have not yet meaningfully involved the faculty in planning and policy–making.

Only when the faculty are truly a part of the decision– making process will they be willing to contribute the concrete ideas and dedicated effort that are needed if change is to go beyond pronouncements and accomplishments.

You will not, given your actions of the past week, be able to recover the confidence of the entire faculty. All we can hope for is that you are willing to attempt to recover the confidence and support of most of the faculty.

You can begin by involving faculty and the entire University community in an open and public search for replacement interim vice chancellors, as requested by the overwhelming vote of the faculty. You can continue by ensuring faculty and the University community a real voice in the development of concrete plans for change, and by sharing with them honestly and openly your goals for the University.

We believe that you will find your colleagues and their students willing to accept and promote change, if the nature of that change is openly described and rationally justified.

We share your stated wish for the University to advance to the next level. We believe that this can only be done by working in collaboration with the faculty and the community to determine what that next level will be. We do not believe that it is too late to hope that this can still happen.

We wish to help in this process by inviting you to meet with us as a body, within the next two weeks, to discuss your goals and ours and to work jointly to achieve these goals.

Charles Clifton
Randall Stokes
Alan Swedlund
Douglas Anderton
Ethan Katsh
Sara Lennox
William G. Shepherd
Patricia A. Greenfield
Stephen P. Coelen
Jarice Hanson
Eric Einhorn

Who was Richard Nixon?

We have an odd habit in this country of praising people when they die, no matter how disgraceful their lives may have been. I had not planned to comment on the last crisis of Richard Milhous Nixon. But since Nixon's death, I have been surprised by the number of people who have praised him, or who don't seem to know much about him at all.

He has died, and now he will have to deal with whatever god he meets on his own terms. Why was he so hated, though? His life cannot fit into this space; for a fuller version, see Tom Wicker's 1991 book, One Of Us. Here is a brief version of Nixon's career.

Some have said that Richard Milhous Nixon is too complicated to understand. He isn't. He was a tortured, unloved man who would do anything for approval and power. He would use any tactic to survive.

Peter J. Orvetti

Nixon was born in poverty, to parents who did not believe in expressing love. A letter he wrote to his mother at age 10 was signed, "Your faithful dog, Richard." He had to start work at 10, and made it to college on his own, with a burning resentment for those of privilege.

His cold childhood and his anger at the higher classes drove Nixon to politics, seeking respect and revenge. He became a subliminal Joe McCarthy, using manipulative tactics to brand a Congressional opponent and a Senate opponent as Communists, through subtle imagery as well as doctored facts. In the Senate race, the Nixon campaign also employed anti-Semitism against his opponent's Jewish husband. (Anti–Semitism would be a recurring theme in Nixon's political career and, in private, "Jew" was the term he used to describe those he hated, whether they were Jewish or not.)

In Congress, he branded an obscure, effective State Department official, Alger Hiss, as a Communist spy and sent him to prison. His anti–Communist crusades landed him a spot on the 1952 Republican ticket as Dwight Eisenhower's vice president. Nixon was elected despite rumors that he was operating a secret slush fund.

Nixon's tenure as vice president was long and sad. He resented being cut out of Ike's inner circle, and was even publicly mocked by the president. Eisenhower did not like Nixon, and tried to force him off the 1956 ticket. Nixon's one noted suggestion during his vice presidency was the use of nuclear weaponry at Dienbienphu, Vietnam, to support the retreating French. He was nominated for president in 1960 and defeated by John F. Kennedy.

Nixon returned to win the presidency in 1968. Although he had a fairly good civil rights record, Nixon adopted the infamous "Southern strategy" for the next election, namely the Republican strategy of appealing to Southern racists by race–baiting and toning down civil rights measures — not surprising from a man who regularly incited protesters to heckle him simply so he could exploit it to his next conservative audience.

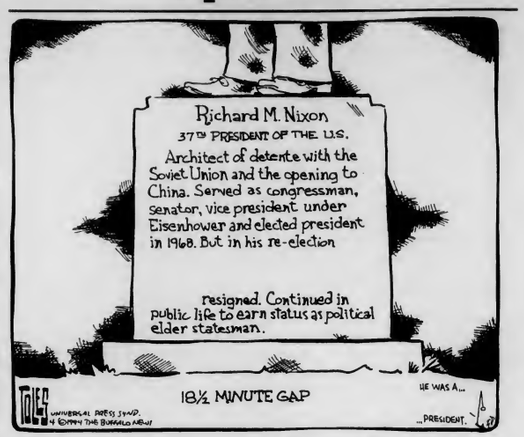
Nixon was, hands down, the most intelligent president of this century. Unfortunately, his presidency was based on a drive for survival, not reform. Having lived in poverty, he truly desired to make people's lives better, but he had a paranoia so great that it led him to massive abuses of power. He did institute some surprisingly progressive social measures. Other than that, his term is marked by the installation of a dictatorship in Chile, the use of illegal measures to suppress dissent, the Kent State massacre and the prosecutorial inaction that followed, the U.S. invasion of Cambodia (which was the first time the United States has invaded a non–hostile nation since the Mexican War), the keeping of an enemies list, and the madman theory. His two greatest successes, opening China and establishing detente with the Soviets, are now viewed as inevitable acts that would have occurred under any administration.

The madman theory was Nixon's plan to end the Vietnam war by convincing Hanoi's government that he was insane. He did this by ordering random, intense bombings of strategically unimportant areas, like villages. It was not the prosecution of war; it was genocide.

The Watergate scandals that led to his resignation cannot be fully recounted here. In summary, they consisted of: creating false documents on Muskie for President stationery; creating an illegal slush fund; bugging Democratic headquarters; plotting the assassination of a political columnist; destruction of evidence; ignoring a Supreme Court subpoena; ordering the dismissal of the man appointed to prosecute him.

In his final days in office, Richard Nixon neared insanity. Many feared that he would start a nuclear war just to avoid impeachment. He talked to paintings and had to have his gun taken away out of fear that he would shoot himself in the Oval Office.

Some have said that Richard Milhous Nixon is too complicated to understand. He isn't. He was a tortured, unloved man who would do anything for approval and power. He would use any tactic to survive. To the day he died, he refused to admit that he had done anything wrong. His only comment was, "When the president does it, it is not illegal."



Nixon led a painful life, but he took it out on the world exponentially. He cared more for his own survival than he did for the country, or the world. Nixon was a crook. High office does not a hero make. A man's death does not make him a better man.

Peter J. Orvetti is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury

Opinion

Nixon not worthy of praise

Last week, I was waiting for the bus on Haigis Mall and I noticed that the flag was at half–mast. This really made me think about the silly symbolism that Americans reinforce everyday.

We lowered the flag for a man who, if he did not out–and– out admit to his illegal activities, at least implied his guilt through his actions. Richard Nixon was a crook, and a bad president (and, according to Jon Lupo, he had a bad haircut, too).

We lowered the flag for one man who died of natural causes and old age. What about the people who die in the thousands every day in Rwanda, Somalia, Bosnia– Herzogovina and America? They die of natural causes, as well as unnatural causes like gun shots, large–scale bombing attacks, starvation and chemical warfare.

Marni E. Helfner

How does one life merit more value than another? Do the actions of one make them better than another? Hardly. I can think of at least of a half a dozen people I know who have died in the past year who deserve to have a flag lowered to half–mast.

I asked a former serviceman what he thought of lowering the flag for Nixon, and he replied, "Richard Nixon served his country, he was the president."

My friend's dad, Mr. Miller, is terminally ill, and he does not have alot of time left. Mr. Miller also served his country and, more importantly, the people of his town. He was the volunteer fire chief for several years, worked at the local YMCA and did all sorts of volunteer work. He raised three bright and personable kids, worked hard and was an overall nice guy. When he dies, though, the flag will not be lowered to half–mast.

How can Richard Nixon merit lowering the flag when Mr. Miller does not? Thousands of men and women have died serving the United States in the armed forces, but we never lower the flag for them. People die in the streets of America everyday, but we never lower the flag for them.

Who decides the honors one receives?

Take a look at who we honor. Perhaps it needs to be people who are more real, and not political icons who appear to hold the power in this so–called democracy. We honor Michael Jordan because of his athletic skill, Spike Lee for his forthrightness, and Gloria Steinem for her search for the truth. But we also realize that they have their human weaknesses. They are more real because they make mistakes too. To make Nixon into an idol is to make him less than human, and that would be ridiculous.

Yes, Nixon did wonders for the foreign policy, but he was involved in the Vietnam conflict, the communism accusations of Alger Hiss, and generally did more harm than help. Our history classes teach us that the president is not an elected monarch. We cannot look at our presidents without criticism and without the firm realization that they are only human — no more deserving of praise than the next person. Just because a person has the money, power and political clout to become president does not mean that person is deserving of the position.

So I ask you, do you know a Richard Nixon? Do you know a Mr. Miller? How can we decide who is the better person and who deserves a flag at half–mast? It's time to stop idolizing our so–called political leaders, and start honoring the real people.

Marni E. Helfner is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Do–gooders should butt–out of Newman

To the editor:

I read with some concern an article the Collegian ran on the front page on April 26 under the headline, "Grad class hopes to ban cigarette smoke in Newman Center." It struck me that it brought up some important ideas.

Smoking is banned across campus. Over the winter, it was decided that smokers could indulge themselves, as long as it was outdoors or outside the academic center of campus. There may be some grumbling as the beautiful weather becomes the norm, but for now, I think we have a manageable compromise.

If you do wish to smoke, go outside, go to the smoking lounges in the dorms, or go to the Newman Center — unless smoking is banned there, too.

Now, let's not even get into the legal technicality that the University has no power over Newman Center policies (remember separation of church and state?). Let's just look at human rights. Sure, smokers are killing themselves. We know that, they know that, even Doonesbury's Mr. Butts knows that — though he won't admit it. But so what?

Where in the Constitution does it say, "Congress (or anyone else, for that matter) shall have the right to keep people to be healthy." No, I think we would all agree that nobody — except maybe Mom — has the right to tell us to eat our vegetables, wear our sunscreen, or stop smoking.

Smokers are required to abstain from smoking in enclosed on–campus spaces, but the Newman Center enjoys some degree of immunity from the local politics. Everybody knows you can smoke at the Newman Center. If you don't like it, go to the Bluewall or somewhere else. But don't force them to change their policy just because you don't like it.

And even more importantly, don't force them to tamper with what many people see as their right, just because you disagree. As many Christians say, live and let live. Or even, as James Bond might say, live and let die. But don't think it is any of your business.

Jonathan Frantz
History, junior

The Minuteman is a symbol of this state

To the editor:

In response to Veronica de Vos' letter "Minuteman 'puppets' were controlled by profiteering capitalists" [Collegian, May 2], I believe that she, too, has misconstrued the issue.

The Minuteman symbol is not a symbol of racism, capitalism or any other "ism" that some might want to try to attach to it. The Minuteman is a symbol of Massachusetts (remember the five million people whose taxes support this place?) and one of which we are very proud.

This may sound a bit xenophobic but, had you lived in this state a little longer, or maybe even this country (as evidenced by your spelling of the word "colour" — it's "color" here) you might realize that this place is not full of brainless automatons controlled by greedy capitalists.

Massachusetts was at the forefront of the labor (not labour) movement in places like Lowell, Lawrence and Fall River in addition to being the birthplace of the American Revolution. The backbone of this "bourgeois" revolution was comprised of yeoman farmers of the countryside who owned their own farms.

There was no media to pollute their collective subconscious, just guys in red coats taking their money to finance other ventures of British imperialism in Ireland, India, Africa, etc. without asking them for their input. So maybe their decision to fight in the Revolutionary War wasn't so deceived after all.

The Minuteman is not just a symbol of this school, it is also a symbol of Massachusetts. The people of Massachusetts — who'll continue to be associated with the symbol of the University long after Ms. de Vos has graduated — deserve to have a little more respect paid to their culture, history and traditions.

Besides, there are much more pressing issues toward which to turn our efforts.

Peter Dunn
Political science, senior

by Garry Trudeau

Not much time left in the semester

You know, this semester is ending fast. Finals, papers and the last day of classes are right around the corner. The dog days of summer will be here before you know it. Before you start reaching for the SPF 15, maybe you should reach for the typewriter and send off a letter to the editor.

Just think, there are only six more issues coming out this semester. Only six more times for you to get your opinions read by 19,000 people. Six — then it's over again until next fall. Why waste those thoughts or let them perish over the long, hot summer months? Send them in and enlighten the community.

Send all letters to the Collegian, 113 Campus Center Basement.

Developing Nations

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian.

The truth about the Hebron massacre

We strongly condemn the massacre of Innocent Palestinian civilians by a reservist of the Israeli Defence Forces (IDF). We would like to state the following about this tragic incident, which we think also represents the feelings of a vast majority of Muslims the world over:

•(i) This happened in a territory which is under the rule of an occupying force; this occupation is being continued disregarding all norms of international law and despite the universal condemnation which it has resulted in.

•(ii) The victims of this heinous crime were worshipping in their religious sanctuary during a day (Friday) and month (Ramadan) both of which have a special significance for Muslims.

•(iii) The Israeli government did receive warnings before the massacre. It is hard to comprehend that the IDF and the well advertised Mossad, whose sinews are supplied by the tens of billions of dollars of U.S. money, to kill stone throwing Palestinian teenagers could not prevent this massacre!

•(iv) The worshippers were supposedly under the "protection" of the IDF but the evidence suggests that this atrocity was committed by at least two uniformed members of the IDF.

•(v) The U.N. security council first kept dragging its feet and ultimately came up with a very weak resolution so that the government of Israel might not be embarrassed. Here we would like to point out that the U.N. security council, which has not very long ago condemned hundreds of thousands of Muslims to death and has inflicted untold miseries to millions since then, usually finds it extremely difficult to enforce its own resolutions if the victims happen to be Muslims.

•(vi) The U.S. media, which it seems have developed a conditioned reflex of abrupt negative–stereotyping of Muslims whenever Muslims are involved, have somewhat downplayed this incident. We did not see any terrorism expert awakened late at night to do psychoanalysis of terrorists, there was no mention of "Jewish threat" to world peace and neither was the incompatibility of "the Jewish values" and "the West" highlighted. It was depicted as an act of a single individual and there was no tracing of activities of his organization and other similar organizations to the U.S. soil. Some "distinguished" columnists and organizations had even the audacity to use this terrible atrocity to score some points for their beloved Israeli government by mentioning its condemnation of this incident. Tell a Palestinian living under the perpetual fear of IDF death squads (operating both in uniform and in Palestinian garbs) to thank the Israeli government for its condemnation!

To an average reader of the Collegian, this statement might seem to be superfluous. It might be asked, "Why should an American citizen bother about what is going on in the Middle East?" The answer to that would be that it is the American government whose financial and moral help has enabled Israel to continue this illegal occupation of Palestine for 26 years and to engage in a genocide of the Palestinian people for the last half a century by using every possible means including torture, assassinations, bombings and other terrorist activities.

The United States has shielded Israel so far against international condemnation by using its veto 29 times to block U.N. Security Council resolutions. In the FY 1993, the total cost to U.S. tax payers in terms of U.S. aid to Israel was 6.321 billion U.S. dollars (that comes to more than 17 million dollars per day).

This policy of genocide being carried out for the last half century has resulted in untold deaths and sufferings for the Palestinian people. For instance, during the last six years 1283 Palestinians have died and 130,472 were hospitalized as a result of injuries inflicted by the Israeli Occupying Forces. Israel has illegally confiscated 116,918 acres of the land of Israeli-occupied-Palestine. Today there are 2.8 million Palestinian refugees who have been forced to live in exile as a result of terrorist tactics used by Israelis.

This policy of genocide being carried out for the last half century has resulted in untold deaths and sufferings for the Palestinian people.

The American public is also in a way involved in this process by letting tens of billions of dollars of its tax–money to be used to arm the Army of Occupation and its death squads, in fact the state of Israel cannot survive without American financial aid. Despite that, power-dealers of the corridors of Washington are so scared of the pro-Israeli/pro-Zionist lobby that the aid to Israel is treated like a sacred cow. The anthorpersons and the columnists who have brought down the palaces of several mighty ones are so scared of the "anti-Semitic" label that the genocide of another Semitic people goes unchecked!

We also take strong exception to the negative stereotyping of the Arabs and Muslims by the American media and Hollywood. It might be worth mentioning that the American Muslims (who by some estimates will outnumber the American Jews by the year 2000) are greatly disturbed by the negative projection of Islam and Muslims by the American media. We sincerely hope that among non–Muslim Americans there are at least some whose reflexes have not yet been conditioned by the anti–Muslim hate and who have not come out of their high schools with pictures of crazy-eyed sword wielding Muslims engraved in their minds.

To those friends we say that please do not give your verdict before listening to the other side of the story. To them we also say that Islam teaches us to respect all forms of life. The killing of an innocent human being is strictly forbidden. According to the Qura'n, "Nor take life - which God has made sacred - except for just cause" (17:33). Starting from the early days of Islam the Muslim armies at war with other lands were instructed to treat the prisoners kindly and not to harm any living forms including trees and crops.

To give it a historic perspective, this was eight centuries before the Spanish Inquisition and the re-conquest of the "New World!" in fact in the Qura'n the two most commonly used names for God are the Most Gracious (al-Rahman) and the Most Merciful (al-Raheem). Though we are asked to fight injustice and oppression, we are also told that the best recourse (in personal matters) is to forgive. Time and again we are instructed to bear adversity with patience ("O ye who believe, seek help with patient perseverance and prayer: for God is with those who patiently persevere", Qura'n, 2:153).

So our fellow students, let's ask our Congressmen and Senators why the American government is an abettor to the genocide of the Palestinian people going on for the last half a century. To those who believe in God we say that the Most Gracious and the Most Merciful God (whom we Muslims, along with Arab Christians call Allah) has created all of us. So how can it be that He loves one group and hates another group of people. The sobs, tears and blood of the Palestinian people are as precious and as sacred as those of any other people.

This letter was signed by Zaid Al–Mosletz, Z. Afsal, Sajeed Ahmed, Syed Ahmed, A. Bijoor, Syed Bolibari, Tariq Akbar, Fouad Dior, Ayman El–Fahan, Andy Fletcher, Abdul Hannan, Zafar Hasan, Levent Incell, Brett Jackson, Infar Khan, John Merguerim, Mohd Mohamed, Asif Naeem, Muteed Otch, Amin Plaisted, Atiar Rahman, Golam T. Rasul, M. Younus and Husnan Zakaria.

Who supports the U.S. blockade on Cuba?

1. Jorge Mas Canosa and the Cuban American National Foundation
2. The President and Congress

Who has come out against the blockade?

1. The United Nations General Assembly (Nov. 1993, 88 votes to 4)
2. The European Parliament (Sept. 1993)
3. The National Council of Churches (Nov. 1993)
4. The New York Times
5. The Boston Globe
6. The Washington Post
7. The Los Angeles Times
8. Wayne Smith, former head of the U.S. Interests Section in Cuba.

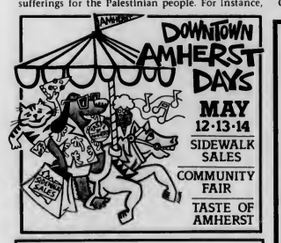
Explaining third world poverty

Developing countries lie far behind first world countries in the industrializing process. The poverty which runs rampant among third world countries like Bangladesh and Zaire prove that. One then rationally questions why is this so, and what can be done about it?

Some people, characterizing the modernization approach to third world poverty, feel that poorer countries suffer economically because they possess a backward culture. Non– economic variables stemming from the colonial past, like attitudes toward life, work and authority, kinship and religion have all contributed as serious stumbling blocks to any indigenous effort to develop economically or politically. Developing countries must change their traditional values if they are to modernize. Replicating the path of modernized countries and imitating Western culture might even speed up the process of development. However, none of the countries which have adapted policies of assimilation into Western life–styles have experienced significant development. Also, cultures change very slowly, while national economic performance alters much more dramatically. Thus, the modernization approach proves less than useful for explaining third world poverty.

Another approach, one that I feel is more useful, dictates that more of the blame for third world underdevelopment must be placed on the external and not the internal institutions of a developing country. Underdevelopment is defined as dependent capitalism, and is viewed in terms of international power relations between rich–poor countries and the proliferation of dual economies and societies among and within nations. The relationship between these countries can be summarized as exploitation, where the surplus product is transferred from the periphery to the center. This approach stresses the expansive nature of capitalism and includes Marx's theory of Imperialism. Dependence only allows industrial development in some countries while restricting it in others, whose growth is conditioned by and subject to the power centers of the world.

It is therefore clear that the first world is still not willing to relinquish their control over the third world.



Historically, European colonizers had devised colonies into export economies so as to secure raw materials for their Industrial Revolution. The whole motive for colonialism was economic prosperity for the metropole, and this most always took place at the expense of the satellite. Low wage production weakened and limited the colony's internal market, which helped contribute to their subordinate status of developing countries on developed countries.

Even today, as in the colonial past, most economies of lesser developed nations are directed towards the production of primary products (raw materials, agriculture) which act as their main exports. Clearly, enormous problems arise from the dependence on single exports and trade. Therefore, there is a pressing need for developing countries to diversify their monoculture economy as well as create import substitution. This will help to strengthen the domestic market as well as help to somewhat free developing countries from engaging in constrained relations of favorable trade agreements with developed countries. Developing and strengthening the internal market is critical before a developing country, as a dependent capitalist, can compete on the global market with industrialized countries.

The reasons why steps like these have not been taken by most poorer countries in the past is due to the domination of their political systems by developed countries. Imperialist powers have set up thousands of puppet regimes since the de–colonization process has taken place. Therefore, attempts at creating import substitution and moves toward diversifying monoculture economies have been, with a few exceptions, successfully blocked through political domination. It is therefore clear that the first world is still not willing to relinquish their control over the third world. Thus, what is needed on the part of developing countries is a rebirth of the revolutionary spirit which characterized the 1940s. Only a set of revolutions overthrowing all imperial puppet regimes will lead to implementing political programs which allow third world countries uninhibited access to self determination. If and most likely this will not be allowed, then developing countries must fight for complete sovereignty.

The point of this article was to illustrate that third world poverty is and will be a pertinent issue for the next century. Also, it served to demonstrate two approaches, modernization and dependency, towards explaining why such poverty existed and how it continues to persist even after the decolonization process. It then went on to show different ways a third world country can begin to escape the stranglehold which developed countries have placed on them. However, those attempts have for the most part been blocked through political interference by developed countries. This successful interference by developed countries helps to demonstrate exactly what industrialized countries do not want to see, economic prosperity and self– determination for the majority of the world's people.

Kaisar Khatak and Michelle Haynes are UMass students.

WHY WAIT?

Stop by the University Health Services Pharmacy NOW to get your summer prescriptions filled.

It will save you time and let us serve you more efficiently.

Hours:
Mon. - Fri. 8:30 a.m. - 6 p.m.
Sat. 9 a.m. - Noon
1 - 4:30 p.m.

Textbook Buyback

★RIGHT:
"Students Need to be Paid Higher Prices for Their Books!"

We agree. That is why the Annex and the Board of Governors have instituted a campaign to get faculty to order their books for next semester now. If faculty submit their order before the buyback starts the Annex can pay 50% of the price of a new copy for books that we need for the fall. If we don't need the book a wholesale company will pay you their price. Since they re-sell those books nationally, the price will always be less than the Annex pays.

★WRONG:
"I can't sell it at the Annex unless I bought it there."

Many people think that unless they purchased the book at the Annex they can not sell it back there. Not true! We will buy any book that has wholesale value.

Buyback starts May 11

Visit our Buyback locations at the Textbook Annex, Hampden Student Center in Southwest and our new location in the Campus Center next to the ATM machines.

UNIVERSITY STORE'S Textbook Annex UMASS AMHERST

Hatch Bar Specials
Specials Last from 5/3 to 5/9
JAGERMEISTER CAJUN COLA...$2.50
JAGER ON THE ROCKS $2.50
Entertainment
THURDAY at 9:00pm/21+/
Sponsored by Jager • Hat & T-Shirt Giveways too!
Little Sisters
FRIDAY at 9:00pm/21+/
Home & Doom Nation
The Hatch Bar will be open from Noon-8pm for Spring Concert!
the hatch
GROUND FLOOR STUDENT UNION

Arts & Living

Superchunk isn't Foolish

Superchunk
Foolish
Merge Records

When Superchunk stormed onto the scene four years ago carrying the dimly burning torch of punk rock, they seemed determined to single-handedly revive the dying carcass of the indie world.

While their simple, three-chord songs and pounding backbeat were deemed a tad juvenile, it was more their naive earnestness that attracted critics than anything else.

Trax On Trax Off

But alas, as with most great bands, sooner or later a maturing process occurs; usually ending one era, but at the same time opening the doors to a whole new one.

While Foolish, the band's newest release, does usher in a kinder, gentler Superchunk, it is also a document of a band expanding and heading in previously unseen directions.

Do not be alarmed, Foolish is not a great departure from the band's earlier work, it is just more refined. Instead of relying on pure energy, they seem more focused on writing better songs.

Gone are the tiny bursts of feedback that used to commonly open every song, and the swirling guitar chaos that pummeled the listener by obscuring any trace of structure. In its place are carefully constructed melodies and intricate guitar interplay that dramatically rise and fall, conveying a sense of emotion that was noticeably absent from the band's repertoire.

Following in a path not unlike their distorted-pop forefathers Husker Du, Superchunk have realized that while punk rock can be invigorating its narrow perimeters can also be constricting. By slowing things down and cleaning things up the band has taken the first step towards the inevitable: growing up. A (M. Audette)

Unrest
Animal Park EP
Teenheat Records

So I guess this is it, Unrest's final release - and what a disappointment it is. For almost 10 years they were one of the brightest stars on the indie scene, as having released five albums and a lot more singles. They have experimented in the past, but have always produced high quality work, until now.

There are three songs on this EP: the two new tunes, "Afternoon Train" and "Hey Hey Halifax," plus a remix of "Light Command." "Afternoon Delight" is the only reason to even listen to this EP. It is sung by Bridgit Cross and has a really beautiful melody. "Hey Hey Halifax" is a bad instrumental, and the remix of "Light Command" is almost no different from the original. The biggest surprise concerning this EP is that the leader of Unrest, Mark Robinson does not sing at all, which comes as quite a shock. Imagine a U2 album in which Bono does not sing. It is just not the same.

This entire EP confused me. Why doesn't Mark Robinson sing? Why is this EP called Animal Park? Why did they release this? And finally, why is there a naked man on both the front and back covers of this single? It is too bad that after years of releasing such high quality work they have to call it quits after releasing this mediocre EP. If you are not an enormous Unrest fan, do not by this EP. It is really not worth it. C- (M. Burke)

AHORA hosts master of salsa

By EVELYN A. DE JESUS
Collegian Staff

Worldwide acclaimed Puerto Rican Salsa player Gilberto Santa Rosa, who sold out a concert last February at the Madison Square Garden with 20,000 people, will perform Thursday night at the Student Union Ballroom. The concert and dance is sponsored by AHORA, the University of Massachusetts Spanish speaking organization.

"Not since Tito Rodriguez has there been a singer/performer with the stylistic qualities of Santa Rosa," said Rafael A. Charres, a Cash Box magazine critic last March, after the concert in the Madison Square Garden.

Santa Rosa, often referred to as "El Caballero de la Salsa," established a national record last August for selling-out 10 consecutive performances of 2,000 seats, at the Puerto Rico Performing Arts Center of Caminalo, el Concierto.

With songs such as "Perdóname," "Vino Tinto," "Vivir Sin Ella," and the immortal, classic hit "Conciencia." Santa Rosa has performed throughout Latin America, Spain, Germany and Japan, leaving the spirit of salsa among those audiences.

Santa Rosa, 32, has been recognized around the world for his work. He has received the Puerto Rico Agüeybaná, Diplo and Paoli awards.

He has also been nominated

Turn to SALSA , page 8

COURTESY SONY TROPICAL

Gilberto Santa Rosa will perform his internationally appreciated salsa music at UMass on Thurday night, thanks to AHORA.

Jumpin' Jack got his work done in a flash!

You can get your work done fast, too. Take a fast, easy-to-use computer back to your room today and complete your work with ease. Cheap rentals on all Macintosh® computers. Rent for a week, month or a semester. And when you're ready to purchase a system of your own, we'll help you make the best decision at the best price.

YES is the Answer

98 Main Street • Northampton, MA • 585-0007

YES COMPUTERS

FOR 26 WAYS to help SAVE the EARTH CALL 1-800-488-8887.

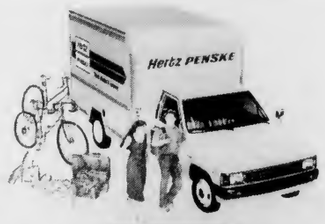
Ad Council — A Public Service of This Publication — Earth Share

LOOKING TO SECURE A JOB FOR NEXT SEMESTER?

The Collegian Graphics Dept. is looking to fill positions for Fall Semester 1994

WE ARE LOOKING FOR RESPONSIBLE, HARD-WORKING RETURNING STUDENTS WITH A SERIOUS INTEREST IN GRAPHIC ARTS AND GRAPHIC DESIGN – MACINTOSH EXPERIENCE HELPFUL, BUT NOT NECESSARY

- Day and Night positions available
- Top-notch experience
- Competitive hourly pay
- A great bunch of guys and gals
- Opportunity to meet J.R. "Bob" Dobbs in person



COME DOWN TO CAMPUS CENTER 103 OR CALL 545-1864
ASK FOR ANDREW DAVIDSON, JIM GANLEY, OR MARNI E. HELFNER

The Collegian is an Equal Opportunity Employer

My eyes teared as I hacked my desert dry cough at the road dust that swirled up from behind the passing semi. Yes, I was lost... a long way from the rotting New York cul-de-sac I had called my home. Why HAD I eaten that moldy bread. Why DID I let that circus bear break my heart.
Mass. Daily Collegian
Wherever you go, There you are!

Lincoln Real Estate
has the best selection of 1, 2, & 3 bedroom Uptown Apartments with Gas Heat.
We begin showing apartments in April and May for June or September Occupancy.
253-7879 • 25 N. Pleasant St.

- Low Rates
- Rent It Here-Leave It Here
- 24 Hr. Emergency Road Service
- Easy to Drive Trucks
- Packing Materials Available
- Air-Conditioned Trucks Featured
- Many Trucks with Auto. Trans., and Loading Ramps
- Unlimited Mileage on One-Way Rentals

Hertz PENSKE Truck Rental

AMHERST	256-8224	NORTHAMPTON	586-8391
HADLEY	586-4322	CHICOPEE	594-5186

RESERVATIONS 1-800-222-0277

COLLEGE STUDENTS

10% OFF LOCAL TRUCK RENTAL — College ID Required • With this coupon NOT VALID WITH ANY OTHER OFFER One per truck rental • Subject to availability

$50 OFF ONE-WAY TRUCK RENTAL — College ID Required • With this coupon NOT VALID WITH ANY OTHER OFFER One per truck rental • Subject to availability

10% OFF MOVING SUPPLIES (Boxes, Tape, Rope, Etc.) — College ID Required • With this coupon NOT VALID WITH ANY OTHER OFFER One per truck rental • Subject to availability

Hertz PENSKE Truck Rental

"At The Registry, everybody acted like they belonged to a winning team. They do. The effort is real – the results are real."
Jack Falvey, Sales & Marketing Management magazine

Recruitment Trainees

Our 15-month training program will provide college graduates with the knowledge and skills necessary to become a successful resource manager for our growing information technology consulting firm. Candidates will:

- Develop resource management skills to identify, recruit and retain high-quality software professionals for contract assignments.
- Gain technical understanding of the dalabase and software engineering fields.
- Develop expertise on the business issues faced by specific industries and a thorough knowledge of targeted Fortune 500 companies.

Candidates must have excellent communication and interpersonal skills, be team oriented and quality-focused. Candidates must also be willing to relocate to our branch offices across the country for permanent placement upon completion of training.

Finance Trainee

Our 12-month training program will provide a college graduate with the accounting skills necessary to become a Registry division controller who supports one of four regions, each comprising of 4-5 branch offices. Training will include:

- Posting cash receipts
- Accounts Payable
- Invoicing
- Payroll
- Budget and Financial Reporting

The Registry provides a comprehensive benefits package including health benefits, optional dental benefits and a 401K. Please send résumé and cover letter to:
Bob Foley, The Registry, Inc., 189 Wells Avenue, Newton, MA 02159, or FAX: (617) 527-6999

As a highly successful, full-service information technology consulting firm, The Registry provides clients with a variety of business solutions, from staff augmentation and training to information technology strategy and technical consulting services. For two years running, we've been rated by Inc. magazine as one of the fastest-growing companies in the U.S. – and 1994 will be no exception.

The Registry® Excellence in Information Technology Consulting Services

Member NACCB
An Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer

Boston, New York, DC, Richmond, Raleigh-Durham, Charlotte, Greensboro, Atlanta, Ft. Lauderdale, Cleveland, Chicago, Rosemont, Denver, Dallas, San Francisco

Black performs at Hillel House

By JACOB W. MICHAELS
Collegian Staff

Thirty people of all ages were entertained by Judith Black on Sunday, May 1. The storyteller spoke in the Hillel House lounge on the subject of Jewish families.

Her performance, "Adult Children of Parents," consisted of Black's telephone calls to her parents along with flashbacks to her past which she acted out with minimal props.

Black did a wonderful job of conveying her emotions, seeming almost to cry when she told about how her brother used to taunt her by saying her epidermis was showing. She hadn't known at the time that epidermis meant skin.

She also talked about her academic past, joking that "school wasn't my best subject."

Black drew many reactions from the crowd when she talked about the idiosyncrasies of her parents. She spoke of how her parents insisted on screaming into the phone and how her mother didn't have operations; she had procedures. Black also drew many laughs when she spoke of her parents in Florida saying how beautiful the weather was, even though they spent 99 percent of their time in a controlled air environment.

Black also interacted with her audience, asking one person who had a coughing fit if they were alright. "You gotta take care of your audience."

She also told about finding out that her father was a republican, falling in love with "the only non-Jewish man" in Israel and forming a radical union in her father's factory.

After she had gotten pregnant, she quipped, she used to call her mother for advice, just so she could do the opposite. She also joked about how people know Jesus was Jewish, because "he lived at home for 35 years, never worked a day in his life, and his mother thought he was God."

She ended on a serious note by telling about her brother's attempted suicide. The crowd was quiet through this part yet when Black returned to pretending she was talking on the phone to her parents, they were quickly returned to their good mood. Black finished with more amusing commentary on the foibles of Jewish parents who have four televisions all turned on even though no one was watching.

They might be coming

By MATT AUDETTE
Collegian Staff

Looking for a little relief from those end of the semester blues? Then search no further, and check out quirky popsters They Might Be Giants, as they bring their absurdly clever tunes to the Pearl Street stage this Wednesday.

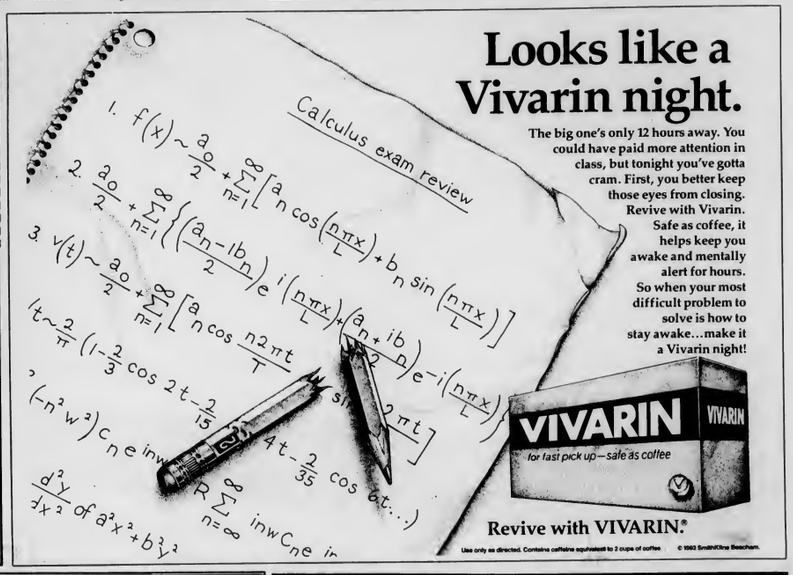
Spawned from the twisted minds of John Flansburgh and John Linnell, TMBG debuted their vision to the world in 1986 with their self-titled album released on Bar/None Records. From there on it was only a short time until critics and college radio pricked up their ears, and the duo began to form the immense cult following that they now sport.

Eight years and four albums of near pop perfection later, the group looms larger than ever. The band is currently on a mini-tour of the East Coast in preparation for the summer release of John Henry, their fifth studio album, and the first to be recorded with a full four piece band.

With the same touring unit used on the Apollo 18 tour a few years back still intact, the band will be showcasing tunes from their upcoming release, along with such crowd pleasers as "Don't Let's Start" and "Birdhouse In Your Soul."

While all TMBG shows prove to be a tad zany (the band often takes requests from the audience, even if they do not know how to play them), Wednesday's show may prove to be all the more exciting, as it has been rumored that the boys have some new tricks up their sleeves.

So put those books down and take that much needed break you have been promising yourself. Everybody needs their "pop" fix once in a while.



Fortunately this show is all ages. So grab your little brother and sister and head on down to Pearl Street. Doors open at 8 p.m.

Resumé Package
- 50 copies on Your Choice of 25% Cotton Paper
- 2 Business Day Service
- 1 Page Typeset

With Coupon
$19.95!!
CopyCat PRINT SHOP — We Specialize in Impossible Deadlines!
228 Triangle St., Amherst 549-3840
32 Pleasant St., Northampton 586-1332

LBG
PEER COUNSELLING COLLECTIVE
Call: 549-2671 ext. 316 or Walk in 371B
University Health Services
Tuesday & Thursday 5-9pm.

Looks like a Vivarin night.

The big one's only 12 hours away. You could have paid more attention in class, but tonight you've gotta cram. First, you better keep those eyes from closing. Revive with Vivarin. Safe as coffee, it helps keep you awake and mentally alert for hours. So when your most difficult problem to solve is how to stay awake...make it a Vivarin night!

Revive with VIVARIN.®
Use only as directed. Contains caffeine equivalent to 2 cups of coffee © 1993 SmithKline Beecham.

THE STRATEGIC PLANNING TASK FORCE ON DIVERSITY AND MULTICULTURALISM

INVITES YOU TO A

PUBLIC HEARING

WEDNESDAY, MAY 4, 1994
12:00 - 1:30 PM
CAMPUS CENTER 904-08

As part of the campus-wide strategic planning effort, the Task Force on Diversity and Multiculturalism is committed to engaging as large an audience as possible in assessing both the demands faced by the campus and its capacity to respond regarding its diversity and multicultural mission.

Members of the Task Force will begin the session by providing a brief overview of their work to date and their current plans to gather data from a wide range of constuencies both on and off the campus.

The hearing will then quickly move to soliciting both oral and written reactions to several key questions developed by Task Force members.

Please attend this important hearing.

The University of Massachusetts Amherst
1994 COMMENCEMENT
Celebrate with us & avoid the traffic at
The Commencement Food Court!
by University Food Services
Festive Food & Beverage Tents
with a choice of:

Snapple & Soda Available at all tents
Shuttle buses provided to all Parking Areas.
Rain Site: Berkshire Dining Hall (Transportation Provided)
IF YOU'RE INTERESTED IN MORE INFORMATION CALL 545-0419

PCU shoots harmless hot air

By ED HUMPHRIES
Collegian Staff

Chomp. F't. (slurp) U is a.. chomp.. comedy classic destined to (chomp.. slurp) mmm... Excuse me. Allow me to drop this mammoth, double decker bun bursting with several tons of grilled red meat. (Yo'st, hey burger, tonight you and me. Wear your fur. I'll mass ya' babe).

Alright. If ever there was a subject worth ridiculing it's the militant of all movements, the bane of all campuses, the co-ed cross to bear, political correctness.

Along comes PCU, a comedy with its guns set firmly on the earthy–crunchy tree huggers who have taken a concept with noble intentions and allowed it to morph into a Red Scare for the Nineties (less salt and no fat of course). The problem is, someone forgot to load the barrels, leaving PCU shooting harmless hot air.

Directed by Hart Bochner (Bruce Willis' sleazy colleague in Die Hardr PCU, which stands concurrently for Politically Correct University and Port Chester University, is about one weekend in the life of an incoming freshman (Chris Young). Young feels temptations all around. His mentor (Jeremy Piven) wants to lead him down a "say what you want, drink all you can" route while factions of the PC cause call for Young to embrace vegetables and "free Nelson Mandela." (That punchline is one of the few smiles PCU has to dole out).

The film culminates into a carefully staged faux–Animal House brew fest, much to the disdain of the overtight administrators (don't all college heads worry about rampant keggers?) Thrown into the mix is the Brooks Brothers self– supremacist (David Spade) who makes a bid for Young's soul.

That's the problem with PCU: it wants sharp satire and cheap laughs simultaneously, thereby watering down both efforts. By inflating the "leaders of the liberal left" into such broad cartoons, the satire diminishes. Still with faceless enemies, Bochner could have gotten away with over–the–top attacks on the militant PC guardians.

He doesn't. Instead Bochner moves down his calculated line, films cast members dumping pounds of red meat on protesting vegetarians and then heads to another act in this socially conscious sideshow. Bochner is content with slight slaps in the face over drawing gushing blood. As a result he ends up dragging hopeless moans over hilarious ire from his audience.

At its best, PCU is a pleasant diversion on the welcome targets of college stereotypes. But the problem is PCU moves in for the kill then swerves off course, losing the bite for truly potent satire.

You'll laugh and then forget exactly what it was you found so funny in the first place. Pass the quarter–pound animal fat, please. C (Hampshire Six)

Fisher's Delusions is enjoyable

By AMY S. BURNS
Collegian Staff

Carrie Fisher
Delusions of Grandma
Simon and Schuster

Princess Leia has just come out with a new book, entitled Delusions of Grandma. This is the third novel for Carrie Fisher, following Postcards From the Edge and Surrender the Pink. After tackling the subjects of addiction and relationships in her previous books, this time Fisher focuses on modern maternity.

Delusions of Grandma is the story of a screenwriter named Cora and her passage into the world of motherhood. Coincidentally, Fisher herself recently became a mother. This makes you wonder throughout the entire book how much is autobiographical and how much is invented. The novel is a combination of Cora's letters written to her unborn child, whom she calls Esme, mixed with the story of the events leading up to Esme's birth.

Fisher did an excellent job in depicting an atmosphere of female bonding. As Cora progresses through her pregnancy, she looks to her mother for help and advice more and more. Her mother, Viv, is completely supportive of Cora in her entrance into single motherhood. Though Cora had not lived with her mother for years, she easily slips into an extended family routine for support and stability.

Somehow I felt that Fisher's previous book, Surrender the Pink was a little better than this most recent novel. Cora was a mature character who had already been through several relationships and a marriage whereas in Surrender the Pink the story follows the main character through college and the early part of her career.

One of the best things about Fisher's writing is her characters. They are most definitely real people, not perfect and exceptional ideals. Their lives aren't amazingly exciting, yet the characters are still interesting. All in all, Delusions of Grandma was an enjoyable read, but not spectacular. B

Bands rock Central Day

By JAMIE D. BEARSE
Collegian Staff

Central Day packed a punch Saturday night in the Butterfield basement with a four–band, four–hour jam headlined by the ska–funk band Knuckle Sandwich.

With a crowd that swelled to over 200 people, Knuckle Sandwich, with hard core bands Meristrem, Rodeo Monkeys and newcomer Canon brought the house down, creating good times for all.

Canon, a "straight–edge hardcore band," was on tour all weekend according to lead vocalist Jim Belisle.

"We played Greenough Friday night, so this is kind of our own little tour," Belisle said, "This was our best show yet."

The hard core band Rodeo Monkeys played for more than an hour and was followed by the grudge band Meristrem.

"These guys jam," Steve Seran, a sophomore, said about Meristrem. "They sound something like Nirvana."

Taking the stage close to midnight, Knuckle Sandwich threw the crowd a curve ball, sending their bassist and straightman, Matt Dulvan to the mic for the first time to sing a cover of "Paradise City."

"It was something fun we decided to do at the last minute," guitarist and vocalist Chris Carlton said.

Knuckle Sandwich broke into a funk jam beginning with a remake of the "Fat Albert" theme song.

"Hey, Hey, Hey it's Knuckle Sandwich," guest member Jim Plon screams at the start of every Knuckle Sandwich show before Smith takes the stage.

The band rocked the house, inciting the crowd into slam dancing and crowd surfing. Among the surfers was sophomore Jake Sullivan.The band broke into one of their most popular songs, "Northampton Street," which starts out sounding similar to a Phish song according to freshman Chris Prentis. "It's just a funkin' good song," Prentis said.

Knuckle Sandwich, a growing cult band that draws 15 to 20 regulars for every show they put on according to Carlton, closed out Central Day with their claim to fame song, "K– Mart Shoppers."

For the song, Smith passed the mic to drummer Mike Greaney. He explains the song's success by calling it funky and funny.

"It's popular because it's something you can dance to and enjoy the lyrics," Greaney said.

Knuckle Sandwich, along with Meristrem and Rodeo Monkeys, will play at Pearl Street this Thursday for a benefit entitled, "The Starving Artists" to raise money for scholarships.

■ Salsa

continued from page 6

more than once for the Latin America's Lo Nuestro Awards, and has been predominated for a Grammy Award.

Last July, his latest release, Nace Aquí, reached the platinum with the hit single "Sin Voluntad" within 10 days of release.

"Santa Rosa's presentation at UMass represents a great contribution to the Latino student community to promote diversity and multicultural awareness on this campus and The Pioneer Valley as a whole," said Sandra Valentin, treasurer of AHORA.

"Gilberto is the greatest musician of the decade," said Diego Figueroa, student government finance committee chair. "He plays the finest salsa that you can listen to, is like 4:40 in merengue."

Juan Luis Guerra and 4:40 is a merengue orchestra from the Dominican Republic.

"His lyrics are excellent, he has a great voice and the orchestration along with his interaction with the audience is what makes him an idol for the people of Puerto Rico and Latin America, including Spain," Figueroa said.

"He [Santa Rosa] is the best representation of romantic salsa at this moment. AHORA is very proud to be in charge of all the production," said Jalit Mendoza, president of AHORA.

Mendoza said AHORA has the support of 18 sponsors, and that it has taken more than one year and a half to prepare this show. Mendoza anticipates excellent results, thanks to hard work within the organization.

Mendoza said that more than 60 people from the University and the Five College area are involved in the publicity, staging and lighting of the $16,000 production. Usually, a Santa Rosa performance would have cost the organization $25,000.

"Already it has been a success, we have more than 18 sponsors," Mendoza said. "I attribute all results to the teamwork of the AHORA board and the great members that we have."

The Ballroom's doors open at 8:30 p.m. Tickets can be purchased at the Fine Arts Center Box Office and Tix Unlimited at the Student Union. Tickets are $13 for Five College students and $15 general public.

ATTENTION UNIVERSITY OF MASS EMPLOYEES:

Take a closer look at CHP.

We think you'll like what you see.

The CHP Amherst Health Center is hosting an open house for our current members, and anyone who is considering joining CHP. Come and meet the staff and tour the facility. Light refreshments will be served. For information and appointments call 413/549-1212.

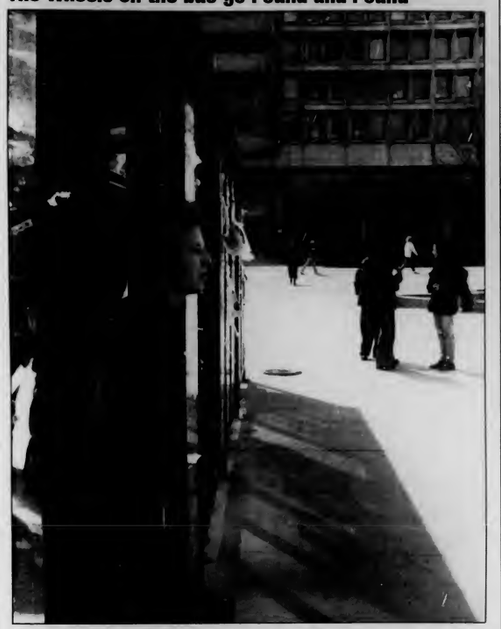
Community Health Plan
You and CHP, a healthy partnership

May 5.....5:30-7:30 p.m.

CHP Amherst Health Center
29 Cottage Street
Amherst, MA

Andrew Hall, M.D.
Andrew Larkin, M.D.
Brian Scanlan, M.D.
Amy Metzger, C.N.M., M.S.N.
Pamela Drexler-Lopez, C.N.M., B.A.
Lisa Kuczarski, R.D.

Gilreath Manor Condos
- on Hobart Lane -
3 Bedroom • 1½ baths • Heated Basement
New Gas Heat & Hot Water
1/2 Mile to campus • On Bus Route
Showings Start in April
for June or September Occupancy!
Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St • 253-7879



SUMMER JOBS AVAILABLE
Evening security workers wanted for Bright Moments Festival on July 14, 21, 28 for approximately 5-6 hours/shift. Limited number of additional hours available. UMass students returning in Fall only. Fine Arts Center is an AA/EO employer. Description and application available at 2 Curry Hicks.
DEADLINE MAY 6

Call For Our Special Offer
Brandywine at Amherst
Brandywine offers Country Living with Convenience
- On UMass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
- Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop by and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open
Mon.-Fri. 9-5, Sat. & Sun. 10-3
549-0600

Boston Bartenders School of America
Train Now For Your Summer Job
TIPS
- If you are 18 or older, be a bartender
- Day/Evenings 1 Week
- Placement Assistance
- Spend the Summer at the Shore!
- Only 4 Openings Remain for MAY CLASSES!
- ENROLL NOW!!! •
MC/VISA/DISCOVER/AMEX
1655 Main St. • Suite 202 • Springfield • Call Today! 747-9888

The wheels on the bus go round and round

Josh Mondragon, a first year Spanish student at Amherst College, is looking in the wrong direction if he is hoping to catch the bus at Hadgus Mall.

"Take A Chance" Sale

Each Day the Discount Changes!

Take a Chance That What You Want Will Be There Tomorrow

IT'S A GAMBLE!!

•LARGE SELECTION OF MERCHANDISE•

School & Office Supplies • Art Supplies
Gifts & Posters
Jewelry • Calculators • Computer Accessories

•SHOP EARLY FOR BEST SELECTION•
•LAST DAY FRIDAY MAY 6•
ALL SALES FINAL

University Store — Campus Center 545-2619 — Mon.-Fri. 9-5 Sat. 11-3

YOU ARE INVITED ■ ■

UCLA
SUMMER SESSIONS

Session A: June 27 - August 5
Session B: July 18 - August 26
Session C: August 8 - September 16

Also Special 8 to 10 week Programs

- Open Admission
- Simple Registration - No Transcripts Required
- Summer Courses Carry Full Academic Credit
- No Out of State Fees for U.S. Residents

Call for a Free Catalog

1 - 8 0 0 - 3 2 1 - 8 2 5 2

Challenging the Future 75th UCLA

Yes, it's always a fine day for a barbeque. Ahh nothing like the hot coals to cause a man to break down in a fit of hysterical crying. "WHY DIDN'T I LISTEN TO MY MOTHER AND BECOME A DOG GROOMER!!!!"
COLLEGIAN
NEVER TOO LATE TO CHANGE

1-4 Bedrom Houses & Apartments
Most on Bus Route
Amherst & Surrounding Communities
Free Landlord Referral Service
D.H. JONES REAL ESTATE AGENCY INC.
D. H. JONES
15A Pray St. (2nd Floor)
Amherst, MA 01002
549-7757 • 8:30am - 5:00pm M-F

Sure I'm important! For one thing I own my own socks. Yes, you could call me a regular "Do-it-yourselfer." I love organizing my socks. Yes, it is one of my few joys. I know MANY things about my socks. I'd tell you about them... but I don't know you very well.
You may have germs.
COLLEGIAN
PLEASE REMOVE SHOES BEFORE ENTERING

100% BEEF
2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
Great Burgs! Great Deal!
QUARTER POUNDERS® OPEN YEAR ROUND
585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY MA
Pete's Drive-In

College Pro Painters
Get a tan painting this summer
Positions available all across New England. Great Pay!
Call 1-800-346-4649

From $199 Each Way
LONDON
Eurail Passes Issued on the Spot!
All other Rail Passes Also Available
Hong Kong $469
Paris $219
Brussels $252
• Departure from New York
Council Travel
Fares are 1/9 round trips Departure from Boston unless otherwise indicated. Taxes and surcharges not included. Fares subject to change. Student or Faculty I.D. may be required.
79 S. Pleasant Street, 2nd Floor Amherst, MA 01002
413-256-1261

UNIVERSITY STORE • BLUEWALL CAFETERIA • COFFEE SHOP •
CATERING • HATCH • CONFERENCE SERVICES • BUILDING SERVICES •
BLUEWALL COFFEEHOUSE • GRADUATE LOUNGE • TEXBOOK ANNEX • VENDING • HOTEL
Lay It On the Line
A Customer Comment Line for the Campus Center
We want to know what you think so we can keep on doing what you like and improve those things you don't like. If you shop at the University Store, eat at any Campus Center dining location, stay in the Hotel, attend a conference, use a meeting room, visit a rest room–let us know what you think.
Twenty-four hours a day call us at 545-1661. If you want a personal response to your comment just leave your name and telephone number. The appropriate manager will respond to you.
In-house telephones in the Campus Center are located at the Information Desk and in the hallways on the 8th and 9th Floors
CALL 545-1661
PRINT SHOP • TOP OF THE CAMPUS • GAMES ROOM • MINI STORE •

Offensive nickname is changed

Marquette drops warrior mascot, opts for golden eagle

By SHARON THEIMER
Associated Press

MILWAUKEE — Marquette, intent on not offending American Indians, changed its nickname Monday from Warriors to Golden Eagles in a university vote.

The move came after the school's old nickname was deemed offensive. The only other choice was the Marquette Lightning, chosen from among 1,500 nominations.

The new nickname was announced at a news conference outside the Alumni Memorial Union by the Rev. Albert DiUlio, president of the university.

The name change was required by administrators, and a committee studied the potential name change for 18 months.

Golden Eagles won 54 percent support from the 2,501 students and faculty who voted Friday and alumni across the country randomly surveyed by phone.

"I'm very happy with it," said DiUlio, who voted for the Lightning. "I think it will allow us to go back to a favorable mascot."

Some Marquette students angry about the nickname change have blamed American Indian students, said Jeff Peterson, an American Indian counselor.

Gabrielle Grant, president of the American Indian Student Association, said she wasn't surprised some non-Indian students couldn't understand why the Warriors nickname was offensive. "I'd say that they could never know because they're not American Indian and I'm sure there are lots of things about their cultures that I wouldn't find offensive but they would," said Grant, adding that as a matter of principle she hadn't bought Warriors apparel in her four years at Marquette.

Athletic director Bill Cords announced last October that Marquette would change its nickname, saying the school wanted one that reflected respect for ethnic heritage.

Northeastern Illinois, Tennessee Tech and Southern Mississippi are among at least 11 NCAA-affiliated schools nicknamed Golden Eagles.

Warriors replaced Hilltoppers as Marquette's nickname in 1954 on the recommendation of a student committee that felt the name reflected American Indians' close relationship with the Jesuits in settlement days.

From 1964-71, the school used a "Willie Wampum" cartoon caricature of an Indian warrior before that mascot was dropped as offensive. The school logo in recent years has been a silhouette drawing of an Indian warrior.

Wisconsin Superintendent of Public Instruction John Benson last month asked more than 60 districts to drop Indian nicknames and mascots. The Minnesota and Illinois Boards of Education have also asked that high schools replace Indian-related names and logos. The University of Iowa's athletic board last week voted to ban mascots depicting American Indians from the school's athletic events. Juniata College is dropping the Indian as its school mascot and St. John's Is in the process of replacing its Redmen logo.

The University of Massachusetts adopted the Minutemen nickname in 1972 after students voted to abandon the Redmen as insensitive to Indians.

■ women's tennis

continued from page 12

tournament was really hers. She put it together."

Elizabeth Durant defeated the No. 1 singles player from Fairfield before falling to Toce in the Group A semifinals, 6–1, 6–3.

In the Group B singles, Stacey Scheckner had a tough draw but made it to the group finals before losing to Ruth Amy Hunter of Army 6–2, 7–6.

"She couldn't have played better," Dixon said of Scheckner's performance.

Hunter also defeated Sonnybelle Martinez in Group B by a score of 6–2, 6–3.

In the Group C singles, Mary Edwards and Lesley Watts both fell victim to Rebecca Marier. Marier beat Watts in the group finals, 2–6, 6–4, 6–4. In doubles, the UMass group B and C teams both lost to Army.

"Everybody played well," Dixon said. "We come away from this season with our heads up. This team has really started the ball rolling."

■ GSS

continued from page 1

to appear in the paper's most recent issue.

"I think it's unfortunate that a campaign that was run with such a lack of integrity was successful," said Delle, who also said he and the other three members of the defeated coalition are "discussing options," in the pursuit of their complaints about the election process.

Hussein Ibish, editor of The Voice, said last week that all candidates were given an equal opportunity to submit endorsements to the paper.

The GSS election committee met last night to discuss the bitter nature of the election. The committee will make several recommendations to next year's committee, such as increased staffing of voting tables in light of this year's "unprecedented" voter turnout and the development of a written code of conduct for GSS elections, according to committee chair Julia Mahoney.

In last week's balloting, Venugopal received 307 votes to Saliba's 165, Johnson received 289 votes compared to Dell's 183, Mathis received 298 votes to LaBerte's 174 and Cavell garnered 279 votes to Hermer's 189.

■ clean-up

continued from page 1

bags and cleared both sides of Station Road from the beginning of the bike path to the end of Amherst's town common. It felt really great to do something for the community," said Abby Phillips, a student involved in a conservation committee.

■ women's lacrosse

continued from page 12

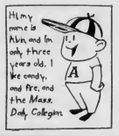
half, and then proceeded to take the lead, 8–7, as time ran out in the first half.

The Minutewomen came out a little sluggish in the second half and the Lady Owls took advantage, running out to a 13– 7 lead, scoring five unanswered goals for the second time in the game.

"We played our most consistent game of the year, except for the mental lapse at beginning of the second half," said Den Hartog.

In a game of streaks, the Minutewomen fashioned yet another, aided by Splaine (two goals in second half, four for the game) and a defensive exhibition which held Temple scoreless in the last 12 minutes of the game.

"I was very happy with our defensive performance," said Den Hartog. "We had all 12 people playing together offensively and defensively."



The Minutewomen ran out of time and the comeback was thwarted when Goddard scored her second and final goal of the game at the two-minute mark.

DiBenedetto recorded 15 saves and played a fabulous game.

"Patricia played a very solid game, she has come a long way this season," said Den Hartog.

The Minutewomen play their final game of the year at Totman Field against Dartmouth tomorrow. Den Hartog said that she is hoping for a large turnout to bid farewell to the two senior co–captains, Diana Clemente and Splaine.

The TOC LOUNGE

Tonight: NHL Playoff Action 7:30
Bruins vs. Devils
Tomorrow: Sox vs. Mariners 7:00

DRINK SPECIALS • MUNCHIES

11TH FLOOR CAMPUS CENTER•POSITIVE I.D. REQUIRED

Mother's Day Buffet

Sunday, May 8, 1994
11:00 am to 3:00 pm
$5.50 children under 10 $11.95 adults

Special Salad Bar
Fruit & Bread Basket
Standing Steamship Round
Broiled Scrod
Chicken A La King
Baked Ham
Patty Shells & Rice
Green Beans Almandine
Oven Brown Potatoes

Lemon Mousse
Strawberry Shortcake
Layer Cakes
Key Lime, Apple and Blueberry Pie

FREE FLOWER FOR MOM

Top of the Campus
11th Floor, Campus Center, University of Massachusetts
For reservations call 549-6000 ext. 7639 or 545-3216
VALIDATED PARKING

I checked in to the Rusty Blail Motel and asked the owner if he knew of any swinging sushi bar deli joints where I could hook up with a fix of Toka Maki and Knockwurst on Rye. "The eternal question," he said, "is how to get the mouse out of the bottle." I thanked the wise old man and checked into room six sixty six. I opened up my suit case cum brown paper bag and pulled out the Contagion. "We put the mouse in the bottle."

CLUB COMMUNICATIONS ELECTIONS

Available Positions Are:
President
Vice President
Treasurer
Secretary
Public Relations
Promotions
Come Get Involved!
Tuesday, May 3 at 6:00pm
Machmer W-25

SPRING CONCERT

- you'll see a major league concert from behind-the-scenes
- you'll get a free t-shirt and free food
- you'll have LOADS O' FUN!!
- you don't need ANY experience
- you don't need to go to UMass, but you DO need to be 18

WON'T HAPPEN

unless YOU help out with

SECURITY!

We need 100 security volunteers, or the show doesn't go on!

Volunteers must attend a short informational meeting to do security:
May 4 Cape Cod Lounge 7:00 pm

Brought to you by your pals at University Productions and Concerts

If you have questions, call UPC at 545-2892 or stop by 406Student Union

UMass Summer Session 1994

- Missed a course? Make it up!
- Advance in next semester's work
- Fulfill a requirement
- Learn something new

Over 200 credit courses offered.

Two, six-week sessions:
First session: June 7-July 15
Second session: July 19-August 25

Register Now!

Catalogs available all over campus or at the Division of Continuing Education, 6th floor Goodell Building, 545-2414.

A quality education at affordable prices.

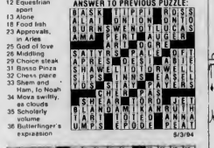
Calvin and Hobbes By Bill Watterson

Jim's Journal By Jim

Bruno By C. Baldwin

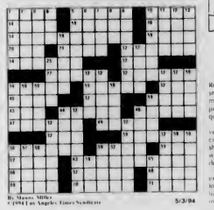
Big Man on Campus By Dave Schneider

Without Porpoise By Kennet Dall



Daily Crossword

Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe



ACROSS
1 Main point
5 Circle or sanctum
10 Small snakes
14 Aware of
15 Not any person
16 Chase away
17 Ottoman
19 Bridge take
20 Yoko
21 Hit on the head
22 Overly, informally
24 Media mogul Murdoch
28 Self starter
27 Vultures' vantage point
30 Stair parts
34 Held ona's position
37 Woodwinds
39 Place to see a pinnipun
40 Talks fondly
41 Soak thoroughly
42 Wild cat
43 Arena arbiter, for short
44 Stood out
46 Bassie's pirate and others
47 Spanish explorer
49 Witch of —
51 Fluffy neckwear
52 Landlords
56 Nob
59 Baltic native
61 Barn bellow
62 Bread spread
63 Kind of car service
66 "Good Earth" character
67 Unaware
68 Kett of the comics
69 Fraabig of remorse
70 Like some stadiums
71 A Truman

DOWN
1 Dog, to a dog way
2 Turkish president-elect Ozal
3 Bend down
4 Preschooler
5 Entirely
6 High time of day
7 Races
8 Join the U.S. army
9 Bring back
10 Famous family of financiers
11 Steel pellets
12 Equestrian sport
13 Alone
18 Food fish
23 Approvals, in Arles
25 God of love
26 Middling
29 Chosen steak
31 Bassa Pinza
32 Chess piece
33 Sham and Ham, to Noah
34 Mova swiftly, as clouds
35 Scholarly volume
36 Butterfinger's expression
38 Ready for business
42 Desolate
44 Ancient portico
45 Saved
46 Instruction manual words
48 Like a watermelon
50 Having specks
53 Behave theatrically
54 Plant parts
55 Short-billed birds
56 Roosting place?
57 — podrida
58 A Spiel choice
59 Waiving trains
60 Irish Gaelic
64 Gold, in Grenada
65 Soc. beginner

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

5/3/94

© Tribune Media Services, Inc.
©1994 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 5/3/94

Scrambled Eggs By Pete Woodbury

Your Horoscope

By Joan Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19) Routine activities and chores go more smoothly this week. Married couples may be tempted to argue over unimportant matters. Try to avoid petty squares and quibbling.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) A very good day for those involved in creative and artistic endeavors. Sales should not stray. Keep your guard up when around someone who may have designs on your job.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) An excellent week for dealing with bankers. Influential people lend their support. A long distance phone call saves you money. Focus on past Lovers.

CANCER (June 21–July 22) Maintain a low profile at work and keep any family matters to yourself. The atmosphere at home will become less strained if you exercise more tact. An influential associate gives your career a boost.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) Coping with your daily routine plus any emergencies is important. Work at an even pace to avoid scattering your energies. Something different from your usual style catches your eye. It might prove valuable.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) Do not take pessimism too well with other people's needs. A sympathetic manner and helping hand wins you admirers. A little extra effort may be all that is needed to make you a winner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) Once you are sure of a decision, take direct action. Charm favors your efforts all day. Others are anxious to board your train to success. Welcome all offers of practical assistance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) Do not go too far afield when asking questions today. Keep loved one's secrets to yourself. Good sifting is paramount when launching important new projects.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) Do not put too much emphasis on financial gains. The respect and friendship of those you admire is equally important. Romantic partners keeps you guessing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) Brooding over a disappointment will not help you bounce back. An element of luck favors your business efforts. Co-workers are more cooperative than usual.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) Do not let someone's irritating manner get under your skin. Losing your temper will only hamper your progress. Careful analysis will win out over impulsive reaction. Drink more whiskey.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) A promising new understanding is the result of a recent dispute. Forgive and forget. Your popularity grows when you share your expertise. Be wary of romance on the rebound.

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH
Cheese & Macaroni
Fishburger
BASICS LUNCH
Cheese & Macaroni
Fishburger

DINNER
Baked Ham
Mandarin Chicken
BASICS DINNER
Savory Stuffed Pepper
Mandarin Chicken

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Copy Editor ..... Emily Marino Dog
Photo Technician ..... Rebecca Peterson
Production Supervisor ..... Andrew Davidson
Production ..... Susan Nasberg, Gleeson

Quote of the Day

"If voting did anything to change the system, it would be illegal."

—Robert Anton Wilson

■ Beanballs

continued from page 12

the size of a bread box, the mound is lower than it was 25 years ago and hurlers can't effectively brush back hitters without a warning from the men in blue or the threat of a punch to the head. That's why coaches aren't teaching pitchers the art of throwing inside.

As Sports Illustrated wrote in its season preview, there are more young sluggers than ever before, especially in the American League. Hitters are pounding pitchers just like they did last year. So is there extra juice in the Rawlings specials? Probably.

With an emphasis on following the NBA (and watch the boring first round of that league's playoffs to see where that will lead you), baseball's owners have reformatted the divisions, increased advertising in ballparks and on TV and radio (now that's a change we wanted to see) and changed the playoff system, enabling the Mariners and Giants to enter postseason with .500 records. So why wouldn't they liven up the baseball?

All it would take is a memo from Bud Selig, executive committee chairman, to Mr. CEO of Rawlings to change the ball specifications. After scientific studies, physicists say they did it in 1987.

Besides, the fans love it ... right? We want to root for Gerronimo Berroa, Dante Bichette and Tim Naehring, want to stay three and a half hours in the ballpark and want all of the tradition and records demolished this year, right?

Personally, I'll settle for a strike out with three high heaters. Spalding style.

Michael Morrissey is a Collegian columnist.

25% Off Entire Collection

Swatch®

55 Styles to Choose From Batteries • Guards • Bands

191 N. Pleasant St
Amherst • 253-2013

J•RICH CLOTHING FOR MEN

22 Masonic St.
Northampton • 586-6336

Open 7 days • Thursday nights in Northampton

Classifieds

- 20¢ per word per day for students
- All ads must be paid in cash 2 days in advance
- Ads may be placed at 113 Campus Center, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bed and Breakfast, downtown Amherst Ideal for visiting parents and friends 549-0733

Thank you St. Jude for prayer answered publication promised. R.A.B.

UMass Credit Union has car, personal and computer loans. Rates as low as 7.95% 314 Student Union Building 545-2800

AUDITIONS

Auditions for Not Ready For Bedtime Players will be held on May 5 1994 at 7:00 at the Campus Center. For further information contact Daymon Smith at 546-1289

AUGUST 15TH -30TH

I'm looking to sublet from August 15th through August 30th or the beginning of my Fall Semester. I would like a single room or I will share a room with one other person. I can pay up to $200 but no smoking and no pets. Call Mario or AAA Mess Bubble Gum Face at 546-0268

AUTO FOR SALE

IS RX7 MAzda sunroof, cassette, 5 speed, asking $2,000. Call Jason 549-6928

88 Toyota Celica 5 speed, 2 door, air, 4/50/0, 256-3472

1985 Mercedes 18000 miles, power sunroof, AC, $8250. Call 256-4687

1985 Mercury Lynx 63,000 mi great shape $1400 549-5831

For sale 1984 Volvo 240. Good condition. Needs minor work. $50 or best 323-0151 best offer

CAPE COD RENTAL

West Yarmouth 6 room 4 bedrooms sleeps 8 near everything 253-7436 508-775-4776 $6,000

FOR RENT

1 bedroom apt N. Amherst Quiet location with big yard, laundry facilities, and AC. Pets negotiable. Take over lease June 1st. Call Marc 549-8244

1 bedroom apt Pulfton 442/month Cheryl Fren 549-4850

1 bedroom avail. May 1 farmhouse in Hadley on Bus. $275 585-6843

1 mile from campus 4 bdrm. pet near. Call 549-8239

2 bedroom apt Colonial Village $480 mnth. Avail June 1st. 253-4719

2 bedroom apt Pets very negotiable Available ASAP 546-0180

2 bedroom Brandywine apt 635/mo inc heat available June 1 549-6503

2 bdrm puffton/Take over, our lease starting June 1 with option for fall renewal can flex at 549-7648

2 bedroom 625 excludes heat + hot water Call 549-1571

2 bedroom apartment at Brandywine 3rd floor poindside $730/month including heat. Available June 1st. Call 549-5465 Randy or Bert

2 story, 2 bedroom family style bath, dishwasher on bus route $575 + utilities 665-4172 Lu Hagg

3 bedroom 1 bath on Main St. $975/month +utilities electric. Starts June 1st Call 256-3417

4br large bright, walk to UMass center bus, laundry $1000 mth. heat + hw incl 586-0746

4 lg bd backyard bus site BBQ porch privacy 546-7562 256-1220

4 br house Main St. Call 253-4733

5 bedroom 2 bath tube basement bus route Amherst 256-1238

Bluestone for rent $795 + utilities North Hadley Call Joel 586-4762

Brandywine apt 3bdr 3rd floor poindside washing. Take over my lease Call Jaime 549-8863

Brandywine 2 bdr 3rd floor New carpet only $650/month Available June 1 549-6267

Brandywine Apts Take over our lease for a 2 bedrooms 3rd floor poindside. Rent negotiable for June & July 549-2953

Cape Cod Duplex 5/28- 9/3 3 people $1150 Call Micah 549-4704

Center of town 1,2 & 3 bedroom apts For 6/1 or 9/1 Now being shown Call for appointment Lincoln Real Estate 253-2879

Huge double in two bedroom apt Great location on bus route 549-0377

Ideal for grad students 1 large room available in house - perfect summer sublet - lease option available. Laundry facilities available on premises. Quiet neighborhood/ homey atmosphere 256-4611

Large Amherst five bedroom house. Perfect for 5+. Dishwasher, disposal, deck. Available June. Call Joe at 617-545-2348

Practically new 2 bdrm Brandywine apt Take our lease 549-4036

Sign early 3 bedroom in Puffton 549-8707

Studio apt Belchertown Center on bus route Available June 1 320/mo + util 323-9338

Sunny one bedroom apt. Hardwood floors Center of Amherst Available June 1. 253-4452

Take over our lease 6/1 Brandywine 3rd floor# 549-4546

Take over our lease 2br Brandywine 3rd floor starting 6/1. You won't find cheaper $645/ mo. Call 549-6629

Take over 3bedroom Puffton lease Available June Call 549-8193

Townehouse four person apt. two bus routes One and a half bathrooms Airconditioning Dishwasher Front porch Call 549-5203

For sale 1984 Volvo 240 Good condition Needs minor work $950 or best 323-0151 best offer

West Yarmouth 6 room 4 bedrooms sleeps 8 near everything 253-7436 508-775-4776 $6,000

FOR RENT

1 bedroom apt N. Amherst Quiet location with big yard, laundry facilities, and AC. Pets negotiable. Take over lease June 1st. Call Marc 549-8244

1 bedroom apt Pulfton 442/month Cheryl Fren 549-4850

1 bedroom avail. May 1 farmhouse in Hadley on Bus. $275 585-6843

1 mile from campus 4 bdrm. pet near. Call 549-8239

2 bedroom apt Colonial Village $480 mnth. Avail June 1st. 253-4719

2 bedroom apt Pets very negotiable Available ASAP 546-0180

2 bedroom Brandywine apt 635/mo inc heat available June 1 549-6503

2 bdrm puffton/Take over, our lease starting June 1 with option for fall renewal can flex at 549-7648

2 bedroom 625 excludes heat + hot water Call 549-1571

2 bedroom apartment at Brandywine 3rd floor poindside $730/ month including heat. Available June 1st. Call 549-5465 Randy or Bert

2 story, 2 bedroom family style bath, dishwasher on bus route $575 + utilities 665-4172 Lu Hagg

3 bedroom 1 bath on Main St. $975/month +utilities electric. Starts June 1st Call 256-3417

4br large bright, walk to UMass center bus, laundry $1000 mth. heat + hw incl 586-0746

4 lg bd backyard bus site BBQ porch privacy 546-7562 256-1220

4 br house Main St. Call 253-4733

5 bedroom 2 bath tube basement bus route Amherst 256-1238

Bluestone for rent $795 + utilities North Hadley Call Joel 586-4762

Brandywine apt 3bdr 3rd floor poindside washing. Take over my lease Call Jaime 549-8863

Brandywine 2 bdr 3rd floor New carpet only $650/ month Available June 1 549-6267

Brandywine Apts Take over our lease for a 2 bedrooms 3rd floor poindside. Rent negotiable for June & July 549-2953

Sunny one bedroom apt. Hardwood floors Center of Amherst Available June 1. 253-4452

Take over our lease 6/1 Brandywine 3rd floor# 549-4546

Take over our lease 2br Brandywine 3rd floor starting 6/1. You won't find cheaper $645/ mo. Call 549-6629

Take over 3bedroom Puffton lease Available June Call 549-8193

Townehouse four person apt. two bus routes One and a half bathrooms Airconditioning Dishwasher Front porch Call 549-5203

For sale 1984 Volvo 240 Good condition Needs minor work $950 or best 323-0151 best offer

LIVE IN THE CHURCH

Beautiful, peaceful, gorgeous summer sublet w/ fall option. Lovely renovated church. 10 min. to campus. One double $400, one single $250, must be seen to be believed. 253-7357

LOST

Lost student daily planner and blue ink pencil bag in GRT 14th floor Reward 253-8175.

MUSICIANS

Band seeks male vocalist 4 all styles 546-6312 Pete

PERSONALS

Alicia G "Congratulations" on getting the RA position- I knew you would! We'll go uptown & celebrate to shots on me! Rissa

Q thang I'm sorry. Please forgive me. I love you very much- you know who!

Susan– dude/ secretary/ cowlover this one really IS for you good luck with "you" I show love your mmmw and the girl with nom-dide name

Tara, Happy Birthday! Love, Tom

ROOMMATE WANTED

1 bedrm in N. Hadley house 187/ mo 5 min from UMass 586 4711

F/ nonsmoker to share townehouse w/ 3 F. Rolling green. Rt 9, on bus rt. 170/ month all utilities included. Call 253-7448

Four females Big Hyannis house. Cheap rent Call 548-7357

Need 2 for 2 single rooms in 4 br apt. Cheap! 6/3187

Needed- 2 F nonsmoking mmmts for next year. Sept- May. Ruth 258-0954

One more person for house in Falmouth all summer. Call Dave 549-1669

One person for large room $170.00 Call 665-7604

Single, sunny room in renovated 2 bdrm apt on bus route $198/ mo + util 665-3618

SERVICES

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring, confidential support 549-1906

Professional repair Most brands audio equipment + VCRs Sound + Music 351 Pleasant Street, Northampton 584-9547

SPRING CONCERT 5/8/94

Security volunteers needed. Must attend one information meeting- 4/20, 4/28, 5/4 from 7-9pm in the Cape Cod lounge. Call UPC at 545-2892 for more info

SUMMER SUBLETS

1 bedroom 4 bedroom apt on bus route 274/mo 253-7188

1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt on bus route $450 month Heat hot water 253-4453

Summer sublet with fall option. 3 bed rooms, huge yard, big kitchen and living area. On bus route. $675/ mo 253-5650

Summer sublet w/ fall option. bedroom in two bedroom apart very quiet. 289/ all included. on bus line grad student preferred 256-8994

Sunny 1 bedroom for 2. own bedroom/ own entrance walk in closet AC & cable rent negotiable. Call Kinty Michelle 253-4278

Will negotiate! 1 rm in 3rm Puffton need non smoking female 549-7590.

w/ fall opt 1 rm in 5 bdrm house on bus route 210's afts April 256-1356

TRAVEL

Sunny Beaches $189 R/T Cancun or Mexico Europe $169 Aunrich 617 254 2819 Call for program descriptions!

WANTED

Senior graduating in December looking for a right or house apt Michelle 549-8757

Sublets, rooms, housing needed this summer. Contact Theresa for SBMC at 586-8186 10 am-6pm

Wa need a house 4 bedrooms + on bus route. Sunderland area pref. 256-3122

3 bedroom 2 bath Pulfton Free cable summer sublet June- Aug 31. 549-5996

3 bedrooms. 50 yds from bus stop Hadley May 31- August 31 $550 negotiable + utilities. Call 586 6438

3 bedroom sublet Pulfton $/neg. May 27- Sept 1 New carpeting appliances. Call 546-5649

3 bedrooms On busline Really close! Call us! 253-7694

4 bedroom on Main St. Rent negotiable Will rent individual rooms Call Jaye or Amy 549-0385

4 br Amherst large bright great location heat hot water incl reasonable 586-0748

$135 per huge bdr w/bath 665-0485

$225/ mo single 1 block from campus 665-0485

$485 a month or best offer! 2 bedroom apartment in Colonial Village on bus route washer and dryer in basement summer sublet with fall option 253-7583

FREE LAUNDRY
Looking for a place to live for the summer w/ fall option? Free laundry. On bus route Interested? Call Matt 253-4209

Great location! N Pleasant St. across from Bertucci's 2 bdrm. 2 minute walk to campus. Cheap! Call 546-1631

Have a car? I have a Luxury 2 bed rm, 2 bathm pad for the summer solstice. Large living area, dishwasher, et al. $600/ mo includes heat/ hot water. Call 256-8843, ask for Fleabay...Yum!

If you have a car, I have a perfect summer sublet. $275 plus cheap utilities. Call Andrew 545-1864 day, 549-4452 evenings.

Mill Valley 2 bed 2 full bath Available June 1 Mountain view. Price negotiable. On bus rt Call 253-7028

Mill Valley 3 bd- 2 bath available June 1st price negotiable. Call 5-0731

Mint studio! Excellent location!! Right in Amherst center! Evenings 3 windows $/200 to $/ 26 $375 per month. Call 256-0030 option for fall

Near uptown across from bus rt. Single rooms avail $700/month Jay/Nels 253-0795

One bedroom apartment. Includes some furniture. Available right after graduation. $285 + Call John 253-4282

Puffers Pond 2 bdrm $450/ mo wash/dry & cat! Call Nicole/ Laura Bus route 549-8378

Quiet sunny one bedroom apt. downtown, 10 min walk to UMass. 256-4267, $450/mo

Room available for one or two people Mill Valley Estates. Price is negotiable. Call Mark 256-6766

Rooms downtown. Quiet, private. Fall option 253-4736 9am- 5pm

Sublet Mill Valley apt 253-5331

Sublet or take over our lease 3 bdrms near campus on busline 10 min walk to campus Call 549-5337

Summer sublet 2 bedroom apt on bus route $450 month Heat hot water 253-4453

Summer sublet with fall option. 3 bed rooms, huge yard, big kitchen and living area. On bus route. $675/ mo 253-5650

Summer sublet w/ fall option. bedroom in two bedroom apart very quiet. 289/ all included. on bus line grad student pref 256-8994

Sunny 1 bedroom for 2. own bedroom/ own entrance walk in closet AC & cable rent negotiable. Call Kinty Michelle 253-4278

Will negotiate! 1 rm in 3rm Puffton need non smoking female 549-7590.

w/ fall opt 1 rm in 5 bdrm house on bus route 210's afts April 256-1356

TRAVEL

Sunny Beaches $189 R/T Cancun or Mexico Europe $169 Aunrich 617 254 2819 Call for program descriptions!

WANTED

Senior graduating in December looking for a right or house apt Michelle 549-8757

Sublets, rooms, housing needed this summer. Contact Theresa for SBMC at 586-8186 10 am-6pm

Wa need a house 4 bedrooms + on bus route. Sunderland area pref. 256-3122

HEY BANDOS!!!

The 1992 video is here! Come to premiere nite 5/5 7:30 @ basek. Pick up your copy $20 cash/ check

1 bedroom 4 bedroom apt on bus route 274/mo 253-7188

1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt on bus route $450 month Heat hot water 253-4453

1,2, or 3 bedrooms in house on Pine St. Call 549-2660 or 8230

2 bdrm 5 minsw from campus 399/ mnth Call 665-4172 Lu Hagg

2 bdrm furnished apt. avlb on bus route rent negotiable 256-4609

2 bedroom apt. beginning June 1st. Two miles from campus. 1 mile from town on bus route hardwood floors. 242/ month 1 person call 253-9974

2 bedroom townehouse On bus line Great location! 550/mo 256-1806

2 bedroom Brandywine May 25 to Sept 1 includes everything and free cable!!! Only 1845/ mo w/ fall option 3 couches and table incl. 549-4261

2 br end 3br townhouses available in Sunderland for summer. On bus route Option for fall rental 570 and $750 Squire Village 665-2203

2 bedroom apartment $550 a month includes everything 256-1960

2 bdrm in 7 rm house Many amenities on bus route avail 6/1 Call 546-3957 546-4269

2 bedroom Brandywine Apt. fall option $645/ mo includes everything. 549-6928

2-3 bedrooms available in 4 bedroom apartment. Fully appianced. AC, busline, June until August 549-8733

3 bedroom in town 5 min walk to UMass fall option 253-2337

Sports

UM baseball stays in first

By ANTHONY GUIDO
Collegian Staff

Some wins are prettier than others, but every victory counts when fighting for the Atlantic 10 title.

The University of Massachusetts baseball team combined solid pitching and timely hitting to defeat Duquesne 5–3 at Earl Lorden field yesterday and take two of three in the series.

Massachusetts (23–13, 10–4 in Atlantic 10) received a well pitched game from Chad Sullivan (4–2) and Greg Dowd. Rightfielder Bill Knight extended his hitting streak to 15 games.

"This wasn't a good win, but it's a win. We'll take it, but we didn't hit or field the ball particularly well," Coach Mike Stone said.

The Minutemen started off the scoring in the second inning as Knight led with a single. After another base hit by Greg LaRocca, centerfielder Nate Murphy connected on an RBI single.

Massachusetts put up two more runs in the fifth inning. Brad Gorrie doubled and scored as an error was made on a Rya.. Jette infield single. Jette then advanced to third after a wild pitch by Duquesne pitcher Jamey Kevsor (4–4).

With Mark Pileski at the plate, Jette attempted to steal home. The home plate umpire called catcher's interference, Jette safe at home and awarded Pileski first base. Duquesne Coach Marc Wilson played the remainder of the game in protest.

Sullivan eluded trouble until the sixth inning. After consecutive singles, Dave McDuffe lofted a sacrifice fly for the Dukes' first run. Greg Dowd entered for UMass and yielded ar infield single to Mike Haines, making it 3–2.

"Sullivar; gave us solid pitching into the sixth; that's all you can ask. It's tough on the pitchers to have all these games in a row," Stone said.

Sullivan went five and one-third innings, giving up two runs, both unearned, on seven hits with two strikeouts and three walks.

The Minutemen answered right back in the bottom of the sixth, again sparked by the red–hot Knight. Knight (2–for–3) tripled to right field, which was followed by a walk to LaRocca.

Knight scored on a double steal, with LaRocca taking third on an error. Jeff January then hit a sac fly to score LaRocca and put the Minutemen up, 5–2.

Dowd closed, earning his seventh save. The senior righthander went three and two–thirds innings, yielding an earned run with a strikeout and no walks.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

The Massachusetts baseball team won its series finale against Duquesne yesterday. The Minutemen and senior ace Peter Ferrari (pictured) return to A–10 action this weekend against St. Bonaventure.

"As one of only three seniors on the staff, it's important to be able to provide stability. I like the closer role. I told Coach I wanted this role from the beginning," Dowd said. Massachusetts travels to Northeastern, currently ranked number one in New England, tomorrow for a 3 p.m. start.

The final A–10 series of the season for the Minutemen is this weekend at St. Bonaventure. Massachusetts is fighting for its first ever regular season conference title, and the Bonnies are in the hunt for the fourth and final tournament spot.

Story book finish for tennis team

By BILL BALFOUR
Collegian Staff

Liesl Sitton and Lesley Watts won their Group A doubles match over Army in dramatic fashion to clinch the team title for the University of Massachusetts women's tennis team at the Fairfield–ITA Tournament last weekend.

The Minutewomen edged Army by one point to claim the victory. UMass finished ahead of the eight–team field with 18 points, Army had 17 points, followed by Fairfield (8) and Vermont (3).

After losing the first set 6–2, Sitton and Watts trailed in the second set 4–1 and 40–love before pulling it together. The duo won the next two games to cut the lead to 4–3, and eventually won the set, 7–6.

In the final set, Army held serve trailing 5–3, giving the serve over to Sitton with UMass ahead 5–4. Sitton held on serve to give UMass the victory and tournament title.

"I just knew that she would be able to hold this time," Coach Judy Dixon said. "She held at 6–4 in the third, which means we won."

The victory for the Minutewomen was the first tournament win of any kind for the program.

"It's a little unbelievable," Dixon said. "It was a story book ending to the season."

Dixon said the end to the season couldn't have been better for two reasons.

"The one senior [Stacey Scheckner] that was there played very well and got to the finals of both the singles and doubles, and that the person holding the ball in her hand to win UMass' first tournament ever was Liesl. And she came through," Dixon said. "If you had written this as a book, it couldn't have turned out better."

Sitton, who was battling a cold, played strong tennis all weekend. She won the Group A singles final over Army's Allysen Toce, 6–0, 6–0.

"Liesl Sitton played the best tennis of her life since she has been here," Dixon said. "The

Turn to WOMEN'S TENNIS, page 10

Balls juiced, game losing historic flair

Anatomy of a baseball: a long, long time ago, baseballs used in major league baseball were Spalding balls. That was back when the leading homerun hitter in the league knocked three or four out a year.

Rawlings took over Major League Baseball's contract a few decades ago, and they put a production plant in the Dominican Republic. After a few years, Rawlings moved to Haiti before being currently produced in Costa Rica.

Why am I bringing this up? Because everybody says there's more juice to the ball this season.

The ball has a somewhat mythical hold on many fans, young and old. Take a look at the bleachers before any major league game in any of the 28 parks, and you'll see evidence of this.

Michael Morrissey's BEANBALLS

People fight over a ball like it's a jewel. Take away the baseball diamond, you can still have two kids playing catch or hitting fungoes. The ball is the integral piece of the sport. And if the sport's suffering, do the gods (owners) decide to make the ball livelier?

That is the question. Are there 10–9 games this spring because major league pitching absolutely sucks, or because Rawlings, of their own volition or by the owners' mandate, has made the balls jump off the bat and carry longer and farther?

I want to preface my answer by giving a few thoughts on the art of pitching, it no longer exists. Pitchers are rushed up to the majors and are expected to learn on the fly. Look at Dave Nied, Darren Dreifort, Todd Van Poppel and others as examples.

No matter how good these pitching coaches are, they can't be expected to tutor 12 young pitchers. Pitchers are not expected to do enough on their own. They are pampered way too much, and in the wrong way.

Don't believe it? Then why do clubs employ three or four specialists in the bullpen, men who only come in under one situation? The Tony Fossases, Greg Harrises and Scott Bankheades are prototypes of men who can't do anything but pitch one inning. The blueprint of today's game: the starter goes six innings, middle relief and set up man each for one inning and the closer finishes. How mundane.

Young pitchers can't throw hard anymore, which is why a 42–year old Goose Gossage is on the Mariners and still has a job; he can hit 90 on the luggs gun. Our generation of has been taught to throw the curveball as a crutch, whereas many years ago pitchers were taught the two–seam fastball, four–seam fastball and change–up for their repertoire.

The established pitchers are struggling; Tom Glavine and Jack McDowell have losing records, Dwight Gooden is on the shelf and Roger Clemens has yet to regain his form of two years ago. Add a park in the National League which is a mile above sea level, and you have an offensive explosion.

The umpires won't help. The strike zone is

Turn to BEANBALLS, page 11

Say What?

"If anybody should be frustrated, it should be Chicago. They're struggling to beat us, with this team we have now."

— Cleveland guard Mark Price, whose injury–riddled Cavs are down 2–0 in the first round series with the Bulls.

Hsiao the highlight of big weekend

By MICHAEL REISS
Collegian Staff

The rebuilding of the first–year men's tennis team has been compared to the building of a new house; the first step being to lay down a foundation.

That was what this year was supposed to be all about for the University of Massachusetts men's tennis team, a season to lay down a foundation of success. Surprisingly, it has been much more.

Over the weekend at the New England Championships, the ascension up the ranks continued for the squad, as the Minutemen chalked up an eighth place finish out of a 23– team field. The performance left no doubt that UMass men's tennis is back.

But even more, it signaled that the Minutemen can compete and win at a top–notch level.

The star of weekend was Greg Hsiao, who advanced to the semifinals at fifth singles. Hsiao's season has been a topsy– turvy one, during which he struggled to find the consistency in his game. Over the weekend, it all came together.

"He's had a tough year finding his game," said Assistant Coach Dan Rosenberg. "His upset in the quarterfinals was huge, while the score in the semifinals didn't indicate how close the points were. Greg really peaked at the right time."

Hsiao cruised past the first two rounds, winning 6–0, 6–4 and 6–0, 6–2. The quarterfinals proved to be a lot tougher, as he was engaged in a three–set dogfight with the top seed of the tournament. Recovering from a 7–5 second set loss, Hsiao gained his composure en route to a 6–3 third set triumph. He then fell to the eventual champion, 6–1, 6–1, in the next round.

Memories of Michael Chang winning the French Open through excruciating cramps a few years back were beginning to surface in the third singles division. UMass' Kevin Hicks badly sprained his ankle in the first round and was close to having to forfeit the match.

The gutsy senior came out of his 10–minute medical timeout, quickly disposing of his opponent 6–4, 6–1.

"During the timeout, we let him make the decision if he wanted to play," said Rosenberg. "He said 'We need two points for the team and I feel I can beat this guy.' He got us two very important points with that win."

While Hsiao and Hicks were exceptional, the rest of the squad was up to par as well.

"Everyone that had a first round match won," said Rosenberg. "Everyone knew that UMass was there. We were right up there with the big boys."

Up there with the big boys? Some rebuilding year.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Sophomore Darren Tow, playing No. 6 singles for the Massachusetts men's tennis team, advanced to the second round in last weekend's New England Championships.

Men's track gearing up

Eastern Championships await UM next weekend

By JORMA KANSANEN
Collegian Staff

As the semester winds down, most of us are preparing for the final papers and exams that test what exactly we have, or have not, learned.

In the world of collegiate sports, this also marks the time of year during which teams and individuals begin to prepare, physically and psychologically, for divisional and conference tournaments.

This last Saturday in Providence, R.I., the University of Massachusetts men's track team competed in the Brown Invitational. A sure–fire opportunity to expand the level of competition, this meet is meant to gear up the team for this weekend's Eastern Conference Championships in New Britain, Conn.

"It was a really good sign," said Coach Ken O'Brien. "Number one with the great meet conditions, but mostly the team seems to be getting physically and mentally ready."

What came by as the strength for UMass on this day was the track events. Contrary to the recent success of leading point scorer Marc Lefebvre and Tom Galligani in the field, the middle to long distance runners and relay teams had their spot in the ideal, sunny conditions experienced this weekend.

Led by experienced senior Lyonel Benjamin, the 4X100 meter relay team, comprised also of sophomore Anthony Rachupka, and freshmen Christian Abbott and Jason Kaplan, came in second place with a finishing time of 44.41. The 4X400 meter relay team of seniors Rob Pedowitz, Steve Paris, Brian King and Chris Povolny showed their leadership skills with a 3:28.39 time, good for third place.

A string of seasonal bests encapsulated the "remains of the day" for UMass. Juniors Rick Copley (steeplechase, 9:17.20) and Ted Towse (5000 meter, 15:00.28) finished first and second in their events, respectively. Sophomore Ethan Nedeau achieved his seasonal best in the 1500 meter race, with a second place time of 3:55.78, and freshman Paul Blodorn shocked everyone with a third place 1:57.56 in the 800 meter.

"The last couple of years URI and Southern Connecticut have had the edge on us," said O'Brien. "But I see the possibility of being in the top three, if not winning, the championship this weekend."

Women's lax falls to Temple

By MIKE PINDER
Collegian Correspondent

Matching up against a team that has beaten you 11 out of 13 times isn't exactly the way you want to spend a beautiful Saturday afternoon. This is especially true if the team that you are playing is Temple University.

The University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team did just that, and quite possibly played their most complete game of the year in a 13–10 loss to the Owls.

The Minutewomen had something to prove to the Owls after a 21–4 thrashing that took place last year at home. As Temple found out, the 1994 Minutewomen are a much different and much improved team from a year earlier, thanks to first–year Coach Francesca Den Hartog.

On Temple's first offensive rush, UMass goalkeeper Patricia DiBenedetto came up big with a miraculous save that set the tone of the game for the Minutewomen.

Just moments later, freshman Sarah Goddard struck first blood with an aggressive offensive rush that resulted in the first goal of the game for the Minutewomen.

UMass then dominated the next 10 minutes of the game with stifling defense and quick offensive strikes, taking a 2– 0 lead. The second goal was delivered via a Stephanie Walsh score.

Temple finally got on the board when Jennifer Edens scored her first of five goals at the 19–minute mark. Edens and Carolyn Albright (4 goals) accounted for nine of the 13 Temple scores.

The Lady Owls caught fire, scoring five unanswered goals led by Edens and Albright to take a 6–3 lead.

UMass wouldn't be intimidated, and mounted a comeback of its own, during which Walsh and

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Freshman Sarah Goddard and the University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team lost a heartbreaker to Temple University last Saturday, 13–10, at Totman Field.

Rachael Splaine netted their second goals of the contest. Also chipping in during the run was Tashia Economopoulos and Erica Bryan, each scoring a goal and giving the Minutewomen a 7–6 lead.

Splaine's second goal was a thing of beauty. After losing the ball to a Temple defender, Splaine stole it back and rushed from behind the net, tipping it past Temple goalkeeper Ali True and giving UMass the lead.

Temple tied the game with 25 seconds left in the

Turn to WOMEN'S LACROSSE, page 10

Big Dog leaves Purdue for hardwood of NBA

GARY, Ind. (AP) - Purdue's Glenn Robinson, everybody's player of the year last season, announced today he is giving up his final year of eligibility to turn pro.

"I want everyone to know in the city of Gary that I'm leaving because I'm in the unique situation a lot of people don't have the opportunity to go into the lottery or maybe even be the No. 1 pick," Robinson said at a news conference at his alma mater, Gary Roosevelt High School.

"He has an opportunity of a lifetime. I would like to coach him another year, but the opportunity was just too good to pass up," Purdue Coach Gene Keady said.

Robinson, a 6–foot–8–inch forward who led the nation in scoring last season with a 30.3 average, is expected to be the first pick in next month's NBA draft.

He was The Associated Press Player of the Year last season, and also collected the Wooden, Eastman and Naismith awards in national voting.

Robinson will top an impressive list of underclassmen awaiting the draft. Among those already to declare their eligibility are Jalen Rose and Juwan Howard of Michigan, Donyell Marshall of Connecticut and Jason Kidd and Lamond Murray of California. However, underclassmen have an unprecedented chance this year to regain their college eligibility within 30 days after the draft, as long as they have not signed with an agent.

Robinson may be in position to command a multiyear contract similar to the eye–popping packages Chris Webber and Anfernee Hardaway signed last year.

Webber agreed to a 15–year, $74.4 million deal, and Hardaway signed a 13–year, $65 million contract. Robinson's worth could approach $100 million.

Along with his national–best scoring average, Robinson was the Big Ten's leading rebounder, averaging 10.2. It was the first time the same player had led the league in those categories since Minnesota's Mychal Thompson in 1978.

Robinson led an otherwise ordinary group of Purdue players to a 29–5 record, the conference championship and the top seed in the NCAA's Southeast Regional. Purdue advanced to the regional final, losing 69–60 to eventual NCAA runner–up Duke.

After leading Gary Roosevelt to Indiana's state championship as a senior and winning the state's Mr. Basketball award, Robinson was an academic casualty as a freshman under Proposition 48.

Robinson, nicknamed Big Dog by a campus custodian, is the eighth leading scorer in Purdue history with 1,706 career points. He also is the only Boilermaker to record at least 1,000 points, 500 rebounds, 100 steals, 100 assists and 50 blocks.

The Improbable Players teach of substance abuse through their plays page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
Wednesday
May 4, 1994
Volume CIII Issue 119
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Weather
Sunny, becoming cloudy in the afternoon. Highs near 65.

World

Syria offers deal to Isreal

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - Syria is offering Israel an unprecedented proposal as the two old foes pursue a land–for–peace swap that will bring Secretary of State Warren Christopher back to shuttle between them in mid–May.

Israel has already let it be known that for the right offer - and airtight security on the border - it would be willing to relinquish the Golan Heights and uproot all or most of the 13,000 Jews who have developed the enclave with agriculture and light industry.

That prospect is touching off anxiety and demonstrations in Israel, for occupation of the buffer in 1967 put an end to cross–border shelling of northern villages. Demonstrations against the government of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin remind him of his campaign promise not to "go down" from the Golan Heights. The motorcade that took Christopher and his aides from Jerusalem to Lod to fly to Cairo was diverted to a secondary road Tuesday to avoid one such demonstration.

Peace stalled until pullout

SARAJEVO, Bosnia–Herzegovina (AP) — New international efforts to restart peace talks depend entirely on a full Serb pullout from embattled Gorazde, Bosnia's prime minister said Tuesday.

"It all hinges, the whole negotiating process now, all of that hinges on Gorazde," Prime Minister Haris Silajdzic said after a meeting with Yasushi Akashi, the top U.N. diplomat for ex–Yugoslavia.

U.S., Russian and European negotiators are due back for a second round of talks Thursday.

Akashi met for 3 1/2 hours Tuesday with Bosnian Serb leaders and said they agreed to allow U.N. military observers into the Brcko area, the northern corridor that is the Serbs' vital east–west supply route between land they hold. The Serbs hope to widen the corridor.

Mandela's official victory stalled

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - Nelson Mandela's African National Congress must wait three extra days to take power because ballot counting is taking so long.

Even though the winner has claimed victory and the losers have conceded, almost half the votes remained to be counted in South Africa's first all–race election.

The 400–member National Assembly, the main chamber of the new Parliament, will now meet in Cape Town on Monday rather than Friday, its first, and somewhat urgent, task is to formally elect Mandela as South Africa's first black president.

National

Navy to recruit more women

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy must recruit more women and give them more chances to serve on combat ships, even on submarines, the service's new chief said Tuesday.

The Navy's image, scarred by the Tailhook sex scandal, will improve "once everybody is recognized to be equal in the workplace," Adm. Jeremy Boorda said in an interview with reporters.

Women serve on 57 of the Navy's 406 ships, but Boorda said his goal is nothing less than all ships. "The goal is everything," he said.

The new chief of naval operations announced his plans just 10 days after taking command of a service afflicted by recent reports of sexual harassment, lackluster leadership and cheating at the U.S. Naval Academy.

Boorda said he will give the men and women of the Navy the chance to prove the Navy is committed to equal opportunity in the workplace.

"I want to do it as quickly as we can do it correctly," the admiral said.

UMass phones have problems

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

If you are wondering why your phones are not working well, do not worry. You are not the only one who can not make local and long distance phone calls without being cut off by a fuzz noise.

The entire University of Massachusetts telecommunications system on campus is having problems. A failure of the phone system caused the electronic mail and internet system to fail.

The information super highway, which UMass is hooked up to, has also suffered a blowout from the failure of the phone system.

The Telecommunications Office realized there was a problem at 1 p.m. yesterday.

Randy Sailer, the director of telecommunication network, said they are now working on finding the cause of the failure. He said they have been working all night.

"We haven't yet determined the cause, but technicians are trying to find the reason. We do have some ideas why this happened," Sailer said.

The blowout has affected both the residence and academic phones. There are some phones that are able to make calls.

"In many incidents, there will be static and then the person will be cut off. But, some of the phones are working fine," Sailer said.

If the phone does not work completely, students and faculty are advised to let the phone sit for awhile, and try their phone again later, or they should go to another phone.

PHOTO ILLUSTRATION BY MATT KAHN

The University is experiencing wide–spread trouble with its four–year old, $22–million phone system.

Entry level jobs there for seniors

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Staff

All University of Massachusetts students worrying about the job market — there is a light at the end of the job searching tunnel.

The UMass Career Center is receiving an average of 20–25 job opening notices per day and often has insufficient resumes in their computerized resume file to meet the requests.

"There are many good jobs out there at entry level," said Jackie Mauer, the Employment Referral Specialist for the Career Center. "It's embarrassing. We need more resumes from students. There is an array of jobs out there."

According to Mauer, many of the jobs range from Mechanical Engineers, Economic Analysts, Marketing Assistants, to Production Assistants. The employers that actively recruit range from Beth Israel Hospital in Boston, to Gulf Oil in Chelsea. Even Governor Weld's Office, Microcom, and the Gillette Company are looking for employers.

Electronic hiring is becoming a growing trend in the job market, and the Career Center has purchased, "Resume Expert," a job matching software system that allows students to prepare a resume on a disc.

The disc is given to the Career Center for uploading into the Center's database and distributed for matching positions coming into the Center's job file.

"These students and those who are still job hunting and have not purchased the package are missing out on hundreds of excellent positions from marketing, communications, and publishing," said Mauer.

According to the Career Center, 562 resume packages have been sold to students at $20, but only 287 student resumes are on file from a graduating class of 4,000.

"For the unemployed senior, the $20 cost of 'Resume Expert,' is the best deal in town," said Karen Knight, the Industry Liaison for the Center.

Students support Bosnia

Support group sends provisions to war–torn nation

By LISA GREENFIELD
Collegian Staff

Humanitarians on the University of Massachusetts campus and in the surrounding community have been attempting to educate the public and support the struggle of Bosnians by forming "Friends of Bosnia" chapters.

Last year former Bosnian resident and participant in Mt. Holyoke's foreign fellowship program, Alma Musanovic, began a campaign in the Valley which lead to the organization of the two local FOB bodies.

Officially, a UMass chapter began a few weeks ago as a registered student organization. Unofficially, six months ago UMass students began working on the Bosnian effort.

The community chapter and the UMass chapter work close together in an effort to "educate students and the community because the media seems confused and doesn't seem to know the history," according to the UMass FOB president, Brian C. O'Neil.

The country of Yugoslavia disintegrated into six republics, Serbia and Croatia the most powerful, with an ethnically mixed Bosnia between them. In December 1991, Bosnia declared its independence. In the spring of 1992, Serbia started aggression against Bosnia.

President of the Hadley FOB Glenn Ruga said he believes the disintegration of Yugoslavia allowed Serbia to maintain control of the entire weapons supply, leaving Bosnia defenseless. For this reason, Ruga and other activists agree on the need to lift the arms embargo to allow Bosnians to purchase weapons for self–defense.

Despite the cease–fire in the city of Goradze, O'Neil said genocide is still taking place and the Bosnians should be able to protect themselves.

Article 51 of the United Nations charter states an obligation to protect or supply arms because a sovereign nation has the right to protect themselves. By not providing arms or protection to Bosnians, it is a violation of the charter, Tom Bales, UMass FOB treasurer, said.

Many activists complain of the government's

Turn to BOSNIA, page 3

Five–College community prepares for graduation

By JUSTIN DOYLE
Collegian Staff

The Amherst area will see its busiest time of the year in a few weeks when the Five Colleges hold their graduation ceremonies on the same weekend. Thanks to a new committee, towns, local businesses and even the highway department will be better prepared.

The Town–gown planning committee is made up of college administrators, directors of the local chambers of commerce, and representatives for Sen. Stan Rosenberg and Rep. Ellen Story.

"Planning for this event has given us a prototype for truly creative cooperation between the towns and the five colleges. It's a model bound to serve us well in the future as the area continues to attract increasing numbers of tourists and visitors," Story said.

The University of Massachusetts, Amherst College, Hampshire College, Smith College and Mount Holyoke College will all have graduation ceremonies May 21 and 22. The committee was formed to deal with problems that the area might have preparing for the increase in activity during the weekend of the commencements.

"While none of us might wish for five commencements on a single weekend every year, we've really learned how to come together as a community," Story said.

The committee began planning for the weekend over a year ago. In the spring of 1993, committee members drafted an advisory letter that went out to perspective graduates, making them aware of the situation and offering suggestions and information to help their families and friends plan ahead.

In January of 1994, when it was reported that most area hotels and motels were booked to capacity, the committee worked on compiling a comprehensive listing of bed and breakfast establishments for referrals.

Although two of the colleges traditionally house families of their graduates on campus, lodging always becomes an issue whenever the UMass graduates, said Robert Brooks, director of University Student Affairs Special Services.

The committee is planning to have food ready for the families and friends attending the graduation ceremonies. An outdoor "Food Court" will be set up adjacent to the stadium where the graduation ceremonies are occurring.

To help with the anticipated traffic members of the committee met with the area police, highway department and state police in an attempt to get extra officers to control traffic on May 22, when four commencements are scheduled.

Salesmanship

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN

Ryan Sivasankaran, a computer science doctoral student, hangs up tie–dye t–shirts at Orchard Hill's Bowl Day.

UM to sponsor minority Ph.D.

By GAYLE DOUGHERTY
Collegian Correspondent

In an effort to increase minority faculty, the University of Massachusetts science department will sponsor minorities pursuing doctorates in mathematics.

The University of Massachusetts, the Pew Charitable Trust, and the New England Board of Higher Education (NEBHE) will sponsor four minority scholars pursuing doctorates at UMass in September. The grants are a part of a new "Compact for Faculty Diversity" program.

The program's objective is to prepare more than 400 new minority faculty members by the year 2000. At least 75 will be mathematics, science, and engineering specialists who receive their Ph.D.s from New England universities.

Only 2.3 percent of New England's faculty members are African–American, while 1.3 percent are Hispanic, according to NEBHE estimates.

African–Americans, Hispanics, and Native–Americans combined make up 10 percent of New England's population.

NEBHE's goal is to increase the number of African–American, Native–American,

Turn to DOCTORATES, page 2

Committee proposes change in Grad votes

By BEN GEMAN
Collegian Staff

The Graduate Student Senate Election Committee, as a result of the contentious nature of last week's GSS election, proposed several changes in the election process, at last night's GSS meeting.

In last week's balloting, Prasad Venugopal was elected GSS president, Julia Johnson was elected vice president, Ruth Mathis gained the treasurer's seat and Colin Cavell won the race for executive officer.

The election took place amidst allegations of unfair campaign practices by both coalitions seeking office and charges by the defeated coalition of presidential candidate Jaimee Saliba, vice presidential candidate Jim Delle, candidate for treasurer Pierre Laliberte and executive officer candidate Laura Hermer that the most recent issue of the graduate student newspaper, The Voice, was not equally accessible as a forum for endorsements supporting candidates in the election.

Hussein Ibish, editor of The Voice, said last week that all candidates in the election were given the same opportunity to submit endorsements to the paper.

Julia Mahoney, chair of the election committee and current GSS vice president, recommended that a written code of conduct based on a federal model be used in the monitoring of next year's election.

"The tenor of this year's election was particularly vile," Mahoney said at last night's meeting.

The committee, which decided on its recommendations at a meeting prior to last night's GSS meeting, also recommended that next year's election committee have the authority to reprimand candidates if the committee decides that wrongful conduct has taken place.

The committee also recommended that next year's committee and GSS consider the issue of "equal and fair" access to The Voice, and that the editor of The Voice solicit "balanced representation" of all candidates, according to Mahoney.

At last night's meeting, the coalition of Saliba, Delle, Laliberte and Hermer distributed a written compilation of their complaints about the election to the senators

Turn to GRADS, page 2

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Wednesday, May 4

Discussion — Director Elise Young will present a video and lead discussion on "Women and Health Care in Occupied Palestine" at 7:30 p.m. in Campus Center Room 917. Sponsored by the Palestine Solidarity Committee.

Public hearing — The Strategic Planning Task Force on Diversity and Multiculturalism will hold a public hearing from noon to 1:30 p.m. in Campus Center Room 904-08.

Lecture — Brian Egan will discuss "The History of the Polka: Part II" at 8 p.m. in School of Management Room 116. Sponsored by the Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures and the Program in Soviet and East European Studies.

Broadcast — Valley Access Network will show program two in their series of works by Five College film and video students at 8 p.m. on Ch. 19.

Discussion — Barbara Kerewsky-Halpern and Muhamed Borogouac will be featured on a panel discussing, "After Gorazde: What Next?" at 8:20 p.m. in Prince/Crampton House International Lounge.

Lecture — Laura Ramos will discuss "Lesbians and AIDS" from noon to 1:30 p.m. in Campus Center Room 917. Part of the Brown Bag Series.

Video/Discussion — Producer and writer Annie Goldson will present a video and lead discussion at 4 p.m. at the Union Video Center in the Student Union, behind the Hatch.

Thursday, May 5

Lecture — Donald Black, professor and chairman of the University Institutional Animal Care and Use Committee, will speak on "The New Social Ethic for Food Animals: A Common Sense Approach" at 8 p.m. in Herter Hall Gallery. Sponsored by teh Animal Rights Coalition.

Banquet — The First Annual Outstanding Community Service Awards Banquet will be held by VIVA Service Council and the Chancellor's Office at 11:45 a.m. at the Hadley farm. For more information, call 545-3368.

Friday, May 6

Service — Jumma Salat and Khutba will be held at 1 p.m. in the Campus Center. Sponsored by the Muslim Student Association.

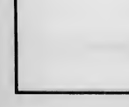
Service — Shabbat service will be led by Julius Lester at 7 p.m. in Hillel House.

Training — Womanshelter Companeras needs volunteers to answer a hotline for battered women and their children. Training sessions will begin today at 6 p.m. For more information, call 538-9717 between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

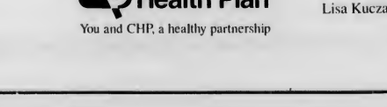
Ongoing

Phone line — Peer Health Connections offers information and referrals for a variety of issues. Call 549-2671 ext. 168 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; voice mail messages remain confidential.

Study — Study hall with free coffee and tea is open from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday at the Berkshire and Worcester Dining Commons.



HIV hotline — The HIV Antibodies Counseling and Testing Hotline can be reached at 1-800-750-2016. Administered by Family Planning Council of Western Massachusetts.



Correction

An incorrect figure was published in the page one story "Battery bill battles for ecosystem" printed April 26. Of Clean Water Action's revenues, 26.2 percent goes toward salaries, 7.4 percent goes toward general/administrative costs, and the rest funds campaigns.

In the photo with the International Fair, the Panamanian tembliques are hairpieces made of fish scales.

The Collegian regrets the error.

Auto–insurance may increase

By JONATHAN YENKIN
Associated Press

BOSTON — A bill approved by the Senate to overhaul the auto insurance system would not send rates through the roof, as the industry contends, according to a report released Tuesday by the attorney general's office.

But the study by the consulting firm Milliman and Robertson Inc. also did not predict significant savings, unless customers choose minimal coverage that increases their risk.

Massachusetts officials have struggled for a way to rein in the state's soaring auto insurance premiums, which now average $918 per year.

The Senate this year endorsed a plan that would lift restrictions on filing personal injury lawsuits while trying to settle claims in arbitration or mediation before they go to court. Under the current law, motorists must have at least $2,000 in medical bills to sue, but critics say that threshold acts as a target for people to inflate their expenses.

While lawyer groups and some consumer advocates supported the bill, the auto insurance industry blasted it, saying it would open the door for more litigation. The Automobile Insurers Bureau estimated premiums would jump by 13 percent, or $119 per car. The Milliman and Robertson study said eliminating the threshold could increase premiums. But it also said some of the industry's assumptions were faulty and predicted an average overall increase of 3.9 percent.

■ grads

continued from page 1

present.

In the compilation, they alleged unfairness of coverage in The Voice, use of GSS and Legal Services office resources in campaigning by the elected coalition, "manipulation" of the nomination process and failure to publicize the election in a forum other than The Voice, which they allege served as a "campaign publication" for the other coalition.

"These abuses seriously undermine the validity of the result, and threaten the integrity and credibility of the GSS," the coalition said in the distributed flyer.

Last week, Julia Johnson denied any misuse of GSS or LSO resources.

The victorious coalition in last week's election also presented a group of written letters of grievance to the election committee, alleging campaign posters were tampered with during the election.

Johnson said last night the grievance of tampering brought before the committee was not meant to implicate the opposing coalition in the tampering with the posters.

The letters submitted to the committee also alleged unfair attempt to influence a potential voter by a supporter of the opposing coalition.

■ doctorates

continued from page 1

and Hispanic professors at U.S. colleges and universities. UMass currently has four African– American professors in the mathematics department.

"Starting in September, two minority scholars will begin doctoral work at UMass in mathematics, with two more enrolling in September 1995," said Donald St. Mary, a UMass mathematics professor.

St. Mary is also currently directing a five–week regional Summer Science Enrichment Program for high school students from disadvantaged backgrounds. The program is one of only three funded by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

Chancellor David K. Scott noted the nation–wide need for minority fellowships in mathematics and science.

"More minority representation in the sciences will help increase the scientific literacy of our society, and these new graduate fellowships will help attract the best and brightest into teaching science and mathematics," Scott said.

UMass ranks 8th nationally in the number of Hispanics awarded Ph.D.s and 15th in the number of African– Americans who earned Ph.Ds. UMass is nationally ranked in the top 25 Ph.D.–granting institutions in science and ranked fourth in New England, preceded only by M.I.T., Harvard, and Yale.

ATTENTION UNIVERSITY OF MASS EMPLOYEES:

Take a closer look at CHP.

We think you'll like what you see.

The CHP Amherst Health Center is hosting an open house for our current members, and anyone who is considering joining CHP. Come and meet the staff and tour the facility. Light refreshments will be served. For information and appointments call 413/549-1212.

May 5.....5:30-7:30 p.m.

CHP Amherst Health Center
29 Cottage Street
Amherst, MA

Andrew Hall, M.D.
Andrew Larkin, M.D.
Brian Scanlan, M.D.
Amy Metzger, C.N.M., M.S.N.
Pamela Drexler-Lopez, C.N.M., B.A.
Lisa Kuczarski, R.D.

Community Health Plan
You and CHP, a healthy partnership

For Everyone's Information
Submit your FYI to the Collegian and tell the world what they need to know.

CONTACT LENS CARE
AT THE UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES
We take great pride in being able to fit many people who have had difficulty in the past wearing contact lenses.
•••
Offering a broad array of contact lenses with a large in house inventory.
•••
The new daily wear disposable and frequent replacement contact lenses are now available.
•••
All fittings are done by our eye doctors with experience in contact lens care and solving contact lens problems.
•••
Emphasis is placed on your ocular health and professional service.
uhs
EYE CARE PROGRAM
Convenient hours and convenient on campus location. For questions or appointments, call 549-2671 X244

HELCATS
JOIN THE PACK
RIDE WITH DEATH
THE COLLEGIAN

"One day I decided to sell my bike and my car, and in the spirit of Walden Woods & Don Henley, I would walk everywhere from now on.
I also decided that the best way to get rid of them and make a whole lot of cash (that I wouldn't donate any of to a worthy environmental cause) was to advertise in The Collegian Classifieds.
Needless to say, I sold my bike and car, but when I looked to see my classified in the paper I saw a really cool classified for a motorcycle.
Screw the environment, now I ride with the wind and death at my side."
Collegian Classifieds
They really work.

Play spreads word about addiction

COURTESY OF THE IMPROBABLE PLAYERS
The Improbable Players brought their drug and alcohol addiction show to Hampshire College on Sunday.

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

A group of recovering alcohol and drug addicts are using their acting talents to help prevent others from falling into the same trap by putting on plays about their experiences for New England high schools and colleges.

Lynn Bratley is the president of a group of 12 professional actors who make up The Improbable Players. The actors, who all have side jobs, have performed for over 300,000 students at the high school, college and middle school level since 1984. They performed at Hampshire College last Sunday, May 1.

Bratley said people find her plays especially poignant because the actors are all recovering addicts themselves.

"People react to the plays because they are so emotional and they can identify with the characters," Bratley said. "You're always hearing 'An alcoholic affects everyone in the family.' and you say 'Oh yeah, what else is new?' but when you see it you say 'Ahh now I get it.' It's a policy that all of our actors are also recovering substance abusers because it makes [the play] more believable."

Bratley said she was an alcoholic for 10 years before she stopped drinking in 1982 and formed the group in 1983. She said the plays are modeled after her own life.

"I was a nice lady from a nice town and I had nice kids, and I would go into the closet every night at 5 p.m. and drink to get obliterated," she said. "I didn't know what was wrong with me but everyone in my family was affected by my actions."

Bratley said the basic format of the plays is that they start off funny, with one of the actors doing his stand up comedy routine bashing slogans such as "Just Say No." But at the end of the play there is a serious message relayed to the audience about happens to a family when one person is drinking.

She also said that after the play the actors do a lot of talking with the people at the show. She said one of the points the actors stress is that substance abusers are people with a sickness, not bad people.

"We are sick people trying to get healthy, not bad people trying to get good," she said.

Myra Ellen Edelstein is the health educator at Hampshire College. Edelstein, who was responsible for bringing The Improbable Players to Hampshire College described the show as "incredible." The show was part of an all day health fair at the school.

Bratley said she also sponsors a group of actors ages 60 and over who perform a similar play for senior citizens. She also said she is starting a play for elementary school kids that will begin this fall.

Bratley said if she had seen a play like the one she puts on now she would have been able to recover from her alcohol addiction sooner than she did.

"I didn't know anyone else who drank, [a play like this one] would have opened my eyes so that I could have figured out what was going wrong with me," she said.

■ Bosnia

continued from page 1

actions. "The government does not have a clear policy on how to deal with Serbian aggression," Sharon Webb, community FOB activist, said.

Ruga said President Bill Clinton is doing, "the least amount he has to do to keep the public and Congress off his back." He said one reason for Clinton's inadequacy in dealing with this issue is that he came into office with a domestic agenda and wasn't prepared for foreign issues.

With the recent military strike against the Serbians, Ruga says Clinton has not addressed the larger problems.

Bales said Clinton pays attention to consensus and said letter writing to Clinton and other legislators will show a public awareness and consensus that aid to Bosnia is needed.

On the campus center concourse last week, the UMass FOB sponsored a letter writing campaign to President Clinton and Massachusetts senators that produced 64 letters.

O'Neil called the campaign "tremendously effective" because he said the government reportedly considers one handwritten letter representative of 5,000 people.

Hadley FOB aid includes a four and a half ton shipment of food, clothing and medical and school supplies in February.

In March the Hadley chapter brought a New England regional conference aimed "To Stop Genocide in Bosnia: A Conference of Education and Action."

O'Neil described the UMass involvement as a handful of committed people with another 20 or so concerned contributors.

Currently UMass FOB is organizing a New England–wide conference for next November with a wide range of speakers such as photojournalists and politicians.

O'Neil advises concerned people to get involved, write legislators, and attend educational lectures. He also said that because of the recent success of the concourse letter writing campaign, a table will be set up there in the future.

NATHAN MASON, COLLEGIAN
A group protests the lack of U.S. commitment in Bosnia by holding signs on the Calvin Coolidge Bridge in Northampton.

Resumé Package
• 50 copies on Your Choice of 25% Cotton Paper
• 2 Business Day Service
• 1 Page Typeset
•With Coupon•
$19.95!!
CopyCat PRINTSHOP
We Specialize in Impossible Deadlines
228 Triangle St., Amherst 549-3840
32 Pleasant St., Northampton 586-1332

AUDITIONS FOR
NOT READY FOR BEDTIME PLAYERS
MAY 5, 1994
7:30PM
CAMPUS CENTER ROOM 174
For more information call The Health Education Division and ask for Nancy 549-2671 x181

Commuter Area Government
PROUDLY PRESENTS
The 6th Annual Spring Comedy Show
with Jon Stewart
Host of MTV's
The JON STEWART SHOW
AND A SPECIAL GUEST
THURSDAY, MAY 5, 1994
8:00PM

The Fine Arts Center
University of Massachusetts
$3.00 UMASS STUDENTS/$5.00 GENERAL PUBLIC
TICKETS ON SALE AT THE FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE (545-2511)
Tickets holders win a chance to be on
The JON STEWART SHOW
or receive MTV's
"ROCK THE VOTE"
T-SHIRTS
* This Program Benefits Student Voter Registration *

Gilreath Manor Condos
- on Hobart Lane -
3 Bedroom • 1½ baths • Heated Basement
New Gas Heat & Hot Water
1/2 Mile to campus • On Bus Route
Showings Start in April
for June or September Occupancy!
Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St • 253-7879

SUMMER JOBS AVAILABLE
Evening security workers wanted for Bright Moments Festival on July 14, 21, 28 for approximately 5-6 hours/shift. Limited number of additional hours available. UMass students returning in Fall only. Fine Arts Center is an AA/EO employer. Description and application available at 2 Curry Hicks.
DEADLINE MAY 6

DON'T BE LEFT OUT!
PUFFTON VILLAGE
Look What We Offer:
• 1,2, and 3 Bedroom Units
• Rents Starting from $475/Month
• Heat & Hot Water Included in Rent!
• PVTA Bus Stops in Complex

• 1/2 Mile to University, 1 1/2 Miles to Downtown Amherst
• Pool, 5 Tennis Courts & a Basketball Court On-Site!
• Our Office is Open Mon-Fri 8:30 to 4PM
Now accepting rental applications for Summer and Fall. Don't be left out of one of Amherst's best housing deals; prime location, spacious units, individual entrances, on-site parking and cable TV hook-up through Dimension Cable.
PUFFTON VILLAGE APARTMENTS • 1040 North Pleasant St., Amherst, MA
~ Resident Manager 549-0145 ~

"Take A Chance" Sale
Each Day the Discount Changes!
Take a Chance That What You Want Will Be There Tomorrow
IT'S A GAMBLE!!
• LARGE SELECTION OF MERCHANDISE •
School & Office Supplies • Art Supplies • Gifts & Posters •
Jewelry • Calculators • Computer Accessories
•SHOP EARLY FOR BEST SELECTION•
• LAST DAY FRIDAY MAY 6 •
ALL SALES FINAL
UNIVERSITY STORE
Campus Center 545-2619
Mon.-Fri. 9-5 Sat. 11-3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Sept., 1967

MICHAEL MORRISSEY Editor-in-Chief
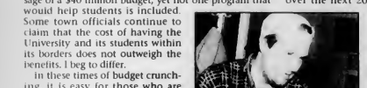
Managing Editor DARIENNE HOSLEY — MICHAEL MCRAE Business Manager
Arts & Living Editor EMILY A. MARINO — LISA JEZOWSKI Production Manager
Black Affairs Editor RODNEY POWELL — DANIELLE YANIRO Advertising Manager
Developing Nations Editor JUAN J. CHACON QUIROS — STEPHANIE SHORE Finance Manager
Editorial/Opinion Editor MIKE CARVALHO — ANDREW DAVIDSON Night Graphics Manager
Gay Lesbian Bisexual Issues Editor STEPHEN C. CAMPBELL — JIM BRUNEAU, CAITLIN OLSON Day Graphics Managers
Jewish Affairs Editor JACOB W. MICHAELS — JEREMY DAGGETT Circulation Manager
Multicultural Affairs Editor EVELYN A. DE JESUS — ERIC ABENAIM Subscriptions Manager
News Editor TRACY MORAHAN — MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI Senior Bookkeeper
Photographs Editor NATHAN MARTIN — BLAKE PHILLIPS Graphics Professional
Sports Editor ARTHUR STAPLETON III. — MARTY PAPPAS Classified Advertising
Women's Issues Editor VANESSA AMIN — TURLEY PUBLICATIONS Printing Services

113 CAMPUS CENTER BASEMENT · UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS · AMHERST, MA 01003 · (413) 545-3500 · FAX (413) 545-1592

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday–Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. Letters to the editor are encouraged and will be printed on a space-available basis. All submissions must be typed, kept to a maximum of 400 words, and should include the writer's name, address, year and major as well as a phone number for verification purposes. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length. Persons wishing to submit guest columns should contact the Editorial/Opinion editor in advance. The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily represent those of the Collegian. Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Editorial Board.



Town takes us for granted

This past Saturday, UMass students went out on a beautiful afternoon and participated in "Into Amherst, Community Service Day." Parks were cleaned up, playgrounds were built, walls were painted and garbage was picked up, all to make Amherst a better place to live.

All of these good things were reported by most of the local press, but one crucial point of the day was not, which is that Amherst saves close to $40,000 a year in labor costs to do the exact same things the students did for free.

Sure, community service is an important and gratifying thing for people to do for themselves and their neighbors. However, here in Amherst the services provided to students to help make their homes safe and gratifying are non– existent.

Amherst Town Meeting is currently debating the passage of a $40 million budget, yet not one program that would help students is included.

Matt Pavesi

Some town officials continue to claim that the cost of having the University and its students within its borders does not outweigh the benefits. I beg to differ.

In these times of budget crunching, it is easy for those who are frustrated by rising costs and shrinking funds to point the finger at the University and its students and to say that we are not doing our share in picking up the tab for the services the town provides for us, though limited they may be. I take issue with those who assert that the town bears a disproportionate burden as a result of the services it provides for the students of this community.

In contrast, the students pick up the cost for many services, programs and facilities in this community that non– student residents seem to take for granted. The following is a top ten list of contributions made directly by the students of UMass that generously subsidize the standard of living of the non–student residents of Amherst. (Note: all but a few of these actually appear on students' semesterly bills.)

10. Bright Moments, everyone's favorite annual summertime music festival, is paid for out of the Summer Activities Fee (SATF). The cost to students: $27,000.

9. Off Campus Housing (OCHO) is a referral service for landlords and tenants. The office is open to the public and landlords can list their vacancies for no charge. OCHO receives its funding through the Student Activities Fee, and this year it was budgeted at just under $100,000.

8. PVTA. Although partially subsidized by the Town of Amherst, the major bus routes that run through both sections of town are paid for each semester by a student fee. It is these buses that shuttle hundreds of students and town residents into the stores and restaurants of Amherst.

7. The volunteer firefighter program. Every year, 14 students from the University participate in this program. In exchange for housing and course credit, they serve as full– time, unpaid staff at the fire station on E. Pleasant St. The average cost of a full–time firefighter, including salary and benefits, is over $40,000, which means this program saves the town at least $500,000 to $600,000 a year.

6. The Fine Arts Center, whose board of trustees reads like a who's who of the "cultural elite" of Amherst, is subsidized by students to the tune of over $1 million a year through a $62 annual fee.

5. The Mullins Center. Half of the $61 million dollars required to build this world–class facility will be paid by a new fee that will tax students $30 million over the next 20 years. Area business owners have called this facility the best thing to happen for the Amherst economy since the construction of the next item.

4. The Campus Center, paid for by student fees, brings tens of millions of dollars into the area every year through conventions and tourism.

3. Students contribute an estimated $2.5 million directly to the town's property tax base through their rents.

2. Students spend an estimated $100 million a year in the Valley.

1. The 160 percent increase in tuition and fees over the last five years that have doubled the cost of attending UMass. Most, if not all of this money has been used to supplement the University's operating budget. Thanks to the students and their families, not a single faculty member and only a handful of staff were laid off during the budget crisis.

The point is that the non–student residents of this community are able to maintain a standard of living that ranks among the highest in the Commonwealth because of the sacrifices made by the students of UMass and their families.

And although University administrators and the Board of Trustees may seem indifferent to the needs and concerns of the community at large, the students know full well the challenges faced by the Town Meeting and the citizens of Amherst, as they have had to deal with similar problems during five years of budget cuts.

So, to my fellow students, the next time you want to sign up for Community Service Day to make Amherst a better place, think again, and ask yourselves what the Town of Amherst has done for you.

Matt Pavesi is a senior majoring in history and political science.

Let this be a time of peace

First of all, let's start with a brief history lesson. In early 1947, Great Britain controlled the area in the Middle East known as Palestine. After World War II, many Jews moved to this land, their ancient homeland of Israel. Great Britain, unsure of what to do with the land to be fair to both peoples, decided to let the UN determine what was to happen in early 1947.

The UN sent an 11–member commission to investigate the land and to determine what should be done with it. After the investigation, seven countries — Canada, Czechoslovakia, Guatemala, the Netherlands, Peru, Sweden and Uruguay — voted to partition the land into a Jewish and a Palestinian state. India, Iran and Yugoslavia voted against this plan and Australia abstained. On November 29, 1947, the UN general Assembly adopted the partition resolution with a vote of 33 to 13, with 10 abstentions.

Can we take this time to stop the hatred and fighting? The past is over and done with, and we can do nothing to change it. All that we can do is try to prevent these atrocities from ever happening again. Let's give peace a chance.

Jacob W. Michaels

On May 15, 1948, David Ben–Gurion declared the independent state of Israel. No Palestinian country was ever declared. Since that time, there have been numerous wars in the region, and Israel won land from other countries. During this time, the only Arab country to make peace with and recognize Israel was Egypt.

Recently, however, Israel and the Palestinian Liberation Organization signed a treaty in an effort to make peace with each other. These two entities had decided to put aside their recent bloodshed and try to live in peace. This effort is supposed to culminate today with the signing of a treaty that will allow Palestinians self–rule in the Gaza strip and Jericho.

Unfortunately, not everyone wants peace. People have been fighting there for a long time, and many don't think that Arabs and Jews can co–exist. It is a sad thought, but many believe it is true.

Some extremists have done their best to disrupt this peace process. Baruch Goldstein, a Jewish extremist, murdered 40 Palestinians as they prayed in their mosque in Hebron. This tragedy was condemned publicly by Israel and many other groups. Unfortunately, Goldstein's sick attempt almost succeeded. The PLO, belittling their own tragedy, pulled out of peace negotiations, trying to use this awful event to gain more concessions.

Recently, although there has been little publicity about it, people in Israel have come under attack by Muslim extremists. Israeli buses have been attacked, killing and injuring scores of people. Yet there have been no condemnations of these attacks by Yasser Arafat, the PLO, or anyone else. Fortunately, Israel did not let these attacks deter them from the peace attempt and the results shall be seen on this historic day.

So we need to stop condemning and work for the future, for peace. Jews and Muslims both have a rich history. The Jews and Muslims are both descended from one person, Abraham. The Islamic holy book, the Koran, talks about how Jews need to be protected, as they are dhimmis, or people of the book.

Can we take this time to stop the hatred and fighting? The past is over and done with, and we can do nothing to change it. All that we can do is try to prevent these atrocities to both people from ever happening again. Let's give peace a chance.

Jacob W. Michaels is the Collegian editor for Jewish affairs.

Doonesbury

Opinion

Now Bryce knows his ABCs

This has been quite an eventful semester. Here are my present thoughts, letter by letter.

A — Andrew. Doesn't my name look so good in print?

B — Beverly Hills 90210. Some are addicted to booze. Others are drug addicts. And the rest of us are addicted to 90210.

C — Clean clothes. Something I have failed to have through most of the semester.

D — Deeeeezzzzz nuts. There, I made my friend Cheese happy. Now you can stop saying it.

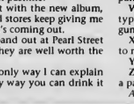
E — Elevators. How 'bout we find somebody who has a clue about how to repair an elevator around here?

F — Fifth floor toilet. You can't get much better than the ambience of this small, compact one stall bathroom. Paradise.

G — Girls. All I really want is girls' Cuz in the morning...

H — Hot Heros. One of the truly underrated sandwiches at the Dining Commons.

I — Idiot. Just carry out the word, and yell it at the top of your lungs. It works wonders.



J — John Chaney. The Temple coach popped vessels in his head screaming at John Calipari after a loss here in Amherst. Man, he said some bad words.

K — Keg–stands. An American pastime.

L — Lionel Richie. Come out with the new album, Lionel. The people at the record stores keep giving me funny looks when I ask when it's coming out.

M — Meristem. Check this band out at Pearl Street tomorrow night. Like Fugazi, they are well worth the price of admission ($5).

N — Narragansett beer. The only way I can explain the taste is to say this: the only way you can drink it is to funnel it.

Andrew Bryce

O — One. I have recleved just one A in my two years of college. I don't mean to brag, but I'm pretty proud of myself.

P — Peephole. If I end up moving off campus, this is one of the components of dorm life I am truly going to miss.

Q — Quadrophonic Blaunpunkt. "You don't need a quadrophonic blaunpunkt, what you need is a curveball." — Crash Davis (to the clueless, see Bull Durham).

R — Rummy. The most addictive card game this side of John Adams Tower.

S — Study. "Ah, the test is on Thursday... I'll study Wednesday night."

T — Toilet paper. Could also be placed under S for sand paper.

U — Underwear. My roommate's girlfriend took it upon herself to actually put her hands into my abandoned laundry basket to wash my dirty clothes — which included my underwear. I admire you for your courage, Carly.

V — Video arcade. The day Mortal Kombat II arrived at the arcade was supposedly similar to the day of a New Kids On the Block concert. People flocked to the arcade to get just a glimpse of the video game. Teenage girls shrieked and wept. It was sheer pandemonium.

W — Where In the World Is Carmen San Diego? The type of show that makes it alright to skip class, gumshoes.

X — X is such a preposterous letter that I am going to refrain from using it in a word.

Y — Yellow Sticker Queen. You know who you are.

Z — Zima. A guy gave me a warm Zima last week at a party. It was gross.

Andrew Bryce is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Vote for candidates, not their skin color

To the editor:

This letter is in response to Martin F. Jones and his recent article concerning the GSS election (Collegian, April 28, p. 5).

Mr. Jones, I have read many, if not all of your Collegian articles, and I must say that I am truly disgusted and annoyed by your writings. The crime of racism and discrimination you accuse "all whites" of is exactly the same crime you, Mr. Jones, are guilty of.

You encouraged people not to vote for Saliba, Delle, Laliberte and Hermer simply because it would result in an "all–white" cabinet. Did it ever occur to you that they may be a well–qualified and capable group of persons?

It should not matter what color or race the candidates are, nor should it, in any way, alter our vote. We should vote for who would best perform the job they are elected for, be it an "all–white" or multicultural group of persons.

Your logic and rationale is the reason why racism and discrimination still exists today. The wall of hate that many of us are trying to break down is constantly being reinforced by ignorant individuals like yourself.

So please, my friend, practice what you preach — you may just learn something.

Jane Oh
Journalism, junior

This senior won't be attending reception

To the editor:

An open letter to Chancellor David K. Scott:

I am writing to you in regards to your invitation for the senior reception that you and your wife are having. There are a few reasons why I am not going to attend.

I know who you are, but do you know who I am? I am a senior communications major, and I cannot recall you once ever coming into any of my classes to say, "Hi. I'm your chancellor. How's everything going?"

There are several senior–only classes, so you could have at least done that. My belief is that a truly caring chancellor at a large university would want to be involved with his or her students.

The second reason I will not be attending is because of your recent actions. They were absolutely disgusting and unacceptable. Politics is written all over your face.

I am not going to go on forever about your actions, because I'm sure you've already heard it all. Besides, you're probably not even reading this letter, but your secretary is instead.

The firings of those three people, especially Vice Chancellor Samuel Conti, make you look bad as a person and a disgrace as a chancellor.

I am sure that my absence from your reception will not be noticed by you, but perhaps you will notice the absence of any donations to the University while you are still chancellor.

Daniel D. Gittlesohn
Communication studies, senior

Letters to the Editor

There are many issues on the University of Massachusetts campus which have come into the forefront and which need to be discussed. Among them:

- President Richard M. Nixon's death, his life and his legacy
- The UMass phone system
- Abortion rights
- The removal of three vice chancellors by Chancellor David Scott
- U.S. and NATO policy in Bosnia
- Democratic elections in South Africa
- Caning as punishment in Singapore

If you have opinions on these or any other issue of interest to the UMass campus, we want to hear from you.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian welcomes and encourages letters to the editor. When writing, please type your letter and keep it to a maximum of 400 words.

Guest columns will sometimes be accepted, but writers should check with the editor before submitting anything longer than a standard letter. Drop us a line, stop by the office or call 545-3491.

All letters should include a name, address and phone number (for verification purposes only). Students should also include their year and major. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length.

Send all letters to 'Letters to the Editor' c/o the Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass.

by Garry Trudeau

Multicultural Affairs

The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers and do not necessarily reflect those of the Collegian.

Exploring Tanzania

Mohamed Ladha

In the northern Tanzania, out of the dusty bush of Maasai Steppe stands a gorgeous mountain: Mount Kilimanjaro.

This is the highest mountain in Africa and one of the largest dormant volcanoes that exist in the world. It is amazing to see that within its habitat we find a differential environmental changes as one person goes form the bottom of the mountain to the top. it is like climbing from the equatorial rain forest to North pole.

It takes about 3 to 3 1/2 days to climb the mountain. With the great height of 19,340 and 180 mils west for the coast, it exists as a great pride for Tanzanians.

The mountain has two peaks, Kibo and Mawenzi. On such a high mountain, the climate varies considerably. The southern slopes receive most of the rainfall.

Well, I don't want to get into a lot of detail about this climatic differences. I will just give a small brief description from a climber's experience.

I have climbed the mountain several different times. The busiest climbing season is between November and late February.

At this time, it is peak summer and the weather is warmer and clearer.

From the staring point at Marangu, most of the arrangements for guides, perter food and water must be made. From Marangu Village, the road for climbing the mountain begins. There is a trail that leads in to the dense rain forest. The luxurious foliage forms a dense canopy and only occasionally sunshine breaks through the forest.

The forest is quiet, but you can hear the noise of streams, small animals and birds. The first hut, Mandara is at 8,943 feet.

There is a crater neatby called Maundi. You can get a clear zone view over the thick forest on the slopes. The water is cool and clear and the huts are comfortable.

The next day trip begins with going into the tropical savanna land. With long brass you get a better view of the two peaks Kibo and Mawenzi.

This trip is much more pleasant and easy to cover before you reach the second hut. After five hours, seven and a half miles of walking you arrive in Horombo.

The Horombo hut is located at 12,405 feet. Within this climb, you go through a magnificent ecosystem. As you approach the hut, the landscape starts changing.

It becomes more rocky and rugged. The altitude is not felt. Just before the hut, you pass though ridges and ravines. It starts also getting cold now. A night's sleep does you well.

Next morning, you start your journey to the last hut at the foot of Kibo. This takes about six hours to cover about eight miles.

Now you really start feeling the altitude. After a few miles, you pass trough the last water point

The landscape looks barren with few shrubs here and there. After a steep hill, the area opens out onto the alpine dessert. You pass trough a saddle between the two peaks.

I found this part of the climbing experience the most difficult.

There is nothing but rocks and no shade. It makes you feel real good once you see the last hut. After reaching Kibo hut, a long nap is well advised.

At midnight, the last part of the journey starts. This takes five hours. The group of climbers assisted with guide start the last ascent of 3,300 feet to peak Uhuru peak. You do not see the sunrise until climbing this part.

Half way up is the large overhang called Hans Meyers cave. You already started seeing snow at Kibo hut but now it is more and more. Next stop in Gillman's point on the crater of Kibo at the summit of Kilimanjaro at 18,640 feet.

Some then pursue to go even further 700 feet to reach Uhuru peak, at 19,340 feet, which takes an hour walk.

Having reached the peak, the experience and efforts seem worthwhile and the descent becomes exhilarating. Fatigue no longer matters.

Mohamed Ladha is a microbiology and third world development countries studies third year student at Hampshire College. He is from Tanzania.

Cuba accepts economic reforms

Assembly gives Castro free hand to enact changes

By JOHN RICE
Associated Press

HAVANA — Cuba's parliament on Monday gave President Fidel Castro a free hand to enact some of the most dramatic economic reforms since the 1959 revolution, but Castro vowed Cuba would hold fast to its socialist path.

The special National Assembly session endorsed a blue print for austerity measures that are to be imposed later by government decree. With inflation tearing at the savings and salaries of ordinary Cubans, the deputies approved measures once considered incompatible with Cuba's socialist system.

Prices on some services, such as electricity, would be raised for the first time since the revolution. Cubans might have to pay for some things, such as school lunches, for the first time since the 1960s.

The more than 550 Assembly members authorized Castro's government to take any measures necessary to eliminate a huge budget deficit, cut subsidies to money-losing state companies and impose income taxes — though it ruled out taxes on salaries of state workers.

Lawmakers authorized the study of a possible new currency and a possible freeze on bank accounts.

"We confront a world totally dominated. . . by capitalism," Castro said as he closed the two-day session. "We have to adapt many things to the realities of this world without renouncing our ideas."

The government, he said, "is defending to the last atom the ideas of socialism."

Castro has vowed to maintain the heart of Cuba's socialist system: universal employment, health care and education.

Castro won his longest applause when he announced that the first measure would be a decree allowing authorities to confiscate the goods of those who gain riches illegally. Lawmakers had demanded a crackdown on black marketeers.

Assembly members approved proposals to control the flow of foreign currency, legalized last year, and to raise prices for cigarettes, alcoholic beverages, workplace meals, electric and water services and transporation.

Cuba's economy nearly collapsed along with the trade and aid it depended upon from the now-vanished Soviet bloc. Factories closed by the hundreds. With gasoline scarce, the streets have been tangled with bicycles.

"To assure fuel each day for transport and agriculture is an agony," said Castro, who noted that some farm workers now labor without shoes

The black market value of the peso is a penny while its official value is $1. Most Cuban make less than 200 pesos a month - enough to buy seven packs of cigarettes on the black market.

Finance Minister Jose Luis Rodriguez suggested freezing bank accounts, which hold about 60 percent of private savings, and forcing Cubans to change dollars for government certificates before spending them in order to keep dollars off the black market.

He said some workers might be given rights to shop in pesos at specially supplied stores in order to give more incentives to work and to boost the value of the currency.

More than 550 members of the 589-member Assembly met for the debate in the Palace of Conventions for the first session since December. The meeting was closed to foreign reporters, but portions were broadcast by state radio.

The assembly was elected in February of last year. All members ran unopposed.

States sue for immigration costs

By WILLIAM F. RAWSON
Associated Press

PHOENIX — Arizona became the latest state Monday to sue the federal government for the cost of imprisoning illegal aliens, demanding more than $121 million.

The amount represents what Arizona should have received under a 1986 federal law requiring that the U.S. government reimburse states for costs of incarcerating illegal aliens, said state Attorney General Grant Woods, whose office filed the lawsuit. "Our position is that for them not to follow the law here and not to reimburse really puts an unfair burden on states like Arizona," Woods said.

Arizona says it is owned the $121 million for incarcerating 1,700 illegal aliens convicted of felonies.

California filed a similar lawsuit Friday asking for $377 million to cover the cost of incarcerating about 16,700 illegal aliens and $1.6 billion more to pay for the prisons that house them.

Florida also filed a similar complaint earlier this year. New York plans to file a lawsuit in a few weeks focusing on education and health care costs of illegal immigration, and Texas and New Jersey are considering joining Florida's lawsuit.

Florida's complaint also seeks compensation for other immigration-related costs, such as health care, welfare and education. Both California and Arizona officials have said they plan to amend their complaints to cover those issues as well. "Strategically, we decided it would be best to file a series of suits instead of one jumbo suit," said Kurt Davis, an aide to Gov. Fife Symington.

Woods said it was possible the courts would eventually consolidate all of the lawsuits.

President Clinton has asked Congress for $350 million to help ease the burden on states with large populations of illegal immigrants, but Symington said that isn't nearly enough.

Violence mars Dominican vote

By RICARDO ROJAS
Associated Press

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic — Gunmen repeatedly attacked an opposition party caravan traveling to a party meeting, killing two people and injuring 20, police said Monday.

A third person who witnessed one of the Sunday attacks from his balcony died of a heart attack, Police Col. Jacinto Tejada said.

The opposition Dominican Revolutionary Party's presidential candidate, Jose Francisco Pena Gomez, who is leading in the polls, on Sunday night urged President Joaquin Balaguer to put a stop to election-related violence.

Pena Gomez's Revolutionary Party said the governing Social Christian Reform Party "should understand and relay to its militants that the voters' political preferences are not going to change through aggression and intimidation."

Manuel Amesquita, a leader of the governing party, denied his party's involvement.

The caravan was attacked four times Sunday afternoon as it traveled 30 miles south from the north-central city of Santiago to La Vega, in the center of the Dominican Republic.

Twenty people were arrested and were being questioned about the attacks, said Tejada, the police colonel.

The latest incidents bring to 10 the number of people killed in campaign-related violence.

Balaguer, 87 years old and blind, has been president for all but six of the past 26 years. The election is May 16.

A Gallup poll of 1,800 registered voters done April 7-11 indicated that Pena Gomez, a former mayor of Santo Domingo, was leading by 6 points, 39.3 percent to Balaguer's 33 percent, down from polls last month that showed him as much as 12 points ahead. A separate poll commissioned by the magazine Rumbo showed Pena Gomez leading 33 percent to Balaguer's 27 percent. The survey of 1,000 voters was done by the British firm, Rapon, April 13-18. Both polls have a 3 percent margin of error.

The other candidates trailing the pair are former presidents Juan Bosch of the Dominican Liberation Party and Jacobo Maljuta, and Antonio Reynoso, a Roman Catholic priest.

President Clinton keeps threatening with militarization in Haiti

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Clinton administration is reviving the idea of dispatching military trainers to Haiti as part of a plan to professionalize the Haitian military, U.S. officials said today.

A previous such attempt ended in failure last October when President Clinton ordered the vessel carrying military personnel to retreat after a gang of armed, pro-military demonstrators protested on the dock in Port-au-Prince. On board the vessel were more than 200 trainers and construction workers.

Clinton, keeping alive the threat of U.S. military action in Haiti, said today, "I'm not ruling out any option." He said Haiti's military rulers should get the message: "It's time for them to go."

The officials, who asked not to be identified by name, said that if the plan is revived, the means of dispatching the troops will be altered considerably to avoid a repeat of the debacle last fall. One possibility would be to fly the trainers in piecemeal to an air base in Haiti, the officials said.

They added that Army chief Raoul Cedras has not been approached about the proposal. Cedras had given his consent to the earlier attempt at deploying trainers six months ago.

The officials stressed that sending in military trainers would come only after progress had been made on restoring democracy. "You've got to keep the two issues separate," said one official. "The U.N. mission would be a training mission. The first step is to get the military leadership out and begin the restoration of democracy and we hope to do that through the sanctions. But we have not ruled out other options. That's separate from the training mission," the official said.

According to the officials, the administration also is working with the United Nations on ways to tighten sanctions along Haiti's border with the Dominican Republic, where oil supplies are filtering through in violation of the embargo against Haiti. The officials said the U.N. Security Council may eventually authorize monitors to keep an eye on Dominican military enforcement of the embargo.

Clinton said the first step is to tighten economic sanctions on Haiti to bring pressure on the forces that ousted democratically elected President Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

"The military leaders of Haiti have abused their authority," Clinton said, pausing briefly to talk with reporters as he left the White House for a foreign policy speech in Atlanta.

It remains unclear whether signs of increased administration attention to the military option mark a turning point, or whether they are merely intended to scare Haiti's generals into surrendering power.

In any case, the focus this week is on the United Nations, where the administration is pushing for tightened international sanctions against Haiti.

Clinton said Haiti's military leaders are killing innocent civilians who are not involved in political life. He said the United States and the rest of the world are outraged.

"And we've tried other initiatives and they have not worked," the president acknowledged. "We have done our best to work through this and the things we have done have not worked, so we are now doing this sanctions regime as recommended by President Aristide and others.

"But we're not ruling out anything."

Invoking Al Gore's 1992 campaign slogan about the Bush administration, Clinton said the same message now applies to Haiti's military rules. "It's time for them to go."

Anthony Lake, Clinton's national security adviser, said the new sanctions would be much stronger and would be targeted specifically at Haiti's military leaders.

"We believe they will have a significant impact on them," said Lake, who accompanied Clinton.

"We are very serious about it," Lake said. "These are going to be very, very serious sanctions."

Meanwhile, former President Bush said it's time for "a significant shift in U.S. policy towards Haiti," including abandoning support for the return of Aristide.

Bush, quoted in today's editions of the Houston Chronicle, said it would be "a tremendous mistake" for the Clinton administration to use military action to restore democracy in Haiti.

"I certainly could not support the use of U.S. troops under existing conditions in Haiti," he said. "No U.S. lives are at risk in Haiti today."

White House Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers was asked today if the public would be told in advance of the likelihood of military action.

"That's a little far down the way, but we always said we'll act consistent with the War Powers in terms of notifying Congress — just as a general statement. But it's too soon to talk about what we'll do for preparation for military action," she said.

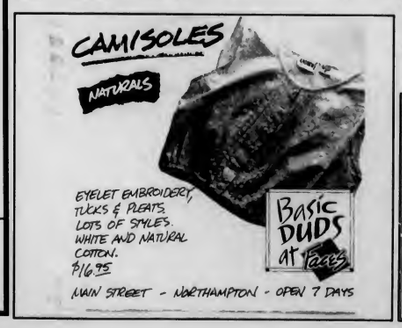
According to some analysts, If tightened sanctions fail to dislodge the Haitian leaders, military force may be the only way to spare the Haitian people a humanitarian nightmare even more severe than the one they are experiencing now.

Summer Health Coverage - 1994

Coverage Period: June 1, 1994 - August 31, 1994
(if enrolled by 6/1/94)

Basic Health Fees: $188.50

Student Family Plan Fees: $424.00



Visit the Member Services Department located in the front lobby for enrollment - 549-2671, x192.

Eligibility: Amherst, Hampshire, Mount Holyoke, Smith and UMass students.
(only UMass students with Basic and SHBP are eligible for the Student Family Plan)

University Health Services / University of Massachusetts, Amherst

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

STUDENT TRAVEL
1-800-777-0112
STA TRAVEL

BANANARAMA
fabulous frozen YOGURT
NONFAT SOFT FROZEN YOGURT
GREAT TOPPINGS BAR
NONFAT YOGURT BIRTHDAY PIES
Call for Flavors • 253-2774
One Boltwood Walk (down the alley), Amherst

Arts & Living

A semester battle ends

•He said: some people just didn't get the true point

By CUTTER GARCIA
Collegian Staff

Three and a half months ago I came up with an idea that I thought might be some fun. After having lived here in the P.C. wasteland we call the University of Massachusetts for the past five years and seeing what a negative effect that way of thinking can have on the exploration of opposing viewpoints, I decided to try and throw a little grist into the mill to see what would happen.

I approached Emily Marino, friend and distinguished editor of the Arts & Living section, and pitched her an idea. I proposed that we write a column which would focus on the issues which seem to polarize men and women everywhere. I would write from the stereotypical, meathead-ed, archaic right — and she from the tight fisted, overly sensitive left. Then we could sit back and wait to see what effect our opinions had once tossed upon the masses. I thought it would be fun.

But then again, so did Dr. Frankenstein.

When the series started it was easy to take pot shots at women and the stereotypes so commonly associated with them. An overt barb here, a well placed demeaning crack there and topped off with just enough raucous sexist terms to make it interesting.

It was comedy, it was supposed to be funny. It was meant to get people talking about things in the hopes that they'd either manage to find some middle ground on the issues through dissection and discussion or kill each other as they clawed and scratched their ways towards proving their individual opinions were the right ones. Regardless of the outcome one thing would be accomplished — people would have been educated towards new point of views. And maybe had a little chuckle along the way. Heh, heh, heh.

What originally started out as a fun little column idea quickly became a sociological study for me. I got to witness some of the effects that He Said/She Said had on the readers and was amazed at what I found.

I found that there are a lot of really confused men out there. Men who would shake my hand and congratulate me on, "writing the gospel" and "speaking the truth for us all." These people woke me up a little bit and showed me a piece of the male spectrum that I'd always just thought of as fiction. I realized that there are still a lot of old time thought patterns being handed down from father to son and will most likely be passed on once again.

I found that it takes a certain level of intelligence to read these pieces and realize that there is a thing whole new perspective.

But difference is not the only thing that you learn from living in such close, coed quarters. You might discover that there are some things completely unaffected by gender.

You probably notice that everybody freaks about exams, mopes about lost love, debates the best place to order pizza, complains about the fact that the heat is cranked up right through May, and, despite the ups and downs of "OUR" State University, feels a rush of pride each time the basketball team sets foot on the court.

This revelation was what made it so difficult to do this column — the impossibility of making general statements that represent the entire male population at UMass. Clearly, not every guy who went away for spring break was looking to get laid (and many definitely didn't, right Garcia?), nor does every guy like to do keg stands, hate shopping and approach sex like a dog in heat. I won't pretend that these guys aren't out there, though.

Likewise, I can't think of any woman with whom I choose to spend time that exemplifies the gum-snapping, hair- spraying, eyelash-batting creature portrayed in most of his columns; but I know they exist.

Turn to HE SAID, page 7

•She said: Men, women still have a lot to learn

By EMILY MARINO
Collegian Staff

Well, here it is, the final frontier of the battle of the sexes. The last installment of our column will serve as an explanation of some of the reasons we set out to do this, and of a few things that we learned along the way. It should also explain why exploring the differences between men and women is not easy.

Why did we feel that it was important to examine everyday issues from the his and her points of view? Simply put; men and women tend to approach certain social situations differently. Part of being in college, I feel, is learning from one another, and from our differences, whatever they may be.

Unless you grew up with siblings or friends of the opposite sex (which I did), college may be your first immersion into the world of difference presented by hanging out with men or women so extensively. From the first few days of living next door to, and maybe even sharing bathrooms with members of the opposite sex, life changes.

Up-close, constant exposure — from sleepy hallway exchanges ("'hey, what's up?' I can't believe he just saw my hair like this") to hooking up with neighbors ("'She's cute, but I don't fish off the company pier.' Man, I wonder if she's home, maybe I'll drop by.") puts the wonders of the opposite sex into a

But difference is not the only thing that you learn from living in such close, coed quarters. You might discover that there are some things completely unaffected by gender.

You probably notice that everybody freaks about exams, mopes about lost love, debates the best place to order pizza, complains about the fact that the heat is cranked up right through May, and, despite the ups and downs of "OUR" State University, feels a rush of pride each time the basketball team sets foot on the court.

This revelation was what made it so difficult to do this column — the impossibility of making general statements that represent the entire male population at UMass. Clearly, not every guy who went away for spring break was looking to get laid (and many definitely didn't, right Garcia?), nor does every guy like to do keg stands, hate shopping and approach sex like a dog in heat. I won't pretend that these guys aren't out there, though.

Likewise, I can't think of any woman with whom I choose to spend time that exemplifies the gum-snapping, hair- spraying, eyelash-batting creature portrayed in most of his columns; but I know they exist.

Turn to SHE SAID, page 7

The Favor, Serial Mom highlight disasterous moviegoing week

ASSOCIATED PRESS
Kathleen Turner

THE REEL WORLD
by Jon Lupo

I haven't had this bad a movie weekend since I saw The Crush, Jack the Bear and Cop and a Half within 24 hours of each other a couple of semesters back. (After that trifecta of crap, I realized I needed to take a deep breath and watch Citizen Kane over and over again until my faith in movies was restored.)

Needless to say, I've been watching a lot of Rosebud recently.

The Favor and Serial Mom couldn't be more opposite — one is a limp romantic comedy that tries for screwball and ends up without any balls and the other is a desperate-to-be- wacky satire that grinds its one-joke premise into the ground before the opening credits finish. And yet, despite their dissimilarities, they share one thing in common ... they're not funny.

The Favor was made about four years ago, evidenced by a boyish, pre-Thelma & Louise Brad Pitt saddled in a tiny supporting role. (The film was another casualty of Orion Pictures' financial woes and is only being now being released.)

As directed by Grumpy Old Men's Donald Petri, The Favor attempts to turn the tables on the sexy (but safe) screwball genre by giving the two lead actresses (Elizabeth McGovern and Parenthood-vet Harley Jane Kosak) liberal sexualities. Kosak's sexual fantasies are given life here, especially those involving the unresolved (and unconsummated) affair she had in high school (now played by Ken Wahl). She can't act on them, mainly because she's in a loving marriage with Bill Pullman. That's where McGovern comes in.

McGovern is involved with artist Pitt, and the pair have a rocky union,' especially because McGovern doesn't want to commit. When McGovern goes on a business trip to Chicago (where Wahl now lives), Kosak begs her friend to do her a favor: sleep with Wahl and end the suspense.

That sound you hear is the film's credibility smashing to the ground.

The Favor limps along in its own obnoxiously precocious manner; the jokes go thud, the plot contorts into a painfully protracted bedroom farce, the characters smile as if what they're saying is funny in a parallel movie universe. It's just uncomfortable to watch: sad, uninspired, boring.

To hate a film like this would be easier if only the actors weren't so appealing. Kosak is fine, though even she can't rise above some of the lame stunts her character's fantasy life demands.

It's movies like this that made the once-hot Elizabeth McGovern a has-been. In a hairdo that screams '80s, McGovern seems game, but loses in the end. So does UMass alum Bill Pullman. Classy n' dopey in Sleepless in Seattle, Pullman musters up enough charm to keep a straight face, but by the time he has to strut through the house playing jazz on a harmonica, you won't care. Only Brad Pitt manages to come out unscathed, although it's clear he's coasting on the considerable staying power of his killer blue eyes.

As for Serial Mom, the new comedy from gross-out king John Waters, coasting seems an appropriate theme to continue. All one-joke posturing, Waters turns in a tame, unoriginal and flat as a day-old can of ginger ale comedy. Gone are the delectable yucks of Divine eating dog-doo or the witty kitsch of Hairspray or even the J.D. hijinks of Cry Baby. Waters has been sadly Hollywood-ized.

Aiming at targets so soft the satirical arrows bounce off, Waters skews the fallacy of the American family and our society's perverse fascination with serial killers. Casting Kathleen Turner as the perfect psycho mom may have been a good idea on paper, but not even Turner's considerable talents can make this dog hunt.

You see, while mom is all apple-pie and rainbows on the outside, the secretly places harassing phone calls to a neighbor who once cut her off in a parking lot, runs over her son's teacher when he criticizes his progress and beats a woman with a leg of lamb after she doesn't rewind the movies she rented at the video store. If all of this sounds pretty funny, imagine what it takes to make it ho-hum and predictable.

All of this may have once been shocking, but in this day and age, it's all become pop-culture cliche. Waters needs a nastier sense of humor if he wants to compete with the real- life trashy nihilism that thrives in today's headlines.

With such a high level of big-screen banality reigning today, it makes this weary film critic pine quietly for the oncoming summer movie season, even if more stupid are bound to crop up. Suddenly, The Flintstones is starting to look inspired.

The Favor: D; Serial Mom: C– (Hampshire Six)
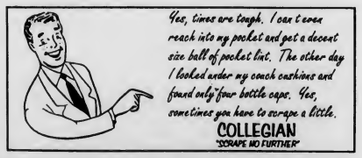
Jon Lupo is the Collegian film associate.

Lincoln Real Estate
has the best selection of 1, 2, & 3 bedroom Uptown Apartments with Gas Heat.
• We begin showing apartments in April and May for June or September Occupancy.
253-7879 • 25 N. Pleasant St.

FOR 26 WAYS to help save the EARTH CALL 1-800-488-8887.
Earth Share

College Pro Painters
Get a tan painting this summer
Positions available all across New England. Great Pay! Call 1-800-346-4649

GOOD USED - CLOTHING - RECEIVE 50% OFF By presenting this Ad Special good through May Orange tags excluded
SALVATION ARMY THRIFT STORE 253-4747
159 No. Pleasant St. Behind Rens Mobil Amherst (Parking in Rear)



College Students
Would 100% Free Tuition Put a Smile on Your Face?
That's right! The Massachusetts Army National Guard offers 100% Free Tuition for state colleges and universities in Massachusetts. The commitment is only about one weekend a month and two weeks a year. And there's more.
You'll receive up to $6,800 in education assistance with the Montgomery GI Bill and you'll earn a salary over your six-year enlistment.
You'll receive job skills training in technical fields such as electronics, communications, or computers and have the adventure of your life!
Let your local Massachusetts Army National Guard recruiter put a smile on your face today.
CALL: 413-586-8681/8682
OR 1-800-322-1338
MASSACHUSETTS ARMY GUARD
Americans At Their Best.
The Army National Guard is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

THE PUB
26 YEARS 1968-1994
Fun, Food & Spirits
TONIGHT
SETTIE
Any Menu Nachos Only $2.00
9:30-10:30
15 EAST PLEASANT-AMHERST

TIES
J•RICH CLOTHING FOR MEN
191 N. Pleasant St., Amherst • 253-3013
22 Masonic St., Northampton • 586-8150
Open 7 days • Thursday nites in Northampton

AHORA
PROUDLY PRESENTS
GILBERTO SANTA ROSA Y SU ORQUESTA
A SEMI-FORMAL SALSA DANCE
THURSDAY, MAY 5, 1994
8:30 PM
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
UMASS AMHERST
$13.00 Five College Students
$15.00 General Public
Tickets on sale at:
The Fine Arts Center Box Office, and TIX Unlimited at the Student Union.

STEINBECK COLLISION REPAIR & AUTOBODY
53 So. Prospect - Amherst Center
256-8157 • 256-1385
• Imports & other unibody vehicles are our specialty.
• State of the art equipment for precision frame and unibody straightening (+or-1/2mm)
• Over 90 years staff experience.
• Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass replacement.
• Advanced European Technology Painting and Refinishing Systems.
• User of Sikkens paint products
Remember it's your car and your choice of repair facilities.
Shop Registration # RS1212

Iron Horse atmosphere the perfect venue for local acts

By JOSHUA BOYD
Collegian Staff

Bud Collins & Electric Noodle Factory
Iron Horse Music Hall
May 1, 1994

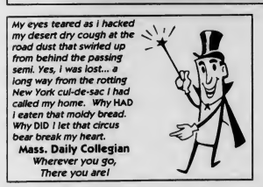
Who here has been to the Iron Horse on any night? I'm sure there's enough of you to fill up at least The Curry Hicks Cage. If you have been there, you were probably ushered to your table and offered the menu. I didn't expect this at my first show at the Iron Horse. But I did indeed like it. The dim mellow lighting with those little candles on every table and that completely small stage in front of you all blend together for a place that makes you think of a Beatnik poetry reading. That's probably why lots of jazz musicians play there. Hmm.

The bands on tonight, Wolfgang, who opened with quite an impressive set, but who were dwarfed by the two more prominent acts, Electric Noodle Factory and Connecticut's own Bud Collins permeated through the chilled-out mood.

As always, the Factory, consisting of keyboardist/vocalist Pete Fernandez, guitarist Dave Stoup, bassist Steven Sneider and new drummer Dan McPadden, generated their whirling, Zappa-esque funk. The early part of their set, they seemed to play slightly below their potential but balanced it out at the end with an amazing medley of Traffic's "Low Sparks Of High-Heeled Boys" into The Beatles' "I Want You."

The set, with originals like "Cow Funk", featured great keyboard solos from Fernandez, who spent most of the time almost crouched over his keyboard with a digestive look on his face.

Combining funk, reggae, jazz, T.V. shows, and, dare I say it, fusion (if there is such a thing), the quintet Bud Collins played their set to the crowd like an unwrapped gift. Playing songs from their two albums on the Northeast Records label, the newest of which is called Conspiracy A Go Go, the former University of Connecticut students played a largely mixed set.



Bassist Jake Tamarakin trotted his fingers all over his fretboard, sometimes eliciting brilliantly hidden rhythms and other times twanging his strings, letting out zany sounds. The band seemed to follow laws of Jazz Theory in their arrangements, but applying George Clinton's Funk Philosophies. Pat Guiney, guitarist and vocalist, played solos using all sorts of silly guitar effects and when he sang his voice rang of sounds reminiscent to the B-52's Fred Schneider, but not as sadly ridiculous.

With the other members, Mike Ryan on clarinet, Chris Weinland on drums and vocals, and Chris Duers, guitar and vocals (sporting a green cast on his leg), all doodled away at their unique brand of Lounge Funk.

Attention Arts & Living Staff Members and Correspondants

Boo-Boo Says...
There will be a staff meeting to meet and hear the candidates for next semester's Arts & Living Editor position. Make your vote an educated one.
So be in the Collegian Newsroom today at 5:30 pm.
Why should you go?
For one thing, you want to know who you're voting for.
Besides, Boo-Boo said so, could you say no to this face?

FOR 26 WAYS to help save the EARTH CALL 1-800-488-8887.
Ad Council
A Public Service of This Publication
Earth Share

■ he said

continued from page 6

called parody working here. And I was delighted to meet so many people, especially women people, who had this gift of intelligence at their disposal and therefore could see it for what it was worth. To the majority of you out there who were able to read with a grin, put the paper down and then go on with your lives without feeling the urge to take over a building or Bobbitize me — thank you. And consider yourselves better prepared to deal with the real world when you get out there. Sometimes a laugh can help you get up life's hills a lot easier than a cross strapped to your back.

The most disturbing thing I found was that there seem to be a lot of people out there who are unequipped with enough intelligence to view the whole because their minds stop processing information at specific points.

These people, the very same who champion freedom of speech when it applies to their specific agendas are the very same who were ready to tell me that those same parts of the constitution didn't apply to me, this column or this page when the ideas presented within it didn't coincide with their own.

So to them I also say thank you. Thank you for showing me and everyone else the magnitude of your ignorance. And while I found myself wanting to throttle you at times for displaying your idiocies with such reckless abandon, I realized that my anger and your pinheadedness were in direct correlation to achieving the purpose of this whole damn thing from the outset. So thank you. Thank you very, very much for helping me to complete my original objective and for embarrassing yourselves in the process.

This world is a scary enough place already without having to worry about men and women trying to kill each other over differing opinions. I love women. I love the way they look. I love the ways their individualities, quirks, presence and being can draw out in me things I try to hide or are unaware of. And mostly I just love them because I think that they are inherently better creatures capable of communicating in ways completely foreign to men, yet residing deep down within us all.

I love women. But I don't love them them all. And that's okay — because I'm fairly certain that out there somewhere, under a rock or deep within the bowels of some lost jungle tribe, there might be a woman or two who don't love me (though the chances, I'm sure, are bleak). So as long as that possibility exists we should explore all the opposing views.

In the words of James William Fulbright who served as the President of the University of Arkansas from 1939 — 1941 then as Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee; "We must dare to think 'unthinkable' thoughts. We must learn to explore all the options and possibilities that confront us in a complex and rapidly changing world. We must learn to welcome and not fear the voices of dissent. We must dare to think about 'unthinkable things' because when things become unthinkable, thinking stops and action becomes mindless."

At least that's what He Said.

■ she said

continued from page 6

Possibly the scariest result of printing some of these notions is the response we have gotten from readers, who failed to notice the often satiric tone that the column took on. We have received letters from guys who love him, who agree with his philosophy of the superiority of THE MAN. We learned that Joe Meathead really does exist.

At the same time, there were negative responses from men and women who found him to be juvenile and ignorant. Some just thought he was funny.

From her perspective, most of his less eloquent perceptions and statements for those that were simply stupid) were best combatted by reason. While his arguably offensive comments about women and oral sex heated the page, her focus was on the complexity of sexual relations, and tried not to limit the realm to heterosexual rapport.

Through all of our bantering and mud-slinging, we tried to create some kind of balance that aimed more to present the issues by acknowledging the stereotypes head-on, than to promote those same generalizations.

Unfortunately, some readers chose to listen more to the voice than to the message, constituting a major obstacle that blocks communication between men and women — we don't listen to each other.

Hopefully, you have enjoyed reading He Said, She Said as much as we've enjoyed writing it. And for those of you who have wondered if Garcia and I are dating — dummy up, will ya!

USE A LITTLE RESTRAINT WITH YOUR KIDS.

Yes, it's always a fine day for a barbeque. Ahh nothing like the hot coals to cause a man to break down in a fit of hysterical crying. "WHY DIDN'T I LISTEN TO MY MOTHER AND BECOME A DOG GROOMER!!!"
COLLEGIAN
NEVER TOO LATE TO CHANGE

Immigration Law
Hans & Curran, P.C.
30 Years of Experience in Immigration Law
1183 Main Street Springfield, MA 781-6870 | 13 Old South St. Northampton, MA 584-3232 | 50 Congress St. Boston, MA (617) 722-0043
Free Consultation for Five College Students/Faculty

1-4 Bedrom Houses & Apartments
Most on Bus Route
Amherst & Surrounding Communities
Free Landlord Referral Service
D. H. JONES
15A Pray St. (2nd Floor)
Amherst, MA 01002
549-7757 • 8:30am - 5:00pm M-F

SCERA Job Openings
Fall, 1994
SCERA Legislative Organizer
6 Credits and/or $5.50 per hour work-study pay. 20 hours per week.
POSSIBLE DUTIES:
Organize legislative district teams of undergraduates
Develop and distribute literature
Outreach to parents, alumni, and other friends of UMASS
Act as liaison with state legislature
MINIMUM QUALIFICATIONS:
University of Massachusetts student status
Experience with legislative issues or activities
Commitment and enthusiasm to improve the quality of life of undergraduate students
SCERA Campus Organizer
6 Credits and/or $5.50 per hour work-study pay. 20 hours per week.
POSSIBLE DUTIES:
Conduct research
Organize educational forums
Develop and distribute literature
Conduct door-to-door mobilization
Outreach to parents, alumni, and other friends of UMASS
Coordinate media efforts
MINIMUM QUALIFICATION:
University of Massachusetts student status
Experience with student organizing, activism, or government
Commitment and enthusiasm to improve the quality of undergraduate students
WHAT IS SCERA?
SCERA is the research and advocacy arm of the Student Government Association and, under the direction of the SCERA BOARD, assists the Student Government Association in working for a campus environment that maximizes the University's resources to meet the self-identified needs of its students. SCERA does this by soliciting undergraduate student feedback about the primary issues of concern, and then providing training, education, organization, and mobilization assistance to the student body in addressing these concerns.
TO APPLY!
Come to Room 420 Student Union and fill out an application.
Deadline is Monday, May 9 @ 5:00 p.m.
For more information please contact Dr. Marc Kenen, SCERA Director or Lynn Robitaille, SCERA Student Coordinator @ 545-0355.

UMass Summer Session 1994
• Missed a course? Make it up!
• Advance in next semester's work
• Fulfill a requirement
• Learn something new
Over 200 credit courses offered.
Two, six-week sessions:
First session: June 7-July 15
Second session: July 19-August 25
Register Now!
Catalogs available all over campus or at the Division of Continuing Education, 6th floor Goodell Building, 545-2414.
A quality education at affordable prices.

IDB
Let Us Help SHAPE Your World
Information Data Bank
2nd Floor Whitmore Lobby
545-1555

WHY WAIT?
Stop by the University Health Services Pharmacy NOW to get your summer prescriptions filled.
It will save you time and let us serve you more efficiently.
Hours:
Mon. - Fri. 8:30 a.m. - 6 p.m.
Sat. 9 a.m. - Noon
1 - 4:30 p.m.

■ hoops

continued from page 10

the wrist with a stick; it's playing straight-up, in-your-face, smothering D. You can be tough and not chippy in the paint.

Hockey will never be as popular or as successful as basketball. Take a look around — all you need is a hoop and a ball. How are you going to play hockey by yourself?

What sport is bigger and better in the United States? In February, our Olympic team got smoked in ice hockey. Didn't we show the world who was boss in basketball last summer?

Anywhere but here in New England, where hockey players are a dime a dozen, basketball is, has been, and always will be better than hockey — professionally, collegiately and just for plain fun.

Jordan, Magic, Larry — names which evolutionized the game itself and made basketball what it is today. I don't think many people remember the names Larionov, Kvartlnov or Irbe. Okay, maybe Arturs is making waves with his spectacular play during San Jose's run in the NHL playoffs, but you can be sure that more people are aware of the Indiana Pacers' upset of Shaquille O'Neal and the Magic.

The tradition of basketball will be carried on not only by names like Webber and Robinson but by the kid down on the corner in French Lick, Ind., shooting at the bent rim with the chain-link net hanging off. As for hockey, game off.

Arthur Stapleton Jr. is a Collegian columnist.

■ hockey

continued from page 10

years to master. Hockey combines speed, finesse and grace, with aggressiveness and physical play.

Toughness: Hand check versus cross check. Hoop referees whistle anything. A slap on the hand? Cry me a river. If they let more go, basketball would be far more entertaining.

Fans love the hitting. Hockey players play with broken bones. Bleeding? Eight stitches on the bench and they are back out throwing body checks.

Intrigue: Year in and year out, the NHL playoffs provide fans with the most excitement and suspense of any professional sport. A hot goalie can carry a team to the finals. There are no sure bets in hockey and that's why people watch. Barring an occasional upset of a two or three seed in the first round, when does an NBA Cinderella ever go anywhere?

If you miss the first 46 minutes of most basketball games, you won't miss anything important. If you miss any part of a hockey game, you might miss the game-breaking play.

The Class Factor: The NBA has become a bunch of whining, overpaid, trash-talking cry babies. They spend more time worrying about their image than their play. Example: Shaq can act better than he can shoot free-throws. The players have become more than the sport. Last year's final was billed as Air Jordan versus Sir Charles. Little mention of their talented teammates.

Hockey is a team game, always was, always will be. Show me a selfish hockey player, and I'll show you someone sitting on the bench. A selfish basketball player is glorified. Selfish play got Shaq a role in Blue Chips.

The players, for the most part, are classy, down to earth gentleman. There is no hockey equivalent to Dennis Rodman.

Basketball fans will brag about how the NBA is a marketing machine, compared to the NHL's minuscule exposure. This has nothing to do with the game itself. The NBA uses flashy promotions to hide their inferior games.

Matt Vautour is a Collegian columnist.

Webber pulls down another one

By DENNIS GEORGATOS
Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — Chris Webber, who helped make the Golden State Warriors the league's most improved team, Tuesday was named the NBA's rookie of the year.

The first of Michigan's Fab Five to play in the NBA and the youngest player in the league this season, Webber edged Orlando's Anfernee Hardaway, the player Golden State drafted third and sent to the Magic for the rights to Webber, the No. 1 selection last year.

Webber received 53 votes to 47 for Hardaway in balloting by a panel of sports writers and broadcasters. It was the closest vote since 1981, when Darrell Griffith of Utah beat Portland's Kelvin Ransey by one vote. Jamal Mashburn of Dallas got the remaining vote.

Webber, who went to the Final Four twice with Michigan before heading to the NBA, said he considered the award "definitely one of my highest basketball memories."

"He's no longer a rookie. He's a pro," Golden State coach Don Nelson said. "There isn't anything the guy won't be able to do in another couple of years. He's got a chance to be the best power forward that ever played the game."

Good to the last drop

ARAM COMEAU / COLLEGIAN

A local squirrel enjoys a Reese's Peanut Butter Cup Sundae. Can you blame him?

Children's author recalled

Richard Scarry remembered by fans, colleagues

By RICK HAMPSON
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Richard Scarry was so big with little kids that his publishers put his name right up in the titles, which often contained an outrageous boast like "Richard Scarry's Best Word Book Ever."

That's what happens when your 250 books sell 100 million copies in 30 languages over three decades. "Meeting Scarry," an interviewer once wrote, "is like sitting down with U.S. Steel." Scarry, who died of a heart attack in Switzerland on Saturday at age 74, was one of the world's most popular children's authors. Five years ago, Publishers Weekly listed the 50 all-time best-selling hardcover children's books; eight were by Scarry, who did the drawings, the writing and the layout.

Not bad for a writer whose most famous character was named Lowly Worm.

Jan Melli of Ridgewood, N.J., bought about 50 of Scarry's books over the years, some for her four children, others as gifts. "Everyone I know with a baby gets 'Richard Scarry's Please and Thank You,'" she said Tuesday.

She thinks she loved the books even more than her kids, and can still, five years after her youngest graduated from Scarryland, recite certain passages about Lowly Worm and Huckle Cat from memory.

Scarry realized that for a children's book to be read, two people had to find it entertaining - the child doing the listening and the adult doing the reading. He prized the letters from parents saying that "when they come back for a second reading, they keep finding things they haven't seen before."

Scarry's cast was composed of gentle, cute animals who dressed and acted like humans and drove the most incredible vehicles, including cars shaped like a toothpaste tube, a carrot and a pencil.

A Scarry bus would have a hole in the roof to accommodate a giraffe. A bug would have a spat for each of its many feet. Lowly sported a Tyrolean hat.

Disease spreads West

By NANCY RABINOWITZ
Associated Press

BOSTON — Health officials are worried that ticks carrying Lyme disease are showing up more frequently in central and western Massachusetts in addition to their usual habitats on Cape Cod and the North Shore.

Lyme disease is spread by deer ticks that transmit the infectious bacterium when they attach themselves to animals or humans.

"It's spread easily by birds. Birds can carry the ticks. It's very easily brought from one area to another," said Michael W. McGuill, a public health veterinarian for the Department of Public Health.

"We're seeing a lot more sporadic cases throughout the state which have no connection with travel to the Cape or North Shore," McGuill said.

Spring and early summer are the peak seasons for Lyme disease because deer ticks are still small and much less likely to be detected, said Nancy Liu, an assistant professor of medicine at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center in Worcester.

Lyme disease is now the most common insect-borne infection in the United States. In Massachusetts alone, 185 cases were reported in 1993. In addition to the white tailed deer and white-footed mouse, the ticks have been found on at least 30 types of wild animals and 49 species of birds.

Symptoms of Lyme disease may include headaches, fever, chills, sweats, achiness and other flu-like symptoms. Another common symptom is a ring-like rash that can appear as single or multiplied lesions and appear on different parts of the body. The rash usually appears between 3 and 30 days after the tick bite.

The disease is generally treated with antibiotics such as doxycycline and amoxicillin. To remove a tick from the skin use tweezers, Liu said. If tweezers aren't available and the tick is removed by hand, protect the fingertips with a plastic bag or tissue and wash the hands afterward.

Since Lyme disease takes from 24 to 48 hours for a tick to transmit the bacteria, officials say the best measure is check for ticks on anyone who has been walking in the woods, dunes or through tall grass.

"Wear long-sleeved shirts and long pants with socks pulled up over the cuffs," said Liu. Over-the-counter repellents may also be help to guard against ticks, Liu said.

BOSTON BARTENDERS SCHOOL OF AMERICA

Train Now For Your Summer Job

TIPS

- If you are 18 or older, be a bartender
- Day/Evenings 1 Week
- Placement Assistance
- Spend the Summer at the Shore!
- Only 4 Openings Remain for MAY CLASSES!
- ENROLL NOW!!! • MC/VISA/DISCOVER/AMEX

1655 Main St. • Suite 202 • Springfield • Call Today! 747-9888

Call For Our Special Offer

BRANDYWINE AMHERST

Brandywine offers Country Living with Convenience

- On UMass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
- Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop by and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open
Mon.-Fri. 9-5, Sat. & Sun. 10-3
549-0600

Get Great Job Experience And Get Paid For It.

The Collegian

Editorial Positions for Fall '94

Editor-in-Chief • Managing Editor
Arts & Living • Black Affairs
Developing Nations • Editorial/Opinion
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues
Jewish Affairs • Multicultural Affairs
News • Photography
Sports • Women's Issues

Also: Copy/Night Editors, Associate Editors

Applications: Due Friday, May 6 by 5pm
Candidate's Night: Monday, May 9 • 7pm
Elections: Tuesday, May 10 • 9-4pm

For More Information & an Application, Drop by the Collegian, 113 Campus Center Basement. The Collegian is an E.O. Employer.

DOWNTOWN AMHERST DAYS
MAY 12-13-14
SIDEWALK SALES
COMMUNITY FAIR
TASTE OF AMHERST

My eyes teared as I hacked my desert dry cough at the road dust that swirled up from behind the passing semi. Yes, I was lost... a long way from the rotting New York cul-de-sac I had called my home. Why HAD I eaten that moldy bread. Why DID I let that circus bear break my heart.

Mass. Daily Collegian
Wherever you go, There you are!

DRESSES
WORLD BEAT!
LONG, SHORT & IN BETWEEN. TANKS, SHORT SLEEVE & SLEEVELESS. FROM $24.95
Basic DUDS at Faces
MAIN STREET - NORTHAMPTON - OPEN 7 DAYS

3-D TV is Here And For Hire!
Ultimate Surprise Party Toy Starring Those 3D Vision Guys
Call Virtual Vision 3-D At 256-1323
For Rates/Info.

Hi my name is Alex, and I'm only three years old. I like candy, and Pez, and the Mass Daily Collegian.

Calvin and Hobbes — By Bill Watterson

Jim's Journal — By Jim

Virtual Reality — By Mark Warnat

Urban Shocker — By Dog

Drink Beer — By Gleeson

I was walking around the other day.
[Jim Sucks]
WHAT'S UP MAN?
WHAT'S UP!!
I walked to a couple of people.
WHAT'S UP!!
WHAT'S UP!!
WHAT'S UP!!

Sports

ARAM COMBEAN / COLLEGIAN

Face-off specialist Sammy Joseph leads the University of Massachusetts lacrosse team against the No. 7 Brown Bruins today at Garber Field when the Gorillas attempt to retain the New England Championship.

Brown visits Hill with title on line

By ANDRE' V BRYCE
Collegian Staff

It was sitting on Coach Ted Garber's desk. It was sitting on the table along the side of the field at practice each day for the past week.

It is the New England Championship trophy, and it belongs to the University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse team — for the moment. The No. 13 Gorillas (8–4) hope to keep it for another year as they host No. 7 Brown (9–4) today (3 p.m.) at Richard F. Garber Field.

Last season, Massachusetts claimed the N.E. Championship with a 8–6 win over Brown here in Amherst. The Bruins played the Gorillas tight, as the score was tied after three quarters 5–5. It was Massachusetts who upended Brown by two goals in the final quarter for the win. Goalie Tom LoPresti had a career game, saving 20 shots.

This season, the game should be just as exciting. The stakes are high not only for bragging rights in New England, but also for qualifying for the post–season tournament. Brown defeated then No. 1 Princeton earlier this season 7–6, and beat Cornell 16–7 on Saturday to wrap up the ivy League Championship. Quite an improvement considering they started the season at 1–4.

"We're alive," said Brown coach Peter Lasagna. "We have an opportunity to play later on (in the tourney). Coach Garber was one of the few people who gave us credit when we were 1–4. We had a good April."

"They've won seven straight, and they're playing well as a team," said Garber. "They have great balance in their offense, and a strong defense. They won the ivy League Championship. Brown is a great team."

The Gorillas are coming off an 11–7 loss to No. 1 Syracuse at the Carrier Dome. The Gorillas could not overcome the 8–2 Orangeman lead at haftime, despite managing to outscore them in the second half. Senior Wes Depp led the scoring attack with four goals and an assist. LoPresti headed the defensive attack with 17 saves.

"Our defense is playing real well," said Garber. "Where this team goes depends upon how the defense plays. This year, we have been playing both man–to–man and zone. it's not the X's and the O's, it's the guys that are doing it."

The offense is led by Depp, who has racked up 40 points (27 goals). Junior Mike Valente has 38 points (27 assists), and freshman Brendan Glass continues to lead the team with 30 goals (36 points). While Depp scored his 100th career point against Rutgers on April 23, Valente is just seven points shy of the century mark.

Lasagna remembers last year's game, where his Bruins lost faceoffs early on.

"The key is whose faceoff guy does well early," said Lasagna. "Sam Joseph killed us early on in last year's game. The pace of the game and what the teams set out to do offensively and defensively are also key."

As for the Gorillas, this game is huge. If the UMass wants to play in the 12–team postseason tournament, they must win their last two games. Their most important game at the moment? Today's New England Championship game played at what Lasagna called the "most exciting place in the country to play", Massachusetts' own Garber Field.

"We must beat Brown to make [the tourney]," said Garber. "I just told the guys to focus on doing their jobs, and we'd be alright."

Minutewomen off after busy weekend

By CANDICE FLEMMING
Collegian Staff

After competing in the 100th running of the Penn Relays and the Dartmouth Invitational this past week, the University of Massachusetts women's track team will welcome the off weekend it has to prepare for the New England Championships, its season finale, on May 14th.

UMass has been hampered by various sicknesses and a few injuries and the weekend off should give the Minutewomen some needed rest. UMass Head Coach Julie LaFreniere had hoped that the Invitational would be a tuneup for the upcoming Championships but because of the sicknesses and some cold and drizzly weather it was tough to compete.

But even under those conditions, the Minutewomen performed well. UMass had four freshmen place first and three other Minutewomen place second.

Anya Forrest continued to be unbeatable in the 100m hurdles finishing in first place in the first section with a time of 14.87. Forrest was just three one–hundreth of a second off from qualifying for ECACs and she will have one more chance to qualify at New Englands. Forrest has qualified for New Englands in the 100m and the 200m also.

Angela Sorge placed first in the second section of 100m hurdles with a time of 16.86. At the championships Sorge will be competing in the 100m hurdles and the 400m hurdles.

Heather Brown easily won the javelin with a throw of 132'8" and is already qualified for both New Englands and the ECACs.

Kim Downey continued to improve in the long jump winning the event with a jump of 17'4 3/4. She has qualified for the championships in the long jump and the 200m. Downey is starting to pull it together according to LaFreniere.

The 4x100m relay team was missing two important performers in Erika Doyle and Pasha Summers, but still fared well finishing second. The relay consisted of Forrest, Downey, Sorge and Janey Meeks.

In the 1500m junior Kristin Diggs finished second with a time of 4:46.5 and in the 5000m freshman Katie Greenia also placed second with a time of 18:01.4. Diggs has qualified for the championships in the 3000m.

UMass also fared well in the shot put taking three out of the six top places. Dhamana Shakespeare finished third (38'6 1/2"), Natalie Landry finished fifth (36' 1/4") and Stephanie Townson was sixth (35'7 3/4). Townson and Shakespeare have both qualified for New Englands in the shot put and also the hammer.

Meeks so far is the only other Minutewomen to qualify for both New Englands and the ECACs. Meeks will be competing in the triple jump. Other Minutewomen who have qualified for the New England Championships are Kim Liljeblad in the 1500m, Kerry Aker in the 400m, Christie Martin in the shot put and the hammer, Jen Waeger and Cheryl Lyons in the 800m, and Dianne Sykes in the 400m hurdles. Kelly Liljeblad has qualified in the 1500m and 3000m but will sit out the rest of the season with leg problems.

ARAM COMBEAN / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts women's track team participated in the Penn Relays and the Dartmouth Invitational this past weekend.

Ortega blanks BC as softball gains split

ARAM COMBEAN / COLLEGIAN

Dani Ortega pitched her second shutout of the season, helping the Minutewomen softball team avoid a sweep at Boston College yesterday.

By SEAN P. HAYDEN
Collegian Staff

Freshman hurler Dani Ortega pitched her second shutout of the season yesterday at Boston College, enabling the University of Massachusetts softball team, 3–0 losers in the first game, to avoid a sweep at the hands of the Eagles.

Ortega limited the Eagles to five hits and struck out one batter en route to raising her record to 10–8. Alexis Beckman (11–12) suffered the loss for BC.

The Minutewomen gave her all the support she would need in the first inning of the nightcap when freshman Sam Caidenas led off the game with a single, advanced to second on a single from fellow freshman Chris Martens and scored when sophomore catcher Michele Shaw singled her home.

Sophomore right fielder Amy Powell followed Shaw with a single of her own, plating Martens and giving Massachusetts a 2–0 lead and putting the Eagles in a hole before they even came to the plate.

Powell led Massachusetts' 10–hit parade with a 2–for–3 effort including an RBI and a run scored. Martens and Cardenas each had two hits, going 2–for–4 in the contest.

Junior Kelly Daut, who limited BC to just three hits in the earlier affair, was victimized by some poor defense in the second inning when all three Eagle runs came across the plate.

The Minutewomen (25–16) committed three errors in the frame and four in the game. Two more in the nightcap brought the day's error total to six.

Daut struck out five while seeing her record fall to 13–7 on the season. BC pitcher Liz Walker spun a two–hit shutout at Massachusetts in the first game with singles by Shaw and senior co–captain Tracey DuEst standing in the way of a no–hitter. Her record goes to 14–8.

Today, Massachusetts travels to Burlington, Vt., for a 3 p.m. doubleheader that is a makeup from the March 31 rainout before having a couple of days off to gear up for this weekend's Diamond Classic at the University of Connecticut where it will do battle against the Lady Huskies, South Florida and Florida State.

Hockey and hoops go head–to–head

• Second–rate ice sport no match

A peach basket. A volleyball. A doctor.

So began the sport of basketball a little over a century ago, thanks to Dr. James Naismith.

With the NBA and NHL playoffs overlapping, many have questioned which one is more important — uh, didn't the NHL come begging to the NBA for one Gary Bettman, the man who is now running the second–rate league.

Arthur Stapleton Jr.

A lot of critics claim that basketball is popular only because of its marketing. Sure, it's a reason but also an asset. The higher–ups of the NBA have used their intelligence and advertising savvy to make the sport more appealing to our society. The nicknames, the shoe contracts — the NBA knows what sells. And we are buying.

The biggest marketing moment for the NHL and ice hockey came in Wayne's World. Game on.

Why? Because not many people can go out and play ice hockey. You must skate. You must buy a stick. You must have a puck. Oh, yeah, you need ice. Just think of the success the indoor street hockey league is having — the television contract on ESPN is bringing in a tremendous amount of viewers, especially at four in the afternoon.

As far as fighting goes, hockey games break out all over the place — in front of Antonio's, on Hobart Lane, on the Student Union Steps . you can't name one player receiving a paycheck who is sent out on the court to take out another player.

Dennis Rodman may be a nutjob, yet he's the best rebounder in basketball. Rob Ray, Mick Vukota and Lyndon Byers can barely skate, let alone put a puck in the net or drop one off to a man in the slot.

If you think hoops is all about finesse nowadays, you are mistaken. Check out the New York Knicks' hard–nosed defense; the Nets are shooting 30 percent for a reason in their series. Being physical isn't slashing someone across

Turn to HOOPS, page 8

COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Some people prefer the style, skill and grace of professional basketball

•Hoops full of whiners and wimps

Which is a better game, hockey versus hoop? Hockey hands down. Here are five reasons to take the ice.

World Wide Appeal: Despite the "hoopla" hyperbole about basketball being like soccer, as a great world wide game. Nonsense. I give you Barcelona 1992. Everyone babbles about the Croatians, the Russians, not one non– American in the Olympics would have made the U.S. practice squad.

When the NHL joins the Olympic ranks in 1998, there will be "dream teams" from Canada, USA, Russia, the Czech Republic, Slovakia, Sweden and Finland. That would be a real tournament, instead of teams playing just so they could pose for a picture with Magic Johnson.

I'd rather see Eric Lindros playing against Teemu Selanne than Scottie Pippen against Stojko Vrankovic.

Matt Vautour

Skill Factor: Hockey is all skill. In basketball there are 6'11" lead–footed stiffs getting a paycheck more for their genetics than their talent. For every Muggsy Bogues there is an Acie Earl with a job.

The NHL has no such useless entities. Skill and grit, not size, will get you a job.

People who have never played, have no idea the skills it takes to play hockey. Skating alone takes

Turn to HOCKEY, page 8

GORDON FENWICK / COLLEGIAN

... while others prefer the gritty, hard–hitting play of professional hockey.

Say What?

"I know my place with the Cowboys. It would be as insurance for Troy."

– newly aquired Dallas quarterback Rodney Peete

A.L. Weekly: Butthead endorses the Spring Concert '94 lineup Page 7

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Weather
Cloudy, showers and drizzle, highs in the 50s. Clearing Friday.

Thursday
May 5, 1994
Volume CIII Issue 120

World

New Italian gov't in jeopardy

ROME (AP) — The main election ally of Premier–designate Silvio Berlusconi suspended talks on Cabinet posts Wednesday in a dispute that could derail efforts to form a new government.

Umberto Bossi, leader of the Northern League, pulled out of the negotiations after demanding his party receive the powerful interior ministry post. A League official also said the party wanted to name officials for the treasury and industry ministries.

The impasse drove the Milan stock market sharply down and raised the prospect that Berlusconi would not be able to put together a Cabinet acceptable to President Oscar Luigi Scalfaro, who must approve the selections.

National

Clinton brings students, employers together

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seated at a desk designed by high school students, President Clinton signed legislation today to get schools and employers working together to prepare American youth for good–paying jobs even if they don't go to college.

Clinton said his conviction that such school–to–work programs are necessary comes from knowing too many "people who work harder every year for lower wages."

"We must not only create more jobs, we have to make it possible for people who work hard and do the right thing" to become members of the middle class, he said.

"If we don't give our own people the chance to reap the rewards of economic progress, we will have failed," Clinton said. To sign the legislation, Clinton sat at a desk that he said "symbolizes what this bill is all about." It was designed by high school students in Flint, Mich., who were assigned to create a desk for White House bill–signing ceremonies that would be inexpensive, easy to move and easy to reassemble.

Nations join to halt dollar decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States joined with 15 other countries Wednesday in a massive effort to halt a slide in the international value of the dollar.

The Federal Reserve and central banks in Japan and Europe joined to buy greenbacks and sell other currencies in what was the biggest coordinated effort of its type since August 1992.

The operation met with initial success as the dollar, which had been approaching a historic low against the Japanese yen and a six–month low against the German mark, was driven higher in value.

However, analysts said the positive effects were likely to be short–lived without other policy changes. They suggested the Fed would be forced within the next two weeks to increase interest rates for a fourth time this year. Raising interest rates is another way a country can defend its currency.

State/Regional

White supremacist parade talks continue

BOSTON (AP) — The leader of a white supremacist group may get permission to parade in South Boston this Saturday, but few are expected to join his ranks.

Richard Barrett emerged from discussions with police and the city attorney Wednesday waving a revised parade permit application that he said would shorten the parade route and limit the length and number of speeches at a rally afterwards.

The controversy began when Barrett announced he would hold a parade in South Boston after a veterans group canceled the annual St. Patrick's Day parade. Organizers cancelled that parade after the State Supreme Judicial Court ruled they could not exclude a gay and lesbian group that wanted to march.

Budget calls for raise

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

In the state House Ways and Means Committee's version of the 1995 state budget which came out yesterday, the University of Massachusetts five–campus system got a $10.6 million increase in their operating budget for next year.

The $10.6 million amounts to a 3.4 percent increase over last year's UMass appropriation. But the committee's budget also called for a $4 million decrease in the state's financial aid pool, which means Massachusetts State Scholarships will decrease.

The state Senate Ways and Means Committee will probably begin working on their version of the state's budget this week. After the Senate finishes their version, there will be a conference committee. During the conference committee the House and the Senate will hammer out a finished version of the budget which will then be submitted to Gov. William F. Weld for his approval.

The entire budgetary process will be finished by July 1, which marks the end of Fiscal Year 1994 and the beginning of Fiscal Year 1995.

At the Student Government Association meeting last night, Student Center for Education, Research and Advocacy legislative Coordinator Amy Lloyd said the UMass $10.6 million budget increase is not enough. She said the SGA lobbied for a 7 percent increase in the UMass appropriation and they only got half.

Lloyd said although the increase is enough to cover the 3 percent cost of inflation for next year, the increase is still not enough because UMass needs more than that to make up for the budget cuts that have hurt UMass over the past five years. Lloyd said the SGA may ask for an amendment to the budget, but she was not optimistic that the amendment would pass. She was also warned that the Senate's version of the budget may not be as favorable to UMass as the House's version was.

"We need 81 votes in the House to pass [the amendment] through, so it's pretty inconceivable that that could happen," Lloyd said. "The Senate will probably start writing their version this week, and we could get hit harder in the Senate."

The committee's version of the budget also called for the possible elimination of the state's

Turn to BUDGET, page 2

State budget unveiled; welfare cut by 5 percent

By JONATHAN YENKIN
Associated Press

BOSTON — A $16.3 billion state budget unveiled Wednesday rejects the governor's proposals to cut taxes and expand gambling, while offering a welfare overhaul plan that would trim monthly checks and cap benefits.

Rep. Thomas Finneran, D–Boston, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, released the spending plan which will be debated on the House floor next week.

A key feature is a proposal to cut monthly welfare checks by 5 percent, or an average of about $28, while placing a two–year cap on benefits and halting additional grants for families that have more children.

"I don't think we can afford to put more money into a system that is very, very clearly bankrupt and not working," Finneran said.

But the proposal came under fire from advocates for welfare recipi–

Turn to STATE, page 5

Look ma, no hands!

NATALYA BRICHANOVA / COLLEGIAN

JFK junior high school student Josh Paine struts his considerable stuff in the shadow of the Fine Arts Center.

Some victims could be unaware

Intent of harasser may not be as important as how recipient feels

By VANESSA AMIN
Collegian Staff

Editor's note: This is the second in a two–part series exploring sexual harassment.

Do you feel you have been sexually harassed? Some students are unaware of how to end the problems of sexual harassment. The University of Massachusettes offers students an opportunity to seek advice and arranges options to end the alleged sexual harassment.

"It is very important to remember that it is not so much as the intent of the harasser but how the recipient feels about it," said Mary Wardwell, the assistant university ombudsperson. "If the harassment continues, It is time to end it."

According to Mary Jane Quinn, the assistant director of the Affirmative Action Office, there are certain procedures that a student can go through in order to end sexual harassment.

A student, she said, could first confront the harasser but if the student is too uncomfortable, then he/she can write a letter. If the harassment doesn't stop and is threatening or serious, then the student can speak with the person's supervisor and or department head.

"At this point, the University has an obligation to take immediate and appropriate action," Quinn said.

According to Wardwell, the student can ask the Ombuds Office to mediate the dispute which is "confidential and on a informal bases." If the person denies the harassment, then the student can file a formal complaint in the Affirmative Action Office within 12 months of the incident. If there is conflict of interest in the case, a hearing will be requested.

> "It is my gut sense that there have been more cases of sexual harassment this year than last and that the cases are more severe."
>
> — Mary Jane Quinn

According to the UMass Sexual Harassment Policy, the Sexual Harassment board, which consists of 25 members, is presented evidence and witnesses on both sides of the dispute. The panel would then decide whether the case was sexual harassment and recommend the vice chancellor to take appropriate action, Wardwell said.

For instance, Quinn said, if a faculty member has violated the Sexual Harassment Policy, he/she may be suspended, demoted, removed from teaching responsibilities, or terminated.

"To my knowledge, there has been no faculty member terminated in a case of sexual harassment," Quinn said.

According to an annual report from the Ombuds Office, in 1992 and 1993, 13 complaints have been filed.

"It is my gut sense that there have been more cases of sexual harassment this year than last and that the cases are more severe," Quinn said.

According to Wardwell, it is hard to prevent sexual harassment from happening because it's hard to control one's surroundings.

"Try not to let the smallest amount of demeaning or offensive advances go unaddressed," Wardwell said. "Tell the person right away that the advances make you uncomfortable."

According to Quinn, there is currently a committee appointed by Chancellor David K. Scott, who is looking at the question of faculty–student relationships.

"The chances of something going wrong within a faculty– student relationship is very high," Wardwell said. "A professional or academic relationship, intentionally or not, can manifest itself into sexual harassment."

Following win, Mandela must now pick cabinet

By DONNA BRYSON
Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Whom will Nelson Mandela pick as his right–hand man: the hard–nosed negotiator whose deal–making helped bring him to power, or the suave heir apparent raised in anti–apartheid activism?

The debate over whether Cyril Ramaphosa, the negotiator, or Thabo Mbeki, the diplomat, will be first deputy president illustrates the minefield of politics and egos Mandela must negotiate as he maps out South Africa's first multiracial Cabinet.

Last week Mandela's African National Congress trounced the governing, white–led National Party and 17 smaller parties in the first election to include South Africa's black majority. The victory put Mandela, who will be inaugurated Tuesday as the country's first black president, firmly in charge of a multiparty reconciliation government.

So, how's he going to do it?

There are to be two deputy presidents, part of a Cabinet expected to have about 27 members.

Key ministries are sure to be reserved for the ANC. Former political detainees are expected to be put in charge of the police, and former guerrillas in charge of the army.

Turn to MANDELA, page 14

Don't worry, just sign it

SUSAN LAM / COLLEGIAN

Eclectic musician Bobby McFerrin signs autographs for local children at a reception after his performance in the Fine Arts Center on Tuesday. The children were invited by the "Roots" Service Council of UMass and Amherst College

Changes taking form in Gaza City

By DONNA ABU-NASR
Associated Press

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip — Gazans cheered arriving PLO police commanders and Israeli soldiers shouted "shalom" at passing Palestinian cars Wednesday in the first glimmerings of a new era after 27 years of Israeli occupation.

The signing of the Palestinian self–rule agreement after months of torturous negotiations produced a marked change of mood in areas torn by six years of violence during the "intefadeh," or uprising.

Newly freed Palestinian prisoners posed for pictures and shook hands with Israeli soldiers, and some people released doves. Children in the West Bank town of Jericho showered an Israeli police car with flowers.

"This is the beginning of the changes we will see on the ground soon. It's the beginning of the translation of the historic agreement," said Col. Maher Fara, a spokesman for the Palestinian police force that will patrol the autonomous zones in the Gaza Strip and around Jericho.

Despite the formal signing ceremony in Cairo, Egypt, three main issues remained unresolved: the release of non–PLO Palestinian prisoners from Israeli jails, the size of the Jericho area, and Palestinian demands to have at least a symbolic police presence at border crossings.

Palestinians are also just beginning to organize the administrative departments needed to assume control.

Brig. Gen. Ghazi Al–Jabali, leader of the advance group of 19 police commanders who arrived Wednesday from Egypt, toured military camps that Israel will turn over in Gaza City, Khan Yunis and Rafah.

> "We are bringing love, optimism and hope to the people of Gaza and Jericho,"
>
> — Gen. Ghazi Al–Jabali

"We are bringing love, optimism and hope to the people of Gaza and Jericho," al–Jabali said, but he indicated changes would take time.

He told reporters the initial force of 1,500 Palestinian police officers would arrive in a week with uniforms and arms and not Thursday as previously reported.

Al–Jabali also said the nightly curfew, one of the most hated aspects of Israel's occupation, would not be lifted immediately "We are not in control yet," he said.

Three of the police commanders traveled in Israeli military jeeps to Jericho, expected to be the government center for Palestinian self–rule. The phased transfer of authority is largely hinged on the arrival of 7,000 policemen from outside and training 2,000 locally.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said at a news conference in Cairo that PLO leader Yasser Arafat had asked for up to four

Turn to GAZA, page 3

Storyteller adopts diverse African tradition

By TRACY MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

Rex Ellis is a storyteller in the African tradition. Using story, verse and song, he tells various historical tales.

His strength comes from relying on the lives of significant African Americans, both named and unnamed. He relies on these people for both the autobiographical and creative material he relates.

Ellis was on campus Sunday night as part of a series called "Black Autobiography: Alternate Forms," presented by the department of Afro-American studies and the students in Afro-Am 291C: Black Autobiography.

Ellis is currently the director for the Office of Museums Program at the Smithsonian Institution. He is in charge of strengthening the museums' service to diverse publics. This is done by offering training, information and consultancies to museums and individuals in museum theory and practice.

Before working at Smithsonian, Ellis was the director of the department of African American interpretation and presentation at the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation in Williamsburg, Virginia. The department is in charge of the content, training and implementation of programs focusing on colonial black history.

Ellis' primary function in Williamsburg was to mainstream the experience of colonial blacks into the fundamental teaching of American history.

Ellis received his bachelor of fine arts from Virginia Commonwealth University, a masters in fine arts from Wayne State University, and an Ed.D. from the College of William and Mary. He was also an instructor in the department of speech communications and theater arts at Hampton University.

He has been a contributor to publications such as The Colonial Williamsburg Journal, American Visions, August House Publications, and History News. He has memberships in the Screen Actor's Guild, American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, the American Association of Museums, American Association for State and Local History, the Association of Black Storytellers and the National Storytelling Association (formerly National Association for the Preservation and Perpetuation of Storytelling.)

He has served as consultant to organization such as Old Salem Village, the Henry Ford Museum, the Smithsonian Institution, and the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

■ budget

continued from page 1

tion secretary, Piedad Robinson. Student Trustee Ai Lizana said her job is to be the governor's liaison to education. He also said she is an ex officio trustee who is supposed to go to all of the UMass board of trustee meetings. He said he would support cutting her because she does not attend many of their meetings.

"They have got my vote if they want to axe her. She barely comes to the trustee meetings," Lizana said.

Lizana also said that the budget includes a motion for bonuses to UMass professors who retire early. He said this plan would let the people who want retire do so, and it would also prevent near retirement-age professors from staying on the University payrolls forever.

Correction

The cutline for a front-page photo in yesterday's Collegian misidentified a man hanging tie-dye T-shirts. His name is Raju Sivasankaran.

The Collegian regrets the error.

Hillel kick-off events planned for the fall

By JACOB W. MICHAELS
Collegian Staff

With less than a week of classes left, most students are looking forward to a summer of fun and sun at their homes all over the world. Dreams, or nightmares, of school and tests will be put away for a few months. Many groups, however, have already begun to plan for their kick-off events next semester.

Hillel has a large number of things planned in the first three weeks, according to Nurit Ben-Harav, president of the University of Massachusetts chapter.

Hillel events kick off with an open house on Sept. 11. According to Ben-Harav, the open house is a "time for people to come in and see what Hillel has to offer." They can meet leaders of Hillel, meet new students and buy activity cards.

The cards now cost $10, down from $20 last year. Hillel members who have the cards get discounts to various other activities Hillel puts on.

Later that evening, at 7 p.m., there will be a barbecue in the Hillel courtyard. There will be kosher food and music, and all students are invited.

On Sept. 19, there will be a new students meeting at Hillel. Ben-Harav said the new students will get to meet executive officers and committee members. New students will learn what the various committees do, and how to get involved.

> "It's going to be agreat year. I look forward to seeing many new faces as well as the returning students."
> —Nurit Ben-Harav

On the evening of Sept. 22, Hillel will be holding a dance. Activity card holders will get in for free and it will cost $3 for everyone else. The dance is being organized by Hillel's Social committee, which is chaired by Jessica Lopatin.

Hillel will be holding a barbecue and volleyball game on Sept. 25. The Student Alliance for Israel is organizing it, so it will probably have, according to Ben-Harav, "a twist on Israel."

The last start-up event will be working with Habitat for Humanity. Students will work to help out the local community, by helping clean up an area, or other service projects. The event is being organized by Hillel Vice- President Ron Gonen.

Ben-Harav said, "It's going to be a great year. I look forward to seeing many new faces, as well as the returning students."

COMMENCEMENT WEEKEND
CELEBRATE AT
THE TOC RESTAURANT
THE 1994 GRADUATION MENU
Entreés
Surf & Turf
N.Y. Sirloin Steak
Chicken Kiev
Veal Parmesan
Roast Prime Rib Au Jus
Swordfish
Scallop Creole
Vegetable Lasagne
The Famous TOC Baked Scrod
Child Size Chopped Sirloin & Our Soup and Salad Bar
Friday 5/20 and Saturday 5/21
Dinner served 4:30 - 8:00
Reservations Strongly Recommended
Sunday 5/22
11:30am - 3:00pm
Reservations Required
THE TOC RESTAURANT
543-3216
11th Floor Campus Center

MIKE'S WESTVIEW
THIS THURSDAY
IS BUD ICE NIGHT
BUD ICE BOTTLES $1.50
FREE HATS AND T-SHIRTS
SCREWDRIVERS AND GIN & TONICS
$2.00
DON'T MISS OUR
FRIDAY NIGHT BUFFET
ALL YOU CAN EAT FOR $1.00
STARTS AT 6:00PM

Come Clean With Us!!
Speedwash
11 Pray St. Amherst • 549-1665
Open 24 Hours
Drop-off service available:
Mon. & Tues. 2pm - 10pm
Wed., Thurs. & Fri. 2pm - 10pm
Sat. 10am - 6pm
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St. South Amherst
Open 7 days/week, 7am - 10pm

ANNOUNCEMENT OF AWARD RECIPIENTS

The Chancellor's Commission in Civility in Human Relations is pleased to announce funding of the following ten proposals in response to its recent Request for Proposals program this spring. A joint Review Committee of the Commission and the Chancellor's Multicultural Advisory Board selected these ten from the total of twenty-three proposals which were received.

"Multicultural Film Festival," a film, video and visual artist series representing broad collaboration between academic departments and multiple sponsors; funds will allow the series to include two filmmakers, one from Africa and the second from Puerto Rico. This proposal was submitted by Catherine Portuges, Interdepartmental Program in Film Studies.

"First Semester Entering Student Diversity and Social Justice Course in Resident Hall Classrooms," a project to develop and pilot a course for first-semester students "specifically designed to counteract the multicultural 'culture shock'" which they experience; the pilot course will be offered in fall 1994. This proposal was jointly submitted by Maurianne Adams, Social Justice Education Program, Residential Education (Housing Services) and Residential Academic Programs (Provost's Office).

"Logistical/Library Support for TAs Teaching Diversity Courses," an effort to "continue, augment and enhance" the Graduate-Faculty Teaching Seminar sponsored by the Department of English; this seminar prepares graduate students to teach General Education courses, many of which fulfill the Social and Cultural Diversity requirement. Professor Vincent DiMarco, English Department, submitted this proposal.

"Community Awareness Program," an educational program in two nearby communities to raise awareness of diversity issues; the communities share a regional school system which sends a number of its graduates to the UMass Amherst campus each year. This proposal was submitted by Barbara Meyer, graduate student, School of Education, and Father Ken Campbell, Episcopal Church of the Epiphany in Wilbraham.

"Workshop for Recruiters and Students of Color," a day and a half program to provide recruiters coming to the School of Management with information about effective interviewing and assessment of candidates who are students of color; the program also highlights larger issues of recruitment and retention and provides for the participation of students of color as well. This proposal was jointly submitted by Phyllis Lane, School of Management and Jane Hadley Austin, Mather Career Center.

"International Communication Project," a series of workshops for faculty, students and staff introducing international language word-processing software; funds will be utilized to purchase the software and expand the populations served by the UMass Foreign Language Resource Center (FLRC). Irene Starr of the UMass Foreign Language Resource Center submitted this proposal.

"Anti-Racist Forum Series in Brown Residence Hall," a biweekly series of five forums jointly coordinated and facilitated by a faculty member, a housing staff member and STPEC students; the forums attempt to bridge the gap between Academic Affairs and Student Affairs by offering credited learning experiences in a residential setting. Sara Lennox, STPEC and Kanthie Athukorala, Residence Director, Brown Residence Hall submitted this proposal.

"Cooperative Extension Multicultural Workshops," two state-wide training sessions regarding multicultural education for both Cooperative Extension staff and volunteers from Massachusetts communities; this program builds on existing efforts within Cooperative Extension to examine diversity issues. This proposal was submitted by Karen Barshefsky of the Pioneer Valley Cooperative Extension.

"Model Orientation Program for New Classified Employees," an effort to develop an employee orientation program "which focuses on issues of multiculturalism, civility and diversity"; a key feature of the orientation will be a video What's it Like to be Part of This Community produced by frontline workers. This proposal was submitted by Joseph Connolly, Workplace Education Program.

"1994 International Fair," an educational event aimed at promoting understanding and friendly relations between International and American students on the campus and within the larger Five Campus community; this program is co-sponsored by multiple funding sources. This proposal was submitted by Rachel Matthai of the International Students Association.

The Chancellor's Commission on Civility in Human Relations wishes to thank all those who made submissions to its Request for Proposals initiative, and hopes to continue with a similar program in the 1994-95 academic year.

3-D TV is Here And For Hire!
Ultimate Souvenir. Dorm, Frat, Sorority House 3-D Video Tours.
Call Virtual Vision 3-D
At 256-1323
For Rates/Info.

GOOD USED
- CLOTHING -
RECEIVE 50% OFF
By presenting this Ad
Special good through May
Orange tags excluded
SALVATION ARMY THRIFT STORE
253-4747
159 No. Pleasant St.
Behind Rens Mobil
Amherst (Parking in Rear)

College Pro Home Painters
Get a tan painting this summer.
Positions available all across New England. Great Pay!
Call 1-800-346-4649

Student buys small island

Used financial aid award to purchase property

By JUSTIN DOYLE
Collegian Staff

While most students at the University of Massachusetts stand for hours in the line for financial aid at the Bursar's Office to get a check to help pay off the tuition bill, one student at the University of Wisconsin used his money to buy an island.

Daniel Craig, a 30-year-old junior at the University of Wisconsin, used part of his financial aid money to purchase an island located in the Black River. Craig bought the 10.2 acre island for $1601 at a Clack County Tax Land Sale.

At a time when UMass students are fighting for an increase in financial aid just to attend school, Craig used his Stafford Loan and part of his financial aid checks to buy property.

Craig felt that he made the wise decision.

"Most college students spend their money on beer and pizza. I just used my money more intelligently than other students," Craig said.

Craig was able to find the money needed to pay off his fees and still attend school last fall, despite spending part of his financial aid checks.

"I made it through the semester, I paid all my bills, and I got good grades. I am just in the position where I spend my money differently," Craig said

The financial aid office at the University of Wisconsin may not feel that Craig used his money more intelligently.

"There is currently an investigation at the financial aid office, but I have not been contacted yet," Craig said.

Craig, a conservation major, plans to use the island he purchased for ecology studies and camping.

"Being a conservation major is just a good reason for buying an island, as being a mathematics major is for buying a laptop computer," Craig said.

Although Craig did not buy the island to make a profit, he can see possible ways of using the property to make money. The island would make a superb nudist campground, said Craig.

Craig released his story to the college press as a type of advertising for what he does. Craig and his family do what is called "junking." The Craigs publish a monthly newsletter called "The Joys of Junking."

"Junking" is a way to find and purchase valuable items at the least expense. Craig uses his 1976 Fleetwood Cadillac which he bought at a U.S. Marshal's auction for $1200 as an example of effectiveness of junking.

"I have a 12' television, just like the ones many college students bought for $200 to $300. It cost me $3. I also have a large push button microwave I got for $15," Craig said.

■ Gaza

continued from page 1

weeks for the transfer rather than the three set in the autonomy agreement.

The PLO's senior negotiator, Nabil Shaath, said Arafat probably would not arrive in the autonomous areas until early June, when the new administration was in place.

Palestinians, still doubtful about the degree of control Israel will have over their lives, did not make the signing ceremony a holiday.

Rabin and Arafat, bestering even as the ceremony unfolded, signed the 200-page document that emerged from nearly seven months of talks repeatedly interrupted by violence and temporary deadlocks.

The Collegian.
We brought you Boo-Boo.
What more could you ask for?

CANS BOTTLES PAPER PLASTIC
You just separated your trash. RECYCLE

COMPASS LOUNGE
ONE NITE PASS
CAPE COD
DOES NOT APPLY TO SPECIAL EVENTS OR HOLIDAYS
RT. 28 S. YARMOUTH
508-394-4450
TUE-- COUNTRY NITE
WED-- DANCE THU-- ROCK
FRI & SAT DANCE
MURF HAS BROUGHT BACK THE COMPASS THAT'S RIGHT THE COMPASS LOUNGE IS BACK STILL CRAZY AFTER ALL THESE YEARS

Boston Bartenders School of America
Train Now For Your Summer Job
TIPS
• If you are 18 or older, be a bartender
• Day/Evenings 1 Week
• Placement Assistance
• Spend the Summer at the Shore!
• Only 4 Openings Remain for MAY CLASSES!
• ENROLL NOW!!! •
MC/VISA/DISCOVER/AMEX
1655 Main St. • Suite 202 • Springfield • Call Today! 747-9888

Resumé Package
• 50 copies on Your Choice of 25% Cotton Paper
• 2 Business Day Service
• 1 Page Typeset
•With Coupon•
$19.95!!
CopyCat PRINT SHOP
We Specialize in Impossible Deadlines!
228 Triangle St., Amherst 549-3840
32 Pleasant St., Northampton 586-1332

Design Supply Studio
Pastels Portfolios
10% off
WITH THIS AD
Posters Special Orders
HOURS:
Mon.-Fri. 9-8
Saturday 9:30-5:30
Sunday 12-5
65 South Pleasant Street
Amherst, MA 01003
413-253-5592

We Deliver
Kai Chi
Chinese - American Cuisine
Restaurant & Bar
Congratulations Graduates!
SAVE UP TO 30% OFF!
Complete Family Dinner Specials with your choice of Soup • Appetizer • Dessert • Entree
Make Your Reservations Now for Mother's Day and Graduation!
Kai Chi Restaurant
MT. FARMS MALL • RTE 9 • HADLEY • 586-2774
Open Mon. - Thurs. 11:30am - 11pm, Fri.-Sat. 11:30am - midnight, Sunday 12 noon - 10:30pm

Come Celebrate Comfort!!
First Annual ecco Day
at Zanna
(The Valley's Comfort Center)
Friday, May 6th, 10-6

Enter To Win:
• ecco footwear
• Zanna Gift Certificates (4 winners)
Computerized fit analysis by ecco shoe expert David Green
ATTENTION: ecco footwear now available for men!
ZANNA
Women's Shoes, Clothing & Accessories
Zanna • 187 North Pleasant Street • Amherst
413.253.2563
Open Thursdays 'til 8 p.m.

AHORA TE INVITA A
La Tripleta de Mayo
Empezando hoy jueves 5 de mayo con
El Caballero de la Salsa
Gilberto Santa Rosa y su Orquesta
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
8:30 PM
$13 FIVE COLLEGE STUDENTS / $15 GENERAL PUBLIC
TICKETS ON SALE AT THE FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE, AND TIX UNLIMITED AT THE STUDENT UNION.

Mañana viernes 6 de mayo
La Gran Ceremonia de Graduación del Bilingual Collegiate Program
Ven temprano y disfruta de este gran evento en el Campus Center Auditorium a las 8:00 pm. ¡Ceremonia, Comida, mucha Salsa y Merengue del nuevo Concepto Latino y mucha diversión especialmente para ti!
y el sábado 7 de mayo
El Famoso Picnic
Ven y goza de lo lindo en nuestro clásico día familiar. Talent Show, Volibol, música de Concepto Latino, y mucho más desde las 12:00 pm en el Bluewall. Pásala bien en un tremendo ambiente único en su clase.
AHORA
APROVECHA EL ESPECIAL DEL MES
¡NO TE PIERDAS NI UNA SOLA ACTIVIDAD!

CASINO NIGHT VOLUNTEERS CONGRATULATIONS!

The Campus Center/Student Union Board of Governors would like to thank all of the volunteers who made it possible for the fifth annual Casino Night to donate over $4,800 to the Brain Tumor Society (campuses against cancer).
We couldn't have done it without you!

Special Thanks to:
Carrie Skinner
April Mazza
Jennifer Cahil
Diane Grant
Rebecca Wiggins
April Ng
Darrin Shaffer
Angela Ernenwein
Katie Andersen
Sarah Davignon
Nanette Rippere
Pete Degenhardt
Karl Atwood
Heather Hauswirth
Mary Perconne
Amy Andrews
Denise Doucette
Isiris Reyes
Julie Anderson
Tara Quinn
Amy Athey
Angela Dusenbury
Cary Mandeville
Joe Poulin
Heather Kirkman
Paula Drown
Clarence Wong
Teresa Aan Yeung
Mike Tsang
Violet Yu
Rick Pass
Tanya Todtenkopf
Uri Goldberg
Kevin Klaus
Ruth Tobias
Scott Hartford
Jen Lanza
Alison Moore
Gretchen Ulm
Kim Gouderoux
Matt Koch
Jen Sinisi
Kate Wahlgren
Pete Gianopoulos
Larry Lagoy
Bridget Lonergan
The members of:
Alpha Phi Omega
Alpha Chi Rho
Circle K
Tae Kwon Do Club

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

MICHAEL MORRISSEY Editor-in-Chief
Managing Editor ADRIENNE HOSLEY Arts & Living Editor EMILY A. MARINO Black Affairs Editor RODNEY POWELL Developing Nations Editor JUAN J. CHACON QUIROS Editorial/Opinion Editor MIKE CARVALHO Gay Lesbian Bisexual Issues Editor STEPHEN C. CAMPBELL Jewish Affairs Editor JACOB W. MICHAELS Multicultural Affairs Editor EVELYN A. DE JESUS News Editor TRACY MONAHAN Photography Editor NATHAN MARTIN Sports Editor ARTHUR STAPLETON JR. Women's Issues Editor VANESSA AMIN

MICHAEL MCRAE Business Manager LISA JEZOWSKI Production Manager DANIELLE YANNO Advertising Manager STEPHANIE SHORE Finance Manager ANDREW DAVIDSON Night Graphics Manager JIM BRUNEAU, CAITLIN OLSON Day Graphics Managers JEREMY DAGGETT Circulation Manager ERIC ARENAIN Subscriptions Manager MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI Senior Bookkeeper BLAKE PHILLIPS Graphics Professional MARTY PAPPAS Classified Advertising

113 CAMPUS CENTER BASEMENT · UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS · AMHERST, MA 01003 · (413) 545-3500 · FAX (413) 545-1592

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday–Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 between 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. Letters to the editor are encouraged and will be printed on a space-available basis. All submissions must be typed, kept to a maximum of 400 words, and should include the writer's name, address, year and major, as well as a phone number for verification purposes. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length. Persons wishing to submit guest columns should contact the Editorial/Opinion editor in advance. The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily represent those of the Collegian. Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Editorial Board.

Farewell from the Basement

BOSTON – I'm starting this column off as 'Notes From the State House' this week, due to my trip to the Hub on Wednesday. I noticed a number of things that I'd like to share:

Did you know that the legislature cut financial aid to UMass for next year? I'm not too concerned, because a) I never needed any aid to go to this line University; and b) because I'm graduating in three weeks. But that doesn't mean you shouldn't care.

Michael Morrissey

The SOS trip to Beacon Hill should only be the beginning. As the flagship campus, students here have a responsibility to fight for all of the state public schools. After all, we do have the most students and the greatest ability to organize in a short amount of time (we're Minutemen, remember?).

Unfortunately, I've come to the realization that unless we get a governor who graduated from a state college or university, we'll be in rough shape. Unless Jack Welch, UMass alum and monster CEO, decides to donate $10 or $20 million. When that happens, maybe the School of Management will get a building bigger than the size of my grade school.

* * * * *

Speaking of UMass alums, I had the pleasure of stopping into my namesake and state senator's office yesterday: Michael W. Morrissey from Quincy. He wasn't around.

It seems the senator got a lot of flak from constituents for a certain insert a certain collegiate newspaper ran a few weeks back, which was subsequently publicized in The Boston Globe. It turns out a few lunkheads thought he was me and I was him. Sorry for the inconvenience, Senator.

* * * * *

Making an effortless transition back to campus, I would simply like to offer a few observations on what UMass needs. New buildings are out of the question, but it's fun to dream. So here we go:

The Minuteman Marching Band spends too much time practicing and playing all year to have to trudge up to the Old Chapel as their headquarters / locker room. Besides, the building shouldn't be used in that manner — it's a chapel.

So my humble suggestion (without any input from George Parks and company) is to build the Marching Band its own building, either near Alumni Stadium where the band performs, or near the Mullins Center where they practice.

For a low price, you could build something that would attract recruits (yes, the band does pull in prospective students), hold all of the equipment in an organized way, provide a practice facility for the hoop band and give everybody all the locker space they need.

The football players have showers, so why shouldn't the band? They trudge around in wool for six or seven hours on 70 degree days. That would leave the chapel for religious services. It'll never happen, but it's nice to dream . . .

* * * * *

I'm not sure I understand what the function of half of the buildings on campus are. Have you ever seen the TV production studio in Old South? Have you seen the shacks in Northeast/Central which are supposed to be music classrooms? And I'm still trying to figure out the tower library. UMass — where form and function will never intersect.

* * * * *

This is the last 'Notes' column of the semester, although I will have my historical final editorial early next week. At this point I would like to (boo hoo) pause and (sniff) reflect on the four years of 'Notes' that I've read.

I think this space serves a vital purpose to the community. I mean where else is there carte blanche to criticize the organs of the University? Many digs have been taken on Whitmore by myself and others, and I think that's important. The administrators truly do work for us, although they don't act like it most of the time.

'Notes' also provides readers with a tiny glimpse of 113 Campus Center Basement, which is also important. We need people like you to keep this thing running, so come on down or drop us a line. We appreciate it.

Michael Morrissey is a Collegian columnist.

Men need to stop sexism

"Violence is inevitable when you turn a human body into a thing." — Jean Kilbourne

What's wrong with a little sexual objectification? What, are you anti-sex or something? It's spring — love is in the air, people are wearing shorts; can't I just appreciate human beauty? Aah, they all choose to pose anyway. Besides, I only read the articles.

A few months ago, ZBT fraternity plastered the campus with a poster of a nude woman to advertise their rush activities. She was reclined on a bed, barely covering herself with a sheet. The picture was out of focus, simulating a peeping tom and, although she was covering herself, she also seemed to be inviting the camera's gaze.

At the bottom the poster read, "We can't promise you her, but we can promise you a lifetime of brotherhood ..." The only response from the fraternity to the uproar this created was a letter to the editor basically saying, "We're sorry you misunderstood us."

Every bulletin board I saw this spring was littered with "spring break" flyers that featured bikini-clad women advertising trips to Florida and other exotic places. Although not as blatant, they remind me of the "sex tours" I am learning about in my woman's studies class, where foreigners are invited to Thailand to experience the wonderful countryside through having sex with prostitutes. I imagine the brochures look remarkably similar.

Pornography, now no longer sold in the Campus Center, is still sold in the mall and at many convenience stores and bookstores. Pornographers make $20 billion a year (that's "billion" with a "b") in this country — more than the entire music and film industry. Studies have also shown that men exposed to pornography have a higher acceptance level of violence against women.

On a slightly different note, my female friend has been forced to change her dorm phone number because of too many harassing phone calls. When she summoned up the courage to face the harasser in court, he didn't show up so she had to set up another time and go through it again.

There was recently a weekend class about "unlearning sexism" sponsored by the Social Justice Education Program. The 25 female participants spent lots of time writing up examples of sexism on newsprint and hanging them on the wall of the dormitory lounge the class was being held in. The returned from a lunch break to find many of their lists burned right off the walls. To my knowledge, the arsonist has never been caught.

It is we men who have created and are perpetuating sexism, and it is we men who must end it. We must follow the lead of our feminist sisters, but we can't make them do all the work.

Ben Zeman

Are these incidents related? I think so. Perhaps objectified images of women do not cause violence against women but, as Sut Jhally points out in his film Dreamworlds, they create an atmosphere where this violence is encouraged, even required among men to achieve "true manhood," while women are punished for fighting back and criticized for their "rude" manner when they do fight back (as i've heard many men do in reference to the recent POWER rallies).

I grew up learning about sex through porn, and have had to struggle to stop consuming it and to unlearn the attitudes this gave me about women. In this struggle, it has been essential to have other male friends around doing the same thing.

I invite all men to come to an end-of-the-semester meeting of the undergraduate and graduate groups for men against sexism, Men Acting for Change and Wild Intrepid Men Protesting Sexism, respectively. We will be discussing going as a group to a conference for men against sexism this summer in Providence, forming a Men's Center on campus, sponsoring a concert fundraiser for the Men's Resource Center and training men as workshop facilitators on issues of sexism, gender roles and violence against women.

It is we men who have created and are perpetuating sexism, and it is we men who must end it. We must follow the lead of our feminist sisters, but we can't make them do all the work. Please join us Monday at 8 p.m. in the Campus Center, or call me at 323-8665.

Ben Zeman is a graduate student in the education department.

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Opinion

Bill Weld's $500 hammer

Tuition and fee increases at UMass and Gov. Weld's ideas for welfare — the connections are so subtle, yet ruinous. Follow me into the realm of the real deal for just a minute, and we can explore how the conservatives are killing us softly.

On April 25, hundreds of students, administrators and faculty converged on the State House. We lobbied for state money for the public university so that our tuition and fees will not go up and the quality of services will not drop. Most of the legislators we spoke to supported us, but few of their teary eyes knew where the $21.8 million was going to come from.

However, our case is not hopeless. There is a major grassroots effort being undertaken by the SGA, and many legislators really support our budget request. There also was one spark of new hope: Rep. Marie Parente of Milford told us she is going over the state's budget, line by line. What she discovered is the Massachusetts equivalent to the Pentagon's $500 hammer.

According to Rep. Parente, the state's fiscal woes reside in the pot belly of the state's billers. Thanks to Gov. Weld, many of the state's public services and contracts are now privatized, so they do work for the state and then send them a bill.

Although privatizing certain services is a good idea, I think Gov. Weld is using state contracts as political spoils for his rich supporters. This explains why their billing goes mostly unchecked. Rep. Parente estimates that the state may be overbilled by hundreds of millions annually by these private service providers, $20 million alone by one of the corporations she is examining. Gee, where did I see that number before...?

A good governor would be all over this waste; Weld's only action is to protect the good ol' boys with a diversionary crusade on welfare spending. His plan kicks people off without first creating any jobs for them (except serving drinks in his casinos).

Also, the state is spending money to link computers with other states to catch "welfare queens" who are collecting two checks — you know how those welfare checks just add up to Easy Street. There are real welfare reforms out there, like the plan from Democratic Rep. Mark Roosevelt, who is running for governor. Weld's plan, though, is an assault on the most needy and powerless victims.

He doesn't know about the inner city; he doesn't know about the working class; he doesn't show any signs of changing.

Steven L. Cohen

Ignoring hundreds of millions in overbillings by rich corporations, Gov. Weld is attacking a few single mothers on welfare who are victims of the 127,000 jobs Massachusetts has lost since he took over. Concurrently, tuition and fees at UMass/Amherst have soared 167 percent. Something must be done, but Bill Weld — if I may borrow from Boyz 'N the Hood — he don't know, he don't show, and he don't care.

He doesn't know about the inner city; he doesn't know about the working class; he doesn't show any signs of changing. After telling the UMass students who went to Boston how he supports UMass and wants to see it become "Harvard with a subsidy" (please God, no), he still couldn't explain why his budget proposal included an increase less than the Consumer Price Index for UMass. In fiscal reality, an increase less than the rate of inflation is a euphimistic way of saying big fat decrease.

Please register and vote Democrat in November; we deserve a future and a New Deal, not casinos and a shell game shuffle.

Steven L. Cohen is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

PLO atrocities must also be condemned

To the editor:

This letter is in response to the Collegian article "The truth about the Hebron Massacre" on May 3, 1994.

Once again, on behalf of Hillel I extend my condolences to the families of the victims of the Hebron Massacre. It was a heinous crime and UMass Hillel adds its name to that of countless Jewish organizations which have distanced themselves from the act of one radical by the name of Baruch Goldstein.

But I must say that the article written in the Collegian is once again full of inaccuracies and misrepresentation. So let's talk about the facts!

Since the infamous Hebron Massacre, close to 15 Israeli civilians have been murdered while 50 have been wounded in two suicide bomb missions. A significant number of the victims have been children.

The point is twofold. For one thing, unlike the Jewish community worldwide, the Muslim community has been completely silent with respect to condemnation of these brutal killings. One wonders if the silence means agreement with the philosophy of HAMAS (the group which carried these murders out) which calls for the annihilation of the state of Israel, and the spilling of Jewish blood.

Similarly, these brutal killings are hardly a precedent, as ever since its creation in 1948 the state of Israel has been contending with Arab terrorism from inside and outside its boundaries.

Just to name a few atrocities committed by, yes you guessed it, the PLO: May 30, 1972 — shot up 27 civilians, later that year the PLO killed 11 Israeli Olympic athletes in Munich. May 1974 — took over a schoolhouse in Israel, massacring 27 children and wounding 134. October 21, 1990 — A knife-wielding Palestinian murdered three Israelis on Jerusalem street.

These examples are just a sample of the hundreds of attacks and attempted attacks on Jewish lives. These are the facts!

By the way, I am not holding my breath waiting for a statement from Muslim groups on campus who will condemn atrocities perpetrated against Jews. To put it mildly, their track record isn't the best in respect to this issue, but i would be more than pleased to be proven wrong.

Nurit Ben–Harav
President, UMass Hillel

Editor's note: Ben–Harav is the president of the UMass chapter of Hillel, but wishes to make clear that the views expressed in this letter are her own.

State vehicle almost hit a UMass student

To the editor:

On Friday, April 29, I was jogging on Meadow Street toward the intersection of North Pleasant Street. As I was running, an oncoming car swerved toward me and as it approached, the passenger door opened as if to hit me.

I stepped out of the way and the car door closed just before the car got to where I was. What shocked me more than this prank was the fat that there was a University of Massachusetts seal on the door that was opened towards me.

As the car drove by, I saw two older men laughing. One looked back and the car drove away.

I wonder what this car was doing on Meadow Street, but I am willing to allow for the possibility that these men had business off campus.

More importantly, I wonder what these men were trying to pull. I don't question their juvenile behavior as much as I question their judgement in doing such a thing while riding in a University vehicle on University time.

I only wish I had gotten a license plate number so I could properly report this incident. I also hope that such behavior isn't common among University employees.

Chris Jodlowski
English, senior

Your opinion still counts...

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian follows the same schedule as the University. That means that when classes are done for the semester, so are we.

That doesn't mean that we still wouldn't like to hear from you.

If you have something to say about a subject of general interest, type it (less than 400 words, if you please) and send it to us.

The address is: 'Letters to the Editor' c/o the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, 113 Campus Center, UMass/Amherst, Mass. 01003.

Make it snappy, though. Your time's running out. Classes end on Wednesday, May 11.

Best of luck on your finals!

Palestinians achieve self-rule

Accord signed with Israel in troubled ceremony

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associate Press

CAIRO, Egypt — The dignitaries gathered for the historic ceremony Wednesday were aghast. The documents were ready for signing to move Israelis and Palestinians closer to peace. And then PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat stalked off the stage.

The Palestinian leader refused to sign six maps that accompanied the 450-page agreement spelling out the transfer of power from Israelis to Palestinians in Gaza and the West Bank town of Jericho. Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin was ready to walk out as well.

At issue was the unresolved question of the boundaries of Jericho. Arafat was concerned that if he signed the maps he would unintentionally accept their lines.

For his part, Rabin was unwilling to go ahead unless Arafat signed the maps.

"I made it clear that unless the maps will be signed there will be no agreement," he later told reporters.

The result was disarray. Israelis and PLO officials haggled and gesticulated before their embarrassed sponsors and the bewildered audience of dignitaries.

In the confusion, Secretary of State Warren Christopher walked to the wrong podium. Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev did not hear himself called to speak.

"Amnon!" Rabin shouted, summoning head Israeli negotiator Maj. Gen. Amnon Shahak to pore over maps on stage.

Finally the dispute was resolved after the sides walked offstage, and Arafat received assurances that the disputed maps were not seen as the final version.

At last, it was time for Rabin and Arafat to sign the agreement and shake hands.

"The world witnessed the tip of the iceberg of the problems we shall have to overcome," Rabin told the 2,500 people invited to witness the signing.

With that, the ceremony to implement Palestinian self-rule in Gaza and Jericho proceeded.

It was a moment achieved only after months of difficult negotiations and repeated delays. The parties had to overcome generations of hostility, mistrust and extremist violence. The agreement, mediated by Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and Christopher, ends 27 years of Israeli control of Gaza, with its 750,000 Palestinian residents, and Jericho. There are 5,000 Palestinians in the biblical city conquered by Joshua and 5,000 in refugee camps outside.

"Chairman Arafat, our partner on a very difficult journey, we did it," Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres beamed at the PLO chairman.

"Today, we welcome our Palestinian friends as neighbors," he said.

Four dozen countries were represented at the ceremony, 17 by foreign ministers. The agreement implements the Palestinian self-rule declaration signed by Israel and the PLO on the White House lawn last September with the blessing of President Clinton. Mubarak set the date for the ceremony, which coincided with his 66th birthday.

The future is apt to be more difficult, Rabin said. "After 100 years of bloodshed it's not so simple."

Reflecting on the violence between two people claiming the same land, the former Israeli chief of staff declared "relentless bloodshed has given us no rest."

But, to ripples of applause, the prime minister said Israelis and Palestinians now may be able "to live to a ripe old age, neighbor alongside neighbor."

Mubarak, showered with praise for Egypt's role, which grew out of its pioneering 1979 peace treaty with Israel, welcomed "the peace of heroes and brave men."

"Caravans are on the move," he said. "It is now time to plant roses in place of barbed wires and land mines."

■ state

continued from page 1

ents. "This will create hardship for families already in desperate situations," said Steven Savner, staff attorney for the Massachusetts Law Reform Institute.

The budget, for the fiscal year beginning July 1, compares with current spending of $15.7 billion. The initial budget proposal submitted by Gov. William F. Weld in January totaled $16.1 billion. Finneran said his plan is higher because of differences in accounting methods.

"We're not spending one dollar more than he is," Finneran said.

The Republican governor's budget included a cut in the state income tax and expanded a series of deductions for taxpayers. It also would have increased state revenues by expanding legalized gambling to include floating casinos and electronic gaming machines at race tracks.

Finneran said the state government, which climbed out of deep deficits left by former Gov. Michael S. Dukakis and now sits on steady ground, could not afford tax cuts.

But Weld said some of his tax cuts, such as one that would expand the tax exempt status for low-income people, are "Democratic tax cuts," and he said he hoped they would win support when Republican leaders push them again during the House debate.

Weld's gambling proposals have attracted repeated criticism in the Legislature. Finneran called it "artificial wealth," and he said there isn't much support for the proposals.

Other highlights of the budget included:

- A $10 million increase for the University of Massachusetts, which Finneran said should eliminate the need for tuition and fee increases. Overall funding to state and community colleges would increase by 3 percent, but the budget also would offer early retirement to 1,500 college and university workers.
- Expansion of day care programs by nearly $13 million, partly to help the welfare recipients who would have their benefits cut.
- A $40 million increase in aid to cities and towns.
- A $10 million increase in rate relief for water and sewer customers who have seen their bills soar in recent years.

The budget also includes an attempt to change the Proposition 2 1/2 property tax cap. The proposal, which has been offered in previous years without success, would allow taxes to grow based on inflation — rather than the current 2.5 percent annual limit — as long as local voters approve it.

FOR ALL SHE MEANS TO YOU!
For Mother's Day: May 8
Every Mom you know deserves to know you care!
Send the FTD® Basket of Love™ Bouquet
Send the FTD® Mother's Day Wishes™ Bouquet
Send the FTD® Loving Thoughts™ Bouquet
Your Professional Florist
KNOWLES FLOWER SHOP
172 N. Pleasant St., Amherst
253-3805

Commuter Area Government
PROUDLY PRESENTS
The 6th Annual Spring Comedy Show
with
Jon Stewart
Host of MTV's
The JON STEWART SHOW
AND A SPECIAL GUEST
THURSDAY, MAY 5, 1994
8:00PM

The Fine Arts Center
University of Massachusetts
$3.00 UMASS STUDENTS/$5.00 GENERAL PUBLIC
TICKETS ON SALE AT THE FINE ARTS CENTER BOX OFFICE (545-2511)
Tickets holders win a chance to be on
The JON STEWART SHOW
or receive MTV's
"ROCK THE VOTE"
T-SHIRTS
* This Program Benefits Student Voter Registration *

Get Great Job Experience And Get Paid For It.
The Collegian
Editorial Positions for Fall '94
Editor-in-Chief • Managing Editor
Arts & Living • Black Affairs
Developing Nations • Editorial/Opinion
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues
Jewish Affairs • Multicultural Affairs
News • Photography
Sports • Women's Issues
Also: Copy/Night Editors, Associate Editors
Applications: Due Friday, May 6 by 5pm
Candidate's Night: Monday, May 9 • 7pm
Elections: Tuesday, May 10 • 9-4pm
For More Information & an Application, Drop by the Collegian, 113 Campus Center Basement.
The Collegian is an E.O. Employer.

• Low Rates
• Rent It Here-Leave It Here
• 24 Hr. Emergency Road Service
• Easy to Drive Trucks
Hertz PENSKE Truck Rental
• Packing Materials Available
• Air-Conditioned Trucks Featured
• Many Trucks with Auto. Trans., and Loading Ramps
• Unlimited Mileage on One-Way Rentals
AMHERST 256-8224 NORTHAMPTON 586-8391
HADLEY 586-4322 CHICOPEE 594-5186
RESERVATIONS 1-800-222-0277
COLLEGE STUDENTS
10% OFF LOCAL TRUCK RENTAL
$50 OFF ONE-WAY TRUCK RENTAL
10% OFF MOVING SUPPLIES (Boxes, Tape, Rope, Etc.)
College ID Required • With this coupon NOT VALID WITH ANY OTHER OFFER One per truck rental • Subject to availability
Hertz PENSKE Truck Rental

1994 Commencement Information

Office of the Chancellor
374 Whitmore Administration Building
Box 38370 • Amherst, MA 01003-8370
(413) 545-2211

May 2, 1994

To the Class of 1994,

As you are well aware, within a few weeks, on May 22, the completion of your undergraduate years will be recognized as the University holds its one hundred and twenty-fourth Commencement. On behalf of the faculty and staff, I congratulate you for having successfully completed the rigorous course of study leading to your degree. I know it is the result of much hard work, and you should be proud of your achievement.

While the Commencement ceremony is a celebration, it is also a formal event. There are several important ways in which you can contribute to its success. The first will be to observe the regulations concerning the prohibition of alcohol at the Stadium. Abuses in the past were widely publicized, causing considerable embarrassment to the University and subjecting us to criticism from parents, guests, and the press. Worst of all, these incidents spoiled for many, a day we want everyone to enjoy to the fullest extent possible.

In keeping with the tradition and dignity of this event, I trust that you will be respectfully attentive to the various speakers and honorary degree recipients, all of whom are distinguished people, here at our invitation.

An enormous amount of effort and thought has been devoted to the planning of this event - your event. With your ccoperation, it will reflect favorably on you and your University. We all want you, as Alumni, to look back with pride and pleasure on this special day in your life, and ours.

I look forward to joining with you, your families, and friends on May 22 to celebrate your academic accomplishments.

Best wishes to you and the best of luck in the future.

Sincerely,

David K. Scott
Chancellor

Student Affairs Special Services
236 Whitmore Administration Building
Box 38180 • Amherst, MA 01003-8180
(413) 545-3480

May 2, 1994

UNDERGRADUATE COMMENCEMENT 1994
Final Information and Instructions

To the Class of 1994:

Since there is no pre-Commencement rehearsal, please take the time to review the following material in detail. It will make it much easier for you on arrival at the Stadium on May 22, and help to ensure that the ceremony will begin and end on time. The information supplements the brochure mailed to seniors and parents in February. Additional copies are available at the Visitors Center.

Once you get to the Stadium, please look for the signs directing you to your assembly area, at which point there will be volunteer staff Marshals (identified by red sashes) to help organize the Student Processional, escort you onto the field, and assist in seating you in the appropriate location.

The ceremony will begin at 10:30 am and conclude at 11:45 am. In the event of heavy rain, it will still be held outside (at the Stadium) but the schedule will be shortened so as to conclude in less than one hour.

The Commencement Planning Committee, and their support staff, involving several hundred employees, have been working on the arrangements for this event for more than one year. We hope and trust that you will enjoy it.

While Commencement is certainly an occasion for celebration, it is also a formal ceremony. We ask for your help in making it a day in which we can all take pride. We are committed to doing all that we can do to make this event as memorable and meaningful as possible.

Thank you, and congratulations on behalf of the Planning Committee.

Robert N. Brooks, Director
Student Affairs Special Services
Undergraduate Commencement Coordinator

Student Affairs Special Services
UNDERGRADUATE COMMENCEMENT 1994

A. GENERAL INFORMATION:

1. Caps, gowns, tassels, and announcements should be picked up at the Textbook Annex between May 2 and 20, Monday-Friday, 9:00 am - 4:00 pm. Early May pick-up is strongly advised. Please bring your ID card so that your eligibility can be confirmed. On Commencement day, regalia may be obtained at the Stadium after 8:30 am.

2. Diplomas will be mailed after grades have been received, recorded, and processed by the Registrar's Office, and the diplomas have been engraved. Inquiries in this regard should be addressed to the Registrar's Office, 545-0555.

3. Index orders must be placed by May 31. Please call 545-0848 for additional information.

4. Commencement Videotapes may be ordered by calling 545-1283.

B. COMMENCEMENT DAY GENERAL INFORMATION:

1. Routes to campus/travel assistance: There are at least three other area college commencements taking place on May 22. Thus, traffic off major routes and into the Amherst area will be very heavy by 9:00 am and delays may be encountered. To assist with traffic flow, Amherst radio stations WTTT (1430 AM) and WRNX (100.9 FM) will be broadcasting traffic advisories throughout the morning.

2. Parking and shuttle services: Guests arriving on campus will be directed to designated parking lots. Beginning at 8:30 am, a free shuttle bus service, with frequent departures, will circle campus, taking you and your guests to the Stadium, and returning after the ceremony.

3. Snacks and souvenirs: Coffee, pastry, soft drinks, and donuts will be available at the Stadium prior to Commencement. University hats, banners, sweat shirts, film, and disposable cameras will also be available for purchase.

4. Food Services: Following Commencement there will be a "Food Court" immediately adjacent to the Stadium. Five food tents will serve a variety of reasonably priced items including chicken picnic baskets; vegetarian baskets; grilled quarter pound burgers; hot franks; and chicken, tofu, and beef kebabs. A grinder tent will offer pre-made and made-to-order grinders. There will also be gourmet dessert, coffee, and beverage tents. These services will offer graduates and their guests a chance to celebrate graduation while waiting out the traffic.

In addition, Graduation Luncheons, reservations required, will be featured at the Top of the Campus Restaurant (549-6000) and at the Faculty Club (545-2551). Please note that the Faculty Club does not accept credit cards.

C. ASSEMBLY INFORMATION:

1. 9:00-9:30 am: Arrive at the Stadium by 9:30 am, carrying your cap and gown.

   a. Enter by the Main Entrance Gates (opposite the Press Box)

   b. Look for signs indicating the assembly area for your school/college/major (see next section "Gate Assignments and Assembly Locations")

2. 9:30 am: Robe, after which you will receive instructions from Marshals about assembling and the Processional on to the field

3. 10:10 am: Processional of Degree Candidates begins (ready or not!)

4. 10:30 am: Ceremony begins

5. 11:45 am: Ceremony ends, and Alumni status begins!

D. GATE ASSIGNMENTS AND ASSEMBLY LOCATIONS:

After entering through the Main Entrance Gates, look for signs indicating whether you should turn left (South end) or right (North end). If the school/college of your major is:

1. Arts and Sciences - Humanities & Fine Arts: turn left and go to Gate 4
2. Arts and Sciences - Natural Sciences & Mathematics: turn left and go to Gate 4
3. Arts and Sciences - Social & Behavioral Sciences: turn left and go to Gate 3
4. B D I C: turn right and go to Gate 1
5. Continuing Education: turn right and go to Gate 1
6. Education: turn right and go to Gate 1
7. Engineering: turn right and go to Gate 2
8. Food and Natural Resources: turn right and go to Gate 1
9. Management: turn right and go to Gate 2
10. Nursing: turn right and go to Gate 2
11. Public Health & Health Sciences: turn right and go to Gate 2
12. U W W: turn right and go to Gate1

E. SUMMARY OF GATE ASSIGNMENTS AND ASSEMBLY LOCATIONS:

Gate 1: stage end, right side facing the field
- B D I C
- Continuing Education
- Education
- Food & Natural Resources
- U W W

Gate 2: stage end, left side facing the field
- Engineering
- Management
- Nursing
- Public Health & Health Sciences

Gate 3: Facilities Building end, right side facing the field
- Arts and Sciences: All Social & Behavioral Sciences majors

Gate 4: Facilities Building end - left side facing the field
- Arts and Sciences: All Humanities & Fine Arts majors
- Arts and Sciences: All Natural Sciences & Mathematics majors

F. GATE ENTRANCES BY DEGREE PROGRAM/MAJOR: *

Because of the allocation of chairs on the field, please use the gate indicated and sit with the appropriate school or college (see "Stadium Plan").

Major	Gate
Accounting	2
Afro-Am Studies (HFA)	4
Animal Science	1
Anthropology (SBS)	3
Apparel Marketing	1
Art Education (HFA)	4
Art History (HFA)	4
Astronomy (NSM)	4
Bachelor of Gen Stu/CE	1
B D I C	1
Biochem/Mol Bio (NSM)	4
Biology (NSM)	4
Botany (NSM)	4
Chemical Engineering	2
Chemistry (NSM)	4
Chin Lang & Lit (HFA)	4
Civil Engineering	2
Classics (HFA)	4
Classics & Phil (HFA)	4
Communication (SBS)	3
Computer Science (NSM)	4
Communication Disorders	2
Comparative Lit (HFA)	4
Computer Syst Engin	2
Dance (HFA)	4
Design	4
Economics (SBS)	3
Education	1
Electrical Engineering	2
English (HFA)	4
Entomology	1
Environmental Design	1
Environmental Sciences	1
Exercise Science	2
Family & Consumer Sci	1
Finance & Opns Mgmt	2
Food Science	1
Forestry	1
French (HFA)	4
Geography (NSM)	4
Geology (NSM)	4
German (HFA)	4
History (HFA)	4
H R T A	1
Human Nutrition	2
indust Engr & Opns Res	2
integrated Pest Mgmt	1
interdisciplinary	3 or 4
Italian Studies (HFA)	4
Japanese Lang/Lit (HFA)	4
Journalism (HFA)	4
Judaic Studies (HFA)	4
Landscape Architecture	1
Legal Studies (SBS)	3
Leisure St & Resources	1
Linguistics & Anthro	3 or 4
Linguistics & Chinese	3 or 4
Linguistics & German	3 or 4
Linguistics & Japanese	3 or 4
Linguistics & Philosophy	3 or 4
Linguistics & Psychology	3 or 4
Linguistics & Russian	3 or 4
Management	2
Marketing	2
Mathematics (NSM)	4
Mechanical Engineering	2
Medical Tech (NSM)	4
Microbiology (NSM)	4
Music (HFA)	4
Natural Res Studies	1
Near Eastern St (HFA)	4
Nursing	2
Philosophy (HFA)	4
Physics (NSM)	4
Plant Pathology	1
Plant & Soil Sci	1
Political Science (SBS)	3
Portuguese (HFA)	4
Pre-Dental (NSM)	4
Pre-Medical (NSM)	4
Prof Prep in Phys Ed	1
Psychology (SBS)	3
Public Health	2
Resource Economics	1
Russian (HFA)	4
Science (NSM)	4
Sociology (SBS)	3
Sov & East Eur St (HFA)	4
Spanish (HFA)	4
Sport Management	1
STEPEC (SBS)	3
Studio Art (HFA)	4
Theater (HFA)	4
U W W	1
Wildlife & Fisheries Bio	1
Women's Studies (HFA)	4
Wood Sci & Technology	1
Zoology (NSM)	4

* HFA = Humanities & Fine Arts • NSM = Natural Sci & Math • SBS = Social & Behavioral Sci

G. SOME REMINDERS FOR YOU AND YOUR GUESTS:

1. Tickets are not required and there is no limit on the number of guests you may invite.
2. There are no reserved seats in the stands.
3. State law and University regulations prohibit the use of alcohol at the Stadium.
4. Advise your guests to allow sufficient travel time because of anticipated traffic congestion in the area on May 22. Plan ahead!

H. FOR ADDITIONAL INFORMATION:

Academic status/eligibility	545-0555
Caps and gowns	545-3570
Diplomas	545-0555
Disability Services	545-0892
Food Services	545-2472
Other	545-0306, 545-3480, 545-6006

A.L. Arts & Living Weekly

SPRING CONCERT nineteen ninety-four

This Sunday will be cool. Huh-huh, huh-huh...

By MATTANNETTE BRUNELLE and BARBARA Collegian Staff

The sun is warm, the grass is dewy and classes are getting increasingly difficulty to attend. These are, of course, some of the many signs of springtime here in our little Happy Valley. However, the biggest event that signifies the coming of spring to our State U. is the all–day party on the pond, known around these parts as the Spring Concert.

Each year, those nutty people at UPC gather together an eclectic group of talent to entertain us for a Sunday afternoon. This year, five excellent bands have been assembled to turn the lawn outside the Fine Arts Center into a swirling mass of humanity. Let's take a look at them.

The Violent Femmes will be making a return visit to the Valley to headline, after playing this annual spring fling a few years ago. The Femmes are one of those bands who truly defy description, but who have also seemed to slink their way into all of our music collections.

Hailing from the auspicious musical stomping grounds of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, this trio formed during the late seventies, combining the brash teen angst and angry aura of punk with a more rootsy, acoustic sound. It is this music that provided a unique outlet for the youth of America, as their self–titled debut album became an instant classic. Songs like "Kiss Off," "Please Do Not Go," and "Add it Up," are tightly wound musical crises to which everyone knows the words.

Their trademark sound has grown and developed over the past years, but never has it been commercialized or mainstreamed. Albums like Hallowed Ground, The Blind Leading the Naked, 3, and Why Do Birds Sing? continue to carry on the folk–punk sound, with Brian Ritchie's swooping acoustic bass and lead singer–guitarist's Gordon Gano's off key wailing continuing to be the trademarks off their music.

And still, the Femmes forge on through the musical tides, defying definition and the odds by being all at once bizzare, yet instantly real and familiar. How real is the Violent Femmes' music?

As real as the thousands of people at Great Woods screaming the words, "When I'm walking, I strut my stuff, and I'm so strung out..." at the top of their lungs, with all the joy and understanding in the world. The Femmes are headlining our Spring Concert this year, so get excited, and when the singer starts to wonder, "Why can't I get just one kiss?," jump up and sing along, because I bet you know all the words.

Filling the spot that The Wailers held at last year's concert are reggae revisionists Black Uhuru. Since emerging on the musical scene in the mid–seventies the band has been artfully combining thought provoking lyrics with slinky reggae rhythms, taking the foundations that people like Bob Marley laid down, and developing them one step further.

Plagued by constant line–up changes throughout the years, the band has still managed to create important, as well as influential albums that are destined to be classics one day.

The band was the recipient of reggae's first–ever grammy, and their latest album, Mystical Truth may also be destined for greatness. Addressing many of today's most challenging political and social concerns such as racism and world hunger, and fusing elements of rap into their style, Black Uhuru has proved that they are ready to bring reggae into the '90s.

So get out there and show these living legends some support. They may make you think, as well as move your butt.

Also returning are college rock heros and UMass alumni Buffalo Tom. Since 1989, when the band released it's self–titled debut, they have been quickly blazing a trail up the alternative charts with their no–nonsense brand of passionate rock.

Hitting their stride with the release of their sophomore effort Birdbrain, a stunning combination of fierce guitar hooks and singer Bill Janowitz's emotionally charged lyrics, the band began to develop their signature style. Taking the best elements from such alternative giants as Husker Du and The Replacements, and the firmly rooted rock n' roll sensibilities of artists such as Neil Young, Buffalo Tom slowly emerged as a band that even the fussiest of music lovers could get into.

Toning down some of the distorted frenzy, the band released Let Me Come Over in 1992 to mass critical acclaim. With a powerful mixture of intense rockers and soulful ballads, the album secured their spot as college radio faves.

In a move which surprisingly went against the grain of the current musical trends, the band decided to turn down the distortion, while everyone else in the musical world is turning them up.

Employing famed producers the Robb Brothers, the band concentrated more on writing songs than than trying to blow out their amps.

With a reputation for energetic live shows, and the fact that they are returning their alma mater, Buffalo Tom promises to make this one homecoming worth remembering.

The name you may be wondering about is Taj Mahal.

Besides being the moniker for a particularly large and beautiful edifice somewhere in India, It is also the name of one of the most eclectic and exciting live performers to fuse blues, reggae, jazz, and many other styles inspired by African–American musical roots into one seamless and energetic sound.

Taj has preforming this kind of roots music for over thirty years, and has released a number of both critically and popularly successful albums over the past few decades. These include Giant Step, The Natch'l Blues, and his latest release, Like Never Before.

Taj is truly a master musician, as he has taught himself to play more than a dozen instruments, including guitar, piano, harmonica, banjo and mandolin. His upbringing as the son of a West Indian jazz arranger and a South Carolinia gospel singer has had an obvious profound affect on his stylistic range.

But above and beyond any critical acclaim or adept musical ability, Taj has the reputation for one of the most high–energy and emotionally charged shows around. Don't miss out on this jazz–blues–roots extravaganza.

Of course, the show will opened by local favorites, and jam–masters Synesthesia. Look for these guys from Lynn, Mass. to solidify their name as one of the Valley's best proponents of hard jazz as they kick off this Sunday's festivities with a bang.

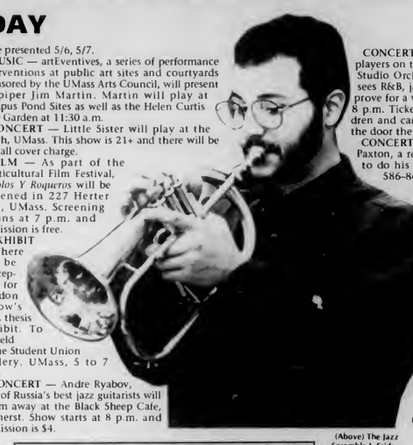
Calendar of Events

THURSDAY

DANCE — AHORA, the UMass Spanish Speaking Organization, is proud to present Gilberto Santa Rosa y su Orquestra in his first USA/World tour, performing for a semi-formal salsa dance. Known as the Gentleman of Salsa, Gilberto Santa Rosa has been a recording artist since the age of 14 as well as being in the theater since 1990. The dance will be held in the Student Union Ballroom of UMass at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $13 for 5-College students, $15 for the general public and may be purchased at the Fine Arts Center Box Office or TIX Unlimited at the Student Union.

CONCERT — Featuring captivating vocal percussions, complex harmonies, and a range of pop, rap, R&B, and jazz to complete their repertoire, The Housejacks will be at the Iron Horse, Northampton. With their motto "A Cappella in your face", this group of crooners should charm the night away. Showtime is 7 p.m. Tickets are $10.50 in advance. For tickets call 586-8686 or 1-800-THE-TICK.

THEATER — In it's third night, Writing on a Frosted Window Pane, a play by John Binnie, the joint artistic director of the Clyde Unity Theater in Glasgow, Scotland, will be presented at Hampden Theater, UMass. Binnie has been a playwright in residence at UMass for six weeks and in working with Theater professor Richard Trousdell as well as 5-College students, Binnie has created a "memory piece" drawing on life experiences of all those involved in the production. Showtime is 8 p.m. and admission is $5 for general public, $3 for students and senior citizens and will be available at the Fine Arts Center Box Office, 545-2511. Also to be presented 5/6, 5/7.



MUSIC — artEventives, a series of performance interventions at public art sites and courtyards sponsored by the UMass Arts Council, will present Bagpiper Jim Martin. Martin will play at Campus Pond Sites as well as the Helen Curtis Cole Garden at 11:30 a.m.

CONCERT — Little Sister will play at the Hatch, UMass. This show is 21+ and there will be a small cover charge.

FILM — As part of the Multicultural Film Festival, Cocolos Y Roqueros will be screened in 227 Herter Hall, UMass. Screening begins at 7 p.m. and admission is free.

EXHIBIT — There will be a reception for Landon Pillow's MFA thesis exhibit. To be held at the Student Union Gallery, UMass, 5 to 7 p.m.

CONCERT — Andre Ryabov, one of Russia's best jazz guitarists will strum away at the Black Sheep Cafe, Amherst. Show starts at 8 p.m. and admission is $4.

(Above) The Jazz Ensemble I, Friday, 8 p.m. in the Bowker Auditorium

FRIDAY

CONCERT — Ernie Watts, one of the most versatile and prolific saxophone players on the musical scene today, will join Jazz Ensemble I and the University Studio Orchestra, under the direction of Jeff Holmes. Watts has said that he sees R&B, jazz, and be-bop as dialects in the language of music, which should prove for a versatile night of music. To be held in Bowker Auditorium, UMass at 8 p.m. Tickets are $6 for the general public, $3 for students, seniors, and children and can be purchased at the Fine Arts Center Box Office, 545-2511, or at the door the evening of the concert.

CONCERT — Tom Paxton, with Chuck Brodsky, will play at the Iron Horse. Paxton, a revered singer-songwriter whose appeal spans several decades, is back to do his magic. Showtime is 7 p.m. and admission is $10. For tickets call 586-8686 or 1-800-THE-TICK.

SPECIAL EVENT — Regarded as one of the highest forms of classical horsemanship, the Royal Lipizzaner Satllions will bring their leaps and acrobatics to the Mullins Center, UMass. Showtime is 7:30 p.m. Tickets are between $17.50 and $13.50. Discount for UMass students/faculty/staff, seniors, children and groups of 15 or more. For more information call 545-0505. Also 5/7.

FILM — The Cook, The Thief, His Wife and Her Lover will be screened at Patterson House, Hampshire College at 8 p.m. Also to be shown 5/8.

CONCERT — John O'Connor, a folksinger and songwriter, will perform at the Black Sheep Cafe at 8 p.m. Admission is $4.

THEATER — The Victory Players will present a performance of Neil Simon's Broadway Bound at the Easthampton Town Hall. This play is part three in the autobiographical trilogy Simon wrote, picking up where Brighton Beach Memoires and Biloxi Blues ended. Admission is $7.50 for the general public and $6.50 for seniors and children. Also to run 5/7, 5/8.

CONCERT — Home and Doom Nation will play at the Hatch, UMass. This show is 21+ and there will be a cover charge at the door.

LECTURE — Beth Silverman will discuss Uriko Yamaguchi's Origin #1: Universal Harmony. To be held at the Smith College Art Museum, 12:15 p.m.

CONCERT — The Machine, a Pink Floyd tribute, will play Pearl Street, Northampton at 9 p.m. Admission is $6 in advance and $8 at the door.

SUNDAY

CONCERT — The University Chamber Choir and Madrigal Singers will perform "Five Centuries of Choral Treasures and Remembrances", director E. Wayne Abercrombie. Works by Ockeghem, Bach, and Britten. To be held in Bowker Auditorium, UMass. Tickets between $6 and $3, UMass students free with ID. Showtime is 4 p.m.

CONCERT — The Hampshire Choral Society Spring Concert will feature the Faure Requiem and Cantique de Jean Racine as well as shorter songs by Faure and Saint-Saens. To be held at John M. Greene Hall, Smith College, 8 p.m. Admission is $7 and $5 for seniors and children. All mothers free!

CONCERT — Laurie Lewis and the Grant Street Band will bring their prize-winning fiddling and powerful vocals, as well as accompaniment on mandolin, bass, and guitar, will be at the Iron Horse, Northampton. Showtime is 7 p.m. Admission is $10.50 in advance. For tickets call 586-8686 or 1-800-THE-TICK.

The House Jacks, Thursday, 7 p.m. at the Iron Horse

SATURDAY

CONCERT — The Asparagus Valley Contemporary Music Ensemble will play at Buckley Recital Hall, Amherst College, 8 p.m.

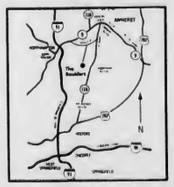
WORKSHOP — The 12th Annual New England Saxophone Symposium will be held between 8 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. at UMass. For information call 545-2810.

CONCERT — Issleberry-Dupree, rich with emotional truth and heartfelt politics, their voices overflowing with reggae-based style blending with American jazz, Caribbean, folk, African and gospel, will play at the Iron Horse, Northampton. Showtime is 7 p.m. Admission is $12.50. For tickets call 586-8686 or 1-800-THE-TICK.

THEATER — The Limelight Outdoor Spring Performance, Amherst College's theater troupe, will perform on front of the Mead Art Museum, 7 p.m. If bad weather, Babbot Room, Octagon.

FILM — The Graduate, a landmark film by Mike Nichols, starring Dustin Hoffman, will play in the Amherst College Campus Center Theater. Screenings at 7:30 and 10 p.m. Admission. Also 5/6.

CONCERT — The University Orchestra, with director Patrick C. Smith, featuring soloist and composition competition winners will perform at the Fine Arts Center, UMass. Perfor-mance to begin at 8 p.m. Tickets are $8 and $4, UMass students free with ID.



Look at What We've Done Now...

THE BOULDERS

The BOULDERS 256-8534

Leasing Apartments Now!

- New Huge 2 Bedroom Apartments Available:
  ☆ NEW APPLIANCES ☆ NEW COUNTERS/CABINETS ☆ NEW CARPETS & TILE ☆
- New Exercise Facility
  ☆ STAIRMASTER ☆ LIFECYCLE ☆ UNIVERSAL ☆
- Newly Renovated Hallways, Stairways & Entrances
- Free Heat/Free Hot Water/5 College Bus Stop on Property
- New Parking Areas & Landscaping

The Boulders Apartment Complex is conveniently located 1/2 mile from Downtown Amherst. Come check out our "Move In Special" for the fall today. When you stop by we will be renovating so pardon our dust. THANKS!

Directions to THE BOULDERS from Amherst Center & Route 9

essex apartments — An Essex Partners' Community, Formerly Brittany Manor

CLIFFSIDE APARTMENTS
248 Amherst Rd.
Sunderland, MA 01375
(413) 665-3958
Office Hours: M-F 8:30-5:30 Sat. 10-2

Cliffside - Priced to Let You Live Alone!
- Eff., 1, 2 & 3 Bedroom Apartments
- Rents from $460 includes all utilities
- W/W Carpeting • On Site Laundry Facilities
- On Bus Route (Free Fare) • Pool & Tennis Courts
- 28 Acres of Wooded Hiking Trails

Only Minutes to UMASS, Shopping & Rt.91

A welcome home to Buffalo Tom

COURTESY CLAYTON MILLER

UMass alumni Bill Janovitz, Tom Maginnis and Chris Colburn are Buffalo Tom.

By BRIAN BABINEAU
Collegian Staff

They are living proof that you should keep your eyes keenly fixed on the local music scene, because you never know what might happen. Any one of our little UMass bands could bust out and become the next big thing on the alternative music scene.

That is exactly what has happened to UMass alumni Buffalo Tom, who, with last year's release, Big Red Letter Day, have achieved a success that band members Bill Janovitz, Chris Colburn and Tom Maginnis could have only dreamed of once.

Now, having reached that level of success, they return to the Valley to help whip the Spring Concert into a warm and wonderful frenzy.

Buffalo Tom drummer Tom Maginnis recently took a few minutes to talk about the band's UMass days, its growing success, and why the band is not intentionally named after him.

"The name was actually a joke. Our lead singer's name is Bill [Janovitz], so we thought of Buffalo Bill, then changed it to Buffalo Tom, sort of making fun of me as the drummer."

But before Maginnis even got together with Janovitz or bassist Chris Colburn, they knew of each other's activities in other bands. Having spent the first few years of college playing in other bands, the three knew of each other through the music scene here at the University.

The fact that they all played in other bands created an interesting problem when they finally got together — they all played guitar.

"Yeah, we all really played guitar," Maginnis said. "I had never really played drums in a band before. We just kind of got together, and it was more natural for me to play drums — those other two just weren't coordinated enough to play drums."

Their first real gig together was a local place called "The Watering Hole."

"We didn't even get free beer! We had to bring our own," Maginnis recalled, somewhat fondly.

All silliness aside, the band did get more play, and after a toiling in Boston, got their big break when a recording company in Holland signed them to make an album.

"We had made a few demos, and gotten a few rejections. But when this company picked us up, it was like, 'Hey, we can do this. We're gonna make a record,'" Maginnis said. "I knew that was our first big step."

The band has taken many bigger steps since then, and joined such acts as Pavement, Pearl Jam and Public Enemy playing sold out stadiums in Europe during summer festivals. Albums like Birdbrain, Let Me Come Over, and Big Red Letter Day have received critical praise and popular attention. How does all this success affect the band?

"Success changes your life completely," commented Maginnis. "You can't ever go back to the way things were. There's enormous pressure and suddenness some-

Turn to BUFFALO, page 11

Words for weary concert-goers

A few reasons not to fret about Spring Concert '94

By CALEB COCHRAN
Collegian Staff

Stop your bitching.

You heard me. I know a lot of you are complaining about the lineup of bands for this year's Spring Concert. I'll be honest: I'm not real impressed either. But to complain about a free concert that features some pretty good bands is really ridiculous.

Pearl Jam isn't coming. So what? Where were you two years ago when they played in the Student Union Ballroom? I walked right by. I had no idea who Eddie Vedder was at the time, and I had yet to learn about a troubled young lad named Jeremy.

Times have changed, and I would love the chance to see Pearl Jam just as much as the next guy. But since they already played here, I have no right to complain.

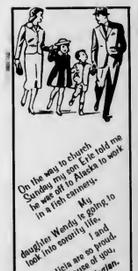
Any other favorite bands you'd like to see at the concert? How about the Beastie Boys? Wouldn't that be cool? Sorry, folks, they played the Spring Concert just two years ago. Fishbone? Same concert. The Lemonheads? They came to UMass during the 1990-91 school year, as did the now defunct 10,000 Maniacs. Pretty impressive, eh?

Don't worry, I'm just warming up. Ziggy Marley? Did it, 1989-90. Living Colour? 1988-89. INXS? 1985-86. Elvis Costello? 1983-84. Okay, I was in fourth grade and didn't attend too many concerts at the time, but he did come. R.E.M.? 1984-85.

Here's the topper: U2. Bowker Auditorium, 1982. Think about that concert for a second. Before Bono became the Fly, or whatever the hell he calls himself, U2 was simply a great band on the way up. The folks who showed up at Bowker were treated to a rare glimpse of a legendary band in their diaper stages.

Are there any budding legends on tap at this year's concert? Maybe not. Violent Femmes played here back in 1985-86, so it's hard to call them a young band. Taj Mahal was here in 1979-80. Enough said. I have to plead ignorance on both Synaesthesia and Black Uhuru. The gem of this show, in my opinion, will be the homegrown UMass band Buffalo Tom. If you're looking for a reason to stop moaning about this year's lineup, they're it.

Do I have a point here? Believe it or not, I do. I'm not trying to earn brownie points with UPC, but I think students have to realize that it's tough to come up with the cash to pay for an established, big-time band at the apex of success. Pearl Jam is a good example. UPC could pay for them two years ago; now they're untouchable. It's all a matter of timing. Who knows, maybe five years from now you'll be saying, "Dude, I saw Synaesthesia play at the UMass Spring Concert when nobody knew who they were. Now they're huge!" It could happen. So you'd better go.



BUY BEER & WINE on SUNDAYS from Noon to Closing.

Montague Mini Mart

Discount Prices!

10 Minutes From UMASS Campus

• Reasonable Cigarette Prices •
from Amherst: 10 miles north on Rt. 63 to Rt. 47N
from Northampton: 14 miles I-91 north to Rt. 116 to Rt. 47N
(Follow signs to Montague Center • Proper ID Required)
Open 7 Days from 9-9 • 367-9551

NORTHAMPTON SOARING

SAILPLANE
• MILE HIGH RIDE / 5,000 FT. FOR 2 Reg $159.90 SALE $139.90
• STANDARD RIDE / 3,000 FT. FOR 2 $119.90

Mother's Day Gift Certificates Available

HOT AIR BALLOON RIDES PER PERSON / Reg $199.95 SALE $179.95

For More Information and other Ride Prices, Call Captain Steve at 584-2599
Large Groups Welcome. Create Your Own Artisan Party Complete with Fireworks & Huge Balloon Baskets

Located at Northampton Airport • Old Ferry Road • Northampton, MA 01060

A "SIESTA" OF VALUES! RIGHT HERE AT...
LIQUORS 44
BEER WINE LIQUORS

ICEHOUSE, ALL BUD & MICHELOB BARRELS $39.99 + DEP. ½ BARREL
MOLSON ICE CASE OF 2-12 PK. CANS $13.49 + DEP.
BUD DRY CASE OF 2-12 PK. CANS $10.49 + DEP.
CORONA & CORONA LIGHT 12 PK. BOTTLES $8.49 + DEP.
NATURAL LIGHT CASE OF 24-12 OZ. CANS $8.29 + DEP.
AMERICAN & AMERICAN LIGHT CASE OF 24-12 OZ. CANS $7.29 + DEP.

WINE OF THE MONTH
MIRASSOU ZINFANDEL, SAUVIGNON BLANC, & WHITE ZINFANDEL $3.79 750 ML
PAUL MASSON WINES ALL FLAVORS 3.0 LITER $5.99
RENE JUNOT FRENCH RED & WHITE TABLE WINES $4.99 1.5 LITER
BERINGER WHITE ZINFANDEL $3.99 750 ML
NAPA RIDGE CHARDONNAY & CABERNET SAUVIGNON $4.99 750 ML
MARTINI & ROSSI ASTI SPUMANTE SALE $8.49 MAIL-IN REBATE $2.00 AFTER REBATE $6.49 750 ML

DEWARS SCOTCH $24.49 1.75L
GORDON'S GIN SALE $12.49 MAIL-IN REBATE $3.00 AFTER REBATE $9.49 1.75L
CUERVO GOLD TEQUILA $10.49 750 ML
SOUTHERN COMFORT $13.99 1.75L
RON ROMBERTO WHITE RUM $9.49 1.75L
ZHENKA VODKA SALE $8.99 MAIL IN REBATE $2.00 $6.99 1.75L AFTER REBATE

AT STOP & SHOP PLAZA IN
HADLEY Campus Plaza/Route 9 253-9344
HOLYOKE 30 Lincoln St. 534-4555
We Accept All Cans and Bottles for Redemption
SALE PRICES THURS 5/5/94 THRU WEDS. 5/11/94
NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR TYPOGRAPHICAL ERRORS

UMass Summer Session 1994

- Missed a course? Make it up!
- Advance in next semester's work
- Fulfill a requirement
- Learn something new

Over 200 credit courses offered.

Two, six-week sessions:
First session: June 7-July 15
Second session: July 19-August 25

Register Now!

Catalogs available all over campus or at the Division of Continuing Education, 6th floor Goodell Building, 545-2414.

A quality education at affordable prices.

Goofing off with MTV's Jon Stewart

By EMILY MARINO
Collegian Staff

Why would anyone pay money to see an average guy, of less-than-average height, talk about normal stuff in the big old Fine Arts Center tonight?

If you have watched MTV within the past four months, chances are you have some clue as to who Jon Stewart is. You may have seen him spending a day in the life of supermodel Cindy Crawford, or interviewing Howard Stern. You may have even seen him on "The Late Show with David Letterman."

To many MTV fans, the 29-year-old host of his self-titled talk show is just a goofy guy who gets to interview celebrities, often with the endearing, humorous grace of an awkward high school jokester who, deep down, knows exactly how cute he is.

"I think I appeal more to convicts," Stewart joked about his television success. "People without any hope — I'm there for them when they're not going to get out."

Stewart's over-the-phone chiding, from a hotel room in New York City (allegedly clad in a taupe teddy), illustrated the modesty with which he deals with the famous people he interviews. His down-to-earth approach makes the celebrities more accessible to the audience, and Stewart's off-the-wall questions win the viewers every time.

"Maybe I am a little goofy," Stewart confessed. "When people ask you how you appeal to others, you don't know because you don't know them," Stewart explained. "I can only be myself, and if that's something that someone might find appealing, that's great."

Although being in front of a camera seems to suit Stewart quite well (he asserted that he is "actually incredibly small," and "through the magic of mirrors is how [he appears] to be full-sized"), television fame was not always a clear-cut goal.

A native of New Jersey, Stewart earned a bachelor's degree in psychology at the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, Virginia.

The transition Stewart made from analyzing Freudian theory to interviewing famed personalities was not exactly influenced by the comedian's artistic vision.

COURTESY JIM SCHEER PUBLIC RELATIONS

Jon Stewart looks like someone you could bring home to mom, doesn't he?

"It is so much easier to get a late-night talk show on the air than it is to get a job in psychology," said Stewart, who added that his decision to study psychology in the first place was driven by the fact that he "loved experimenting on rats."

After graduation, Stewart moved to New York City's Greenwich Village and began to work the comedy circuit. Eventually his popularity earned him gigs at bigger clubs, like Caroline's and Stand Up New York. A shot on the Letterman show marked the beginning of Stewart's TV career.

Stewart's first television endeavors include appearances on HBO's "Young Comedians Special," Comedy Central's "Short Attention Span Theater," and MTV's "You Wrote It, You Watch It."

Now, a little over four months into "The Jon Stewart Show," the host says that he enjoys "the irreverence of the show." Although he feels somewhat limited by the half-hour time slot, he asserted that the only thing he would rather do for a living is shave small, short-haired dogs professionally.

In terms of Stewart's perception of his role at MTV, he feels that he inevitably falls into the network's commercialization of art and pop culture.

"I think the initial goal of MTV was always very corporate," Stewart explained. "No one is altruistic in this business, believe me. People got into MTV because they saw that it would be a money-making venture. There is a lot of artistic value that comes out of it, but certainly the bottom line for any of this, is if MTV didn't make any money, MTV wouldn't be here any more. It's an unfortunate reality of the business world."

Stewart said that the part of the job involving interviewing the likes of Cindy Crawford is still, at times intimidating.

"It's funny when you spend a day with her, you sort of forget she's her; and then every now and again you look at her and go 'whoa! Cindy Crawford!'"

Despite the on-screen chemistry Crawford and Stewart share, he asserted that there was nothing but a friendship going on behind the scenes. In fact, Stewart revealed that he is not currently dating anyone, due to the fact that he has been very busy. The 5'7" Stewart also said that he generally likes short women.

"[Women] between 5'1" and 5'4" I have always found to be a spectacular height," said Stewart. "I dated a tall woman once. She was six feet tall, and used to wear heels, and at the time I was sort of laid up on crutches. She used to kiss me on the forehead in front of people, just to ruin me. She did it merely to emasculate me."

Stewart currently lives in the Village (a section of New York that he describes as "a place where Jersey kids come to throw up on the weekends"), with cats Stanley and Sydney.

Favorite bands of the MTV personality are Amherst's own Buffalo Tom, as well as Smashing Pumpkins. Stewart's guilty pleasures include Budweiser beer and Camel Light cigarettes.

If you do check out Stewart's FAC performance tonight, you'll likely discover his goofy appeal. If you stick around after the show, you might even ask Stewart if he'd like to check out Buffalo Tom at the Spring Concert on Sunday, or go uptown for a beer.

"Oh sure, you can buy me a beer," Stewart replied to the Collegian's offer. "What, are you kidding me?"

Jon Stewart will be performing tonight at 8 p.m. at the Fine Arts Center. Tickets are $5 general public, $3 student. Call 545-2511 for info.

There is No Escape from dumb action

By DANIEL PELLEGRINI
Collegian Correspondent

The future looks mighty grim for the primal prisoners fighting for their lives in the new action film No Escape. And, as a matter of fact, the future looks even more grim for the movie itself.

The only true test for an all-out action movie is whether or not it has that edge of intelligence that is needed to compliment and humanize the action. No Escape fails in that respect, and instead offers us nothing more than a dull, anti- climatic and extremely unconvincing show of the struggle for freedom through primitive warfare.

> The future looks even more grim for the movie itself.

The plot is your basic cliche. Mercenary soldier Robbins (Ray Liotta) is imprisoned and sent to a secluded island for life. The island is divided into two communities: one a sinister army of guerilla warriors (who look like they borrowed their costumes from The Return of the Jedi's lovable Ewoks), while the other is a civilized tribe headed by a peaceful, aging guru-type played by Lance Henrickson.

Liotta is first captured by the evil tribesmen that force him to duel with one of their own, only to find themselves impressed with Liotta's expertise in combat as he drops his opponent dead within a matter of seconds.

Liotta then escapes the Ewok tribe and encounters the civilized community, who are also amused by his fierce battle technique and ask him to join them. Of course, tough guy Liotta is too macho and self-reliant to join at first, but after he befriends a moronic teenage prisoner (Kevin Dillion), he feels the need to aid the struggling community in defeating its rival tribe.

The problem with this film is that here is no coherence — the movie makes no sense at all. Director Martin Campbell tries to splice sappy melodrama with some slapstick comedy, and then gloss the whole thing over with hard-to-believe action sequences. Instead of picking one direction, the film jumps all over the place, changing moods with every changing scene. The result is confusing, and in turn never allows the audience to be enthralled.

Casting Liotta as the instinctive refugee/warrior wasn't much help, either. As his character is supposed to be the identifiable one, he comes off as flat and two-dimensional. Instead of rooting for him, his excessive stubbornness and hardshell attitude make him one of the most unlikable characters in the film.

The other characters in No Escape are just as weary. The leader of the adversary tribe is yet another failed attempt at the slick villain Alan Rickman played in Die Hard. He is supposed to be here for comic relief, and at the same time be a sadistic dictator. However, his jokes are so outlandish and dumb he comes off like a five-year-old in a beard and a funny outfit.

At one point, he walks out onto the balcony to address the masses after he murders a skeptical member of his tribe. With his sinister glare aimed directly at the camera he snarls, "I just really wanted to be in charge, Okay?" It cradles the border of absurdity.

Aside from all the chaos this film has to offer, the most uncanny and nonsensical aspect is the direction. The opening five minutes make it seem as though the film is a murder mystery left over from the '50s, before it evolves into a mixture of Lord of the Flies, First Blood, Robin Hood and Escape From New York.

No Escape keeps awkwardly going back to the style of a World War II picture (the film's bamboo landscape is right out of Bridge on the River Kwai), with Liotta as the American soldier stationed on some Hawaiian Naval Base, always standing on the shore staring at the red sunset shimmering off the ocean.

All in all, No Escape runs amok. It picks out various fragments of other action/survival films and just glues them together with the hope of creating a story in the process. Perhaps if this film concentrated its energy on exploring the survival technique rather than dropping back to the feeble subplots, there is a chance it could have been rescued. D

Roberts' magical jazz inspires awe

By JORMA KANSANEN
Collegian Staff

Marcus Roberts with
The Amherst College Jazz Ensemble
Buckley Recital Hall, Amherst College
May 3, 1994

With the number of musical acts that come to the Five- College Area each year, it is hard for the casual listener to grasp upon who is who, and what style they actually represent.

Sometimes when you see a band live, you wonder why you actually liked them in the first place. Other times, an aura of dread can come over you when first hearing a performer that stirs the soul, and has been there for your listening pleasure all the while.

Last Tuesday evening the Amherst College Jazz Ensemble, with guest artist Marcus Roberts, performed to a capacity crowd in Buckley Recital Hall. An acclaimed pianist and winner of the first Thelonius Monk International Jazz Competition in 1987, Mr. Roberts has begun to establish himself as one of the masters of the traditional jazz scene.

From clinics and seminars to both group and solo recordings, a quest to further the availability of jazz music encapsulates Roberts' life. Touring in Wynton Marsalis' band for six years and having his first three releases hit No. 1 on the Billboard jazz charts doesn't hurt this mission much, either.

> Bill Bares breathed a thoughtful, understated solo into this melody, while Roberts right hand lead permeated through me like the wind on a slow, summer day.

With the evening's program divided into three parts, the Amherst College Jazz Ensemble took the stage first. What was lost in the tone and clarity was easily made up for in their spirited performance. Spiritual quality was especially notable in the opening piece "Cherokee," arranged by Jr. a few years back, trumpet player Bill Bares breathed a thoughtful, understated solo into this melody, while Roberts right hand lead permeated through me like the wind on a slow, summer day.

Ensemble broke down into a quartet on the piece Roberts recorded with Marsalis, "Do You Know What It Means To Miss New Orleans?". Covered by Harry Connick, Jr. a few years back, trumpet player Bill Bares breathed a thoughtful, understated solo into this melody, while Roberts right hand lead permeated through me like the wind on a slow, summer day.

Hampshire College student Amber de Laurentis.

The second segment of the program brought Roberts to his piano, accompanied by the Ensemble. The highlight occured when the

In the final segment of the night, Roberts took the stage for himself, and tried his hands with tunes by Miles Davis and George Gershwin. On Davis' composition, written originally for Charlie Parker, Roberts definitely had that flair that made Miles into one of jazz' legends.

Rumbling with the left hand bass line, while dabbling single note and rolling lead bursts, Roberts ripped the scales in this tune to shreds.

By the end of the night's program, and after a pair of encores, Roberts left me in awe of the talent and expertise in his handling of both his solo and covered work. Sometimes the best things in life are the ones that hit you out of the blue. This evening, it was truly applicable.

"You know Andy, I remember the first time I composed a poem."
"Gee, Dad, Um... you mean you write poems too..?"
"Sure son, nothing wrong with that. Yessiree Bob, I wrote that first poem to my Drill Sargent Brad. Ahh... those were the days. Combat boots, push-ups, green pants, Army Life!!! Memories..."
COLLEGIAN
We've got too much time on our hands.

Spirit Haus
LIQUOR STORE

Bud & Bud Light case cans $12.99
Coors, Coors light, Coors Gold case bottles.....$12.99
Miller Genuine Draft & Miller Genuine Draft Light cans.....$3.50/six $11.95/case
Bud Dry 12-pack cans $5.99
Meister Brau & Meister Brau Light 12-pack cans...$3.99
Rolling Rock Bock & Catamount Bock $4.49/six
Sharps N.A. Bottles $3.25/six $12.49/case
Poland Spring Vodka 1.75 Liter $8.99
Poland Spring Rum 1.75 Liter $10.49
Matador Gold Tequila 1 Liter $7.49
All Beer Prices Plus Deposit

Ice • Kegs • Mini-Kegs • Mixers
"Your Full Service Party Source"
OPEN 9am - 11pm
Rte. 9E College Street • 253-5384
One mile east of Amherst Center on Rte.9
VISA & MASTERCARD ACCEPTED

The TOC LOUNGE

Tonight: Bruins vs. Devils 7:30
Friday: Sox vs. Yankees 7:00
Saturday: Bruins vs. Devils 7:00

DRINK SPECIALS • MUNCHIES

11TH FLOOR CAMPUS CENTER•POSITIVE I.D. REQUIRED

RICH'S ARMY NAVY
German Moleskin Shorts
Drab and Black $16.99
Sandals $19.99
Many Spring Deals!
24 Center Street
Northampton 585-0275

THE WORLD IS YOUR CLASSROOM
ENVIRONMENTAL FIELD STUDIES ABROAD
Semester and Summer hands-on field courses:
Wildlife Management - Kenya
Rainforest Studies - Australia
Inland Management Studies - Palau
Coastal Studies - British Columbia
Marine Mammal Studies - Baja, Mexico
Sustainable Development - Costa Rica
Marine Resource Management - Caribbean
COLLEGE CREDIT FINANCIAL AID
FOR A FREE COURSE CATALOGUE, PLEASE WRITE OR CALL
Summer and Fall space still available!
Additional courses offered this Summer
THE SCHOOL FOR FIELD STUDIES
Box 3, 16 Broadway, Beverly, MA 01915
(508) 927-7777

■ Buffalo

continued from page 9

times. You just have to be happy that you are reaching people."

Fortunately for us, it seems that while success tortures people like Eddie Vedder and the late Kurt Cobain, the guys from Buffalo Tom are taking it all in stride. As luck would have it, that stride will lead them right through UMass for the Spring Concert. A homecoming of sorts?

"Well," said Maginnis, "I don't think there are a lot of people who will remember us from all those years ago. But I'm sure it is going to be a really fun time. We always liked the Valley."

With performers like Smashing Pumpkins and the like claiming that they "just don't play colleges anymore," it is nice to hear that Buffalo Tom is excited about returning to its alma mater to show the Spring Concert-goers that success has indeed suited these alums well.

And heck, we might even give them free beer.

People and pop culture in the news

• HANOVER, Ind. (AP) –Woody Harrelson passed up the chance to be host of the season finale of "Saturday Night Live" to keep a promise to folks at his alma mater.

Pretty much in-character for the guy who played Woody Boyd, the loyal - if thick - bartender on "Cheers," Harrelson will appear May 11-14 in a production of "The Diviners," by Hanover Collegealum Jim Leonard.

"I couldn't miss this because it's Hanover and because I would've disappointed a lot of people who put their lives on hold to do this," said Harrelson, a 1984 grad.

"The Diviners," set in the fictional Indiana town of Zion, won top prize at the American College Theatre Festival in Washington in 1980. New York's Circle Repertory Theatre staged the first professional premiere that year.

• LOS ANGELES (AP) - Yet another sour relationship in the many lives of Roseanne Arnold.

This time it's former agent Arlyne Rothberg, who wants $20 million for what the nettlesome actress wrote about her in her autobiography, "My Lives."

Rothberg claims in a defamation lawsuit filed Tuesday that Arnold unfairly portrayed her as disloyal and unprofessional. In fact, Rothberg says, she helped make Arnold a star, only to be dumped after the actress' 1990 marriage to Tom Arnold.

The book "is a vitriolic effort to even the score with many of the individuals who came in contact with Arnold prior to her marraige to Tom Arnold," Rothberg said in the lawsuit.

A message left for Arnold publicist Pat Kinsley was not returned.

Arnold filed for divorce April 18, claiming she was a battered wife. She recanted a few days later and withdrew the divorce petition.

• OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (AP) - Poet Maya Angelou thinks children shouldn't have to look any further than their own families for their role models.

"Too often, children look to rock stars as their heroes, and that's a shame," Angelou said Tuesday at Johnson County Community College, where she used poetry and song to deliver her message.

"What we have to do is encourage the children to look first at home," Angelou said. "We have to present ourselves as rainbows."

• NEW YORK (AP) - "Eyes on the Prize" producer Henry Hampton won the New World Foundation's first Harold C. Fleming award honoring service in the cause of citizen participation.

In presenting the $25,000 award Tuesday, first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton praised the filmmaker for his use of "the past to enlighten us about the present."

"Eyes on the Prize," shown on PBS-TV, documents the civil rights movement.

The foundation provides grants to civil rights and community projects. The Fleming award is named for a past board member. Mrs.Clinton also once served on the foundation's board.

Summer Health Coverage - 1994

Coverage Period: June 1, 1994 - August 31, 1994
(if enrolled by 6/1/94)

Basic Health Fees: $188.50

Student Family Plan Fees: $424.00

Visit the Member Services Department located in the front lobby for enrollment - 549-2671, x192.

Eligibility: Amherst, Hampshire, Mount Holyoke, Smith and UMass students.
(only UMass students with Basic and SHBP are eligible for the Student Family Plan)
University Health Services / University of Massachusetts, Amherst

Hatch Bar Specials
Specials Last from 5/3 to 5/9
JAGERMEISTER CAJUN COLA...$2.50
JAGER ON THE ROCKS $2.50
Entertainment
TONIGHT at 9:00pm/21+/
Sponsored by Jager • Hat & T-Shirt Giveways too!
Little Sisters
TOMORROW at 9:00pm/21+/
Home & Doom Nation
The Hatch Bar will be open from Noon-8pm for Spring Concert!
the hatch
GROUND FLOOR STUDENT UNION

Alternatives for people who hate Spring Concert

By JON LUPO
Collegian Staff

If your idea of fun isn't getting browbeat with hot sun (it causes cancer, y'know), listening to loud, unintelligible music (it can hurt your eardrums, I heard) while dealing with a bunch of obnoxiously drunk (liver disease) and high people (kills those brain cells) whose main aim is to get more so — let me say there is more to Sunday than Spring Concert.

Here then, are a few suggestions for other things to do if above event doesn't interest you:

It is Mother's Day, you know — Doesn't your loving mother deserve more than a drunken phone call at 8 p.m., interrupting "Murder, She Wrote"? Come on, this woman sucked it up for nine months, spent hours and hours in labor to give you life, only for you to mumble a few "I love you's" before you make another pack-ey run? To be fair, there are nice sons and daughters out there who do visit their mothers, but for the rest of you ... she ain't getting any younger, you know what I mean? Remember Mike + the Mechanics' "The Living Years"? (I know, I'm terrible.)

Doesn't your loving mother deserve more than a drunken phone call at 8 p.m., interrupting "Murder, She Wrote"?

Jazz Brunch — Residential Arts and Auxiliary Services liven up Worcester Dining Commons from 11:15 a.m. to 1 p.m. Enjoy some cool music with your Fruit Loops. Admission is $5.15, and you can spend the rest of the day in the library learning more about the wonderful world of jazz! (Sarcasm optional.)

Art Exhibit — There's a reception for Elizabeth Hall's Delicate Cutting, an MFA Thesis Exhibition that utilizes mixed media, dresses, veils and photographs. The reception will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. at Hampden Gallery and the exhibit will run until May 12 — but that's no excuse to miss the opening reception.

Chamber Singers — Five centuries of choral treasures and remembrances performed by the University Chamber Choir and Madrigal Singers and directed by Wayne Abercrombie. Works by Binchois, Ockeghem, des Pres, Bach and Britten. (Note: none of the original artists could make the 8th, but they'd love to play the 12th.) Tickets are $6 and $3, with UM students getting in free with a valid ID. Show goes on at 4 p.m. at Bowker Auditorium.

Potato Play — The Avant-Gardening Theatre Collective (wink, wink) and Hampshire College Farm Center present an original play ... Spudnik: or How I Stopped Worrying and Learned to Love Potato Chips (nudge, nudge). According to the press release, the play beckons viewers to "come into the fantasy realm of potato images!" Playing at 5:30 p.m. next to Greenwich House. It's free (lame puns are extra).

Solar Observing — Look into the skies and safely view sun spots and, if clear, solar prominences. It's all free and held at the Amherst Town Common at 1 p.m. Call 256-6234 to find out what the hell solar prominences are.

The Movies — What better time than a sunny day to see a movie? The lines are short, you can sit where you want, and there aren't the throngs of people who yell out "Shhhh" when the slide comes up on the screen at AMC. Check out your local listings for flicks and appropriate times. If you want to meet me, I'll be the pompous one in the fourth row telling everybody what's going to happen next in the movie. See you there!

There you go folks. High and low alternatives to spending the day floating through a sea of those insipid "Co-Ed Naked" t-shirts (does anyone, anyone, think these things are the least bit funny or clever? Talk about beating a dead horse).

Perhaps I'm being too harsh. Maybe I'll see you there ... I'll be the one wearing the Co-Ed Naked Pissy Attitude t- shirt.

Views on Spring Concert

By CHRISTINA ORWICZ
Collegian Staff

"It's a huge party," said senior communications major Matt Strusky about the annual Spring Concert.

I've never been to one of our Concerts yet, and I'm a senior, so you've got to understand how curious I am to see what actually goes on at this very loud, long, and famous event. So I went roving with my trusty reporter's notepad and pen to find out popular opinion of what Spring Concert means to UMass students.

"I didn't expect too much," said Strusky of when he was a freshman hearing about Spring Concert for the first time. Over the past four years he has been pleasantly surprised at the cumulative event of Spring Concert.

"It's a time to see people you haven't seen in a while," Strusky reminisced about concerts past.

This encourages me to go this year, and hopefully see the many people I haven't seen this semester. Maybe I can get in a group haven't seen you in a while/ won't see you for a while/ I really miss you session, ya think?

"It's neat to see people from all over campus, that you don't normally see," said Rachel Zenofsky, a junior business major. Zenofsky said that she has been impressed with the variety of music UPC manages to bring together.

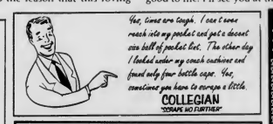
Zenofsky also mentioned that she has been continually disappointed in the scheduling of the concert on Mother's Day. This is the reason that this roving reporter has missed all past Spring Concerts; having a single mom. Hey, even 10,000 Maniacs wouldn't come last year when they found out Spring Concert was on Momorama Day.

Reviewing what I thought as a freshman of Spring Concert, I'm reminded of thinking of a large, sweaty, boisterous crowd, and of feeling intimidated. So, I asked Kristof O'Connor, a freshman chemistry major, what he expects to find at this year's concert.

"Spring Concert is a chance for the students to get together and hang out, rather than to listen to music," –Amy Rhiminger

O'Connor said that he isn't going to the concert because he has seen most of the bands in this year's line-up, and is leery of the scene at the Pond.

"I'm afraid it will be a normal concert situation: tons of rowdy people on drugs listening to music," said O'Connor.



O'Connor's sentiments are not without just cause. Many UMassers do come to the Pond in an altered state of consciousness, from what I understand. Seeing as students feel the Concert is one big party, this is no surprise.

But after living in Southwest for three years, and surviving "real" UMass parties (those exceeding 200 people), I don't feel this will stand in my way this year.

"Spring Concert is a chance for the students to get together and hang out, rather than to listen to music," said Amy Rhiminger, a senior art history major. In past years, Rhiminger "spent the whole day out in the sun with friends, going to parties, relaxing before finals."

I don't know about you, but this sounds pretty good to me. I'll see you at the Pond.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Breakin the Law
Breakin the Law
SEE THE PAPER THAT PLAYS WITH DEATH

Hey, times are tough. I use it even reach into my pocket and get a decent size ball of pocket lint. The other day I looked under my couch cushions and found only four bottle caps. Yes, sometimes you have to scrape a little.
COLLEGIAN
"JOURNAL NO FURTHER"

BEE BOP
If you've got a good vibe you can snap your fingers, you can whistle, and you can ham.
Mass Daily Collegian tickle my tummy honey

SAVE on SERVICE CHARGES
this
SUMMER
We'll waive the service charges on your BayBank account over summer break.
SAVE MONEY.
Your account will be free of all service charges during the summer as long as you're not using your account.
SAVE TIME.
Use your BayBank Card at anytime and your account will automatically be reactivated. There's no paperwork and no need to order new checks.
IT'S EASY.
Just call 788-5000 anytime or stop by your nearest BayBank office.
BayBank®
Member FDIC

WHY WAIT?
Stop by the University Health Services Pharmacy NOW to get your summer prescriptions filled.
It will save you time and let us serve you more efficiently.
Hours:
Mon. - Fri. 8:30 a.m. - 6 p.m.
Sat. 9 a.m. - Noon
1 - 4:30 p.m.

Call For Our Special Offer
BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
Brandywine offers Country Living with Convenience
• On UMass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
• Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
• One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
• Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
• Stop by and we'll show you what we have to offer.
• Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).
BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open
Mon.-Fri. 9-5, Sat. & Sun. 10-3
549-0600

THE CHILD CARE TUITION ASSISTANCE PROGRAM
is accepting applications for the FALL 1994 semester from all undergraduate parents* who are financial aid recipients and need money for child care expenses. Applications are available in: Commuter Services and Housing (formerly OCHO) Resource Center 428 Student Union 545-0865
Deadline is Friday, May 27.
* Not open to Continuing Education students

Pearl Street Nightclub
DANCE CLUB
▼ Wednesday ▼
GAY NIGHT
MUSIC BY SPIN, INC.
Saturday, May 7 - Tea Dance Following The Pride March 3-7pm
• Thursday •
18+ DANCE PARTY
AREAS BIGGEST DANCE PARTY
Music By SPIN Inc.
• Friday •
JAMMIN' TO CLUB MUSIC with DJ LANCE 9:00pm-1:00am
Free Admission with this Ad
• Saturday •
WHAT 99.3FM & PEARL STREET TEAM UP FOR AN EXPLOSIVE LIVE RADIO DANCE PARTY!!!
CLUB HMP
WITH MUSIC BY SPIN INC.
Every Saturday 9:00pm - 1:00am
"Free Admission with this ad before 10pm"
Sat. May 7 - CINCO DE MAYO
LIVE MUSIC
Thurs., May 5-8:00pm/18+/
"ART IN YOUR EAR"
w/Electric Noodle Factory
Meristem, Synethesia, Knuckle Sandwich, & More
Fri., May 6-9:00pm/Rock 102
Pink Floyd Tribute
THE MACHINE
Sat. May 7-9:00pm
A.k.a. BIAZZ FLNA
HEAVY METAL HORNS
Tues. May 10-7:30pm/All Ages
TREE / STOMP BOX
Group W / Ethosis
Thurs., May 12-8:30pm/18+/
MERL SAUNDERS & The Rain Forest Band
Jiggle the Handle
SKA from New York
THE TOASTERS
Knuckle Sandwich / SMA
Sat. May 14-9:00pm
THE SIGHS
Lir / Love Junkyard
Tues., May 17-7:30pm/All Ages/
SLOW POKE
Sat. May 21-8:30pm
J.GEILS BLUES TIME
Sun. May 22-7:00pm/WRSU
FERRON
Tues., May 24-8:00pm/WRSU
JOHN HIATT
Fri. June 3-7:00pm/18+/
QUEEN LATIFAH
Mon. June 6-8:00pm/18+/
GWAR
Coming...
6/10 - NRBQ
6/11 - ROOMFUL OF BLUES
6/13 - KING SUNNY ADE
6/15 - LEA DELARIA
6/17 - ADRIAN BELEW
6/18 - JOHNNY COPELAND
6/23 - JUNIOR BROWN
6/24 - MAHLATHINI & MAHOTELLA QUEENS
6/27 - TOWER OF POWER
6/28 - ZAP MAMA
7/11 - TOUSSOU N' DOUR
Tickets available at Pearl Street, Strawberries, Tix Unlimited, Northampton Box Office: 586-8686, The Record in Amherst 10 Pearl Street Northampton 584-7771

Make way for the salsa

COURTESY SONY TROPICAL

Gilberto Santa Rosa, master of Salsa, will perform tonight in the University of Massachusetts' Student Union Ballroom. The 8:30 p.m. show will feature the hottest Salsa orchestra in Puerto Rico and Latin America, so don't miss it!

Pearl Street to host multi-band benefit for Pfeiffer award

By MATTHEW JUSTIN FAERBER
Collegian Correspondent

With the Spring Concert just a few days away, Pearl Street will be hosting it's own multi-band event tonight, featuring a diverse collection of the Valley's most popular local acts.

The show was put together by the efforts of students, and is a benefit for the Alice Pfeiffer Memorial Scholarship Fund, which provides need-based financial assistance to UMass students interested in studying abroad. Although the program focuses primarily on art majors, other students are also accepted.

The line-up will include a wide variety of local talent ranging from rap to classic rock, with a little bit of everything in between.

UMass favorite Synaesthesia will be making its Pearl Street debut as part of the show. The group's set should also serve as something of a warm-up for its opening slot performance as part of the Spring Concert this Sunday.

After some recent personel changes, the newly-revamped Electric Noodle Factory will provide their funky touch to the happenings.

Knuckle Sandwich, with their devoted and fastly-growing following, have proven to be much more than a cult act. They will be performing their own unique and undefinable songs which make them the hottest band in the Valley today.

Meristem will supply a loud and heavy element to the show with an array of post-punk rock originals.

The Amherst based hip-hop act, In Your Face Productions will be performing tunes that should give the crowd something to dance to and, during the set breaks, their D.J. will be spinning discs to prevent those between-set doldrums.

Rounding out the line-up will be the newly-formed UMass band, the Rodeo Monkeys.

Concert organizer Kyle Frazier said that the intent of having several different musical genres represented is "to draw a diverse crowd which will encourage people to break out of their clique scenes."

In addition to the live music, there will also be visual presentations by local artists which Frazier said should reflect the mood of the music.

"This is a chance for local artists and musicians to work together in an experimental technique in order to gain mutual recognition," said Frazier.

Admission to the all ages Starving Artists Benefit show is $5 at the door. Show time is 8:00pm. For further information call Pearl Street, 584-7810.

Sound Off

COURTESY JOHN M. CORBETT

George Parks, director of the Minuteman Marching Band and tuba talent, performed a selection of works in Bezanson Hall on Monday, May 2, 1994. Although the recital is over, look for Parks' musical skills next fall, on the football field.

1-4 Bedrom Houses & Apartments
Most on Bus Route
Amherst & Surrounding Communities
Free Landlord Referral Service
D.H. JONES
15A Pray St. (2nd Floor)
Amherst, MA 01002
549-7757 • 8:30am - 5:00pm M-F

BANANARAMA fabulous frozen YOGURT
NONFAT SOFT FROZEN YOGURT
GREAT TOPPINGS BAR
NONFAT YOGURT BIRTHDAY PIES
Call for Flavors • 253-2774
One Boltwood Walk (down the alley), Amherst

AUDITIONS FOR
NOT READY FOR BEDTIME PLAYERS
MAY 5, 1994
7:30PM
CAMPUS CENTER ROOM 174
For more information call The Health Education Division and ask for Nancy 549-2671 x181

ACADEMY OF MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Opera House 584-8435
The #1 Hit Film In The Country
Curtain Daily 7:00 & 9:15
A MAGICAL ROMANTIC COMEDY!
four Weddings and a funeral
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

Anthony's
"The Biggest Stars Shine Only at Anthony's"
MAY 10-14
The Morrell Twins
North America's Only
IDENTICAL TWIN EXOTIC STAGE SHOW
18 & Over Allowed!
7 DAYS A WEEK!!!
Limited Seating • Positive ID Required
Sun-Tues 5pm-2am • Wed-Sat 12pm-2am
500 New Ludlow Rd. South Hadley, MA
Rt. 91 North to Mass Pike East to Exit 5
left on Rt. 33, turn right across from BigY (413) 536-0502

LBG
PEER COUNSELLING COLLECTIVE
Call: 549-2671 ext. 316 or Walk in 371B
University Health Services
Tuesday & Thursday 5-9pm.

DOWNTOWN AMHERST DAYS
MAY 12-13-14
SIDEWALK SALES
COMMUNITY FAIR
TASTE OF AMHERST

R & P Liquors
Convenient to Brittany & Riverglade
253-9742
505 West Street • South Amherst

Gilreath Manor Condos
- on Hobart Lane -
3 Bedroom • 1½ baths • Heated Basement
New Gas Heat & Hot Water
1/2 Mile to campus • On Bus Route
Showings Start in April
for June or September Occupancy!
Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St • 253-7879

Main St RECORDS
Two Floors of Cassettes, Compact Discs and Vinyl
- New and Used -
586-5726
213 MAIN ST • NORTHAMPTON, MA

Tired of Roomates?
Come live by yourself for as little as $320.00/Month
College Inn Apts.
mgmt. by Kamins Real Estate
253-2515

EXPLORE... ENHANCE... AND MOVE AHEAD THIS SUMMER AT UMASS LOWELL
Whether you're looking to explore new interests, enhance your education, or move ahead in your pursuit of a degree, you can do it all at UMass Lowell this summer.
■ Over 500 courses to choose from
■ Very affordable tuition
■ Flexible day and evening scheduling
■ Small classes
We're conveniently located near Routes 3, 93, 495 and 128. For more information and a Summer Course Bulletin, call (508) 934-2480
University of Massachusetts Lowell, Office of Enrollment Services/DCE, One University Ave., Lowell, MA 01854.
Earn your transfer credits:
Summer Session I May 23-June 30
Summer Session II July 11-August 19
UMASS LOWELL CONTINUING EDUCATION
UMass Lowell is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity, Title IX, H/V, ADA 1990 University

"Take A Chance" Sale
Each Day the Discount Changes!
Take a Chance That What You Want Will Be There Tomorrow
IT'S A GAMBLE!!
• LARGE SELECTION OF MERCHANDISE •
School & Office Supplies • Art Supplies • Gifts & Posters • Jewelry • Calculators • Computer Accessories
•SHOP EARLY FOR BEST SELECTION•
• LAST DAY FRIDAY MAY 6 •
ALL SALES FINAL
UNIVERSITY STORE Campus Center 545-2619 Mon.-Fri. 9-5 Sat. 11-3

Nursing student Kristen Whittle demonstrates her border collies' herding ability.

Kelly Brauch, a first year animal science major and her beef cow "Cecil" accept the award for premiere showperson.

The 1994 UMass Livestock Classic

The livestock classic was held this weekend at the University of Massachusetts' Hadley Farm. The show featured livestock competitions, animal demonstrations and even the University's mounted police horses attended. Collegian photos by Aram Comjean.

Kate Roberts, an animal science major first year student tries to coax a pig back onto its feet. She won 2nd prize in the show person exhibition with her cow, Buttercup.

A horse--drawn carriage cruises around the track in the shadow of UMass.

Student suspended for toy gun

By MICHELLE BOORSTEIN
Associated Press

BOSTON — Under the rules of her school, 7-year-old Amber Nickoles is right up there with toughs wielding a pair of brass knuckles or a razor blade. Her weapon of choice? A 3-inch squirt gun.

The youngster was suspended in December from the Dennis C. Haley school after being caught with a hand-held squirt gun on the school bus.

For her offense, she spent a day in psychological counseling, where the evaluator suggested she may need further consultation — to deal with the trauma of being reprimanded for packing a squirt gun.

Barbara Nickoles, angry over a process she said gave her daughter nightmares, withdrew Amber from the school. And now that she's settled into another school, Barbara Nickoles is firing back through the local media.

"I'm not saying she shouldn't be punished, but we're not dealing with an adult," Barbara Nickoles said in a radio interview Wednesday. "She was having nightmares; you don't know what she was going through."

■ Mandela

continued from page 1

In addition, about five or six jobs will go to National Party stalwarts and at least one to Zulu nationalists. Both parties earned those privileges by winning more than 5 percent of last week's vote.

And though it's not required, Mandela is expected to offer spots to both right-wing whites and black militants because he wants his Cabinet to represent South Africa's entire political spectrum and serve as a model for residents who must learn to live together.

"We might have our differences, but we are one people with a common destiny," Mandela said Monday in a jubilant victory speech.

Trying to get politicians with sharply differing views to agree upon a common destiny risks paralysis, but Mandela enjoys a parliamentary majority of more than 60 percent. Political analyst Eugene Nyati said that and Mandela's own determination should ensure action on crucial issues, particularly the ANC's reconstruction and development proposals.

Critics say the ANC has failed to explain how it will pay for its ambitious plan to build thousands of homes and employ 2.5 million people in public works programs.

Mandela, however, insists the program is the cornerstone of his government -and no one who opposes it will be part of his Cabinet.

That should ensure the finance portfolio will go to a trusted aide, Mbeki, a 51-year-old economist and ANC national chairman, is one likely choice. Trevor Manuel, a 38-year-old former union organizer who is now the ANC's top economic planner, is another possibility.

But Mbeki, whom many consider Mandela's heir apparent, may spurn the Finance Ministry in favor of a higher profile as first deputy president. The South African media has speculated for months about a struggle between Mbeki and Ramaphosa for that post.

Lincoln Real Estate
has the best selection of 1, 2, & 3 bedroom Uptown Apartments with Gas Heat.
We begin showing apartments in April and May for June or September Occupancy.
253-7879 • 25 N. Pleasant St.

WRITINGS ON A FROSTED WINDOW PANE
A NEW PLAY BY JOHN BINNIE
MAY 3,4,5,6, AND 7 AT 8PM
MATINEE -MAY 7 AT 2PM
HAMPDEN THEATRE
FAC BOX OFFICE 545-2511
THE FINE ARTS CENTER
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS AT AMHERST
This project and John Binnie's Residency are funded in part by the UMass Arts Council, the Five College Lecture Fund, the UMass Student Activities Cultural Enrichment Fund, Hampshire College Theatre program, Smith College Department of Theatre, and the UMass Theater Department.

Can You Afford $105/month* For Rent?
Only 8 minutes from campus at
LANTERN COURT
For more information call:
Kamins 253-2515
*rate based on 4 people per 2BDR

DON'T BE LEFT OUT!
PUFFTON VILLAGE
Look What We Offer:
• 1,2, and 3 Bedroom Units
• Rents Starting from $475/Month
• Heat & Hot Water Included in Rent!
• PVTA Bus Stops in Complex
• 1/2 Mile to University, 1 1/2 Miles to Downtown Amherst
• Pool, 5 Tennis Courts & a Basketball Court On-Site!
• Our Office is Open Mon-Fri 8:30 to 4PM
Now accepting rental applications for Summer and Fall. Don't be left out of one of Amherst's best housing deals; prime location, spacious units, individual entrances, on-site parking and cable TV hook-up through Dimension Cable.
PUFFTON VILLAGE APARTMENTS • 1040 North Pleasant St., Amherst, MA
– Resident Manager 549-0145 –

PEKING GARDEN
A MANDARIN & SZECHUAN RESTAURANT
Open 7 Days a week
20 % OFF MEALS FRI. AND SAT. EVENING WITH COMEDY SHOW with this ad
Comedy Shows Friday and Saturday at 8:30pm with dinner
Monday -Thursday Dinner Buffet $5.99 Sunday Brunch $6.99
586-1202 VISA FREE PARKING ON RT. 9 HADLEY MASTER CARD

April Showers Bring May Specials!!
Scott's LIQUORS
OPEN: Mon.-Sat. 8 A.M.-11 P.M. Tel: 549-2692
Bud Dry 24-12 oz. cans $10.99 +dep.
Icehouse 12 pk. cans $6.99 +dep.
Bacardi Rum 750ml $7.99
Zhenka Vodka 1.75lit. Sale Price $8 Mail-in Rebate -2 Final Cost $6.99
Strohs & Strohs Light 15 pk. cans $5.99 +dep.
Passport Scotch 1.75 lit. $15.99
WE WANT TO BE YOUR FAVORITE LIQUOR STORE!
Tele-check for your personal check.
6 University Drive at Newmarket Center, Amherst
We now have all Mass Lottery games!
Quantity Discounts Available

Calvin and Hobbes By Bill Watterson

Jim's Journal By Jim

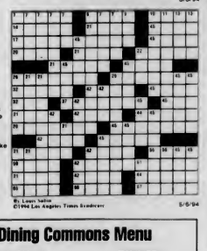
Urban Shocker By Deg

Lost Horizons By Douglas Collinert

Bruno By C. Baldwin

Daily Crossword

Edited by Frode Michel Jahr



ACROSS
1 Cumberland elite
5 Cookbook abbr
10 — of the earth
14 Mongolian ringer
15 Angel's headdress
16 Drattable
17 Addictive viewing
19 Alphabet series
20 Aid and abet
21 Out of town
22 Lyons' river
23 Wintrey of TV
25 Pip
26 Hung jury result
29 Small; slight
32 "— a Grecian Urn"
33 Even
35 Ranch unit
36 "— We Meet Again"
37 Satisfying victory
40 Greek letter
41 Cheers for the toreador
43 Waist fillers
44 Bitter
46 Dreclosee
48 Wrinkles
50 Quechuan
51 Electrical unit
52 Deter group
54 Dexterity
58 Feisty —
59 — Minor
60 Memorable moment of animation
62 Thicken
63 French cleric
64 Hem's device
65 Manner of speaking
66 Sweetie
67 Almost a strike

DOWN
1 Laundromat cycle
2 Soap ingredient
3 Person from Pres' Abbr
4 Site of 1972 Olympic Games
5 Uncle from Toledo
6 Learned-Thomas TV drama
7 "The Divine —": Bernhardt
8 Memet creation
9 Help!
10 Mogadishu's location
11 Broadcasters
12 Author Uris
13 Recording medium
18 Legal lead-in
22 Bottom line
24 Troubling engine sound
25 NE New Jersey city
26 Spinner
27 Official under Nero
28 Modern medium
29 Town crier of today
30 Brew on clennel
31 Conducts
34 Freshwater fish
38 Alley Oop's mate
39 Glasgow refusals
42 Feeling
43 Says by way of reproach
47 Diamond stir
49 Had second thoughts
61 Emperor after Nero
62 Agreement
63 Harold V's copist
54 Bear os ol legend
66 Christie or Keremins
57 Nasty expression
58 Rochester's Jane
60 Benkrott
81 "— Magic" Cahn

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

T	O	R	E		M	I	M	I		A	C	I	S
A	L	E	A		A	D	I	N		L	O	M	A	N
A	L	E	N	D	E	T	E	N	N		L	A	I	N	E
S	O	C	I	S		I	O	N	O	R	T	K	O
		A	U	N	T		V	O	W	N
S	N	I	P	E		M	A	T		S	D	S
P	O	R	E	S		M	O	T	E		S	E	T	S
A	B	O	D	E	S		S	T	E	P		O	R	S
P	O	S	E		T	I	M	E		P	O	S	T
		S	P	A		S	I	R	E		R	I	P	E
C	L	E	A	P						S	E	A	T	S
R	E	V	E	R	S	A	L		O	R	D	E	R
A	L	I	C	E	S		K	L	E	E	N
M	I	S	S		N	Y	T		R	E	A	L

8/5/94

(c) 1994 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 5/5/94

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Hamburger (on a roll)	Touring America– Food at Mullins Ctr.
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Tempeh Burgers (They're on rolls, too)	Don't go to the DC– It's not open.

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Jon Lupo
Copy Editor.....Arthur C. Stapleton Jr.
Photo Technician.....Aram Comjean
Production Supervisor.....Lisa Jezowski
Production.....Mike Carvalho, Christopher Strider Cook

The Far Side By Gary Larson

Your Horoscope
By Joann Dunn

ARIES (March 21–April 19): Do not become discouraged if progress seems slow. Things will straighten themselves out if you will just be patient. Give loved ones your full attention this evening. Postpone phone calls until tomorrow.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20): Travel requires careful precautions. Spending the day at home could prove more profitable.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): Try not to look askance at someone who expresses unusual ideas. On further consideration, you may realize that they contain nuggets of wisdom.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): A talent for negotiation may win you praise — and an exciting new opportunity. Capitalize on past experiences. Turn negatives into positives!

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22): Your judgment may be faulty today. Keep a low profile at work while tying up loose ends. Being more open-minded about a social event will help you avoid a quarrel with a loved one.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): Your ability to solve work problems with out outside help will count heavily in your favor. A loving atmosphere makes home a welcome refuge. Put children's needs first. Recreation and romance can wait.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): Capitalize on your talents and know-how by directing your energies into revenue–producing activities. Written financial agreements are vital for your protection.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): An open exchange of ideas could prove very helpful today. Speak your mind lucidly and confidently and you will be heard.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): You have an opportunity to put some distance between you and the problems of the past. Do it. Give greater thought to your future financial needs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): Make a special effort to become part of a younger group. An exciting new business opportunity comes along when least expected.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18): Soft–pedal any differences of opinion between you and a co–worker. You will need this person's cooperation to get ahead. Showcasing your creative abilities will help you gain more work responsibilities and a larger income.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): A friendship can become stronger and more meaningful. Show your affectionate side. At work, focus on the broader picture instead of worrying about minor chores.

Quote of the Day

"A bank is place that will lend you money if you can prove that you don't need it."

—Bob Hope

Classifieds

• 20¢ per word per day for students
• All ads must be paid in cash 2 days in advance
• Ads may be placed at 113 Campus Center, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

ACTIVITIES

All university women invited to rush Sigma Delta Tau.
Mon 5/9 open house 6:30–8:30
Tue 5/10 study break 8-10
Wed 5/11 BBQ 5-7
Questions call Kristen 549-7875

Sunday tee dance May 8th Bump, grind, and jump around with DJ Job. Cham free smart drinks, juice bar 3:00 pm. Northampton Center for the Arts $6 or $4 w/ student ID. Free drink with admission.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bed and Breakfast downtown Amherst Ideal for visiting parents and friends. 549-0733

UMass Credit Union has car, personal and computer loans. Rates as low as 7.95%. 314 Student Union Building 545-2800

AUTO FOR SALE

88 Toyota Celica 5 speed, 3 door er. $7000. 256-3417

87 Ford 6000 65K mowng to NY must sell great condition. $3100 253-9682

1985 Mercedes 18000 miles, power sunroof, AC. $8250 Call 256-4687

1985 Mercury Lynx 63,000mi great shape $1400 549-5831

Dodge Aries 1982 wagon 106K AC/AT well maintained $1000 call Toby 549-4642

For sale 1984 Volvo 240. Good condition Needs minor work. 950 call 323-0151 best offer

VW Scirocco 1986 102K .5 sp, AC, pm, sss. Synch every 2K. Clean sharp, sporty. $7200 call Travis 367-7105

BEAT STRESS

Academic tutoring stress management Immediate benefits 584-5896

CAPE COD RENTAL

West Yarmouth 6 room 4 bedrooms sleeps 8 near everything 253-7436 508-775-4778 $6,000

FOR RENT

1 bedroom in a large house with inground pool $200 available immediately 256-9475

1 bedroom apt. N. Amherst Quiet location with big yard, laundry facilities, and AC. Pets negotiable Take over lease June 1st Call Marc 549-8244

1 bedroom apt Pulfton 442/month Chris/ Fred 549-4850

1 bedroom avail. May1 farmhouse in Hadley on bus $725 585-0843

1 mile from campus 4 bdrm, oil heat, Call 549-8039

2 bedroom Brandywine apartment May 23-Aug 31 furnished rent negotiable 549-1883

2 bdr in Pulfton Take over lease June 1st Avail fall waiting list 549-6233

2 bedroom apt Rent very negotiable Available ASAP 546-0160

2 bedroom Brandywine apt 63%/ mo inc heat available June 1 549-6503

2 bdrm pulftonTake over our lease starting June 1 with option for fall renewal Call ed at 549-7648

2 bedroom 625 includes heat + hot water Call 549-1571

2 bedroom apartment in Brandywine, 3rd floor poindside $770/ month including heat Available June 1st Call 549-5400 Tracey or Beth

2 story, 2 bedroom (1sm/ 1 lgt, 1 bath, dishwasher, on bus route. $577 + utils #253-7892

3 bedroom 1 bath on Main St $825/ month includes electric Starts June 1st Call 256-3470

3 bedroom Pulfton Take over lease Call 549-7357

3 bedroom Pulfton Call now! 549-0385

3 bd w/ heated basement 1 1/2 bath 1/2 mile to campus On bus routes Call 549-8819

3 or 4 bedroom house for rent near bus yard new appliances inexpensive rent $ useless 253-3165

4 bedroom 2 bath great location 1/2 mile to town on bus route Avail June 1 253-3023

4br large bright wall to UMass, center, bus Laundry $1000 mth heat + hw incl 586-0746

4 br house Main St. Call 253-4710

a fg by backyard BBQ privacy bus line $1040. 256-1270

4 or 5 br house off Main St lots 7 comfortably call 253-5667

5 bedroom 2 bath hube basement bus route Amherst 256-3138

A great apt! Two large bdrms, June- August N. Amherst 549-4720

Blue room for rent. $195 + utilities North Hadley Includes a car, a trampoline, and a gourmet cook Call Juan 586-4782

Brandywine Apts Take over our lease 6/ 1 2 bedrooms 3rd Floor poindside Rent negotiable for June & July 549-3953

Cape Cod Duplex 5/28- 9/3 3 people $3150 Call Micah 549-4704

Center of town 1 2 & 3 bedroom apts For 6/1 or 9/1 Now being shown Call for appointment Lincoln Real Estate 253-7878

Free furniture if you take over our 3 bdrm Pulfton apt in June. Call Lisa 549-1770

Free laundry cable 3 lg bedrooms avail 6/1 549-4954 Grantwood Dr

Great condition & location Main St across bus rt 1 48pm 546-0543

Ideal for grad students 1 large room available in house– perfect summer sublet– views upon available Laundry facilities available on premises. Quiet neighborhood/ homey atmosphere. 256-4611

Large 2 bdrm apt Near Hobart Ln starts 6/1 $630/ month 549-5456

Large Amherst five bedroom house Perfect for six Dishwasher, deposit, deck Available June. Call Joe at 617 545-2348

Location Location Fearing St 4 bedrooms summer sublet fall option Porch & yard $1140 549-6618

Mill Valley 3 br 2 bath AC furnished 6/ 1 with fall option 256-4690

Practically new 2 bdrm Brandywine apt Take our lease 549-4036

Prices slashed on free cable! 3 bdrm Call now 549-7615

Sign early 3 bedroom in Pulfton 549-8707

South Amherst four bedrooms two baths big basement wood stove huge yard community pool hoop on bus route starting June 1 253-3071

Take over our lease 2 br Brandywine APt inc fs/ hw Great location Call soon! 549-3937

Take over our lease 6/1 Brandywine 3rd floor! #549-4546

Take over our lease 2br Brandywine 3rd floor starting 6/1 You won't find cheaper $645/ mo Call 549-6629

Take over 3bedroom Pulfton lease Available June. Call 549-8193

Take over our lease June 1 t 3 br apt in Main St house 1/2 mile from town Call 256-0419 Alex, Liz or Vicky

Townehouse four person apt two bus routes One and a half bathrooms Airconditioning Dishwasher Front porch Call 549-5203

Welcome college students Cape Cod summer rentals All locations 1 to 5 br houses Honey Spanco Broker 508-398-8367

FOR SALE

1988 GSXR 750, 15500 miles Engine like new Call now bike will last last 546-5566

1992 Miyata hybrid SAC $150 includes book rack paid $460 Great commuter call audrey 256-1521 5-8pm

Furniture– cheap! couches, lamps, desks, chairs, and more 549-6236

Gleon Leopold studio guitear $475 546-6860

One bedroom set 2 twin size mattress and box spring other furniture Must sell by 5-19-94 at mint condi 549-8240

Queen sized futon stereo dresser table Call Leigh 256-0238

Two one way tickets to Kansas City June 15 $140 each or $250 (413) 566-5040 or (413) 737-1797 (evenings/weekend)

Welsh batteries ear piercing hoop earrings Starting at $2.00, diamond studs, repairs Grad pendulum gifts from glass to gold. Silversscape designs 264 N Pleasant Street 253-3324 open 7 days

Michelle Happy 6th! Love John

Michelle Tourna I love you! ?

Mugsy and cheesecake, Congratulations! Good luck in the real world! I'll miss you both tons! But I'll bounce back! Love Phil

Rebecca Zez Happy Belated Birthday!!! From me on time!!!? Hal I Love, L-B

Susan– dude/ secretary/ cowlover this one really IS for you good luck with "your" show love your mmmw and the girl with no middle name

The diablos have a mission it is a mission for gold, quick, light fast, fast and pretty! Never take you're cool Tie

To the Sale St., Main St. and Griggs girls Thank you for making my four years at UMass such a good time You have all added such wonderful memories to my college education There are 2 more weeks left so let's make them the best I could not ask for better people to spend my remaining days with I love you all! Love Holly

Tri Sigma! Get excited for the most outrageous formal ever!

RIDE TO CALIFORNIA

Ride to California Santa Cruz/ Monterey area Driver is clean and sober Leaving May 11/12 call 586-4204 ask for Chris

ROOMMATE WANTED

1 bedrm in N Hadley house 187/ mo. 5 min from UMass 586-4711

1 m roommate needed for great house uptown $212/mo call Ryan or Dan 549-2983

2 room br in 4 br house on bus rt. 3 miles to UMass w/dt big deck, yard Call 549-6353

Female to share 2 bedroom apartment near town 549-7818

Female non smoker preferred for 1 room in 3bdrm Puffton apt available June 1 w/ fall option summer $190/ month (rent) Call 549-5881

Free 1st month's rent If non smoker to share e room in Mill Valley lease ending Dec.31 Call 256-6448

Huge double in two bedroom apt Great location on bus route 549-0377

Need 2 for 2 single rooms in 4 br apt Cheap! 6/3187

One person for large room $170 00 Call 665-7604

SERVICES

Legal questions? The student legal services office offers free legal assistance to fee paying students. Contact us at 507 Campus Center, 545-1995

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring, confidential support 549-1906

Professional repair Most brands audio equipment + VCRs Sound + Music 351 Pleasant Street, Northampton, 584-9547

Typing and word processing Reasonable rates Fast dependable service Pick up and delivery available Country Komputer 323-7507

SUMMER SUBLETS

1 bdrm available Mill Valley Estates Price negotiable Ask for Mark 256-6768

1 bdrm in Num 6 bdrm house bus rt wash/ dryer, fall opt 200/mo Joe 252-9948

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom apt on bus route Rolling Green option for fall- female nonsmokers 256-0750

Set of keys on a shaped key chain lost somewhere between Antonio's and Twisters Sat night. Please call 546-7258

MUSICIANS

Band seeks male vocalist 4 all styles 546-6312 Pete

NEED A JOB?

Drivers wanted to deliver the Collegian for the fall semester. Must be available until 11 pm Apply at the Collegian office in the basement of the Campus Center or call for Jim at 5-3500

PERSONALS

6 on the left, You survived the picnic, barely I think. But here's my last formal, get ready to drink! (Grownings anyone?) Love, Yetman

Alpha Nu Nu Rove you Surprise!!!

Brian Croteau congratulations on the CPA- now it's time to celebrate! Love Alicia

!!!

Sports

Pats sign Durkin

By ANDREW BRYCE
Collegian Staff

FOXBORO, Mass. — Former University of Massachusetts offensive guard Bill Durkin has been signed by the New England Patriots. The Minuteman co-captain becomes the 15th rookie free agent to come to terms with the franchise since the NFL Draft last month.

Mike Hodges, head football coach at UMass, sees the signing as having positive benefits for both the Patriots and his former player.

"It's great for a lot of reasons. [Patriots' head coach] Bill Parcells loves to run-block, which one of Durkin's strong points. He's a big offensive lineman as he's close to 290 pounds. I'm really excited for him," said Hodges.

"It'll be good for him, now that he has eight hours a day to devote to it. He's a competitor and a great football player."

Terms of Durkin's agreement were not disclosed Wednesday. The 6-foot-5, 281-pound lineman from Stratford, Conn., is the 10th rookie free agent to sign on with the Patriots. Five other free agents have come to terms, but have not signed contracts.

Durkin, who earned first team honors in the Yankee Conference, ECAC and New England last season, was part of the Minuteman rushing attack that set a school record with 3,261 rushing yards in the 1993 season.

— material from the Associated Press contributed to this story.

AKIAM COMBEAN / COLLEGIAN

Minuteman co-captain Bill Durkin was signed by the New England Patriots yesterday. Terms of the contract were not available.

Gorillas fall to Bears, 12-7

By ANDREW BRYCE
Collegian Staff

Foreshadowing.

It did not look so good when the national anthem tape failed to play the pre-game song. Unfortunately for the University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse team, it did not look any better when the final horn sounded as the No. 13 Gorillas fell to No. 7 Brown 12-7.

"There's a feeling of disappointment and frustration," said Coach Ted Garber. "They made most of the opportunities and we didn't. We made mistakes that cost us."

The Bears (10-4) scored first, as Jeffrey Iserson put one in the net just :43 second into the game. With one man up, Wes Depp scored his only game of the goal at 4:15 for Massachusetts (8-4) to even the score at one apiece. Brown's Gary Nelson then scored a goal at 6:42 to make it 2-1.

The second quarter resembled the first not only in the type of play (tight defensive matchup), but also the score as well. Brown manage to go one up on the Gorillas, as David Evans scored two goals. Brendan Glass scored his only point of the game on a pass from Mike Valente.

The first seven minutes of the third quarter was characteristic of the first 30 minutes, until a controversial non-call occurred. Depp came across the middle, and shot at the Brown net. The ball hit the posts, and apparently touched the inside of the net as well, only to bounce off back into play.

The referees failed to give the Gorillas the goal, thus making it the turning point of the game. Because shortly after, there was an explosion ... courtesy of Brown.

The Bears scored five consecutive goals in the final four and a half minutes of the third quarter to make it 9-2. Iserson accounted for two of those to lead the onslaught, with Evans, Robert Gutheil and James Gaensbauer chipping in with one apiece.

Massachusetts played catchup for much of the fourth quarter, as they put five goals between the posts. Brown scored three of their own in sealing up their ninth consecutive victory.

"I knew Brown was a great team," said Garber. "You don't win nine straight games when you're not."

How the Bears managed to come away with a victory yesterday could be explained by two statistics: ground balls and face-offs. Ground balls — Brown 48–17. Face-offs — Brown 18–5.

"Brown's faceoff man (Gary Nelson) played extremely well," said Jeremy Murphy. "Ground balls, as well. They have a strong offense."

Massachusetts goaltender Tom LoPresti had an outstanding game in the loss, garnering 18 saves. The junior goaltender, who had a career-high 20 saves in last year's matchup, had 48 shots taken on him.

"Tom was incredible," said Murphy. "He has showed from the Syracuse game (17 saves) to now that he is one of the best goalies in the country. He just had so many shots taken on him."

For the Bears, the result means they recaptured the N. E. Championship trophy that had belonged to Massachusetts for the past year, and solidified their spot in the postseason tournment.

"You have to remember a year ago, the Massachusetts game ended our season," recalled Brown coach Peter Lasagna.The Gorillas defeated the Bears 8–6 last season, knocking them out of consideration for the postseason.

For Massachusetts, it means giving the trophy back to the victorious Brown squad, and their destinies for the tournament controlled by a commitee. Garber and his Gorillas realize that the only thing they can do is play hard against Army on Saturday afternoon.

"Well, I don't think we have control of our destiny," said Garber. "We just have to get our heads up for the game against Army. It's the seniors last home game. We know Army is going to come out strong."

CHRIS KALUSA / COLLEGIAN

Despite the outstanding 18-save effort by goaltender Tom LoPresti (24), the University of Massachusetts lacrosse team lost to Brown 12–7 for the New England Championship.

Brown shows 'size of fight' in win

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

"It's not the size of the dog in the fight. It's the size of fight in the dog."

That was the statement across Brown Lacrosse Coach Peter Lasagna's lucky t-shirt that he has worn during every game of Brown's nine-game winning streak. Yesterday the Bears fulfilled the shirt's message, as they dominated the University of Massachusetts squad 12–7 to give Brown the New England Championship.

Ball control was the key to the Bears win. Brown passed the ball well and controlled the ball most of the game, keeping the ball away from the potent UMass attack of Wes Depp, Brendan Glass and Mike Valente.

When the UMass offense did get the ball, the defense, led by goalkeeper Jay Stalfort, smothered them.

"They were right on our hands before we could even get open," said UMass attacker Jeremy Murphy.

"The defense just put a lot more pressure on the attack," said midfielder Buddy Hoffman. "They had a great goalie and he made some great saves."

"Until the last six or seven minutes of the game, I thought our defense played great," said Lasagna. "Their [UMass] strength, with the exception of Valente, Depp, Glass and Murphy, is playing off the ball.

"We worked on that a lot this week. Wes Depp is one of the best shooters in the game, and you can't let him have his hands free."

Desire and luck win face-offs, and the team that controls the face-offs is usually going to control the game. Yesterday was no different.

One year ago, the Gorillas beat Brown 8–6 in a thriller at Garber Field. In that game, Sam Joseph dominated the face- offs, a stat that Lasagna said was the key to the game. Brown practiced face-offs all week in practice to avoid being victimized again. It paid off as Gary Nelson dominated, winning 18 of the 23 face-offs.

"I thought that if we could win face-offs that we'd get our shots, and it was important that we buried them," said Lasagna.

The Bears definitely got their shots. Brown fired 48 shots on the Gorilla net.

Revenge had the Bears keyed up throughout. They dominated the ground balls as well. Brown collected 40 ground balls to the 17 for UMass.

The ground ball recoveries led to a great transition game for the Bears as they exploded for fast break goals in the third quarter that broke the Gorillas back.

"They were out ground balling us three to one. Ground balls are like rebounds in basketball," said UMass Coach Ted Garber. "The team who gets them wins."

Lasagna said he was pleased with his team's performance.

"We came here and didn't play very well last year. They definitely beat us," said Lasagna. "I just wanted to come here and play better, and we did that."

Lost in the defeat was an excellent performance by Tom LoPresti and the UMass defense. LoPresti made 18 saves for UMass, including several from point blank range, but Brown capitalized on their quality shots.

"It's not that the defense broke down, Brown just got a lot of good shots," said Hoffman.

"Tom LoPresti was unreal today," said Lasagna. "He was unbelievable or maybe it would have been a bigger margin."

"He was doing the job he was expected to do," said Garber. "We can't ask him to make every save."

Keep your eyes on the ball

ARAM COMBEAN / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts swept a doubleheader at Vermont, 7–0, 4–3. Pitcher Kelly Daut threw her second no-hitter of the week for the first game, and won the second as well. The Minutewomen improved to 27–16.

'Pipes' farewell

Well, here it is, the final edition of Between the Pipes for the year. Enjoy.

Celebrity golf course sighting: Patrick Roy, Mario Lemieux, Brett Hull and Steve Yzerman played 18 holes together this week. The Masters is closer than the Conn Smythe for these fellows.

Hot between the Pipes: What would it have taken to acquire Darcy Wakaluk in the off season last year? Not much. I bet the Red Wings wish they got him.

Every year there is one goalie that takes his team much deeper than expected into the playoffs. This year's nominees are Wakuiuk, Arturs Irbe, Jon Casey, Don Beaupre and Martin Brodeur.

Upsets: Which was a bigger upset, the Sharks bouncing the Red Wings or the Caps ousting Pittsburgh? I had both the Pens and the Wings going to the finals. Oops.

BETWEEN THE PIPES Matt Vautour on the NHL

Cam II: Word around the league is that nobody wants to play the Bruins. If they get past the Devils, (I'm betting five games), Cam Neely could return for the conference championships. Meanwhile, Cam Stewart is hitting people like his namesake.

A Flicker of intelligence: Cheers to the NHL for the playoff reorganization after the first round. When was the last time the league did something insightful?

A Geography Lesson: Thanks to all my perceptive readers for catching me calling the Dallas Stars the Minnesota North Stars. Are they really playing hockey in Texas? Next thing you know they'll put a team in Anaheim.

Round Two.

Rangers vs. Capitals: The Capitals are coming back to earth. After their startling upset of Pittsburgh, the Capitals have returned to the play that made them the seventh seed.

The Rangers, meanwhile, are hot. They trounced the Islanders and have not let up at all on the Capitals. Fans in the Big Apple are starting to believe that the 54 year jinx might be finally coming to a close.

Bruins vs. Devils: The Bruins have jumped out to a 2-0 series lead on the road, making things look grim for Devil fans. Casey, a goat in Boston for most of the season, has been the hero so far. With the series headed for Boston,

ARAM COMBEAN / COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team ended its season on a downer, losing to Dartmouth 18–6. The Minutewomen finished the season with a record of 3–11.

Women's lax falls in finale

By MIKE PINDER
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts women's lacrosse team wrapped up an impressive comeback season yesterday against a tough Dartmouth team.

The Minutewomen fell to the Green Wave 18–6, but that didn't tarnish the post-game celebration for the two departing senior co-captains, Rachael Splaine and Diana Clemente.

Splaine and Clemente have both had fabulous seasons and careers at UMass, and played their final game with fire and determination.

Clemente played ferocious defense for the entire game and was at the heart of every play, scrapping and hustling to every loose ball like she has done all throughout her career.

Splaine finished a great collegiate career in style, scorching the nets for three goals and dishing out two assists.

Entering the game, Splaine needed three goals to become UMass' ninth leading scorer. The senior accomplished the feat just four minutes into the second half. Splaine ended her career with 89 points on 70 goals and 19 assists.

"I'm very happy with my performance today," said Splaine. "We played really well against a tough team."

Freshmen Stephanie Walsh, playing with a stress fracture of her shin, tallied two goals while seeing limited action. Diane MacNeil also chipped in with a goal.

The other freshmen phenom, Sarah Goddard, was unable to play due to a bout with mononucleosis. Goddard's presence was sorely missed in the game.

"It was tough playing without Sarah and having Stephanie injured," said Splaine. "They are both major parts of the team."

The tandem of Walsh and Goddard have had excellent seasons, combining for 63 goals and nine assists. They will both play a major role in the rebuilding of the team in the next few years.

The Green Wave rode a balanced scoring attack en route to the win. Dartmouth was led by Lauren Holleran (four goals), Margaret Field (three goals), and Sarah Devens (three).

UMass goalkeeper Patricia DiBenedetto finished out an outstanding freshman season, turning aside 10 Dartmouth shots on goal. Next year, she will be called upon to anchor a very strong defense that will make or break the Minutewomen.

The Minutewomen's 3–11 record does not indicate how well they played all year long. Despite the amount of losses, UMass was edged out in some close games over the course of the season.

Women's rugby finishes season on a positive note

By GREG IAFRATE
Collegian Staff

How would you feel if you were a woman going to sign up to play rugby and were turned down because you were told there was no women's team?

During the spring of 1993, then-freshman Erin Jackson was walking through the Campus Center and saw a rugby sign-up table. When she asked to sign up, they laughed at her, and told her there was no women's team here at UMass.

Jackson took it as an opportunity to do something for her school and peers. She decided to establish the University of Massachusetts first women's rugby team.

"At first, it was very frustrating to try to get a bunch of women together to make a team and to go to practice everyday, as it wasn't their main concern at the time," said Jackson.

With the help of other avid teammates, Jackson got a team together within a couple of weeks.

"It was very rewarding for myself and others to be the founders of the first UMass women's rugby team."

That spring semester, the team had its first A-side squad comprised of about 15 women playing instructional games against local colleges and universities. The UMass rugby club head coach, Dr. Robert Laurence (called "Doc" by the players) and his men's team were very helpful in getting the women's team started as well as teaching them the basic skills and rules of the game.

> "Division I will be a great opportunity for us to become a more recognized team in New England, and it will challenge us to make our game more advanced."
>
> — Erin Jackson, founding member UMass women's rugby team

"It's an interesting experience working with women after so many years of coaching only men, they have more of a group sense," said Laurence.

In September, the team grew to 32 women and was a part of the New England Rugby Football Union as a Division II squad. Hosting the Beantown Rugby Tournament last semester, UMass finished second with an overall season record of 7–5, after finishing third in the New England Division II Championship.

Finding its 1994 spring season with a 3–3 record, the women's team finished second last weekend in the Radcliffe Rugby Tournament at Harvard. This season the women played teams such as UConn, URI, Amherst, Radcliffe and Wellsley. Last weekend also saw the departure of two seniors, Kimberly Mantyla and Johanna Collins, who were given flower bouquets by the team.

Next season the women will see much more competitive play as they advance to NERFU Division I after only one and a half years of existence.

"Division I will be a great opportunity for us to become a more recognized team in New England and it will challenge us to make our game more advanced," said Jackson.

"New England has the most dominant rugby teams around. It [Division I] is going to be difficult. There are 10 teams, all very competitive, but I put our team smack in the middle."

Right or wrong, U.S. teen gets caned in Singapore Page 3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

Weather Showers today, low 60s

Friday May 6, 1994 Volume CIII Issue 121

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

World

Slow start to Palestinian transfer

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip (AP) — Palestinians waited all day in the hot sun Thursday for PLO commanders to take over the new police headquarters. But nobody showed up.

Relatives waited for prisoners to be released, but tensions rose while the release was delayed. Israeli soldiers dismantled a base, but there was no troop withdrawal.

It was a halting start to the promised new reality a day after the autonomy agreement was signed in Cairo, Egypt, by PLO leader Yasser Arafat and Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

Outside the main Gaza army base that was being dismantled, at the Nahal Oz checkpoint where families waited for released prisoners and in the would-be seat of government in Jericho, reactions were varied.

National

Clinton wants to join forces with new South Africa

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton pledged Thursday to make the United States a full partner with the new South African government, offering additional trade benefits and $600 million in aid for the post-apartheid society.

The U.S. assistance, including education and health aid as well as investment promotion and duty-free exports, will not only benefit South Africa's new multiethnic economy but also U.S. economic and security interests, Clinton said.

"We have important interests at stake in the success of South Africa's journey," he told a ceremony on the White House South Lawn.

State/Regional

Harvard vows more minorities

BOSTON (AP) — Harvard Medical School has vowed to increase the number of minorities and women among its faculty and tenured professors.

The school did not set either a timetable or firm numbers to shoot for in announcing its goal on Thursday. However, it said it intends "to assemble a faculty that mirrors the diversity of our nation."

Currently, 3 percent of the total faculty and 2.5 percent of the tenured professors are members of "underrepresented minorities," which the school defines as blacks, Hispanics and American Indians. Asians are not included because they are well-represented on the Harvard staff. The percentage of underrepresented minority members on the faculty has not changed in the past decade.

Now, 30 percent of the faculty and 7 percent of tenured professors are female. This is up from 23 percent of the faculty and 3 percent of tenured staff in 1984.

Lawyer holds on harassment suit

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A lawyer representing a former state worker who has accused President Clinton of sexual harassment did not file a lawsuit Thursday as he had threatened.

Attorney Daniel Traylor had threatened to file the suit on behalf of Paula Corbin Jones, claiming Clinton violated her civil rights. He said Jones would seek an apology and damages.

But Traylor failed to appear at a 2 p.m. press conference he had scheduled, and several hours later a clerk from another law firm announced that the lawsuit would not be filed "for reasons we are not at liberty to disclose."

It was the third delay in the lawsuit by Jones, who held a Washington news conference to publicize her allegations Feb. 11 at a meeting of the Conservative Political Action Committee.

The White House denies an encounter with Jones took place, but took the threat of litigation seriously enough to hire Washington lawyer Robert Bennett to defend the president.

Phones are back on line

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

The phone system at the University of Massachusetts is finally fixed. Students and faculty can make phone calls without being cut off in the middle of their conversations.

Danny Chun, spokesperson for the UMass news office, said there has been some adjustments made in the software.

"They [the Telecommunications Office] have been flying engineers in from Ericsson Technical Assistance Center in Cypress, California, to work on the problems," Chun said.

He also said they have been working around the clock and flying equipment in to find the main cause of the failure.

"There still may be some static on the line and when you call a number on campus the line may be busy. Otherwise, people who use the phone should not be cut off," he said.

Randy Saller, director of telecommunication services, said, "except for a possible brief interruption of service while some circuits are being tested, once a call is in progress it should no longer be interrupted by the telephone system."

On May 3, at 1 p.m., the telecommunications office first realized there was a problem. People could not use the phones without having static and being cut off. Only people using the UMass phones had this problem.

Daniel Blanchard, director of network systems and services from the office of information technologies, said the problem was not from the failure of the Internet system.

"Our campus high-speed data network, including our connection to the Internet, is separate from our campus telephone system. Problems with either system do not affect the other," Blanchard said.

Saller said it has been difficult to fix the problem because of the "regular call volume on campus and the size of the campus system," and because Ericsson has never experienced a problem like this one before.

Joanna Ritter, a sophomore hotel, restaurant and travel administration major, said the phone problem has been a real "nuisance."

"I wish they could have fixed it a little faster. There were several times when I wanted to make a long distance phone call and I had to call back at least five different times. I also had trouble with my voice mail for awhile," Ritter said.

Breaking down walls, building a community

By STEPHEN C. CAMPBELL
Collegian Staff

This Saturday, May 7, the 13th annual Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender Pride March will take place in Northampton. Marchers are asked to begin gathering at Lampron Park in front of Bridge Street School at 11:30 a.m. The march will end at Pulaski Park, where the rally will run from 1 to 4 p.m.

All are welcome to join the march and express their support for the end of discrimination against lesbians, gay men, bisexuals and transgender people.

The theme for this year's march is "Breaking Down Walls, Building a Community," stressing the need for lesbians, gays, bisexuals and transgender people to join forces and work together to overcome what they feel is a fierce hate campaign directed toward them all by the Christian Right.

The rally will include several performers and five keynote speakers representing the five major subcultures present at the March.

The lesbian keynote speaker is Rev. Sunny Meidell, contributing author to the book Lesbian Nuns: Breaking Silence, and a minister at Hope Church in

Turn to MARCH, page 6

Fenced in

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN

UPC volunteers Jen Lucero, Jennifer Wischnof and Rick Farrel work to erect a fence for the Spring Concert, which will be Sunday afternoon.

RSO budgets decided

Senate votes on funding for student organizations

By JUSTIN DOYLE
Collegian Staff

The Undergraduate Student Senate at the University of Massachusetts began its most important business of the year on Wednesday night, as it voted on the budgets for the Registered Student Organizations on campus.

The Senate went line by line through all the budgets for RSOs on campus, and voted on how much money each group would be allocated for the next school year.

Jeremey Hathoway, the chairman of the budgets committee, presented the RSO budgets to the Senate at a meeting last week. Hathoway reviewed the budgets line by line at the meeting.

"For the last four months, Jeremy has worked with his committee writing the budget, considering every short, crew is not only losing half of its membership dues, but also half of the money they normally receive from the athletic department, said Malonek.

"Every year crew asks the athletic department for a grant because we are an intramural sport. They are threatening to give us only half of the money because the women have left, even though we are still a co-ed club," Malonek said.

The first amendment failed, but a new amendment was proposed later in the night. When the budget for the Fencing Club came to a vote, an amendment was presented to fund the club and give the money to crew. This amendment also failed.

"It's just a bunch of people who are sore losers who have nothing better to do but to try and destroy other groups," said Andy Berenson, a senator.

Lesbian Bisexual Gay Association, New World Theater and the Black Mass Communications Project.

"The groups weren't picked because of who they were, but how much money they received. They were chosen because they were groups who got over $8,000," said Rob Malonek, crew president.

The Crew Club is in need of money because it will lose half of its membership next year when the Women's Crew team will become a varsity sport to fulfill Title IX, said Malonek.

"We won't be able to be self supporting next year without an increase in funding," Malonek said.

According to Title IX, the University has to have the same ratio of men to women on varsity sports as they do men to women students, said Malonek.

The Crew relies on its membership to help fund the club. Because the women are becoming a varsity

Brothers of Sigma Phi take to couches for library

DAYMON SMITH / COLLEGIAN

Sigma Phi Epsilon members (from left to right) Kurt Heglin, David Levine, Steve Saulnier and David Spencer chip into the their house's cause by sitting out and collecting funds for the library.

By GINA LARSON
Collegian Correspondent

While most people are usually out baking brownies or volunteering their time to raise money for a good cause, the brothers of Sigma Phi Epsilon have taken a different approach.

After dragging out couches, a wide screen television, and VCR, the men of Sigma Phi have set up camp in front of the library to be lazy couch potatoes, raising money for the University of Massachusetts library.

The goal of the project is to raise $500 to help the library stay open later at night and buy new books. So far, over $200 has been raised by collecting small donations from passers by. The assistant director of Greek Affairs, Mike Weismann, helped the fraternity by donating to their cause.

Sigma Phi members have camped out since Monday, rain or shine, 24-hours a day, and have extended the fundraiser for an extra day until Friday. Almost every member of the fraternity has showed up to help out, or more appropriately, sit in for a shift.

Dedicated to the cause, John Felo, Brandon McDonald, Alex Kowalski and Kurt Heglin are the four die-hard missionaries, seldom leaving their post.

But why leave? They have enjoyed watching cultural movie classics, such as "Caddyshack" and "Animal House," and have heartily feasted on Antonio's Pizza and The Sub cuisine. Both restaurants donated food to the brothers in support of their fundraiser this year.

Sigma Phi Epsilon is the largest fraternity on campus, with 64 members and 21 pledges. They have helped in other community projects such as "Into Amherst" and projects for Volunteers in Vital Action (VIVA).

This is the third year the fraternity has helped the library with funding, and although it is grueling work, the Sigma Phi brothers try to keep in mind that it is all for a good cause.

Amherst 11-year-old gets illegal blade in mail

By JAMES S. SMITH
Collegian Correspondent

As the debate to ban the production and distribution of 19 types of semi-automatic weapons rages on in Congress, an 11-year-old Amherst karate student was able to get a dangerous, illegal weapon through the U.S. Postal Service.

According to Larry Kelly of the Karate Health Fitness Center in Amherst, a brass knuckle knife, as well as other double-bladed weapons, are illegal in Massachusetts, but are still legally available in Massachusetts through the post office.

Kelly said unlike guns, switchblades and fireworks, which are banned by federal law from being transported through the postal service, double-bladed weapons are not banned and can be mailed legally.

Stores in other states, such as Georgia, where the weapons are legal, can ship them through the mail to 11-year-olds in Massachusetts without fear of breaking the law, Kelly said. However, as soon as the weapons are taken out of their package they are illegal weapons in the Common-wealth of Massachusetts, he said.

According to Kelly, double-bladed weapons are designed to cut through flesh both as it is being inserted and as it is exiting a victim.

"These weapons are designed to rip and cut human flesh," Kelly said. "They are killing paraphernalia."

"Massachusetts has the strongest weapons laws in the country," Kelly said. "But they are useless without the federal government holding them up at the federal level."

Kelly said he believes crimi-

Turn to WEAPONS, page 3

One switched vote passes House assault rifle ban

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In a nerve-wracking drama determined by the switch of a single vote, the House decided Thursday to ban 19 types of assault-style weapons, bending to Americans' fear of violent crime. It was a crushing and unusual defeat for the National Rifle Association.

A buoyant President Clinton called it a "sea change in the crime debate."

Supporters of the ban erupted in cheers as the 216-214 vote ended dramatically, with Rep. Andrew Jacobs Jr., D-Ind., switching his vote to support the ban. Jacobs said there was no last-minute, arm-twisting.

"I spoke to no one," Jacobs said. "And I left the floor immediately because I didn't want to take any accolades from the supporters."

But others felt the pressure from their colleagues. In the final seconds of the vote, Reps. Austin Murphy, D-Pa. and Doug Applegate, D-Ohio, sat as lawmakers from both sides leaned over, furiously trying to persuade them.

Murphy inserted his electronic card into a slot and voted "no." Applegate was too late to

AN, page 2

For Your Information

This is public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Friday, May 6

Service — Jumma Salat and Khutba will be held at 1 p.m. in the Campus Center. Sponsored by the Muslim Student Association.
Service — Shabbat service will be led by Julius Lester at 7 p.m. in Hillel House.
Broadcast — Valley Access Network will show program two in their series of works by Five College film and video students at 8 p.m. on Ch. 19.
Training — Womanshelter Companeras needs volunteers to answer a hotline for battered women and their children. Training sessions will begin today at 6 p.m. For more information, call 538-9717 between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Saturday, March 7

March — The 13th Annual Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender Pride March will begin at noon at Lampron Park, Northampton, and will finish at Pulanski Park where an all-day rally will be held. Keynote speakers include transgender author Leslie Feinberg, bisexual activist Robin Ochs and s/m issues speaker Jo Aron.
Observation — Free public observation will begin at 9 p.m. if clear at Amherst College Wilder Observatory.

Sunday, March 8

Observation — Public solar observing, conducted by the Amherst Astronomy Association, begins at 1 p.m. if clear on the Amherst Town Common.
Services — ALANA Christian Alliance will hold church services at 10 a.m. in Campus Center Room 163.
Reading — Transgender author Leslie Feinberg will read from Stone Butch Blues during a dinner hour show beginning at 6:30 p.m. at The Green River Cafe, 24 Federal St., Greenfield. Tickets are $10, $12 at the door, $6 with student ID.
Meeting — A free, drop-in men's group meets from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Men's Resource Center, Main Street, Amherst.

UMass graduate returns

Coast Guard commander will discuss career plans

It is said that life is a circle and that people will return to the places from where they came. This is true for Coast Guard Commander Susan G. Moritz, who will be returning to the University of Massachusetts today.

Moritz graduated from UMass as Susan Ingalls in 1975, with a Bachelor of Science degree in the University's wildlife and fisheries biology program.

Moritz will be speaking at a wildlife and fisheries seminar today in room 203 of the Holdsworth Natural Resources Center at noon. The topic of the discussion is "Different Paths After Graduation."

Moritz joined the Coast Guard after graduating, and has since risen steadily through the ranks. In 1977, the first year the Coast Guard allowed women to serve sea duty, Moritz was one of only 24 women selected for duty aboard a cutter.

Since then, her assignments have taken her to Long Beach, CA; Governors Island, NY; Fort Lauderdale, FL; Washington D.C.; and Curtis Bay, MD. She served in proximity to the North Atlantic fishing fleet, worked against drug trafficking in the Caribbean, and major fleet supply and re-tooling operations in Baltimore.

-JACOB W. MICHAELS

Springfield office on top of P.O. list

By JEFF DONN
Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD — It was the lunch-hour rush at the city's main post office Thursday, but there wasn't a disgruntled worker in sight. No hubbub. No long lines. Not even a cranky customer.

Leave your jokes and stereotypes about the U.S. Postal Service outside as you enter the air-conditioned lobby, enlivened by hanging plants and colorful stamp displays. This could be the most popular post office in the country.

It is the flagship for the western Massachusetts region, which has won the Postal Service's latest national survey for customer satisfaction.

The region's 109 post offices gained a ranking of 96 out of 100 in overall satisfaction in a survey of more than 1,000 customers.

It was the highest score for 170 postal districts in a quarterly survey commissioned by the Postal Service.

This region's post offices are remaking their image not just with their traditional rounds through rain and snow, but also with Dale Carnegie schooling for clerks, short lines that would make the Motor Vehicle Registry blush, periodic donuts and coffee for customers, and even an automated phone service for box holders that saves unnecessary trips by telling them if a laser scan turned up any mail in their box.

The region's operations manager, Paul Matthews, said he is frustrated by the emphasis of the news media and humorists on the shooting outbursts by workers at several post offices in recent years.

"It's very easy for a DJ or cartoonist to take their shots at the Postal Service," he said. "The stereotype...is unfair."

In the main Springfield Post Office, which handles more than 200,000 pieces of mail on a typical day, managers have gone to extraordinary lengths to make customers feel at home.

Correction

The caption under yesterday's front page photo of Bobby McFerrin signing autographs incorrectly identified the group that brought the children to meet McFerrin. The organization is the regional, non-profit ROOTS International Program, currently housed at UMass.
The Collegian regrets the error.

■ ban

continued from page 1

vote electronically, and had to fill out a green card, signifying a "yes" vote. Supporters erupted in applause.

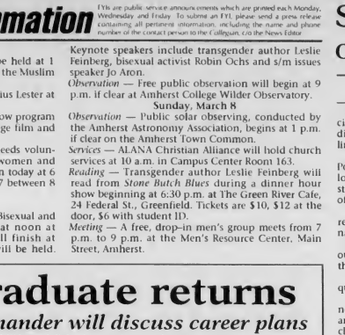
Moments before, supporters were ahead by about 30 votes, but opponents tied the vote at 203 and 213 before Jacobs switched. Clinton said supporters of the ban had "demonstrated extraordinary courage in the face of extraordinary political pressure to walk away." Wayne LaPierre, NRA executive vice president, said those same lawmakers "led Americans down a blind alley of make-believe crime control."

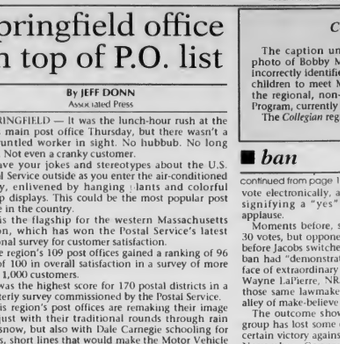
The outcome showed anew that the gun owners' group has lost some of the clout that once brought it certain victory against legislation to ban firearms. Last November, Congress passed the Brady law that requires a five-day wait and background checks for handgun buyers.

Clinton, who lobbied lawmakers in dozens of telephone calls, said the House "rose to the occasion and stood up for the national interest."

"They stood up against the madness that we have come to see when criminals and terrorists have legal access to assault weapons and then find themselves better armed than police, putting more and more people in increasing danger of their lives," Clinton said at the White House, flanked by cheering staff members.

Both houses now have passed similar weapons bans. The final language must be worked out in a House-Senate conference.





From $199 Each Way
LONDON
Eurail Passes Issued on the Spot!
All other Rail Passes Also Available
Hong Kong $469
Paris $219
Brussels $252
* Departure from New York
Council Travel
Fares are 1/2 round trips. Departure from Boston unless otherwise indicated. Taxes and surcharges not included. Fares subject to change. Student or Faculty ID may be required.
79 S. Pleasant Street, 2nd Floor
Amherst, MA 01002
413-256-1261

SQUIRE VILLAGE APTS.
Sunderland, MA
665-2203
RENTING NOW FOR JUNE 1ST & SEPTEMBER 1ST
Beautiful spacious apartments in different shapes and sizes. We have 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 bedrooms available. Spacious yards, swimming pool, dishwasher, A/C, garbage disposals, wall to wall carpeting, laundry facilities, walk-in closets & much more.
On bus route.

Call For Our Special Offer
Brandywine of Amherst
Brandywine offers Country Living with Convenience
• On UMass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
• Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
• One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
• Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
• Stop by and we'll show you what we have to offer.
• Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).
BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open
Mon.-Fri. 9-5, Sat. & Sun. 10-3
549-0600

Marine Awareness Research Expedition Center

Summer Programs For College Students and High School Juniors and Seniors
(3 College Credits / 14 Day Programs)
Coastal Ecology, Marine Science, Maritime History and Literature aboard the schooner Harvey Gamage.
Franklin Pierce College
Rindge, New Hampshire
For information call 1-800-868-3288

Introducing the fastest ways to get through college.

Power Macintosh™ 6100/60 16/250 with SoftWindows, Apple® Color Plus 14" Duplex, Apple Extended Keyboard II and mouse.

Power Macintosh™ 7100/66av 8/500, internal AppleCD™ 300i Plus CD-ROM Drive, Macintosh® Color Display, Apple® Extended Keyboard II and mouse.
Speed. Power. And more speed. That's what the new Power Macintosh™ is all about. It's a Macintosh® with PowerPC™ technology. Which makes it an incredibly fast personal computer. And the possibilities are endless. Because now you'll have the power you need for high-performance applications like statistical analysis, multimedia, 3-D modeling and much more. So, what are you waiting for? Visit your Apple Campus Reseller for more information and see for yourself. Now that Power Macintosh is here, college may never be the same.
The new Power Macintosh from Apple.
Apple
UNIVERSITY STORE
Computer Department
Campus Center
545-2619
MONDAY - FRIDAY 9AM-5 PM
SATURDAY 11AM-3PM
©1994 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the Apple logo and Macintosh are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. AppleCD and Power Macintosh are trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. PowerPC is a trademark of International Business Machines Corporation, used under license therefrom.

Students enjoy Mullins feast

DAYMON SMITH / COLLEGIAN
Students waited more than 15 minutes in line for the "Touring America: A Culinary Celebration" event at the Mullins Center Thursday night...

By TRACY MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

Anyone looking for the annual all-campus barbecue this semester was aimlessly wandering around the Southwest fields while the rest of the campus was at the William D. Mullins Center enjoying a new feast.

"Touring America: A Culinary Celebration" was the name of this year's campus-wide event sponsored by University Dining Services.

The whole set-up was different from the annual all-campus barbecue. The food booths were set up at various concession stands around the Mullins center and booths were set up in a circular pattern around the floor. Student response was positive.

"I think they should have this food all the time, instead of the regular meals," said Dave Krendel, a senior finance major. When asked if it was better than the barbecue, he said "yeah, there's less bugs."

Felice Cohen, a worker at the Admissions Center, said she wished there were trays to carry the food on.

Dining Commons' workers from across the campus were decked out in red, white and blue and served a variety of foods hailing from across the country.

From the Northeast, there was New England clam chowder, Parker house rolls and Maine baked potatoes. The Mid-Atlantic booth held Philly cheese steaks, pizza from Antonios and New York cheesecake.

The Southern booths served both catfish and chicken fingers, sweet potato pie and key lime pie. Hailing from the Southwest was mesquite chicken, Texas and lentil chili, and cornbread.

Mini egg rolls, fried rice and shrimp kabobs represented the West coast, and the Mid-West served Wisconsin cheese and crackers and pizza from Pizzeria Uno's.

Other delectables included fresh fruits and vegetables, Friendly's ice cream and Toll House cookies.

She also said it wasn't the same as last year's barbecue because it was inside, but she enjoyed it just the same.

Joao Fernandez, a junior finance major and D.C. worker, said they had a different job to do compared to last year's barbecue.

"It's fun to be out in the sun," Fernandez said.

Individuals received a coupon booklet with tickets for each food item. One food item was allowed per ticket. Students on the meal plan with valid identification were allowed in free, all others were charged $10.

DAYMON SMITH / COLLEGIAN
...Where they were treated to acts and performers, like this man on stilts, as well as a potpourri of foods from across the country.

Teenager receives four lashes despite pleas against rattan rod

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press

SINGAPORE — Singapore delivered the stinging last words in a case that provoked international debate on crime and how to discourage it: four strokes of a rattan rod across the buttocks of an American teenager.

Michael Fay was among 10 prisoners to be flogged Thursday at Queenstown Prison. The 18-year-old high school senior was completing his fifth week of a four-month prison term also ordered for spray-painting cars and other acts of vandalism.

The punishment, considered torture by many human rights groups, was carried out using a wetted, four-foot-long, half-inch-thick rattan rod.

Floggings are a common form of punishment in Singapore and some other countries, but Fay's case touched a nerve in the United States and some other Western countries struggling with rising crime and the apparent failure of efforts to deter it.

While his parents sought U.S. support for their campaign to get the sentence lifted, many Americans said they felt Fay was getting what he deserved and called for tougher punishment at home.

The sentence was reduced Wednesday from six lashes to four in response to an appeal by President Clinton, who considered caning too harsh a punishment for the crime. The State Department called in the Singapore ambassador to express its displeasure when the sentence was carried out.

"I think it was a mistake," Clinton told reporters. "Not only because of the nature of the punishment related to the crime but because of the questions that were raised about whether the young man was in fact guilty."

Singapore has staunchly defended its penal code — under which some 1,000 men between 16 and 50 years of age are flogged each year — and argued that America's liberal legal system was responsible for its high crime rate.

According to official accounts of caning, prisoners are lashed to a trestle by their hands and ankles and struck on the bare buttocks by a long switch. The skin is broken, the buttocks are bloodied and permanent scars are often left.

Fay's lawyer, Ramanathan Palakrishnan, was able to see him after the caning, and the Prisons Department said the teenager "was examined by the prison's doctor after the caning and found to be in satisfactory condition."

No other details were given, and no official comment was expected from the government.

Fay's parents both contend their son was coerced into a false confession by Singapore police.

His father, George Fay of Kettering, Ohio, suggested that the United States review its ties with Singapore, a tiny city-state in South Asia.

"If we are going to question our relationship with China over human rights, I think it's just as valid to start questioning our relationship with Singapore over human rights," he said. "This was a major human rights violation."

In an interview less than an hour before the caning was announced, Fay's mother, Randy Chan said: "To me six strokes is torture, four strokes is torture. As a mother, of course, I am thankful that it's four. But it's still horrendous."

The youth has lived in Singapore since 1992 with his mother and her husband, Marco Chan. They plan to return to the United States as soon as he is freed.

Fay's parents are next scheduled to visit him May 17. He is to be freed June 21.

■ weapons

continued from page 1

nals will see these weapons as "viable alternatives" as the federal and state governments enact stronger gun control measures because the weapons aren't regulated at the federal level.

"Although guns receive all the media attention, one-third of all murders in the United States are committed with bladed weapons," Kelly said.

Kelly has recently sent a letter to Gov. William Weld urging him to pressure the federal government to stop illegal weapons from being sent to Massachusetts through the U.S. Postal Service.

Included in the letter was a picture of his 11-year-old student holding the weapon he had purchased, as well as a metal piercing, razor sharp "throwing star," to emphasis how easy it is to obtain illegal weapons through the postal service.

In the letter, Kelly said eight years ago Senators Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts and Strom Thurmond of South Carolina proposed a bill that would have closed the loophole allowing these weapons to be sent through the postal service. Kelly said that the National Rifle Association, with its "knee jerk attitude towards any weapons control measure," was instrumental in killing the bill.

However, Kelly said with a Democratic president who favors weapons control measures, as well as a "macho" governor who also favors such measures, the chances a new Kennedy-Thurmond bill will pass are good.

"Of course, eight years ago the Brady Bill would never have passed," Kelly wrote the governor.

AHORA TE INVITA A
HOY viernes 6 de mayo
La Gran Ceremonia de Graduacion del Bilingual Collegiate Program
Ven temprano, y disfruta de este gran evento en el Campus Center Auditorium a las 8:00 pm. y Ceremonia, Comida, mucha Salsa y Merengue de nuestro concepto Latino y mucha diversión especialmente para ti!
y mañana sábado 7 de mayo
El Famoso Picnic
Ven y goza de lo lindo en nuestro clásico dia familiar. Talent Show, Volibol, música de Concepto Latino, y mucho más desde las 12:00 pm en el Bluewall. Pásala bien en un tremendo ambiente único en su clase.
AHORA
APROVECHA EL ESPECIAL DEL MES
¡NO TE PIERDAS NI UNA SOLA ACTIVIDAD!

VOICE EDITOR POSITION OPEN
The editor position for the 1994-95 Graduate Voice is open.
The editor is responsible for producing and distributing 8 monthly issues of The Voice which run 8 to 16 pages. The position carries a stipend equal to the average TA stipend, currently $8,273. The editor may also apply to the Graduate School for a tuition and fee waiver if work on the Voice is related to her/his academic pursuits.
It is not necessary for a candidate to have editorial experience, but the editor will preferably possess good writing and editing skills, basic knowledge of University affairs, basic computer skills, and a willingness to work hard to produce an interesting paper. The editor will work with the GSS Executive Committee & the Office Manager.
Applications – cover letter, resume, & writing sample(s) –must be RECEIVED no later than 5:00pm, Monday, May 16th in the GSS office. Submit applications to:
The Voice Editor Search/919 Campus Center
University of Massachusetts/Amherst, MA 01003-1212
For more information, please call the Graduate Student Senate at 545-2896

Gilreath Manor Condos
- on Hobart Lane -
3 Bedroom • 1½ baths • Heated Basement
New Gas Heat & Hot Water
1/2 Mile to campus • On Bus Route
Showings Start in April
for June or September Occupancy!
Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St • 253-7879

adventura travel
549-1256 584-9441
Amherst Carriage Shops 253 N. Pleasant Northampton 107 Main
Open Sat.
"Best of the Valley" Award
We Can Save You Time & Money
Senior • Student • Business • Vacation Travel
AIR • CRUISE • RAIL • RESORTS
Europe • Asia • Caribbean • USA

DON'T BE LEFT OUT!
PUFFTON VILLAGE
Look What We Offer:
• 1,2, and 3 Bedroom Units
• Rents Starting from $475/Month
• Heat & Hot Water Included in Rent!
• PVTA Bus Stops in Complex
• 1/2 Mile to University, 1 1/2 Miles to Downtown Amherst
• Pool, 5 Tennis Courts & a Basketball Court On-Site!
• Our Office is Open Mon-Fri 8:30 to 4PM
Now accepting rental applications for Summer and Fall. Don't be left out of one of Amherst's best housing deals; prime location, spacious units, individual entrances, on-site parking and cable TV hook-up through Dimension Cable.
PUFFTON VILLAGE APARTMENTS • 1040 North Pleasant St., Amherst, MA
~ Resident Manager 549-0145 ~

"Take A Chance" Sale
Each Day the Discount Changes!
Take a Chance That What You Want Will Be There Tomorrow
IT'S A GAMBLE!!
• LARGE SELECTION OF MERCHANDISE •
School & Office Supplies • Art Supplies • Gifts & Posters • Jewelry • Calculators • Computer Accessories
•SHOP EARLY FOR BEST SELECTION•
• LAST DAY FRIDAY MAY 6 •
ALL SALES FINAL
UNIVERSITY STORE
Campus Center 545-2619
Mon.-Fri. 9-5 Sat. 11-3

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

COLLEGIAN

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

MICHAEL MORRISSEY Editor-in-Chief

Managing Editor DARIENNE HOSLEY | MICHAEL MCRAE Business Manager
Arts & Living Editor EMILY A. MARINO | LISA JEZOWSKI Production Manager
Black Affairs Editor RODNEY POWELL | DANIELLE YANIRO Advertising Manager
Developing Nations Editor JUAN J. CUACON QUIROS | STEPHANIE SHORE Finance Manager
Editorial/Opinion Editor MIKE CARVALHO | ANDREW DAVIDSON Night Graphics Manager
Gay Lesbian Bisexual Issues Editor STEPHEN C. CAMPBELL | JIM BRUNEAU, CAITLIN OLSON Day Graphics Managers
Jewish Affairs Editor JACOB W. MICHAELS | JEREMY DAGGETT Circulation Manager
Multicultural Affairs Editor EVELYN A. DE JESUS | ERIC ABENAMI Subscriptions Manager
News Editor TRACY MONAHAN | MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI Senior Bookkeeper
Photography Editor NATHAN MARTIN | BLAKE PHILLIPS Graphics Professional
Sports Editor ARTHUR STAPLETON JR. | MARTY PAPPAS Classified Advertising
Women's Issues Editor VANESSA ANN | TURLEY PUBLICATIONS Printing Services

113 CAMPUS CENTER BASEMENT · UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS · AMHERST, MA 01003 · (413) 545-3500 · FAX (413) 545-1592

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday–Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. Letters to the editor are encouraged and will be printed on a space-available basis. All submissions must be typed, kept to a maximum of 400 words, and should include the writer's name, address, year and major, as well as a phone number for verification purposes. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length. Persons wishing to submit guest columns should contact the Editorial/Opinion editor in advance. The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily represent those of the Collegian. Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Editorial Board.

Opinion

Get caught in the Croftsfire

Here are my latest thoughts, in no particular order:

Last week I talked about how my housemate Stowie thought being a dog instead of a human would be great. Well, now Stowie believes that being a bird would be better than anything. Why? "Cause you could fly and stuff," said the Stowemeister. Unbelievable.

My friend Craig got involved in this debate over the weekend, and he too would like to be a dog. Why? "Cause you could '[expletive]' on people and stuff." Whatever you say, Craiggo.

Rumor has it that Stowe/Ferrara will be the Perot/Stockdale combination in the 1996 elections.

Stay tuned.

* * * * *

Another debate I've had with my friends recently involves a possible no-holds-barred, Pier 6 brawl between singers Henry Rollins and Glenn Danzig. Who would win?

Jeff Crofts

We've come to the conclusion that Rollins, whose neck could double for a cinder block, would go nuts and destroy the monstrous Danzig. And after the fight Danzig would go crying to none other than his mother. He'd be singing/whimpering, "Mother, Henry Rollins kicked my ass today." It's just a thought.

* * * * *

If you are in desperate need of something to do on a Sunday afternoon, I suggest you check out the flea market at the Dead Mall. It is truly a sight for sore eyes. I went there this past Sunday with my housemates Ethan and Mark and, believe you me, it was an experience.

This scrappy guy was selling new and used CDs and we all found a couple we needed. A couple of the "new" ones Marc bought became another hilarious chapter in a book I hope to write someday.

His "unused" Singles CD turned into a Willie Nelson disc when it was unwrapped and his "brand-spanking new" Ziggy Marley CD turned out to be blank. As in no music, nothing. And technology says it isn't possible yet to record on CDs. I'm glad I bought "used" discs instead. At least I was able to see beforehand that my Posies CD case didn't actually hold a Britny Fox disc inside.

I had been to the flea market once before and had left upset when I was unable to barter a lady down on a classic Pee Wee Herman talking doll. She wanted 40 bucks. I tried to get it lowered, but no could do.

The people at the flea markets are definitely what Mick Jagger was singing about in the classic Stones tune "Salt of the Earth." It was great. Sweatpants and hair-rollers galore, and I'm sure there were at least a couple of mouths filled with teeth made from Play-Doh.

I was unable to find Pee Wee, but what I did see was classic. Kiss baseball cards from 1978 were great as were the four-dollar flannel shirts complete with missing buttons. The ultimate table contained classic games for the Atari 2600. Games like Grand Prix, Pitfall, Donkey Kong and my cult favorite Montezuma's Revenge were just waiting to be bought ... by someone who owns a 2600.

* * * * *

Sunday was also a very annoying day for me at the library. First, it was the Infotrak System. Or more to the point, the long line at the Infotrak System. I have an idea to help cure this confusing line situation.

The library should adopt a deli system for the Infotrak computers. You know, student workers, complete with smocks and plastic gloves, barking out numbers to waiting computer users. I think it would work ... "and can I get some smoked turkey breast on the side? No, I said the Boars Head!"

After the infotrak debacle, there were the ripped-to-shreds magazine-looker-uppers-whatchamacallims on the second floor. What happened to these things? Pages were torn out of the books; with bite marks aplenty no less. Did someone get really hungry and just start chomping away? Who is the Cro-Magnon, chromosome-missin', Neanderthal who would do such a thing? Wow, I'll finish in a minute, just let me wipe the drool from my chin after that attack.

And then the capper involved the change-taking copy machine on the second floor. I'm sittin' there waiting in line for the machine and the women in front of me is just killing me. She's measuring every single copy as if she would be prosecuted if she chopped of a word. Then for every copy she would unzip her wallet, pull out a single dime and zip it back up. Again and again and again. Why?

Finally, about 20 minutes later she finished up and I was getting ready to jump on for my copies when some girl flew out of nowhere and snagged the copier. And she didn't even acknowledge me when I gave her my best Homer Simpson, "Doh!" She just kept copying. Unbelievable.

That's the last time I go the library this semester. I should say the first and the last.

One final thing: Does anyone out there know Sam the Butcher's last name?

Jeff Crofts is a Collegian columnist.

You don't need a classroom

You can learn stuff. After one year here at the University of Massachusetts, I have learned a lot about school, my friends, cards and myself. It has been an interesting year, overall, and I'd like to share my nuggets of knowledge with you.

The first lesson was that classes aren't all that necessary. The emphasis isn't on learning in most courses, and there are an alarming number of poor teachers at this University.

A. J. Stewart

These professors generally exhibit a sense of self-importance that translates into a disdain for their student's needs and desires.

Too often professors who are considered "difficult" wear this label as a badge of honor. They should understand that the reason students have trouble with their classes is usually because they can't communicate the appeal of the material or accurately test the material they have supposedly been covering.

It would be very easy for me to devise a test ar, entire class could fail, and that is by asking questions unfamiliar to those students. The professors who continue to play games that harm their student's marks and spirits should seriously question their talent and their reasons for being here at all.

Another thing I have learned is that anyone can get a job if they work hard enough. Last week i sent out resumes and got a job in eight days. The Career Center constantly points out that there are more jobs than applicants. The hard phase in the job search is finding the time to build a solid resume, and that is where the work comes in. Getting involved in campus activities, maintaining a high G.P.A. and acquiring computer skills all take time, but are worth the effort. Don't use your BA to serve O.J. in the D.C.

More lessons: Everyone goes to bed late around here. i can't keep up with all these vampires. Also, Sega and pitch have taken up far too much of my time. Pitch has more strategy and thinking involved, but Sega has neat graphics. And if you are drinking heavily, drink lots of water and don't close your eyes. Bad things. Bad things, man.

I've learned that a lot of people take this little paper very seriously. Things I have written have received angry letters and phone calls, and my last name isn't even Morrissey. I don't understand what these people want from me. A retraction? A change of heart?

I try to write what I believe. On some level, I hope what I write entertains or informs. People who can't take criticism, however, should not hold office in student organizations. It's a bad mix.

At the risk of annoying more of these "leaders", I'll state the obvious. Spring Concert sucks and it is an embarrassment. Conveniently scheduled on Mother's Day, the show features has-beens and nobodys in a bargain basement jamboree. Advice: get real drunk and pretend it's Pearl Jam.

After further review, the A-10's in Philadelphia were the best time I've had this semester. A van ride with a Bill Curley worshiper, the Rutgers bet, a lost ticket and pitch poolside all added up to a good weekend on the road. I still believe that I will never eat anything as good as that Philly cheesesteak. Really.

I'm sure there are other lessons that i have omitted: the importance of good friends, the problem with 8 a.m's, and the therapeutic benefits of Coca-Cola are just a few. Also, i have two years left here at UMass, so I hope that there are many important lessons yet to come.

I want to thank everyone who has gotten me through a tough year, and say good-bye to those who are lucky enough to be leaving, especially Mike and Sean. All the best.

A.J. Stewart is a Collegian columnist.

Doonesbury

Goodbye to my best friends

May 22. Graduation here at the University symbolizes the ushering-out of worn-out seniors and the ushering-in of eager-beaver freshmen. The date marks the end of another semester of memories, good times, bad times, highlights and lowlights.

This is also the time of year that certain people go off in different directions, hoping to find life in the real world and promising to always keep in touch. Two of my closest friends are members of the Class of 1994 and, for obvious reasons, I'm saddened. However, I'm only trying to remember the fun, so this column, my finale for the semester, is a fond farewell to Mike and Sean.

Arthur Stapleton Jr.

In classic Chris Farley fashion, "Remember the time ..."

Ever try driving a rental car from Massachusetts Morgantown, WVa., during a blizzard? How about turning onto the exit ramp of a three-lane highway from the middle lane in the blizzard? Could Mike be stubborn enough to refuse free gas, then run that same rental car out of gas? Umm, yep — and Sean agreed with him.

All in all, the trip was worth it. Sean elbowed WVU guard Marsalis Basey in the chest at a bar after we beat the Mountaineers on the court three hours earlier. How alternative is the culture in West Virginia? Some woman had cow trophies, Sean was ecstatic that Skoal was only $1.75, and all schools were closed so students could go out and hunt.

Road trips were always interesting with the dynamic duo. Mike and I made the trek to Morgantown two seasons ago and were intelligent enough to walk to the Coliseum in our dress clothes. Oh, one problem — black slush. We looked a little sloppy when we got inside the building, but thoughts of the good food awaiting us kept us going...

Until we got in the Jerry West Room and found the slop (what I termed kibbles and grits) which was being served. Let's just say we had a few laughs before the Minutemen got spanked by 22 points.

I owe a lot to Mike; he always knows how to really piss me off. We've had some classics, including two years ago in Syracuse during Spring Break. He decided that this vacation would be a miserable one for him — and, consequently, for Sean and me, who were sleeping on the floor of his hotel room. Mike left the room in a fit and had a nice late-night stroll around the Sheraton, until he passed out on a couch in the lobby. He still to this day has never told us where he went — let's just say we found out.

Sean and I, on the other hand, rarely argue; honestly, I don't know why. We're roommates, he's as stubborn as Mike, he never agrees with me ... I guess we both fight with Mike.

One time Mike was so drunk he told Sean he could shotgun a beer; personally, at the time, I didn't think Mike knew what a shotgun was. Yet Mike tried to do it anyway, dropped the full can of beer in the process, and lost the race with Sean. What transpired was a huge argument: Sean told Mike he was a poor loser, he didn't like to lose and he would never admit to losing.

It got so bad that Sean put Mike up against a wall and almost hit him; the night ended when Mike stumbled out of the room and went for another walk. Would this hurt the friendship?

Nah, they met me in the D.C. the next morning, laughing and joking about something totally unrelated.

Speaking of D.C., Sean and I spent a weekend in our nation's capital back in February, which turned out to be one of the funniest experiences I've had. We drove from Philadelphia (after UMass beat Temple in McGonigle) to Washington on the team bus, John Calipari gave us a sub, a wacky cab driver told us a great story, and Sean left a bar one night singing Buster Poindexter's "Hot, Hot, Hot!"

Why does it seem like every trip ended with a loss for our basketball team?

Yeah, the greatest thing we did came this Spring Break in Wichita, Kansas. All three of us walked back six miles (actually, Sean ran) to our hotel via Hooters: over the rivers, highways, etc. It was also the last NCAA Tournament we're all going to be at together, and, continuing the tradition, Massachusetts lost.

It'll be the last time for a lot of things — meals at the D.C., hours of malt power, trips to Notre Dame ... but it is a new beginning. Life's too short to worry about the future and losing your friends. You'll see each other again.

Who knows? Maybe Mike, Sean and I will all be covering the same sport for three major newspapers. Then again, maybe not — but I'd do it all again for a dollar.

Arthur Stapleton Jr. is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Not excited about the Spring Concert

To the editor:

What is with this year's Spring Concert lineup? It's headed by the Violent Femmes, a has-been band were the best time I've had this semester. A van ride with a Bill Curley worshiper, the Rutgers bet, a lost ticket and pitch poolside all added up to a good weekend on the road. I still believe that I will never eat anything as good as that Philly cheesesteak. Really.

I'm sure there are other lessons that i have omitted: the importance of good friends, the problem with 8 a.m's, and the therapeutic benefits of Coca-Cola are just a few. Also, i have two years left here at UMass, so I hope that there are many important lessons yet to come.

I want to thank everyone who has gotten me through a tough year, and say good-bye to those who are lucky enough to be leaving, especially Mike and Sean. All the best.

A.J. Stewart is a Collegian columnist.

Greek Area is more than just parties

To the editor:

The Greek Area here at UMass is best known for its social aspect. But while the social part of Greek life is an important one, an equally important part of Greek life is community service.

I would like to demonstrate our commitment to serving the community by using our fraternity, Pi Kappa Alpha, as just one example.

Each year, the Newman Center holds an annual phone-a- thon to raise money to help offset their expenses. Several members of the Greek Area worked on the phone-a-thon, calling people and asking for donations. The Pikes alone raised over $3,000 in donations for the Newman Center.

Another example of our community service has been our neously combust. Tommy Tutone will close with an acoustic rendition of his hit "Jenny (867-S309)."

The encore will be either the all-star cast singing Men Without Hats' "The Safety Dance," or Solid Gold star Michael Sembello performing his very own "She's a Maniac."

This year's concert has no big stars, so who cares about the has-beens and never-will-bes anyway?

Only Synaesthesia deserves credit for this show.

Ryan C. Siden
History, sophomore

work with The Boltwood Project. The Boltwood Project is a learning center for mentally and physically challenged people. There are many people in the Greek Area who earn course credit for helping these people on a daily basis.

There are eight people from Pike who are now working with this project. Two weekends ago, there was an outdoor Pike party with a reggae band, and we were able to donate $1,000 to the Boltwood Project from the donations we collected at the party entrance.

Some other philanthropies Pike has participated in include the annual Run for the Horizons, a 10K race to benefit a camp for handicapped people. The runners were able to raise $2,000 via sponsors which we donated to the camp.

The most recent Greek Area philanthropy took place last week during "Greek Week." During this week we committed ourselves to AIDS awareness.

We had a table on the Campus Center Concourse in which we distributed AIDS pamphlets and sold raffle tickets to benefit an AIDS awareness group in Boston. We also raised money for AIDS by sponsoring a volleyball tournament.

Greek life at UMass is a great way to meet people and to have fun but, more importantly, the people in fraternities and sororities are committed to giving back to Amherst and the University community.

Christopher Blake
Pi Kappa Alpha

Arts & Living

Unreal Deadweight; Star Trek successful with new book title

By TARA MK CONNELLY
Collegian Staff

Deadweight
Robert Devereaux
Abyss

The Dell Publishing company recently introduced a new line of books under the Abyss label. Robert Devereaux debuts under this label with his first novel, Deadweight.

The plot revolves around a woman named Katin and her bizarre love for plants and her dead husband, Danny. Every day Karin visits the grave of the man who died by the actions of her own hands.

She cannot let go of him, even though he inflicted years of physical and mental abuse upon her. Nor can she bring herself to start life over with her new husband, Frank.

Karin gets a second chance when her mysterious ability to bring plants back from the dead also resurrects her husband.

Seething for a year under the ground and bent on revenge, Danny and his dog, Wolf (who was buried with him) go on a murderous rampage of blood and gore to get back at Karin.

Now, let's stop for a moment and really think: isn't this book asking a lot of our imaginations? The plot leaks like a sieve from the disassociated introduction to the anti-climatic ending. What the book does have plenty of is kinky sexy, crude language, and an excessive amount of gory details that boarder on overkill (no pun intended).

Deveraux has a great eye for details but he forgets the main ingredient to any good horror story: believability. Remember King's It or Stoker's Dracula? They both possessed those little nuances that kept a reader up all night, jumping at shadows and creaking floor boards.

It seems that Devereaux, like so many new novelists, went for sensationalism, sacrificed credibility, and filled the rest in with perverted sex and gutter language that makes his story common and unexciting. The reading, however, is quick, and the vocabulary is elementary, but the most you'll get out of this book is a few laughs and a feeling of disappointment.

Star Trek The Next Generation:
Here There Be Dragons
John Peel
Pocket Star Books

Another addition to the Star Trek: The Next Generation's book series has been on the shelves for a while and it is well worth a look. John Peel takes Picard and the USS Enterprise into to a world set up by the omnipresent Preservers hidden deep within an interstellar cloud.

The Preservers, a race known for their infinite knowledge and first rate technology, have placed an ancient Earth colony, dating back to Germany's Middle Ages, onto a Class M planet to preserve their way of life and to study their evolution.

Unfortunately, the Preservers' world is being exploited by a group of intergalactic trophy hunters who have set up an illegal gaming exhibition on the planet. Hunting parties are taken to the planet to prey upon the 20-foot native reptiles that inhabit the surface. These armored "dragons" are not only a threat to the human inhabitants, but they're also endangered species as well.

Picard, Riker, Troi and Data beam down to the planet's surface, only to be caught up in murder, mystery and the ever-present code of the Prime Directive. Fast-paced, easy to read and thoroughly engrossing, it's a great book for a rainy day.

Final Sounds ring out semester

The Lemonheads

SOUNDS FROM THE VALLEY
Compiled by Brian Babineau & Matt Audette

As the school year draws to a close, so does my career as a crack music journalist for our fine paper. So with no further adieu, and certainiy no reservations, I provide you with my final thoughts on music, college, and other silly things ...

While columnists like myself sit around and consistently rank on groups like Stone Temple Pilots, or the Lemonheads, it is hard not to see that these groups are still light years ahead of what used to pass for popular music in the late eighties.

I'll take Pearl Jam over Bon Jovi any day, and we are slowly (hopefully) moving towards a time when musicians don't have to sacrifice integrity to be superstars. Pearl Jam has still not released a single or video to accompany Vs., and I think that's fantastic. Nine Inch Nails are chart toppers, and Pavement is poised to be this decade's REM.

The roots of this music movement lie deep in the mid- eighties, and the important bands upon which the foundations of today's alternative sound are built. Not to slight the rock monsters of the seventies, but without the crucial sounds of Husker Du, The Replacements, XTC, and REM adding fuel to the arena rock flame, we would still be stuck with Warrant and Polson as our excuse for rock and roll. Now isn't that scary?

Through four years of college, I have had the benefit of watching this change, and using some of the better bands as my personal soundtrack for life. I can't imagine my freshman year without the psychedelic beauty of the Stone Roses or the dirge-disco of Pretty Hate Machine. My sophomore year would have been dull if not for the roar of Nevermind or the funk-rap-rock stew of the Beastie's Check Your Head.

Junior year would have been horrible without the instant Pavement classic Slanted and Enchanted, and the Smashing Pumpkins' gorgeous, dreamy Siamese Dream made this past year that much better.

Truly, music is crucial in any respect. It provides memories, enhances moods, induces sing-alongs, and makes you cry. in college especially, music is everywhere, literally — in your car, in your bathroom, at parties and in bars, on your walkman and on your answering machines.

When you look back on college years, it will probably be hard to separate memory from music in a lot of respects, so don't even try. Just play your songs and take a second to realize how important music really is. it is the soundtrack to all our lives, so stop and listen...

* * * * *

Well after a semester of forcing my musical opinions down the throat of the entire campus, this fine column is coming to a close. I thought what better way to leave then to give all you music lovers (and hopefully faithful readers of this space) some advice/commentary to keep with you through those long summer months.

Nine Inch Nails

• It seems that every single show that i have seen this semester, some dork has to yell out Free Bird! Please stop doing this, it is really not funny and just makes you look like a fool.

• I think it is high time that the world boycotts everything that post-punk guru Henry Rollins puts out. Yes, he is a "Hot Animal Machine," and a "Liar," but most of all he is an irritating, hypocritical presence in our lives.

• This Sunday when The Violent Femmes take the stage at our very own Spring Concert, it will be like taking a trip back in time to my younger days. Memories of summer camp, sitting around the fire, and singing "Add it Up" bashfully because they said the (gasp) "f" word. Ahhh, I can hardly wait ...

• If your copy of The Brady Bunch's Greatest Hits is beginning to wear out, and you're looking for some new music, check out new releases from Superchunk, The Lilys, and Eggs. Have I ever steered you wrong in the past?

• I cannot wait until this whole "moshing" phase disappears from our youth culture. Every show I have been to this year, some idiot has come flying out of the crowd and proceeded to give me a much unappreciated elbow to the spine. Now, as much as I like walking away from a concert paralyzed from the waist down ...

• Any chance you get, check out Little Ed and the Blues Imperials. Take it from me and Marino — you will not regret it.

Thanks to everybody who faithfully read this column every week and sent in the positive feedback. Brian Babineau is the departing Arts and Living Music Associate, and Matt Audette will be back in action next semester, after a sing-along or two with Lil' Ed.

Lil' Ed and the Blues imperials

R.E.M., doing the Greenpeace thing.

Resumé Package
• 50 copies on Your Choice of 25% Cotton Paper
• 2 Business Day Service
• 1 Page Typeset
•With Coupon•
$19.95!!
CopyCat PRINT SHOP
228 Triangle St., Amherst 549-3840
32 Pleasant St., Northampton 586-1332

Hunan Garden Restaurant 家酒園南湖
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15
NEW
BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-8 p.m.
Sunday Brunch 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.99
Children under 10 - $3.50
Luncheon Specials served 11:30-3 p.m. - $3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 Chicken Fingers, 2 Chicken Wings, or Hot & Sour Soup
TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

COLLECTIVE COPIES
• PASSPORT PHOTOS $4.95/pair
• INTERNATIONAL FAX
One page as low as
$4.00 ARGENTINA
$5.00 IRAN
$3.50 LONDON
29 S. Pleasant St., Amherst 256-6425

College Pro Home Painters
Get a tan painting this summer
Positions available all across New England. Great Pay! Call 1-800-346-4649

ACADEMY OF MUSIC NORTHAMPTON Opera House 584-8435
The #1 Hit Film In The Country
Curtain Daily 7:00 & 9:15
A MAGICAL ROMANTIC COMEDY!
Four Weddings and a Funeral
AN HILARIOUS FLING AFFAIR FROM THE DIRECTOR OF "SHE'D HAVE SPOKEN"
PolyGram GRAMERCY
AT THE GATES OF SMITH COLLEGE

Lincoln Real Estate
has the best selection of 1, 2, & 3 bedroom Uptown Apartments with Gas Heat.
We begin showing apartments in April and May for June or September Occupancy.
253-7879 • 25 N. Pleasant St.

amc THEATRES
$2.50 (TWI-LITE) SHOW DAILY LIMITED TO SEATING
Please Arrive Early
MT. FARMS 6 NO PASSES 584-8113
Call Theatre For Showtimes
Clean Slate PG13
Four Weddings & a Funeral R
With Honors PG13
White Fang 2 PG
The Paper R
HAMPSHIRE 8 NO PASSES 549-7550
Call Theatre For Showtimes
The Favor R
Serial Mom R
No Escape R
Bad Girls R
Threesome R
3 Ninjas Kick Back PG
PCU PG13

College Students
Would 100% Free Tuition Put a Smile on Your Face?
That's right! The Massachusetts Army National Guard offers 100% Free Tuition for state colleges and universities in Massachusetts. The commitment is only about one weekend a month and two weeks a year. And there's more.
You'll receive up to $6,800 in education assistance with the Montgomery GI Bill and you'll earn a salary over your six-year enlistment.
You'll receive job skills training in technical fields such as electronics, communications, or computers and have the adventure of your life!
Let your local Massachusetts Army National Guard recruiter put a smile on your face today.
CALL: 413-586-8881/8682
OR 1-800-322-1338
MASSACHUSETTS ARMY NATIONAL GUARD
Americans At Their Best.
The Army National Guard is an Equal Opportunity Employer

WRITINGS ON A FROSTED WINDOW PANE
A NEW PLAY BY JOHN BINNIE
MAY 3,4,5,6, AND 7 AT 8PM
MATINEE -MAY 7 AT 2PM
HAMPDEN THEATRE
FAC BOX OFFICE 545-2511
THE FINE ARTS CENTER
This project and John Binnie's Residency are funded in part by the UMass Arts Council, the Five College Lecture Fund, the UMass Student Activities Cultural Enrichment Fund, Hampshire College Theatre program, Smith College Department of Theatre, and the UMass Theater Department.

Commander Jimmy in Space Command. OK...Yeah, it's me Mom... can you bring me and Tony some Hohos and soda in the tent ... Oh, and a town Mass Safety Contraption!!

100% BEEF
2 BURGS 2 BUCKS
Great Burgs!
Great Deal!
QUARTER POUNDERS® OPEN YEAR ROUND
585-0241 ROUTE 9 HADLEY MA
PETE'S DRIVE-IN

Do I have a case?
The attorneys at your Student Legal Services Office can answer fee-paying UMass/Amherst students' questions on a variety of legal problems, including: Housing, Criminal, University, Civil Rights, Consumer, Labor Relations, Personal Injury, and Family Law
STUDENT LEGAL SERVICES OFFICE 545-1995
The Student Legal Services Office is your first source of law-related assistance. Whether you need information, advice or referral, call for an appointment. Located in room 922 of the Campus Center, the SLSO is open Monday through Friday, from 9am to 5pm.
Do I need a lawyer?

House debates merits of gun bill

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — It was a blood-drenched debate.

One congressman carried a blown-up photograph of a vicious criminal who had been sentenced to life in prison but was released on parole and sodomized a 4-year old girl. "This," thundered Rep. Duncan Hunter, R-Calif., pointing to the convict, "is an assault weapon!"

He was opposing a ban on the sale and production of assault weapons.

The other side talked gore, too. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., told the House of a young constituent gunned down last Easter Saturday on the steps of a Chicago church. Gerald Kleczka, D-Wis., told of a police officer killed in a shower of bullets last week while pursuing a criminal. Richard Lehman, D-Calif., recalled the man who opened fire on a schoolyard full of kids five years ago, killing five youngsters and wounding dozens.

Let's give our children on school playgrounds a fighting chance to get out of the way," he said.

Something has happened in Congress. Last year, it passed the Brady bill, calling for a waiting period and records check before an American can buy a handgun. It has turned against cigarettes and their manufacturers and is likely to pass a huge tax, unthinkable a few years ago. Now it has voted again for gun control.

Those who supported the bill talked of the "courage" of the handful who had opposed gun control measures in the past but this time said they would defy the National Rifle Association. In October 1991, a bill to control assault weapons was defeated 247-177. Thursday's measure, more tightly drawn, passed 216-214. Those who opposed the bill talked of the Constitution. They said the rights of Americans — not the weapons of criminal - were under attack.

Melrose kiss may be risky

By LYNN ELBER
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The sexy bravado of "NYPD Blue" kicked off the television season. Then came the gay bar kiss on "Roseanne" and the gay wedding on "Northern Exposure."

"Melrose Place" could bring TV's most daring year yet to an end with a bang — or a whimper. A shared kiss between two men might be deleted by Fox Broadcasting Co. before the season finale is broadcast May 18.

The network has yet to receive the completed episode and will review it before making a decision, Fox spokeswoman Sharan Magnuson said.

The producers were mum after bold talk about enlightened treatment of gay characters. Whatever Fox does, critics are ready to pounce.

"I think it's a real problem that such a progressive network would be worried about this ... a recurring gay character who happens to get kissed," said Lee Werbel, executive director of the Gay & Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation's Los Angeles chapter.

But L. Brent Bozell III, chairman of Media Research Center, a conservative watchdog group in Alexandria, Va., condemns such scenes as gratuitous — and as the industry's liberal politics as usual.

"I don't want a program that teaches homosexuality is wrong," he said. "I don't want a program that teaches it's right...If you want to entertain, entertain. If you want a documentary on this, put it on PBS."

■ march

continued from page 1

Amherst.

The gay keynote speaker is Mark Carmien, a local gay activist who has worked on domestic partnership issues at the Hampshire County Action Committee.

Robyn Ochs, the bisexual keynote speaker, is known nationally as a bisexual activist and scholar from Cambridge.

The transgender keynote speaker is Leslie Feinberg, a long-time transgender activist from New Jersey whose groundbreaking 1993 novel, Stonebutch Blues, recently won an American Library Association literary award.

Jo Arnone will be the keynote speaker for S and M issues.

This year's Pride March Steering Committee dedicates their efforts to the memory of Northampton Gay Rights Activist Sam Gianelli, a Steering Committee member who died five days after last year's march, and to 20 year old steering committee member Nicholas Axas, who was disowned and financially cut off by his family a month after last year's march. Because he no longer has access to a car and has a fulltime job, he was unable to work this years march.

Get Great Job Experience And Get Paid For It.

The Collegian

Editorial Positions for Fall '94

Editor-in-Chief • Managing Editor
Arts & Living • Black Affairs
Developing Nations • Editorial/Opinion
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues
Jewish Affairs • Multicultural Affairs
News • Photography
Sports • Women's Issues

Also: Copy/Night Editors, Associate Editors

Applications: Due Friday, May 6 by 5pm
Candidate's Night: Monday, May 9 • 7pm
Elections: Tuesday, May 10 • 9-4pm

For More Information & an Application, Drop by the Collegian, 113 Campus Center Basement. The Collegian is an E.O. Employer.

THE UNITED STATES MARINE CORPS

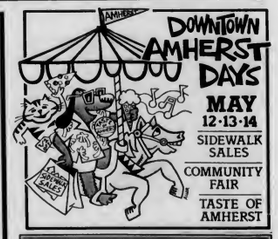
Officer Selection Office of Western New England

WISHES THE BEST OF LUCK TO:
MARK CHRISTENSON '95
AT OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL THIS SUMMER

If you want to know what it takes get into the Marine Officer Programs, call Captain Blazis or Master Sergeant Zahn at 1-800-255-8762

UMass Summer Session 1994

- Missed a course? Make it up!
- Advance in next semester's work
- Fulfill a requirement
- Learn something new



Over 200 credit courses offered.

Two, six-week sessions:
First session: June 7-July 15
Second session: July 19-August 25

Register Now!

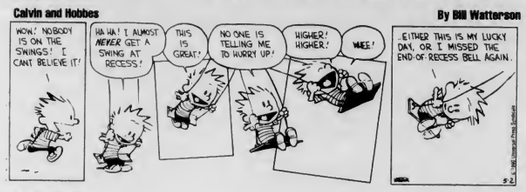
Catalogs available all over campus or at the Division of Continuing Education, 6th floor Goodell Building, 545-2414.

A quality education at affordable prices.

We Deliver
Kai Chi
Chinese-American Cuisine
Restaurant & Bar

Congratulations Graduates!

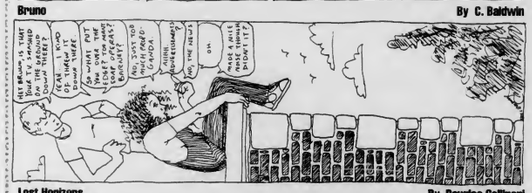
SAVE UP TO 30% OFF!



Complete Family Dinner Specials with your choice of Soup • Appetizer • Dessert • Entree
Make Your Reservations Now for Mother's Day and Graduation!

Kai Chi Restaurant
MT. FARMS MALL • RTE 9 • HADLEY • 586-2774
Open Mon. - Thurs. 11:30am - 11pm, Fri.-Sat. 11:30am - midnight, Sunday 12 noon - 10:30pm

Calvin and Hobbes — By Bill Watterson



Calvin and Hobbes — By Bill Watterson

Jim's Journal — By Jim

Bruno — By C. Baldwin

Lost Horizons — By Douglas Collinor

Daily Crossword

Edited by Trudy Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 — off the old block
5 Health resort
9 Israeli port
14 Macbeth title
15 Coffeemaker
16 Firth of Clyde island
17 Stubborn
19 Criticize harshly
20 Church yearbook
21 Summertime living?
22 Italian poet
23 Part of e.e. cummings' name
24 Stannic
25 Before, to Burns
27 Type hyper Abbr.
29 "The Magic Mountain" author
30 Things at law
33 — Wan chicken dish
35 Privations
37 Together, in music
38 Wessex writer
39 Reykjavik's land: Abbr.
40 Rash
42 Teller
43 Bobble
44 "The King —"
45 Passport endorsement
46 Asian inland sea
47 — odds
48 Actor Tom
51 Kind of boot
54 Skilled
58 Dame of comedy
62 Spyri heroine
63 Braggadocios
64 "Mayflower" passenger
65 Tagged
66 Tonto's horse
67 Directly
68 Marine det. — Cetti
69 "One ot — days ..."

DOWN
1 A Mickelerer
2 Chutkoss
3 Gin
4 European lead-in
5 Intl. writers' org.
6 Lary lady?
7 C in C
8 Mickey Rooney role
9 Emures
10 Bellowing
11 Mideast land
12 Quick
13 Poker stake
18 Coup d'—
glanos
24 Greek cross
26 The — 500
28 Asian weight unit
29 — Oraa
30 Unknown party to a lawsuit
31 Fencer's weapon
32 Man or Wight
33 Brasserie serving
34 Essence
36 Prison sentence
38 Hunzas
39 Mandlikova of tennis
41 Tonya
42 Pourboire
45 Pancreine
46 Enoch or Eve
47 Krakow coin
49 Pakistani river
50 Shaped dough
51 Cartoonist Addams
52 Assist
53 Verdi heroine
55 Melancholy
56 Apiece
59 FDR's successor

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

5/6/94

By James E. Hilsick, Jr.
©1994 Los Angeles Times Syndicate

5/6/94

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Kielbasa Grinder	Breaded Chicken Breast
Grilled Sneeze	Cheese Lasagna
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Grilled Sneeze	Breaded Chicken Breast
Oalburgers	Macaroni&Lentil Stuff

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Michael Morrissey
Copy Editor.....Barbara Cannistraro
Photo Technician.....Steve Pedulla
Production Supervisor.....Marni E. Helfner
Production.....Tony Morse, Christopher Stryder Cook

The Far Side — By Gary Larson

"OK, OK! Calm down, everyone! ... This monster — would you say he was bigger or smaller than your building? ... You can talk it over."

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A long awaited meeting lives up to your expectations. Use tact to resolve a difficult personal problem. Do not be afraid to mix business with pleasure. Call home if you are traveling.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The emphasis is on being creative, independent and direct. Have confidence in yourself and others will follow your lead. What you need is available. Reach for it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Keep your priorities in mind when planning a work schedule. You need to play it safe where an unusual financial venture is concerned. Actively behind the scenes could affect you in a positive way.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your busy groovy today is obtaining reliable information and completing a special project. Past efforts produce new rewards. Maintain a steady pace at work.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Do not become unapproachable just because you have a disagreement with someone. Tact and charm will let you obtain your goals. You may want to make some big changes in your lifestyle. Go slow.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Someone could make you an exciting offer. Be certain you know the whole story before saying "yes." Extra money may not be worth the stress a change will cause.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You could encounter the unknown when trying to sort out a personal dilemma. Maintain your sense of humor. Your efforts to obtain a better position or more money may not bring immediate results. Persevere!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Develop better relations with cutsoms officials if dealing in imported merchandise. Friends lend a helping hand. A community project would benefit greatly from your involvement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Deal with any financial questions honestly or your plans could backfire. Romance could be a source of great delight this evening. Complete your work early so you can leave the office on time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be self-reliant, but do not automatically dismiss offers of assistance. Keeping your wits in a crisis will impress those in charge. Accept compliments gracefully.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A good day to contact people in positions of influence. You need to act promptly on new opportunities. Financial considerations may be less important than emotional factors when making a career choice. Know thyself!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): There is greater emphasis on teamwork and cooperation today. New business will result from a group effort. Seek investment advice from experts only.

Quote of the Day

"Sex alleviates tension. Love causes it."
—Woody Allen

Classifieds

• 20¢ per word per day for students
• All ads must be paid in cash 2 days in advance
• Ads may be placed at 113 Campus Center, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

ACTIVITIES

All university women invited to rush Sigma Delta Tau
Mon 5/9 open house 8:30-9:30
Tue 5/10 study break 8-10
Wed 5/11 BBQ 5-7
Questions call Kristen 549-7875

Sunday tea dance May 8th Bump, grind, and spring around with DJ Job Cream free, smart drinks, juice bar 3:00 pm, Northampton Center for the Arts $6 or $4 w/ student ID Free drink with admission

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bed and Breakfast, downtown Amherst Ideal for visiting parents and friends 549-0733

UMass Credit Union has car, personal, and computer loans. Rates as low as 7.95% 314 Student Union Building 545-2800

AUTO FOR SALE

88 Toyota Celica 5 speed, 3 door, air, $7500. 256-3472

88 Ford Escort AC radio 72K miles very good condition $2700 546-7210

87 Pont 6000 6SK moving to NY must sell great condition $3100 253-9682

1985 Mercedes 190D miles, power sunroof, AC $8250 Call 256-4687

1985 Mercury Lynx 63,000 mi great shape $1400 549-5831

Dodge Aries 1982 wagon 108K AC,AT well maintained $1000 call Toby 549-4643

VW Scirocco 1986 102K 5 sp. AC pm cass Syntech every 3K Clean sharp sporty $3700 call Travis 367-2105

BEAT STRESS

Academic tutoring stress management immediate benefits 584-5896

CAPE COD RENTAL

West Yarmouth 6 room 4 bedrooms cheap 8 near everything 253-7436 508-775-4776 $6,000

FOR RENT

1 bedroom in a large house with inground pool $200 available immediately 256-8475

1 bedroom apt Colonial Village 400/month start June 1 Frank/ Janet 256-8523

1 bedroom apt. N Amherst Quiet location with big yard, laundry facilities, and AC Pets negotiable Take over lease June 1st Call Marc 549-8244

1 bedroom avail May1 farmhouse in Hadley on bus $275 585-0840

1 bdrm Pulfton avail wait list sign over lease John/ Tex 549-7463

2 apts, 3 br and 1 br in Farmhouse, bike to UMass, yard, deck, near golf Puffers Pond, 645+ 480+ 586-0746

2 bedroom Pulfton apartment 549-4447 available June 1

2 bdrm apt Colonial Village fall option 450 pm avail June 1 Call 253-2565

2 bdr in Pulfton Take over lease June 1st Avail fall wasting list 549-6283

2 bedroom apt Rent very negotiable Available ASAP 546-0160

2 bedroom Brandywine apt 635/ mo inc heat available June 1 549-6503

2 bdrm pulftonTake over our lease starting June 1 with option for fall renewal call Ted at 549-7648

2 bedroom 625 includes heat + hot water Call 549-1571

2 bedroom apartment at Brandywine, 3rd floor, poindexter, $770/ month, including heat. Available June 1st. Call 549-5465 Tracey or Beth.

3 bedroom 1 bath on Main St $875/ month includes electric Starts June 1st Call 256-3470

3 bedroom Pulfton Take over lease Call 549-7357

3 bedroom Pulfton Call now! 549-0385

3 bd w/ heated basement 1/2 bath 1/2 mile to campus On bus routes Call 549-8819

3 big bedrooms 1.5 bath townehouse sliding glass door to patio available May 25 for summer with fall option dishwasher hot water included 549-4707

3 or 4 bedroom house for rent near bus big yard new appliances inexpensive rent & utilities 253-3165

4 bedroom 2 bath great location 1/2 mile to town on bus route Avail June 1 253-3023

4br large bright, walk to UMass, center bus. Laundry, $1,000 mth heat + hw incl 586-0746

4 br house Main St Call 253-4710

4 or 5 br house off Main St lots 7 comfortably call 253-5667

5 bedroom 2 bath hube basement bus route Amherst 256-3138

6 bedroom, 2 bath large house Main Street June 1st 253-2847

A great apt! Two large bdrms June-August N. Amherst 549-4707

Amherst center room/ bus/ wash/ laundry clean, quiet, sunny, cheap 549-0484

Blue room for rent. $195 + utilities North Hadley includes excel. a/c/ fireplace and a gourmet cook Call Juan 586-4362

Brandywine Apts Take over our lease fo/ 1, 2 bedrooms, 3rd floor poindexter. Rent negotiable for June & July 549-2953

Cape Cod Duplex $/bth, W/D 3 people $3150. Call Micah 549-4704

Center of town 1 2 & 3 bedroom apts For 6/1 or 9/1 Now being shown Call for appointment Lincoln Real Estate 253-7879

Free furniture if you take over our 3 bdrm Pulfton apt in June Call Lisa 549-1770

Free laundry cable 3 bg bedrooms avail 6/1 549-6994 Grantwood Dr.

Gilrseth Manor Hobart Lane 3/5 bed rooms available June first call 549-4768

Great condition & location Main Staircase bus rt 1 4bdrm 546-0543

Large 2 bdrm apt Near Hobart Ln starts 6/1 $630/ month 549-5456

Large 4 broom 2 bath apartment for rent starting June 1, everything included even air conditioner! On bus route, close to bar, convenient store, everything. Must see to believe size Call 253-0551 ASAP or you'll miss it

Large Amherst five bedroom house Perfect for six Dishwasher, deck! deck Available June Call Joe at 617 545-2348

Location Location Fleering St 4 bed rooms summer sublet, fall option Porch & yard $1140 549-6618

Mill Valley 3 br 2 bath AC furnished 6/ 1 with fall option 256-4690

Prices slashed // free cable! 3 bdrm Call now 549-7615

Sign early 3 bedroom in Pulfton 549-8707

South Amherst four bedrooms two baths big basement wood stove huge yard community pool, hoop on bus route starting June 1 253-3071

Sunny room close to campus own entrance on back terrace 400 per month. We'll pay you 100 to take over lease 549-6736

Take over our lease 2br Brandywine APt inc fu free Great location Call Isobel 549-3937

Take over our lease 6/1 Brandywine 3rd floor! #549-4546

Take over 2bedroom Pulfton lease Available June Call 549-8193

Take over our lease June 1! 3 br apt in Main St /bus/ls 1/2 mile from town Call 256-0149 Alex, Liz or Vicky

Townehouse four person apt two bus routes One and a half bathrooms Airconditioning Dishwasher Front porch Call 549-5203

Townehouse 3 bedroom, 1 1/2 baths gorgeous end unit quiet neighbors on bus route huge living room, air conditioning, dishwasher pets OK begins 6/1 with option 549-0939

Welcome college students Cape Cod summer rentals All locations 1 to 5 br houses Honey Spanco Broker 508-398-536 fax 508 394-2857

FOR SALE

1992 Miyata hybrid SAC $150 includes book rack paid $400 Great commuter call audrey 256-1521 5-8pm

Fender bassman amp 175 W All new tubes 2-12 inch spkr cab $450 253-2163

Furniture—cheap! couches, lamps, desks, chairs and more 549-4036

Gison Leopard studio guitar $475 546-6860

Good furniture cheap call 549-4580

Graduating all bedroom furniture cheap! double bed, dresser, IBM compatible computer, desk Marlene 256-8542

Mt. bike Spec Rockhopper 18", green, XT-top mount shifters, barends, toeclips silent cond. $450 253-5967

One bedroom set 2 twin size mattress and box spring other furniture Must sell by 5/19 call Jorge/Ed 549-8740

Queen sized futon stereo dresser table Call Leigh 256-0238

Small microwave Ideal for any dorm room! $60 or BO 546-5100

Two one way tickets to Kansas City June 15 $140 each or $250 (413) 566-5040 or (413) 737-7797 (evenings/weekends)

Watch batteries ear piercing hoop earrings Starting at $2.00, diamond studs, repairs Lost graduation gifts from glass to gold Silverscape designs 264 N Pleasant Street 253-3224 open 7 days

FOUND

Found keys at Morrill Main entrance May 5th at 12:00pm please respond to the Collegian 545-3500 ask for Marty

HELP WANTED

Alaska summer employment
Earn up to $500+ per week/ months. Room + board! Transportation! Male/female No experience necessary! (206) 545-4155 ext A5051

Be your boss, work with environment and make an unlimited income! Reservations 546-1681

Camp Athletic Director Coed camp in Adirondack Mts. Must have teaching and or athletic director backround 1-800-ITS FUN (487-3866)

Childcare wanted for 2 boys, 8 and 4 years old Responsible person with car needed for occasional weekdays and June to mid August Experience needed Karen 256-1834

Counselors Camp Emerson, coed Methacht/setts Swimming, tennis, land/ water sports, arts/crafts, theatre, woodworking, rocketry, archery, computer yearbook photography, video, radio, more! Super kids, great food, friendly fun! No general counselors. 800-955-CAMP

Counselors! Prestigious coed Berkshires MA summer camp seeks skilled college juniors, seniors, and grads. Generals and specialists in tennis, athletics, swimming, water sports, theatre dance, wwi pioneery, newspaper Have a rewarding and enjoyable summer! Salary plus room and board Call Camp Taconic 800-762-2820

Earn $150/ day this summer Experienced truck drivers wanted for part time summer work Approximately ten days a both June and August Truck driving experience a must Call (508) 853-1744 or (508) 653-7422

P/T female personal care attendent for retired professor Under ten hours/ week Flexible schedule Spanish helpful Experience preferred but will train Call Dianne after 4pm 256-0577

Summer jobs Painting locally with primarily commercial co. must be hardworking, experience desirable $6/hr to start raises to $8.51/ hr Haley 253-9434

Summer work Local branches of international marketing firm have several summer openings ideal for students Earn $9-$15/o start management opportunities Build resume Positions available through out Mass, Conn NY Amherst area call 549-5303 Greenie Sphd. call 733-0057

Superior baseball and basketball coaches wanted for coed summer camp in western Mass. Must have 2+ years of coaching experience with children to apply Dates 6/18-8/20 Call Camp Emerson at 1-800-955- CAMP today!

LAWN CARE SPECIAL

Complete lawn maintenence lawn seeding new + old liming, fertilizing- weekly mowing- property cleaning- rototilling- greet spring special! Free estimates call Dave 467-9168- please leave message

LIVE IN THE CHURCH

Beautiful, peaceful, gorgeous summer sublet w/ fall option Lovely renovated church 10 min to campus One double $400, one single $250 must be seen to be believed 253-7353

LOST

Grey saddlebag lost Monday night from bicycle Good reward 549-1256

LOST Small female grey/white/ orange tabby 8 mo old Squire Village 4/3 $100 reward 665-0519

Lost student daily planner and blue fabric pencil bag in GRT 14th floor Reward 253-8175

MUSICIANS

Band seeks male vocalist 4 all styles 546-6312 Pete

NEED A JOB?

Drivers wanted to deliver the Collegian for the fall semester Must be available until 11 ooam Apply at the Collegian office in the basement of the Campus Center or call for Jim at 5-3500

PERSONALS

1802 Washington needed you to know we love you in your town! Next time leave it home

Amy E Johnson Disfrutemucho el tiempo que pasamos juntos Suerte en tus examenes y en los E sprints. Que pases un enlegale verano y espero verte al proximo semestre Carlos

Angel, U make my days and some of my nights Hope I become as all my days and all my nights I love you more than I im allowed to show Teddybear

Brian Croteau congratulations on the CPA- now it's time to celebrate! Love Alicia

Diabla Loved me win, divided we fall we're finally pulled together so let's take it all!! Little one

Happy Birthday Scram D is still in the closet Love Hov

Hey bones you need to build a bridge and get over yourself. Your fifteen minutes are over Biz and Lex

Jeanann Vous etes une super nana Vous etes un ange The bash lover

Jessie Tu me is short leave number and info for contact in envelope in room SU 415 Student Union 2nd floor on desk by door. I will leave same LHLN

Marines Voy a echar de menos el perdeme en tus ojos cuando no estes Dito

Meredith Yetman We are going to miss you so much. We are the best pledge class ever! Fall 1992 forever! Love your pledge sisters

Susan— dude/ secretary/ cowlover this one really IS for you good luck with "your" show love your mimsie and the girl with no middle name

The diablos have a mission it is a mission for gold quick, light fast, fast and pretty! Never lose you're cool Tdi

To the Salem St., Main St and Griggs girls Thank you for making my four years at UMass such a good time You have all added such wonderful memories to my college education There are 2 more weeks left so let's make them the best I could not ask for better people to spend my remaining days with! I love you all! Love Holly

To the tall, lonely, tanned blonde at Franklin DC You are so close but yet so far away Rumple Minze

Tri Sigma! Get excited for the most outrageous formal ever!

RIDE TO CALIFORNIA

Ride to California Santa Cruz/ Monterey area Driver is clean and sober Leaving May 11/12 call 586-4204 ask for Chris

RIDE WANTED

Going to Floyd? Me too and I need a ride May 18th call Kathy 549-4337

ROOMMATE WANTED

1 bedrm in N. Hadley house 187/ mo 5 min from UMass 586-4711

1 rm roommate needed for great house uptown $212/mo call Ryan or Dan 549-2983

2 open br in 4 br house on bus rt. 3 miles to UMass/ w/d big deck, yard Call 549-8353

Female non smoker preferred for 1 room in 3 bdrm Pulfton apt available June 1 w/ fall option summer $190/ month /negCall 549-5881

Free 1st month's rent. f/ non smoker to share a room in Mill Valley lease ending Dec 31 Call 256-6448

Huge double in two bedroom apt Great location on bus route 549-0377

Need 2m roommates, non smoking 2 large bedrooms 190 se June through August 549-4720

One female roommate needed to share an apt w/ 3 females starting Sept 1 546-0958 Jen/Katy

One person for large room $170 00 Call 665-7604

Want to spend July + August in Newport, Rhode Island? Looking for females, rent is negotiable Please call Christine 253-7194

SERVICES

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring, confidential support 549-1906

Typing and word processing Reasonable rates Fast dependable service Pick up and delivery available Country Komputer 323-7507

SUMMER SUBLETS

1 bdrm available Mill Valley Estates Price negotiable Ask for Mark 256-6766

1 bdrm in furn 6 bdrm house bus rt wash dryer fall opt 200/mo Joe 253-9949

1 bedroom available in fully furnished apartment on Main Street Call Jeff 253-4273

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom apt on bus route Rocking Green option for fall female nonsmokes 256-0750

1 or 2 bedrooms available in house on Pine Street Call 549-2660 or 8230

1-4 big bdrm apt Jun-Aug, cheap, on bus line 253-2609

2 bdrm furnished apt w/th on bus route rent negotiable 256 4609

2 bedroom apartment $450/month on bus route? 253-0985

2 br and 3br townehouses available in Sunderland for summer On bus route Option for fall rental 370 and $750 Squire Village 665-2703

2 bedroom apartment $550 a month includes everything 256-1960

2 bedroom townehouse, fall option Fully furnished AC, busline 425/ month/ 549-0310

2 bdrm m7 mi house Many amenities, on bus route avail 6/1 Call 546-3957 546-4269

2-3 bedrooms available in 4 bedroom apartment Fully appanced AC, busline June until August 549-8233

3 bedrooms On busline Really close? Call us! 253-7634

3 bdrm Pulfton sublet furnished bar 650/ mo Pool/Sex 549-7463

3 bedroom townehouse apt cheap rent for the summer option for fall lease 549-4132

4 bedroom on Main St Rent negotiable Will rent individual rooms Call Jaye or Amy 549-0385

4 br Amherst large bright great location heat hot water incl reasonable 586-0746

$495 a month or best offer! 2 bedroom apartment in Colonial Village on bus route washer and dryer in basement summer sublet with fall option 253-7583

Alpine Commons sublet 4 bedrooms, $800, utilities included Price negotiable Call after 6pm 253-4615

Amazing sublet in Crestview apts available 5/Q/9/4 on bus line, clean, perfect for two Contact 549-5127 for details

Beautiful house on Fleering St Very close to campus/ uptown 3 bedrooms 2 full baths for 3-4 people 6/1- 8/31 call 546-2312/ 2025-1050/ no negotiable

Cheapest sublet best offer will be accepted (asking 200/mo) one bedroom in two bedroom apt heat incl, dishwasher, laundry, on bus route, fall opt 253-4731 Ennire apt above avail for best offer asking 300/ mo 253-4731

Fly Piece! I have 4 Luxury 2 bed rm, 2 bath mp1 for the summer solstice Large living area, dishwasher, ez st, includes heat/ hot water Call 256-8843, ask for Heaboy Yum!

Four bedrooms, two baths bike path, on NoHo busline Take one or all 725 /mo/ Hadley 582-0474

FREE LAUNDRY
Looking for a place to live for the summer w/ fall option? Free laundry On bus route Interested? Call Mari 253-4207

Great 2 bedroom apt on bus line, quiet, free cable, furnished, $485 available June-Aug call 253-4724

Huge 4 br 2 bath extremely low rent! On bus line incl H/hw avail June 1 546-0021

If you have a car I have a perfect summer sublet $275 plus cheap utilities Call Andrew 545-1864 day 549-4452 evenings

Live the high life live in Mill Valley this summer! 2 bed 2 full baths on bus route You can't beat it! Price negotiable Call Eric Donna or Christina 253-4789

Mill Valley 2 bed 2 full bath Available June 1 Mountain view Price negotiable On bus rt Call 253-9528

Mill Valley sublet master bdroom, private bath, 200/ month call Eric 253-9969

Mint studio! Excellent location! Right in Amherst center! Even has 3 windows $/200 to $/675 per month Call 256-8200/ option for fall New terms not the giant lease!

Near uptown across from bus rt Single rooms avail $/200/month Jay/Pete 253-0795

On Sunset Ave 8/br 3 bath very cheap call 546-6242

Price negotiable 2 bedroom 546-4191/ 546-7207

Puffers Pond 2 bdrm $450/mo washdry, b/ ball Call Nicole/ Julie Bus route 549-5306

Rooms downtown. Quiet, private Fall option 253-4736 9am-9pm

Room in midn ranch quiet country setting $250 inclusive 586-9036 days 584-7316 eves

Spacious 2br apartment Next to Townehouse on bus route Partially furnished 2 porches $500/ mo incl heat 549-4720

Sublet Mill Valley apt 253-5331

Sublet uptown sublet up for the summer best offer! Call 253-2353

Sublet with loft option available in Pressential Call Ashley 549-0331

Summer sublet w/ fall option bedroom in two bedroom apart very quiet, 288 all included, on bus line grad student preferred 256-8994

Sunny 1 bedroom for 2 own bathroom own entrance walk in closet AC & cable rent negotiable Call Kimy Michelle 253-4278

We'll pay you to take our summer lease w/ fall option We need out Townehouse, new appliances Call 549-8879

Will negotiate! 1 rm in 3rm Pulfton need non smoking female 549-7590

THE PLACE TO LIVE

For the summer condrs behind Baskins $200 fully furnished Call 549-4445 ask for Mike

TRAVEL

Europe only $169
Coast to to coast $129
Cardy Mex $189
Asia from $699
Call for program descriptions!!

Sunny Beaches $189 INT Cancun Mexico Europe $169 Ashish 617 254-2819 Call for program descriptions!!

WANTED

Sublets, rooms, housing needed this summer Contact Theresa for SBMC at 586-8166 10 am-8pm

We want your 3 or 4 bedroom apt in Amherst Please call Lisa, Meg or Alex ASAP at 256-3140

Sports

Softball is looking to shine at Classic

By SEAN P. HAYDEN
Collegian Staff

They say Diamonds are a girl's best friend.

We'll find out this weekend as the University of Massachusetts softball team travels to Storrs, Conn., for the annual Diamond Classic, a four–team tournament taking place Saturday and Sunday at the University of Connecticut.

ARAM COMEAU / COLLEGIAN

Leftfielder Chris Martens and the University of Massachusetts softball team will hit the basepaths this weekend against Connecticut, Florida State and South Florida.

The tourney features some of the best teams from the Northeast and Southeast Regions of the nation in the Minutewomen, the Lady Huskies, Florida State and South Florida. Last season, both Connecticut and the Lady Seminoles rode strong performances in the Classic to College World Series berths.

"This tournament can do great things for us," said Massachusetts Coach Elaine Sortino. "That's the reason why I went to Connecticut and said 'Let's do this thing together.'

"This tournament gets us both ready for potential post– season play."

Sortino said she sees nothing but positives coming out of participating in the Classic.

"It allows us to do two things," Sortino said. "One, it allows us to see what we've accomplished this season and what we still need to do, and, two, it gives us a great springboard into the postseason."

If the Minutewomen win the Atlantic 10 Tournament next weekend in Allentown, Penn., and will receive an automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament. However, if they should stumble, competing in a tournament the caliber of the Diamond Classic could go a long way in determining whether they receive an automatic bid, Sortino said.

"The national committee looks at this tournament very seriously," said Sortino. "They look at this as an indication as to who's playing well at the end of the season and that's what they want in an at–large team."

Massachusetts plays two games on Saturday, starting with a 10 a.m. affair against South Florida.

"South Florida is one hell of a softball program," Sortino said. "They're better than the likes anybody has seen here this year."

In last year's Classic held here at Totman Field, the Minutewomen earned their only victory of the tournament against USF. In what was a classic pitcher's duel, Massachusetts' Darlene Claffey held USF to just five hits and the Minutewomen pushed across an eighth inning run to win the extra–inning contest, 1–0.

Massachusetts gets a brief respite before it has to come back at 2 p.m. and face regional arch–rival Connecticut. The Lady Huskies have taken six of the last seven contests from the Minutewomen including a 2–0 decision in last year's Classic.

If you could appoint a winner to last year's tourney, it was the Lady Huskies, who wnt 3-0 including an exciting, extra inning win over FSU courtesy a Janna Venice inside–the–park home run.

Connecticut is led by the trio of second baseman Shari Blackman, first baseman Donna Fagan and outfielder Andrea D'Innocenzo, the only three starters back from last season's World Series team.

On Sunday, Massachusetts must come back and face the No. 12 Lady Seminoles Sunday at 2 p.m., who are led by their outstanding pitching staff. The three have a combined earned run average of 1.14, which is exactly .01 points better than Massachusetts ace Kelly Daut's 1.15.

It's quite a luxury FSU has when it can throw its No. 3 starter out there sporting an 11–2 record with a 1.39 ERA.

The ace of the staff, Marla Looper, defeated the Minutewomen 5–0 in last year's tournament and is back better than ever this season. In 174 innings of work, Looper has surrendered only 114 hits and 24 earned runs for a 0.97 ERA. Oh, she is also among the nation's leaders in strikeouts again this year with 154.

According to Sortino, it really doesn't matter when Massachusetts plays which team.

"At this level, you can mix and match and it's not going to matter because the competition is so good," Sorino said. Two on one day, one on the other, it doesn't matter.

"If you're in the game with teams of this caliber, you know you're doing something right," said Sortino, who also said she likes the way her team is playing coming into this weekend.

"We're playing good ball and we get to go out and compete in a great field. I mean, we haven't seen the likes of this competition since the spring trip. it's a win–win situation for us."

ARAM COMEAU / COLLEGIAN

Second baseman Tracey DuEst (10), third baseman Sam Cardenas (12) and pitcher Kelly Daut (3) are looking for a team–effort in the Diamond Classic in Storrs, Ct.

Nail–biter for men's tennis

By MICHAEL REISS
Collegian Staff

With Wednesday's match against Springfield College tied at three, all eyes turned to Court Six at the Upper Boyden Courts where Darren Tow was engaged in a three–set war.

After winning the first set 6–3, Tow dropped the second set 3–6. Executing a nice serve and volley game, Tow rolled in the third set 6–1, clinching the win for the Minutemen.

UMass improves to 5–6 with the nail–biting win.

"I think the team was a little over–confident, having beaten Springfield before," said Assistant Coach Dan Rosenberg. "It was a gritty match. It's a good sign when you can win when not playing your best."

With Springfield taking a 2–1 lead after doubles play, the Minutemen were visibly flat. "It's the end of the year, and I think we were tired both mentally and physically," said Rosenberg.

Ankur Balshya (6–2, 6–2) produced a quick point at first singles with his convincing win, while Eric Peters triumphed at the six spot (7–6, 6–0). Greg Hsiao then cruised at second singles 6–3, 6–1.

Hsiao, donned out in a red bandanna, was coming off a career performance at the New England Championships where he advanced to the semifinals.

Due to his play, he was jacked up from fifth to second singles. The result was much of the same. "Greg continues to play his best tennis of the year," said Rosenberg.

After three–set losses at third and fourth singles, Tow came through in the clutch with his must–needed victory at fifth singles.

"We won the tough matches when we had to," said Rosenberg. "We dodged a bullet this time. Darren's decisive third set put us over the top, as he played a very intelligent match."

The team now looks forward to an exciting weekend, during which there will be a grand opening ceremony for the upper Boyden tennis courts.

The event, which has been put together through extensive hard work by both the men's and women's teams, will donate proceeds toward the defeat of AIDS.

The event has been in the making for quite some time now, as it should feature a weekend that is full of action– packed fun and excitement.

ARAM COMEAN / COLLEGIAN

Keith Murray of the University of Massachusetts men's tennis team displays his trademark powerful first serve in a match earlier this season.

"It's something that was really the kids idea," said Head Coach Judy Dixon. "They planned it all out. It should be a great time."

Juuust a bit outside

CHRISTOPHER RACUSIN / COLLEGIAN

Justin Howard, pictured at bat, and the University of Massachusetts baseball team battle St. Bonaventure in Olean, New York with first place in the A–10 still in reach.

Seniors to end lax careers

Eight Gorillas to finish their careers Saturday

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts lacrosse team will salute its seniors as eight Gorillas will play their final games at Garber Field on Saturday.

The No. 13 Gorillas will take on the No. 20 Army in the season finale. The Gorillas' postseason chances remain bleak. In recent years, the postseason selection committee has only taken one team from New England. Brown's victory at Wednesday's New England Championship almost eliminates the Gorillas.

"I think UMass deserves to go," said Brown Coach Peter Lasagna. "But historically, the committee has only taken one team from New England."

UMass will need a strong showing against Army to receive any consideration.

UMass coach Ted Garber took some time yesterday afternoon to reflect on the careers of his seniors:

Wes Depp: "Wes is a player that you have to be constantly aware of. He's a great scoring threat. If you make a mistake, he'll burn you."

Chris Nentwich: "Chris is the consummate UMass lacrosse player. He is a leader on and off the field. He is an unbelievable competitor.

He's never had a bad game, or even a bad practice. He's always positive. He should go down in history as one of the top players to ever play at UMass."

Greg Kline: Greg Kline creates havoc for opposing defense. He's tough to cover. He has quick foot speed and a good hard shot."

Ken Randazzo: "Kenny is a savvy veteran. He's made a lot of great plays. He's one of the top defenders in New England.

"He's the most talkative players on the field. He's a solid defender. He's been here five years,[He was redshirted due to injury] he uses his experience. Ken is very unselfish. We're proud to have him."

Sam Joseph: "On a good day, Sam is one of the top face– off men in the country.

"Because of his position, he doesn't get the credit he deserves. He's a smart player."

Jim Byrns: Jim has brought a lot of toughness. He's a heads– up–type player. He gives 100 percent all the time. He's hard nosed. He gets ground balls, knocks people down. He doesn't get enough credit for what he does."

Matt Noone: "Matt is a workhorse. He's a rough and tough, banging heads–type player. He shadows some of top players in the country.

"He's had a great career. He was a junior college All– American. He's got a big heart. Whatever you ask of him, he'll do. I'm happy he came here."

Adam Kohart: "Adam is a solid team player. He's great at killing penalties.

"Adam suffered a leg injury in the fall. He handled it in a very positive way. His dealing with the frustration was a real testament to him as a person. He's been a positive influence on and off the field."

Randazzo, Kline, Kohart, Nentwich and Depp have been with Garber since he took the UMass head coaching position three seasons ago.

"This class has been with me since the beginning of my coaching. That makes it kind of special. They've been a big part of keeping the UMass positive name going," said Garber. "It gets nostalgic thinking about it. It's sad to think their careers are over. I'll miss Nentwich's smiling face. ... Kenny's talking. ... They've won a lot of big games together. They should walk away with no regrets."

> "I think UMass deserves to go. But historically, the committee has only taken one team from New England."
>
> –Brown Coach Peter Lasagna

Frankie V. goes on 60–day DL

By ROB GLOSTER
Associated Press

BOSTON — Frank Viola, one of baseball's most durable pitchers, was placed on the 60-day disabled list Thursday by the Boston Red Sox and will undergo elbow surgery for the second time in less than eight months.

The former Cy Young Award winner said the earliest he would return is September, and acknowledged it's too early to tell if he'll be able to pitch again.

Viola, who had bone chips removed from the left elbow last September, is expected to have major surgery within the next two weeks to repair muscles and a partially torn ligament on the inside of the elbow.

"I went 12 years without being hurt at all," said Viola, who was put on the disabled list for the first time in his career. "Somebody told me earlier in my career it's better to have little aches and pains all along. I wish I could remember who that was now."

Viola, 34, hurt the elbow Tuesday night in the third inning of a game against Seattle. He released a wild pitch that flew way behind batter Eric Anthony. Viola immediately clutched the elbow, his face distorted in pain. He then walked off the mound and into the dugout, still holding his elbow.

"It could have happened 10 years ago and where would I have been then?" said Viola, who felt pain in the elbow on the preceding pitch. "It could have happened any time."

Viola, who will seek a second opinion and possibly a third next week, said he is unsure whether his career is over.

"If I'm meant to pitch again, I'm meant to pitch again," he said. "I'm not a 95 mile-an-hour fast–ball pitcher anyway, so if I'm able to come back I could be effective."

General manager Dan Duquette said it was too early to tell whether Viola will be able to return to the mound.

"The best-case scenario is the elbow will be repaired and he can come back later this season," Duquette said. "Generally these things take at least a year to heal."

Arthur Pappas, the Red Sox medical director, said an MRI exam and other tests performed Wednesday at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center in Worcester showed that Viola had "disrupted muscles from the bone on the inside of his left elbow and had partially torn the ligament on the inside of the elbow." Viola, who won the Cy Young Award in 1988 while pitching for the Minnesota Twins, had not missed a major league start until last season when he was temporarily knocked out of the rotation in April by a twisted ankle and then missed the end of the year with a stiff elbow.

Say What?

"I'm tired of looking at myself. My kids don't want to come near me."

– Ray Bourque, on his playoff goatee

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
Weather: Mostly sunny, high around 75.
Monday
May 9, 1994
Volume CIII Issue 122
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

World

Clinton shifts policy toward Haiti

WASHINGTON — Shifting a policy that has led to criticism that he is insensitive to the plight of refugees, President Clinton said Sunday the United States will begin offshore screening of Haitian boat people seeking political asylum.

"I don't believe the policy we have now is sustainable given the level of political violence" in Haiti, Clinton said at a news conference in the White House Rose Garden. "We have an obligation to try to let the people who genuinely fear for their lives into this country."

Clinton also named Bill Gray, the head of the United Negro College Fund and a former congressman from Pennsylvania, as adviser on Haiti.

Clinton said Gray, who formerly chaired the House Budget Committee, will act as special adviser to the president and the secretary of state. He called Gray a man of "vision and determination, of real strength and real creativity."

National

First Lady gives commencement speech

WASHINGTON — Hillary Rodham Clinton, delivering a Mother's Day message to college graduates Sunday, called for an "extended family" of Americans - friends, neighbors and citizens caring for each other as traditional American families dwindle.

"Our community must be a family," the first lady said in the commencement address to George Washington University.

Wearing a blue cap and gown, Mrs. Clinton was greeted by 4,800 hooting and hollering graduates. "Hillary! I love you!" one young man yelled. She received an honorary doctorate of public service in a chilly outdoor service near the Washington Monument.

The first lady compared a mother's counsel, protection and nursing to public issues most important to her: education, crime and health care.

"The great issues of the day ... are not just about politics and policy and dollars and cents, they are about our moral obligation as individuals to protect and care for all within our large community," she said.

The obligation is even more important today, with fewer traditional American families, Mrs. Clinton said.

State/Regional

Welfare mothers fight back

BOSTON — Gov. William Weld was sent Mother's Day cards Sunday by activists opposed to changes in the welfare system. "What we're facing here in Massachusetts and across the country is not welfare reform," said Ellen Convisser, president of the Massachusetts chapter of the National Organization for Women. "It's really nothing more than an attack on mothers."

Conviser and others collected signatures Sunday on Mother's Day cards addressed to Weld and petitions destined for the Legislature. They urge support for higher welfare benefits, employment training, child care and health care.

Legislators this week are scheduled to debate setting a two-year cap on AFDC checks for mothers with children older than 2 and cutting benefits by about 5 percent.

"We're dealing with an economy today in which people are terrified," Conviser said. "They're scared about their own futures and their own livelihoods. "What politicians do is they look at welfare mothers and they say, 'Here's what we're doing for the economy. We're going to cut here and cut there.' They're making welfare mothers and children into scapegoats."

The Mother's Day card to Weld, which was signed by several hundred people at Boston's Downtown Crossing, said: "At this point, it's a question of survival."

Story appeals for additional funds

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

Rep. Ellen Story, D–Hampshire District, is expected today to ask the state House Ways and Means Committee to give the University of Massachusetts system an extra $3.7 million to fund the Amherst campus' Polymer Research Center and an air quality control center at UMass Boston.

Last Wednesday the House Ways and Means Committee came out with their version of the state budget. The committee gave UMass $332,281,299. But the leadership of the UMass Student Government Association said they are unsure if the money to pay for the Polymer Research Center and the air quality control center is included in that sum.

That is why they asked Rep. Story to ask for a "friendly amendment" to the state budget. Student Center for Education, Research and Advocacy Legislative Coordinator Amy Lloyd said a friendly amendment is when a representative asks the Chair of the House Ways and Means Committee to change the budget before it goes to the House floor for a vote.

Lloyd said this is the University's best hope to get the extra money. She said if Story tried to introduce the amendment from the floor UMass would not have the support in the House to get the amendment added in.

SGA Senator Jeremy Hathaway said whether UMass gets the money or not depends on whether the Chair of the House Ways and Means Committee, Thomas Finneran, says that money is already included.

"We're under the assumption that he didn't put the money in the budget, but if he says that he did put it in we're dead in the water," Hathaway said.

Lloyd said she is not sure UMass has good chance of getting the extra money because the budget is so tight this year and because UMass already got a $10.6 million increase over last year's appropriation.

"Finneran feels really proud that he found $10.6 million to give us an increase when everything else got cut," Lloyd said.

After the House finishes voting on the budget, the Senate will come up with their version of the state budget. When they finish their budget the House and the Senate will go into a conference committee to hammer out a final version of the budget to submitted to Gov. William F. Weld for his approval. The budget is supposed to be done by July 1, which is the end of Fiscal Year 1994, but it may take until mid–July to finish it.

Hathaway said UMass' chances of getting funded as well in the Senate as they were the House are not good because the Senate is making their budget starting from zero. He said this will make it harder to get the money because every expense has to be justified.

Mass. Pike accident claims UMass junior

A University of Massachusetts student and former resident assistant was killed Friday afternoon in a car accident on the Massachusetts Turnpike.

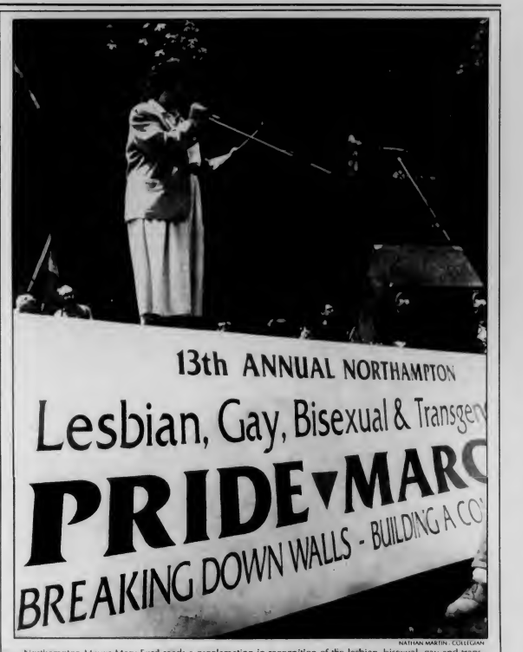
Shelley A. Lawler, 21, of 373 Main St., Palmer, was on her way to her fiance's home in Belchertown when she lost control of her car and slid under a tractor–trailer, according to state police reports.

Also killed in the mid–afternoon accident were Lawler's unborn twins. No one else was injured.

A junior majoring in accounting, Lawler was a resident assistant in Grayson Residence Hall in Orchard Hill last semester.

"She was a very enthusiastic and happy person," said friend Brian Croteau, 22, a senior accounting major. "She'll always have a special place in my heart. She was a great person."

State Trooper Robert Boutilette said Lawler hit a water– filled pothole in the eastbound lane of the turnpike, swerved back and forth across lanes then went under the tractor–trailer. Her car turned upside down and was dragged 400 feet before the truck driver realized what had happened.



Boutilette said there was nothing the truck driver could have done to prevent the accident.

Lawler was born in Clovis, N.M., and lived most of her life in Ludlow before moving to Palmer five months ago. She was a graduate of Ludlow High School.

She leaves her mother and stepfather, Donald and Beverly (Pollard) Lawler Hawley; two brothers, Christopher and Jeffrey of Ludlow; her maternal grandparents, Donald and Yvette Lavigne Pollard of Ludlow; her paternal grandmother, Pauline Lawler Donovan of Springfield; and her fiance, Robert Wegnerowski of Palmer.

Services will be held at the Ludlow Funeral Home and in St. Mary of the Assumption Church, with burial in St. Michael's Cemetery in Springfield. Calling hours will be held this afternoon and evening.

— DARIENNE J. HOSLEY

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN

Northampton Mayor Mary Ford reads a proclamation in recognition of the lesbian, bisexual, gay and transgender communities.

Pride March hits Noho

By STEPHEN C. CAMPBELL
Collegian Staff

Last Saturday afternoon in Northampton, 1,200 participants were out in force as they marched to celebrate the 13th Annual Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender Pride March, entitled Breaking down Walls, Building a Community.

Leading the procession were the traditional lesbians on motorcycles. This years contingent was the Boston group Moving Violation. They were followed by marching bands like the Batucada Bells, a Boston based women's percussion band that plays African, Afro–Caribbean and Brazilian rhythms. They were just one of the many performs at the march and the rally.

Floats were present for the first time this year. The Sleaviest Theater presented their own car as did other groups, some being towed by people like the Butch Mobile.

There were banners in the March from groups like PFLAG, Parents and Friends of Lesbians and gays as well as GOAL, the Gay Officers Action League of New England. Also, there were banners in the march from many of the schools in the Valley.

Banners were carried by Greenfield Community College, Springfield College, Smith, Springfield Technical Community College, the University of Massachusetts, UMass Linguistic Students, and two bisexual groups, one from UMass and one from Hampshire.

The marchers were students, lesbian and gay parents and their children, business people and people in wheelchairs.

There were two people dressed up as Akbar and Jeff, a person on stilts and people with painted faces. All of them out to show pride of, and sup-

Turn to MARCH, page 3

Everybody's surfin' now

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Crowd surfers were a popular feature at yesterday's Spring Concert by the Campus Pond, including this active participant who took to the waves during Buffalo Tom's set. Also performing yesterday were local favorites Synaesthesia, Taj Mahal, Black Uhuru and headliners the Violent Femmes. For a recap of the day's events, turn to page 2.

Decker chosen to speak at '94 commencement

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts has named the undergraduate commencement speaker for the 1994 graduation.

Graduating speaker Marjorie C. Decker of Cambridge will be speaking on the meaning of a public education to people from low–income families and her own life.

"I want to tell people what it means to have a public university help in the struggle to break the cycle of property," Decker said.

In her speech, Decker will also talk about what it means to be

Marjorie C. Decker

Turn to DECKER, page 3

Degrees to honor diverse achievers

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts will be awarding four honorary degrees along with the 4,000 seniors at Warren P. McGuirk Alumni Stadium at Commencement on May 22.

The diplomas will go to Alice Rossi, founder of the National Organization for Women and professor emerita of sociology at the University; former faculty member G. Richard Huguenin, president and CEO of Millitech Corporation; alumnus Charles Nirenberg, chairman of the board of Dairy Mart and J. Herman Blake, higher education administrator and a specialist in the field of higher education and minorities.

Rossi will receive a doctorate of humane letters. Rossi was a founder of NOW in 1966 and was a member of the sociology faculty from 1974–91. She has received other honorary degrees from Simmons College and Goucher College.

Rossi most recently received an honorary degree from Northwestern University in Chicago, which she holds as one

Turn to DEGREES, page 3

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI please send a press release containing: all pertinent information including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor

Monday, May 9

Meeting — Progressive Organization for Women's Rights meets at 8:30 p.m. in Student Union Room 306.

Film — The UMass Irish-American Students Association will show The Commitments at 7:30 p.m. in the Campus Center, room to be announced.

Broadcast — Valley Access Network will show program three in its series on works by Five College film and video students at 8 p.m. on UVC Ch. 19.

Tuesday, May 10

Dance — The new South Africa and the inauguration of President Nelson Mandela will be celebrated with dancing, singing and refreshments from 7:30 p.m. to midnight in the Student Union Ballroom.

Wednesday, May 11

Lecture — Lee Badgett will discuss "The Economics of Being Lesbian, Gay or Bisexual: Pride, Prejudice and Politics" from noon to 1:30 p.m. in Campus Center Room 917. Part of the Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Studies Brown Bag Series.

Broadcast — Valley Access Network will show program three in its series on works by Five College film and video students at 8 p.m. on UVC Ch. 19.

Faculty seminar — Lee Badgett will speak on "Economic Evidence of Sexual Orientation Discrimination" at 4 p.m. in Campus Center Room 917.

Thursday, May 12

Forum — A gubernatorial candidates' forum will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Bangs Community Center activity room, Amherst. Democrats George Bachrach, Sen. Michael Barrett and Rep. Mark Roosevelt will attend.

Meeting — The last VIVA Service Council meeting will be held from noon to 1:30 p.m. in Campus Center Room 162-175.

Ongoing

Exhibit — Work by Smith College photography students is on display through May 27 at the A.P.E. Gallery, third floor Thornes Market, Main Street, Northampton.

Phone line — Peer Health Connections offers information and service referrals Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Call 549-2671 ext. 168. Messages remain confidential.

Study — Study hall with free coffee and tea is open from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. at the Berkshire and Worcester Dining Commons.

Correction

Two names were misspelled in the cutline to Friday's front page photo of preparations for the Spring Concert. The UPC volunteers pictured were Jennifer Wischhnof and Rick Farrell. The Collegian regrets the error.

WHY WAIT?

Stop by the University Health Services Pharmacy NOW to get your summer prescriptions filled.

It will save you time and let us serve you more efficiently.

Hours:
Mon. - Fri. 8:30 a.m. - 6 p.m.
Sat. 9 a.m. - Noon
1 - 4:30 p.m.

Ultraviolet Radiation and the Eye

by Fredrick H. Bloom, OD
Director, UHS Eye Care Program

It is important to protect your eyes from UV radiation, just as it is important to protect your skin. Exposure to UVs over many years is associated with cataracts and other serious eye diseases, including pterygium, a tissue growth of the cornea, macula degeneration, a potentially blinding disease of the retina and cancer of the skin around the eye. A sunburn of the cornea is temporary, but extremely painful.

When you are outside, you should wear sunglasses to decrease your risk for these conditions. Choose sunglasses that block out 99 or 100% of all ultraviolet rays up to 400 nanometers. Wear glasses that are large enough, and wear a brimmed hat. Especially avoid being in the sun during the hours of 10 AM to 3 PM during the summer months.

If using an artificial light source, such as a sunlamp, wear special goggles, not sunglasses.

You should never stare directly at the sun or an eclipse with or without sunglasses.

For questions, or to make an appointment, call the UHS Eye Care Program at 549-2671 ext. 244.

Nurses given dose of status

By JUSTIN DOYLE
Collegian Staff

School nurses don't just deal with bumps and bruises anymore. That is one of the reasons why faculty members at the University of Massachusetts are participating in an effort to help school nurses prepare themselves to better meet the needs of students.

At a time when students are having sex at even younger ages and sexually transmitted diseases are a real concern for young people, three faculty members in the UMass School of Nursing are participating in an educational program for school nurses.

"School nurses today are on the frontlines when it comes to dealing with problems like substance abuse, school violence, teen-aged sex and abuse," said Brenda Millette, assistant professor of nursing.

Millette and two associate professors of nursing, Christine King and Josephine Ryan, are participating in the UMass- Simmons School Health institute. The institute is a public/private collaboration between the Amherst, Dartmouth and Lowell campuses of UMass and Simmons College in Boston.

Millette, King and Ryan are participating in a program to improve the status of school nurses, and better prepare them to meet the needs of the young people they serve. The program is funded by the state's Department of Public Health.

Millette said she feels that the role of school nurses is changing.

"Despite being relegated to updating immunization records or checking for head lice, school nurses are well-positioned to play an important role in community health care," Millette said.

Millette feels school nurses have no one to work for them, and they do not get the credit they may deserve.

"For too long, school nurses have been the 'orphans' of the nursing profession. They've functioned in virtual isolation, with no one to advocate for their professional development needs," Millette said.

"As a result, many school nurses haven't been accorded the status they deserve or rewards of the nursing profession."

The institute offers professional development, which Millette says is the key to changing the role of the school nurse in general.

The institute schedules continuing education programs in a variety of subjects to school nurses statewide. The institute offers workshops in management, identifying high risk behaviors, violence prevention programs, support programs for at-risk students, updating the skills necessary for nurses to perform health assessments, and adolescents.

Spring Concert a success, despite muddy conditions

The dreary day didn't keep away too many fans as more than 5,000 students moshed through the mudpit beside the campus pond.

"The turnout was more than we expected," said Peter Nersesian, a junior history major and advertising manager for University Production Council, the group which puts on Spring Concert.

Lt. Barbara O'Connor of the University police department said there were no major accidents during the afternoon's festivities.

"It was a pretty quiet day," O'Connor said. "It went pretty smoothly, all things considered."

Four people were transported out of the concert site by ambulance for minor injuries, four others refused transportation by ambulance, 13 people were treated by the emergency medical technicians for cuts and bruises, and one person was arrested.

The concert, which began at noon, featured local band Synaesthesia, Taj Mahal, Black Uhuru, Buffalo Tom and the Violent Femmes.

Vendors from Sylvan and Greenough snack bars, Earthfoods, Snapple and Haagen-Dazs were set up, in addition to stands selling frozen lemonade and fried dough.

— TRACY L. MONAHAN

NOW HIRING

Student Employees
Wanted for Fall 1994
Work Study preferred
Dean of Students Office &
The Information Data Bank

Apply in Person Now at the Dean of Students Office
227 Whitmore

College Pro Home Painters
Get a tan painting this summer.
Positions available all across New England. Great Pay! Call 1-800-346-4649

SALE

save 20% OFF regular price on all

GEAR FOR SPORTS

on sale for ONE WEEK ONLY...
May 9 - May 14

UNIVERSITY STORE
Campus Center
545-2619
M-F 9AM to 5PM
SAT 11AM to 3PM

NATHAN MARTIN / COLLEGIAN

The Butch Mobile was just one of the 1,200 marchers who participated in Saturday's Lesbian, Bisexual, Gay and Transgender Pride March in Northampton. These women were showing their support for the sadist/masochistic community.

■ march

continued from page 1

port for, the members of the Queer community.

The Statement of Purpose in the program for the march said in part, "It is absolutely crucial that lesbians, gays, bisexuals and transgender people join together against the repressive social forces arrayed against us. The battle for a federal civil rights law is too big for any one subculture to win alone. There is power in numbers."

This is the second year that Transgender was included in the title of the march, as well as drag queens performing on stage at the rally after the march.

Leslie Feinberg, a long time transgender activist and author and contributing editor of the Workers World Newspaper, was one of the keynote speakers at the rally.

Feinberg said, the transgender people were at the frontlines of the lesbian movement in the 50s.

Feinberg, who requests to be referred to as she/he, was referring, in a large part, to the Stonewall Riots. They were started by a small group of drag queens and drag kings at the Stonewall Inn in Greenwich Village 25 years ago this June. This for all intense purposes was the birth of the Queer Civil Rights Movement.

"Will you continue to stand up for transgender rights? Will you stand up for lesbian, bisexual and gay rights?" Feinberg asked.

Mary L. Ford, mayor of Northampton, read at the formal greetings for the march, the Proclamation of Recognition. It says in part, "Whereas the City (of Northampton) wishes to recognize the many positive contributions of its citizens, volunteers and business people who are lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender; and whereas the protection of the Massachusetts Civil Rights Act and the pride demonstrated through this march should be extended throughout these United States; Now therefore I, Mary L. Ford, mayor of Northampton, do hereby proclaim May 7, 1994 a day of recognition and pride of lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender communities and urge support by all Northampton citizens for the civil rights of all."

This was the first year that the proclamation was included in the program of the march.

Many of the speakers spoke about a need for unity and respect between the different members of the Queer community.

Rev. Sonja Meidell, former Roman Catholic nun of 10 years, is currently a minister out of the Hope Community Church in Amherst. She said there are people in Amherst who are trying to keep her parish from building a new church. "We must not limit ourselves to things that seem social correct," said Meidell.

Robyn Ochs has taught courses on bisexuality at Tufts University and MIT. She has written for many anthologies.

"No one group of people is superior to any other... When you put us all together we're unstoppable. Together we can change the world," Ochs said.

"Don't sell me out before you get to know me for who I am," said Jo Arnone, sadist/masochist activist, and wildlife rehabilitator. "United we are powerful."

■ Decker

continued from page 1

poor. She said society does not understand what poverty means.

"My family, and many others, are poor because society didn't take care of itself. But because of public education, I was able to break that cycle of poverty in my family," she said.

Decker majored in Social Thought and Political Economy and minored in Women's Studies. She also had a concentration in African American Studies. She was the first person in her family to graduate from high school.

After graduation, Decker will be teaching special education in Louisiana for the Teach for America program. The program is designed to attract college graduates not planning a career in education. The graduates teach for two years in rural or urban areas that have trouble filling their teaching positions. After the two years, Decker plans to attend law school.

She is currently doing volunteer work as a teacher for children with special needs. Decker said working with the kids has been the most rewarding experience for her.

Decker was extremely involved in the campus community. She was a peer advisor and student intern in the STPEC office at the University. She also co-taught a course for students on women's health called "Reclaiming Our Bodies."

She was politically involved on campus. Decker was very active in the Student Government Association. In 1990, she was a senator and an assistant to the Student Trustee. Decker also participated in the "No on 3" campaign informing students about the referendum to stop heavy taxing.

Other activities Decker was involved in on-campus were the Anti-Racism Coalition — which was a committee that responded to the Rodney King verdict — and the Students Advocating Financial Aid committee.

Decker was very active off-campus as well. Her political experience includes working for the Committee to re-elect Jonathan Meyers to Cambridge City Council, the Committee to elect Ellen Story to State Representative, the Amherst Town Meeting and the State Democratic Convention.

■ softball

continued from page 10

The synchronized chants of "Hit it, rip it, knock it around," keep the entire team focused on the game and promote greater team unity, which is often lost in that other game of spoiled millionaires and 25-player, 25-cab teams.

Softball players are more gutsy than their counterparts in that other sport. Have you ever been to a softball game? Have you ever seen how close Sam Cardenas and Rachel Lawson play the corners? You try it sometime.

You've got players in that other game who don't like playing on the grass in a hunt situation never mind being closer to home plate than the umpire for 70 percent of the game.

Finally, softball is played for a much purer reason than that other sport. What lies beyond a college career for these ladies? They play for the love, the thrill, the emotion, the intensity and the competition of the game.

And that, like a Diamond, is forever.

Sean P. Hayden is a Collegian columnist.

■ degrees

continued from page 1

of the most important events in her educational career.

"I had the pleasure of having my son hand me my degree," Rossi said. Her son is a member of the faculty at Northwestern University.

Rossi was named the Harriet Martineau professor of sociology in 1984 at UMass when the professorship was created. Rossi is widely known for her research on sex, gender, social movements, family, kinship, adult development and women in the professions and academia. Her current research project focuses on midlife development and she has a book coming out in June.

Rossi said that her involvement in research and education has "been the constant thread through my life."

G. Richard Huguenin was a member of the department of physics and astronomy at the university from 1968-1983 and was a founder and director of the Five College Radio Astronomy Observatory. He conducted research on pulsars, millimeter instrumentation and astronomy.

In 1981, Huguenin founded the Millitech Corporation in South Deerfield and produces millimeter and submillimeter components and systems. He currently directs the firm's operations and expansion efforts. Huguenin will receive a doctorate in science on Commencement day.

Charles Nirenberg, the recipient of a doctorate in public service is best known to UMass students as the founder of Dairy Mart, the second largest convenience food story chain in the country. Nirenberg entered UMass in 1942, but left in the middle of his studies to serve in World War II. He returned to UMass-Amherst a decorated veteran but left in 1947 to pursue the ice cream business.

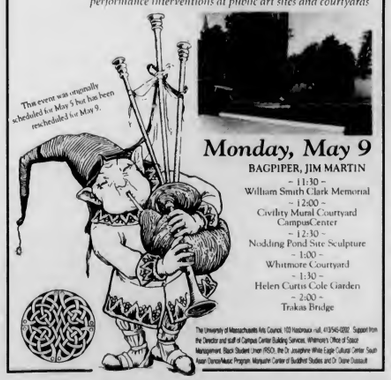
"He has been a spokesman for the UMass all over the country," said Doris Newman, an elected member of the board of directors for the UMass Alumni Association. "He has been one of the largest benefactors of the University."

Nirenberg has endowed a large sum of financial support to the Hillel program at UMass. In 1993, he donated $1 million dollars to the School of Management and established the Charles and Janet Nirenberg chair of business leadership.

He was the recipient of the First Amendment Award from the Magazine Publishers Association and the Humanitarian Award from the American Israel Fellowship Society for his work with Jerusalem's Neve College.

J. Herman Blake has written on various higher education issues such as minority experience in institutions of higher learning, African-American colleges and universities, racism and civility. He is currently areas of focus are African American males in higher education and institutional climates and special programs regarding minorities.

Blake focused his early research on "black militants in urban areas," and primarily focused on the Nation of Islam in the California Bay Area. His research on the development of the Black Panther Party led to his book, "Revolutionary Suicide," in 1973.



He is currently the vice-chancellor for undergraduate education and professor of sociology, anthropology, and education at Indiana University-Purdue University in Indianapolis. From 1984-87, he was the president of Tougaloo College in Mississippi and from 1987-89 he was the Eugene M. Lang visiting professor of social change at Swarthmore College in Pennsylvania.

Hunan Garden Restaurant 家酒園南湖
The Best Chinese Buffet
MANDARIN/SZECHUAN CUISINE
WE DELIVER IN AMHERST 5-9:30 EVERYDAY
Free Delivery for orders $15 and over; $2 charge for orders under $15
NEW BUFFET & SUNDAY BRUNCH
Buffet Every Night 5-8 p.m.
Sunday Brunch 11 a.m.-3 p.m.
ALL YOU CAN EAT $5.99
Children under 10 - $3.50
Luncheon Specials served 11:30-3 p.m. - $3.25
All luncheon specials come with rice & your choice of 2 Chicken Fingers, 2 Chicken Wings, or Hot & Sour Soup
TAKE OUT SERVICE - FULL COCKTAIL MENU
10 Belchertown Rd. at Rt. 9, Amherst 256-0252

Lincoln Real Estate
has the best selection of 1, 2, & 3 bedroom Uptown Apartments with Gas Heat.
We begin showing apartments in April and May for June or September Occupancy.
253-7879 • 25 N. Pleasant St.

COLLECTIVE COPIES
• PASSPORT PHOTOS $4.95/pair
• INTERNATIONAL FAX
One page as low as
$4.00 ARGENTINA
$5.00 IRAN
$3.50 LONDON
29 S. Pleasant St., Amherst 256-6425

artEventives
UMass Arts Council Presents
performance interventions at public art sites and courtyards

Monday, May 9
BAGPIPER, JIM MARTIN
~ 11:30 ~
William Smith Clark Memorial
~ 12:00 ~
Civility Mural Courtyard
CampusCenter
~ 12:30 ~
Nodding Pond Site Sculpture
~ 1:00 ~
Whitmore Courtyard
~ 1:30 ~
Helen Curtis Cole Garden
~ 2:00 ~
Trakas Bridge

The University of Massachusetts Arts Council, 103 Hasbrouck • tel. 413/545-0202 Support from the Director and staff of Campus Center Building Services, Whitmore's Office of Space Management, Black Student Union (NSO), the Dr. Josephine White Eagle Cultural Center, South Asian Dance/Music Program, Marguerite Center of Buddhist Studies and Dr. Diane Dussault

VanMeter Butterfield Crabtree Knowlton Marylyon Leach Hamlin Dwight Thatcher Lewis
Johnson Brown Cashin McNamara Coolidge Patterson Mackimmie Washington John Quincy Adams John Adams
Grayson Field Webster Dickinson Baker Chadbourne Greenough Brett Brooks Gorman Wheeler
James Emerson Kennedy Melville Thoreau Prince Crampton Cance Pierpont Moore

HOUSING SERVICES / RESIDENTIAL EDUCATION
WOULD LIKE TO RECOGNIZE AND THANK
THE 1993-94 RESIDENT ASSISTANT STAFF
FOR THEIR EXCELLENT PERFORMANCE !!

THANK YOU

R.A.'S

COMPLETE OPTOMETRY EXAMS
AT THE UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES
We offer...
...quality, comprehensive vision care at a reasonable cost.
...courteous, friendly, professional staff.
...reduced rates on eye glasses at participating opticians with a complete optometric examination at the University Health Services for Student Plan members.
...a comprehensive contact lens service.
uhs
EYE CARE PROGRAM
Convenient hours and on campus location.
For questions or appointments, call 549-2671 X244

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY

COLLEGIAN

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

MICHAEL MORRISSEY Editor-in-Chief

Managing Editor DARIENNE HOSLEY | MICHAEL MCRAE Business Manager
Arts & Living Editor EMILY A. MARINO | LISA JEZOWSKI Production Manager
Black Affairs Editor RODNEY POWELL | DANIELLE YANNO Advertising Manager
Developing Nations Editor JUAN J. CHACON QUIROS | STEPHANIE SHORE Finance Manager
Editorial/Opinion Editor MIKE CARVALHO | ANDREW DAVIDSON Night Graphics Manager
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor STEPHEN C. CAMPBELL | JIM BRUNEAU, CAITLIN OLSON Day Graphics Managers
Jewish Affairs Editor JACOB W. MICHAELS | JEREMY DAGGETT Circulation Manager
Multicultural Affairs Editor EVELYN A. DE JESUS | ERIC ABENAIM Subscriptions Manager
News Editor TRACY MONAHAN | MAUREEN MAJEWSKI Senior Bookkeeper
Photography Editor NATHAN MARTIN | BLAKE PHILLIPS Graphics Professional
Sports Editor ARTHUR STAPLETON JR. | MARTY PAPPAS Classified Advertising
Women's Issues Editor VANESSA AMIN | TURLEY PUBLICATIONS Printing Services

113 CAMPUS CENTER BASEMENT · UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS · AMHERST, MA 01003 · (413) 545-3500 · FAX (413) 545-1592

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday–Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. Letters to the editor are encouraged and will be printed on a space-available basis. All submissions must be typed, kept to a maximum of 400 words, and should include the writer's name, address, year and major, as well as a phone number for verification purposes. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length. Persons wishing to submit guest columns should contact the Editorial/Opinion editor in advance. The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writers or cartoonist and do not necessarily represent those of the Collegian. Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Editorial Board.

The bottom line at Smith

For my last column of the year, an issue a little closer to home. It is going on at Smith College, but could just as easily happen right here.

On Tuesday, April 19, a Smith College official walked into Hopkins House and announced that two of its three buildings would be demolished by the end of the decade. Furthermore, only one more entering class will be assigned to live in Hopkins.

Hopkins isn't just another building. It is a home to 48 people, all of whom have a strong affection for the place they entered as new college students. Countless others have lived there over the years. Among them certainly are doctors, authors and musicians.

It has been said many times that a house and a home are not the same. But a college house is a home. It is where life-long friendships are made, and where one experiences the rebirth that comes with entering college. It is a collection of emotions and memories, as well as boards and nails.

What does this have to do with you? Think of your hall, or your building. Is it a house, or a home? What if someone walked in one day, and rudely and directly stated, without discussion, that it would be obliterated in just six years?

Peter J. Orvetti

This is not the first time that Hopkins has been targeted by Smith's leadership. Two years ago, Smith threatened to evict Hopkins residents to convert the building into an admissions office. Student protest won the day, but this new fight will be harder.

Even though the buildings are going to be destroyed, the administration has no idea what it will do with the land. Dean Ann Burger said that it may be used for a student center, or a parking lot. It might just remain an empty, abandoned lot. Even Smith College President Mary Maples Dunn doesn't want to guess what will become of Hopkins' grave.

To renovate and repair Hopkins would cost Smith $3 million. That's not a lot when you consider that the administration has allocated 11 times that amount to restore housing. But to tear it down and build something new would cost far more — if they even bother to build something new.

Hopkins resident Bowbay Feng understands Smith politics. "When they were putting together all the consolidated dining, they also said... it was like an agreement. You can keep your houses. You can keep everything the way it is. We'll allow the small, nice housing system, but we need to consolidate in order to save money," Feng told the April 28 Smith College Sophian. (Sound familiar?)

"Yet the next step," continued Feng, "is we're just going to take down these two houses, and then what's next? Which other houses are coming down? And how are they going to save money and change this college?"

According to Hopkins resident Kathryn Von Schoeler, all the administration would guarantee is that Hopkins will come down. There is no talk of what will come after.

The school throws out structural damage as its justification. But my source at Smith tells me that damage to Hopkins has long been neglected. A water leak in the one Hopkins building that will not be torn down was not repaired for months.

Hopkins is a home with a story. It was first a boarding house, and was purchased by Smith in 1921 to become the first guaranteed on-campus housing at the school. A plaque in the living room commemorates this event.

What does this have to do with you? Think of your hall, or your building. Is it a house, or a home? What if someone walked in one day, and rudely and directly stated, without discussion, that it would be obliterated in just six years?

This could happen anywhere, not just at Smith. Hopkins is a home to all the current and former students who passed from adolescence to adulthood under the light of its stained glass. This is just one more example of a college administration becoming a corporate executive board. There was no thought to the Smith community in the Hopkins choice. All they cared about was the bottom line.

The Smith administration will take one of two courses. The first, restore Hopkins, and along with it, faith that Smith exists for its community and its students, not for a quick buck. The second, tear it down. But if that choice is made, in all fairness, at the exact second that Hopkins falls, so should the memory-filled childhood homes of President Dunn and Dean Burger, on their orders. Let them grieve the loss of their youths as well.

A life–changing experience

I am one of the luckiest students here at UMass. Six of us found out the true meaning of life three weeks ago. None of us will ever be the same.

How many of you complain about your weight, school, friends or even parties? Now, how many of you worry about your T-cell count, if you'll live until your next birthday or if you parents and friends will be okay when you're dead?

Few of us at this University will ever have to ponder these questions, or feel what it is like to have to think about them. Recently, though, a few of us found out what these answers felt like. We were counselors at a camp for kids infected with or affected by the HIV virus or AIDS.

Thanks to an astonishing man, David Butler, and his assistant, Jeff Wyda, I shared a week of love, caring, true friendship and pain with these kids. He gave me the chance to experience the best week of my life. I realized what real love and real life is.

David Butler made it possible for 20 kids, from six to 16–years–old, to live a week without the prejudice, the secrets, the pain and the constant reminder that they have HIV or AIDS. We played baseball, to kill the kid with the ball; none of them having to worry about people not wanting to touch or be near them.

They got the chance to spend a completely carefree week with kids who shared the same feelings and the people who really cared about them. All of them were allowed one week to forget their hard lives at home. Only one week of their short lives to laugh and love without prejudice or rejection.

Just one day playing for hours with one special 11–year– old changed my life. His smile, his laugh, the way he would tackle me if I got the ball first I will remember forever. He had been so quiet and tired the first day we arrived, then we played together the whole second day, non–stop laughing and sweating from playing so vigorously.

That night, the counselors met for a staff meeting. Dave went over some things and mentioned that the kid I'd been playing with had thrush, a painful bacterial disease of the mouth that kids with AIDS get frequently. It hit me then that my new friend was really sick. That happy, beautiful smile could be gone soon. Ever since that second night, I will never be the same.

We had all made close bonds with the kids we met. Our hearts were broken and the tears stormed down. I would do anything to take even a little of the pain away from these kids.

Although I was so depressed and sad, I also realized how lucky I am to have met and become close to these unbelievable and courageous kids.

It is ironic, though. I went there to hopefully help these kids who are terminally ill and have such difficult lives, and they ended up helping me even more. They gave life a whole new meaning for me.

It is ironic, though. I went there to hopefully help these kids who are terminally ill and have such difficult lives, and they ended up helping me even more. They gave life a whole new meaning for me.

Jackye Colligan

Just remember, the next time you're complaining about the long walk to Victory or the time you have to wait to play at the Horseshoe, think about these kids. Be grateful you're not taking 20–30 pills a day, spending weeks in a hospital for a sore throat or being kicked off a basketball team because people don't want to be near you.

No one but the other counselors will ever understand how I feel or what I have experienced, but try your best to understand that these kids need help. We're all going to die sometime, but most of us won't have to deal with the pain and loneliness so soon in our lives.

Please help support the Vineyard Project so we can continue to give these kids two of the best weeks of their lives. For more information, contact the Vineyard Project c/o Box 301, Amherst, Mass. 01004-0301.

Jackye Colligan is a freshman majoring in psychology.

Opinion

Reflecting on the semester

Now that my freshman year at UMass is coming to a close, I must breathe a sigh of relief and say that it has been quite a year. This semester as your humble columnist has been quite an experience and I'd like to close out the semester by sharing some final thoughts...

* * * * *

Aren't these columnist mug shots great? I've always thought it was good putting a face with a name; but even better is a face with a column. And for all of you who are wondering where my picture was taken, well I'll tell you. It was taken at our University's prestigious Top of the Campus Lounge. It was my only chance to get in there.

David Chan

Well anyway, when people started to approach me asking: "Hey, are you the guy that writes for the Collegian?," I didn't know what to say. If I said yes, I figured I'd either get a friendly handshake or a kick in the...

* * * * *

For all the people that were at the A–10 Championship game and ran on the court after the game, I was on the Mullins floor, too. You know that we wouldn't have gotten off the court if Coach Cal hadn't told us to.

* * * * *

If the UMass library looks like a penis, then what does the campus duck pond look like?

* * * * *

Remember the good old days in elementary school? Those were the days when they gave away free combs on picture day. I miss those kickball playin' days.

* * * * *

I'm moving to Southwest next semester, hopefully to either John Adams or Washington towers. I just thought I'd share that with you.

* * * * *

How about that Nelson Mandela guy? History is being made in South Africa, folks. Mandela has spent his whole life fighting for peace and the right to vote in a country where he's always been oppressed, and now he's the president of that country. Kind of makes you want to start your own revolution, doesn't it?

* * * * *

The Newman Center should ban smoking. Non–smokers have rights, too. Smoking should be banned not because it hurts the smoker, but because it hurts other people. I don't care if you're hurting yourself, but it's not fair if other people have to suffer. Don't ruin it for the rest of us.

* * * * *

On a brighter note, how about them Red Sox? Not only are they winning, but they're setting the pace in the best division (by far) in baseball. I think the Pawtucket Red Sox should play in the American League West. Did you know that Pawtucket is leading their division as well?

Before we get excited over the Red Sox again, let's take a moment to remember what has happened in the past. Yes, I feel the pain, too. But I think that with the new playoff system, the Red Sox have a good chance of post regular season play.

There's no question that the four best American League teams are in the East division. Let's hope that the standings we see today will be the same that we'll see when we come back next semester.

* * * * *

Speaking of the Red Sox, it's back to another summer of buying bleacher tickets at the ever–so–comfortable Fenway Park. Yes, I'm a bleacher creature. I can see it now: I'm sitting in the bleachers on a sunny afternoon with my UMass hat on; it's the seventh inning stretch; Aaron Sele is working on a perfect game against the Blue Jays; I'm finishing off my third Polish sausage; then some kid comes up to me and asks, "Hey, are you the guy that writes for the UMass Collegian?"

* * * * *

Mother's Day was yesterday. It's time for me to acknowledge and show my appreciation to my dear mother. After all, she's read all my columns. Well anyway, the job of a mother is the most important job in the world. My mother doesn't get a salary for it, or an award, or a trophy. But she does get the satisfaction of knowing that her beloved son, David, is a Collegian columnist. Happy Mother's Day.

* * * * *

I'd like to take this opportunity to thank some people...

• Thanks to the girl that loved my Easter column so much that she bought me a present.

• Thanks to the girl (this is a different girl) that offered me advice after reading my relationships column. I'm sorry I never returned your call.

• Thanks to the nice lady I met at Strawberries last Friday. You didn't have to make so many copies, you could've just taken a stack of Collegians.

• Thanks to Professor Matthews for the nice letter. I'll see you at the Faculty Club.

• And thanks to you, the reader, for reading this column. Try to have a productive summer, keep smiling, and I'll see you in the Fenway bleachers... or next semester.

David Chan is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Professor points out dangers of smoking

To the editor:

Some individuals have criticized my public health class and me for asking the Newman Center to change its smoking policy to match the University's smoke–free policy. They minimize the health risks associated with exposure to environmental tobacco smoke (or ETS) by describing it as an issue of "live and let die" or "separation of church and state." They appear to be suggesting that smokers want to harm non–smokers and that the church supports the interests of the tobacco industry.

In reality ETS is not harmless and is one of the leading causes of preventable death in the United States. Smokers and non–smokers who frequent the Newman Center should read two articles recently published by the New England Journal of Medicine on the "Human Costs of Tobacco Use" (March 31 and April 7).

The authors described the hazards of smoking and exposure to ETS. They said that "Environmental tobacco smoke is a major source of indoor–air contaminants... and there appears to be no evidence of a safe threshold level; non–smokers exposed to environmental tobacco smoke appear to be at increased risk for the same problems and complications recognized in smokers."

It has been estimated that 53,000 Americans die each year from various diseases resulting from exposure to ETS, including 37,000 deaths from heart disease and 3,000 deaths from lung cancer. Because of its association with lung cancer, ETS has been classified as a known human lung carcinogen, or a group "A" carcinogen by the Environmental Protection Agency in January 1993.

Other studies have also shown that non–smokers who suffer from asthma have been shown to experience a decline in pulmonary function because of exposure to ETS and linked cancer of the cervix to exposure of mainstream smoke and ETS.

The evidence of the hazards of ETS have brought about major changes in public opinion. In fact, a recent CBS News/New York Times poll (April 30) found that 67 percent of the American public favored a complete ban on smoking in all public places. Only 11 percent felt that the tobacco companies told the entire truth about the health risks associated with smoking cigarettes.

Once upon a time it was socially acceptable to smoke in any public place. However, times have changed. Because of the hazards associated with ETS, the Newman Center should change its policy to reflect the University's smoke–free policy.

P.S. The town of Amherst recently approved an ordinance which prohibits smoking in all enclosed public places, including the Newman Center, beginning on Sept. 1, 1994.

Michael E. Begay
Assistant Professor of Health Policy

Hold that thought...

All semester long, we've been asking for your letters. Well, as the school year comes to an end, the space we have for letters is disappearing fast.

Have no fear, however. You can submit your letters first thing next semester. Until then... have a great summer!

Doonesbury — by Garry Trudeau

Arts & Living

Caleb picks his TV heroes

Here it is, folks. The final edition of On The Tube. I hope it's been as much fun to read as it has been for me to write. Before I get too sentimental, let's get on to the business of the week.

I wanted to do something a little special for this final column, so I decided to comprise a list (surprise), this time saluting my all–time television heroes. Here they are.

•David Letterman. Without a doubt, the coolest guy on TV. Letterman's show is the funniest thing on TV, night in and night out.

On the Tube By Caleb Cochran

•Adam West/Burt Young. That's right, Batman and Robin, baby. This show was a staple in my childhood afternoon of TV. I especially liked the fight scenes, when cool words like "BAM" or "KABLOOEE" would take up the whole screen. I was dropped on my head as a child, OK?

•Howard Hesseman. A.K.A. Dr. Johnny Fever, Hesseman was the backbone of my favorite show, "WKRP in Cincinnati." He later starred in another pretty good show, "Head of the Class." One of the most underappreciated actors around.

•Cybil Shepard. I'll get letters if I don't mention some women, so here she is. Bruce Willis' co–star on "Moonlighting," Shepard was perfect as Maddie Hayes opposite Willis' David Addison. I don't know what happened to "Moonlighting." I liked it. A lot. Shows what I know.

•Fred Rogers. I don't know how the guy did it, but he got me hooked on his damn show when I was a tyke. I especially liked the part where Mr. Rogers changed his shoes at the beginning and end of the show. I know that the first thing I do when I step into my house is change from those uncomfortable loafers into the more comfortable and stylish blue canvas tennis sneakers. Just take the damn shoes off altogether, Fred. It would save a lot of time.

•Catherine Bach. She played Daisy Duke on of the greatest shows of all time, "The Dukes of Hazzard." One of the happiest moments of my childhood came when I received an autographed postcard from Bach after writing her a letter telling her how much I enjoyed her work. And her little jean cutoffs.

Turn to TUBE, page 7

Indigo Girls' latest: a change for the better?

By JON LUPO
Collegian Staff

Indigo Girls
Swamp Ophelia
Epic Records

COURTESY LAURA LEVINE/EPIC RECORDS
Emily Saliers and Amy Ray are Indigo Girls

Have Indigo Girls been reduced to just merely a good listen? Have they lost the power to stir thoughts and move hearts? Not really. Only this time, on Swamp Ophelia, the duo's fifth full–length album, the epiphanies are a bit smaller, more infrequent and subjective.

Indigo Girls may be charting new territory, but it's an erratic, unassured journey. Die–hard fans won't be disappointed; Indigo Girls deliver their guitar–strumming and piercing vocals true to form — but even they may find Amy Ray and Emily Saliers have grown up... and grown apart, both from their listeners and each other.

If it was a sneaking suspicion on Rites of Passage, Indigo's last album, it's realized here on Swamp Ophelia: Ray and Saliers have moved so far from each other lyrically and stylistically, that it's very easy to differentiate their songs just by reading the lyric sheets. They may merge voices quite well (and they do), but their ideas are miles apart.

The album begins strongly with "Fugitive," a Ray–penned tune about an artist struggling with love and fame. "They're coming for us/with cameras or guns/we don't know which/but we gotta run," Ray sings, Saliers punching up Ray's somber yet assertive voice.

Sliding into "Least Complicated," Saliers sings of

Turn to INDIGO, page 7

Resumé Package
• 50 copies on Your Choice of 25% Cotton Paper
• 2 Business Day Service
• 1 Page Typeset
•With Coupon• $19.95!!
CopyCat PRINT SHOP
228 Triangle St., Amherst 549-3840
32 Pleasant St., Northampton 586-1332

From $199 Each Way LONDON
Eurail Passes Issued on the Spot!
All other Rail Passes Also Available
Hong Kong $469
Paris $219
Brussels $252
* Departure from New York
Council Travel
Fares are 1/2 round trips. Departure from Boston unless otherwise indicated. Taxes and surcharges not included. Fares subject to change. Student or Faculty I.D. may be required.
79 S. Pleasant Street, 2nd Floor Amherst, MA 01002
413-256-1261

SUMMER JOBS
Where else can you sit around, talk on the phone, and still make $5.50 an hour?
ONLY at UMASS TELEFUND!
Plus, all the extras...
• Up to $9.50 an hour
• Additional Bonuses
• Flexible, Evening Hours
• Fun, Friendly People
• Valuable Communication Skills
• Impressive Resume Experience
Make a Difference
Talk to UMASS Alumni
Stop by UMASS Basement, Memorial Hall
or Call 545-3509
UMASS Telefund

VOICE EDITOR POSITION OPEN
The editor position for the 1994-95 Graduate Voice is open.

The editor is responsible for producing and distributing 8 monthly issues of The Voice which run 8 to 16 pages. The position carries a stipend equal to the average TA stipend, currently $8,273. The editor may also apply to the Graduate School for a tuition and fee waiver if work on the Voice is related to her/his academic pursuits.

It is not necessary for a candidate to have editorial experience, but the editor will preferably possess good writing and editing skills, basic knowledge of University affairs, basic computer skills, and a willingness to work hard to produce an interesting paper. The editor will work with the GSS Executive Committee & the Office Manager.

Applications – cover letter, resume, & writing sample(s) –must be RECEIVED no later than 5:00pm, Monday, May 16th in the GSS office. Submit applications to:

The Voice* Editor Search/919 Campus Center
University of Massachusetts/Amherst, MA 01003-1212
For more information, please call the Graduate Student Senate at 545-2896

BUY BACK TIME

University Store's Textbook Annex announces a new Buyback location in the Campus Center!

TO MAKE IT EASIER AND MORE COVIENENT, BUY-BACK WILL NOW BE HELD AT THE FOLLOWING LOCATIONS: CAMPUS CENTER, TEXTBOOK ANNEX IN HAMPDEN SOUTHWEST. YOU WILL MAKE THE MOST FOR YOUR MONEY BY SELLING YOUR TEXTBOOKS DURING THE "CLOSING BUY". SO, PLEASE, TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE NEW LOCATIONS AND THE FACT THAT THIS IS THE BEST TIME TO SELL. STUDENT ID IS REQUIRED.

CAMPUS CENTER
(1st Floor by the ATM Machines)

May 11, 12, 13
9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

May 14
11:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

May 16 and 17
9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

May 18, 19, 20
9:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m

TEXTBOOK ANNEX

May 11, 12, 13
9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

May 16, 17, 18, 19, 20
9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

May 23 and 24
9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

May 25
9:00 a.m. to noon

HAMPDEN IN SOUTHWEST

May 18, 19, 20
10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.

TEXTBOOK SCHOLARSHIP DRAWING

$2,500 TO BE GIVEN AWAY IN $100 AWARDS
ENTRY FORMS AVAILABLE AT ALL BUYBACK LOCATIONS

DRAWINGS HELD ON THE CAMPUS CENTER CONCOURSE AT NOON MAY 16 THRU 20, 1994

SCHOLARSHIPS WILL BE AWARDED IN THE FORM OF UNIVERSITY STORE GIFT CERTIFICATES SCHOLARSHIP FUND IS GUARANTEED TO BE $2,500. SEE THE ANNEX FOR DETAILS

TEXTBOOK SCHOLARSHIPS DRAWING - ENTRY FORM
UNIVERSITY STORE'S TEXTBOOK ANNEX

DROP OFF COMPLETED ENTRY FORM AT THE UNIVERSITY STORE OR ANY BUYBACK LOCATION.

NAME: _____

HOME ADDRESS: _____ CAMPUS ADDRESS: _____

HOME PHONE: _____ CAMPUS PHONE: _____

EMPLOYEES OF AUXILIARY SERVICES AND SOUTH EASTERN BOOK COMPANY ARE NOT ELIGIBLE
LIMIT ONE PRIZE AWARDED PER PERSON
SCHOLARSHIPS WILL BE AWARDED IN THE FORM OF UNIVERSITY STORE GIFT CERTIFICATES.
ENTRY FORMS MUST BE FILLED OUT COMPLETELY.

DON'T DISCRIMINATE AGAINST WOMEN'S HEALTH

 Don't turn back the clock on women's health care.
 Protect a woman's right to choose.
 Keep abortion services in the health plan.

National Women's Reproductive Health Call-In Day

Wednesday, May 18

Let Congress Know:

"Universal health care is not universal if it doesn't include women's reproductive health care including: family planning, contraceptive services, abortion services, pre-natal care and sex education for all women.

Be part of a national day of grassroots action to protect a woman's right to choose. On May 18, call your Congressperson and Senator to tell them that women's reproductive health services, including abortion services, are a vital and necessary part of universal health care.

"Most private health insurance plans include abortion services, and so should any national program."
Washington Post, May 22, 1993

"Excluding abortion would eliminate coverage for millions of women who now have it."
The Wall Street Journal, May 11, 1993

THIS ADVERTISEMENT HAS BEEN PAID FOR AND ENDORSED BY:

Abortion Rights Fund of Western Mass
Civil Liberties and Public Policy
Everywoman's Center
Family Planning
League of Women's Voters
MASS CHOICE
Men's Resource Center of Western Mass
NOW/Springfield
POWER
SOS (Students Organizing Students)
WIMPS (Wild Intrepid Men Protesting Sexism)
Women's Studies
Thomas Asher and Judith Senderowitz
June George
Harriet Goodwin
George and Barbara Greenstein
Ann Grose
Jay and Barbara Melrose
Ruth Trimarchi
Ben Zeman

Jon Stewart delivers laughs at FAC

By CALEB COCHRAN
Collegian Staff

Jon Stewart
Fine Arts Center
May 5, 1994

Relaxing with a Nestea backstage after Thursday night's performance at the University of Massachusetts Fine Arts Center, an exhausted Jon Stewart was still sharp enough to toss out a few chuckles.

"I can't believe I dropped my pants on stage," Stewart deadpanned. "I'm excited to get back home [to New York City]," he added on a more serious note. "I've been gone for four or five weeks, and I forgot to leave food for the cat."

The actual show, sponsored by Commuter Area Government, provided even more laughs from the 29-year- old host of MTV's "The Jon Stewart Show." Stewart obviously did his homework on the Amherst area, as he began the show with a reference to last winter's John Chaney-John Calipari fiasco. "Is your coach still alive," Stewart asked the lively crowd of about 800, "or did John Chaney hunt him down and kill him?"

Stewart then made another stab at local culture, this time referring to the strict attitude in Amherst regarding alcohol consumption. "What is this, like the Footloose town?," he joked, alluding to the classic Kevin Bacon film of the early '80s.

The show moved along at a brisk pace, with the chain- smoking Stewart bombarding the audience with joke after hilarious joke. He touched on many relevant social issues of the '90s, including the subject of television advertising. Stewart remarked that condom ads are forbidden on TV because legislators feel that the ads will promote sex among young people, yet alcohol ads flood the airwaves. "Like beer doesn't lead to young people having sex," Stewart said. The comedian also mocked the mixed message that TV advertising sends. "Drugs: bad. Alcohol: magically delicious!"

COURTESY JON STEWART
Comedian Jon Stewart

One of the show's funnier moments came when Stewart discussed the Emergency Broadcast System. "What happens if you're not watching TV or listening to the radio when the tragedy happens? Does somebody knock on your door and go, 'Ahhhhhhhhhh!?' You know what the Emergency Broadcast System is a test of? Your remote control. That's it."

Stewart played the role of the pissed-off patriot throughout a portion of the show, as he let loose on a variety of victims, including England ("Your country sucks"), Canada ("You'll be fine until we run out of natural resources. Then you'll hear, 'Knock, knock. Hey Canada, we're out of wood. Get out.'"), and Russia ("Come to Russia. it's cold, we have no food. But it's cheap.").

Stewart was just as quick to criticize his own kind, namely the American male population, by discussing the humor of strip joints. Stewart joked that men go to these places at one in the afternoon on a Tuesday and have the audacity to call the dancers "losers." He also touched on the humor in the title of the "Hooters" restaurant chain, saying that the female equivalent would be a place called "Balls."

Tony Ong, president of Commuter Area Government, was pleased with the turnout for the show. "I think the turnout was good because the tickets were cheap and students are low on money at this point in the semester," he said. Ong was right on when asked to evaluate the show, simply stating, "Jon was hilarious."

Great Woods boasts ace line–up

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

Answer: Jimmy Buffet, James Taylor and sod fights.
Question: What three things are you guaranteed to find every summer at The Great Woods Center for the Performing Arts?

Great Woods, located in Mansfield, Mass., is in its ninth year of dominating the Massachusetts summer concert scene.

During the off–season, Great Woods has been dedicated to renovating and improving the 19,000 seat facility. $3.5 million has been spent on the renovation.

Two video screens have been added to aid the viewing of the people in lawn seats. The wheel chair area has been raised, and new parking areas have been created. Routes 140 and 495 have been widened to ease the congestion of entering and leaving the facility.

General Manager Bruce Montgomery is excited about the facelift.

"Such constant improvements and innovations contribute to Great Woods being one of the top amphitheaters in the country," said Montgomery. "These renovations confirm our commitment to providing the most enjoyable concert experience for visitors to our facility."

Highlighting the 1994 lineup is the "Heil Freezes Over" reunion tour of the Eagles. The Eagles who haven't performed together since 1981, will be doing five shows in early August. The first three shows (August 5–7) are sold– out. Tickets are still available for the final two performances on August 9 and 10.

Other big names that will be in Mansfield are Phil Collins (August 10), Metallica (June 11), Indigo Girls (June 30), Bette Midler (July 25–27) and Aerosmith (August 19).

Country music, which had long been absent from the Great Woods line–up, made a successful debut with several shows last year. After last year's success, two country shows have been announced for 1994. The WBCS Country Sunday featuring Travis Tritt and others will be June 26, and Vince Gill will be in Mansfield August 31.

Several Great Woods regulars will be back for their yearly performances as well.

Buffett and Taylor will do three shows each. Buffett, who usually finishes his summer tour at Great Woods, before vacationing at Martha's Vineyard, will come earlier than usual, playing July 28–30. Taylor will arrive as one of the summer's last performers on August 25–27.

Other favorites including the Moody Blues (June 25), Steve Miller Band (July 14) and the Beach Boys (August 21) will all make their annual stops in Mansfield.

In the mid to late '80s, Great Woods often featured several hard rock/heavy metal acts. With the downfall in popularity of that music scene limiting their touring, the rising alternative music scene has sprouted in its place. Replacing the yearly visits from Poison and Firehouse, are several alternative shows.

Last year's surprise hit, the Spin Doctors, who are still riding their success from their debut album, A Pocket Full of Kryptonite, will be joined by the Gin Blossoms and Cracker on August 1. Elvis Costello and the Crash Test Dummies (June 12) and Depeche Mode (June 23) will all check in for shows as well.

Tickets for most shows are available now.

■ Tube

continued from page 5

•Mr. T. "The A Team" was truly a cool show. I had a matchbox version of the famous van. I liked the fact that Mr. T. couldn't fly in airplanes. It seemed to make his character a little more vulnerable. Do you ever wonder how many hours of your life you've wasted in front of the television set? I just did.

•Inspector Gadget. This guy had it all. A propeller came out of his head, his legs could get really long, and all sorts of other neat stuff. I just like him. O.K.? Leave me alone.

•Jason Alexander. What would "Seinfeld" be without George? Probably still a pretty good show, but Alexander plays a very important role. Remember the episode when George bawls at the end of Home Alone? How about the one where he interviews for a job but doesn't know if he got it or not, so he sits in an office and does nothing for a week? I could go on. Funny stuff.

That's it, viewers. I'm afraid you'll have to look elsewhere for your television guidance next semester, as I'll be on to new and exciting things here at the Arts desk. Oh, I almost forgot. To my two friendly neighbors down the hall who have been begging to be mentioned in this column, consider yourself mentioned. Hope you're happy.

Caleb Cochran is an Arts & Living Associate.

■ Indigo

continued from page 5

looking back and learning about love. With a soft opening that conjures some of the quiet imagery Saliers is known for, the band kicks in, and the song evolves into a block party anthem that's as close to pure happiness found on Swamp Ophelia.

After that, though, it's hit or miss. Saliers sings about love (again) with "Language or Kiss," "Mystery" and "Fare the Well." Depending on your threshold for teary–eyed longing and swimming regret, these songs are a bit weepy, though the sentiment is never cheap. "Mystery" excels here; a sweeping, haunting track that investigates the, well, mystery of soul–deep attraction.

Ray, on the other hand, is working on a different plane. With "Reunion," Ray and Saliers recall Nomads•Indians•Saints with a folk–rich tune that's easily one of Ophelia's better tracks. Ray also delves darker with "Dead Man's Hill," a place where childhood memories are mysterious and unsettling.

The album's first single, the jagged "Touch Me Fall" is different, indeed. Whether it grinds on you or jolts your senses, is entirely up to you. Likewise "This Train (Revised)," a song detailing the Nazi's bitter persecution of homosexuals and gypsies in World War II.

While all of this is surely intriguing, as a whole, indigo Girls are changing, and Swamp Ophelia details that refinement. There's nothing on Swamp Ophelia, though, that even approaches the lyrical and musical complexity found on their debut, Indigo Girls (or selected tracks from Nomads).

Amy Ray may be forging forth with new directions on "Touch Me Fall" and "This Train (Revised)," — but it's dwarfed when placed next to "Kid Fears" or "Pushing the Needle Too Far."

Saliers, on the other hand, seems to be forever in a lovestruck swoon. Almost all of her songs approach this subject, albeit from different angles, all with the same lulling effect. Not that it's necessarily a bad thing — most are quite beautiful, "Least Complicated" and "Mystery" do indeed soar.

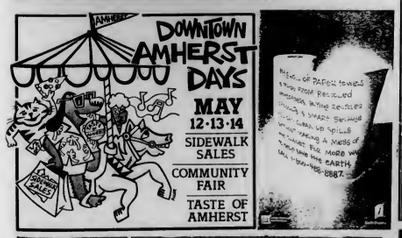
It's a question though, of where they've been and where they're going. Saliers and Ray just turned 30 and their sensibilities have far progressed beyond that of the college– age questioning and personal defilement I wish though, on a purely selfish level, that they would slow down. It won't be surprising then, if Swamp Ophelia means more to me in 10 years than it does now.

Besides, Indigo Girls have amassed enough diverse and loyal fans to back any direction the two women take. It's the direct line, the emotional pinpoint that Indigo Girls possess, that keeps listeners coming back, the intricate but always affecting harmonies that keeps the songs alive.

Last week, as I was walking through Northeast, someone was blaring an Indigo classic, "Prince of Darkness" and singing along with such ferocity — the fact that he couldn't carry a tune didn't matter. Will you hear Swamp Ophelia blaring? Probably, but with a little less ferocity — at least for now. B (Swamp Ophelia will be released on Tuesday, May 10)

adventura travel
549-1256 (Amherst Carriage Shops, 233 N. Pleasant) — 584-9441 (Northampton, 122 Main)
Open Sat.
"Best of the Valley" Award
We Can Save You Time & Money
Senior • Student • Business • Vacation Travel
AIR • CRUISE • RAIL • RESORTS
Europe • Asia • Caribbean • USA

Call For Our Special Offer
Brandywine at Amherst
Brandywine offers Country Living with Convenience
- On UMass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
- Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kiachen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop by and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove)



BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open
Mon.-Fri. 9-5, Sat. & Sun. 10-3
549-0600

Anthony's
"The Biggest Stars Shine Only at Anthony's"
MAY 10-14
The Morrell Twins
North America's Only
IDENTICAL TWIN EXOTIC STAGE SHOW
18 & Over Allowed!
7 DAYS A WEEK!!!
Limited Seating • Positive ID Required
Sun-Tues 3pm-2am • Wed-Sat 12pm-2am
300 New Ludlow Rd. South Hadley, MA
Rt. 91 North to Mass Pike East to Exit 5
Left on Rt. 33, turn right across from Bag! (413) 536-0502

Attention Seniors
Clarification of the date for Chancellor David and Dr. Kathleen Scott's Reception for Seniors
THURSDAY, May 12, 1994

FRIENDS DON'T LET FRIENDS DRIVE DRUNK

Gilreath Manor Condos
- on Hobart Lane -
3 Bedroom • 1½ baths • Heated Basement
New Gas Heat & Hot Water
1/2 Mile to campus • On Bus Route
Showings Start in April
for June or September Occupancy!
Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St • 253-7879

BANANARAMA
fabulous frozen YOGURT
NONFAT SOFT FROZEN YOGURT
GREAT TOPPINGS BAR
NONFAT YOGURT BIRTHDAY PIES
Call for Flavors • 253-2774
One Boltwood Walk (down the alley), Amherst

STEINBECK
COLLISION REPAIR & AUTOBODY
53 S. Prospect St. Amherst Center
Imports & other unibody vehicles are our specialty
User of Sikkens paint products
Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass replacement
REMEMBER
It s your car and your choice of repair facilities
256-8157 256-1385
Shop Reg #RS1212

UMASS Senior Night LUAU
Saturday, May 14th
Includes:
- Bus Transportation
- Chinese Food Dinner
- Polynesian Show
- Boston's Best Comedy Show
- UMASS'own "Mission Improbable"
- DJ and Dancing until 1:30AM

Tickets only $10
HEY SENIORS! What a better way to kick off Senior Week!
Buses leave Fine Arts Center at 6PM and return at 2AM.
COMEDY CONNECTION AT THE HU KE LAU CHICOPEE
for tickets call (413) 593-5222 or go to "TIX" at the Student Union

Summer Health Coverage - 1994

Coverage Period: June 1, 1994 - August 31, 1994
(if enrolled by 6/1/94)

Basic Health Fees: $188.50
Student Family Plan Fees: $424.00

Visit the Member Services Department located in the front lobby for enrollment - 549-2671, x192.

Eligibility: Amherst, Hampshire, Mount Holyoke, Smith and UMass students.
(only UMass students with Basic and SHBP are eligible for the Student Family Plan)

University Health Services / University of Massachusetts, Amherst

Psychology major Kim Carew Baxter with Danielle (11), Matthew (eight) and Samantha (six).

Sandy Verrilli, a landscape design major, with her sons Danny (six) and Chris (four) enjoy a quiet afternoon together.

A very special Mother's Day

By REBECCA PETERSON
Collegian Staff

Kim Carew Baxter and her sister Sandy Verrilli are students at the University of Massachusetts. They are also mothers with full time jobs.

Kim has three children: Danielle, 11; Matthew, 8; and Samantha, 6. She went back to school to major in counseling psychology so she can help other single mothers get through difficult times.

Her typical day starts at six a.m. with homework, which she does until her kids wake up. Once they're up, Kim makes their breakfast and gets them off to school. Then she goes off to her classes for the remainder of the morning.

After her classes are over, Kim heads home to start her job. She works out of her house for a consulting firm. This situation has its advantages as she is at home when her children get out of school.

Kim tries to spend her evenings with her children, but admits it is difficult with so many obligations. This is where Kim and her sister, Sandy, help each other. They have developed what Kim calls a "support system" to ease the strain of single parenting. They babysit for and counsel each other when they need it.

Sandy is also a single mother attending school, majoring in landscape design. She has two children, six-year old Danny and four-year old Chris. Fortunately, she is also able to schedule her job as a property manager around her children's schedule.

Both admit life would be easier with two parents, but they feel they are meeting the challenges they face everyday.

A major portion of the problems that single mother's are forced to contend with are financial. It is very expensive to to pay for child care, new clothes, new sports equipment and the latest toys. In addition to these expenses Kim and Sandy also pay for their education.

But aside from welfare, there are not many other ways to receive aid. Sandy and Kim try to stay away from the welfare system, calling it a "vicious controller that simply sucks people further into the hole."

Kim explained that at one point the local welfare office wanted her to quit her job and take another so she could work a few more hours a week. Kim declined, claiming it would be ridiculous to quit a better paying job that fit into her class and children's schedule perfectly for something that looks better on paper.

Kim and Sandy feel that all to often they are facing stereotypes. For instance, when people learn they're students, the mothers feel they are looked upon as lazy opportunists, bilking the government for all its worth. They bristle at the suggestion, knowing the amount of work they do to make ends meet and stay away from the system.

Sandy's and Kim's academic performance speak for themselves. Both are on the Dean's list and are disappointed with anything less than perfection. While an admirable feat for any student, the honor takes on a more significant meaning when viewed in light of their family.

Aside from their academic success Sandy and Kim also take pride in their children. They spend hours as devoted parents, reading stories and playing baseball.

Despite their single status, both strive to be ideal parents. Their children's appreciative breakfast in bed on Sunday morning demonstrates their success.

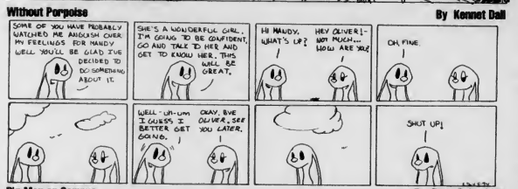
Photo essay by
Rebecca Peterson
Collegian staff photographer

Sandy, Danny and Chris play on the slide.

Dominic Pope waits for the bus home with his mother Meaghan, a freshman music major at UMass.

Meaghan and Dominic, still waiting for that bus.

Calvin and Hobbes By Bill Watterson



Jim's Journal By Jim

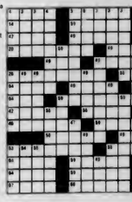
Bruno By C. Baldwin

Without Porpoise By Kennet Dall

Big Man on Campus By Dave Schneider

Daily Crossword

Edited by Trudo Michiel Jaffe



ACROSS
1 Circumstance's partner
5 False gods
10 Atlas features
14 Winged
15 Stair post
16 Emendation
17 Frost
19 Sportiest attack
19 British public school
20 Rye cropper
22 Part of a soap
24 Always, poetically
25 Church council site
26 Dark haired
30 Coercion
34 Easter seed-to 35 Seaborde
37 Brutus was the noblest
38 Calender abbr.
39 Fat
41 Eggs, for
42 Cincher alts
44 Calcium source
45 — lively hustle
46 Sharp weapons
48 Unnecessary
50 Claims against assets
52 Aleb
53 Kind of raisin
56 Mammade fiber
60 Elm or oak
61 Hit play
63 Snare
64 Consumer
65 Ghastly
66 Green land
67 Rural sight
68 Fair
69 See socially

DOWN
1 Cleopatra, to Taylor
2 Mixture
3 Cry from the crib
4 Here
5 Placed inside
6 Loved one
7 Bookish bird?
8 Foot pedal
9 Slanted
10 Orpheists leader
11 Sedan
12 Egg on
13 Clear thinking
21 Peg, for Love
23 Harden
25 Lanes game
26 Punches
27 News summary
28 Let loose
29 Cut short
31 Play the part
32 Preserves
33 Ginger cookies
36 Food fish
39 Hotel courtyards
40 Drew
43 Place that produces pepper's partner
45 Kind of spoon
47 Fait
49 Famele rabbit
51 Title giver
53 Short and
54 Major or Minor constellation
55 Malicious look
56 Continent
57 Battle offering
58 Like lemon
59 Fencing sword
62 Exist

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

S	E	A	L	S		C	I	D	E	R
A	L	O	E	S		S	A	M	A	R	R	A
P	S	A	L	T	E	R		P	A	N	E	L
A	N	S	E	L		M	A	R	K	I	N
D	A	V	E		S	P	I	R	E		S	P	O	T
E	L	I	N	O	R		F	I	L	I	O	N
S	C	A	R	E	D		A	C	H	E	N	T
		M	E	N			S	E	N
	G	R	E	A	S	E		O	D	N	E	A
D	E	A	L	T		T	H	E		B	E	N	C	H
A	N	N	E	S		M	A	R	E		S	E	N	E
M	A	P		S	E	E	D	I	E	R		N	E	A
P	O	S	T		A	D	D	I	E		T	A	R	S
O	T	T	A	W	A			O	T	T	A	R	D	S

5/9/94

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Meatball Grinder	Chicken Tenders
Fish Milkshake, I mean Munchies	Roast Pork
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Black-Eyed Peas	Garbanzo Stew
Italian Tofu Grinder	Chicken Tenders

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Tracy Monahan
Copy Editor ..... Adam Goulston
Photo Technician ..... Nathan Martin
Production Supervisor ..... Mike Carvalho
Production ..... Lisa Jezowski
The Ghost of Collegians Past

The Far Side By Gary Larson

"Drive, George, drive! This one's got a coathanger!"

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19): Financial luck on a large scale is a real possibility; cultivate new business contacts. A brief romantic interlude leaves you wanting more from a partner.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20): Travel plans could change at the last minute. Public recognition is possible. A sudden personal decision may work out better than anticipated.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): Have faith in your ideas and special talents. Your dreams are particularly significant now. Put your writing skills to work. Read the fine print before affixing your signature to a contract.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): This month, your greatest satisfaction will come through your work. If planning a trip, consider going by water.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22): Keeping the cost of doing business down may be more difficult than ever. You can only try. Community service is a rewarding way for retirees to make new friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): Many of the projects you have in mind should be kept secret for now. Wise associates make the best advisers today. Step out of your shell and hold the disadvantaged. New friendships will develop.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): Anyone who asks you to lend money or back a risky venture should be refused. Why take needless chances? Fame can be transitory.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): Only the soundest financial practices are valid during these times. Ignore any claims to the contrary. Your eagle eyes help you spot bargains while shopping.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): You can open new doors now. Push harder for an overdue promotion. A special creative project could win you a helpful admirer. Postpone signing agreements until tomorrow.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): You can even your own home and should be looking into it. Keep your ambition in perspective; walking over people will backfire.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18): A suggestion that improves job efficiency could bring you a promotion or preferential treatment from the boss. Get rid of some emotional baggage.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): A lot can be accomplished this month. Discuss joint financial interests or shared belongings behind closed doors. Business and pleasure will mix satisfactorily later today.

Quote of the Day

"He that lies down with dogs shall rise up with fleas."

—Latin Proverb

Classifieds

- 20¢ per word per day for students
- All ads must be paid in cash 2 days in advance
- Ads may be placed at 113 Campus Center, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

$150 REWARD

For more information leading to the return of personal property stolen from 675 Main St Amherst:
1 onkyo cd player ss# 2903000818
1 onkyo tape deck ss #6008012920
1 audio equalizer
2 arm wooden cranes holding aprox 30 cds each
1 giant efx 780 mm bike ss# g0125860
call Det Ron Young Amherst police 256-4011 or Chris' 256-6877 or Mrs. C 1-442-9382 / no questions asked

ACTIVITIES

All university women invited to rush Sigma Delta Tau
Mon 5/9 open house 6:30 & 8:30
Tue 5/10 study break 8:10
Wed 5/11 BBQ 5-7
Questions call Kristen 549-7875

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bed and Breakfast, downtown Amherst ideal for visiting parents and friends 549-0733

Chi Omega open house 5-9:94, 7-9pm Please call Lauren at 549-5789 for more information

UMass Credit Union has car, personal and computer loans Rates as low as 7.95% 314 Student Union Building 545-2800

AUTO FOR SALE

82 Zephyr for sale, good for town 250 obo Call 587-0477

88 Toyota Celica 5 speed, 3 door, air, #'s500, 256-3472

88 Ford Escort AC radio 72K miles very good condition $1700 546-7210

87 Pont 6000 sta moving to NY must sell great condition $1100 253-9682

Dodge Aries 1982 wagon 106k AC,AT,all over maintained $1000 call Toby 549-4643

Renault Alliance 1985, I'm moving, so must sell! BO 665-7174

VW Scirocco 1986 102K 5 sp, AC, pm, cass Syntech every 2K Clean, sharp, sporty $2200 call Travis 367-2105

CAPE COD RENTAL

West Yarmouth 6 room 4 bedrooms sleeps 8 nies everything 253-7436 508-775-4776 $6,000

CONDO FOR SALE

N. Amherst 2 br Townehouse Renovated Custom woodwork AC Washer hook up and more Must sell Reduced to $4,000 253-3700

FOR RENT

1 bedroom in a large house with inground pool $700 available immediately 256-0475

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom apt Pufftton vlg fully furnished 200/ mo w/ fall option call George 549-9186

1 bedroom apt Colonial Village 400/month start June 1 Frank/ Janet 256-8523

1 bedroom avail May1 farmhouse in Hadley e.c. bus $225 / mo 585-8943

1 bdrm Puffton avoid wake list sign over lease Johni Tea 549-7483

2 apts, 3 br and 1 br in Farmhouse, bike to UMass, yard, deck, near golf Puffers Pond, $450+ 586-0746

2 bedroom Puffton apartment 549-4442 available June 1

2 bdrm apt Colonial Village fall option 450 pm avail June 1 Call 253-2585.

2 bedroom apt, summer w/ fall option. Convenient location on bus route. 3 miles from campus 1 from town Hardwood floor, low rent 242/ month/ person call 253-9979

2 bedroom Brandywine apt 635/ mo inc heat available June 1 549-6503

2 bdrm pufftonTake over our lease starting June 1 with option for fall renewal call Ted at 549-7648

2 bedroom Pufftton take over our lease in June new carpet! Two bathrooms on bus route call 549-6315

2 bedroom apartment at Brandywine. 3rd floor, poridside $770/ month including heat! Available June 1st! Call 549-5482 Tracey or Beth

3 bd w/ basket basement 1 1/2 bath 1/2 mile to campus On bus routes Call 549-8819

3 big bedrooms 1.5 bath townehouse sliding glass door to patio available May 25 for summer with fall option dishwasher, hot water included 549-4707

3 or 4 bedroom house for rent near bus big wind new appliances inexpensive rent & utilities 253-3165

4 bed house Northampton Near stores bet private $826 plus Sept No pets Skibski Realtors 584-3428

4 bedroom 2 bath great location 1/2 mile to town on bus route Avail June 1 253-2073

4br large, bright, walk to UMass, center bus Laundry, $1000 mth heat + hw incl 586-0746

4 or 5 br house off Main St Ids 7 comfortably call 253-5667

5 bedroom 2 bath hube basement bus route Amherst 256-3138

6 bedroom, 2 bath large house Main Street June 1st! 253-2847

25" stereo remote TV & speakers front rear subwoofer like new cheap moving & free Nintendo included 549-8819

Amherst center room, bus walk laundry, clean, quiet, sunny, cheap 549-0484

Blue room for rent $195 + utilities North Hadley Includes kcal a mamposha, and a gourmet cook Call Juan 586-4762

Center of town 1,2 & 3 bedroom apts. For 6/1 or 9/1 Now being shown Call for appointment Lincoln Real Estate 253-7879

Free laundry extra 3 lg bedrooms avail 6/1 549-6984 Glenwood Dr

Gilreath Manor Hobart Lane 3-5 bedrooms available June first call 549-4768

Huge double in the two bedroom apt great location on bus route 549-0377

Large 2 bdrm apt Near Hobart Ln starts 6/1 $630/ month 549-9456

Large 4 broom 2 bath apartment for rent starting June 1 everything included even air conditioned On bus route close to bar convenient store everything Must see to believe size Call 253-0551 ASAP or you'll miss it

Location Location Fearing St 4 bedrooms summer sublet, fall option Porch & yard $1140 549-6618

Mt Valley 3 br 2 bath AC furnished 6/ 1 with fall option 256-4690

Sign early 3 bedroom in Pufftton 549-8707

South Amherst four bedrooms two baths big basement wood stove huge yard community pool hoop on bus route starting June 1 253-3071

Summer sublet w/ option for next year graduating seniors vacating very spacious 2 floor 3 bedroom townehouse apartment. $824/ month 549-9232

Sunny room close to campus own entrance on back terrace 400 per month We'll pay you 100 to take over lease 549-6736

Take over our lease 2/br Brandywine APt inc/ hw Great location Call soon! 549-3937

Take over our lease 6/1 Brandywine 3rd floor! #549-4546

Take over our lease June 1! 3 br apt in Main St house 1/2 mile from town Call 256-0149 Alex Liz or Vicky

Townehouse 3 bedroom, 1 1/2 baths gorgeous endunit quiet neighbors on bus route, huge living room , air conditioning, dishwasher, pets OK begins 6/1 with option 549-0839

FOR SALE

25" stereo remote tv & speakers front rear subwoofer like new cheap moving & free nintendo included 549-8819

1992 unisex miyata hybrid sac $150 includes book rack, pad, $480 great commuter call Audrey 256-1521

Fender bassman amp 175 W All new sovtek tubes 2-12 inch spkr cab $400 253-2183

Gibson LesPaul studio guitar $475 546-6960

Good furniture cheap call 549-4580

Graduating all bedroom furniture cheap! double bed, dresser IBM compatible computer, desk Marlene 256-4542

Mt. bike Spec Rockhopper 18", green, XT- top mount shifters, barends, toeclips vient cond $450 253-5987

One bedroom set 2 twin size mattress and box spring ether furniture Must sell by 5-19-94 all mint cond 549-8240

Queen sized futon stereo dresser table Call Leigh 256-0738

Small microwave Ideal for any dorm room! $50 or BO 546-5700

Two one way tickets to Kansas City June 15 $140 each or 2/ $250 (413) 569-5040 or (413) 737-1797 (evenings/weekend)

Welsh batteries and piercing hoop earrings Starting at $2.00 diamond studs, rosers Grad graduation gifts from glass to gold Silverscape designs 264 N Pleasant Street 253-3324 open 7 days

FOUND

Found keys at Morrill main entrance May 5th at 12:00pm please respond to the Collegian 545-3500 ask for Marty

HELP WANTED

Activist- summer jobs for the environment 60% of the waterways in MA aren't safe for fishing or swimming Work with MassPIRG, the state's leading environmental group, to protect our rivers, learn campaign skills, and make a difference! $2500-$3500/ summer Call Jodi at 256-6434

Alaska summer employment
Earn up to 8000+ in two months Room + board! Transportation! Male/female No experience necessary! (206) 545-4155 ext. A5001

Camp Athletic Director Coed camp in adirondack Mts. Must have teaching and or athletic director backround 1-800-ITS-FUN (487-3866)

Childcare wanted for 2 boys, 8 and 4 years old Responsible person with car needed for occasional weekdays late June to mid August! Experience needed Karen 256-1834

Counselors Camp Emerson, coed Massachusetts Swimming, tennis, land/ water sports, arts/crafts, theatre, woodworking, rocketry, archery, computer, yearbook, photography, video, radio, more! Super kids, great food, friendly fun! No general counselors 800-955-CAMP

Earn $110/ day this summer Experienced truck drivers wanted for part time summer work! Approximately ten days in both June and August Truck driving experience a must Call (508) 653-1744 or (508) 653-7427

Flight pollution staying in the Valley or moving to Boston? Earn up to $4000 this summer working with Clean Water Action join our pollster pay and election campaigns staff Great folks, big fun, great pay Call 584-9620

P/T female personal care attendant for retired professor Under ten hours/ week Flexible schedule Spanish helpful Experience preferred but will train Call Donna after 4pm 253-0577

Recent college grads needed as marketing representatives for six week national promotion beginning in mid August Must be innovative, outgoing and willing to travel Excellent salary plus bonuses Mail/fax resume to Collegiate Advantage, attn: Jessica Ranchow, 137 Newbury St., Boston, MA 02116/ (617) 236-4713

Sitter Rutland MA person to care for 3 children ages boy 10 girl 6 girl 6 must be capable of cooking, passes drivers license 5 days per week at children's home possible live in arangements non smoker hours + wage to be discussed emailoyment through the summer Kids are very active examples baseball/rollerblades soccer horseback riding gymnastics sitter to participate 508-886-6207

Subjects needed$ for muscle soreness study Openings beginning May 16 and throughout the summer Non- weight trained males and females 18-35 4-5 hrs over 9-10 days $$ compensation Contact Sue or Steve 545-6072

Summer jobs Painting locally with primarily commercial/ must be hardworking experience desirable $6-8/hr to start raises to $8-$10/ hr Hiaty 253-9434

Summer jobs Telefund q hmngt $5 50/ hr Plus bonuses, flexible schedule, great experience! Call 545-3509 or stop by the basement of Memorial Hall

Summer work Local branches of international marketing firm have several summer openings ideal for students Earn $8-$15 to start management opportunities. Build resume Positions available throughout Mass, Conn, NY Amherst area call 549-5333 Graeler Spitz carl 733-0057

Superior baseball and basketball coaches wanted for coed summer camp in western Mass Must have 2+ years of coaching experience with children to apply Dates 6/18- 8/20 Call Camp Emerson at 1-800-955-CAMP today!

LAWN CARE SPECIAL

Complete lawn maintenance lawn seeding new + old liming, fertilizing weekly mowing property clearing rototilling grant spring special Free estimates call Dave 467-9168 please leave message

LIVE IN THE CHURCH

Beautiful, peaceful, gorgeous summer sublet w/ fall option Lovely renovated church 10 min to campus One double $400, one single $250, must be seen to be believed 253-7357

LOST

Cash reward for the return of an umbrella stolen from the school of management several months ago This is a very unique umbrella given as a 21st birthday present The handle is white and the top has cats and dogs on it A female at the school of management was spotted recently with it and if seen again we can identify her It was stolen from another student using the telephones at the school of management This person just walked by and snatched it from the student on the telephone please call 413-549-8180 or 508-544-2749

LOST Small female grey/white/ orange tabby 8 mo old Squire Village 4/3 $100 reward 665-0518

Lost student daily planner and blue fabric pencil bag in GRT 14th floor Reward 253-8175

Reward lost fly fishing rod +reel 253-9790

MUSICIANS

Band seeks male vocalist 4 all styles: 546-6317 Pete

NEED A JOB?

Drivers wanted to deliver the Collegian for the fall semester Must be available until 11 ooam Apply at the Collegian office in the basement of the Campus Center or call for Jim at 5-3500

PERSONALS

Andi, Wen Karen Johanna Sylvia Thanks for a great year Love Laura

Andrew- you are the only one for me! Three months together and the future ahead! love you SP! Love Gail (pss) meow

!!!

Sports

Classic split for softball

By TED KOTTLER
Collegian Staff

STORRS, Conn. — The Bulls weren't so bullish, but the Huskies played like dogs of war.

Sophomore catcher Michele Shaw spanked a three-run homer during the University of Massachusetts softball team's eight-run, fourth-inning explosion against South Florida, Saturday in the fourth annual Diamond Classic, a game the Minutewomen won by the mercy rule in five innings, 9-0.

In UMass' second game Saturday, one of shortstop Jodi Sorenson's three errors aided the University of Connecticut's cause in its 4-3 win over Coach Elaine Sortino's club, which now stands at 28-17.

UMass was to face No. 23 Florida State yesterday in its final game of the round-robin tournament, but rain rendered the field unplayable.

Kelly Daut earned the decision in each contest, holding the Bulls to two hits in the opener and allowing only two earned runs to the Huskies in the nightcap while fanning eight, one shy of her season best.

UMass got the only run it would need in the second inning of the morning tilt. Tracey DuEst roped a one-out single up the middle, and when Heather Dorsey attempted to bunt her over, USF catcher Melissa Sigmon threw it away, putting DuEst on third and Dorsey at first. The swift Dorsey then stole second, and Sigmon's throw sailed into right field, allowing DuEst to trot home on the backstop's second error in a row.

DuEst, the first of 14 UMass batters in the decisive fourth, sent a double to left. Dorsey again tried the sacrifice, but DuEst failed to advance. Stephanie Mareina's single off Bulls' starter Kelly Aguilar put runners on the corners, and Sam Cardenas followed with a base hit to right that plated DuEst. Up next was Michelle Methot, who doubled to left, scoring Mareina for a 3-0 UMass advantage. Chris Martens was intentionally passed, loading the bases for Rachel Lawson, who made it hurt with a two-run single to center.

In the next at bat, Shaw lost Aguilar's 2-2 offering in the parking lot beyond the left field fence for her second home run of the year that made it 8-0.

"I didn't think it was going over," Shaw said of her prodigious blast. "But if there's people in scoring position, I want to be the one to get them in."

Sorenson then reached on an error by USF rightfielder Cristy Blankenship. DuEst hit her second double of the inning, this time to right, and Dorsey plated Sorenson with a right field base hit, upping the margin to 9-0.

Meanwhile, Daut flirted with her third no-hitter of 1994, but with one out in the fourth Diane Anderson bounced one past an outstretched Sorenson. Nonetheless, the Bulls never threatened the junior ace, who cruised to her 16th victory against seven losses.

In game two, Sorenson muffed UConn first baseman Donna Fagan's third inning leadoff grounder. Daut grazed the next batter, Andrea D'Innocenzo, then whiffed Ericka Nole. But Karin Muller touched Daut for a single to right, and Dorsey's rustiness grew evident. (Dorsey started in place of regular Amy Powell, who didn't attend the Classic.) She flailed an errant throw home that was well up the line, and Shaw could not handle it, so Fagan and D'Innocenzo crossed the plate with two unearned runs.

Lethargic defense cost UMass two more runs in the next frame. With runners on second and third and one out, Fagan dribbled one toward the normally reliable DuEst, who hesitated to throw home and in turn couldn't catch Tabitha Lyons, who scored to make it 3-0. D'Innocenzo then brought in Shari Blackman with a single up the middle. Earlier in the inning, Blackman's grounder to third should have forced Lyons at second, but Cardenas had trouble getting it out of her glove and everyone was safe.

Between UMass' two contests, FSU defeated UConn, 4-1, and Huskies' starter Kara Chanasyk wasn't helped by her defense, which made four errors. But no teammate could spoil the sophomore's second outing of the day, as she breezed through the first five innings against UMass, allowing only four hits.

In the top of the sixth, UMass mounted a spirited comeback. Cardenas and Methot lashed back-to-back doubles, ending Chanasyk's shutout bid. The bases were later loaded for Shaw, who came through again with another double to right that cut the margin to 4-3.

Chanasyk then needed help from reliever Jen Wardwell to secure her first win over the Minutewomen this season. UMass beat UConn's No. 1 sophomore hurler 2-0 at Totman Field on April 21. Wardwell struck out her first opposing hitter, Sorenson, but walked DuEst, who represented the go- ahead run. Dorsey, however, forced DuEst to end the rally in the final frame. Wardwell earned the save by retiring the side in order.

AKAM COMBAN / COLLEGIAN

Senior co-captain Tracey DuEst and the Minutewoman softball team split their two games in the Diamond Classic, beating up on South Florida before falling to host UConn.

On-field action doesn't disappoint

STORRS, Conn. — Albeit cut short one day due to phantom sloppy field conditions, this weekend's Diamond Classic did not disappoint.

The tourney, featuring Southeast powers Florida State and University of South Florida and Northeast mainstays with the Lady Huskies. Although a 4-3 loser to Connecticut thanks in part to four errors that produced two unearned runs, Daut did whiff eight Lady Huskies and allowed a grand total of six hits in 11 innings on Saturday.

Sean P. Hayden

Fatigue? What fatigue? Just give me the ball, Coach.

Softball is more strategic than that other sport. There are not a lot of upper-deck blasts to clear the bases. In four games this weekend, there were two.

Having to scratch and claw for every run calls for a more scientific (for lack of a better word) approach. You have to move over runners and hit to the opposite field.

There's a lot of bunting in softball. A lot of bunting. You know what though, sometimes there's nothing prettier than watching a player like Stephanie Mareina lay one down in no man's land and beating it out when everyone, including the Coke vendor next to me, knows it's coming.

Every single regular player on the Minutewomen squad has sacrificed an at-bat to move the runner into scoring position at one time this year — and their team batting average is .271, led by Chris Martens' .427 average and two sacrifices.

Softball has more team togetherness than that other sport. All you hear from the dugout in that other sport are things like, "Need you here, bud," and "What do you say, kid?" Personally, I don't say anything, but in soitball everybody's on the same page — in the field and in the dugout.

Turn to SOFTBALL, page 3

Minutemen are champs

Sweep gives baseball first-ever Atlantic 10 crown

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

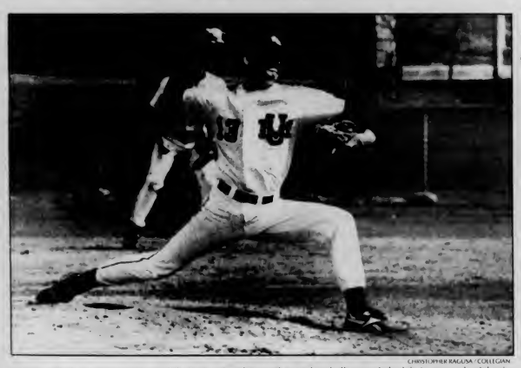
For the first time in its history, the University of Massachusetts baseball team won the Atlantic 10 regular-season championship, sweeping a three-game series with conference foe St. Bonaventure in Olean, N.Y., this past weekend.

The Minutemen (28-15, 19-4 A-10) received strong pitching performances on Saturday from their one-two punch of ace Peter Ferrari and junior Jay Murphy, setting up the title-cinching victory, 18-5, on Sunday in which the Massachusetts offense put the game out of reach.

In the series finale, senior co-captain Justin Howard became the school's all-time leader in hits (189), eclipsing the mark of 188 by former Minuteman Matt Sheran; Howard had five hits over the weekend.

Massachusetts will carry the number one seed into next weekend's A-10 tournament in Boyertown, Penn., with the victor receiving an automatic bid to the NCAAs.

The doubleheader sweep (11-0, 4-0) marked the first double shutout for the Minutemen since 1992, when Massachusetts beat Pace 5-0, 5-0; it is also the first time since 1983 that the Minutemen had a double shutout against an A-10 opponent, the last coming in April 1983 versus Rhode Island.



Ferrari (6-2), who lost his last time out against the No. 1 team in New England, Northeastern, pitched a complete game, giving up only six hits in seven innings, while walking one and striking out three. The senior hurler had plenty of support as Massachusetts banged out 15 hits off the Bonnies' pitching staff, including three a piece for leftfielder Ryan Jette and third baseman Brad Gorrie. Catcher Andy Pelis blasted his fourth home run of the season.

Murphy (5-3), who saw action against Northeastern in relief of Ferrari last Tuesday in the defeat, was superb in the nightcap, limiting the Bonnies to four hits in the complete game while striking out two. The offense was led by Jeff January, Greg LaRocca and Howard who each had two hits for the Minutemen.

LaRocca led the way at the plate for Massachusetts yesterday, pounding out two home runs and driving in seven runs. Pelis stroked his second HR of the weekend, January hit his eighth of the season, and freshman centerfielder Nate Murphy hit the second HR of his career.

Freshman Chad Sullivan picked up the win for the Minutemen, going seven innings, allowing seven hits and striking out two. One of the five runs charged to Sullivan was earned. Chad Paronto finished the contest with two innings of one-hit, scoreless relief.

Massachusetts hits the road for a contest against the University of New Hampshire in Durham, N.H., on Tuesday before returning home to Earl Lorden Field for its final game of the regular season against New England rival Harvard at 3 p.m. on Wednesday.

CHRISTOPHER RAGUSA / COLLEGIAN

Junior right hander Jay Murphy and the University of Massachusetts baseball team pitched their way to the Atlantic 10 regular season championship with a three-game sweep over St. Bonaventure.

Seniors go out in style in victory over Army

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

Twelve seconds into overtime, senior Wes Depp finished his collegiate lacrosse career with a flourish, scoring the game winning goal as the University of Massachusetts defeated Army 15-14 on its Senior Day finale Saturday.

UMass held a two goal lead with less than five minutes remaining, but Army, as it had all game, clawed its way back. After Brian Knapp cut the Gorilla lead to one, Dan Brostek beat UMass goalie Tom LoPresti to send the game to overtime.

In the extra period, three senior Gorillas took over. Sam Joseph, who has made a career of being a face-off wizard, won the draw to Chris Nentwich, who sprinted ahead, and found Depp, who snapped the shot past Army goalie Rick Aguilar to give UMass the victory.

"What a way to go out," said Depp. "It's a great way to end my career. I couldn't picture it any better than that."

"That's where I wanted to be," said Joseph, whose faceoff started it all. "I loved it, taking the last faceoff, last game, three seniors touched it. It was awesome."

UMass Coach Ted Garber said he was pleased with his team's performance.

"The kids really wanted to win it for the seniors. If you had to write a script for the alumni day, it makes it pretty nice," said Garber. "It was perfect the way things worked out."

The win was extra sweet for UMass, avenging a defeat that the Gorillas suffered at the hands of the Cadets a year ago.

"We felt like we owed them one so bad," said Depp.

The game was up and down throughout. The Gorillas would jump ahead, opening up three-goal leads on four occasions, but the Army kept bounding back. Sophomore Dan Brosteck had four goals for the Cadets, while Brian Knapp and Rob Manning had three each.

The seniors made the most of their final game.

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Freshman Brendan Glass and the rest of the Gorillas sent the seniors off in style with an overtime victory over Army last Saturday afternoon at Richard F. Garber Field.

Nentwich, Ken Randazzo, Matt Noone, Jim Byrns and Adam Kohart played strong defensively, forcing Army into some key turnovers. Joseph was strong on the face-offs. Greg Kline played a strong all-around game notching a goal and two assists.

Army smothered Depp for the entire first half, but in the second half, he stepped up and broke free to notch three goals, including the winner to close out his career.

Junior attacker Jeremy Murphy turned in one of his best performances of the season, registering his third four-goal game, yet he was more excited for his graduating teammates.

"I wanted to come out and play hard for the seniors today. They deserved it," said Murphy. "I'm going to miss these guys."

Lost in the hoopla of senior day was a five-assist performance of junior Mike Valente. The five points gave Valente 100 for his career, joining Depp as the two current Gorillas in the "Century Club."

When the game was over and the celebration of the exciting victory had moved to the locker room and the parking lot, one player remained on the field. Still, wearing his uniform, with tears in his eyes, Nentwich sat on the bench reflecting on his final game and his career.

"It's just sad coming to end," said Nentwich. "This is my life. I've been playing 16 years and all of a sudden it's coming to an end. I'm going to miss my teammates, coaches and everything in this University. It's been one hell of a ride, and I don't regret anything."

Yanks sweep Red Sox, inch closer to first place

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Stanley was concerned about his lack of offense.

"I was struggling, I was scuffling," Stanley said after homering twice as the New York Yankees beat Boston 8-4 Sunday and sent the Red Sox to their first three-game losing streak of the season.

"It's nice to hit the ball well," said Stanley, who hadn't homered since April 12, a span of 68 at-bats.

Stanley's first homer came in the middle of three successive homers by the Yankees, the first time they've done it in 10 years. Danny Tartabull led off the sixth with a drive into the center-field bleachers.

"I was glad to get things started," said Tartabull, whose sixth homer was the 10th ball hit into the center-field bleachers since Yankee Stadium reopened in 1976.

Stanley followed Tartabull's drive with his third of the season, knocking out Paul Quantrill (1-1), the second of five Red Sox pitchers. Gerald Williams greeted Greg Harris with an opposite-field drive to right for his first of the season, giving the Yankees a 6-3 lead.

"I don't know if it was the air or what it was. There wasn't a full moon, was there?" asked Boston starter Joe Hesketh, who allowed three runs and five hits in 2 1-3 innings.

"The ball was carrying good. It was cool but there must have been some humidity because the ball was jumping," said Don Mattingly, who had two hits and one RBI.

Mo Vaughn homered twice for the Red Sox, giving him three in two days.

"It's nice to have a day like that but I like to come out on top so it's a little bit sour," Vaughn said.

He hit a solo homer in the second inning for Boston's first run and opened the seventh with a 440-foot drive into the third deck in right.

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
Tuesday
May 10, 1994
Volume CIII Issue 123
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Weather
Partly cloudy, high in mid-60s

World

Tutsi barrage hits Rwanda

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A rebel offensive for control of Rwanda's capital gained more ground Monday behind a punishing barrage of rockets, heavy artillery and mortar fire.

A U.N. official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said it appeared Kigali could be on the verge of falling to the insurgents after a month of bloodshed in Rwanda between majority Hutus and minority Tutsis.

Heavy artillery fired by the mainly Tutsi rebels blasted troops of the Hutu-led government near the airport and on the eastern edge of the city, U.N. officials reported. Intense small arms fire indicated the rebels followed the barrages with infantry assaults. One mortar round exploded inside Kanombe camp, causing an undermined number of casualties at the base for three battalions of government troops. Because of the short range of mortars, U.N. officials said the blast indicated rebel troops had moved closer than expected to the camp near the airport.

Palestinian police disorganized

RAFAH, Gaza Strip (AP) — After another frustrating day of delays in starting Palestinian self-rule, Israel and PLO commanders agreed Monday night on a plan for bringing the first Arab police contingent into the Gaza Strip.

Thousands of Palestinians waving PLO flags and cheering had massed near the Rafah border crossing in anticipation of the arrival of 150 officers.

When they did not appear, frustrations over the confused transfer of power boiled over into rock throwing and Israeli soldiers fired back with rubber bullets.

In announcing the agreement later, Israeli Brig. Gen. Yom Tov Samia stressed that he expected the process of getting the Palestinians in and Israelis withdrawn from Gaza and the West Bank town of Jericho to go quickly once it started.

State/Regional

Gun bill battles domestic abuse

BOSTON (AP) — A bill allowing guns to be taken away from people who beat their spouses was rushed through the Senate on Monday, three days after a woman was gunned down on a Revere street. Her husband is the prime suspect.

The bill, which already had been approved by the House, would kick in as soon as a restraining order was issued against a domestic abuser.

Sen. James Jajuga, D-Methuen, chairman of the Senate Public Safety Committee, said the bill, along with a proposed change in bail laws to allow judges to consider dangerousness in deciding whether to release a suspect, could save lives.

MIT jokesters strike again

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — They've put a fiberglass cow up there, and a working telephone booth. Even built a small house.

So no one was shocked Monday when Massachusetts Institute of Technology students somehow managed to put what appeared to be a campus police car atop the 150-foot high dome on the university's main building.

After all, MIT kids will be MIT kids.

"They never cause anyone any trouble, but they are mischievous," said Ronald I. Mendes, a physical plant supervisor. The car appeared about 4 a.m. on the roof of the Richard C. Maclaurin Building. It was actually the shell of a car, attached to a wooden frame and painted to look like a cruiser, said MIT Police Chief Anne Glavin.

There was a flashing red light on top and a parking ticket on the windshield. Inside was a stuffed upper torso of a body — and a box of donuts.

The culprits haven't been caught, but all fingers point to "The Hackers," an informal and mysterious campus group whose name pre-dates the emergence of computer hacking.

Mandela welcomes post as S. African president

By JOHN DANISZEWSKI
Associated Press

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nelson Mandella

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — A new parliament as multi-colored as the nation chose Nelson Mandela as the first black president of South Africa on Monday. To delirious cheers, he accepted his people's salute from the same balcony where he spoke after emerging from prison four years ago.

Grown men cried and white police officers clapped as the 75-year-old who has promised a South Africa for "all its people black and white" stepped forth to receive the adulation of 50,000 people spread out on Cape Town's grand parade.

"The people of South Africa have spoken in these elections. They want change! And change is what they will get," Mandela said. "Our plan is to create jobs, promote peace and reconciliation, and to guarantee freedom for all South Africans."

"We place our vision of a new constitutional order for South Africa on the table, not as conquerors, prescribing to the conquered," he said.

"South Africa, we love you, our beautiful land," sang the crowd to the beat of the "Peace Song," a pop tune that has become the anthem of the country's transition from apartheid to democracy. A sea of arms swayed back and forth to the music as the new multi-hued South African flag — red, blue, black, green, gold and white — fluttered in the fresh sea breeze of a picture-perfect autumn day in the Southern Hemisphere.

In a show of reconciliation, Mandela and his main black rival, Zulu nationalist leader Mangosuthu Buthelezi, hugged and shook hands.

But all was not picture-perfect when Mandela and his estranged wife, Winnie, took the parliamentary oath together with eight others as new members of the National Assembly. Mandela never looked at her.

The snub showed the extent of Mrs. Mandela's exclusion from the inner circle of African National Congress leaders, despite her popularity among militants. The couple had been married for 34 years when they separated in 1992 after Mrs. Mandela was convicted of kidnapping and linked to an extramarital affair.

She expressed hope recently of reuniting with her husband, an idea he rejected.

Mandela promises big changes

By JUAN JOSE CHACON QUIROS
Collegian Staff

What was only a dream a few years ago for the black population of South Africa is now a reality. Nelson Mandela has won the first multiracial elections and was inaugurated in Cape Town as the President of South Africa.

News Analysis

In his inauguration speech, Mandela stressed the importance of unity between the different ethnic groups.

"Today we celebrate not the victory of a party, but a victory for all the people of South Africa," Mandela said.

The victory of the African National Congress (ANC) in these elections paves the road for much needed reforms that will provide blacks with the same opportunities the white population has enjoyed for almost 300 years.

"The people of South Africa have spoken in these elections. They want change, and change is what they will get," Mandela said. Among these reforms, Mandela and his party are expected to embody these changes in a new constitution that will safeguard the rights blacks have been denied for years.

Turn to SOUTH AFRICA, page 3

Results of the South African Elections
As of May 4, (50% counted)

ANC	62.5%	7,417,914
NP	22.1%	2,618,025
IFP	8.3%	985,312
Freedom Front	2.7%	323,083
Democratic	1.7%	206,596
PAC	1.3%	154,280

Source: Institute for a New South Africa

Memo warns GEO policy lacks diversity

By JUSTIN DOYLE
Collegian Staff

The Graduate Employees Organization at the University of Massachusetts is asking the Graduate Student Senate why it is being prevented from doing its job.

GEO was allegedly locked out of its office in room 201 of the Campus Center on Monday. GEO received a memorandum from the officers of the GSS on May 9, as a notification that its phone system would be shut off regarding the review of its GSO status.

GEO feels that the real reason GSS has taken action against it is because of the Personnel Committee.

The Personnel Committee interviews and reviews the applications of graduate students applying for the position of Teaching Assistant, said Karen Adkins, co-speaker for GEO.

Adkins and Wendy Mataya, former speaker of GEO, feel that the removal of the key to the GEO offices is an attempt to force the Personnel Committee to take certain actions.

The President of GSS Shymala Ivatury and Treasurer Julia Johnson confronted the Chair of the Personnel Committee Jean Sherlock and Committee member Emily Issacs last week, accusing the Personnel Committee of having a racist member, said Adkins.

Turn to GEO, page 8

Brief eclipse to darken Amherst this afternoon

By JUAN JOSE CHACON QUIROS
Collegian Staff

If today the sky suddenly turns dark, do not be afraid, it is not the end of the world, it is an annular eclipse. This rare event will take place between 1:38 and 1:40 p.m. EST.

The eclipse will first be seen in El Paso, Texas around 8:44 a.m. MST, will then sweep across the Midwest and into New England to end in Portland, Maine at 3:24 p.m. EST. An annular eclipse takes place when the moon covers the sun's light, but still leaves a loop of light because of moon's distance from earth at that point isn't far enough to cover the sun entirely.

According to Thomas T. Arny, a professor of Physics and Astronomy at the University of Massachusetts, in Western Massachusetts the moon will cover around 88 percent of the sun's light in its peak at 1:38 p.m. Minutes later, in Central Vermont, over 90 percent of the face of the sun will be covered.

However, you shouldn't feel invited to appreciate this phenomenon with your naked eye. "Do not look directly at the sun or indirectly through a lens that you are not sure it's suitable," says Arny. He advises not to use sunglasses, photographic filters, smoked glass or even worse binoculars and telescopes. "It will burn your retina, you can acquire irreversible eye damage," Arny says.

If you do want to see the eclipse you should buy the proper equipment and avoid a painful experience. "You can go to Welder's supplies stores, the Science Store in

Turn to ECLIPSE, page 3

Scott seeks replacements

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

A search committee will soon begin looking for replacements for two of three administrative positions at the University of Massachusetts. One position has already been filled.

Chancellor David K. Scott announced at the April 27 Faculty Senate meeting that he will be working with the Committee on Committees and the senate's Rules Committee to find replacements for Provost Glen Gordon and Vice Chancellor Samuel Conti.

Scott officially announced Gordon, Conti and Vice Chancellor Daniel Melley's removal on April 27. Both Gordon and Conti will leave their positions on July 1.

Melley has already been replaced by Ronald Story, currently vice president for academic affairs and a former history professor at UMass-Amherst. Story will be paid $95,000.

Story is the husband of state Rep. Ellen Story, D-Amherst. He will begin working June 1.

The Committee on Committees will submit a list of four faculty members for every two advisory committees Scott establishes.

In addition, the chancellor will have four staff or faculty members involved in the search. He will also request the student government to submit names to each committee.

Sherri Barnicle, secretary of the faculty senate office, said the faculty senate has currently nominated faculty to be members of the search committee.

The list will be submitted to the chancellor at the senate meeting on Thursday. After looking at the list, Scott will then decide who will be serving on the committees. All candiates and nominees must be in by May 20.

Scott stressed that administrators must also be involved throughout the search process. He said they are needed to overlook University policies.

There have recently been rumors about candidates to replace both Gordon and Conti, but nothing has been official.

Scott was unavailable for any comments.

Lottery fund misuse ignites SGA bill battle

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

Yesterday, the leadership of the University of Massachusetts Student Government Association went to a public hearing before the state Governmental Relations Committee to push for money raised from the scratch ticket "Racing Action" to be used for college scholarships.

Al Larosa, researcher for the Committee, said originally a bill was passed that said the money from the ticket was supposed to go to support the race track industry. The idea was that after the racing industry was funded enough, the extra money would go towards higher education scholarships. Larosa said the scratch ticket is expected to raise $80 million this year.

But Rep. Ronald W. Gauch, R-Shrewsbury, has filed a bill to take all of the money made by the ticket and use it for city and local aid. He said the lottery was created originally to benefit cities.

"The lottery was set up 23 years ago to go towards city and local aid," Gauch said. "We have a library in the town of Bolyston that is going to close after 90 years of service, we are taking police officers off of the street. We are in a tough situation. All of the money should go to city and local aid."

Gauch said he thinks the only reason college scholarships were put in the bill originally was so it would pass.

"To be quite frank, I think the scholarship part of the bill was put

Turn to LOTTERY, page 3

Wideman awaiting graduation

Prized professor prepares commencement speech

By CATHERINE B. PULLEY
Collegian Staff

John Edgar Wideman, a professor of English at the University of Massachusetts since 1986 and the second African-American to receive a Rhodes Scholarship, says he feels, "quite intimidated" to be the main undergraduate commencement speaker for the UMass class of 1994.

The prize winning author of a dozen books, fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and former University of Pennsylvania varsity basketball player will be speaking on leadership on May 22 in the Warren P. McGuirk Alumni Stadium.

"I am very pleased to have someone from our campus [speak at commencement]," said Peter Eibow, a professor of English.

Wideman said he views the opportunity as a chance to, "speak directly to the students I work for. it is an honor."

"He is a national treasure. We will hear wisdom from an individual who is one of the foremost novelists of our time," said Ron Welburn, a professor of English. "He is candid, straightforward, and always telling the truth in what he says."

Wideman has won two PEN/Faulkner awards for fiction, the American Book Award for fiction, and the Lannan Literary Fellowship.

He also received the MacArthur Foundation Genius Grant, in June 1993. The five year, $350,000 grant given by the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation is to honor and encourage creative persons.

Wideman was born in Washington D.C. in 1941. He received his bachelor's degree in English from the

Turn to WIDEMAN, page 7

Spring Concert?

ABAM COMBAN / COLLEGIAN

Bagpiper Jim Martin performs by the campus pond yesterday.

Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Forum

Tuesday, May 10

Infosocial — The LBGA infosocial will be held from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the Campus Center.

Wednesday, May 11

Brown Bag Series — Lee Badgett, assistant professor of public affairs at the University of Maryland, will address "The Economics of Being Lesbian, Gay or Bisexual: Pride, Prejudice and Politics" from noon to 1:30 p.m. in Campus Center Room 917.

Bi Rap Group — The LBGA Bi Rap Group meets at 7:30 p.m. in the LBGA office, 413 Student Union.

Faculty seminar — Lee Badgett will discuss "Economic Evidence of Sexual Orientation Discrimination" at 4 p.m. in Campus Center Room 917.

Thursday, May 12

Caucus — The LBGA Political Caucus meets at 8 p.m. in the LBGA office, 413 Student Union.

Womyn's Union — The Lesbian Bisexual Womyn's Union meets at 8:30 p.m. in the LBGA office, 413 Student Union.

Friday, May 13

Grad group — The GLB Grad Group meets from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. in the Grad Lounge.

Saturday, May 14

Concert — Jewish lesbian folk singer Phranc will perform at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. Tickets are $6 UMass students, $9 others in advance, and $9 UMass students and $12 others at the door. Tickets are available at the Fine Arts Center Box Office.

Monday, May 23

Reading — Sarah Schulman will read from her book, My American History: Lesbian and Gay Life During the Reagan/Bush Years, at 7:30 p.m. in the Campus Center.

Wednesday, May 25

Meeting — The first meeting on Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Labor Concerns in Western Massachusetts will be held at 7 p.m. at SEIU Local 285 Office, 27 Locust in Northampton.

Clinton pleads for fair judgement

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press

CRANSTON, R.I. — President Clinton pleaded with Americans Monday night to judge him by achievements, not by accusations, saying, "I've been subject to more assault than any previous president based on the evidence."

"As the vice president said a few days ago, there are powerful forces in this country who basically resent the way the last election came out so they keep trying to undo it, pretend it didn't happen," Clinton said at a town hall meeting broadcast in three New England states.

"Well, we'll have an election in 1996. And I wish that we could just all settle down and be Americans for awhile and work on our problems and then evaluate me based on the job I do."

Clinton's remarks echoed complaints by Hillary Rodham Clinton that she and her husband are being held to a higher standard than any previous first couple.

"I personally do not believe that this level of paranoiac, conspiracy-driven investigation is appropriate — of anybody in public life, not just me," the first lady said in an interview in the June issue of Vanity Fair.

She said the standard to which the first family is held is "just absurd."

Clinton had been bedeviled by questions about his character and leadership. Last week, he was sued by a former Arkansas state worker who accused him of making an unwanted sexual advance in 1991 while he was governor.

During the hour-long broadcast, Clinton also was pressed on questions about health care, crime, the economy and racial balance in schools. The questions were generally friendly, although one woman, citing Arkansas' low ratings in health care, asked, "Are you going to do for us what you did for Arkansas."

Clinton defended his record as governor on health care and said that Arkansas had serious troubles when he took office and but then made improvements. "You should judge people based on where they started."

To a questioner who asked if he was being held to a higher standard than other presidents, Clinton said, "I think I've been subject to more assault than any previous president based on the evidence."

Imploring Americans to judge him by achievements rather than allegations, Clinton said, "People will have a chance to make another decision. The constant politics of diversion and division and destruction is not good for America. But I'm prepared to live with it and keep working.

"So far it has not interfered with the progress and the record of the Congress and the work we're trying to do for the country. And as long I can keep it from interfering with it, I can live with it if you can."

- Low Rates
- Rent It Here-Leave It Here
- 24 Hr. Emergency Road Service
- Easy to Drive Trucks
- Packing Materials Available
- Air-Conditioned Trucks Featured
- Many Trucks with Auto. Trans., and Loading Ramps
- Unlimited Mileage on One-Way Rentals

Hertz PENSKE Truck Rental

AMHERST 256-8224 NORTHAMPTON 586-8391
HADLEY 586-4322 CHICOPEE 594-5186
RESERVATIONS 1-800-222-0277

COLLEGE STUDENTS

10% OFF LOCAL TRUCK RENTAL — College ID Required • With this coupon NOT VALID WITH ANY OTHER OFFER One per truck rental • Subject to availability

$50 OFF ONE-WAY TRUCK RENTAL — College ID Required • With this coupon NOT VALID WITH ANY OTHER OFFER One per truck rental • Subject to availability

10% OFF MOVING SUPPLIES (Boxes, Tape, Rope, Etc.) — College ID Required • With this coupon NOT VALID WITH ANY OTHER OFFER One per truck rental • Subject to availability

Hertz PENSKE Truck Rental

THE INFORMATION SUPERHIGHWAY: YOUR ROAD TO SUCCESS.

If you are interested in a career in one of today's fastest growing industries, join one of the industry's fastest growing companies.

Our success at reselling the AT&T long distance network has allowed us to create opportunities to join our team. Promotions and our new facility mean the start of a lucrative career for you. We offer performance based advancement, full benefits and an exciting work environment.

SALES REPRESENTATIVES

Telecommunications experience helpful but not required.
We are looking for people with:

- A Desire to Succeed
- The Ability to Meet and Exceed Tough Goals
- A Strong Work Ethic
- Personal Confidence

We have offices located in:
Easthampton, MA Quincy, MA
Norwalk, CT Philadelphia, PA

With all these skills and our extensive in-house training, you will have all the tools to make $35-50K, commission plus base, in your first year. In addition, our residual commission structure will ensure that your earnings will continue to grow. We offer a competitive benefits package, including dental, health, and paid vacations. Please send resumes to: Greg Giambalvo, Network Plus, 45 Ferry Street, Easthampton, MA 01027. Equal Opportunity Employer.

NETWORK PLUS

RESIDENCE HALL CONTRACT SIGNING INFORMATION

IMPORTANT, Please Read Very Carefully

The University requires all students living in the residence halls for the Fall 1994 semester to sign a 1994-1995 Residence Hall Contract Card. Any student wishing to live in the residence halls for next fall should be aware of the following:

- Residence Hall Contracts and Contract Cards were mailed to you in your residence hall on or about April 20, 1994
- Contract Cards must be completed, signed and returned to the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore, by no later than Friday, May 20, 1994.
- Assignments for students failing to return a signed Contract Card by May 20, 1994 will be subject to cancellation.
- Students returning Contract Cards in person will receive a "Contract Receipt". Students who return Contract Cards by U.S. Mail must use Certified Mail Return Receipt Requested. Returning a Contract Card by either of these methods will ensure a receipt for your records. It is for this reason that we strongly advise against using Campus mail.

If you still have questions about Contract signing procedures, call or stop by the Housing Assignment Office, 235 Whitmore(545-2100). Thank you, and have a great Summer!

lottery

continued from page 1

in as a little plum to get people vote for it," he said. "Because how can you vote against higher education?"

Director of the Student Center for Education Research and Advocacy Marc Kenen said he agreed that Massachusetts cities and towns are in need, but he said the need of students is just as great.

"There are a lot of competing needs in Massachusetts, and it's hard when higher education gets pitted against other needs like cities and towns," Kenen said. "There is tremendous unmet financial need on this campus so the state needs to find the money from somewhere."

Kenen said unmet need is calculated by subtracting the total cost of attending UMass for a year from the financial aid a student gets. He said there is $16 million of unmet need on the UMass campus and the average student has $1,500 of unmet need.

Larosa said the reason why the scratch ticket money is going to areas other than city and local aid is because the bill is not being administered the way it was passed. He said originally there was supposed to be a $1 sweepstakes ticket to be bought by race-track patrons. The money raised would pay for humane treatment of the greyhounds and it would also support the breeders and the industry in general. It was originally expected that the ticket would raise about $8 million.

But Larosa said the ticket is now sold for $2 and the ticket can be bought anywhere, not just at race tracks. He said the racing industry needed to get the money because they took a hard hit when the Massachusetts lottery was formed because it took away from the gambling dollar, which forced some of the race tracks to close.

eclipse

continued from page 1

Northampton and get the appropriate filter," said Arny.

The Astronomy Department has no events planned for the occasion but they recommended going to Vermont to better appreciate the eclipse. The Observatory in Amherst has also not planned any special viewing of the phenomenon.

The weather forecast is not so promising and can very well spoil the event. During the day, there will be some clouds and there's some possibility of a cloudy sky at the time the peak of the eclipse takes place.

The last time an annular eclipse took place in this region was in the mid 80's. In any case, if you miss today's eclipse you are going to have to wait until 1997 to see another one in North America.

South Africa

continued from page 1

However, Mandela's rise to power seems to be belittled by the problems he now has to face. "Lord save Our Nation, eliminate wars and tribulations," says the Sotho version of the South African national anthem, but Mandela needs more than prayers to heal the deep wounds left by racial conflict.

"It requires us all to work together to bring an end to division, an end to suspicion and build a nation united in our diversity," Mandela said yesterday. At a national level, the ANC seems to have a strong edge over other parties, but in certain regions Mandela's party will have a hard time trying to build that unity. In the Natal and Kwazulu region, the Inkatha Freedom Party won with 53 percent of the vote.

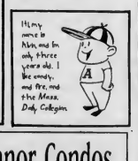
Another difficult task which can obscure the political achievements of the ANC is the need to provide economic opportunities for people who have won the right to vote. Mandela expressed his concern over this issue in his inauguration speech, stating "we will tackle the widespread poverty so pervasive among the majority of our people."

Mandela has unveiled the Reconstruction and Development Program that aims to transform South Africa's economy into an exporter of finished goods from being a net exporter of raw materials. It is not yet clear how this program will be implemented but the present economic situation speaks for itself.

The U.S. is committed to help with the reconstruction effort, but how far it goes in supporting economic reform is still unknown. The White House has reported that it will "assist South Africa throughout the difficult transition to non-racial democracy."

The three deans of Arts and Sciences and Nu Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa are pleased to announce new members elected from the Junior and Senior Classes. Phi Beta Kappa is the oldest and most prestigious American honor society in the Liberal Arts. It was founded at the College of William and Mary on December 5, 1776. Yale's chapter was formed in 1780, Harvard's in 1781. During the next century additional chapters of Phi Beta Kappa were added and in 1883 a national organization called the United Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa was created. At present, only 237 liberal arts colleges or universities have been accredited by the national organization and permitted to form chapters. In New England only six public institutions are so recognized.

Candidates do not apply for membership nor is application made on their behalf. They are nominated by the chapter's faculty members on the basis of their academic records as shown on their transcripts. Candidates must be majors in one of the three faculties of the College of Arts and Sciences and must satisfy certain grade point, foreign language and distribution requirements set by the national organization. Approximately 3% of Seniors with the strongest academic records are elected each year; one half of 1% of Juniors are selected.



PHI BETA KAPPA

Nu Chapter of Massachusetts
University of Massachusetts at Amherst

For information on Phi Beta Kappa and its chapter at the University of Massachusetts - Amherst, visit the Phi Beta Kappa display near the card catalog in the Tower Library

Class of 1995

Christine Bettre	PSYCH	Robert A. Creamer	HISTORY	Mark B. Kropoval	BIOCHEM	Karyn L. Baker	PSYCH
Sean D. Campbell	HISTORY	John G. Crivelli	POLI SCI	Angela L. Lackard	LEGAL STUDIES	Kristy L. Bein	HISTORY
Arup De	BIOLOGY	Michelle E. Crouse	ART HIST	Susan G. Leech	COMP. LIT	Meaghan L. Connors	ANTHRO
Julianne E. Eagan	ENGLISH	Kelly M. Daisley	ENGLISH	Jeremy P. Lewinson	STPEC	Mary Michelle Decosie	COMP. LIT
Jonathan M. Frantz	HISTORY	Patrick J. Defalco	POLI SCI	Kimberly J. Lewis	PSYCH	Donna M. Dovi	SOCIOLOGY
David M. Green	PSYCH	Joshua B. Delaney	PHILOSOPHY	Jodie Mangor	MICROBIO	Tina D. Forrister	PSYCH
Clay H. Holdsworth	PHYSICS/MATH	Jeannine M. Derusha	ENGLISH	David B. Massey	JOURNALISM	Joshua R. Gold	COMP. LIT
Natasha B. Hunter	COMP. LIT	Melanie R. Desilva	STPEC	Glenn S. McGuigan	ENGLISH	Jennifer A. Gordon	ENGLISH
Matthew D. Kenyon	GERMAN	Joanna M. Doerler	PSYCH	Lucas H. McNeill	CHINESE	Matthew H. Guidera	PORTUGESE
Eric S. Leoff	LEGAL STUD	Paul M. Dowling	CLASSICS	Mary F. McRae	GEOGRAPHY	Carrie L. Hampson	ENGLISH
Jane C. Lin	ECON	Sharon N. Dratch	ANTHRO	Francisco Mur	PSYCH	Erqin D. Hanlon	PSYCH
Craig M. Macallister	HISTORY	Peter Dunn	POLI SCI	Erika H. Murphy	ENGLISH	Adam F. Keats	COMMUNICATION
Angela C. Millard	ART HIST	Katherine R. Eilert	RUSSIAN	Timothy J. Murphy	PSYCH	Lisa N. Lamadeleine	ENGLISH
Jamaison T Moeser.	BIOCHEM	Scott E. Erlich	POLI SCI	Marisa J. Nadeau	PSYCH	Jeffrey A. Lee	ENGLISH
Daniel A. Nissinbaum	PHYSICS	Rene A. Fantasia	PYSCH	Michelle A. Napoli	JOURNALISM	Daniel P. Lepage	SOCIOLOGY
Holly E. Ordway	ENGLISH	Steven H. Feldgus	CHEM	Amber B. Nevens	SOCIOLOGY	Kelly A. Michaelian	PSYCH
Franklin L. Simpson	CLASSICS	Lisa D. Galiant	ASTRONOMY	Dan S. Nguyen	BIOLOGY	Joseph A. Mulligan	ENGLISH
Jessamyn C. Spears	CAS	Melissa M. Gelley	ANTHRO	Michael J. Nolan	HISTORY	Susan V. Nelson	POLI SCI
Melinda M. Topham	ANTHRO	David W. Gingras	STPEC	Christianna Pearce	THEATER	John J. Pollinger	ENGLISH
Class of 1994		David M. Ginsberg	HISTORY	James R. Pomeranz	POLI SCI	Glenn R. Popson	ENGLISH
Patricia G. Albert	LEGAL STUD	Leslie T. Gurski	BDIC	Dawn B. Premo	PSYCH	Amy L. Radford	AFRO-AM
David M. Arend	CHEM	Kyeidy A. Haugsjaa	CHEMISTRY	Matthew D. Saronson	POLI SCI	Hailke D. Rubenhold	HISTORY
Caolyn L. Augart	BIOLOGY	Christina H. Hemon	COMPUTER SCI	Matthew D. Schmil	COMPUTER SCI	Sarah M. Shoemaker	COMP. LIT
Tammy L. Barlow	ECON	Michael A. Homer	BIOLOGY	Laura A. Sieczen	LINGUISTICS	Lara A. Sieczen	JAPANESE
Charlotte N. Begley	LEGAL STUD	Karen R. Jacoby	ENGLISH	Emily Shannon	ENGLISH	Stephanie L Smith	PSYCH
Peter J. Belsito	ANTHRO	Jennifer K. Jubinville	LEGAL STUDIES	Jennifer E. Smith	JAPANESE	Susan K. Soestbe	SPANISH
Julie L. Benson	MATHEMATICS	Kristen L. Kamerik	COMP. LIT	Alisha V. Stankis	ECON	Sharon E. Spitzak	PHYSICS
Banita M. Butcher	POLI SCI	Toshiko Kaneda	PSYCH	Christopher L. Thomas	MATH	Christine L. Swanson	ECON
Juliana M. Carey	BIOCHEM	Lisa A. Katz	SOCIOLOGY	Hilary M. Wisnnick	PSYCH	Gwynne Turner	BOTANY
Jennifer E. Chapman	PSYCH	Tareef Kawaf	MICROBIO	Alex Y. Yufe	PSYCH	Amy M. Vanlauwe	POLI SCI
Brian Connolly	MICROBIO	Martha Kemponer	COMPUTER SCI	Yan Xing	ECON	Jennifer Warnshuis	ENGLISH
Diane M. Cormier	SOCIOLOGY	Angela C. Kimball	POLI SCI	Tracey A. Zaccone	POLI SCI	Michael J. Webber	GERMAN
Suzanne C. Coulter	LEGAL STUD	Michelle L. Kinsley	PSYCH	Class of 1993		Thomas J. Whalen	HISTORY
			BIOCHEM	Nicoe L. Abrams	ART HIST	Scott L. Whitmore	ECON

WHY WAIT?

Stop by the University Health Services Pharmacy NOW to get your summer prescriptions filled.

It will save you time and let us serve you more efficiently.

Hours:
Mon. - Fri. 8:30 a.m. - 6 p.m.
Sat. 9 a.m. - Noon
1 - 4:30 p.m.

College Pro Home Painters
Get a tan painting this summer.
Positions available all across New England. Great Pay! Call 1-800-346-4649

Gilreath Manor Condos
- on Hobart Lane -
3 Bedroom • 1½ baths • Heated Basement
New Gas Heat & Hot Water
1/2 Mile to campus • On Bus Route
Showings Start in April
for June or September Occupancy!
Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St • 253-7879

ATTENTION DIMENSION CABLE CUSTOMERS!

Leaving town soon?
Don't forget to disconnect your cable service! Now you can return your converter box and remote control and disconnect your cable service at the following locations from 11:00am to 3:00pm. Look for our Dimension Cable Truck parked near the complex office!

May 18 and 25 at BRITTANY MANOR
May 19 and 26 at PUFFTON VILLAGE
May 20 and 27 at TOWNHOUSE

DIMENSION CABLE SERVICES
256-1342

Call now. Or get stuck in the rush to disconnect your phone.

Now there's an easy way to disconnect your phone service. It's automated, and you can do it from a touch-tone phone anywhere in the NYNEX area. To place an order to disconnect your service just call 1 800 244-3737 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. weekdays, and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays.

Here's how it works. After you call, you'll be asked to enter your telephone number and customer code. This code is the three-digit number that appears after your telephone number on the Summary of Account page of your bill. Without this code the transaction can't be completed.

If you use this system, your final bill will be sent to your existing billing address. So remember to file a change of address card with the post office.

Call 1 800 244-3737. We'll be happy to disconnect you.

NYNEX.

© 1994 NYNEX Corporation

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
The Largest college daily newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

MICHAEL MORRISSEY Editor-in-Chief
Managing Editor DARIENNE HOSLEY
Arts & Living Editor EMILY A. MARINO
Black Affairs Editor RODNEY POWELL
Developing Nations Editor JUAN J. CHACON QUIROS
Editorial/Opinion Editor MIKE CARVALHO
Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Issues Editor STEPHEN C. CAMPBELL
Jewish Affairs Editor JACOB W. MICHAELS
Multicultural Affairs Editor EVELYN A. DE JESUS
News Editor TRACY MONAHAN
Photography Editor NATHAN MARTIN
Sports Editor ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Women's Issues Editor VANESSA AMIN
MICHAEL MCRAE Business Manager
LISA JEZOWSKI Production Manager
DANIELLE YANIRO Advertising Manager
STEPHANIE SHORE Finance Manager
ANDREW DAVIDSON Night Graphics Manager
JIM BRUNEAU, CAITLIN OLSON Day Graphics Managers
JEREMY DAGGETT Circulation Manager
ERIC ABENAUM Subscriptions Manager
MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI Senior Bookkeeper
BLAKE PHILLIPS Graphics Professional
MARTY PAPPAS Classified Advertising
TURLEY PUBLICATIONS Printing Services

113 CAMPUS CENTER BASEMENT · UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS · AMHERST, MA 01003 · (413) 545-3500 · FAX (413) 545-1592

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday-Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 between 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. Letters to the editor are encouraged and will be printed on a space-available basis. All submissions must be typed, kept to a maximum of 400 words, and should include the writer's name, address, year and major, as well as a phone number for verification purposes. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length. Persons wishing to submit guest columns should contact the Editorial/Opinion editor in advance. The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily represent those of the Collegian. Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Editorial Board.

Whitmore smoke should go

Okay boys and girls, it's the end of the semester and I have a few things I need to talk about before we all go away for the summer.

To Ilze Clowns who smoke at the top of the ramp entrance to Whitmore: in case you didn't know, the Chancellor instituted a new smoking policy that says you have to smoke 20 feet away from all entrances to buildings.

Marni E. Heffner

Right in front the same building where the Chancellor signed the damn thing, his employees are violating the new policy. I can't get into the building without encountering your stagnant, stale, disgusting, cancer-causing, second-hand smoke. Could somebody over in Whitmore do something about this? If it were students smoking, you know somebody would be getting in trouble.

To my friends who call me up and invite me to eat at the DC now that I'm off the meal plan: Hello! If I wanted to wanted to eat in the DC and expose myself to that nasty food I would still be on the meal plan.

To Bob and Kareem: You guys wanted to be in my column, and now you are; try and remember the things you ask people when you're too drunk to handle your alcohol.

To the PVTA bus drivers who don't know how to drive: With the exception of the few people I know who drive the bus, the rest of you can't take a corner at a normal speed and just don't understand the meaning of a slow stop. Get a clue and take a driver's ed course.

To the big, bad, tough guy from the silent majority who called me Wednesday night: Thanks for the call. Now that I've changed my phone number, it's good to know who your enemies are. Get a life — and get an open mind while you're at it.

To all the men who take women's studies courses: I think it's really cool that you are trying to enlighten yourself. Keep taking these classes and hopefully people will realize that our educations need to be more inclusive of others.

To all prospective English students: I have two great professors to recommend — Richard Burt and Martin Espada. This is not because I'm in their classes and want good grades, but because they both have the ability to make topics that I struggle with interesting.

In the fall, Prof. Burt is teaching Major British Writers I and Practical Criticism, and Prof. Espada is teaching Latino Poetry and Social issues. I wouldn't hesitate to take a class with either one.

To the future ex–Provost Glen Gordon: Just in case you didn't know, I was going to write a column about what a great guy you are, and that students should protest your abrupt dismissal by the Chancellor, but no one in your office returned my phone calls, messages or visits, despite the fact that I requested that someone contact me even if you didn't want to talk to me. If this is how you and your staff behave, you deserved to be fired.

To Chancellor Scott: Get a clue buddy — the University is here to educate and inform the students, not to line the pockets of its administrators. All year long you consistantly forgot that what the students wanted was not the hiring of the Marcellettes and the firing of three of the most dedicated administrators on campus.

You spend money left and right all over this campus, but none of it helps us students get a better education. The Marcelletes' salaries alone would be enough to pay for hundreds of seats in GenEd classes. i know I can't afford another six-digit adminstrator. I already pay $17,000 a year to go here.

To the people who organize a blood drive every day: I work in the Campus Center, and everyday somebody accosts me to give blood. No offense, but do you even realize how annoying you are?

To everyone who was in the front three rows of Spring Concert: I hope you got all the mud out of your hair, clothes and shoes. I know I won't get my shoes clean. But it was worth it to hear the Violent Femmes in concert.

To everyone who fell on my head during crowd surfing: I'm sorry you fell, but when there's eight people crowd surfing and everyone around you is moshing, it's a little bit hard to concentrate.

To Housing Services: People are going to smoke in their rooms. We are in Massachusetts where it gets cold, and people are too lazy to go outside or downstairs to the smoking lounge. Yes, there are rules, but nobody is going to turn in someone for smoking. Just designate a couple dorms as smoking dorms and let the rest of us live smoke–free.

To the new leaders of the GSS: You haven't been in office more than two weeks and already there are charges of ballot stuffing, causing problems within GEO and claiming that anyone who is your political enemy is racist. Just in case you didn't know, you are the older — supposedly more mature — leaders on campus. Start acting like it.

To all the people who told me that they liked my picture this year: Thank you! It's nice to know that people support me and realize that the photo is the epitome of my personality.

To all my friends who told me and all the people who wrote in to the Collegian to tell me how much they hated my picture: Thank you for being honest. I really do appreciate your honesty. Now get a life. It's the words that count.

Marni E. Heffner is a Collegian columnist.

Dominican Republic elects

Democratic elections for Casa Dominicana have taken place at almost the same time as the general elections in the Dominican Republic, which are held every four years on May 16.

Casa Dominicana, a relatively young student organization, celebrated its second major election since it was founded in 1992. Two weeks ago, members of Casa Dominicana convened a general meeting to vote for candidates to replace the current committee.

This election night turned out to be a very active meeting where prospective candidates for positions on the committee had to briefly speak to their audience about themselves, comment about future goals in the organization and, in almost all cases, respond to some of the thoughtful questions asked by concerned students.

These elections definitely broke with the tradition of voting for candidates without even knowing a little about their background and perspectives. It fills me with joy to know that the members of Casa Dominicana are students with a strong sense of responsibility and concern about promoting our cultural, political, and social traditions.

I believe that the students from Casa Dominicana elected a good representative body by carefully studying and analyzing some of the challenging questions which had been raised.

The new committee, which will start its term next semester, is composed mostly by "new blood" [new generation] students. This we think is a crucial factor for the overall success of an organization.

Hopefully, with the guidance of some of the more experienced students and with the input of those energetic individuals, Casa Dominicana will enter a time of prosperity as well as campus recognition and influence.

The Dominican Republic will hold elections in seven days. As this memorable day comes closer, the country is dressed up in different colors that represent the variety of political parties that are running for presidency.

Wellington D. Bencosme

The Dominican Republic will hold elections in seven days. As this memorable day comes closer, the country is dressed up in different colors that represent the variety of political parties that are running for presidency. The rumpled bow of political parties is dominated mostly by three colors:

The red, which represents the Partido Reformista Social Cristiano (PRSC), and whose leader is the current president of the Dominica Republic, his excellency Dr. Joaquin Balaguer.

In the same order, there is white, representing the Partido Revolucionario Dominicano (PRD), presided by Dr. José Peña Gómez. Finally, there is the purple, representing the Partido de la Liberación Dominicano, which is presided over by Juan Bosch.

Each student at Casa Dominicana has its own candidate in mind to rule the country for the next term of 1994–98. It is always a pleasure to know that young Dominicans are politically oriented and that they defend their leaders of choice.

This, I think, is a strong sign of the leadership that is being awakened by each of these students. Let's hope that whichever candidate gets elected will be the one to best defend and protect our interests and the one who will undertake the required projects to the best benefit of the nation as a whole.

By doing so, there will be no place where corruption could possibly settle and obscure our glorious flag.

Wellington D. Bencosme is a senior majoring in economics. He is the chairman of Casa Dominicana.

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

* UPDATED TO PROMOTE RECONCILIATION

Opinion

School needs direction

If you're a racist, don't read this. I don't like racists anyway so I won't miss you. We need unity and diversity on this campus, but they'll have to wait until we have better numbers to do it.

Sitting in class, walking outside, or even going to dinner it is apparent — we have a population problem. We are a mere three percent African American, and the problem is our school is white. it is time the administration got off their butts and realizes what has to be done. It is time to let in more black students.

We have a new administration that is looking for change. We have some exceptionally bright and well-educated faculty. We also have a student body that is not unified. For this columnist, it seems obvious which way the University flagship should set sail.

Mike Einhorn

I support more terminations, since they will wake the many who are simply sleeping with their tenure. When you set a direction, set it towards unity, set it towards education, and set it towards fixing our inaccurate race-representation of the Commonwealth.

Realize that many powerful talents lie in students who are not white — students like Al Lizana, who has my complete respect. He is an African American who is also student trustee, and probably the best one we've had in ten years. On State House Day he trained a bus of students to do person to person lobbying. He taught us how to get to the point, and became friends with me made a believer. We are hoping it will be a $21.8 million difference — but we will wait for the vote.

The State House saw that what is at stake is our education. And the same applies here, with unity. Our education is at stake. So while we are deciding our direction we need to realize that unity, right now, is not possible. Right now I could sooner unify with my left foot than with the black community. Why?

Because UMass-Amherst is not only holding back on affirmative action, but it is also scaring away the few African Americans we have.

They are leaving.

Why are they transferring from this school? Don't they understand that we need them if we want to call ourselves diverse — "Yes and I went to that politically correct and diverse University in Amherst." No, you didn't, because even if you knew the one or two black people in your dorm: that's two out of two hundred, and you kid yourself with that type of logic.

Do you know what being black means? Do you understand African customs, rituals, or even what it is like to be black in America? Do I? No, the answer is no. We are white, and we are socialized not to care about modern racism.

So, I want to apologize. I know I can't speak for everyone at UMass, since not everybody is non-racist, but I am sorry to see you go. I strongly believe that any black woman or man at UMass who has seen what goes on here and chooses to leave is leaving us a hole we can't fill. Massachusetts is at a loss since you seem to be going where you will feel more comfortable.

I would have liked to have learned more about you. I am sorry because the people who replace you will probably be white people with very little class, very little intelligence, and very little desire to make this a better place.

A better place would be a school with only the best students in academics, leadership or athletics. A better school would be one with a devoted student body from around the world, all looking not only to learn academics but also to understand each other. A better school would be one that could call itself diverse in numbers before it boldly went off to battle with new, culturally–enriching programs.

Most of these programs are just excuses for better statistics, and I am tired of it. Yes, I want programs that make black students more comfortable with white students, but it seems pointless when the numbers just aren't there.

I support even more terminations, but they should be in Admissions. Chancellor Scott, what you are doing is right, please continue, point us in the direction that this school so desperately needs.

And eliminate whoever will not listen.

Mike Einhorn is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

In favor of library name change

To the editor:

I would like to add my voice to that of Professor David Du Bois and many others, and urge the University community to support naming our library after W.E.B. Du Bois. The reasons for doing so are many, even apart from his great scholarly accomplishments.

Dr. Du Bois was from Western Massachusetts and is thus one of our own, and many of his papers are now housed in the libary. It is entirely appropriate that we honor his achievements.

Of equal importance, naming our main library for Dr. Du Bois will provide a highly visible and positive statement of how we feel about racial issues in this community, a statement which I feel is much needed.

The two arguments I have heard against taking this step seem feeble to me. The first is that we should look for someone willing to make a major financial contribution in return for being allowed to name the library. The chances of this happening seem vanishingly remote to me, as well as of questionable morality.

The second argument is that naming the library after Dr. Du Bois would be "caving in" to demands. This position is simply foolish and needs no reply.

I urge faculty, students, staff and administrators to support to initiative to rename the tower library the W.E.B. Du Bois Library. We have nothing to lose and much to gain.

Randall G. Stokes, Chair
Sociology department

Butterfield resident unhappy with story

To the editor:

This letter is in response to the article "Bands rock Central Day" which appeared in the Collegian on Tuesday, May 2. I have a few complaints for the author, Jamie D. Bearse.

Unfortunately, you were misinformed about the true meaning of the show in the Butterfield basement last Saturday. It was not in conjunction with Central Day, but was a continuation of Butterfield's May Day celebration.

The show was organized by the Butterfield Underground which is made up of two Butterfieiders who put on the show in the free–spirited, Do It Yourself, punk rock fashion. The bands played for free and the show was free to everyone.

There were two other inaccuracies in your article. One, you failed to mention that Philth Shack, who came all the way from Cape Cod, was also on the bill and played a very rockin' set.

Two, if you did not already know it, it is Meristem, not 'Merlstrem,' and I have never heard of a 'grudge' band. I think you meant grunge. While we are on the topic of spelling errors, it is Matt Dolvan, not 'Dulvan' as you spelled it in your article.

Calvin Jones
Communication studies.

The semester comes to an end tomorrow, and the Massachusetts Daily Collegian will cease to publish until the fall 1994 semester. We would like to take this chance to thank everyone who submitted letters to the editor this semester. We are sorry we couldn't print each and every one of them, but we did our best to print a diverse range of views.

We look forward to continuing to provide the UMass community with the best newspaper we can produce. If you are interested in joining the staff of the largest college daily newspaper in New England, stop by our offices at 113 Campus Center Basement this week or at the beginning of next semester.

Arts & Living

More than Arnold: summer movies run the gamut

COURTESY MURRAY CLOSS
Sharon Stone stars in The Quick and the Dead.

COURTESY FRANCOIS DUHAMEL
Michelle Pfeiffer and Jack Nicholson share a moment in Wolf.

By ED HUMPHRIES
Collegian Staff

Vacation cinema. It's the best of times. It's the worst of times. It can be the summer of our happiness at the winter of our heart's discontent.

But take heed faithful reader, for this summer bodes a plethora of laughs, spills, crashes and thrills. Arnold's back. So is Eddie. And kicking it all off is a tale from pre–history.

So take this preview section as a guide — not a dictum nor a Bible; but a road map to the twists and turns, the highs and lows of Cineplex mayhem. Kick back. Soak in the A.C. (but remember JujyFruits — Good, movie popcorn — Bad!). Enjoy.

Gunfights, Impalements, Explosions etc.

Summer brings the biggest explosions, the best special effects and the baddest bad guys (with a villainous wink of course.) This summer the big guns are loaded, safety off.

First up, Eddie Murphy pines for a much–needed with a return to wisecrack form in Beverly Hills Cop III, where his Axel Foley battles bad guys at a dino–themed amusement park. (Suffer the extinction, pal.)

Save that money though, because Arnold Schwarzeneggar mounts his comeback teaming with T2 director James Cameron for the action–comedy True Lies. The buzz is good, the casting is eclectic (Jamie Lee Curtis, Tom Arnold) and the trailer looks great, stamping that "lost" action hero status null and void.

Also showing promise is Chuck Russel's The Mask, based on Dark Horse Comics' cult classic and starring Jim Carrey and a slew of Industrial Lights and Magic effects. This could ease those Ace Ventura nightmares.

Alec Baldwin does the brooding hero thing in The Shadow, while Jean Claude Van Damme reaps bigger budgets and higher bodycounts in Time Cop. Stallone teams with Sharon Stone in The Specialist, while Jeff Bridges stops pyromaniac Jones (Tommy Lee, that is) of kindling the Boston skyline in Blown Away. Meanwhile unlikely action hero Keanu Reeves films "Die Hard–on–a–bus" in Speed and Kurt Russell and James Spader play galaxy–tripping archaeologists in Star Gate.

Finally, summer sees Charlie Sheen and Nastassja Kinski in the Point Break retelling Terminal Velocity. What's the point?

Back in the Saddle...

It's no secret, westerns rule box–office bonanza. Tumbleweeds, they be no more. This summer features four installments of revisionist horse opera.

Lawrence Kasdan's Wyatt Earp seeks to erase the damage quasi–revisionist Tombstone hath previously wrath on the Earp–Holliday myth. Kevin Costner is Earp, Dennis Quaid is Holliday and with Kasdan at the reigns the result is likely to be overwrought, overblown and very entertaining.

Expect stylized violence from Sam Raimi's The Quick and the Dead with Sharon Stone gunning for Gene Hackman alongside Leonardo DiCaprio. In Maverick, Mel Gibson stars with Jodie Foster, James Garner and Clint Black in the big screen treatment of the small screen card–shark comedy.

Completing the round up is The Cowboy Way with Woody Harrelson and Kiefer Sutherland as two wayward cowpokes lost in contemporary New York City. While not exactly a western, that's a hell of a lot better than calling this comedy.

Things that Go Bump...

Thrillers reign supreme no matter what the season. Summer heat feels celluloid chills.

Leave it to the literary Gods to deliver the plots. First Phillip Noyce crafts Tom Clancy's spy game Clear and Present Danger, returning Harrison Ford to CIA sleuth Jack Ryan territory once again. Joel Schumacher offers John Grisham's The Client with Susan Sarandon and hard–laborer Tommy Lee Jones.

Jack is back in Wolf, with Nicholson as a book publisher by day/carnivore by night, hungry for the affections of Michelle Pfeiffer. Meryl Streep braves white water (rapids, that is), and a murderous Kevin Bacon in Curtis Hanson's The River Wild while the late Brandon Lee displays what could have been, subbing character development for martial arts in the long–awaited grim fairy tale The Crow.

Finally reservoir dog Quentin Tarentino offers Bruce Willis, Patricia Arquette, Christopher Walken (and others) in the "true" crime anthology Pulp Fiction. Bruce Willis appears again in the erotic thriller Color of Night, where he plays a shrink who exposes both his (suppress those laughs) emotional self and (once again) physical being while seeking the serial killer threatening his lover (Jane March) and his therapy group. (Groan!)

Divine (and not so) Comedies...

Yaba Dabba Doo! Those that haven't heard, crawl out from under your rock, The Flintstones are coming. John Goodman and Rick Moranis as Fred and Barney, Kyle MacLachlan as Mr. Slate. With music by the B.C. 52's it should be innocuous but fun.

Rob Reiner strikes again, this time with North, a fantasy comedy starring Elijah Wood as a boy who deserts his parents in search of a perfect home. Fantasy is the hallmark of Robert Zemeckis' Forrest Gump with Tom Hanks playing a mildly retarded fellow sent time–tripping through various events in American history. The effects are supposed to be amazing.

Billy Crystal reteams with Jack Palance, Daniel Stern and newcomer Jon Lovitz in City Slickers II: The Legend of Curly's Gold. Gimmick Alert: Palance plays dead trailboss Curly's twin brother.

Veteran dramatic directors try their hand with comedy. First up, Spike Lee brings Crooklyn, a comic slice of life set in a remote burg in Brooklyn, and is based on Spike's family. Oliver Stone meets Quentin Tarentino in Natural Born Killers skewering the media blitz for serial killer "flavors of the month" Woody Harrelson and Juliette Lewis.

As for the rest. Danny Devito teaches grunts in Penny Marshall's Renaissance Man, MacCauley Culkin tutors convict dad Ted Danson in Getting Even with Dad, and Damon Wayans imparts lessons upon crooks in the superhero spoof Blankman.

Later Nick Nolte and Julia Roberts play dueling reporters in I Love Trouble, Adam Sandler, Brendan Fraser and Steve Buscemi are radical rock group members in Airheads, and Nicholas Cage tips Bridget Fonda $1 million in Andrew Bergman's It Could Happen to You. Finally Pauly Shore enlists In the Army Now, and Leonard Nimoy casts Patricia Arquette in Holy Matrimony.

Don't Be So Dramatic...

Dramas are scarce this summer. The most notable is Tim Burton's Ed Wood, starring Johnny Depp as the late schlock film producer responsible for Plan 9 from Outer Space and instilled with a penchant for women's lingerie and Bela Lugosi (a natural combo.) Burton filmed in black and white and has scaled down his sideshow grotesques. Should be interesting.

Veteran director John Schleisenger (Midnight Cowboy) returns with The Innocent, a World War II spy drama starring Campbell Scott and Anthony Hopkins as allies trapped behind enemy lines.

Also pining for emotions and Oscar clips, widower Ray Liotta hires housekeeper Whoopi Goldberg to watch his children in Corrina–Corrina, and slacker woes reach an ultimatum in the angst ridden S.F.W. — the acronym standing for some very bad words.

Child's Play...

The big one: The Lion King. The animation looks great. The soundtrack boasts original Elton John tracks. The cast features a gaggle of furry friends. The jungle will shake. Walt Disney Pictures feels bulging pockets. Hey, kids aren't the only ones who see movies twice.

Wayne's World director Penelope Spheeris taps the T.V. market with (shrug) The Little Rascals. The California Angels find some help from above in Angels in the Outfield, and finally John Hughes presents yet another contrived creation in the abduction caper Baby's Day Out.

Jaundice lacks in weekly trax

Jaundice
Lucy's Fur Coat
Relativity Records

Jaundice, the new release from California band, Lucy's Fur Coat is pumped with angry bass lines and lots of drums, but has no real substance. The band lacks a good melody to keep your fingers snapping and head spinning.

There are a few redeeming and promising songs on the album. The second cut, "Falling Out," combines the mad screamings of the vocalist, Mr. Ware, along with a catchy pop refrain. There are also a couple of songs that I'd like to refer to as their punk songs. The two songs "Super" and "Not My Fault" are fast and loud, like all good punk songs should be, but the band begins to lose the fun and silly spirit of their first two songs.

The rest of the album, however, begins to get old really fast. As you continue to listen, you realize that the band is lacking a little in the creativity department.

The ballad of the CD, "Easy", has a great three chord beginning. Unfortunately, the rest of the song continues to repeat and repeat again those three chords. Ironically enough, this band even has a song on the album named "Same."

The band at different points of the album does try to pull off new sounds — but vocally, not musically. The song "Sensor" sounds like Meat Loaf singing after chain smoking a pack of Lucky Strikes unfiltered.

The final song "747" also gets away from the angry, loud vocals found through most of the album, but for some reason it ends up sounding a little to much like "Sesame Street" favorite, Grover.

I have a feeling this band would be much better live — the music is energetic, but there just isn't enough "stuff" in it. Feedback would definitely improve the overall sound of this band. C (G. Larson)

24 Hour Revenge Therapy
Jawbreaker
Tupelo Recording Company/Communion

"I'm coloring outside your guidelines." When singer/guitarist Blake Schwarzenbach belts this out during "Boxcar," it is a show of welcome resistance against the preachy, militantly political attitude shared by many his genre–mates.

On this third full–length release, Jawbreaker tackles subject matter generally considered to be taboo in the realm of hardcore lyrics: from romantic relationships to alcohol consumption.

All the while, this west–coast trio operates on a higher level of musical intensity and intricacy than just about any other band out there.

At times, the group's songs have such intentionally jagged, awkward rhythms that they give the impression that they are about to collapse under the strain, only to be effortlessly brought back by the precision of bassist Chris Bauermeister and drummer Adam Pfahler. On songs like "Ashtray Monument" and "Condition Oakland" this effect creates a feel similar to "Repeater" era Fugazi.

Ultimately, it is Schwarzenbach's emotionally charged vocals which bind the songs together (at times even making them border on catchy) and when he sings lines like "Too old not to get excited about rain and roads, Egyptian ruins, our first kiss," who wouldn't want to sing along?

A (M. Faerber)

Thanks to our faithful readers, we hope you stay tuned for more Trax On, Trax Off next semester.

1-4 Bedrom Houses & Apartments
Most on Bus Route
Amherst & Surrounding Communities
Free Landlord Referral Service
D.H.JONES REAL ESTATE CONSULTING
D. H. JONES
15A Pray St. (2nd Floor)
Amherst, MA 01002
549-7757 • 8:30am - 5:00pm M–F

Ultraviolet Radiation and the Eye

by Fredrick H. Bloom, OD
Director, UHS Eye Care Program

It is important to protect your eyes from UV radiation, just as it is important to protect your skin. Exposure to UVs over many years is associated with cataracts and other serious eye diseases, including pterygium, a tissue growth of the cornea, macula degeneration, a potentially blinding disease of the retina and cancer of the skin around the eye. A sunburn of the cornea is temporary, but extremely painful.

When you are outside, you should wear sunglasses to decrease your risk for these conditions. Choose sunglasses that block out 99 or 100% of all ultraviolet rays up to 400 nanometers. Wear glasses that are large enough, and wear a brimmed hat. Especially avoid being in the sun during the hours of 10 AM to 3 PM during the summer months.

If using an artificial light source, such as a sunlamp, wear special goggles, not sunglasses.

You should never stare directly at the sun or an eclipse with or without sunglasses.

For questions, or to make an appointment, call the UHS Eye Care Program at 549-2671 ext. 244.

PHILOSOPHY 101
Take-Home Exam
Compare and contrast the dialectic of phenomenology as revealed in the work of Hegel, Kierkegaard and Nietzsche. (Use additional blue books as necessary.)
Looks like a Vivarin night.
It's 10 PM. You've crammed for finals all week. Took two today. And now you've got to pack an entire semester's worth of Philosophy into one take-home exam, in one night. But how do you stay awake when you're totally wiped? Revive with Vivarin. Safe as coffee, Vivarin helps keep you awake and mentally alert for hours. So when you have pen in hand, but sleep on the brain, make it a Vivarin night!
VIVARIN
for fast pick up—safe as coffee
Revive with VIVARIN.*
Use only as directed. Contains caffeine equivalent to 2 cups of coffee
© 1993 SmithKline Beecham

Phranc coming to Bowker

COURTESY ROCKY SCHENCK

Folkster Phranc is on the way to Bowker, thanks to the folks at Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns.

By STEPHEN C. CAMPBELL & EMILY MARINO
Collegian Staff

Folk music and combat boots are just one of the combinations that make the performance of Phranc, folk singer extraordinaire, one you won't want to miss on Saturday.

Phranc is appearing at Bowker Auditorium at 8 p.m. on Saturday, May 14. This program is sponsored by the Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns, and funded in part by a Grant from the Student Affairs Cultural Enrichment Fund.

Often clad in Levi's and a white T-shirt, the denim-loving dynamo typically performs songs about a range of topics; from odes to sports heroes and intelligent hairdressers to expressions of rage and helplessness about South African apartheid.

The flat top–sporting, Jewish lesbian folkster has produced three albums, all of which present different themes, and represent the many facets of her artistic consciousness.

Phranc's first album, I Enjoy Being A Girl, earned much acclaim as what must be the first public example of transcendent lesbian camp.

The album also deals with issues surrounding apartheid, as well as a moving tribute to grandmothers in "Myrian and Ester."

Phranc, Folksinger, the artist's sophomore effort, rendered her an increased public profile as "the tough–looking girl with the flat top" and master of folk internationality.

"Earnest Isn't a dirty word In Phranc's dictionary and neither is laugh," said Spin magazine, adding that "a sense of justice and a sense of humor don't necessarily cancel each other out."

Phranc's third release, 1991's Positively Phranc was met with enthusiasm, especially in light of the folkster's touring with Morrissey that same year.

Much of Phranc's appeal is her simple, classic American style.

"I like the sleek, the handsome, the stark, the true, the bare," claims Phranc. "Maybe a little cologne is acceptable, but I've never had any desire to wear earrings," she says, mixing humor and straightforwardness, a combination that is a trademark of her music.

Phranc will perform in Bowker at 8 p.m. Ticket Prices in advance are $6 for UMass Students and $9 for all others. At the door tickets will be $9 for UMass Students and $12 for everyone else. Tickets are on sale now at the UMass Fine Arts Center Box Office.

Turtle Island Quartet cues up

By JORMA KANSANEN
Collegian Staff

Don't knock it 'til you try it.

This simple, but evocative, statement holds true from socio–cultural distinctions to that Hungarian goulash your mother made you eat as a child.

Diversity seems to be the key concept in these modern times, and this Tuesday night at the Iron Horse it will hit the stage.

The Turtle Island String Quartet will bring its own version of jazz, blues, bluegrass and other musical styles to the renowned pub in friendly neighborhood Noho tonight.

Featuring arrangements from jazz legends like Cole Porter to the true classic Delta bluesman Robert Johnson, variety is the word of the day when it comes to describe this foursome.

Comprised of Tracy Silverman (violin), Darol Anger (violin, baritone violin), Mark Summer (cello) and Dan Seidenberg (viola, violin), this ensemble has begun to separate itself from the established, "classical" notion of a jazz quartet.

Since its debut release on the Windham Hill label in 1988, the mission to break down categorization has led them to large concert halls and intimate clubs from Canada to Southeast Asia.

It's not just the music distinguishes the quartet's spot in modern jazz, but the list of prior credentials, for its individual accomplishments, reads as a study in prosperity.

Ranging from the Juilliard School graduates Seidenberg and Silverman's stints with the Joffrey Ballet to Anger's position as a founding member of the David Grisman Quintet, there seems to be no genre that has not been touched upon.

Possibly by suggestion of the recently retired, and extremely open–minded journalist Charles Kuralt, appearances on "CBS Sunday Morning," and the daily "This Morning" on CBS, shows that the use of every medium possible entails these Grammy nominees effort to bring this unique, decentralized style to the world's light.

Definitely breakfast, lunch, dinner, and possibly a midnight snack, for your head.

Tonight, May 10th at the Iron Horse, 20 Center St., Northampton the Turtle Island String Quartet will perform its own bag of tricks, including jazz and other musical traditions.

Tickets are $10.50 in advance and can be purchased at the venue or the Northampton Box Office (413– 586–8686). It Is not required, but bring an open mind.

Northeast hosts pig–out

By MICHAEL MACLEAN
Collegian Staff

Northeast Area Annual Pig–Out
Northeast Residentiai Area
May 7, 1994

Before the entire campus community celebrated its annual rite of spring with the spring concert, the Northeast residential area celebrated its spring season with the annual Pig–Out day.

Starting at 1 p.m. in the quad, in less muddy conditions, volunteers and members of the house councils served hundreds of hungry students with hot dogs, hamburgers and barbecued chicken.

Evian and Dannon Yogurt were on hand to give out free samples and to sponsor Spikefest '94. Teams with such creative names as Born to Lose, Academic Probation and Jensen's Sister participated in the tough volleyball competition. But in the end, it was the team Side Out that walked away with the Spikefest '94 championship.

Other activities of the day included non–Spikefest volleyball, Frisbee and, with the excellent weather on hand, just hanging out and catching some rays was very popular. Several bands were in attendance to entertain the crowd, playing a few original songs, but mainly covers by everyone from Metallica to The Beastie Boys.

Although the dormitory olympics that were scheduled to happen were postponed and eventually didn't take place, everyone in attendance seemed enthralled with the playoffs of the volleyball tournament. And many came back later on in the evening for a showing of The Fugitive in the basement of Mary Lyon residential hall.

Thanks to the people who volunteered their time and efforts, the annual Pig–Out was a huge success, leaving all who attended tired, happy and full of food.

UMass bands long on promise

By JOSHUA BOYD
Collegian Staff

Think of this article as kind of a local Trax On/Trax Off. Featured in this piece are reviews of two University of Massachusetts power trios and another melodic five–piece rock ensemble.

Square Pyramid
Square Pyramid

This cassette with four of the trio's originals and two deep, searching cover tunes, shows a few students who believe in something more than just notes and scales in their music. With songs like the listener–friendly "Room 107," and "Wishing Wonder," which at first seems like an easily accessible pop/funk/rock song, and turns into something spiraling and wicked. Otis Rush's "All My Love" is taken, handled well and bent to show the full power of the tune. Dynamic tension is a good phrase here. B+

To pick up a free copy of "Square Pyramid", write to: John Alexander, 1004 Paradise Rd. PHG, Swampscott, MA 01907.

Cameron's Way
Cameron's Way

With seven originals, Cameron's Way produces an album that's tricky at times. Sometimes complex and exciting, sometimes boring, the band has a lot to offer, and still a lot to learn. "Speak," the lead–off track, is a good introduction to the rest of the album. A few songs come close to being real great listens, but stop just short, such as "The River" and "Flake." "Clear Ending Bit" is the most gripping and interesting song on the tape, while "Shedding" shows the gentle side of Cameron's Way. C

For Information on how to get "Cameron's Way", call CW Worldwide Headquarters at (413)–256–4145.

Falafel Boy
Falafel Boy

Valley veteran Falafel Boy whips up its intricate brand of frisbee and toyboat distortion pop. Songs like "Yellow," with its out–on–the–town style of punk rock, and "Yogi," a song that soúnds like '70s band, Boston gone hopelessly insane, round out an attitude that doesn't give you the finger and say in a staunch British accent, "F.U.," but instead just whines and sticks its tongue out at you. I think they get topical once, in "I Will Be Your Girl," a song that illustrates a relationship in which the roles of man and woman are slightly confused. B–

To find out how to order "Falafel Boy", write for their fan letter at: Falafelboynia, P.O. Box 60554, Florence, MA 01660–0554, or call (413)–584–4958. The band themselves will play Wednesday, May 11 at The Hatch. The show is 21+.

Call For Our Special Offer
BRANDYWINE AMHERST
Brandywine offers Country Living with Convenience
• On UMass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
• Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
• One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
• Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
• Stop by and we'll show you what we have to offer.
• Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove)
BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open
Mon.-Fri. 9-5, Sat. & Sun. 10-3
549-0600

UMASS Senior Night LUAU
Saturday, May 14th
Includes:
• Bus Transportation
• Chinese Food Dinner
• Polynesian Show
• Boston's Best Comedy Show
• UMASS'own "Mission Improbable"
• DJ and Dancing until 1:30AM
HEY SENIORS! What a better way to kick off Senior Week!
Buses leave Fine Arts Center at 6PM and return at 2AM.
COMEDY CONNECTION AT THE HU KE LAU CHICOPEE
for tickets call (413) 593-5222 or go to "TIX" at the Student Union

Antonios
GOOD LUCK SENIORS!
31 NORTH PLEASANT ST.
DOWNTOWN AMHERST
253-0808
PIZZA BY THE SLICE

BOSTON BARTENDER SCHOOL OF AMERICA
Train Now For Your Summer Job
• If you are 18 or older, be a bartender
• Day/Evenings 1 Week
• Placement Assistance
• Spend the Summer at the Shore!
• Only 2 Openings Remain for MAY CLASSES!
• ENROLL NOW!!! •
MC/VISA/DISCOVER/AMEX
1655 Main St. • Suite 202 • Springfield • Call Today! 747-9888

Attention Seniors
Clarification of the date for Chancellor David and Dr. Kathleen Scott's Reception for Seniors
THURSDAY, May 12, 1994

DOWNTOWN AMHERST DAYS
MAY 12-13-14
SIDEWALK SALES
COMMUNITY FAIR
TASTE OF AMHERST

VOICE EDITOR POSITION OPEN

The editor position for the 1994-95 Graduate Voice is open.

The editor is responsible for producing and distributing 8 monthly issues of The Voice which run 8 to 16 pages. The position carries a stipend equal to the average TA stipend, currently $8,273. The editor may also apply to the Graduate School for a tuition and fee waiver if work on the Voice is related to her/his academic pursuits.

It is not necessary for a candidate to have editorial experience, but the editor will preferably possess good writing and editing skills, basic knowledge of University affairs, basic computer skills, and a willingness to work hard to produce an interesting paper. The editor will work with the GSS Executive Committee & the Office Manager.

Applications – cover letter, resume, & writing sample(s) –must be RECEIVED no later than 5:00pm, Monday, May 16th in the GSS office. Submit applications to:

The Voice* Editor Search/919 Campus Center
University of Massachusetts/Amherst, MA 01003-1212
For more information, please call the Graduate Student Senate at 545-2896

Locals rock out at Pearl Street

By MATTHEW JUSTIN FAERBER
Collegian Correspondent

Art–In–Your–Ear Benefit
Pearl Street
May 5, 1994

Last Thursday night at Pearl Street a crowd of several hundred turned out to see some of the brightest would–be stars of the Valley music scene. The show, which was a benefit for the Alice Pfeiffer Memorial Schoiarship, featured performances by six area bands as well as painting exhibitions by local artists.

The most impressive performance of the night was certainly Synaesthesia, whose strength lies in the group's ability to keep the music interesting and the crowd dancing throughout exceedingly long instrumental jams, sometimes lasting upwards of fifteen minutes.

Recently the band has added a harder edge to their jazz– influenced improvisational rock sound. This was most evident during their closing number, a dynamic rendition of "Black Magic Woman," in which the tight percussion of dual drummers drove the song to a furious pitch before bringing the set to a climactic finale.

After getting off to a rough start, Knuckle Sandwich turned things around and played an exciting batch of ska/funk/rap songs, including the crowd favorites "44" and "K–Mart Shoppers" off their upcoming demo.

Performing materiai from their own recently–released demo were Meristem, who put on an energetic, if somewhat repetitious, set of Jawbox–esque hardcore tunes The crowd's response was very enthusiastic to the deafening guitar assault, but when it comes to experimenting with feedback, these guys should really leave it to Thurston Moore.

The newly–formed Rodeo Monkeys also made their Pearl Street debut, concentrating on loud, driving songs, with mixed results.

The evening's biggest disappointment came in the form of the Amherst–based hip–hop act In Your Face Productions who, plagued by technical difficulties, was unable to illicit any response whatsoever from the crowd.

Electric Noodle Factory closed out the show with a varied collection of originals and covers with a bizzare, bluesy feel.

Overall, the event was a success, raising an estimated $500 for the Alice Pfeiffer Memorial Scholarship which provides need–based financial assistance to students seeking to study abroad.

Getting Horny

JESSICA TAVENNA/COLLEGIAN

The Heavy Metal Horns performed songs off their new album at Pearl Street Saturday night.

Attention Staff:

Collegian elections for fall 1994 staff today 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Collegian offices.

Please Vote!

"You know Brad, you've done a remarkable job on this project... really remarkable... Yes, I'm very pleased with your progress... How'd you like to meet me at the Collegian after work for cocktails?..." "Um... sure Andy... why not?"

Disconnecting your phone service has never been easier.

Now there's an easy way to disconnect your phone service. It's automated, and you can do it from a touch–tone phone anywhere in the NYNEX area. To place an order to disconnect your service just call 1 800 244–3737 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. weekdays, and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays.

Here's how it works. After you call, you'll be asked to enter your telephone number and customer code. This code is the three–digit number that appears after your telephone number on the Summary of Account page of your bill. Without this code the transaction can't be completed.

If you use this system, your final bill will be sent to your existing billing address. So remember to file a change of address card with the post office.

Call 1 800 244–3737. We'll be happy to disconnect you.

NYNEX.

© 1994 NYNEX Corporation

Community service commended

Student volunteers recognized at Chancellor's lunch

By TRACY L. MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

Community service has become a big thing at the University of Massachusetts. Groups such as the Volunteers Involved in Vital Action (VIVA), Habitat for Humanity and the Community Service Council have been growing in force on the campus.

These volunteers were honored at the first annual community service award ceremony. A Friday luncheon at the Hadley Farm was sponsored by the Chancellor's Office, VIVA, the Community Service Council, and the TEAMS (Tutoring Enrichment and Assistance Models with Schools) Project.

Chancellor David K. Scott was on hand to present eight new community service curriculum grants. Faculty members will use the grants to develop new courses or change classes to include community service components.

"Land–grant universities should be a catalyst for constructive social change," Scott said. "We need to find new ways to do that in the future. Public service, community service and outreach are going to grow during the rest of this decade as one of the viable means of solving problems in our society."

The recipients of these grants are Martha Taunton, art; Atron Gentry, education; Ann Ferguson, philosophy; Anne Herrington, English; Warren Schumacher, consumer studies; Eileen Hayes, nursing; Paula Stamps, public health; and Eleanor Vanetzian, nursing.

Eighteen students were also awarded at this banquet:

• Christina Acker, operations manager at the Mather Career Center, was one of the main organizers of the first "Into Amherst", UMass Community Service Day held in May 1993.

• Marissa Barr, vice president of the Pan–Hellenic Council at UMass. She is an active member of the TEAMS project, starting as a tutor and now serving as a site coordinator.

• Jodi Bornstein, a graduate student who is currently the student coordinator for the TEAMS project.

• Amy Briggs, a senior in the Bachelor's Degree with Individual Concentration program, is a tutor for the Hampshire Education Collaborative, tutoring students with severe reading disabilities, and emotional and behavioral difficulties.

• John Clobridge, community services director for the town of Amherst, was the principal liaison between the town and the University for the 1993 and 1994 "Into Amherst" Community Service Days.

• Michael Cooney, a tutor for the Hampshire Education Collaborative.

• Katey Greene, a graduate student in education, tutors students through the Middle Alternative Learning Program at the Hampshire Education Collaborative.

• Diane Huebner, the first graduate student coordinator of the University's Community Service Program. With Acker, she organized the first "Into Amherst" day.

• John Johnson, a senior in neuropsychology, spends three afternoons a week at the Hampshire Educational Collaborative, providing behaviorally difficult children with sports activities.

• Susan Leech, a comparative literature major, has volunteered with the Salvation Army since early 1992.

• Christine Lello, a volunteer with the Community Alternative Learning Program.

• Robert Maloy, professor of education, and director of the TEAMS project.

• William Martin, a nursing student who was an Army combat medic in Vietnam, produces "Veticare," a news and information television program for veterans.

• Kacie McCollum, a student leader in TEAMS and currently a tutor in the University's Future Scholars of America program.

• Ronnie Mellinger, an anthropology student, has been a volunteer in the English as a Second program at the Jones Library in Amherst since 1987.

• Mary Rowe, an accounting major who has prepared accounting, tax reporting, and month–end statements for the Amherst Survival Center over the past year.

• Michael Spanknebel, who has been involved with Habitat for Humanity for the past three years and is currently the liaison between the Pioneer Valley and the Five College Chapters of this nationally recognized organization.

• Scott Trahan, a junior math major, has been involved with the Newman Student Association service group since his freshman year. He directed the "Run for Runaways" Road Race to benefit the Covenant House. Trahan is a TEAMS tutor and a counselor at a summer camp for people with mental handicaps.

■ Wideman

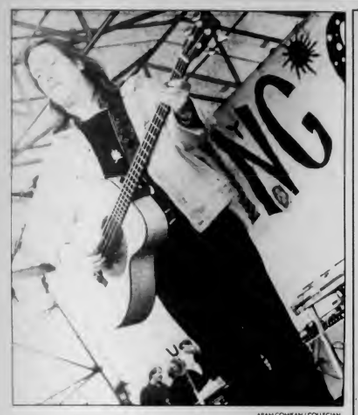
continued from page 1

University of Pennsylvania in 1963, and a bachelor's degree from Oxford in 1966. He received honorary doctorates from the University of Pennsylvania in 1986, and from Rutgers University in 1990.

In between writing his novels and teaching creative writing and Afro–American literature at UMass, Wideman still takes the time to play basketball.

"I play at Boyden and pick up a game here and there," said Wideman, a forward. He follows the Minuteman, but "didn't have time to attend as many games." Wideman's daughter plays basketball for Stanford University in Palo Alto, California and last year lead Amherst Regional High School to the Division I State Championship.

Some of Wideman's books include "A Glance Away," "Philadelphia Fire," "HomeWood Trilogy" and "The stories of John Edgar Wideman."



"I write to learn things. Writing is a tool for understanding the world," said Wideman. "I write about things that are important to me."

adventura travel
549-1256 Amherst Cerriage Shops 253 N. Pleasant
584-9441 Northampton 122 Main
Open Sat.
"Best of the Valley" Award
We Can Save You Time & Money
Senior • Student • Business • Vacation Travel
AIR • CRUISE • RAIL • RESORTS
Europe • Asia • Caribbean • USA

Lincoln Real Estate
has the best selection of 1, 2, & 3 bedroom Uptown Apartments with Gas Heat.
We begin showing apartments in April and May for June or September Occupancy.
253-7879 • 25 N. Pleasant St.

From $199 Each Way
LONDON
Eurail Passes Issued on the Spot!
All other Rail Passes Also Available
Hong Kong $469
Paris $219
Brussels $252
* Departure from New York
Council Travel
Fares are 1/9 round trips. Departure from Boston unless otherwise indicated. Taxes and surcharges not included. Fares subject to change. Student or Faculty I.D. may be required.
79 S. Pleasant Street, 2nd Floor Amherst, MA 0102
413-256-1261

The TOC LOUNGE
Tonight: Sox at 7:00
Wednesday: Bruins at 7:30
DRINK SPECIALS • MUNCHIES
11TH FLOOR CAMPUS CENTER•POSITIVE I.D. REQUIRED

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Add it up — the scores tally high for the much anticipated Violent Femmes, who closed out Spring Concert with a bang.

Spring Concert 1994

Violent Femmes
Black Uhuru
Buffalo Tom
Taj Mahal
Synaesthesia

Collegian Photo Essay by Jessica Taverna and Aram Comjean

JESSICA TAVERNA / COLLEGIAN

Pond-side mud wrestling was just as popular as most of the bands.

JESSICA TAVERNA / COLLEGIAN

Lucky concert-goers enjoyed some great tunes while riding the waves, crowd surfing.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Synaesthesia fulfilled its promise as an upcoming band, gearing the crowd up for a good show despite the less-than- uplifting weather.

GEO

continued from page 1

racist because it was all white, and that one of it's members was a racist. They asked for the removal of the seat," Adkins said.

On May 8, GSS members of GSS sent a memorandum to Sherlock regarding the Personnel Committee. The memorandum spoke about several problems with the Committee, including concerns that the Committee does not represent the campus in diversity among its members.

It has come to our attention that the composition of the GEO Personnel Committee is not representative of the social and cultural diversity among graduate students. Furthermore, we were dismayed to learn of the discriminatory way in which "extensions" of term limits are being decided," said members of GSS in a memorandum.

The memorandum talked about Wen Ping Jin, who is reapplying for her position as organizer. The Personnel Committee arbitrarily ruled that no extensions will be granted, even though the year before Tris Carpenter, Political Advocate, was given an extension. GSS feels that the Committee is being discriminatory.

"This is an outrage because it effectively says that Ms. Jin's position as organizer of the Chinese community is not equally important as that of the Political Advocate. Furthermore, this action of the Personnel Committee raises our suspicions as it smells of racism," said GSS members in the memorandum.

According to Adkins, the Committee never made that decision, and is considering Jin's reapplication.

On Saturday Ivatury spoke with Sherlock in a phone conversation about the Committee, said Adkins. Ivatury demanded that GEO give GSS two seats on the Personnel Committee.

"There is a proper democratic process in order to be seated, they are going completely outside this process," said Matayа.

It's not too late! Why not check out RESUME EXPERT!

- Affordable job search tool available at the UMASS Career Center
- Computerized job matching system and resume writing tool all in one
- Way to get your resume in the hands of employers within 24 hours
- Good entry level jobs requiring a college degree for a variety of majors
- Listings often are from UMASS alumni preferring to hire UMASS grads

RESUME EXPERT....DON'T LEAVE CAMPUS WITHOUT IT. Questions? Contact:
Jackie Mauer
UMASS career Center
TEL: 545-6257 FAX: 545-4426

JOB OPPORTUNITY

OUTSTANDING CAREER OPPORTUNITY WITH NATIONAL COMPUTER FIRM
TECHNICAL SUPPORT REPRESENTATIVE
Responsibilities include assisting our customers in system implementation, and product training and support - both on site and via telephone. Must be willing to travel. UNIX, spreadsheet, database, and report generator experience necessary. Business and people orientation a must. Comprehensive salary/benefits provided. Send resume and salary history in confidence to:
Customer Services Manager
P.O. Box 178
Springfield, MA 01101

PUT WHAT'S IN YOUR HEAD ON YOUR HEAD. H.T.P.

191 N. Pleasant St. Amherst 253-2973
J•RICH CLOTHING FOR MEN
22 Masonic St. Northampton 586-6336
Open 7 days • Thursday nights in Northampton

Don't miss a beat. Be in the know. Collegian.

GOOD USED - CLOTHING - RECEIVE 50% OFF By presenting this Ad Special good through May Orange tags excluded
SALVATION ARMY THRIFT STORE 253-4747
159 No. Pleasant St. Behind Rens Mobil (Amherst Parking in Rear)

Resumé Package
- 50 copies on Your Choice of 25% Cotton Paper
- 2 Business Day Service
- 1 Page Typeset

With Coupon $19.95!!
CopyCat PRINT SHOP "It's Spectacular In Impact By Excellence!"
228 Triangle St., Amherst 549-3840
32 Pleasant St., Northampton 586-1332

LBG
PEER COUNSELLING COLLECTIVE
Call: 549-2671 ext. 316 or Walk in 371B
University Health Services
Tuesday & Thursday 5-9pm.

PUBLIC SALE
U.S. CUSTOMS ABANDONED RUGS
Handmade silk & wool oriental rugs, acquired at U.S. Customs plus others will be sold to the general public. Sale includes: certified carpets from Persia, India, Russia, Turkey, Egypt, Pakistan, China and more. A very large selection of Kashan, Kerman, Bidjar, Nain, Gum, Herekе, Sarouk, Isfahan, & more in sizes from 1x1 to 12x18. Some kilims & village rare pieces along with collectables, tribal rugs & master weaver pieces.
Sat. Only May 14, at the Amherst Junior High
Hours: 10am to 5pm
all rugs 50% to 70% off
I-91, Exit 19, onto Rt. 9 East for approx. 7 miles, at light (Amherst College) take left onto N.Pleasant St., straight through 3 lights (less 1st flight) onto 170 Chestnut St. Rt. 202, at flashing light take Pelham Hill Rd. Continue through Amherst, 4th flight after traffic light onto High St. - Info!
Terms: Cash, Check, Visa/MC. Info: (800) 966-6820

Calvin and Hobbes By Bill Watterson

Jim's Journal By Jim

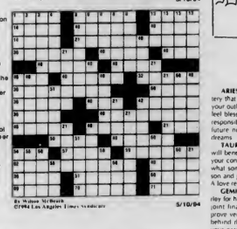
Without Porpoise By Kennet Dail

Bruno By C. Baldwin

Big Man on Campus By Dave Schneider

Daily Crossword
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe

ACROSS
1 Small opening
5 Pub entertainment
10 Emulated
14 Bergamo currency
15 Very foolish fellow
16 A Roosevelt
17 Coach Stagg
18 Simian's tomai wear?
20 Part of a fireplace
22 Brighton sandhill
23 Meadow
24 Track preliminaries
26 Ancient manner
26 G.I.'s address
30 Pagar sounds
32 Concierge a bellwick
36 O'Reilly of M*A*S*H
38 Positive
39 Stair part
40 Gooey stuff
42 Missionary Junipero
43 Words of comprehension
44 In error
46 Secretaries, e.g.
48 Therefore
49 Asses et al.
50 Kind of palm
52 Add up
54 The Altar in the sky
57 Koran chapter
59 Better groomed
62 Stubborn
65 — disc: kneeling stool
66 Commune near Padua
67 — Flow, Scotland
68 Soprano Lily
69 Ponce de —
70 Of an ecological succession stage

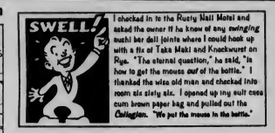


71 Let it stand

DOWN
1 Bridge coup
2 South American capital
3 Locomotives
4 Discrimination
5 Certain line of verse
6 Agitation
7 Orange cover
8 Subway lines
9 Dictator's yeas?
10 Jenny
11 John — Jonas
12 Buffalo's waterfront
13 Computer input
18 Stingy essent
21 Exertion
25 Mine allotum
27 Old Testament book
28 Pungent
29 Easy assurance
31 Feather
33 Fowl pace?
34 Strayed
35 Instinct
37 Glimpsea
41 Force
42 Carved pillar
45 Teapot Dome was one
47 Window part
48 Editor Greeley
51 Conscrura
53 The Semi
54 First shepherd
55 Stratagem
56 Chorel voice
58 Hebrew month
60 "— kleine Nachtmusik"
61 Take it easy
63 Author Creighton
64 Carol Browner's org.

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

5/10/94



By Mitchell Jotte
5/10/94

Dining Commons Menu

LUNCH	DINNER
Ravioli Alfredo	Stir Fry Beef
Hamburger	Fettucini w/ Sausage
BASICS LUNCH	BASICS DINNER
Ravioli Alfredo	Stir Fry Tofu
Golden Burgers	Sesame Noodles

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Dan Wetzel
Copy Editor ..... Emily Marino
Photo Technician ..... Aram Comjean
Production Supervisor ..... Andrew Davidson
Production ..... Susan Nasberg, Gleeson

I checked in to the Rusty Nail Motel and asked the owner if he knew of any swinging sushi bar deli joints where I could hook up with a fix of Take Maki and Knucksurri on Rye. "The eternal question," he said, "is how to get the mousa out of the bottle." I thanked the wise old man and checked into room six sixty six. I opened up my suit case cum brown paper bag and pulled out the Collegian. "We put the mousa in the bottle."

For Everyone's Information
Submit your FYI to the Collegian and tell the world what they need to know. P.S. Type it.

Classifieds

- 20¢ per word per day for students
- All ads must be paid in cash 2 days in advance
- Ads may be placed at 113 Campus Center, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

$150 REWARD

For more information leading to the return of personal property stolen from 675 Main St Amherst
1 onkyo cd player ss# 2903000818
1 onkyo tape deck ss #6008012920
1 audio equalizer
2 pmi wooden crates holding aprox 30 cds each
1 giant atx 780 mhh bare suk g0125950
call Det Ron Young Amherst police 256-4011 or Chris 256-5877 or Mrs. C 1-442-9382 (no questions asked)

ACTIVITIES

All university women invited to rush Sigma Delta Tau
Mon 5/9 open house 6:30-8:30
Tue 5/10 study break 8-10
Wed 5/11 BBQ 5-7
Questions call Kristen 549-7875

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bed and Breakfast, downtown Amherst ideal for visiting parents and friends 549-0733

Jewish students for a physically and spiritually challenging summer in Israel call Israel Express 549-4094 or 800-459-7737

Play in a 3 on 3 basketball tournament in Worcester! Triple Crown Tourney to be held June 25-26 with chance to play in national finals. Call 549-4509 for info or pick up a flyer at Collegian

UMass Credit Union has car, personal, and computer loans. Rates as low as 7.95% .314 Student Union Building 545-2800

AUTO FOR SALE

82 Zephyr for sale; good for town 250 obo Call 587-0417

86 Toyota excellent, cassette & radio $1300 546-5741

88 Ford Escort AC radio 72K miles very good condition $2700 546-7210

87 Pont 6000 E6F moving to NY must sell great condition. $3100 253-9682

Dodge Aries 1982 wagon 108K AC/AT well maintained $1000 call Toby 549-4643

Renault Alliance 1985 I'm moving so must sell $0 665-1174

CAPE COD RENTAL

West Yarmouth 6 room 4 bedrooms sleeps 8 near everything 253-7436 508-775-4776 $6,000

CONDO FOR SALE

N. Amherst 2 br Townehouse. Renovated! Custom woodwork AC. Washer hook up and more. Must sell. Reduced to 54,000 253-3700

FOR RENT

1 bedroom in a large house with inground pool. $200 available immediately 256-0475

1 bedroom in 2 bedroom apt Puffton vlg fully furnished 2000 mo w/ fall option call Geogge 549-9186

1 bedroom apt Colonial Village 400/month start June 1. Franz/ Janet 256-8823

1 bedroom avail. May1 farmhouse in Hadley on bus. $225 585-0043

1 bedroom in Amherst house 202 50+ Steve 253-9231

1 bdrm for summer only $230 call 253-0672 after 5pm

1 bdrm Puffton avail! west fall sign over lease John/Tad 549-7463

2 apts, 3 br and 1 br in Farmhouse, bike to UMass, yard, deck, near golf Puffers Pond, 665+ 480+ 586-0748

2 bdrm apt Colonial Village fall option 450 per mnth avail June 1 Call 253-2565

2 bedroom apt, summer w/ fall option Convenient location on bus route 1.5 miles from campus 1 from town Hardwood floor, low rent. 242/ month/ person call 253-9879

2 bedroom Brandywine apt 635/ mo inc heat available June 1 549-6503

2 bdrm pufftonTake over our lease starting June 1 with option for fall renewal call Tad at 549-7640.

2 bedroom Puffton Apt avail 6/1 556B/ mth incl heat/ hot wa call 549-5648

2 bedroom Puffton take over our lease in quiet new complex! Two bathrooms on bus route call 549-8315

2 bedroom apartment at Brandywine. 3rd floor pondside. $770/ month including heat! Available June 1st. Call 549-5465 Tracey or Beth

2 bedroom on Sunset Ave across from Patterson 2 bath, large hall large basement approx 800/month call Steve 549-4527

2 br near town and campus avail 6/1 253-4890

3 bd w/ heated basement 1 1/2 bath 1/2 mile to campus On bus routes Call 549-8813

3 bedroom Puffton apt new dishwasher and new fridge. a must see- take over June 1 call ASAP 549-2919

3 big bedrooms 1 5 bath townehouse sliding glass door to patio available May 25 for summer with fall option dishwasher, hot water included 549-4207

4 bed house Northampton Near stores but private $825 plus Sept No pets Shiloh Realty 584-3435

4 bedroom 2 bath great location 1/2 mile to town on bus route Avail June 1 253-3023

4br large bright, walk to UMass center bus Laundry $1000 mth heat + hw incl 586-0746

5 bedroom 2 bath hubs basement bus route Amherst 256-3138

6 bedroom, 2 bath large house Main Street June 1st 253-2847

25" stereo remote TV & speakers from your pulbrother like new cheap moving & free Nintendo included 549-8879

1992 unisex miyata hybrid sac $150 includes book rack pad $450 great commuter call Audrey 256-1521

Fender bassman amp 175 W All new tubes 2-12 inch spkr cab. $450 253-2163

Gibson LesPaul studio guitar $475 546-6960

Good furniture cheap call 549-4580

Graduating all bedroom furniture cheap! double bed, dresser, IBM compatible computer, desk Marlene 256-6329

One bedroom set 2 twin size mattress and box spring other furniture Must sell by 5-19-94 all mint cond $49-8240

Queen sized Tuban stained dresser $80/4 Call Leigh 256-0738

Small microwave Ideal for any dorm room! $60 or BO 546-5700

Two one way tickets to Kansas City June 15 5140 each or 2/ $250 (413) 586-5040 or (413) 737-1787 (evenings/weekend)

Watch batteries ear piercing hoop earrings. Starting at $2.00, diamond studs, repairs Grad graduation gifts from glass to gold Silversmiths designs 254 N Pleasant Street 253-3324 open 7 days

FOUND

Found keys at Merrill main entrance May 5th at 12:00pm please respond to the Collegian 545-3500 ask for Mary

Found pair of glasses in case. Call to identify 549-7331

Found keys at Merrill main entrance May 5th at 12:00pm please respond to the Collegian 545-3500 ask for Mary

HELP WANTED

Activist- summer jobs for the environment 60% of the volunteers in MA aren't safe for fishing or swimming. Work with MassPIRG, the state's leading environmental group, to protect our rivers, learn campaign skills, and make a difference! $2500-$3500/ summer Call Jodi at 256-8434

Alaska summer employment Earn up to 8000+ in two months. Room + board! Transportation! Male/Female No experience necessary! (206) 545-4155 ext A5001

Camp Athletic Director Coed camp in Adirondacks Mts. Must have teaching and or athletic director background 1-800-ITS-FUN (487-3866)

Childcare wanted for 2 boys, 8 and 4 years old. Responsible person with car needed for occasional weekdays late June to mid August Experience needed Karen 256-1834

Counselors Camp Emerson, coed Massachusetts Swimming, boating, field water sports, arts/crafts, theatre, woodworking, rocketry, archery, computer, yearbook, photography, video, radio, more! Super kids, great food, friendly fun! No general counselors. 800-955-CAMP

Counselors Prestigious coed Berkshires, MA summer camp seeks skilled college juniors, seniors, and grads. Generals and specialists in tennis, athletics, swimming, watersports, theatre, dance, arts/crafts, arts, newspaper. Have a rewarding and enjoyable summer! Salary plus room and board. Call Camp Taconic 800-762-2820.

Earn $110/ day this summer Experienced truck drivers wanted for part time summer work. Approximately ten days in both June and August. Truck driving experience a must. Call (508) 653-1744 or (508) 653-7422

Fight pollution staying in the Valley or moving to Boston? Earn up to $4000 this summer working with Clean Water Action. Join our pollster, pay and election campaigns staff! Great folks, big fun, great pay. Call 584-9830

Postal Jobs Available! Many positions. Great benefits Call 1-800-436-4365 ext P 3008

P/T female personal care attendant for retired professor. Under ten hours/ week. Flexible schedule. Spanish helpful. Experience preferred but will train. Call Dianne after 4pm 253-0977

Sitter Rutland MA person to care for 3 children ages 6sy 10 girl 8 girl 6 must be capable of cooking, possess drivers license 5 days per week at childrens home possible live in arrangements non smoker hours + wage to be discussed employment through the summer. Kids are very active examples baseball/rollerblades soccer horseback riding gymnastics sitter to participate 508-886-8207

Subjects needed for muscle soreness study. Openings beginning May 16 and throughout the summer. Non- weight trained males and females 18-35. 4-5 hrs over 8-10 days. $$ compensation. Contact Sue or Steve 545-6072

Summer jobs Painting locally with prominent commercial co. must be hardworking, experience desirable $6.6/hr to start Hrs are 8-5 M-F or Hrly 253-9434

Summer jobs: Telefund a thing! $5.50/ hr Plus bonuses, flexible schedule, great experience! Call 545-3508 or stop by the basement of Memorial Hall

Summer work Local branches of international marketing firm have several summer openings ideal for students. Earn $8-$15/ to start management opportunities. Build resume. Positions available throughout Mass, Conn, NY. Amherst area call 549-5333 Greater Soho call 733-0057.

Superior baseball and basketball coaches wanted for coed summer camp in western Mass. Must have 2+ years of coaching experience with children to camp. Dates: 6/18 -8/20 Call Camp Emerson at 1-800-955-CAMP today!

Waitstaff/ bartenders Trattoria Gaspero's Restaurant, 1177 N Pleasant St. Amherst, 549-9330 apply within after 5:00pm

LAWN CARE SPECIAL

Complete lawn maintenance lawn seeding+new + old liming, terrilizing- weekly mowing- property clearing- rototilling- great spring special! Free estimates call Dave 467-9158- please leave message

LOST

Lost looking for woman who called about babysitting for our daughter we met on campus one afternoon. Your message got erased please call back 549-9854

LOST female tabby grey/white/ orange tabby 8 mo old Squire Village 4/3 $100 reward 665-0518

Lost student daily planner and blue fabric pencil bag in GRT 14th floor Reward 253-8175

MUSICIANS

Band seeks male vocalist 4 all styles 546-6312 Pete

NEED A JOB?

Drivers wanted to deliver the Collegian for the fall semester. Must be available until 11 o.om. Apply at the Collegian office in the basement of the Campus Center or call for Jim at 5-3500

PERSONALS

Colleen Bakutis Well pretty, you had to wait four years but you finally got your wish as the personals! Happy Graduation! Love your pretty roommate

Dear UMass students, best of luck for the finals and have a great summer! Sakichan & Miko-chan, thanx for being my tutors! Have a safe trip back home. Luv, Sab-chan

DU AZ's- I knew you'd make it! Down 1 4 me! -Guy

Going Greek will be at Newman Center Mon May 9 and Tues May 10 10 am to 5pm sweatshirts, hats and paddles

Korie, Happy 21st! Be careful! Bail increases for second offense! Love MJT

Kris Hi! Hi! Hi! Hi! Hi! Hi! Love, Alyssa

Marc We've locked high and low, and we still can't find Waldo! Kristen and Anita

Susan- dude! secretary! dawdover this one really IS for you good luck with "your" show love your mmie and the girl with no middle name

RIDE TO CALIFORNIA

Ride to California Santa Cruz/ Monterey area. Driver is clean and sober. Leaving May 11/12 call 586-4704 ask for Chris

RIDE WANTED

Going to Floyd? Me too and I need a ride May 18th. call Kathy 549-4237

ROOMMATE WANTED

1 rm roommate needed for great house upmon $212/mo call Ryan or Dan 549-2983

Free 1st month's rent - 1/ non smoker to share a room in MA Valley lease ending Dec 31 Call 256-6448

Huge double in two bedroom apt. Great location on bus route 549-0377

Need 2m roommates, non smoking. 2 large bedrooms. 190 ea June through August 549-4720

One female roommate needed to share an apt w/ 3 females starting Sept 1 546-0958 Jen/Katy

One person for large room $170.00 Call 665-7804

Roommate needed M/F for June 1st 2 bdrm please call Tracy 665-5173

Roomate Wanted to share 2 bdrm apt in Sunderland Must be quiet non-smoker & non-drinker Start Sept 1 Call 665-1172

SERVICES

Do you have questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find out! Contact the Student Legal Services Office, 922 Campus Center, 545-1995

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring, confidential support 549-1906

SUMMER SUBLETS

1 bdrm available Mill Valley Estates Price negotiable. Ask for Mark. 256-6786

1 bdrm in furn 6 bdrm house bus rt wash dryer fall opt 200/mo Joe 253-9949

1 bedroom available in fully furnished apartment on Main Street Call Jeff 253-4272

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom apt on bus route Rolling Green option for fall females nonsmokers 256-0750

1 bdrm rm 2 bdrm apartment includes everything on bus line Amherst $175 549-8445

1 or 2 bedrooms available for summer in great apt First weeks rent free! Price negotiable 549-6038

1 or 2 bedrooms available in house on Pine Street Call 549-2660 or 8230

1-2 BDRM TOWNEHOUSE UPTOWN On busline, safe secure Building 550/m +util 256-1906 w Fall option

1-4 big bdrm apt Jun-Aug, cheap, on bus line 253-7609

2 bdrm Brandywine regs 3rd floor pondside furnished only 650+ a month or rent 1 bdrm for 235 Rent negotiable Contact James 549-8861

2 bdrms in apt avail June $200 & 170/mon Female, non-smokers 253-9568

2 bdrm rm 7 rm house Mery amanities, on bus route avail 6/1 Call 546-3957, 546-4268

2 br near town and campus avail 6/1 fall option 253-4890

2 open br rm 4 br house on bus rt 3 miles to UMass w/ wd big deck, yard Call 549-8353

3 bedrooms On busline Really close! Call us! 253-7694

3 bdrm Puffton sublet furnished bar 650/ mo PuzTex 549-7463

3 bedroom townehouse apt cheap rent for the summer option for fall lease 549-4132

4 bedroom on Main St Rent negotiable Will rent individual rooms Call Jaye or Amy 549-0385

4 bdr summer sublet $200 253-4623 cool

4 br Amherst large bright great location heat hot water incl reasonable 586-0746

$485 a month or best offer! 2 bedroom apartment in Colonial Village on bus route washer and dryer in basement summer sublet with fall option 253-7583

$500 or BO Cheap 2bdrm Brandywine 3rd floor pondside w/ fall option call 549-7791

A Great Deal! Live in the country for no pencil beg in GRT 14th floor Reward 253-8175

Alpine Commons sublet 4 bedrooms, $600, utilities included. Price negotiable Call after 6pm 253-4615

Amazing sublet in Crestview apts available 5/20/94 on bus line, clean, perfect for two. Contact 549-5127 for details.

Awesome Summer sublet 2 minute walk to campus or to town 2 Baths, 2 huge rooms, sleeps 4 Deck and skylight! Call ASAP 546-0179

Beautiful house on Fearing St Very close to campus/ uptown. 3 bedrooms 2 full baths for 3-4 people 6/1- 8/31 call 546-2312/ 2025. 1050/ mo negotiable

Brandywine sublet fully furnished w/2 nice couches, 4 beds, more. Only $655/mo top floor. Fall option Rent negotiable 549-6042

Cheap! 3-4 bdrms uptown will rent individually call 253-7915 or 546-0511

Cheap summer sublet 2 bdrm Puffton 549-5975

Cheap One Bedroom Downtown. Big living room and dining room. Only summer rent. If interested, contact Kelli 546-0559

Cheapest sublet best offer will be accepted asking 200/mo! one bedroom in two bedroom apt. heat incl, dishwasher, laundry, on bus route, fall opt 253-4731 Emily apt above avail for best offer asking 500/ mo 253-4731

Fly Place! I have a Luxury 2 bed rm, 2 bathrm pad for the summer solstace Large living area, dishwasher, all at includes heat/ hot water Call 256-8843, ask for Hasboy Yumi

FREE LAUNDRY Looking for a place to live for the summer of fall option? Free laundry. On bus route Interested? Call Mari 253-4201

Great 2 bedroom apt. on bus line, quiet, free cable, furnished, $485 available June-Aug call 253-4724

Great condition & location Main St across bus rt 1 400m 546-0543

If you have a car, I have a perfect summer sublet $275 plus cheap utilities Call Andrew 545-1864 day, 549-4452 evenings

Live the high life live in Mill Valley this summer! 2 bed 2 full baths on bus route You can't beat it! Price negotiable. Call Eric, Donna, or Christina 253-4189

Mill Valley 2bdrm $707 RM Call 256-1272

Mint studio! Excellent location! Right in Amherst center! Furnished, windows, 520/ mo 905 $375/ per month Call 256-0035 open for fall. New rents- not the giant lease!

Only For Second Section One Bedroom in 2 Bedroom apt on bus line call 546-3979 $300 including everything

Sublet Mill Valley apt 253-5331

Sublet uptown studio apt for the summer best offer! Call 253-2353

Summer sublet Puffton 3 bdrm 2 bath free cable 549-5998

Summer Sublet
5 Single Bdrms close to campus/ bus rt $160 00 per month per room 549-8703

Summer Sublet in 7 bdrm house, on bus route, kitchen incl. 546-6764

Summer Sublet w/fall option 2bdrm apt in Sunderland $480 for one or $240 each for 2 utilities inc. roommate preferred 665-1172

TRAVEL

Bunny Beaches $189 R/T Cancun or Mexico Europe $189 Airtech 617-254-2819 Call for program descriptions!

WANTED

Need 3bdrm apt for fall please help Kirsten 253-3127

Sublets, rooms, housing needed this summer. Contact Theresa, for SBMC at 586-8168 10 am-8pm

Center of town 1,2 & 3 bedroom apts For 6/1 or 9/1 Now being shown Call for appointment Lincoln Real Estate 253-7879

Free laundry, cable 3 bg bedrooms avail 6/1 549-6954 Grantwood Dr

Get a free month's rent 2 br Brandywine apt some furniture included. available June 1 549-6819

Gilreath Manor- Hobart Lane 3-5 bedrooms available June 1st call 549-4788

Huge double in the two bedroom apt great location on bus route 549-0377

Large 2 bdrm apt Near Hobart Ln starts 6/1 $630/ month 549-5456

Large 4 broom 2 bath apartment for rent starting June 1 everything included: even ac conditioned. On bus route, close to bar, convenient store, everything. Must see to believe size. Call 253-0551 ASAP or you'll miss it

Location Location Fearing St 4 bedrooms summer sublet fall option Porch & yard $1140 549-6818

Mill Valley 2 br 2 bath AC furnished 6/ 1 with fall option 256-4690

Sign early 3 bedroom in Puffton 549-8707

South Amherst four bedrooms two baths big basement wood stove huge yard community pool hoop on bus route starting June 1 253-3071

Summer sublet w/ option for next year graduating senior's vacating very spacious 2 floor, 3 bedroom townehouse apartment, $824/ month 549-0032

Sunny room close to campus own entrance on back terrace 400 per month We'll pay you 100 to take over lease 549-6736

Take over our lease 6/1 Brandywine 3rd floor! 549-4546

Townehouse 3 bedroom, 1 1/2 baths gorgeous end unit quiet neighbors on bus route huge living room, air conditioning, dishwasher, pets OK begins 6/1 with option 549-0839

FOR SALE

25" stereo remote tv & speakers from rear pulbrother like new cheap moving & free Nintendo included 549-8879

1992 unisex miyata hybrid sac $150 includes book rack pad $450 great commuter call Audrey 256-1521

Fender bassman amp 175 W All new tubes 2-12 inch spkr cab. $450 253-2163

Gibson LesPaul studio guitar $475 546-6960

Good furniture cheap call 549-4580

Graduating all bedroom furniture cheap! double bed, dresser, IBM compatible computer, desk Marlene 256-6329

One bedroom set 2 twin size mattress and box spring other furniture Must sell by 5-19-94 all mint cond $49-8240

Queen sized Tuban stained dresser $80/4 Call Leigh 256-0738

Small microwave Ideal for any dorm room! $60 or BO 546-5700

Two one way tickets to Kansas City June 15 5140 each or 2/ $250 (413) 586-5040 or (413) 737-1787 (evenings/weekend)

Watch batteries ear piercing hoop earrings. Starting at $2.00, diamond studs, repairs Grad graduation gifts from glass to gold Silversmiths designs 254 N Pleasant Street 253-3324 open 7 days

FOUND

Found keys at Merrill main entrance May 5th at 12:00pm please respond to the Collegian 545-3500 ask for Mary

Found pair of glasses in case. Call to identify 549-7331

Found keys at Merrill main entrance May 5th at 12:00pm please respond to the Collegian 545-3500 ask for Mary

HELP WANTED

Activist- summer jobs for the environment 60% of the volunteers in MA aren't safe for fishing or swimming. Work with MassPIRG, the state's leading environmental group, to protect our rivers, learn campaign skills, and make a difference! $2500-$3500/ summer Call Jodi at 256-8434

Alaska summer employment Earn up to 8000+ in two months. Room + board! Transportation! Male/Female No experience necessary! (206) 545-4155 ext A5001

Camp Athletic Director Coed camp in Adirondacks Mts. Must have teaching and or athletic director background 1-800-ITS-FUN (487-3866)

Childcare wanted for 2 boys, 8 and 4 years old. Responsible person with car needed for occasional weekdays late June to mid August Experience needed Karen 256-1834

Counselors Camp Emerson, coed Massachusetts Swimming, boating, field water sports, arts/crafts, theatre, woodworking, rocketry, archery, computer, yearbook, photography, video, radio, more! Super kids, great food, friendly fun! No general counselors. 800-955-CAMP

Counselors Prestigious coed Berkshires, MA summer camp seeks skilled college juniors, seniors, and grads. Generals and specialists in tennis, athletics, swimming, watersports, theatre, dance, arts/crafts, arts, newspaper. Have a rewarding and enjoyable summer! Salary plus room and board. Call Camp Taconic 800-762-2820.

Earn $110/ day this summer Experienced truck drivers wanted for part time summer work. Approximately ten days in both June and August. Truck driving experience a must. Call (508) 653-1744 or (508) 653-7422

Fight pollution staying in the Valley or moving to Boston? Earn up to $4000 this summer working with Clean Water Action. Join our pollster, pay and election campaigns staff! Great folks, big fun, great pay. Call 584-9830

Postal Jobs Available! Many positions. Great benefits Call 1-800-436-4365 ext P 3008

P/T female personal care attendant for retired professor. Under ten hours/ week. Flexible schedule. Spanish helpful. Experience preferred but will train. Call Dianne after 4pm 253-0977

Sitter Rutland MA person to care for 3 children ages 6sy 10 girl 8 girl 6 must be capable of cooking, possess drivers license 5 days per week at childrens home possible live in arrangements non smoker hours + wage to be discussed employment through the summer. Kids are very active examples baseball/rollerblades soccer horseback riding gymnastics sitter to participate 508-886-8207

Subjects needed for muscle soreness study. Openings beginning May 16 and throughout the summer. Non- weight trained males and females 18-35. 4-5 hrs over 8-10 days. $$ compensation. Contact Sue or Steve 545-6072

Summer jobs Painting locally with prominent commercial co. must be hardworking, experience desirable $6.6/hr to start Hrs are 8-5 M-F or Hrly 253-9434

Summer jobs: Telefund a thing! $5.50/ hr Plus bonuses, flexible schedule, great experience! Call 545-3508 or stop by the basement of Memorial Hall

Summer work Local branches of international marketing firm have several summer openings ideal for students. Earn $8-$15/ to start management opportunities. Build resume. Positions available throughout Mass, Conn, NY. Amherst area call 549-5333 Greater Soho call 733-0057.

Superior baseball and basketball coaches wanted for coed summer camp in western Mass. Must have 2+ years of coaching experience with children to camp. Dates: 6/18 -8/20 Call Camp Emerson at 1-800-955-CAMP today!

Waitstaff/ bartenders Trattoria Gaspero's Restaurant, 1177 N Pleasant St. Amherst, 549-9330 apply within after 5:00pm

LAWN CARE SPECIAL

Complete lawn maintenance lawn seeding+new + old liming, terrilizing- weekly mowing- property clearing- rototilling- great spring special! Free estimates call Dave 467-9158- please leave message

LOST

Lost looking for woman who called about babysitting for our daughter we met on campus one afternoon. Your message got erased please call back 549-9854

LOST female tabby grey/white/ orange tabby 8 mo old Squire Village 4/3 $100 reward 665-0518

Lost student daily planner and blue fabric pencil bag in GRT 14th floor Reward 253-8175

MUSICIANS

Band seeks male vocalist 4 all styles 546-6312 Pete

NEED A JOB?

Drivers wanted to deliver the Collegian for the fall semester. Must be available until 11 o.om. Apply at the Collegian office in the basement of the Campus Center or call for Jim at 5-3500

PERSONALS

Colleen Bakutis Well pretty, you had to wait four

Sports

Murphy wins injury battle

By ANDREW BRYCE
Collegian Staff

The fight against reality.

Jeremy Murphy, a 5-foot-11, 185 junior attackman for the University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse team, has participated in that battle many of times relating to his athletic career. They have been hard-fought battles, ones that consist of long roads back to recovery. Murphy's opponent? His knee.

Round No. 1 of the fight took place when Murphy was a sophomore standout for Herkimer (NY) Junior College. Just four games into the season, Murphy had racked up 15 goals and 16 assists. With the season looking promising, the promise was unfortunately broken.

During the fifth game of the season, Murphy went to cut up field, and tore the ACL (Anterior Cruiciate Ligament) in his left knee. The tear marked the end of the season, as well as his JUCO career. It also marked Murphy's first journey down that road called recovery.

Enter Massachusetts Coach Ted Garber, who recruited the touted All-American prior to the knee injury. Garber was in a position where he was relying on an injured recruit. He could have backed off, like other Division I programs. He could have given up on him. But he didn't, and Murphy is grateful.

"When I came up on the recruiting trip, (Coach Garber) told me it was just a knee injury," said Murphy. "He had one himself, and he understood what was happening. He was the only Division I coach that stuck with me. I had other big universities (including Syracuse and Loyola) looking at me.

"(Jeremy's) a fiery competitor," said Garber. "We knew that if he went through the necessary rehabilitation, he'd be able to do the right thing. And, it has worked to our benefit. He's been a key member of this team ever since."

Round No. 2 started two weeks before the 1993 season, his first for Massachusetts. During practice, Murphy went to make a quick cut in the grass, his knee swiveled, and went out. Out as in out for the entire season.

It was this season that Round No. 3 occurred. After a preseason that saw Murphy improve his shot with the help of assistant coach Greg Canella, and after a four goal game against Hofstra, it happened again. That bum knee gave out in the Fleet Invitational Tournament finals against Syracuse. Yet another setback for Jeremy Murphy.

Fortunately, the injury was not as serious as the previous two, and Murphy was back playing in just under two weeks. After taking a couple of runs in the Delaware game on April 16, Murphy took advantage of his playing opportunities against Boston College three games later, scoring four goals.

Then, along came the Army game last weekend, and another four goal game for Murphy. With the standout performance came yet another accomplished goal — Murphy (15 goals, 1 assist) finished his first season in some time.

When speaking to Murphy, the credit he gives to others is expressed with ultimate sincerity in his voice. The turbulations he has experienced can account to that. The first man Murphy mentions is his Juco coach at Herkimer, Paul Wehrum.

"He's the all of my credit for everything I have done thus far," said Murphy. "I almost got choked up just talking about him sometimes. He has had such an impact on my life, he just sling-shotted me into things."

"He teaches about life through lacrosse, which means more to me than anything, because there is such a life after lacrosse."

Murphy also notes the support that he has had from his family through his injury-riddled career, and speaks about them with a sense of pride.

"My mother (Gail), father (Jack) and my brother Mark have lived through my sitting on the couch, my surgeries and the phone calls back home from school. They are the biggest support group," said Murphy.

This summer, Murphy will be amongst the STX All-Stars, a collection of college as well as former college players, who will represent the United States in a tournament down in Australia (along with Gorillas teammate Vin Deilo-Icano).

After three reconstructive knee surgeries, including seven different injuries to the knee after the first operation, the soon-to-be-senior has what Garber termed as "a good head on his shoulders." Through the frustrating times, Murphy has pushed himself to the limit — and has succeeded.

JOSH COLEMAN/ COLLEGIAN

Jeremy Murphy, the junior attackman for the University of Massachusetts men's lacrosse team, has overcome adversity his entire collegiate athletic career, including this season. Murphy finished with 15 goals, including three, four goal games for the 8-5 Gorillas.

Minutemen travel to Durham, face UNH

ARAM COMEAN/ COLLEGIAN

The University of Massachusetts baseball team heads up north to face New Hampshire in Durham, NH. The Minutemen are the No. 1 team in the New England region.

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

Even though the quest for the conference post-season crown doesn't begin until Friday, the University of Massachusetts baseball team isn't resting on its laurels.

In the New England Division I coaches' baseball poll released yesterday, Massachusetts sits in the top spot as the number one team in the region, leapfrogging Northeastern, last week's number one, which beat the Minutemen, 3-1.

The Minutemen (28-15), the Atlantic 10 regular season champions for the first time in school history, take the field today in Durham, N.H., to face the University of New Hampshire, before heading back home to Amherst for Wednesday's home finale against Harvard.

Yet with an automatic bid to the NCAA tournament hanging in the balance for the winner of the A-10 tourney, it's hard to think that Massachusetts won't be looking ahead to St. Bonaventure, its first round opponent (Friday, 4:05 p.m.). The Bonnies and Minutemen know each other all too well after facing off this past weekend in Olean, N.Y., with Massachusetts sweeping the three-game series. This time, though, the teams will meet in Boyertown, Pa., to begin the post-season.

The Minutemen won the most games in conference history (19) after disposing of St. Bonaventure in three crucial victories which garnered them the title. Pitching wins championships, and in the doubleheader last Saturday, hurlers Peter Ferrari and Jay Murphy both blanked the Bonnies' offense.

However, the story of the season has been the Massachusetts offense. The Minutemen are hitting .330 as a team and are coming off an 18-5 title-clinching pounding of St. Bonaventure. Junior shortstop Greg LaRocca leads Massachusetts with a .389 average, good enough for fifth in the A-10. The Minuteman co-captain is coming off a two- homer, seven-RBI game on Sunday.

West Virginia is the second seed in the tournament and will battle third seed Rutgers in the nightcap on Friday. The two squads did not meet in the regular season; the three- game series was rained out and not rescheduled. The Mountaineers (32-16) are led offensively by first baseman Mark Landers, who is trying to become the third player in conference history to win the triple crown.

Landers is on top of the A-10 in average (.438), home runs (17) and RBI (65). Rutgers catcher Kevin James ranks second behind Landers in hitting with a .430 average.

Play resumes Saturday with the winners and losers meeting; the tournament is double elimination and the championship will be Sunday at 1:05 p.m. in Bear Stadium.

Memories of UMass sports

The University of Massachusetts and its 1993-94 athletic teams enjoyed much success during the three seasons. While I was not able to attend every single sports event during each season, I did have memories of certain sporting events in the past eight months.

The A-10 men's hoop final against Temple — Amazing. To see the Minutemen jump out to a 24-3 lead was absolutely amazing, considering they were going up against the likes of Aaron McKie, Eddie Jones and friends. It seemed like every player on Massachusetts played well that night.

Andrew Bryce

The Delaware football game — It was the homecoming game, there was a big crowd and it was the Minutemen who came out on top 43-29 in an exciting game. Unfortunately, despite the identical records of 8-3, and the Massachusetts win, it was the Blue Hens who made it into the playoffs, and not the Minutemen.

The Gorillas-Cadets lax game — The Gorillas, who failed to qualify for the post-season tournament, had one particular incentive for the game: Senior Day. And what better way to end an overtime game than to have senior Sam Joseph win the faceoff, pass it to senior Chris Nentwich, who in turn passes to senior Wes Depp, who puts it in the net at :12 into the extra session.

OK, maybe they could have got every senior into the game, and made everybody touch the ball before it went between the posts, but still...

The best seat in the pressbox — Thanks to one David Scott for putting me in the best seat in the eight-seat establishment someone calls the lacrosse pressbox. I had the best view of an electric socket that any sportswriter has ever had while covering a Gorilla lacrosse game. And, while doing the broadcast of the Army game for WMUA, I had to stick my head out the window, headset and all.

The field hockey team upsetting Old Dominion — The Minutewomen came up big one Saturday afternoon, shutting out three-time defending NCAA champion Old Dominion, as did Kyle Rothenberger, who as a freshman scored the game- winning goal.

The upset of North Carolina — I can remember that Thanksgiving weekend well because of Massachusetts' shocking overtime win. When Mike Williams hit the three, the party I had turned into a shouting match, as the Minutemen fans cheered and the Carolina fans bawled. Well, not really, but it was a memorable game.

The guy eating the chowder at the Massachusetts-Connecticut football game — There Morrissey, Greg and I were, scraping the bottom of the pot. Trying to find something like a potato or a clam at the bottom. Nope. I have reason to believe that the man ate the chowder right out of the pot instead of the bowl.

The women's soccer team making the Final Four — It only took one goal, but that's all the Minutewomen needed in defeating Connecticut in front of 2,000 plus fans. The goal came compliment of Rachel LeDuc, and the defense of All-American goaltender Briana Scurry. The only bad thing that occurred was having to go up against the incredible North Carolina, who won seven consecutive NCAA championships, in the semifiani round. And if you're wondering, yes, the Tar Heels won their eighth straight.

SAAC to run blood drive

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts has seen and heard about the success of its on the field, but now the athletes are trying to give something back to the community.

In conjunction with the Red Cross, the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee is sponsoring a blood drive tommorrow from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Campus Center.

The SAAC was formed last spring as part of an independent study by three former UMass athletes. They examined a program at Georgia Tech and other universities, designed to aid their student-athletes, and hoped to found something similar at UMass.

"Our goal is to foster a community of athletes," said SAAC president Kyri Sparks. "We want to promote a positive image of student-athletes at UMass and the Greater Amherst."

With the time constraints of games, practices and travel in addition to classes and homework, athletes often do not have time to get involved in other activities.

"Athletes don't have a lot of free time," said Sparks. "This will give them a chance to get involved in community service events."

At least 70 athletes are expected to donate blood or time at the drive.

"We're hoping that some of the recognition we've received, might bring some people to the blood drive," said Sparks.

Assistant Athletic Director Thorr Bjorn, and Mike Jenkins, the student athlete academic coordinator, have been working hard behind the scenes to help the fledgling Registered Student Organization get started.

Sparks hopes that the SAAC will create a feeling of community between all of the varsity teams.

"The more intra-athletic department support there is, the more successful each team will be," said Sparks. "Most students only support the few sports that are hyped by the media. Athletes recognize the work and dedication of all the teams. Athletes will be more likely to go and support each other if they know each other."

Say What?

"They stll have the rings. To get them, we're going to have to take them."

– New York Knicks guard Derek Harper on beating the Chicago Bulls in the Eastern Conference semifinal. The Knicks lead the series 1–0.

Finks remembered by friends

By ALAN SAYRE
Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — After surviving a challenge from Johnny Unitas for his starting quarterback's job, Jim Finks threw 26 interceptions. He promptly decided he'd be better off in the front office.

Good move. Over nearly three decades, Finks turned NFL losers at Minnesota, Chicago and New Orleans into winners before almost being hired as Pete Rozelle's successor as NFL commissioner.

The day after his death from lung cancer, Finks was remembered Monday as a visionary satisfied to do his work outside the spotlight and a leader whose success stemmed from positive thinking.

"Jim was a great man. He was a great leader," said Saints coach Jim Mora, who was hired by Finks in 1986 to improve a losing franchise best known for fans who wore bags over their heads.

"His influence, both in business and in life, will always be with us," Saints owner Tom Benson said.

Finks, who retired as Saints' president and general manager after learning of his illness in April 1993, died Sunday night at his home. He was 66.

Funeral plans were not complete Monday.

"Jim Finks has a vision for the game that stood the test of time," said Paul Tagliabue, who replaced Rozelle five years ago after Finks was unable to gain enough votes for the job.

Rozelle said Finks' versatility was evident in 1964, when he began building the Vikings into a championship team.

"Jim Finks was one of those rare individuals in sports who could do it all, and in fact did it all very well," Rozelle said. "It wasn't a coincidence that he also subsequently built winning clubs in Chicago and New Orleans."

"Football and the NFL has lost one of its great supporters," said New York Giants general manager George Young. "Jim was admired by his peers. He was a man of his word. He had strong opinions, but he recognized the right of other people to have their own opinion."

Daly inducted into Hall of Fame

By TRUDY TYNAN
Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD — Chuck Daly has won a lot of games in his time, from Punxsutawney to the NBA to the Olympics. But it's still not enough.

"It seems like I'm just getting started," said Daly, 62, the coach of the New Jersey Nets, who was enshrined in the Basketball Hall of Fame on Monday.

Also inducted were Louisville Coach Denny Crum and Italy's greatest coach Cesare Rubini, plus players Carol Blazejowski and Buddy Jeannette.

"I'm a lifer," said Daly, whose coaching career, including NBA and Ivy League titles and Olympic gold, began at Punxsutawney (PA) High School in 1955.

"The most fun in this business is winning and most of my winning has been on the professional level," he said. "Any loss is a bitter pill."

In 1983, Daly took over the Detroit Pistons, which had never had back-to-back winning seasons, and led them to NBA championships in 1989 and 1990. He also guided Pennsylvania to four Ivy League titles in the 1970s and a Dream Team of pro stars to the Olympic gold medal in Barcelona.

"All of those guys have everything material that you could have," he recalled. "To see the joy of those guys receiving a medal was kind of special."

Crum turned to John Wooden, his mentor at UCLA, to escort him down the red carpet to induction.

"He is the one who taught me everything I know about basketball," said Crum, who played for Wooden and then served as his assistant coach. "I wanted him to be part of this."

During his 23 years in Louisville, Crum's teams have won more than 73 percent of their games and NCAA championships in 1980 and 1986.

More than two dozen of Crum's former players — he has sent 22 on to the pros — chartered a plane to be at the ceremony.

"I am very, very proud as a woman to have been able to contribute to the sport," said Blazejowski, the most prolific scorer in the history of the women's game. During her four years at Montclair (N.J.) State, the girl who learned the game on the playgrounds playing with the guys, scored 3,199 points, a 31.7 per-game average.

"My dreams have come true," she said. When she was playing in the 1970s women could not make it to the NBA or the Hall of Fame, said Blazejowski, now a director of consumer products for the NBA. While she was proud, Rubini was ebullient.

"I am like on a cloud flying in the sky," said Rubini, 70, who built the Simmenthal Club of Milan and Italian basketball into an international contender in his 37 years as a coach and player. "I feel 50 years younger in my mind and heart."

"He opened the door for U.S. players in the Italian Leagues," said retired St. John's Coach and Hall of Famer Lou Carnesecca, a longtime friend. "He's been a real ambassador."

"It's an honor," said Carnesecca, who stepped in as Rubini's escort when U.S. Sen. Bill Bradley, D-New Jersey, could not leave Washington. Bradley, a Hall of Famer, played for Rubini's Milan team while studying at Oxford.

No inductee was enjoying himself more than Jeannette, 76, a standout guard in the early pro leagues, as he signed autograph after autograph.

"My arm is getting worn out," said the pro Rookie of the Year in 1938.

"They keep the names of the Veterans Committee and the Honors Committee secret," said Jeannette, who played on nine championship teams in four cities - Detroit, Sheboygan, Fort Wayne and Baltimore - during his 10-year playing career. "So, I've just been going around saying thanks to everyone I meet."

SPORTS NOTICE

•The UMass Sports Luncheon will be held tomorrow, May 11, from noon-1 p.m. in the Campus Center Auditorium. It will honor the student athletes who received the highest grade point average in each sport of the fall semester.

Guest speakers will include University President Michael Hooker and Athletic Director Bob Marcum.

If interested, call the Athletic Development at 545-4290 for reservations.

•A limited number of student positions will be available in the Sports Media Relations Office for the 1994-95 academic year. Interested students must have work study or be willing to work on a volunteer basis. Students must have strong writing skills and a substantial knowledge of sports. Please call 545-2439 to set up an appointment for an interview.

Ever wonder what we Collegianites look like? Now's your chance to find out! Pages 10–11

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN

Weather
Mostly sunny with highs in the upper 60s. Same for Thursday.

Wednesday
May 11, 1994
Volume CIII Issue 124

The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

World

PLO police arrive on Palestinian soil

RAFAH, Gaza Strip (AP) — PLO police, wearing green fatigues and berets adorned with eagles, arrived on Palestinian soil for the first time Tuesday as thousands of chanting Palestinians waited for the first sign that self-rule was really beginning.

The 150 police made "V" for victory signs and chanted "We are coming to you, Palestine," as they left Egypt.

As word spread that the Palestinian police had arrived at the Israeli-controlled Gaza side of the border station, a crowd of excited Palestinians swelled into the thousands, and Israeli forces struggled to keep them a mile away.

National

Dr. Death back in trouble

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Court of Appeals reinstated murder charges Tuesday against Dr. Jack Kevorkian in the deaths of two women and said there is no constitutional right to commit or assist suicide.

The court also ruled the state's assisted suicide ban invalid because it violates a requirement of the state constitution that each piece of legislation cover only one subject.

The court split 2-1 in favor of reinstating murder charges against Kevorkian in the October 1991 deaths of Marjorie Wantz and Sherry Miller.

The appeals court said the 1920 ruling was never overruled so it must be followed.

Postponement in label requirements

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food packagers stuck with millions of dollars in sudd-ro-outdated wrappers, cans and boxes are on the verge of winning a temporary reprieve from new food labeling requirements, the result of an intense three-week lobbying campaign.

Food and Drug Administration Commissioner D. Kessler gave his assent Tuesday to legislation that would give packagers until Aug. 18 to use up already-printed food containers that do not meet the labeling requirements that took effect Sunday.

State/Regional

Blackout in Western MA

The wonder of a solar eclipse, which has reconciled warring nations and verified Einstein's theory, stopped state residents in their tracks Tuesday and bonded them for a flickering moment in the firmament's boundless mystery.

"It looked like somebody's eyes and nose, and it was smiling," said Gregory Kerr, a sixth grader at Springfield's Rebecca Johnson School.

He and his classmates viewed the eclipse in the crystalline blue sky through special viewing glasses during a day of workshops at the city's Science Museum.

Across Massachusetts, workers sneaked from their offices for a peek, parents and teachers gave a science lesson to children, and astronomy buffs had a field day. Two skygazers stared upward from a downtown Springfield street, their eyes shielded by viewing shades but their lives exposed to passing traffic.

Solar eclipses have riveted the earthbound for millenia. An eclipse of the sun was said to persuade fighters from two warring Asian kingdoms, Lydia and Media, to make peace in the sixth century B.C.

Scientists from Aristotle onward have studied eclipses. The bending of light during a solar eclipse helped prove Einstein's theory of relativity in 1919.

Tuesday's eclipse, known as "annular" for the ring of sunlight that remained visible around the moon as it passed in front of the sun, reached its height early in the afternoon. The next such eclipse in the continental United States will be in 2012.

GEO responds to GSS' accusations

By JUSTIN DOYLE
Collegian Staff

The Graduate Student Senate at the University of Massachusetts responded to accusations made by the Graduate Employee Organization yesterday.

President of GSS, Shyamala Ivatury, and Vice President Julia Mahoney denied the Senates' involvement with the disappearance of GEO's office key and their alleged lockout.

"The business of GSS locking them out of the office is completely false. If they lost their key it is their own fault," Mahoney said.

GEO was locked out of its office on Monday, when the key to the door was unable to be found. Officials in GEO felt that the GSS had locked them out of their office because of its Personnel Committee.

GEO cited a memorandum sent on May 8, to the chair Personnel Committee Jean Sherlock from members of the GSS as one of the reasons for the lockout. The memorandum accused GEO of being discriminatory towards the way the committee grants extensions.

The story about the lockout is just a cover to dilute the real issue, said Mahoney.

"The business about the lockout is a 'red herring.' They are trying to put another issue up, which is not the real issue. The real issue has to do with the case of Jin," said Mahoney.

The real issue involves the case of Wen Ping Jin, a graduate student who is reapplying for her position of organizer, said Ivatury.

The Personnel Committee arbitrarily ruled that no extensions will be granted, even though Tris Carpenter, Political Advocate, was given an extension by the Committee the previous year. Jin is being discriminated against by the Personnel Committee because she is foreign, said Ivatury.

"We are outraged that a foreign student, a Chinese student, is being treated in an insulting and demeaning manner," Ivatury said.

The Personnel Committee has not contacted Jin for a week and a half, and they have not given her an interview. Interviews should have been completed by 4 pm. yesterday, said Ivatury.

GEO also felt that the lockout was an attempt to force the Personnel Committee to give the GSS two seats.

According to GEO members, Ivatury demanded that the GSS be given two seats on the Personnel Committee in a telephone conversation with the Committee Chair Jean Sherlock.

"I didn't demand any seats. I spoke with Sherlock on Saturday, and she said that there were two vacant seats on the Personnel Committee. I then requested that Hussein Ibish and I be on the Committee," Ivatury said.

"I have been a member of the Union for three years, I have every right to be on the Committee," Ivatury said.

The reason GSS requested the two seats was as an attempt to increase diversity on the Personnel Committee, so that it better represents the social and cultural diversity among graduate students, said Ivatury.

"GSS wants to insure that the Personnel will treat Jin, as well as other foreign and international students, fairly," said Mahoney.

Duuuude, check it out.

MATT KAHN/ COLLEGIAN

Many people stopped what they were doing yesterday, even if they were in the middle of some stupid, meaningless class, to take time and glance at the eclipse. If anyone was moronic enough to look directly at it, you can look forward to years of retinal cancer.

Locals celebrate Mandela's victory

MATT KAHN/ COLLEGIAN

South African Student Association.

By JUAN JOSE CHACON QUIROS
Collegian Staff

Nelson Mandela's inauguration as the new President of South Africa has spurred a myriad of celebrations all over the globe. Amherst is no exception. Last night at the Student Union Ballroom, almost 500 people gathered to pay tribute to this extraordinary twist in history.

During the celebreation several speakers originally from South Africa spoke on their experiences as citizens of an apartheid state.

The event was sponsored by the South Africa-Azanian Student Movement and the Southern Africa Working Group of the AFSC and co-sponsored by 17 other organizations from the University and the valley community.

During the celebration, several speakers, originally from South Africa, spoke on their experiences as citizens of an apartheid state. "How can we explain our children that we are more than 40 years old and yet it's the first time we voted," said Desiree L. Josias.

The Smith College African Student Choir sang "African Capellas" to the cheers of the audience, followed by other cultural events by Barwa, Natasha Springer and Amandla.

The most emotional moment of the night came about when the crowd sang the National Anthem, an expression of power, a sign of liberation, a feeling of happiness.

Morrill library may move

Biology students up-in-arms about proposal

By HEATHER REDFERN
Collegian Staff

A proposal to relocate the Morrill Science Library within the Lederle low rise Physical Science library has created angered and confused responses from students and faculty of the biology department.

Acting library director Gordon Fretwell said the main objective of the proposed move is to use staff more effectively in the environment of the Lederle low rise Physical Science Library.

Students and faculty of the biology department said the move is inconvenient, unfair and most are demanding answers.

Fretwell said there has been no final decision as to whether the move will take place, but Judith Goodenough, a professor of biology said she received a memo at a department head meeting on Friday stating the move was to take place in the near future.

Fretwell said the possible relocation of the Morrill library is at the present time in an investigatory stage.

"Combining the science and the engineering library in one location is a complicated and major job. In order to decide, we have to do a lot of investigation," said Fretwell.

Fretwell said the option to relocate the Morrill library has been considered for several reasons at different times.

Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences Linda Slakey said moving the Morrill library to the Lederle low rise physical science library will help to bring the biology library into line with the structural format of other strong institutions.

At the present time biology sources can be found at the Morrill library, the Tower library and the Lederle low rise Physical Science library.

Relocation of the Morrill library, Goodenough said, will severely cripple teaching efforts, research and writings.

Karen Fitzgibbons, an active member in BIO-SCI, an undergraduate biology group, said 90 percent of biology majors attend their classes in Morrill library as well as conduct research and study reserved works.

"Ninety-nine percent of what we need is here," said Fitzgibbons.

Fitzgibbons said many biology students are concerned with rumors of the Morrill library being replaced by a private research lab.

"Right now they have not said why they're going to replace the library," said Fitzgibbons.

BIO-SCI has received approximately 1,000 signatures protesting the library's relocation.

"Supposedly a decision has been made and were trying to change that," said Fitzgibbons.

Lottery to fund scholarships

By BRIAN GORMLEY
Collegian Staff

The State House of Representatives voted Monday to defeat a bill that would have directed money raised from the scratch ticket, "Racing Action" to city and local aid instead of to the race track industry and to public college scholarships, as the bill was originally intended.

University of Massachusetts Registrar Matthew Pavesi and the rest of the leadership of the Student Government Association went before the state Governmental Relations Committee to support higher education scholarships. The bill Pavesi and company were speaking against was submitted by Rep. Ronald W. Gauch, R-Shewsbury. Gauch said the money from the ticket should be used to for city and local aid.

"I said [at the public hearing] that we don't want higher education to be pitted against city and local aid. But I said higher education needs more money."

— Matt Pavesi

But Gauch apparently changed his mind, as the House voted 145-0 against the bill and in favor of administering the bill as it was originally passed, The Boston Globe reported yesterday.

From now on, whatever money that is left over after the racing industry has been funded will go toward public higher education scholarships. A portion of the money must go to fund the UMass Cooperative Extension Program.

The form of which the ticket is sold and presented will also be changed. Before, the ticket could be bought for two dollars at any place lottery tickets are sold. But now the ticket will be sold at racing tracks only.

The other change is that the ticket will not be a scratch ticket but a sweepstakes ticket.

Pavesi said when he made his testimony at the public hearing he recognized the fact that cities and towns are in need, but he also said higher education is in need.

"I said [at the public hearing] that we don't want higher education to be pitted against city and local aid," Pavesi said. "But I said higher education needs more money."

The money to support the racing industry will fund programs such as humane treatment of the dogs after they are done racing and to support the racing industry in general.

The bill was originally passed in 1992 and The Boston Globe reported that several legislators say that state Treasurer Joseph D. Malone did not administer the bill the way it was originally passed and that he went beyond his bounds in making the game a scratch ticket.

Campus rapes declining

By JESSICA TAVERNA
Collegian Staff

Statistics of reported rapes at UMass show a slight decrease over a year's period and a marked decrease in victims who refuse to take action against the offender, showing the possibility of a correlation between the two factors.

Seventy-eight percent of the 19 rape victims that reported the incidents in 1992 chose not to take action against their offender, while only 60 percent of the 18 reported rapes that occurred before May of 1993 chose not to take action, the Everywoman's Center said.

Although the University has improved services available to victims in the past five years, resulting in more accurate statistics, it still falls short of attaining the "full count," Assistant Dean of Students Eileen Stewart said.

"It's hard to say if there are increases or decreases," UMass Mental Health Psychologist Mary Lynn said. "We get a lot a lot of first-reported cases of sexual assaults that have happened in the past."

In 1992 reports of off-campus assaults were the highest, but by May of 1993, the victim's home, most commonly located in one of the on-campus residence halls, was ranked as the most common place for assaults to occur. The greatest percentage of rapes in 1993 occurred in the Southwest Residential Area.

"The myth is that most sexual assaults happen in deserted parking lots by strangers," Volunteer Coordinator of the Educator/Advocate Program Patricia Mota Guedes said. "Our statistics debank that myth."

Turn to RAPE, page 3

Gays get 'family plan'

By STEPHEN C. CAMPBELL
Collegian Staff

The Joint Graduate Employment Organization /Administration Committee on Domestic Partner Benefits for Students issued its "Report and Recommendation on the Extension of Domestic Partner Benefits for Students at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst" on Tuesday. The Committee is comprised of GEO members, Graduate Student Senate representatives, undergraduate and graduate students this fall." Students in same-sex domestic partnerships will then be eligible to purchase the student family health plan through the University Health Services beginning in September 1994.

The Committee also recommends that more data be com-

In a letter sent to President Hooker on May 6, Chancellor Scott states "Our hope is to begin offering family plan coverage for same-sex partners of undergraduate and graduate students this fall." Students in same-sex domestic partnerships will then be eligible to purchase the student family health plan through the University Health Services beginning in September 1994.

The Committee also recommends that more data be com-

Turn to GAYS, page 9

For Your Information

FYIs are public service announcements which are printed each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. To submit an FYI, please send a press release containing all pertinent information, including the name and phone number of the contact person to the Collegian, c/o the News Editor.

Wednesday, May 11

Lecture — Lee Badgett will discuss "The Economics of Being Lesbian, Gay or Bisexual: Pride, Prejudice and Politics" from noon to 1:40 p.m. in Campus Center Room 917. Part of the Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Studies Brown Bag Series.

Broadcast — Valley Access Network will show program three in its series on works by Five College film and video students at 8 p.m. on UVC Ch. 19.

Faculty seminar — Lee Badgett will speak on "Economic Evidence of Sexual Orientation Discrimination" at 4 p.m. in Campus Center Room 917.

Thursday, May 12

Forum — A gubernatorial candidates' forum will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Bangs Community Center activity room, Amherst. Democrats George Bachrach, Sen. Michael Barrett and Rep. Mark Roosevelt will attend.

Meeting — The last VIVA Service Council meeting will be held from noon to 1:30 p.m. in Campus Center Room 162-175.

Ongoing

Exhibit — Work by Smith College photography students is on display through May 27 at the A.P.E. Gallery, third floor Thornes Market, Main Street, Northampton.

Phone line — Peer Health Connections offers information and service referrals Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Call 549-2671 ext. 168. Messages remain confidential.

Study — Study hall with free coffee and tea is open from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. at the Berkshire and Worcester Dining Commons.

Area GLB program aids teens

By STEPHEN C. CAMPBELL
Collegian Staff

There is a volunteer service organization in the valley that provides necessary assistance to the youth in the community. This organization is the Pioneer Valley Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual Youth Project and they provide a number of services to teens in the valley.

Since the Spring of 1991 they have supplied accurate information on what it means to be lesbian, bisexual or gay and they have support groups that currently meet on Friday nights. They began a Mentor Program in the Summer of 1992, which provides positive role models, information and support to teens.

"We're one of the few groups that provide a mentor program for GLB youth," says Phil Gauthier, the Outreach Coordinator for the Pioneer Valley GLB Youth Project. "Gay teens need to acclimate to the community they're coming into. You can't come out into a vacuum."

The mentors are a diverse group of volunteers, not just ethnically diverse, but also diverse within the BLG community that ranges from married bisexuals to separatist lesbians. Currently there are nine mentors with four more coming into the program soon.

"We don't monitor or track them. Some other youth programs don't like the fact that we do this. We use self reporting. We don't force the kids to come if they don't want to," said Gauthier. "They use us as they need us."

"Money has always been a problem," Gauthier stated, when asked about funding for the Project. "Volunteers and donations are the only thing keeping us running."

"The local PFLAG, Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays, has been real supportive." The GLB Youth Project has also received Five College support, often in the form of dances, like one held earlier this semester at Hampshire College.

Pioneer Valley GLB Youth Project is in a network with 13 other youth groups in the state, and has many groups and agencies to refer teens to when further aid is needed.

The drop out rate among GLB youths nationally is 28 percent often because of harassment in the

Turn to GLB, page 9

THE INFORMATION SUPERHIGHWAY: YOUR ROAD TO SUCCESS.

If you are interested in a career in one of today's fastest growing industries, join one of the industry's fastest growing companies.

Our success at reselling the AT&T long distance network has allowed us to create opportunities to join our team. Promotions and our new facility mean the start of a lucrative career for you. We offer performance based advancement, full benefits and an exciting work environment.

SALES REPRESENTATIVES

Telecommunications experience helpful but not required.
We are looking for people with:
- A Desire to Succeed
- The Ability to Meet and Exceed Tough Goals
- A Strong Work Ethic
- Personal Confidence

We have offices located in:
Easthampton, MA Quincy, MA
Norwalk, CT Philadelphia, PA

With all these skills and our extensive in-house training, you will have all the tools to make $35-50K, commission plus base, in your first year. In addition, our residual commission structure will ensure that your earnings will continue to grow. We offer a competitive benefits package, including dental, health, and paid vacations. Please send resumes to: Greg Giambalvo, Network Plus, 45 Ferry Street, Easthampton, MA 01027. Equal Opportunity Employer.

NETWORK PLUS

CAPS OFF!!
Congratulations
Class of 1994
- from Information Data Bank

You believe in the Man in the Moon. You believe in the Tooth Fairy. Your mother tucks you in at night. And, to top it all, you have the Massachusetts Daily Collegian. Looks like you're gonna be alright.

THIS SATURDAY - 2 PM
GLORIA STEINEM
John M. Greene Hall, Smith College - No Charge
Lecturing & Signing her new book
Moving Beyond Words

Following her bestseller Revolution from Within, Gloria Steinem offers a collection of her strongest writings as she redefines feminism today. The book is divided into six parts - each of which is rather like a condensed book - including What if Freud Were Phyllis, The Strongest Woman in the World, and The Masculinization of Wealth. Ms Steinem presented a lecture last year that was heart-warming, stirring, personal and political. It's an honor for us to welcome her back!

189 MAIN STREET
NORTHAMPTON
586-6304 or
(800) 442-6304

Beyond Words Bookshop

Please call us if you are unable to attend but would like to reserve a signed copy

The dictionary has at least three definitions for "value." So do we.

Macintosh Quadra® 650 8/230, internal AppleCD™ 300i CD-ROM Drive, Macintosh® Color Display, Apple® Extended Keyboard II and mouse.

PowerBook® 165 4/160 with internal Express Modem.

Macintosh Quadra® 660av 8/230, internal AppleCD™ 300i CD-ROM Drive, Apple® AudioVision™ 14" Display, Apple Extended Keyboard II and mouse.

Giving people more value for their money has made Macintosh® the best-selling personal computer on campuses and across the country for the past two years* And that's a trend that is likely to continue. Because there are Macintosh and PowerBook® models available within your budget. Meaning you get it all. Power. Quality. And affordability. It's that simple. So, if that sounds like value to you, visit your Apple Campus Reseller today. And leave your dictionary at home.

Affordable computers from Apple.

Apple

UNIVERSITY STORE

Computer Department
Campus Center
545-2619

MONDAY - FRIDAY 9AM-5 PM
SATURDAY 11AM-3PM

Datasquest, 1994. ©1994 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. Apple, the Apple logo, Macintosh, Macintosh Quadra and PowerBook are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. AppleCD, AppleColor and AudioVision are trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. Courtesy of Multicom Publishing, Inc.

Animal rights promoted

The details of the production of veal are revealed

By TROY L. MERRICK
Collegian Staff

Although holding that no breach of ethics comes from the use of animals for human benefit on its face, a professor of veterinary and animal sciences made the call for better welfare for food animals awaiting the trip to the slaughterhouse.

Donald Black, a 35-year veteran of the University of Massachusetts animal science department who last November stepped down as its head, focused on the plight of farm animals — primarily cattle — in bringing to attention that they, contrary to what an amazing poll of people suppose, do possess certain rights.

"There are problems, those who say there aren't are part of the problem," said Black to the crowd of 15 gathered in the Herter Gallery last Thursday night, one of which stated her disgust with the oxymoron, "humane slaughter."

"The use of animals in laboratory experiments has been curtailed somewhat and some societal ethic achieved, but not with farm animals. But it's coming," he said.

The speech was the second in a lecture series titled with a short, grim poem, "Unseen they suffer, unheard they cry, in agony they linger, in loneliness they die." Alex Pacheco, president of PETA (People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals,) an active non-profit organization stressing the necessity to sever human reliance on animals entirely, spoke Tuesday.

> "The use of animals in laboratory experiments has been curtailed somewhat and some societal ethic achieved, but not with farm animals. But it's coming,"
> — Donald Black

Collaborations with the work of animal scientists from the University of Colorado, Tufts University, and Penn State, Black did a roll call of five basic animal licenses: the right to stand up, lie down, groom, turn around, and stretch; simple amenities grossly denied veal calves, among other "factory farm" beasts, pictured in the array of brochures supplied courtesy the Animal Rights Coalition.

"Animal welfare isn't a value-free ideology," he stated. "Just because you're keeping the animal dry, fed, and protected from the elements but ignoring the five basic ones, the animal isn't going to thrive."

Black selected farm animals because of the sheer numbers involved. Approximately 6.3 billion animals, of which 96.5 percent are designated for human consumption, meet their maker annually.

He cited veal calves as one particular, noting the especially atrocious conditions they endure from birth to death. Being male and therefore not a provider of milk, they are used to "fill the void," and subsequently live solely on liquids, are fed no iron, and are chained in wooden crates barely big enough to contain them. The absence of iron produces the white tender meat so valued in the market, which Black noted is particularly lucrative in the Northeast.

He added that taste tests revealed that people, when blindfolded, couldn't decipher the difference between milk- fed veal and that where the animal had been given a more sustainable diet.

"Two percent of the world's people are involved in food agriculture, and we rely on these people very heavily," he said. "Plus, we are taught from a very young age that farms are calm and peaceful and animals spend all their time grazing around, that the farmer is kind and caring. That's not true and never has been. That's not to say all farms are 'factory farms,' which is a negative connotation, either."

■ rape

continued from page 1

In a national study done by Ms. Magazine of rape on college campuses across the country, one in four women admitted to being raped.

Eighty-four percent of these women said they knew their attacker and 57 percent of the attacks occurred during dates, the Everywoman's Center said.

Out of the one in 12 of the men surveyed met with the legal definition of rape or attempted, 84 percent said they did not consider their actions as rape, the Everywoman's Center said.

The average age of victims has dropped from 20 years old in 1992 to 19 years old in 1993, and while 95 percent of victims were female in 1992, the percentage dropped to 90 in 1993, the Everywoman's Center said.

The Everywoman's Center, which has a 24-hour hotline and resources available to rape victims, has been receiving support from the Dean of Students, the Greek area and other areas on campus. They will be training residential assistants next fall on the appropriate manner in dealing with victims, Guedes said.

"We have developed protocols as to how to support and assist victims of sexual assault which all officers in all agencies that come in contact the victims are required to know," Stewart said.

PLO in need of stability

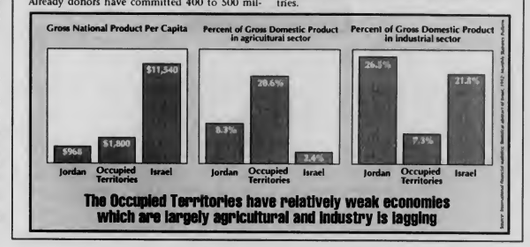
By JUAN JOSE CHACON QUIROS
Collegian Staff

As the Palestine Liberation Organization and Israel signed an accord granting autonomy to a section of Palestine, people around the world have began to hope for an end to the conflict in this region but have forgotten about the most pressing question: economic autonomy.

The Occupied Territories have a small economy. Last year, they created the same amount of wealth as the town of Newton, Massachusetts. Furthermore, its economy is only 5 percent that of Israel.

The PLO needs to go beyond its current diplomatic game and begin the difficult task of legitimizing political autonomy with economic stability. The Occupied Territories have to move from the current virtual state of war to a climate were business can flourish and its fragile economy can start to grow.

The PLO made a huge step last July when it issued the "Program for Development of the Palestinian National Economy for the years 1994-2000." According to Stanley Fisher, former Vice-president of the World Bank and an economist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the Palestinian Development Program (PDP) "envisages the promotion and flowering of a market economy, combined with suggestive or indicative programming."



This program's success is based on a strong financial commitment from other countries and international agencies like the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund. According to the World Bank, "approximately 3 billion dollars will be needed for infrastructure in the next 10 years." Already donors have committed 400 to 500 million dollars in aid every year for Palestine.

The fact that the aid levels to Palestine are going to be so important can become a liability if the country becomes "aid dependent." Palestine needs to create the necessary conditions to guarantee economic independence. In 1992 there were 66 aid agencies working inside the territories; this year there are more than 200. Although foreign aid can seem like an easy way out now, in the long run and as funds dry out, the country will need to adhere to painful economic decisions.

"To formulate their goals clearly, and to coordinate with the donors, the Palestinians need to set up their own aid- receiving agency and insure it operates in close collaboration with their policy makers," says Stanley Fisher. Such an agency would be better suited to work with policy makers in financing projects that will be part of the development strategy. The growth of industry and agriculture should be the basis for the development of the economy.

Even if most of the potential for growth in those sectors comes from access to the international economy, Palestine needs to expand domestic demand. According to Fisher, "much of the expansion must come through aid-financed infrastructure projects and a large-scale housing program, as described in the PDP."

The largest trading partner of Palestine will continue to be Israel. The strengthening of economic relations among both nations can insure a strong support to the peace efforts. However, israel has to begin providing equal treatment to Palestinian businesses. For this to happen the custom system that now discriminates against Palestinian exports should be modified to increase trade among countries.

The Occupied Territories have relatively weak economies which are largely agricultural and industry is lagging

UMASS Senior Night LUAU
Saturday, May 14th
Includes:
- Bus Transportation
- Chinese Food Dinner
- Polynesian Show
- Boston's Best Comedy Show
- UMASS'own "Mission Improbable"
- DJ and Dancing until 1:30AM

Tickets only $10

HEY SENIORS! What a better way to kick off Senior Week!
Buses leave Fine Arts Center at 6PM and return at 2AM.
COMEDY CONNECTION AT THE HU KE LAU CHICOPEE
for tickets call:
(413) 593-5222
or go to "TIX" at the Student Union

COLLEGIAN AD REPS RULE!
Special Thanks to:

Tracy Katzman, Dan Stowe, Swati Modi, Ethan Bloomfield, Jennifer Geagan, Rachael Haselkorn, Pete Jaffe, Rob Ferreira, Eric Korins, Craig Brody, Sharon Castellani, Lisa Tannenbaum, Frank Gallaghor, Jeff Blocker, Alex Tildesley, Kathy Toomey, Eric Abenaim, Pete Serralis, Rich Schragger, Jon Bayuk, Jean Ferreira

Call For Our Special Offer

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST

Brandywine offers Country Living with Convenience
- On UMass Bus Route • Nearby Shopping
- Situated on well landscaped acres with pond.
- One and two bedroom apartments include fully equipped kitchen and wall to wall carpeting.
- Swimming pool, laundry facilities, responsive management.
- Stop by and we'll show you what we have to offer.
- Affordable rents include gas, utilities, (heat, hot water and stove).

BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
16 Brandywine Drive, Amherst
Rental Office Open
Mon.-Fri. 9-5, Sat. & Sun. 10-3
549-0600

Hilary, owner of Alvin, and his only three years old. I like candy, and Pre, and the Mass Daily Collegian

College Pro Home Painters
Get a tan painting this summer
Positions available all across New England Great Pay! Call 1-800-346-4649

$99 SUMMER
New Members Welcome
FLEX FITNESS CENTER
253-3539
The Valley's Leading Weight Training Facility
175 University Drive • Amherst • 253-3539
Start Today 5/11/94 - 8/31/94
$99 SUMMER

Come Clean With Us!!
Speedwash
11 Pray St. Amherst • 549-1665
Open 24 Hours
Drop-off service available:
Mon. & Tues. 2pm - 10pm
Wed., Thurs. & Fri. 2pm - 10pm
Sat. 10am - 6pm
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St. South Amherst
Open 7 days/week, 7am - 10pm

AIR FORCE ROTC DETACHMENT 370
CONGRATULATES

Joseph R. Marek, UMASS
Christopher C. Matchett, UMASS
Jack M. Rembisz, UMASS
Glen F. Roberts, UMASS
William D. Young II, Amherst College

Our Future United States Air Force Second Lieutenants

They are on their way to exciting jobs with immediate leadership and management responsibilities, unique upward job mobility and promotions, a salary that increases from $24,000 to $40,000 in four years, and many other great benefits. The prestige of serving your country and developing a career foundation for the future means you can't lose with Air Force ROTC! Join the ranks of the best, check out Air Force ROTC in the fall or call 545-2451 today!

Our congratulations and best of luck to our commissionees of 1994!

BOSTON BARTENDERS SCHOOL OF AMERICA
Train Now For Your Summer Job

- If you are 18 or older, be a bartender
- Day/Evenings 1 Week
- Placement Assistance
- Spend the Summer at the Shore!
- Only 2 Openings Remain for MAY CLASSES!
- ENROLL NOW!!!
MC/VISA/DISCOVER/AMEX
1655 Main St. • Suite 202 • Springfield • Call Today! 747-9888

ATTENTION DIMENSION CABLE CUSTOMERS!

Leaving town soon?
Don't forget to disconnect your cable service! Now you can return your converter box and remote control and disconnect your cable service at the following locations from 11:00am to 3:00pm. Look for our Dimension Cable Truck parked near the complex office!

May 18 and 25 at BRITTANY MANOR
May 19 and 26 at PUFFTON VILLAGE
May 20 and 27 at TOWNHOUSE

DIMENSION CABLE SERVICES
256-1342

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

MICHAEL MORRISSEY Editor-in-Chief
Managing Editor DARIENNE HOSLEY Arts & Living Editor EMILY A. MARINO Black Affairs Editor RODNEY POWELL Developing Nations Editor JUAN J. CHACON QUIROS Editorial/Opinion Editor MIKE CARVALHO Gay Lesbian Bisexual Issues Editor STEPHEN C. CAMPBELL Jewish Affairs Editor JACOB W. MICHAELS Multicultural Affairs Editor EVELYN A. DE JESUS News Editor TRACY MONAHAN Photography Editor NATHAN MARTIN Sports Editor ARTHUR STAPLETON JR. Women's Issues Editor VANESSA ANN
MICHAEL MCRAE Business Manager LISA RZEWSKI Production Manager DANIELLE YANNO Advertising Manager STEPHANIE SHORE Finance Manager ANDREW DAVIDSON Night Graphics Manager JIM BRUNEAU, CAITLIN OLSON Day Graphics Managers JEREMY TAGGETT Circulation Manager ERIC ABENAIM Subscriptions Manager MAUREEN MAJEROWSKI Senior Bookkeeper BLAKE PHILLIPS Graphics Professional MARTY PAPPAS Classified Advertising TURLEY PUBLICATIONS Printing Services

112 CAMPUS CENTER BASEMENT · UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS · AMHERST, MA 01003 · (413) 545-3500 · FAX (413) 545-1582

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday-Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. Letters to the editor are encouraged and will be printed on a space-available basis. All submissions must be typed, kept to a maximum of 400 words, and should include the writer's name, address, year and major, as well as a phone number for verification purposes. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length. Persons wishing to submit guest columns should contact the Editorial/Opinion editor in advance. The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily represent those of the Collegian. Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Editorial Board.

Morrissey answers his critics

So this is how it ends for me. Three years of columns, three years of controversy and three long years of trying to defend myself. And three years of questions.

"Does he really believe what he writes? Who lets him write down there? Doesn't he realize that America isn't like that? Why doesn't he write controversial columns anymore?"

Michael Morrissey

Those were the questions that used to buzz through my head every day when I was the notorious Michael Morrissey. Now that my columns have mellowed, I don't hear it as much, but I figured the least I could do is expiain my life as a columnist at the University of Massachusetts.

People have asked me a million times what prompted me to carry the torch for conservatism on a campus of liberals. Well, to the many people who were dying to know, I offer you one name: Meredith O'Brien.

She's probably just as surprised as the many people who have no idea who she is. I'll fill you in: Meredith is currently teaching in the journalism department but she used to be the Editor–in–Chief of the Collegian, and one of the most liberal writers I had ever read.

During my freshman year, Meredith would be in the newspaper every week, trumpeting this liberal cause or that, talking about the left like it was mainstream or something. I finally got so fed up that I came down to see if everybody down at the Collegian was a pinko.

It turned out that Meredith was really nice (still is, in fact) and the staff was great. I wrote some sports as a frosh, but I wanted to give the newspaper a point of view from the right. So I put poison pen to paper my sophomore year.

It's funny that someone as liberal as Meredith was the impetus for someone as conservative as me, but they say that life goes in circles and maybe I've influenced some knee–jerk liberal in turn.

People always asked me if I truly believed what I wrote. The truth is — of course. What are you, stupid?

I've never been a good enough writer to persuade with logic or reason; I'll leave that to the pros. I've always tried to inject sardonic humor or exaggeration in whatever topic I was writing on, so the result was something that people thought was false.

Humans are nothing without principles, and I've always stood up for the principles I believe in. I think homosexuality is contrary to God and nature. I think the feminist movement is being controlled by a minority of radical lesbians. I think our country is in bad shape because of a breakdown in societal values.

Instead of becoming an Editor–in–Chief with a grudge, I threw away the editorial chip on my shoulder a long time ago. And I think I've improved as a writer. Without the fanfare.

If you've read this far, you know my columns are about more than 200–foot walls, examination of gay lifestyles or affirmative action. A column is ultimately the voice of its writer, and I think what I've had to say, overall, was important.

You folks are the real test of that, though. By picking the Collegian up every Friday and reading me, whether you agree or disagree, you've decided that an issue I wrote on is pertinent. Many times it's started discussion, and I used to have people say they felt like strangling me when they read what I wrote. That was my purpose.

The furor over my columns has died down and I was able to end my career and leave this school without being run out on a rail. I don't know whether that makes me happy or not. The truth is, there'll be another writer as controversial as I used to be, whether you think so or not. There always is.

I have to say now that I enjoyed every minute of this column. Those who have wrote or called me made me work harder to convey my views. I wouldn't have been what I was without you. I also thank the many hopeless liberals out there who I clashed with constantly. You now realized that you made me what I was.

Michael Morrissey is no longer a controversial figure.

Senior offers helpful advice

The University of Massachusetts has been my home for five years and, while I have developed quite a cynical outlook during my time here, I wouldn't feel right if i didn't give something back by offering the UMass community a few tidbits of advice. Do with them what you will.

To the graduating class of 1994: Make sure you sit nice and quiet in your seats during the commencement address by Marjorie C. Deckhim. Even though the senior class didn't have anything to do with choosing our speaker, her speech is sure to pack quite a punch. Sock it to 'em, Margie.

To the editors of the Liberator: When reprinting copyrighted material, be sure that you have acquired the proper permissions prior to publication. If not, you are violating the law and make yourselves subject to the legal remedies available to the copyright holder.

Mike Carvalho

To the Minuteman: There is such a thing as intellectual conservatism. And then there's the Minuteman. Hate and ignorance don't hold up well on a university campus, and you prove your critics right with every vitriolic issue.

To the next editor of the Graduate Voice: Look up the word 'objective' in the dictionary. And try some photos.

To the Campus Chronicle: It was embarrassing to see you explain why you'd missed the story about the April Massacre. Stop pretending — the Chronicle isn't a newspaper, and everyone who picks it up knows it.

Oh yeah, and you can keep our old front page design — we don't need it any more.

To the management of the University Store: Try visiting another college bookstore to get some idea of what it is you really should be doing. Hint: the lacrosse team is called the Gorillas, and that's what the hats and t–shirts should say.

To my American Foreign Policy instructor: I thoroughly enjoyed attending your class that summer. It was one of the few courses I really learned something in. I did more than nod my head in that hot Machmer classroom, I really agreed with most of what you were saying.

The thing is, I still do. And I think you'd be surprised at how many other people down here in the basement agree with you on most of the issues with which you've been involved. But ever since I started paying attention to politics on campus, I've been forced to be on the defensive because of peoples' preconceived notions about the place I work.

I can only imagine what might have been achieved if we'd worked together towards some of those common goals. My only hope is that, now that you've been elected to a position of authority, you might take a different tack in dealing with my soon–to–be–former colleagues. Perhaps they won't leave this campus with the same bad taste in their mouths.

To Mitran and Al: As the only person on this campus who can say he stayed up late one night writing an endorsement for your SGA candidacies, I am also the only one who can say he now regrets having done so. Your inaugural act as a team was to stand up in front of a crowd and tell them exactly what they wanted to hear — even though you couldn't possibly fulfill the promises you were making. It was classic politics to be sure, but you really should have considered who you were alienating in the process.

To Matt Pavesi: Anytime you feel like bringing down that guest column on the importance of student voting we'd talked about, just let me know. Better luck next time.

To Professor Walter Denny: Keep up the good work. The students and faculty on this campus who really care about UMass appreciate what you've done for us. When Scott, Hooker and Weld have all moved on to greener pastures, it will be people like you who will make UMass a better place.

To Marcellette Williams and her tagalong husband Keith: You landed yourselves some pretty cushy jobs here with pretty hefty paychecks. Have you considered writing a book? Call it "How to make friends and use them to get highly–paid jobs at a public institution in bad financial shape." If you finish that one, start on the sequel: "How to sleep at night knowing you are buttering your bread with money that could have been used to pay for the educations of underprivileged students." Go Spartans!

And finally, to Chancellor David K. Scott: I am in receipt of several submissions from you entitled "Scott Free." Unfortunately, due to space constraints, I have been unable to print them. In the future, I would refer you to the policy of this page which states, "Persons wishing to submit guest columns should contact the Editorial/Opinion editor in advance." Thank you for your interest in the Massachusetts Daily Collegian.

Mike Carvalho is moving as far away from Amherst, Mass. as possible.

Doonesbury

Opinion

Spring Concert '94...sober

I had a different view of the Spring Concert.

You saw all those crazed nuts running around the field adjacent to the Campus Pond. You saw all of those lunatics letting everything go.

But I wasn't one of them.

Now, before I tell you why, if anyone laughs, they are going to have to meet my roommate's fist. You ready?

The cops took our beer away the night before.

Alright, pal, you think it's funny, huh? Well, let me just say I that I didn't get arrested, and going to the concert was an uplifting experience. Here are some things that stuck out in my mind.

The mud — As I was pathetically sober during the show, I came to the realization that mud is a different experience from a person who is cocked to a person who is not. The drunks bathed in the dirt and water mixture, while the sober ran away from the intoxicated maniacs who were chasing them. One of the more memorable moments of last Sunday was seeing a gorgeous girl picking mud out of her teeth.

Andrew Bryce

Body surfing — As I was watching the Violent Femmes in front of the stage, I saw some nice falls. One of the best parts of the body surfing was when the person would be sailing over the crowd — only to have the song end. Dropped. Happened several times, which, excuse me for saying this, was actually pretty amusing.

While all you other fools basked in your drunkeness... — While everybody else worked off their buzz, my roommate and I... well... applied for MasterCards. Wasn't one of my goals for the day of the concert, but neither was going to the concert with a level head.

Broken ankles — I met about five people who did some damage to their ankles. Four of them were still planning to keep drinking when they got back to the room.

The policeman who 'confiscated' the beer — You had your laugh about me losing the beer. How 'bout the policeman saying that the beer was going to be 'terminated'? Listen, officer, you know it and I know it, the only way that beer is going to be terminated is when it's already in you and your buddies' livers. I ain't as stupid as my roommate looks. And the cop who took it? He was working security at the concert. I think I smelled the Busch Light on his breath.

Frisking — Why did they get upset when I tried to choose the wom...person who frisked me? And I loved when they turned away hacky sacks. A soft ball filled with beads. Sounds pretty life–threatening.

Obnoxious people — Sunday afternoon marked the first time I had ever looked more mature than 20,000 other people. Man, I wanted to be obnoxious again.

A sighting — My roommate and I could have sworn we saw Danny Bonnaduce. And the reason I didn't question I; was because I would not have been surprised if the UPC signed on The Partridge Family as one of the acts.

* * * * *

Since I am sick of talking about the sober experience, I want to close with something different.

I have been writing and reading for the EndOp page for over two semesters. When I began scribing my silly thoughts and ridiculous opinions, it was something different from the other pieces written on the page.

While some wrote pieces that pissed everybody off, and others wrote articles ranging from politics to sappiness, I tried to do something a bit different. I busted on myself, I busted on my friends, I busted on the money hounds at Whitmore, I praised the weenie joint, my trip to NYC and the fifth floor toilet.

As for the list form, I hope you enjoyed it despite the growing number of imitations you have seen on the page. And if you didn't, well, give me a holler.

Have a good summer, for I certainly will try.

Andrew Bryce is a Collegian columnist.

Letters to the Editor

Not sold on UMass multiculturalism

To the editor:

The Chancellor's Awards for Multiculturalism. On Thursday, May 5th I had the utter misfortune of sitting in on the awards ceremony. What I witnessed was an embarassment. Gathered in a room were people who were being appreciated for being multicultural, and we were there to honor in particular the four recipients of the awards.

After seeing the people who won, and hearing what achievements got them those awards, I seriously have to consider what defines 'multicultural' on this campus. More than that, I have to wonder how committed this University is to that idea.

It is nice, in a symbolic way, to name someone as the winner of an award. However, one of the people who won should have been rewarded with a promotion or a raise because her efforts make her worthy of one. To give her an award and be done with it is disgraceful. Further, there was one recipient whose qualifications sound good on paper, but when you take it into the realm of practicality her efforts, valiant as they were, fall very short.

Actually, I have a question : What has the Ombuds office mediation team done? I don't know, but I will tell you what they do. Headed by a member of the white power structure, they try to intervene when two groups of different cultures have a problem and impose the white view of conflict mediation on them.

This is the equivalent of some white person sitting in a corner waiting to throw a monkey wrench into the workings of something that does not concern them. And, by the way, the 16 people of color who are supposed to be representing us don't represent me.

As for another winner of the award, I personally like the guy and I think that his work is more than worthy of praise, so let me say "congratulations." However, I do not think that his work quite falls under the "multicultural" category. The represented gay community on this campus is decidedly white, and the reason that it has as much power as it does is because it is white in a white society.

The bottom line is that the gay community is laden with institutionalized racism, and it needs to realize this very fact. By awarding two white, non–heterosexual people with awards, the chancellor is sending a message that simply being gay and working for it constitutes multiculturalism, and this is not the case.

Multicultural, despite what some liberal, progressive soapbox pontificators might think, transcends simply being gay. While you might not want to admit it, you are all part of the white power structure and have very little clue what other cultures think or feel. The gay rights movement is slightly to the left of multicultural, because the roots of gay culture are white culture, and white culture is not multicultural.

We at the LBGA need to realize this and help advance multiculturalism by taking our name out of the hat instead of subverting it by keeping our name in the hat.

Lawrence Ali Davis
Political chair
LBGA

Thanks Matt Malone

To the editor:

I am writing this letter to acknowledge the work of a student on this campus who has dedicated an incredible amount of time and effort towards student empowerment, Attorney General Matthew Malone. Matt has spent hundreds of hours working on the constitution that will change the student life on this campus for many years to come.

I just hope that after Matt graduates that this University will remember the man behind the pages, because I know I will. Thank you, Matt.

Christine Lopes Psychology
freshman

Voters appreciated

To the editor:

On behalf of Julia Johnson, Ruth Mathis, Colin Cavell and myself, I would like to thank all graduate students who came out to vote in the recent Graduate Student Senate elections.

We share in this victory with all the individuals and organizations who, throught their combined efforts, have worked to promote the cause of social, political and economic justice.

Prasad Venugopal
President–elect
Graduate Student Senate

What I'll always remember

My four year re–cap is here. Yes, I'm a senior (Praise Jesus!) Time to get nostalgic: What does UMass mean to me?

Scrod. I will forever remember UMass as the institution that first introduced me to scrod and, immediately, gave me an aversion to the buggers. Years from now I may be telling my grandchildren about how UMass did up their scrod leftovers for all the campus to enjoy — and about how I ruthlessly attacked Food Services for their taste, or lack of, Pro–Fish advocate that I am.

Rallies. UMass is the land of rallies. The bulk of the rallies held at UMass are usually run by our politically– minded peers. A great strategy to take to the White House or the State House, but UMass? Isn't rallying on the Student Union Steps like yelling inside of a bubble?

Protests. Similar to rallies, UMass protests are amusing. For example, the pro–choice uproar. This embarrassment can be summed up as follows: Don't exercise your freedom of speech, only I can do that! The efforts that went into this failed event would have been better spent canvassing to raise a thousand bucks for a pro–choice advertisement (though I'm not sorry they didn't think of it).

Whitmore, though there is nothing particularly striking about red tape, I will always remember Whitmore. Actually, I will remember its nickname, Whitless.

Propaganda. I will always remember the way UMass throws this word around to belittle any view that the vocal community disagrees with. Especially views that are presented in an orderly, cohesive and compelling fashion. There are many such buzz–words at UMass. My all time favorite is The Christian Right. You guys are great.

Friends. They turned up in places like the dorms, Worcester D.C. and the Campus Center. I'll miss you.

Long–distance relationship. As an aside, my future husband lives out of town. The result has been outrageous phone bills. In fact, if Paul were not the one marrying me, AT&T would proabably jump at the chance. This is one aspect of UMass I will soon forget for emotional as well as financial reasons.

The Hill. That 90 degree incline that the brave residents of Orchard Hill and upper Central must endure. Actually, it is quite fun. In the winter you get to slide down to your classes. If you own a bike, you can coast down to your destination in no time. After a long day you can always wait for the Loop 2 to take you safely home. Of course, if you have your bike, you should learn to love walking. Don't worry, after two weeks it will take you roughly three minutes to get to the top.

I enjoyed writing for this paper. I enjoyed writing about things that just made people laugh. I enjoyed being able to voice opinions and beliefs that the media usually does not. I enjoyed trying to make a difference.

Diana D'Avanzo

Besides, the buses are usually late.

Housing. Residence hall life is unique in itself but, after being an R.A., you learn many interesting tidbits. Most of all you are made to chant two very popular sayings: "Housing is good." and "Res. Ed. is the way." For all you future R.A.s, just remember that. It will clear things up.

Christian groups. These were one of the many things that I enjoyed about UMass. Having been involved with Campus Crusade for Christ and then Chi Alpha Christian Fellowship, I made lots of neato friends, went on cool retreats and got involved in service activities. Oh yes, I also learned alot about what Christianity is all about and developed some deep convictions...

Convictions? Believe it or not, one of the reasons I love UMass so much is because of the challenge that it has been to me spiritually. When I had come to UMass I had just made a major decision about my faith. After getting here and being faced with challenges and opposition, I was forced to really look into what I believed. Needless to say, God still has a lot more to offer. Jesus one, opposition zero.

The Collegian. I enjoyed writing for this paper. I enjoyed writing about things that just made people laugh. I enjoyed being able to voice opinions and beliefs that the media usually does not. I enjoyed trying to make a difference. Just think, if I am ever back in the area, you might be hearing from me again. But, what are the odds of that happening?...

God Bless You!!

Diana D'Avanzo is a Collegian columnist.

Food science letter a dream come true

To the editor:

When I tell people that I am a food science major, the first question they ask is "are you a nutritionist?" Food science is one of the smallest and least understood majors on this campus. I am graduating in two weeks, and for the past two years I have been planning to write an article about this terrific field that nobody knows anything about. Now this dream has become a reality and the article is actually being written.

First, I want everyone to know that I do not study nutrition, DIETS, food service, cooking or meat stamping. I do study chemistry, calculus, physics, biochemistry and microbiology. Food science, like environmental or polymer science, is an applied science. Students in the program take all the basic pre–med classes in their first two years, and in the last two years take classes in food microbiology, food chemistry, food processing and food engineering. We learn how to analyze foods for microorganisms, how to find out what the chemical structure of a food is, how to freeze–dry coffee and how to package food.

The food industry is huge. Every day new products are coming out, and for food companies it is a competitive business. They hire food scientists to invent new products and make sure they are safe. Many activities go on behind the scenes in a food company that the average consumer does not know about.

There are many questions that must be answered before a new product goes on the market. Is it microbiologically safe? How long is its shelf life? Will it stay crunchy in milk? What kind of packaging should be used? It is important that the food scientist knows all about food, its chemical components and how it interacts with the environment.

The UMass department of food science is considered one of the best in the United States. We have many well–known professors who are involved in cutting edge research. The classes are small (usually 8–14 people per lecture), and there is lots of interaction between the professors and the students.

This is a great field to get into, and I just don't understand why there are so few undergraduates in the department. It is one of the few fields that has guaranteed job placement after graduation. I have a friend who works for Veryfine juices, and other people from my department have worked for Nestle, Nabisco, Kraft, Ocean Spray and General Mills.

So, if you like science and you like food, maybe this is the field for you. One great thing about our department is that food companies often come to recruit students, and they always leave us with free food and samples to eat! The American food supply is one of the safest and cheapest in the world, and it is food science and technology that has helped create and keep it this way.

Rachel B. Zemser
Senior, food science

Doyle's first fluff column

Pure, snowy, white fluff, as people at the Editorial Desk like to call it. Yes, it's the weekly column which no one really understands, that has no point to it and rarely makes people laugh or even think for that matter. I have never really written a fluff column before, although some may dispute that. These are my parting shots, if you will, from the year that was.

Justin Doyle

Welcome to the University of Massachusetts. You're a freshman, so let me give you a quick tour. That tall building (some might say it looks like a penis) in the middle is the library, and those towers over there is where you live. Have a fun time here at pleasant ZooMass, and make sure you get to He! rt early, the kegs of Natural Light mysterously run dry at midnight.

Yikes! God only knows how I survived the year. I went through three roommates in a little less than a year. My first roommate dropped out of school, the second dropped out of sight. My third roommate went through "Hellweek" at Theta Chi as a junior and passed his classes the old fashion way — by cheating. They all felt like they were coming back to hell everytime they ventured home, Brooks is such a beautiful place to live.

My roommate this semester lives two–thirds of the time in Kennedy with his friend's fiance. Jen and Brett would make a cute couple except, well, she is getting married to Brett's friend Phil. Welcome to my soap opera.

Next come my friends. I'm not sure what I would have done last semester if I didn't have Melissa and Dana to listen to my sob stories or Dave to drive me to Dairy Mart to pick up a pack of Marboro Lights.

Then there's Rick, a UMass student who no–longer attends this illustrious University thanks to Admissions and the fact he didn't attend classes for two months. Rick met Dana and...well you can fiqure out what happened.

I can't forget about Chewy, who is Rick's old roommate. Chewy was nicknamed last semester after, that's right, Chewbacca, from Star Wars fame. And if you're wondering, his hair length might have had a factor in the decision.

Next, we have Mike, Ray, Craig and Sean. The brat pack will be pleased to see their names in print. I met Sean on the second floor, literally. I stepped over him at a kegger (he was sleeping). Mike, Craig and Ray used to have a good time throwing me in sinks and over railings. Now all they do is make fun of my editorial picture.

As for Cozzi and the crew in Emerson, thank you for giving me a few extra bucks and a place to stay. Oh yeah, hope you had a good time this semester Neely. You worked hard and people noticed. If you came back for the playoffs it would be, fantastic.

As for my place of work, it's a love–hate relationship. I didn't think I'd enjoy working so much for so little money. It's really the people who make it great. Sean, Artie, Morrissey, Darienne and Tracy can yell at me anytime. Just don't ask me about seven days, seven ways 'cause I don't remember much.

When I came down to the Collegian last semester I thought the people here were nuts. Now I'm sure of it. If you don't believe me, ask Morrissey about Brother typewriters or Mike Carvalho about Boo–boo and Bob Dobbs But, if you want just about the best friends you can write stories for, come on down. The Arts and Living page promises you'll never see your name in print.

Justin Doyle is a Collegian columnist.

Discussion is needed on the abortion issue

To the editor:

I am a pro–life activist. I am also a scientist, an educator and a Christian. In my conversations with pro–life and pro– abortion people, I've noticed some similarities, some points of agreement, some starting points for discussion.

For example, everyone I've met from both camps has great sympathy for animals and their well being. Everyone seems to have an intrinsic sense that torture is wrong. Everyone has deep sympathy and compassion for women who have unwanted pregnancies. Here is where people begin to differ. They have different reactions to the problem; they find different solutions as well.

The abortion solution is the deliberate and painful killing of a living, pre–born, human being. The media know this. Most pro–abortion advocates will not deny that it's true. Somehow the killing is necessary to preserve women's rights. I strongly disagree. That would be killing innocent life for what you believe in.

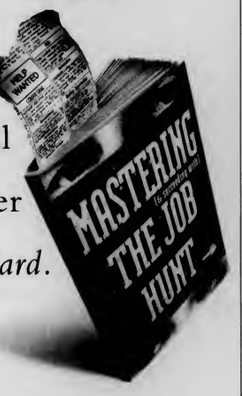
Surely equality can be achieved without slaughtering children. I see no intrinsic connection between feminism and abortion "rights." In fact, there are numerous pro–life feminists, and even a national organization called Feminists for Life. Early feminists, like Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton, were pro–life, and eloquently spoke out against abortion. Alice Paul, author of the original Equal Rights Amendment (1923) called abortion "the ultimate exploitation of women." The link between abortion–on– demand and women's rights has occurred only recently.

The abortion industry is dominated by men butchering women for profit. And the profits are enormous. Women are lied to about the pain and risks of the procedure, and understandably won't return to the abortionist when health care has been substandard. Abortion is almost entirely unregulated, frequently unsanitary, and never safe. Women deserve better.

I believe that pro–life advocates tend to have an intrinsic and natural attachment to the pre–born child that is perhaps slightly stronger than their attachment to the mother. Pro– choice advocates tend to have the stronger attachment to the mother. This might explain why their solutions differ. Unfortunately, many pregnant women are not even given the chance to learn about their baby or develop an attachment to their child, "in case they decide to abort." This is done by doctors and clinic employees, and is patronizing to women.

We, as a society, will be judged by later generations according to how we treat the weak, the vulnerable and the oppressed among us. We already do many positive things, like defend the rights of the mentally and physically handicapped, of the sick, of the aged, of children. The pre– born are the smallest, weakest and the most vulnerable of all humans. They can't run away from danger. They can't hide. They can't defend themselves. When they cry for help, no one hears them. They have no voice but the silent scream that precedes death.

We can be her voice. I believe that both pro–life and pro– choice advocates can find common goals to work toward, such as helping women in crisis pregnancies. There is no reason a woman should suffer simply because she is pregnant. There is no reason a helpless child should die in order to defend another's rights.



Please help me work toward that day when there is no such thing as an unwanted pregnancy, when each pregnancy is greeted with joy from all of society and there is no debate of abortion being "legal" or "illegal" because no one would even consider it an option.

Children are the hope of the future. Let's preserve ours.

Bill Leonard
Lecturer and research associate
Dept. of physics and astronomy

You may even get paid for reading it. After all, this book from MasterCard® offers lots of useful tips on finding a real job, and it's written for students by students. To order your copy for $9.95, call 1-800-JOB-8894. MasterCard.

It's more than a credit card. It's smart money.™ MasterCard

© 1994 MasterCard International Incorporated

Arts & Living

People fails to find beauty

By TRACY MONAHAN
and SEAN P. HAYDEN
Collegian Staff

Just think, the 50 most beautiful people in the world. To compile such a list, one must have really rigid guidelines. If there weren't guidelines, just about anyone could end up on the list.

And just about anyone did.

Meg Ryan.

Tracy Monahan: That ghastly waif look is all wrong for her. In the picture inside the magazine, she looks like a college girl on her 21st birthday. She's falling all over the place and looks like she is about six minutes away from passing out cold.

Sean P. Hayden: Plus, she looks like she needs a transfusion or maybe some blush. I wouldn't mind being Sleepless in Amherst with her some night, though.

Lucky Vanous.

TM: The guy in that Diet Coke commercial. I'm one where the female office workers take their "Diet Coke break" near the windows. He's beautiful, but... enjoy your 15 minutes of fame Lucky.

SPH: His chest looks like burnt toast.

Hugh Grant.

SPH: After seeing Four Weddings and a Funeral, I have no doubt that Hugh Grant gets the babes.

TM: He also stars in Sirens. He's got crooked teeth, but he's adorable anyway.

John F. Kennedy Jr.

TM: He has been on this list for three straight years. Why?

SPH: Are those flakes of dandruff I see when I look real close? Or just head lice?

Faye Dunaway.

SPH: There's no doubting the woman's beauty, which leads me to ask if she's in the Top 50 at 53, where was she when she was 52? Oh, I forgot, she got beat out by k.d.lang.

TM: Plus, she's wearing workboots in the picture. What more could you want?

Antonio Banderas.

TM: Banderas is not a man, he's a gift from the heavens. The picture in the magazine isn't that good, and he's still looks amazing.

SPH: I think he looks too much like Dom DeLuise.

Al Gore Jr.

TM: Clad in all blue denim and posing with a dog. Enough with the cheesy down-home charm. Go home to Tipper and "Don't stop thinking about tomorrow."

SPH: I have no argument about the dog, and I still think Mondale was cuter.

Denzel Washington.

TM: I love Denzel. Right, Sean? The one glitch? He's shooting a new film with Jennifer (Flashdance) Beals. I guess cheap commercials just don't pay as well as they used to.

SPH: May be the best contemporary actor today, but I'll leave that to Lupo. I'm still reeling about his departure from St. Elsewhere.

Emme.

SPH: Looks like she had a few too many emme & emme's.

TM: I applaud Emme and the fact that she's not afraid or maybe some blush. I wouldn't mind being Sleepless in Amherst with her some night, though.

David Justice.

TM: He is just beautiful. No ifs, ands or butts.

SPH: A.) Learn to hit the curve. B.) Next time pose with your wife.

Heather Locklear.

SPH: Somewhere Tommy Lee is kicking himself. Why would Billy stay with Allison when he could've had Amanda? Now I know why women say men are dumb.

TM: She looks like a 12-year-old. And with a size three waist she has the figure of one, too. I hate her.

Joey Lawrence.

Turn to PEOPLE, page 7

Thanks go out to arts staff

By EMILY MARINO
Collegian Staff

For my last contribution as the Collegian Arts and Living Editor, I would like to take this opportunity to thank each of my staff members who has helped to make the Arts and Living page enjoyable for its readers.

Without the staff's tireless efforts and downright dedication, Valley arts and entertainment would not have gotten the coverage that it rightly deserves, nor would the community have exposure to the wide array of talent in the Five College area.

So here they are, the folks who brought you everything from Spring Concert to the Five College Student Film Festival, in no particular order.

Brian Babineau — This music guru kept us all updated on the latest in local and national music. Covering one of the most popular entertainment realms, our volunteer Music Associate brought you "Sounds from The Valley" and "Trax On, Trax Off." Babineau was on the scene to tribute the late Kurt Cobain, and put the pressure on UPC to report to you on Spring Concert.

Caleb Cochran — Author of our weekly column, "On the Tube," Caleb tuned into the world of television and delivered no-holds-barred opinions. As an Associate Editor, he learned about the wonderful world of layout, a task that could drive anyone crazy. Cochran kept his cool, however, and did a fine job, managing also to handle the A.L. Weekend Calendar bi-monthly.

Jon Lupo — When not engaged in "The Reel World," Collegian film and movie expert Lupo made significant creative contributions to special issues like "Best and Worst of 1993," our Academy Award extravaganza and the Dining Out guide. Lupo, who is a Collegian veteran, helped recruit new writers and, as an Arts and Living Associate, proved that he could do a mean Nancy Kerrigan imitation.

Christina Orwicz — With patience of steel, Orwicz tackled the Weekly Events calendar, so that our writers would know what was going on in the world of Arts and Living, play-by-play. This Associate Editor also shared the labor of putting the A.L. Weekend Calendar together, and, in between reading and filing press releases, brought you the latest on gallery exhibits and film.

Adam Goulston — Although Goulston has made himself scarce in the basement this semester due to an internship at the Optimist (it's okay, we don't hold it against you — anymore) the contributions that he has made have been essential to the page. Founder of "Trax On, Trax Off" and Co-founder of "Sounds," Goulston's rare visits in the office have been appreciated, and his columns will live on.

Ed Humphries — As Lupo's partner in crime, Humphries brought you all to the movies once a week, to report on flicks ranging from Bad Girls (just bad) to On Deadly Ground (pretty deadly). Though Humphries was often spectator to some cinematic bombs, he took shelter well, calling 'em like he saw 'em. Humphries did this with the maternal theory, "if you can't find anything nice to say, don't say anything at all," in mind.

Tara MK Connelly — From fashion to classical music performances, Connelly's middle name (which really is MK, by the way) was versatility this semester. Always there to pinch hit, she was, and will continue to be a vital part of the Arts and Living staff.

Matt Audette — The better half of "Sounds from the Valley" (just kidding, Babineau) and major contributor to "Trax," Audette provided an incredible knowledge of the music world. Ace reporter on the Loud Music Festival, Spring Concert and countless other shows at venues the Baystate, the Iron Horse, Pearl Street and our own UPC shows, Audette helped out as a living musical encyclopedia and all-around good guy.

Amy S. Burns — On top of all of her course reading, Burns managed to whiz through a number of books to keep all of you literary folks on top of the latest paperback and hardcover releases. Burns also covered events like the Indigo Girls show, lectures and booksignings.

Cutter Garcia — My controversial co-writer of "He Said, She Said" never allowed a dull moment to pass down here in the basement. The recipient of both fan and hate mail, Garcia stirred your thoughts and racked your brains about all the wacky things he wanted to say.

Ashley Vondrasek — One of the newest members of the Arts and Living staff, Vondrasek tackled stories ranging from Earthfoods to MFA exhibits and lecture series. As a dedicated and thoughtful writer, Vondrasek is a welcome addition to the page.

Shawn McDonnell — Our resident theatre critic made significant contributions to the page this semester. Not only did McDonnell cover local productions like Company, but snagged some key interviews with the likes of Broadway stars Bruce Kuhn and Sam Samuelson.

Jorma Kansanen — A recruit from the sports desk, Kansanen proved his talent as a culturally aware Arts and Living writer. His eloquent style and zest for classical music, jazz and Italian cuisine, Kansanen was a much appreciated contributor and staff member.

Mike MacLean — An upcoming music writer, MacLean's countless trips to Noho venues and patient listens to albums that may cause some to question the credibility of the label that signed the band, MacLean's promise as a forefront music reporter stands strong.

Gina Larson — Chinese food expert and music appreciator, Larson's versatility and willingness to cover just about any artsy/livingesque event illustrated her contributions as a true team player. We hope she'll sign again next year.

Ed Hurley — From interviewing Pulitzer prize-winning author Tracy Kidder to reviewing local folk music, Hurley added entertaining diversity to the Arts and Living page.

Joshua Boyd — Local music was the name of Boyd's game, as he planted himself front and center for a plethora of campus shows; from Butterfield to the Hatch. Boyd gave coverage and respect to student bands, including Spring Concert dynamo, Synaesthesia.

Jon Ratcliffe — U53, Phish and the Wailers are just three notches under Ratcliffe's journalistic belt. Also an avid fan of the UMass Dance Department, Ratcliffe provided readers with insight on many facets of the musical world.

Henry Brier — From bicycles, to folk music, to Indian cuisine, Brier has come through in the clutch with diverse story angles and quality writing.

Monica Maldari — A recent addition to the Arts and Living Staff, Maldari wrote about a range of events that included wine tasting and cozy shows at Noho's Iron Horse. Maldari's smooth writing and journalistic honesty were welcome contributions to the Arts and Living page.

Arthur Stapleton Jr. — Our illustrious Collegian Sports Editor and columnist somehow found time to contribute stories to the Arts and Living page, including Elton John coverage and the inside scoop on how to have a successful barbecue.

Tracy Monahan — Collegian Temptress/News Editor Monahan provided in-depth coverage of the Top 10 Sexiest Men of 1993, a raving review of the Pub, and uncovered the 50 Most Beautiful people of 1994. Hats off, Mono.

Jacob Michaels — Yet another Collegian Editor who made the Arts and Living page that much better. Michaels is the Collegian's Jewish Affairs Editor, and has added stories about a range of topics, including slide shows and art exhibits, to the page.

Martin Brown — Busy Brown has been notably absent from the Arts and Living page, but his few contributions, which include coverage of Howard Stern's Private Parts and an inside peak at the world of comics and cartoon, have been appreciated.

Juan J. Chacon Quiros — The industrious Developing Nations Editor has covered everything from authors' lectures, to Mexican food, to sex for the Arts and Living page. Taking a break from hard News analysis and political jargon, Quiros tackled the artistic realm with style.

Geri Sahn — This Associate News Editor and Elmo fan galore was one roving reporter that made a great contribution to our page. From Sesame Street Live to guest lecturers, Sahn made significant strides for Arts and Living.

Matt Vautour — Hockey fan and Gorilla (Lacrosse) follower, Vautour covered such events as ice skating in Mullins to a Great Woods summer wrap-up. Way to go, Mattie V.

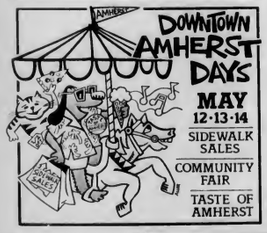
Stephen C. Campbell — Our dedicated GLB Issues Editor contributed stories about everything from concerts to lectures, bringing Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual issues to the forefront of Arts and Living. Campbell's efforts were greatly appreciated, including his knack for taking photos which added visual appeal to the page.

Troy Merrick — Another rarely-seen face, this Hampshire Gazette intern found time to come down to write book reviews and other livingesque articles. His enthusiasm and dedication illustrated Merrick's journalistic integrity.

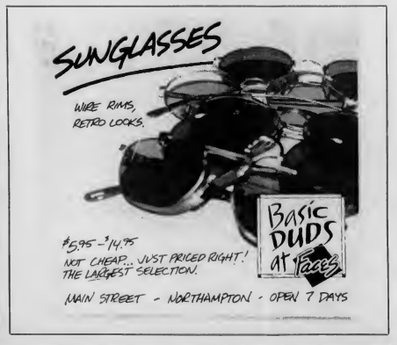
Dave Demerjian — This thank you goes to Dave and to Sony Records for providing us with the latest albums and information that Sony has to offer from the industry.

Well, there it is, the 1993-94 Arts and Living Staff. It has been an honor and a pleasure to head such a fine team of writers, and to provide the Valley with coverage of events within the wide realm of Arts and Living.

Thanks to all the folks in the graphics department for the numerous bendees and A.L. covers that really enhanced the quality of the section.



Thanks also to all of you readers who make our sometimes demanding, always interesting journalistic endeavors worthwhile.

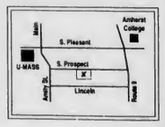


Attention

If you would like to write for the Arts and Living page next semester, be sure to contact Jon Lupo, the new Arts and Living Editor before the end of the semester or the first week of fall. Applications for associate editors are also being accepted.

ACCEPTING FALL APPLICATIONS
BRANDYWINE AT AMHERST
OPEN HOUSE
REFRESHMENTS SUNDAY DOOR PRIZES
MAY 15, 1994
12 TO 3:00 P.M.
COME SEE WHAT BRANDYWINE HAS TO OFFER

STUDENT TRAVEL
1-800-777-0112
STA TRAVEL



GOOD USED
- CLOTHING -
RECEIVE 50% OFF
By presenting this Ad
Special good through May
Orange tags excluded
SALVATION ARMY THRIFT STORE
253-4747
159 No. Pleasant St.
Behind Rens Mobil
Amherst (Parking in Rear)

Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling
Race St. Pub
Holyoke's Hottest Night Spot Just Got Hotter
MEN • WET & WILD with LADIES
a Shower an Hour... Night Out!
Live On Stage!
NEW YORK CENTERFOLDS ~ Sunday, May 22 • 5pm
Largest Stage in New England!
Tickets $7 in Advance / $10 at the Door
• Rte. 202 to Rte. 141 East to 268 Race St. •
Open Mon - Wed 4pm til 1:30am Thurs - Sat 12pm til 2 am 532-1422
Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling ★ Hot ★ Sizzling

STEINBECK COLLISION REPAIR & AUTOBODY
53 So. Prospect -Amherst Center
256-8157 • 256-1385

- Imports & other unibody vehicles are our specialty.
- State of the art equipment for precision frame and unibody straightening (+or-1/2mm)
- Over 90 years staff experience.
- Accepted by all insurance companies for collision repair or glass replacement.
- Advanced European Technology Painting and Refinishing Systems.
- User of Sikkens paint products

Remember it's your car and your choice of repair facilities.

Shop Registration # RS1212

■ People

continued from page 6

TM: Whoa! Why did they choose this guy? Check out the outfit he's wearing. He looks like a reject from the New Kids on the Block. "You got the right stuff..."

SPH: Trace, a beer from Time Out says that picture was taken right as he farted.

Jill Barad.

TM: The CEO of Mattel, Inc. She's surrounded by a slew of Barbie dolls. That's so cool. I'm really glad to see women are no longer being compared to unreachable role models.

SPH: Check out where she says, "I'm very conscious of showing that Barbie's been an astronaut or that she's a doctor." Yeah, the first bikini-clad astronaut. Cool.

Winona Ryder.

SPH: That's exactly what I'd like to do.

TM: God, Hayden, you're drooling on the magazine. Gross.

Paul Newman.

TM: They should've chosen Sean Connery. He's much cooler.

SPH: How can you be cooler than Butch Cassidy? Plus, Roger Moore and Timothy Dalton never played The Hustler.

Tom Cruise and Julia Roberts have worn out their welcome on the list. Yuck.

Daniel Day-Lewis.

TM: He plays a great Irish man and that alone warms my heart.

SPH: He beat me out?

Beverly & Dereck Joubert.

TM: Documentarians from South Africa? Okay. I think People digs up people like this just to lend credibility to a ridiculous issue.

SPH: Who found these two, Jim and Marlon?

Stephanie Seymour annoys us.

Due to space constraints, we could only tool on a few and on People for not including anyone from "90210," the Collegian or Boo Boo.

Profs. get civility award

Long-standing commitment to civility earns $3000

By ALEXIS A. PAPALI
Collegian Correspondent

Jules Chametzky and Michael Wolff, both professors emeritus of English at the University of Massachusetts, have been selected by the University's graduate school as co- winners of the first annual civility award.

The award was set up in honor of the late Vincent Dethier, who was Gilbert Woodsie professor of biology at UMass, and was admired for his long-standing commitment to civility issues. The $3,000 award, which will be split by the two recipients, is given to those members of the faculty who best exemplify his ideals.

Chametzky, a member of the English department since 1958, was named professor emeritus in January, 1992. He was director of the Institute for Advanced Study in the Humanities at UMass from 1981 to 1992, and has served on the editorial board of The Massachusetts Review, a literary/arts periodical, since 1958.

He was a pioneer in the field of ethnic studies, specializing in Jewish-American literature. Active in teach-ins during the Vietnam war, and participating in Hillel student programs sponsored jointly with the Institute, he has worked continually since his arrival here to diversify the issues with which the campus community deals.

As head of the English department (1990-91), Chametzky introduced channels for graduate student grievances. He brought to the department a Five-College minority graduate student, and taught a course in Black literature and music. He also played an important role in bringing prize-winning author John Edgar Wideman and the late Harvey Swados to the English department, and scholars Chinua and Christie Achebe to UMass.

Wolff, recognized internationally as a Victorian scholar, has been at the center of many campus civility issues for over 20 years. He began teaching "Man and Woman in Literature" in 1972, and today the course is still offered as the department's major social diversity course.

An ardent supporter of women's studies, he served as a member of the Faculty Senate Status of Women Committee from 1983-86, and as a member of the search committee for the first women's studies program director.

He worked with Dethier, at the nascent Campus Civility Commission, as a central member of the committee that planned "The Year Toward Civility," and joined the Commission in 1983. In 1984, he co-founded (then co- chaired for two years) the Faculty Support Group for Gay Lesbian Bisexual Concerns. In 1987, he organized a conference entitled "Inside and Outside the Classroom: Faculty Responsibility for Social and Cultural Values."

The awards will be presented at the annual graduate school awards dinner today, and the two will also be honored at the graduate school's commencement ceremony on May 21.

Johan's Dutch Inn presents
May Fest
Traditional German cuisine to celebrate the arrival of Spring
Now Accepting Graduation Weekend Reservations
Formerly The Gold Mine
DUTCH • INDONESIAN • GERMAN CUISINE
Regular Menu Always Available
Rte. 10 Easthampton, MA
413-527-2911
Banquet Facilities For 25-125

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

Major career opportunities in an established rapidly expanding Bedford based leading provider of internationally known high quality personal computer hardware. We are a high growth, fast paced, technologically driven national direct marketer of PC hardware and service parts, as well as a national computer repair depot.

It is the philosophy of this high performance company to encourage its employees to develop professionally in a dynamic environment using state-of-the-art computer technology to enhance their skills. You must have a strong desire to grow, be motivated, be aggressive, and have a capacity for hard work. The rewards reflect your success.

Our PC hardware product line consists of a wide variety of computer systems, CPU's, monitors, keyboards, printers and other electronic sub-assemblies such as logic boards, disk drives, power supplies, etc. We serve a large diverse customer base ranging from consumers to business, education and other types of institutions, as well as the wide world of the service and repair industry.

Our environment is challenging and positive within an exciting growth industry.

DEAL MAKERS
PERSONAL COMPUTER PURCHASING
You will help meet current inventory needs for computer hardware and their electronic sub-assemblies and will develop vendor prospects in business to business relationships. You will develop and execute inventory and purchasing programs and procedures to meet corporate goals. You will be part of a strong professional buyer team that develops vendor selection, qualification and quality assurance programs in non-OEM/non-standard sourcing channels.

You should thrive on both the hunt for difficult to find sources and the evaluation and negotiation of purchasing opportunities in a deal making environment. You must have good computer skills and have a strong desire to learn about the technicalities of computer hardware. We seek a high energy person with basic knowledge of personal computer systems and hardware.

You will enter an outstanding Training Program that will give you professional competency in product knowledge, negotiating skills, operations skills and personal development tactics. A combination of study and real time practice in a live environment mentored by experts will develop your skills.

PERSONAL COMPUTER SALES
Enjoy the high earnings potential of an inside sales person.

You will help our customers meet current needs for computer hardware and their electronic sub-assemblies and will develop prospects in business to business relationships.

You must have good computer skills and have a strong desire to learn about the technicalities of computer hardware. You should be aggressive and enjoy the sales process. Sales or customer service experience in any industry is a major plus.

You will enter an outstanding Training Program that will give you professional competency in product knowledge, selling skills, operations skills and personal development tactics. A combination of study and real time practice in a live environment mentored by experts will develop your skills.

MARKETING ASSOCIATE
You will assist in developing, managing and executing marketing programs and tactics in product pricing strategy, product line development, marketing research and other marketing activities.

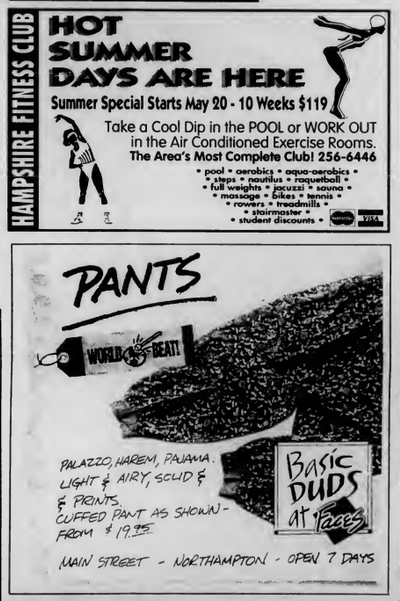
You must have very strong computer skills and analytic ability. You must have good technical knowledge about personal computer hardware and a strong desire to learn about the technicalities of their electronic sub-assemblies.

Experience in the personal computer industry, a technical background and a marketing MBA are major plusses.

ACCOUNTANT/FINANCIAL ANALYST
You must have solid general accounting skills with a strong emphasis on financial analysis and reporting. You must have excellent computer skills to work with advanced computerized accounting systems and the creative ability to produce analytical projects for management.

PERSONAL ASSISTANT
This is a significant opportunity to gain a wide range of experience at the senior management level.

As Personal Assistant to the Executive Committee, you will work with the three principals in their personal affairs in such activities as insurance and legal administration, real estate, investments, professional and community affairs and the general administration of their private and business functions.



You must be a results driven independent worker and have highly developed skills with personal computer programs including word processing and spreadsheets, in addition to general management level organizational skills and excellent written and verbal presentation abilities. You must have the professional level corporate decorum to be effective at the senior executive management level.

If you are a career achiever and can make a contribution to this dynamic entrepreneurial company, please send resume and details of your computer knowledge to:

Pre-Owned Electronics, Inc.
205 Burlington Road
Bedford, MA 01730
Attn: Linda Gagnon

Lincoln Real Estate
has the best selection of 1, 2, & 3 bedroom Uptown Apartments with Gas Heat.
We begin showing apartments in April and May for June or September Occupancy.
253-7879 • 25 N. Pleasant St.

HAMPSHIRE FITNESS CLUB
HOT SUMMER DAYS ARE HERE
Summer Special Starts May 20 - 10 Weeks $119
Take a Cool Dip in the POOL or WORK OUT in the Air Conditioned Exercise Rooms.
The Area's Most Complete Club! 256-6446
• pool • aerobics • aqua-aerobics • steps • nautilus • raquetball • full weights • jacuzzi • sauna • massage • bikes • tennis • rowers • treadmills • stairmaster • student discounts •

Maybe we don't have time to log in ads about ourselves, but we can put our own ads in anytime we want.
GRAPHICS STAFF:
MUCH COOLER THAN THE REST

Can You Afford $105/month* For Rent?
Only 8 minutes from campus at
LANTERN COURT
For more information call:
Kamins 253-2515
*rate based on 4 people per 2BDR

This Thursday at the Hatch
Stomp Box & Pangloss
Presented by WOZQ
Drinki Specials
Pizza & Grinder Available until 11:30pm
the hatch
GROUND FLOOR STUDENT UNION

Immigration Law
Hans & Curran, P.C.
30 Years of Experience in Immigration Law
Free Consultation for Five-College Students/Faculty

We Deliver
Kai Chi
Chinese - American Cuisine
Restaurant & Bar
Congratulations Graduates!
SAVE UP TO 30% OFF!
Complete Family Dinner Specials with your choice of Soup • Appetizer • Dessert • Entree
Make Your Reservations Now for Mother's Day and Graduation!
Kai Chi Restaurant
MT. FARMS MALL • RTE 9 • HADLEY • 586-2774
Open Mon. - Thurs. 11:30am - 11pm, Fri.-Sat 11:30am - midnight, Sunday 12 noon - 10:30pm

Musical Saunders saunters into Northampton

Magical Merl brings his Rainforest Band to jam at Pearl Street

COURTESY BART NAGEL

Merl Saunders hits the road and heads to Noho Thursday night.

By BRIAN BABINEAU
Collegian Staff

Thirty years of musical history will be making its way to Pearl St. in Northampton on May 12 in the form of Merl Saunders. Although noted for his producing and composing skills, it is the music he plays that has brought him critical and popular attention.

> Drawing from his long background in jazz, blues, rock and new-age music, he fuses these into a seamless and unique sound that lends itself well to extended jams.

Drawing from his long background in jazz, blues, rock and new-age music, he fuses these into a seamless and unique sound that lends itself well to extended jams.

Along with his backing musicians, the Rainforest Band, which includes bassist Michael Warren and percussionist Vince Littleton, Merl has released countless albums.

One such album is 1990's chart-topping Blues From a Rainforest, which he recorded with Jerry Garcia, and which finally placed him in the national spotlight. That album spent 27 weeks in Billboard's New Age Top Albums, and more than a few late nights on my own CD player.

Now Saunders has released a new album, It's In the Air, with the Rainforest Band and the help of Blues Traveler's John Popper. The new album continues the tradition of ambient blues and jazz against a new-age backdrop.

Merl and the boys are now touring to support the album, and head into our Valley this spring.

Merl Saunders and the Rainforest Band bring their spaced out, rained out jams to Pearl St. on May 12th. Tickets are $7.00 before and $9.00 the day of the show. For more information, call 584-7810.

Rock on

MATT KAHN/COLLEGIAN

Sunny Miller, is one of five artists featured in "Coming Together," a new exhibit that showcases local artists and their bronze, clay and glass sculptures as well as paintings. Showing May 16 – 22 at Durfee Conservatory. Call for hours.

EXPLORE... ENHANCE... AND MOVE AHEAD THIS SUMMER AT UMASS LOWELL

Whether you're looking to explore new interests, enhance your education, or move ahead in your pursuit of a degree, you can do it all at UMass Lowell this summer.

- Over 500 courses to choose from
- Very affordable tuition
- Flexible day and evening scheduling
- Small classes

We're conveniently located near Routes 3, 93, 495 and 128. For more information and a Summer Course Bulletin, call (508) 934-2480
University of Massachusetts Lowell, Office of Enrollment Services/DCE, One University Ave., Lowell, MA 01854.

Earn your transfer credits:
Summer Session I
May 23-June 30
Summer Session II
July 11-August 19

UMASS LOWELL CONTINUING EDUCATION

UMass Lowell is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity, Title IX, H/V, ADA 1990 University.

The University of Massachusetts
Amherst
1994 COMMENCEMENT

Celebrate with us & avoid the traffic at
The Commencement Food Court!
by University Food Services

Festive Food & Beverage Tents
with a choice of:

Fried Chicken or Vegetarian Picnic Baskets
Non-Alcoholic Sparkling Wine

Roast Beef, Ham & Turkey Grinders

Gourmet Desserts Gourmet Coffee by Green Mt.

1/4 lb. Hambugers All Beef Hot Dogs Chicken, Beef or Tofu Kabobs

Snapple & Soda Available at all tents

Shuttle buses provided to all Parking Areas.
Rain Site: Berkshire Dining Hall (Transportation Provided)
IF YOU'RE INTERESTED IN MORE INFORMATION
CALL 545-0419

BUY BACK TIME

University Store's Textbook Annex announces a new Buyback location in the Campus Center!

TO MAKE IT EASIER AND MORE COVIENENT, BUY-BACK WILL NOW BE HELD AT THE FOLLOWING LOCATIONS: CAMPUS CENTER, TEXTBOOK ANNEX IN HAMPDEN SOUTHWEST. YOU WILL MAKE THE MOST FOR YOUR MONEY BY SELLING YOUR TEXTBOOKS DURING THE "CLOSING BUY". SO, PLEASE, TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE NEW LOCATIONS AND THE FACT THAT THIS IS THE BEST TIME TO SELL. STUDENT ID IS REQUIRED.

CAMPUS CENTER
(1st Floor by the ATM Machines)

May 11, 12, 13
9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

May 14
11:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

May 16 and 17
9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

May 18, 19, 20
9:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m

TEXTBOOK ANNEX

May 11, 12, 13
9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

May 16, 17, 18, 19, 20
9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

May 23 and 24
9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

May 25
9:00 a.m. to noon

HAMPDEN IN SOUTHWEST

May 18, 19, 20
10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.

TEXTBOOK SCHOLARSHIP DRAWING

$2,500 TO BE GIVEN AWAY IN $100 AWARDS
ENTRY FORMS AVAILABLE AT ALL BUYBACK LOCATIONS

DRAWINGS HELD ON THE CAMPUS CENTER CONCOURSE AT NOON MAY 16 THRU 20, 1994

SCHOLARSHIPS WILL BE AWARDED IN THE FORM OF UNIVERSITY STORE GIFT CERTIFICATES. SCHOLARSHIP FUND IS GUARANTEED TO BE $2,500, SEE THE ANNEX FOR DETAILS.

TEXTBOOK SCHOLARSHIPS DRAWING - ENTRY FORM
UNIVERSITY STORE'S TEXTBOOK ANNEX

DROP OFF COMPLETED ENTRY FORM AT THE UNIVERSITY STORE OR ANY BUYBACK LOCATION.

NAME: _____

HOME ADDRESS: _____ CAMPUS ADDRESS: _____

HOME PHONE: _____ CAMPUS PHONE: _____

EMPLOYEES OF AUXILIARY SERVICES AND SOUTH EASTERN BOOK COMPANY ARE NOT ELIGIBLE.
LIMIT ONE PRIZE AWARDED PER PERSON
SCHOLARSHIPS WILL BE AWARDED IN THE FORM OF UNIVERSITY STORE GIFT CERTIFICATES.
ENTRY FORMS MUST BE FILLED OUT COMPLETELY.

■ GLB

continued from page 2

schools, and conflicts in the home have caused a homelessness rate of 26 percent. This is according to Pediatrics journal issue 79, 1987.

The GLB Youth Project provides information to 45 schools in the valley to try to reduce these numbers. "Not as many dropouts have been happening," said Gauthier. "We're trying to create an interim housing program to help the teens settle in with the fact that they're independent now."

If you need more information or help the Pioneer Valley GLB Youth Group can be reached through a 24-hour answering machine at 413-584-4213.

■ gays

continued from page 1

piled on the number of students in opposite-sex domestic partnerships. After compiling the data through a Project Pulse survey administered this fall, the Committee will continue meeting in order to explore implementing domestic partner benefits for students in opposite-sex domestic partnerships during the Fall of 1995.

Finally, the Committee recommends that Vice Chancellor Robinson locate the most appropriate office on campus for students to go and register with their domestic partners and fill out a "Statement of Partnership." This would be issued as a "Certificate of Domestic Partnership," and would serve as proof that the couple has registered as domestic partners.

"We are very pleased with the outcome of our Joint Committee," said former GEO Co-Speaker Wendy Mataya. "This is a victory for the GEO, as well as beneficial for all students at UMass."

NEWSROOM PEOPLE ROCK - HARD CORE

We felt sorry for the people who work in the newsroom because they don't log in ads or make them, so we put this one in for them.

Fall 1994 Collegian Editors

Editor-in-Chief	Darienne J. Hosley
Managing Editor	Arthur Stapleton Jr.
Arts & Living	Jon Lupo
Black Affairs	position vacant
Developing Nations	Sonia Paz
Editorial/Opinion	Tracy Monahan
GLB Issues	Stephen C. Campbell
Jewish Affairs	JacobW. Michaels
Multicultural Affairs	Evelyn A. DeJesus
News	Kelly Spang
Photography	Nathan K. Martin
Sports	Andrew Bryce & Matthew Vautour
Women's Issues	position vacant

Applications for vacant positions are available at the Collegian offices, 113 Campus Center basement. Positions will be filled in the fall.

New writers and photographers interested in being part of New England's largest college daily newspaper are invited to drop by the offices in September.

SENIORS/ALUMNI

Stay in touch with your school!
Don't miss out on your familiar UMass news source.
Subscribe to the COLLEGIAN!

DAILY COLLEGIAN
Subscription Manager
113 Campus Center
University of Massachusetts
Amherst, MA 01003
or call
(413) 545-3500
If you have any questions.

Yes! I would like to subscribe to the Collegian:
Daily Delivery: ❑ one year $85.00 ❑ one semester $50.00
Weekly Delivery: ❑ one year $30.00 ❑ one semester $20.00
Overseas (weekly delivery): ❑ one year $85.00 ❑ one semester $50.00
Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____

VOICE EDITOR POSITION OPEN

The editor position for the 1994-95 Graduate Voice is open.

The editor is responsible for producing and distributing 8 monthly issues of The Voice which run 8 to 16 pages. The position carries a stipend equal to the average TA stipend, currently $8,273. The editor may also apply to the Graduate School for a tuition and fee waiver if work on the Voice is related to her/his academic pursuits.

It is not necessary for a candidate to have editorial experience, but the editor will preferably possess good writing and editing skills, basic knowledge of University affairs, basic computer skills, and a willingness to work hard to produce an interesting paper. The editor will work with the GSS Executive Committee & the Office Manager.

Applications – cover letter, resume, & writing sample(s) –must be RECEIVED no later than 5:00pm, Monday, May 16th in the GSS office. Submit applications to:

The Voice* Editor Search/919 Campus Center
University of Massachusetts/Amherst, MA 01003-1212

For more information, please call the Graduate Student Senate at 545-2896

DROP EVERYTHING!

Amazing Bargains Like Never Before at
J·RICH CLOTHING FOR MEN
Sidewalk Sale Days
May 12-14
191 N. Pleasant St.
DOWNTOWN AMHERST
SUCH A DEAL!!

Resumé Package

- 50 copies on Your Choice of 25% Cotton Paper
- 2 Business Day Service
- 1 Page Typeset

•With Coupon•
$19.95!!
CopyCat PRINT SHOP
We Specialize in Impossible Deadlines!
228 Triangle St., Amherst 549-3840
32 Pleasant St., Northampton 586-1332

1-4 Bedrom Houses & Apartments
Most on Bus Route
Amherst & Surrounding Communities
Free Landlord Referral Service
D.H. JONES
D. H. JONES
15A Pray St. (2nd Floor)
Amherst, MA 01002
549-7757 • 8:30am - 5:00pm M-F

adventura travel
549-1256 Amherst Carriage Shops 253 N. Pleasant
584-9441 Northampton 122 Main
Open Sat.
"Best of the Valley" Award
We Can Save You Time & Money
Senior • Student • Business • Vacation Travel
AIR • CRUISE • RAIL • RESORTS
Europe • Asia • Caribbean • USA

Don't miss a beat. Be in the know. Collegian.

It's 11p.m. Pulling an all-nighter. You have it all figured out. No Problem. You've procrastinated to the point that the laundry is done and you have called all your friends (twice). That 20-page paper is due in less than 10 hours. Your Macintosh just died.
Big Problem.
MacE.M.T.
549-4EMT
We Make Service Calls At All Hours

PUBLIC SALE
U.S. CUSTOMS ABANDONED RUGS

Handmade silk & wool oriental rugs, acquired at U.S. Customs plus others will be sold to the general public. Sale includes certified carpets from Persia, India, Russia, Turkey, Egypt, Pakistan, China and more. A very large selection of Kashan, Kerman, Bidjar, Nain, Ghom, Hereke, Sarouk, Isfahan, & more in sizes from 1x1 to 12x18. Some kilims & village rare pieces along with collectables, tribal rugs, & master weaver pieces

Sat. Only
May 14,
at the
Amherst
Junior High
Hours: 10am to 5pm

all rugs 50% to 70% off

I-91, Exit 19, onto Rt. 9 East for approx. 7 miles, at light (Amherst College) take left onto N Pleasant St. straight through 3 lights then 1st Right onto 170 Chestnut St. Rt. 202, at flashing light take Pelham Hill Rd. Continue through Amherst, 4th Right after traffic light onto High St. - Inside Phone: (413) 549-3710

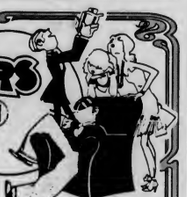
Terms: Cash, Check, Visa/MC. Info: (800) 966-6820

Gilreath Manor Condos
- on Hobart Lane -
3 Bedroom • 1½ baths • Heated Basement
New Gas Heat & Hot Water
1/2 Mile to campus • On Bus Route
Showings Start in April
for June or September Occupancy!
Lincoln Real Estate • 25 N. Pleasant St • 253-7879

College Students

Would 100% Free Tuition Put a Smile on Your Face?

That's right! The Massachusetts Army National Guard offers 100% Free Tuition for state colleges and universities in Massachusetts. The commitment is only about one weekend a month and two weeks a year. And there's more.



You'll receive up to $6,800 in education assistance with the Montgomery GI Bill and you'll earn a salary over your six-year enlistment.

You'll receive job skills training in technical fields such as electronics, communications, or computers and have the adventure of your life!

Let your local Massachusetts Army National Guard recruiter put a smile on your face today.
CALL: 413-586-8681/8687
OR 1-800-322-1338

MASSACHUSETTS ARMY NATIONAL GUARD
Americans At Their Best.
The Army National Guard is an Equal Opportunity Employer

TWISTERS TAVERN

Open Until
May 31, 1994
THANK YOU UMASS
For Your Patroange
Its Been a Fun Few Years...
Twisters Tavern Staff

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

Major career opportunities in an established rapidly expanding Bedford based leading provider of internationally known high quality personal computer hardware. We are a high growth, fast paced, technologically driven national direct marketer of PC hardware and service parts, as well as a national computer repair depot.

It is the philosophy of this high performance company to encourage its employees to develop professionally in a dynamic environment using state-of-the-art computer technology to enhance their skills. You must have a strong desire to grow, be motivated, be aggressive, and have a capacity for hard work. The rewards reflect your success.

Our PC hardware product line consists of a wide variety of computer systems, CPU's, monitors, keyboards, printers and electronic sub assemblies such as logic boards, disk drives, power supplies, etc. We serve a large diverse customer base ranging from consumers to business, education and other types of institutions, as well as the wide world of the service and repair industry.

Our environment is challenging and positive within an exciting growth industry.

DEAL MAKERS
PERSONAL COMPUTER PURCHASING

You will help meet current inventory needs for computer hardware and their electronic sub-assemblies and will develop vendor prospects in business to business relationships. You will develop and execute inventory and purchasing programs and procedures to meet corporate goals. You will be part of a strong professional buyer team that develops vendor selection, qualification and quality assurance programs in non-OEM/non-standard sourcing channels.

You should thrive on both the hunt for difficult to find sources and the evaluation and negotiation of purchasing opportunities in a deal making environment. You must have good computer skills and have a strong desire to learn about the technicalities of computer hardware. We seek a high energy person with basic knowledge of personal computer systems and hardware.

You will enter an outstanding Training Program that will give you professional competency in product knowledge, negotiating skills, operations skills and personal development tactics. A combination of study and real time practice in a live environment mentored by experts will develop your skills.

PERSONAL COMPUTER SALES

Enjoy the high earnings potential of an inside sales person.

You will help our customers meet current needs for computer hardware and their eleetronic sub assemblies and will develop prospects in business to business relationships.

You must have good computer skills and have a strong desire to learn about the technicalities of computer hardware. You should be aggressive and enjoy the sales process. Sales or customer service experience in any industry is a major plus.

You will enter an outstanding Training Program that will give you professional competency in product knowledge, selling skills, operations skills and personal development tactics. A combination of study and real time practice in a live environment mentored by experts will develop your skills.

MARKETING ASSOCIATE

You will assist in developing, managing and executing marketing programs and tactics in product pricing strategy, product line development, marketing research and other marketing activities.

You must have very strong computer skills and analytic ability. You must have good technical knowledge about personal computer hardware and a strong desire to learn about the technicalities of their electronic sub assemblies.

Experience in the personal computer industry, a technical background and a marketing MBA are major plusses.

If you are a career achiever and can make a contribution to this dynamic entrepreneurial company, please send resume and details of your computer knowledge to:

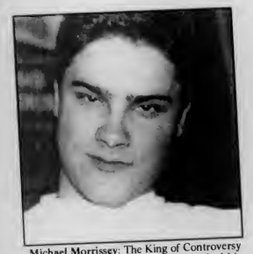
Pre-Owned Electronics, Inc.
205 Burlington Road
Bedford, MA 01730
Attn: Linda Gagnon

An MDC Production

THE PAPER TOO

An everyday UMass adventure.

Coming Soon to a Newsstand Near You!



The COLLEGIAN presents a RESPONSIBLE PRESS production. "The Paper Too" with music by LIONEL RICHIE and JIMMY BUFFETT

Starring Mike CARVALHO – Tracy MONAHAN – Lisa JEZOWSKI – Greg IAFRATE – Geri SAHN – A.J. STEWART – Michael MORRISSEY
Andrew BRYCE – Sean P. HAYDEN – Cutter GARCIA – Arthur C. STAPLETON Jr. – Julie OLSON – Vanessa AMIN – Matthew VAUTOUR
Barbara CANNISTRARO – Damion SMITH – Anthony GUIDO – Brian GORMLEY – Candice FLEMMING – Ed HUMPHRIES
Michele BAKIS – Jon LUPO – Emily MARINO – Tara MK CONNELLY – Matt AUDETTE – Darienne HOSLEY – Justin "Midnight" DOYLE
Caleb COCHRAN – Juan Jose Chacon QUIROS – Tony MORSE – Marni E. HELFNER as "Bubble Gum Face" – Andrew DAVIDSON
Ted KOTTLER – Jim GANLEY – Jessica TAVERNA – Shawn MCDONNELL – Aram COMJEAN – and Nathan K. MARTIN

NC-17 | No one under 17 admitted.

Presenting the Seniors

Michael Morrissey: The King of Controversy joined the staff as a freshman and worked his way up through the ranks, quickly gaining status through the sports desk and notoriety through the editorial page. Senior year, Morrissey was training director and finally, editor-in-chief.

Sean P. Hayden: It all started with an editorial about Larry Bird. Sean first signed on with the Collegian, saying that he'd write for sports, with news as a "last resort." Since that fateful day, he's written for every desk at the paper. The experience gained here landed Sean a six-figure job in Ware. Where? Exactly.

Henry Hackett, Metro Editor: Hey! he's not a Collegian senior! He does work at the other paper though.

Mike Carvalho: A longtime member of the Collegian, Mike has done it all. The wizard behind the graphics here at the paper, he has recently taken the helm at the editorial desk. Mike plans to go work for the Carolina Prowl football franchise, even if they don't want him. They have no choice.

Aram Comjean: The man with the most frequently misspelled and mispronounced name. Aram (Ah-rum) has always been an integral part of our photo staff. He could frequently be found chasing after the ducks to capture the ultimate Kodak moment.

Lisa Jezowski: The reason we got a newspaper out every day last semester. Born with her fingers on a Mac keyboard, Lisa is the Queen of Graphics. She'll be sorely missed when Turley Publications has questions at 5 a.m.

Christina Orwicz: After much badgering by the Art & Lovable editor, Emily Marino, Christina decided to be the master of the Weekend Calendar. Rumored to be leaving the country for England with only the shirt on her back, we wish her well.

Caitlin Olson: The "Fonz" of the graphics department. Caitlin is too sexy for all of her shirts. We're sure that she'll be more famous than Picasso. Everyone should go to the opening reception of her BFA Thesis Presentation "Quiet Violence," on May 15 from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. in Marshall Annex. It's a guaranteed winner.

Matt Kahn: One of our friendly photo staff, Matt has been around for a long time (27 semesters?). He's been threatening to graduate for a couple of semesters now, but this time, he assures us it's the real thing.

Dan Wetzel: The Collegian's last remaining political liability. Despite the fact that most of the groups on campus disagreed with everything he said, he still managed to snag free T-shirts from them all. The Collegian will miss Papa Wetzel.

Julie Olson: Possibly the funkiest dresser to ever grace our basement offices. Jules was one of the Ed/Op goddesses fall semester. Tempted by the Liberator, she resisted and stuck true to the Collegian.

Boo-Boo: We'll miss you! We're glad you're safe and sound.

Vanessa Adelman: A bright spot in our office, Vanessa moved on in December. She visited occasionally and livened us up. Vanessa will be remembered for her intelligence and hard work first, and "beautiful blue eyes" second.

Mike DiLorenzo: "Between the pipes," DiLo was key. One of our senior sports writers, DiLo provided leadership to the younger guys and even wrote for news occasionally.

Michelle Bayliss: Starting out with us as a young collegiate pup, Michelle has been a jack-of-all trades at the Collegian. Most recently the training director, she has been instrumental in bringing workshops and cookies to new writers. Brooke Wheeler, a former Collegianite is pictured here as well.

Cutter Garcia: A member of the Collegian for more than two years, Cutter is the mastermind behind "Cutter's World" and "He Said, She Said." Playing the part of Joe Meathead to perfection, the campus didn't always agree with him, but they always had an opinion.

Vanessa Amin: Okay, she's not exactly graduating, but Vanessa is leaving us for the sunny shores of California. She was on exchange for a year, but now that CalState-Northridge is rebuilt, she's going back to Cali, to Cali...

Edward Humphries: The "other" movie guy at the Arts & Luscious Desk. Lupo always managed to pawn the bombs off on him. Ed will always be remembered in our hearts and minds as, well, Ed.

Jenn Blunt: One of our trusty night staffers, Jenn was instrumental in the laying out of the Wednesday night paper. Crop tape — she's got it; stats — she's all over it; filler — seen that. Jenn will be missed by many.

Brian Babineau: Trax on, trax off, Brian has been the sassiest music associate to hit the A&L desk in awhile. Listening to jammin' grooves from Nine Inch Nails to the GoGo's, he does a kicking version of "I Need Love," by L.L. Cool J.

Dave Scott: Our own Dave Scott, he was continually hounded by operatives from that other guy's office. Now that "Scott Free" has come out, our Dave had nothing left to do but go on subbatical to avoid the fierce competition.

Bill Balfour: Despite the fact that he's from Marlboro, Mass., Bill always looked as though he just stepped off a boat in Martha's Vineyard. The man behind the tennis beat, Bill is one of our regulars.

Spring Concert - Part Two

JESSICA TAVERNA / COLLEGIAN

Totally stoned-out Spring Concert goers rush the fried dough trailer as a massive case of the munchies simultaneously hits all 17 people in attendance causing a high death toll.

MATT KAHN / COLLEGIAN

Totally stoned-out drummer of some group at Spring Concert, we're pretty sure it was Buffalo Tom, jams real hard core.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

There was a little-known opening act at this year's Spring Fling in the mud and his name was Vacuum-Cleaner-Bag Head.

ARAM COMJEAN / COLLEGIAN

Rap star Kool Moe Dee, who obviously looks much older live than on MTV, performed his smash hit "Wild, Wild West" at last weekend's Spring Concert, much to the delight of all the stoned-out concert goers.

Photos by Aram Comjean
Jessica Taverna
Matt Kahn

Textbook Buyback

RIGHT: "Students Need to be Paid Higher Prices for Their Books!"

We agree. That is why the Annex and the Board of Governors have instituted a campaign to get faculty to order their books for next semester now. If faculty submit their order before the buyback starts the Annex can pay 50% of the price of a new copy for books that we need for the fall. If we don't need the book a wholesale company will pay you their price. Since they re-sell those books nationally, the price will always be less than the Annex pays.

WRONG: "I can't sell it at the Annex unless I bought it there."

Many people think that unless they purchased the book at the Annex they can not sell it back there. Not true! We will buy any book that has wholesale value.

Buyback starts May 11

Visit our Buyback locations at the Textbook Annex, Hampden Student Center in Southwest and our new location in the Campus Center next to the ATM machines.

UNIVERSITY STORE'S Textbook Annex UMASS AMHERST

COMMENCEMENT WEEKEND
CELEBRATE AT
THE TOC RESTAURANT
THE 1994 GRADUATION MENU
Entrees

Surf & Turf
N.Y. Sirloin Steak
Chicken Kiev
Veal Parmesan
Roast Prime Rib Au Jus
Swordfish
Scallop Creole
Vegetable Lasagne

The Famous TOC Baked Scrod
Child Size Chopped Sirloin & Our Soup and Salad Bar

Friday 5/20 and Saturday 5/21
Dinner served 4:30 - 8:00
Reservations Strongly Recommended

Sunday 5/22
11:30am - 3:00pm
Reservations Required

THE TOC RESTAURANT
543-3216
11th Floor Campus Center

Swimming, Boating — Water Skiing, Inline Skating — Biking, Walking, Hiking — Roller Skating, Traveling

What ever you do have a great summer!
Environmental Health +Safety

Attention UMASS Employees and MTA Members...
We'll give you something to smile about!

At South Amherst Family Dentistry, we offer comprehensive dental care for all ages.
We now accept Blue Cross Blue Shield Dental Blue PPO and most other Dental Insurance!
South Amherst Family Dentistry
Richard R. Pastorello, D.D.S.
479 West St., South Towne Commons #3
Rte. 116 • South Amherst • 253-4744
Open: Mon.-Thurs. 8-8, Fri. 8-4, Sat. 8-1
Most insurances accepted • Handicapped accessible • Ample free parking

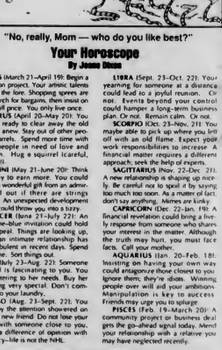
Calvin and Hobbes By Bill Watterson

Jim's Journal By Jim

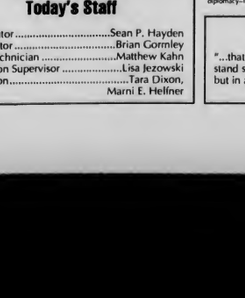
Save Morrill Save Morrill By Gleeson

Urban Shocker By Deg

Bruno By C. Baldwin



Daily Crossword
Edited by Frank Michel Jaffe



ACROSS
1 Spade or Hemmer
4 Rags-to-riches author
9 "— Performance": Tudor ballet
13 Crow
15 "... toe better for —"
16 Group of poems
17 "The Sun — Rises"
18 Lake Indiana
19 Female lobsters
20 Hold back
22 Come forth
24 Baseball goals
25 Biblical brother
26 The Plain People
29 Gave in
32 Want forward
34 Outlaws
35 — de vie
36 German composer Max, 1873-1916
38 Stanmum
39 Beetle percussionist
42 In a meticulous way
45 Combustion or others
47 Tints
48 Emulate
1 Across
49 Architect van der Rohe
50 Mortar companion
53 Huisne, e.g.
57 Jacob: a treat wife
58 Denial
60 Lunary
61 "Judith" composer
62 Beethoven dedicatee
63 Stressand vehicle: 1987
64 Cyrano's outstanding feature

DOWN
1 Ski lift part
2 Perry's creator
3 Lewis's "— Timbertoes"
4 In the direction of the wind
5 Nocturnal primate
6 — and beer it
7 Japan add-on
8 Close once more
9 Place of misery
10 Mimic
11 — John Silver
12 Cape box
14 — novel
21 Greet the day
23 Aspect
28 One who gives in
26 Spider, old style
27 Bucephalus, for one
28 Like a king
29 Earl or duke
30 Misfortune
31 Repudiate
32 "Idiomthe or the Peer and the —"
33 Trenzler picture
37 Carlsbad AARP members
40 "— behind me, Satan."
41 Kind of exam
43 Mercutio and Tybalt
44 Invisible
46 Nephew's sisters
49 Fast, in music
50 Blueprint
51 Architect Saarinen
52 — aoust
53 "— to the chief."
54 Heavy hammer
55 Four-footed "Thin Man" star
56 Monster's loch
59 Actor Wallach

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

5/11/94

5/11/94

The Far Side By Gary Larson

"No, really, Mom — who do you like best?"

Your Horoscope
By Joann Rees

ARIES (March 21–April 19): Begin a renovation project. Your artistic talents come to the fore. Shopping sprees are out. Search for bargains, then insist on paying full price. You only live once.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20): You are now ready to clear away the old and start anew. Stay out of other people's quarrels. Spend more time with young people in need of love and attention. Hug a squirrel (careful, they bite!).

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): Think up a way to earn more. You could receive a wonderful gift from an admirer. Find out if there are strings attached. An unexpected development at work could throw you into a tizzy.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): An out-of-the-blue invitation could hold great appeal. Things are looking up, even if an intimate relationship has been turbulent in recent days. Spend time alone. Sort things out.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22): Someone beautiful is fascinating to you. You enjoy catering to her needs. Buy her something very special. Don't complain. Do your laundry.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): You will enjoy the attention showered on you by a new friend. Do not lose your temper with someone close to you. Handle a difference of opinion with diplomacy—life is not the NHL.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): Your yearning for someone at a distance could lead to a joyful reunion. Or not. Events beyond your control could hamper a long-term business plan. Or not. Remain calm. Or not.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): You maybe able to pick up where you left off with an old flame. Expect your work responsibilities to increase. A financial matter requires a different approach; seek the help of experts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): A new relationship is shaping up nicely. Be careful not to spoil it by saying too much too soon. As a matter of fact, don't say anything. Memes are kinky.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): A financial revelation could bring a lively response from someone who shares your interest in the matter. Although the truth may hurt, you must face facts. Call your mother.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18): Insisting on having your own way could antagonize those closest to you. Ignore them; they're idiots. Winning people over will aid your ambitions. Manipulation is key to success. Friends may urge you to splurge.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): A community project or business deal gets the go-ahead signal today. Mend your relationship with a relative you may have neglected recently.

Today's Staff

Night Editor ..... Sean P. Hayden
Copy Editor ..... Brian Gormley
Photo Technician ..... Matthew Kahn
Production Supervisor ..... Lisa Jezowski
Production ..... Tara Dixon, Marni E. Helfner

Quote of the Day

"...that is what learning is. You suddenly understand something you've understood all your life, but in a new way."

—Doris Lessing

Classifieds

• 20¢ per word per day for students
• All ads must be paid in cash 2 days in advance
• Ads may be placed at 113 Campus Center, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

$150 REWARD

For more information leading to the return of personal property stolen from 675 Main St Amherst 1 onkyo cd player sn# 2903000818 1 onkyo tape deck sn #6008012900 1 audio authori 2 amt wooden crates holding aprox 30 cds each. 1 giant atc 780 mm bike sn# g0125960 call Det Ron Young Amherst police 256-4011 or Chris 256-6877 or Mrs. C 1-442-9282 (no questions asked)

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bed and Breakfast downtown Amherst Ideal for visiting parents and friends 549-0733

Delta Zeta raffle #421 call 61355 ask for Andrea

Jewish students for a physically and spiritually challenging summer in Israel call Israel Express 549-4094 or 800-659-7737

UMass Credit Unioin has car, personal, and computer loans Rates as low as 7.95% 314 Student Union Building 545-2800

Save money TV & speakers from Ideal for visiting parents and friends 549-0733

Delta Zeta raffle #421 call 61355 ask for Andrea

Jewish students for a physically and spiritually challenging summer in Israel call Israel Express 549-4094 or 800-659-7737

UMass Credit Unioin has car, personal, and computer loans Rates as low as 7.95% 314 Student Union Building 545-2800

Couch great condition Call 549-7357 $25

Ottoman Lea/Pearl studio guitar $475 546-6860

Good furniture cheap call 549-4580

Graduating all bedroom furniture cheap! double bed, dresser, IBM compatible computer, desk Marlene 256-4542

Large dorm fridge good condition-$ 3540- Leave a message

Large wood, dining table w/ leaf Hardly used, like new. $50 call 549-8017

Moving sale 4 graduating seniors want to sell everything. Cheap 175 Chestnut St Directly across from Jr. High 5/14 + 5/15 549-7580

New Vasque Newbrier Boots Men's B $100 BO New Gregory backpack $95 obo 546-1842

One bedroom set 2 twin size mattress and box spring other furniture Must sell by 5-19-94 all mint cond 549-8240

Ping pong table Good condition Best offer! Call Joe 549-0870

Queen sized futon stereo dresser table Call Leigh 256-0238

Small microwave Ideal for any dorm room! $60 or BO 546-5700

Watch batteries ear piercing hoop earrings Sterling # $2.00 diamond studs repairs Grat graduation gifts from glass to gold Silversscape designs 264 N Pleasant Street 253-3324 open 7 days

GOOD HUMOR ICE CREAM

Drivers wanted College students, to sell Good Humor ice cream from one of our vending trucks Work outside this summer. Be your own boss. Routes available in your area. Earn $650 to $950 weekly. Male or female. Apply now. Call Mon-Sat 9am to 3pm only 203-366-2641

HELP WANTED

Activist- summer jobs for the environment 60 % of the waterways in MA aren't safe for fishing or swimming. Work with MassPIRG, the state's leading environmental group, to protect our rivers. learn campaign skills, and make a difference! $7500-$3500/ summer Call Jodi at 256 6434

Alaska fisheries summer employment Earn up to $15,000 this summer in canneries processors, etc Male/female Nx exper Necessary Room/ board/ travel often provided! Guaranteed success! (919) 929-4398 ext. A109

Alaska summer employment Earn up to 8000+ in two months Room + board!! Transportation! Male/female No experience necessary! (206) 545-4155 ext A5001

Camp Athletic Director Coed camp in Adirondack Mts Must have teaching and or athletic director background. 1-800-115 FUNN (487-3866)

Counselors: Camp Emerson, coed Massachusetts Swimming, tennis land water sports, arts/ crafts, theatre, woodworking, rocketry, archery, computer/ yearbook, photography, video, radio/ Super kids, great food, friendly fun! No general counselors 800-955-CAMP

Earn $116/ day this summer Experienced truck drivers needed for part time/ summer work Approximately ten days in both June and August Truck driving experience a must Call (508) 853-1744 or (508) 853-7427

Fight pollution staying in the Valley or moving to Boston? Earn up to $4000 this summer working with Clean Water Action join our polluter pay and election campaign staff. Great folks, big fun, great pay. Call 584-9830

Postal Jobs Available! Many positions Great benefits Call 219-736-4365 ext P 3306

P/T female personal care attendant for retired professor Under-ten hours/ week Flexible schedule Spanish helpful. Experience preferred but will train. Call Donna after 4pm 253-0577

Sitter Rutland MA person to care for 3 children ages boy 10 girl 8 girl 8 must be capable of cooking, possess driver's license 5 days per week at Rutland home Dependable live in arrangements non smoker hours + wage to be discussed employment through the summer Kids are very active examples baseball rollerblade soccer horseback riding gymnastics sitter to participate 508-886-2070

Subjects needed for muscle soreness study. Openings beginning May 16 and throughout the summer Non- weight trained males and females 18-35 4-5 hrs over 9-10 days $$ compensation Contact Sue or Steve 545-8072

Summer jobs Planting locally with primarily commercial call us, must be hardworking, experience desirable $5-6/ hr to start/ raises to $6-7/ hr likely. 253-9434

Summer jobs Telefund a hvrrg! $5 50/ hr Plus bonuses, flexible schedule, great experience! Call 545-3509 or stop by the basement of Memorial Hall

Summer work Local branches of international marketing firm have several summer job openings ideal for students Earn $9-$15 to start management opportunities available Positions available throughout Mass, Conn, NY Amherst area call 549-5333 Greater Springfield 733-0057

Superior baseball and basketball coaches wanted for coed summer camp in western Mass Must have 2+ years of coaching experience with children Apply Dates 6/18- 8/20 Call Camp Emerson at 1-800-955- CAMP today!

Waitstaff/ bartenders Trattoria Gepperto Restaurant, 11 79 Pleasant St Amherst, 549-9330 apply within after 5 00pm

LOST

Cassi 220m @ spring concert Brian 546-1106

Lost looking for women who called about babysitting for our daughter we met on campus one afternoon. Your message got erased please call back 548-9854

LOST Small female grey/white/ orange tabby 8 mo old Sours Village 4/5 $100 reward 665-0519

Stolen: Please return my purse and bookbag at least! My deceased father gave them to me and are sentimental to me! 211 JOA 546-1564

Townehouse 3 bedroom, 1 1/2 baths gorgeous and unit quiet neighbors on bus route huge living room air conditioning, dishwasher, pets OK begins 6/1 with option 549-0839

Townehouse 2bedroom 1 1/2 baths and units on bus route living room air conditioning new appliances Pets OK 549-7674

Welcome college students Cape Cod summer rentals All locations 1 to 5 br houses Honey Spanto Broker 508-394-2957 or 508-398-3367

FOR SALE

2 Eagles tix $90 Sat Aug 6 665-2939

25" stereo remote tv & speakers from riser subwoofer like new cheap moving & free nintendo included 549-8879

1992 unisex miyata hybrid sec $150 w/ studes book rack paid $480 great commuter call Audrey 256-1521

Boom box including cd player, am/fm stereo double deck 200 new yours for $90 obo

Couch great condition Call 549-7357$25

Ottoman Lea/Pearl studio guitar $475 546-6860

Good furniture cheap call 549-4580

Graduating all bedroom furniture cheap! double bed, dresser, IBM compatible computer, desk Marlene 256-4542

Large dorm fridge good condition-$ 3540- Leave a message

Large wood, dining table w/ leaf Hardly used, like new. $50 call 549-8017

Moving sale 4 graduating seniors want to sell everything. Cheap 175 Chestnut St Directly across from Jr. High 5/14 + 5/15 549-7580

New Vasque Newbrier Boots Men's B $100 BO New Gregory backpack $95 obo 546-1842

One bedroom set 2 twin size mattress and box spring other furniture Must sell by 5-19-94 all mint cond 549-8240

Ping pong table Good condition Best offer! Call Joe 549-0870

Queen sized futon stereo dresser table Call Leigh 256-0238

Small microwave Ideal for any dorm room! $60 or BO 546-5700

Watch batteries ear piercing hoop earrings Sterling # $2.00 diamond studs repairs Grat graduation gifts from glass to gold Silverscape designs 264 N Pleasant Street 253-3324 open 7 days

FOR RENT

1 bedroom in a large house with inground pool $200 available immediately 256-0475

1 bedroom apt. in Presidential Apts available June 1st. $510/mo dishwasher, AC, walking distance to campus, on the bus route. Call 549-8425

1 bedroom apt Colonial Village 400/month start June 1. Frank/ Janet 256-8523

1 bedroom avail. May1 farmhouse in Hadley on bus. $225 585-0843

1 bedroom in Amherst house 202 50+ Steve 253-9237

1 bedroom Puffton available end of May with option 549-6614 Cindy

1 bdr apt near center of Amherst on bus line 253-0624

1 bdrm for summer only $330 call 253-0672 after 5pm

1 bdrm Puffton avoid wait list sign over lease John/ Tav 549-7463

2 apts, 3 br and 1 br on Farmhouse, bike to UMass, on bus, deck, near golf Puffers Pond, 645+ 480+ 586-0748

2 bedroom apt summer w/ fall option Convenient location on bus route 1 5 miles from campus 1 from town Hardwood floor, low rent 242/ month/ person call 253-9970

2 bedroom Brandywine apt 635/ mo mc heat available June 1 549-8503

2 bdrm puffton Teka over our lease starting June 1 with option for fall renewal call Ted at 549-7648

2 bedroom Puffton Apt avail 6/1 $580/ mth incl heat/ hot wa call 549-1648

2 bedroom apartment at Brandywine, 3rd floor poindexte $770/ month including heat Available June 1st Call 549-5465 Tracey or Beth

2 bedroom on Sunset Ave across from Patterson 2 bath, large hall, large basement approx 800/month call Steve 549-4527

2 br and 3br apartment available at Mill Valley Estates 253-7377

2 br near town and campus avail 6/1 253-4890

2 bd w/ heated basement 1 1/2 bath 1/2 mile to campus On bus routes Call 549-8818

2 bedroom Puffton apt new dishwasher and new fridge- a must see- take over June 1 call ASAP 549-2919

3 big bedrooms 1 5 bath townehouse sliding glass door to patio available May 15 for summer with option dishwasher, hot water included 549-4207

4 bedroom 2 bath great location 1/2 mile to town on bus route Avail June 1 253-3023

5 bedroom 2 bath hube basement bus route Amherst 256-3138

6 bedroom, 2 bath large house Main Street June 1st 253-2647

25" stereo remote TV & speakers front riser subwoofer like new cheap moving & free Nintendo included 549-8879

1992 unisex miyata hybrid sec $150 w/ studes book rack paid $480 great commuter call Audrey 256-1521

UMass Credit Unioin has car, personal, and computer loans Rates as low as 7.95% 314 Student Union Building 545-2800

AUTO FOR SALE

82 Zephyr for sale, good for town 250 obo Call 582-0477

86 Toyota excellent, cassette & radio $1300 546-5741

88 Ford Escort AC radio 72K miles very good condition $2700 546-7210

87 Pont 6000 654 moving to NY must sell great condition $3100 253-9662

Dodge Aries 1982 wagon 100K AC/AT well maintained $1000 call Toby 549-4643

Renault Alliance 1985 I'm moving so must sell BO 665-7134

CAPE COD RENTAL

West Yarmouth 6 room 4 bedrooms sleeps 8 rear everything 253-7438 508-775-4776 $6 000

CONDO FOR SALE

N. Amherst 2 br Townehouse Renovated Custom woodwork AC Washer hook up and more Must sell Reduced to 54 000 253-3700

FOR RENT

1 bedroom in a large house with inground pool $200 available immediately 256-0475

1 bedroom apt. in Presidential Apts available June 1st. $510/mo dishwasher, AC, walking distance to campus, on the bus route. Call 549-8425

1 bedroom apt Colonial Village 400/month start June 1. Frank/ Janet 256-8523

1 bedroom avail. May1 farmhouse in Hadley on bus. $225 585-0843

1 bedroom in Amherst house 202 50+ Steve 253-9237

1 bedroom Puffton available end of May with option 549-6614 Cindy

1 bdr apt near center of Amherst on bus line 253-0624

1 bdrm for summer only $330 call 253-0672 after 5pm

1 bdrm Puffton avoid wait list sign over lease John/ Tav 549-7463

2 apts, 3 br and 1 br on Farmhouse, bike to UMass, on bus, deck, near golf Puffers Pond, 645+ 480+ 586-0748

2 bedroom apt summer w/ fall option Convenient location on bus route 1 5 miles from campus 1 from town Hardwood floor, low rent 242/ month/ person call 253-9970

2 bedroom Brandywine apt 635/ mo mc heat available June 1 549-8503

2 bdrm puffton Teka over our lease starting June 1 with option for fall renewal call Ted at 549-7648

2 bedroom Puffton Apt avail 6/1 $580/ mth incl heat/ hot wa call 549-1648

2 bedroom apartment at Brandywine, 3rd floor poindexte $770/ month including heat Available June 1st. Call 549-5465 Tracey or Beth

2 bedroom on Sunset Ave across from Patterson 2 bath, large hall, large basement approx 800/month call Steve 549-4527

2 br and 3br apartment available at Mill Valley Estates 253-7377

2 br near town and campus avail 6/1 253-4890

2 bd w/ heated basement 1 1/2 bath 1/2 mile to campus On bus routes Call 549-8818

2 bedroom Puffton apt new dishwasher and new fridge- a must see- take over June 1 call ASAP 549-2919

3 big bedrooms 1 5 bath townehouse sliding glass door to patio available May 15 for summer with option dishwasher, hot water included 549-4207

4 bedroom 2 bath great location 1/2 mile to town on bus route Avail June 1 253-3023

5 bedroom 2 bath hube basement bus route Amherst 256-3138

6 bedroom, 2 bath large house Main Street June 1st 253-2647

25" stereo remote TV & speakers front riser subwoofer like new cheap moving & free Nintendo included 549-8879

Big house $100/ month furnished 549-7980

Center of town 1 2 & 3 bedroom apts For 6/1 or 9/1 Now being shown Call for appointment Lincoln Real Estate 253-7879

Got a free month's rent 2 br Brandywine apt some furniture included, available June 1 549-6819

Gilreath Manor Hobart Lane 3-5 bedrooms available June first call 549-4788

Huge double in the two bedroom apt great location on bus route 549-0277

Large 2 bdrm apt Near Hobart Ln starts 6/1 $630/ month 549-5456

Large 4 br/ bath 2 bath apartment for rent starting June 1 everything included even air conditioned On bus route, close to bar, convenient store everything Must see to believe see Call 253-0551 ASAP or you'll miss it

Location 1 no where Feaning St 4 bedrooms summer sublet, fall option Porch & yard $1140 549-6618

Mill Valley 3 br 2 bath AC furnished 6/ 1 with fall option 256-4690

Presidential 2 bdrm apartments for 3 people New kitchen Quiet area 10 min walk to campus Near busline Avail June 1 Call 549-8017

Sign early 3 bedroom in Puffton 549-8707

South Amherst four bedrooms two baths two fireplaces wood stove huge yard community pool, hoop on bus route starting June 1 253-3071

Summer sublet w/ option for next year graduating seniors vacating very spacious 2 floor, 3 bedroom townehouse apartments $824/ month 549-0032

Sunny room close to campus, own entrance on back terrace 400 per month We'll pay you 100 to take over lease 549-6706

Take over our lease 5/1 Brandywine 3rd floor! #549-4546

Townehouse 3 bedroom, 1 1/2 baths gorgeous and unit quiet neighbors on bus route huge living room air conditioning, dishwasher, pets OK begins 6/1 with option 549-0839

Townehouse 2bedroom 1 1/2 baths and units on bus route living room air conditioning new appliances Pets OK 549-7674

Welcome college students Cape Cod summer rentals All locations 1 to 5 br houses Honey Spanto Broker 508-394-2957 or 508-398-3367

AUTO FOR SALE

82 Zephyr for sale, good for town 250 obo Call 582-0477

86 Toyota excellent, cassette & radio $1300 546-5741

88 Ford Escort AC radio 72K miles very good condition $2700 546-7210

87 Pont 6000 654 moving to NY must sell great condition $3100 253-9662

Dodge Aries 1982 wagon 100K AC/AT well maintained $1000 call Toby 549-4643

Renault Alliance 1985 I'm moving so must sell BO 665-7134

CAPE COD RENTAL

West Yarmouth 6 room 4 bedrooms sleeps 8 rear everything 253-7438 508-775-4776 $6 000

CONDO FOR SALE

N. Amherst 2 br Townehouse Renovated Custom woodwork AC Washer hook up and more Must sell Reduced to 54 000 253-3700

MOTORCYCLES

Honda Nighthawk 650 (1985) 21 000 miles shaft drive Very reliable Helmet and cover inc $1 400 or BO 253-9624

MUSICIANS

Band seeks male vocalist 4 all styles 546-6312 Pete

PERSONALS

ALLIE 9 down is gehenne

Attention all seniors: Come to the Seniors Picnic Friday, May 20, 1-4pm Metawampe Lawn Fun, Food, and more! First 300 seniors get FREE senior frisbees!

Caitlin Happy 21st Birthday! You're the best roommate Have a great day Love Dawn

Congratulations Beth & Courtney for the short time that we have known each other, we have made a lifetime of memories I am going to miss all those times I wish you both the best of luck in everything you do, because you both will be so successful Love Tracey

Congratulations graduates of 58 Townehouse start wearing your cap and gown!!

Dear UMass students, best of luck for the finals and have a great summer! Seiko- chan & Mikio-chan, thanx for being my "sisters" Have a safe trip back home Luv Seiko-chan

Debbie, Congrats! Good luck with everything and thanks for being such a great big sis Love ya always! Sari

DU AJ's - I knew you'd make it! Down 1 4 me! -Guy

Feb. four minus one You guys are the best I'm gonna miss ya! The wainie be graduate

Heidi Heil! I'll love you now and forever Love Robb

Hey AX sisters and friends have a great summer Good luck in the fall I will miss you all! See you in the spring! Keep in touch Love Jen B

Hey Beandrop! I love you and I'll miss you this summer! PS No cocktail scene! Love, Curtetsean

Hey Fruitcake! A word of advice for after you graduate– go for the bartender, not the DJ I'm gonna miss you The Feisty one

"Jennifer Bus" Here's you personal that you've been wanting! I'm going to miss you as my roomie & friend next semester but I know we'll keep in touch. seeing as my middle name is "procrastination+ I WU- Mahel Kral Reisa

Jill & Paige in Thoreau Thank you for returning my ID Alison

Jess Congratulations on graduation! Finally! Good luck Love you always Felix

K Mr. Y - Mandingo, Manny, Elmo, and I are all meeting at 125 Winspear on arbor day Be there I love you and I'm super happy Peace et Panda East, Y

Karen Congratulations graduate Thanks for the past two years You are a awesome! I'll miss you Love David P S If you don't get your PhD there is always modelling

Karrie Happy 21st B-Day Hugs and kisses XOXOXOXO Love always, Steve your Pooh Bear forever

Korie, Happy 21st! Be careful Bid increases for second offense! Love MJT

Laur! Thank you for being my friend over the past four years Love Lauren

Meg It's been a wonderful three months Thank you for being such a friend I'm looking forward to the summer Love ROA

Mike Meyers Yipee You greasy whitekeeping, frosty mug drinking, close encounters of the grossk ind having, nose picking, popcorn burning, naked radar device using slab We'll be your "private dancers"- Mmal We'll miss you- Love Kathy and Mara

Morrissey & Hayden The Collegian just won't be the same without you guys Who will get coffee with us, make fun of us, and go uptown? To Morrissey Don't go making long distance phone calls from strangers houses when you're loaded To Hayden invest in a camcorder/Sony! so when you get loaded you'll have documentation To both be good, be safe, be happy Keep in touch and don't forget us Dan & Tracy

Rissa I will miss you next semester Thanks for everything! You're a wonderful friend and sister buy lots of animal stamps!! I Love Jen

St. Jude Thank you for always answering my prayers XM

Steve D Its been a great semester in your bed every night, but I must say five since I'm going home with Paula Miss ya and love ya lots, Chiefs B

Suzanne Van Manna Happy Birthday a little early Have fun and watch for rainbow fancies Love Sessa and the elf

There is more to life than the chicken man.

Tes special someone at 427 you can always have my heart and armies!

To all who have lived in 7 Puffton Meet me on the veranda Bring some MGD's and good sex stories I love you guys and I'm not going to miss you because I'll see you all the time Thanks for a super group of years! Love Danielley

To my mandingo brownie, thanks for happy sun and stinky righteous semester Peace out, E

To my wonderful friends at UMass You have made my four years here amazing! Remember Emerson Hold on, Mack-mmer, Landslowne, SOT, Gamma Eric, 7 Puffton, Jan 94, Back 8, Gehleo! I love you guys! Shubes

RIDE TO CALIFORNIA

Ride to California Santa Cruz/ Monterey area Driver is clean and sober Leaving May 11/12 call 586-4704 ask for Chris

RIDE WANTED

Going to Floyd? Me too and I need a ride May 18th, call Kathy 549-4337

Ride me to NYC. May 14 Call Alexander 545-3035

ROOMMATE WANTED

1 rm roommate needed for great house uptown $212/mo call Ryan or Dan 549-2983

1 roommate wanted for 2 bedroom apt Call Kristen 546-8613

Free 1st month's rent 1/ non smoker to share a room in Mill Valley lease ending Dec 31 Call 256-6468

Huge double in two bedroom apt Great location on bus route 549-0277

One female roommate needed for single room in 4 br apt on bus route $200/ month hu utili 6-3181

One person for large room $170 00 Call 665-7604

Roommate needed MF for June 1st 2 bdrm please call Tracy 665-5173

Roomate Wanted to share 2 bdrm apt in Sunderland Must be quiet non-smoker & nondrinker Start Sept 1 Call 665-1172

SERVICES

Do you have questions about your rights? Do you think your civil rights have been violated? Find out! Contact the Student Legal Services Office 922 Campus Center 545-1995

Pregnant? Need help? Call Birthright for free testing and caring, confidential support 549-1906

Questions about your lease/security deposit deductions? Questions about subletting/assigning leases? Questions about the condition of your new house or apartment? Contact the Student Legal Services Office 922 Campus Center 545-1995

All typing needs! Call John 665-8707

SUMMER SUBLETS

1 bdrm available Mill Valley Estates Price negotiable Ask for Mark 256-6766

1 bdrm in 2bdrm apt in Colonial Village Available in 1st June 1 mother/daughter/mom Price negotiable Women preferred Call 253-4748

1 bdrm in furn 6 bdrm house bus rt wash dryer fall opt 200/mo Joe 253-9949

1 bedroom available in fully furnished apartment on Main Street Call Jeff 253-4273

1 bedroom in 3 bedroom apt on bus route Rolling Green option for fall female nonsmokers 256-0750

1 bdrm in 2 bdrm apartment includes everything on bus line Amherst $175 549-8445

1 or 2 bedrooms available for summer in great apt First weeks rent free! Price negotiable 549-6928

1 or 2 bedrooms available in house on Pine Street Call 549-2660 or 6230

1-2 BDRM TOWNEHOUSE UPTOWN On bustline safe secure building $50/rm +utils 256-1906 w Fall option

1-4 big bdrm apt Jun-Aug, cheap, on bus line 253-2609

2 bdrm Brandywine apt 3rd floor poindside furnished only 655 a month or rent 1 bdrm for 235 Rent negotiable Contact James 549-8861

2 bdrms in apt avail June $200 & 170/mon female, non-smoking 253-9568

2 bdrm in 7 rm house Many amenities, on bus route avail 6/1 Call 546-3957, 546-4289

2 br near town and campus avail 6/1 fall option 253-4890

2 open br in 4 br house on bus rt 3 miles to UMass+ w/d/ big deck, yard Call 549-8353

3 bedrooms On bussline Really close! Call us! 253-7694

3 bdrm Puffton sublet furnished bet 850/ mo Puc/Tex 549-7463

3 bedroom townehouse apt cheap rent for the summer option for fall lease 549-4132

3 bedrooms in Sunderland! Garage, gas stove, back yard $550/ month for the whole place! Or best offer! Call 665-8129

3 bdrm townehouse apt, on bus route option for fall call 549-8102

4 bedroom on Main St Rent negotiable Will rent individual rooms Call Jaya or Amy 549-6095

4 bdrm summer sublet $700 253-4623 cool

$495 a month or best offer! 2 bedroom apartment in Colonial Village on bus route washer and dryer in basement summer sublet with fall option 253-7583

$500 or BO Cheap 2bdrm Brandywine 3rd floor poindside w/ fall option call 549-7791

A Great Deal! Live in the country for the summer in Pelham House Rent negotiable 253-2654

Alpine Commons sublet 4 bedrooms, $800, utilities included Price negotiable Call after 6pm 253-4615

Amazing sublet in Crestview apts available 5/20/94 on bus line, clean, perfect for two Contact 549-5737 for details

Awesome Summer sublet 2 minute walk to campus or to town 2 Baths, 2 huge rooms, sleeps 4 Deck and skylight! Call ASAP 546-0779

Beautiful house on Fearing St Very close to campus/ uptown 3 bedrooms, 2 full baths for 3-4 people 6/1- 8/31 call 546-2312/ 2025, 1050/ mo negotiable

Brandywine sublet fully furnished w/2 nice couches, 4 beds, more Only $650/ mo top floor Fall option Rent negotiable 549-8062

Cheap summer sublet 2 bdrm Puffton mansion To both be good, be safe, be happy Keep in touch and don't forget us Dan & Tracy

Cheap One Bedroom Downtown Big living room and cooking room Only summer rent If interested, contact Kelli 546-0559

Cheapest sublet best offer will be accepted I asking 200/mo one bedroom in two bedroom apt heat incl, dishwasher, laundry on bus route, fall opt 253-4731 Entire apt above avail for best offer asking 500/ mo 253-

Sports

Taking center stage

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

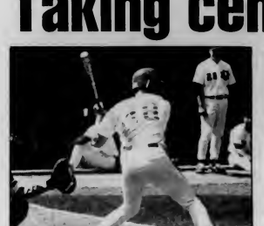
St. John's is mounting a comeback against Massachusetts at Totman Field. With a runner on second base and two outs, the batter lofts a fly ball to shallow center. It should drop in for a hit, but Stephanie Mareina comes charging from 15 feet away, leaps and makes a tremendous inning- ending catch, keeping the Minutewomen in front.

On the opposite end of campus at Earl Lorden Field, Massachusetts is tied with Connecticut in the top of the third and the Huskies are threatening to take the lead with two runners on and two out. The hitter lines a bullet to left- center which is snared by a diving Nate Murphy for the final out of the inning.

Freshmen don't step into a program and make an immediate impact at the Division I level of collegiate sports. Consider Stephanie Mareina and Nate Murphy exceptions to the rule. As centerfielders for the University of Massachusetts softball and baseball teams, respectively, both have been instant contributors from day one on the field in their rookie season in Amherst.

"Stephanie is a gutty player. She puts herself on the line for the benefit of the team and has made an impact. If you look across the board, that's the characteristic of a freshman who can make an impact," said Massachusetts Softball Coach Elaine Sortino.

"I just think it's ironic how we're both freshman centerfielders, coming in and doing a pretty good job out there," said Murphy, who has been a fixture in the Minuteman line-up, starting in all 41 games he has played in for Massachusetts. The Amherst native won the spot in the fall when he beat out last year's starting centerfielder, Nelson Ubaldo.



"Back in the fall in our first game, I saw my name on the line-up card. I was like, 'I have a chance to play out here.'"

Similarly, Mareina has been in centerfield for the Minutewomen for all 43 games this season, mainly thanks to a lucky break — lucky for Mareina, but unfortunate for then-starting centerfielder Heather Dorsey, who broke her hand in the pre-season.

Mareina took advantage of the opportunity and said she wanted to work hand in order to keep the spot.

"I really didn't [think I was going to start in centerfield] because of Heather. I thought she was a good outfielder. It just happened that she got hurt and I stepped in," said Mareina.

"We figured Stephanie would start in the outfield from the beginning. She had all the talent and experience in center from high school," said Sortino. "Then

Nate Murphy
COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

Stephanie Mareina
COLLEGIAN FILE PHOTO

when Heather got hurt, she just filled the slot."

Mareina more or less dove into the opening, making spectacular catches in the outfield and playing near perfect defense, committing only one error this season. Her .986 fielding percentage is tops among Massachusetts starters and she has been part of two double plays.

"I love to dive for balls and I'm not afraid to get dirty. If there's a ball that I can catch, I'll go all out for it," said Mareina.

Murphy has made his share of diving plays and has played very solid defense as well, yielding a .938 fielding percentage, committing only six errors while taking part in two double plays.

As the only lefty batter for the Minutemen, Murphy is hitting .294 out of the eight spot with two doubles, two triples, two home runs, 21 runs batted in, and 28 runs scored. Conversely, Mareina hasn't found much success with the bat and has had her share of problems. She is hitting .133 out of the nine spot with a double, two triples, eight RBI and 11 runs scored.

Although she has struggled with her hitting, Mareina said she is optimistic about her chances at the plate.

"It's really stressing me out, but I'm practicing a lot. it is coming around a little bit. In the beginning, I was really struggling. I'm getting good pieces of the ball lately. I've just got to be patient," said Mareina.

The numbers may tell one story, yet performance speaks of another for Mareina. Last weekend in a game versus South Florida, she dropped a chalk-raising bunt down the first base line, keeping a near-dead rally alive for the Minutewomen. In the last spot of the order, Mareina is counted on to move runners over (five sacrifices on the season) and leave the run-producing to the hitters at the top of the order.

For Murphy, hitting near the bottom of the order has kept the pressure off and allowed him to do a bit of everything, from sacrifices (nine on the season) to home runs; a different role for a player who was counted on for a majority of his team's offense in high school.

"I think everyone who came here was [the best hitter on his team in high school] and we've all had to adjust. We're all freshmen and we have to fit into our roles. Carry the team? No, we just have to go with the flow," said Murphy.

Murphy was recruited by Maine and his hometown school, Massachusetts; the prospects of playing in Orono with the Black Bears were more promising than with the Minutemen. All three Massachusetts outfielders from last season were returning, while the 1993 Maine outfield had graduated. Everything pointed toward Maine, but Murphy decided on Massachusetts because of his desire to win a spot, not receive one.

"[Massachusetts Assistant Coach Tom Clark] didn't try to persuade me in any way, he was just there for me. He said they had a junior, a sophomore and a freshman [in the outfield], so I would have to fight for a spot," said Murphy.

"Maine had told me that they didn't have any outfielders and i had a spot if i went there. I wanted a challenge and I wanted to beat out somebody."

Massachusetts was the only school Mareina visited, while she talked to schools like Notre Dame, Michigan and Hawaii; she said it was a simple decision.

"I came out here and I liked it a lot. I liked the people out here — it's a big change from where I come from," said Mareina, a native of Garden Grove, Calif.

Both players ended up in Amherst, and, Ironically, know each other and have become friends.

"I see him in the newspaper all the time and I'm like, 'Hey, we're meant to be together!' He's a real nice guy and he's tearing it up. We're pretty good friends, so it's cool," Mareina said.

"I've stopped and talked to Stephanie on my way to class. I hear she's making a bunch of diving catches. It's funny the conversations we have — 'Oh, I heard you made a diving catch the other day,' and, 'I heard the same about you,'" Murphy said.

Playing for a college in his hometown isn't as easy as it seems, according to Murphy.

"A lot of people think, 'You're right here in your hometown, so you can always go home for a meal.' I guess I can, but I'm always at the University, I'm on the road. I feel like I'm not even part of Amherst anymore," said Murphy.

Murphy and Mareina will both be in Pennsylvania this Friday, in Boyertown and Allentown, respectively, for the Atlantic 10 post-season tournaments. Both teams are seeded number one and are favored to receive the automatic bid to the NCAA tournament that for the first time will be awarded to the tourney winners.

Yet when the 1994 season comes to a close, Mareina and Murphy will find themselves on opposite coasts of the country; until next season, however, when they both meet up again in center.

Men's hoop receives Burks' commitment

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

Guard Andre Burks and forward Inus Norville, teammates at Hargrave Military Academy in Chatham, Va., have signed letters of intent to play for the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team and head coach John Calipari next season.

Burks, a 6-foot point man from Baton Rouge, La., averaged 21.5 points, 9.5 assists, 5.5 rebounds and 3.5 steals per game for Hargrave last season and is bringing his 42- inch vertical leap to Amherst. One recruiting service had Burks ranked as the No. 1 prep point guard in the nation.

The Minutemen return starting point guard and co-captain Derek Kellogg and key reserve guard Edgar Padilla to the line-up as well. If Burks moves to the shooting guard spot, he has to contend with starter Mike Williams and Carmelo Travieso.

"The people in Amherst have never seen anything like him," said Hargrave Coach Mike Byrnes. "He's done things you don't see in the NBA. He is also a tremendous defender, a good ball handler and also just a phenomenal kid. He is a Will Herndon at 6-foot."

"Andre is an exciting addition to the team," said Calipari. "He really adds another dimension to our team. He has great speed, great athleticism — with the ability to create havoc on the floor."

Burks will play in the Boston Shootout this summer, among other tournaments. Norville, a 6-foot-9 power forward, is expected to add size and strength to the already potent Minuteman frontline, if he passes the NCAA minimum score of 700 on the SATs. It is expected that Norville will sit out his freshman year in Amherst under Proposition 48, while some expect Burks to make the grade.

*****

The Minutemen will open the 1994-95 season against defending national champion Arkansas in Springfield for the Tip-Off Classic, looking to knock off the No. 1 team in the country for the second straight year. Massachusetts defeated then-No. 1 North Carolina in the Pre-season NIT, 91-86, in overtime at Madison Square Garden.

Crew looks to keep its national title

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts crew team heads into this weekend with an opportunity to do something few Massachusetts teams have had a chance to do. Defend its national title.

Last year with a talented veteran squad, UMass captured the national title — an impressive distinction for a team that does not have varsity status at UMass. This year's squad, despite losing several seniors from last year, has remained successful.

Last weekend at the New England Championships at Lake Quinsigamond in Worcester, six UMass boats qualified for a trip to Nationals at Occoquan, Va., this Sunday.

In the varsity division, the women's varsity eight (rowers) boat, who entered the race with only one defeat all season, earned a bronze medal in a close race.

The men's heavyweight four captured second and the men's lightweight eight placed fifth.

In the novice division, the women's first boat took third. The men's heavyweight finished fourth and their lightweight counterparts finished fifth.

"We're all very excited about going to Virginia," said Leigh Twarog. "We've had a good week of practice and we're ready."

Due to the recently instated Title IX obligations, UMass has chosen to grant the women's crew team varsity status for next year.

In the past, everyone involved in the crew program has had to pay dues and fund her own transportation to races. The elevation to varsity status will be a big financial ease. The move has all the women involved excited.

"We're excited," said women's varsity coxswain Dena Hiller. "We won't have to pay dues. We'll have more qualified coaches and we'll have scholarships."

"It will eliminate a lot of the financial stress and need for fundraisers," said Twarog.

The men's team is hoping that the women receiving varsity status could be a foot in the door for them.

this winter — at Boston College.

In one paragraph or less, let me say that three and a half years with the sports staff has been one of the best experiences of my life. Thank you to everyone who made my ride a special one.

Arthur Stapleton, Jr.: Just like the editors before me, I'd like to reflect on the past two semesters in my own way. I remember sitting on the Massachusetts men's basketball team bus in Cincinnati and hearing the guys joke about the difference between Bob Huggins and John Calipari, the Final Four and the Sweet Sixteen. How about drinking with the guy from The Bodyguard and talking basketball in Calipari's suite in the Marriott Marquis after the Minutemen beat the Tar Heels?

How about Coach Hayden and Coach Cal talking about how they both would have guarded against the inbounds play UNC used a year before against Cincinnati in which Brian Reese missed a game-winning dunk?

Boy, it's been something. I know it's not November, but I'd like to give some thanks — to Sean P. Hayden, Matt Vautour and Andrew Bryce for being reliable, hard-working associates, acting not all at the same time, of course. To Thorr Bjorn, the ticketmaster, who gave me some good advice when I was pretty upset over sitting in the hockey press box at the A-10 championship.

To Emily Marino and her Arts and Living Staff, for putting up with what Jon Lupo has always called us, "sports pigs." You couldn't even begin to know how much respect I have for you. To Bill Strickland, Michelle Drum, Lammy Chance and the rest of the clan at UMass Media Relations, for giving the Collegian sports staff the respect it deserves. To Michael Morrissey, for being my mentor, my editor, my best writer, my boss, and most of all, one of my best friends. As for me, my reign as sports editor is over. I've actually survived the long hours... Back, get it. Peace.

Misty-eyed memories of the past year

At the beginning of the NCAA basketball season, everyone was talking about the Tar Heels of North Carolina and how they were supposed to run over everybody on the way to the national championship for the second year in a row. UNC got that championship, but not in men's hoop like everyone thought."

— Candice Flemming

Without any further adieu, we're all just that much closer to greatness.

Michael Reiss: What inspires me most about sports is that a team can salvage victory from the jaws of defeat. My Misty-Eyed Memory of the year is of that caliber.

In my first ever UMass basketball broadcast on WMUA, I had the pleasure to do color commentary with the affable Brian Perillo. George Washington was in town, and with a little under 10 seconds remaining in the contest, GW was up by one, threatening to break UMass' home winning streak.

You all know what happened from there (a Camby jam and dance with 2.9 seconds left for those who forget).

Greg Iafrate: My first by-line in the Collegian. To Bryce and Sean P.: MAD DOG, nice and GLORY, uhh: thanks for teaching me not to put commas in unnecessary places. To Morrissey: Thanks for your wisdom and witty one liners. To Al Iafrate: My favorite Bruin, you're an inspiration to all the people who try to grow facial hair, Bryce. To Carvey: You're a great vulgar fan to sit next to at a Minuteman- Jasper showdown. My closing words to Knicks fans: I'm sorry for you again. Bulls in five against Phoenix.

Bill Balfour: Despite the many great moments for UMass sports this season, my Misty-Eyed Memory comes from across the globe. Dan Jansen's gold medal performance at the Olympic Winter Games in Lillehammer, Norway. Jansen stared adversity in the face and made it flinch. He took the heartache and the criticism better then any athlete ever has.

I spent much time thinking if there has ever been any athlete who has deserved victory more than Jansen and I couldn't find one. Jansen's story is model of perseverance. He has come to represent everything that is good in sports.

Mike DiLorenzo: My Misty-Eyed Memory came while watching the San Francisco 49ers dismantle the N.Y. Giants in the NFC Playoffs. It marked the end of the Lawrence Taylor era, not only for the Giants, but for the entire NFL as the linebacking fraternity bid adieu to its charter member. Seeing him on the sideline, teary eyed, made me reflect on his career. What I recall best about #56 is he played like a man possessed every Sunday. No player in history dominated and shaped a position more than LT. Canton awaits.

Jorma Kansanen: I have to take a page out of Balfour's book as my memory goes to the Olympics.

Seeing my hockey team from "the frozen tundra," Finland, come through with the bronze medal, in the face of world wide pessimism, warmed my heart. Forecasted to a finish (pardon the pun) in the lower half of the competition, it was nice to see the "poikas" from the homeland end up with a medal. You can have a sense of where you come from, and look to the future, too. Go Bruins.

Candice Flemming: At the beginning of the NCAA basketball season, everyone was talking about the Tar Heels of North Carolina and how they were supposed to run over everybody on the way to the national championship for the second year in a row. UNC got that championship, but not in men's hoop like everyone thought.

The Lady Tar Heels were losing to Louisiana Tech 59-57 with .07 seconds left on the clock when Charlotte Smith, wearing the number 25, caught the ball and from three-point land let go a shot that was all net to win the game, 60-59. This came 12 years after another Tar Heel wearing the number 23 won the men's championship with a last second shot of his own. Oh, and, by the way, No. 23 is doing just fine, thank you, at Birmingham.

David Gleeson: Most of my Misty-eyed Memories have to be from the Minutemen basketball team this semester, seeing as how the Red Sox won't win the World Series for another few months. Mr. Reiss is right on the money with the GW game that also brings a tear to me eye.

A nice Saturday afternoon game right before everyone returned to school, UMass got its first lead in the game with 2.9 seconds left on a monster Camby jam — what a way to start the semester. Standing about ten feet from the hoop, I felt like he slammed the ball right over me, but it felt oh so good — the crowd went wild.

Anthony Guido: My memories unfortunately are all of losses. My favorite hockey team gets swept in the first round by a combined score of 22-3. My basketball team also lost in the first round. Our intramural softball team lost in the first round of its playoffs, with myself making five errors at third base with one hit in four games.

Evander Holyfield lost his heavyweight title, but could have lost a lot more. Another tough one was driving to Wichita for WMUA only to broadcast an upset loss in the second round, when I thought we were going to Charlotte. To close on a winning note, I'll never forget BC's David Gordon's field goal to defeat Notre Dame, right in front of Touchdown Jesus. Sorry, Hayden, but that was my last chance to stick you. Good luck to Sean and Mike, road trips may never be the same.

Ted Kottler: "You don't bank it in from there," was Duke basketball coach Mike Krzyzewski's comment regarding Kentucky guard Sean Woods' improbable heave that tied the 1992 East Regional Final with 2.1 seconds remaining in overtime. Anyone who cares knows what happened next, but I'd also like to know what Coach K said about Mike Williams' area-code carom that gave UMass its first ever win at Temple. I know what I said: Did he call glass? The world may never know.

Matt Vautour: My most memorable moment of the semester would have to be last Saturday's lacrosse season finale. The Gorillas treated their fans to the most exciting game Garber Field has seen in some time, and it was a storybook ending to see seniors, Sam Joseph, Chris Nentwich and Wes Depp combine for the final goal in sudden death overtime. The heart of two players, Chris Nentwich and Jeremy Murphy has been inspirational all year long. Nentwich was a vocal leader that loved the game and always gave everything he had.

Murphy has been plagued by knee injuries, and has battled through hours of rehab just to be able to play the game he loves. i hope he gets a full season of health next year to show what he can really do. Honorable mention: Candice and myself upsetting Artie and Justin Doyle in a hotly contested NBA Jam match-up.

Andrew Bryce: So many memories of sporting events, so many memories lost on the weekends. There's been tons of sports moments that have stood out in my mind. But that's playing second fiddle at the moment.

I want to take this space to thank my two buddies, seniors Michael Morrissey and Sean Hayden — two great writers that are going to be irreplaceable in the next couple of years. Mike and Haydog both had the cajones when they had a strong view, and both are going to be missed by The Collegian. They also taught me a hell of a lot more than they think they did, and I thank them.

Two last bits of advice: To Mike: Stay away from the OJ and donuts after a date with Jim Beam. To Seanie: Stay away from the Colt Ice, I can't take the verbal punishment.

Best of luck in the future, guys. Where? Exactly.

Sean P. Hayden: Two of my pure pleasures in life meshed last weekend when I traveled to Storrs, Conn., to spend the day taking in the UMass softball team's effort in the Diamond Classic and shoot the shinola with newly hired UConn football coach and former Irish offensive coordinator Skip Holtz.

With all sincerity and just a little sarcasm, i'd like to extend my most humble and heartfelt thanks to Bryce, Greg, Mike, Stapes and Glees for helping me make it through with a little sanity left. You will be sorely missed, fellas.

In parting, the words of one great man come to mind, "It's been a lovely cruise." I'm outta here, y'all.

Michael Morrissey: My memory didn't happen on a court, at a rink or on a diamond. My memory happened over the telephone. I had written a football story on UMass versus Richmond and one night I got a call at the Collegian at 10 p.m. It was former UMass head football coach Jim Reid, calling from Richmond.

He thanked me for the many kind words and made me promise I wouldn't tell anyone (sorry, Coach). It broke my heart to see a good man be turned away from his former school, and it made me happy to hear Coach Reid tell me he was doing just fine.

Guess what — he said that someday, somehow my goodwill would be repaid. I don't care about that, but I was ecstatic to see him get his first Division I-A job

Welcome to UMass from everyone at the Collegian

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
Orientation
Summer, 1994
Volume CIII Issue 125
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

Nobel research done at UM

Joseph H. Taylor Jr. and Russell A. Hulse received the 1993 Nobel Prize in physics for research conducted at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

By KELLY SPANG
Collegian Staff

Two former members of the University of Massachusetts physics and astronomy department won the 1993 Nobel Prize in Physics for their discovery of binary pulsars.

Professor Joseph Taylor, Jr. and his graduate student at the time, Russell Hulse, are the first Nobel laureates to have done their research at the University.

Research accompanying Hulse's dissertation enabled the two to discover the first binary pulsar 21,000 light years from the earth. The 145-page dissertation titled "A High Sensitivity Pulsar Search" was published in 1975 in Astrophysical Journal Letters.

A binary pulsar is a pair of neutron stars that rotate rapidly and generate a radio pulse.

"This orbiting object, the binary pulsar, turned up and we recognized rather quickly that because of the unique situation," Taylor said in a 1978 press release, "One star orbiting another star - we would be able to make very accurate measurements of the length of orbit time."

Taylor and Hulse's work supports Albert Einstein's 1916 theories on the nature of relativity and the existence of gravitational waves.

Their discovery is also important to enable astronomers to make measurements of the mass of materials in a pulsar.

The first pulsar, a neutron star which emits radio waves at regular intervals, was discovered in 1967 in Cambridge, England. Taylor and Hulse's research expanded on this discovery when they found pulsars to be linked together.

Taylor left the University of Massachusetts in 1980 for Princeton University, where he continued his research in radio astronomy. In 1985 he was awarded an honorary doctorate from the University of Chicago for his research in relativity. Taylor is currently still a professor of physics at Princeton.

Upon the completion of his degree at UMass, Hulse held a post-doctoral position at the National Radio Astronomy Observatory in Charlotte, Va. He currently works at Princeton.

Both men were honored in May at a special convocation in which Hulse and Taylor presented brief lectures and were awarded honorary degrees.

Area state senators and representatives used the scientists' award as an opportunity to stress the need for more consistent funding to state higher education institutions.

"While the state's investment in the University laid the groundwork for the Nobel prize-winning research," said a letter signed by 12 legislatures, including Rep. Ellen Story, D-Amherst and Sen. Stan Rosenberg, D-Amherst. "The lack of consistent state funding for our public colleges and universities has ultimately cost Massachusetts talented researchers like Taylor, Hulse, and others," the letter said.

Student victory in tuition battle

By KELLY SPANG
Collegian Staff

Representatives of the Student Government Association say the University of Massachusetts at Amherst is the second most expensive state school in the country. Many students used this figure as part of their fight to lower tuition and fees.

Some students used exampies of friends not coming back to school because they could not afford it.

At the beginning of the spring semester, former SGA President Dave Nunez used himself as an example of the high cost of the University and announced he could not remain at the University because he could not afford it. While he found the funds to stay the semester, many other students voiced their concerns about the price of the University.

In February, after trying to persuade the administration that students could not afford another increase in tuition and fees, about 80 students from various organizations and departments stormed the admissions building. They vowed to occupy the building until Chancellor David K. Scott unconditionally agreed to a zero percent increase in tuition and fees for the next year.

Outside in the snow and throughout the building, students sang and played music of revolution, waiting for Scott to give in to their demand. They remained in the building for about 14 hours, finally leaving around 2:30 a.m.

Originally Scott said he sympathized with the high cost of the University, but said his commitments on campus extended further than students, and he had to consider the good of the whole campus.

"We want unconditional support by you personally, by writing letters, calling your contacts and making public your support," Nunez said. "We want you to give us a show of trust so we can trust you."

Throughout the night, Scott negotiated with the students and consulted with UMass President Michael Hooker and Chairman of the University Board of Trustees, Daniel Taylor.

An agreement was finally reached and signed in the early

Turn to TUITION, page 7

Alcohol at root of many rapes

By GINA LARSON
and KELLY SPANG
Collegian Staff

The University of Massachusetts, like college campuses throughout the country, faces the problem of rape on campus. However, services offered on campus are available to help students protect themselves from becoming victims.

According to police officials, the majority of rapes are committed by someone the victim knows. Police are also concerned by the number of sexual assaults in which alcohol is a factor.

"Alcohol plays in an alarming number of sexual assaults," said Police Chief and Director of Public Safety, Jack Luippold.

Police officials reported two rapes on campus for the 1992-93 school year. This number does not include other types of sexual assault, according to Detective Joanne O'Connor.

Assistance for Victims of Sexual Assault
24 HOUR HOTLINES

Health Services	549-2671
Counsel/Advocates (Everywoman's Center)	545-0800
Campus Police	545-COPS

OTHER NUMBERS

Dean of Students	545-2681
Mental Health Services	545-2337
Victim/Witness Assistance (Northampton)	586-5780

Both rapes involved alcohol.

O'Connor encourages students that choose to drink to do so in moderation. She warns that by using alcohol people tend to lose control, and allow themselves to be taken advantage of.

In addition, she said both of the reported rapes were committed by an acquaintance of the victim.

"Trust your instincts," O'Conner said. "If you don't feel comfortable with someone, remove yourself from that situation."

There are several security services on campus for students, particularly those travelling at night.

The UMass Police Department offers an escort service which will pick up and deliver students to any destination on campus. The service operates from dark until 1:30 a.m.

There is also a library shuttle available through the UMass Transit Service. It operates from 8:15 p.m. through 12:15 a.m. when the library Is open. Similar to the escort service, It services the campus area. The shuttle is only available, however, for dropping off students.

If students choose to walk alone at night, O'Conner urges them to follow simple safety steps, such as removing walkmans, looking alert, and staying in well-lit areas.

An added safety feature scattered throughout the campus is the call boxes which allow students to make emergency calls from anywhere. The "HELP" button should be pressed to notify the police of the need for assistance.

UM tutors offer support

Program to prevent freshmen from dropping out

By GERI SAHN
Collegian Staff

On average throughout the past decade, the University of Massachusetts lost between 18 and 23 percent of its freshman class after their first year.

These numbers of non-returning freshman, tabulated by a retention committee, gave way to a request made two fiscal years ago to set up a tutorial center for the campus.

Starting in the fall, the request will be a reality with the opening of a tutoring center located on the 10th floor of the tower library.

"The center came from recommendations of the retention committee supported by the faculty senate and the provost," said Norman Aitken, deputy provost. He said the tutorial center will also provide a university tutoring training program.

"The center is not designed to replace other department tutoring programs," Aitken said. "It is designed to fill in where there is no tutoring, and to work with departments that have tutoring to improve the effect it will serve."

Humberto Segura, who previously worked for the Multimedia Supervisor for Learning Support Services at the University of Houston, has been hired to set up and direct the center.

"My primary objective is to put a comprehensive program that will aid the students learning in how to learn more effectively and efficiently," Segura said. "In today's academic environment, it is very competitive. I would like to help bring the students that edge to succeed."

Funding for the center will be provided by state appropriation. Money was set aside as a part of retention to create a center.

"The money for the center is not being taken from any other program. It will not lead to any increase in student tuition fees. It will be a free service," Aitken said.

Part of the center would provide a tutor training program. Aitken said UMass does not have a training program on campus to certify tutors.

"The students have never been trained to tutor. There is a lot to tutoring, other than knowing the material," he said. "We would provide a university-wide tutoring training program that we would recommend students to take that program so they would be certified."

Another aspect of the center would be to develop a tutoring program for students based heavily on freshman courses.

Segura said there will be different tutors trained for specific learning styles as well as ethnic groups and learning problems.

They will also have tutors go to the classrooms and take notes in order to have full knowledge of what they are helping the students with. The tutors will teach learning styles of reasoning, skills and good

Turn to TUTORING, page 2

D.C. food not the only option

By JESSICA TAVERNA
Collegian Staff

You are in class and your tummy starts to grumble. You fade off into a lurid fantasy world where food is the first priority.

You awaken and are startled by the thought that you will be forced, once again, to eat dishes labeled as "mysterious" or "refried" for lunch at the dining commons, where transforming leftovers into creative new dishes is common practice.

Fret no more! Your options are not as limited as you thought. There are a variety of places on campus that offer an affordable escape from the monotony of D.C. food.

Name your dining pleasure and UMass has It: coffee shops for a quick bite, restaurants for fine dining when you feel the urge to eat in a civilized fashion, fast food study stops when you need to eat and cram simultaneously, and cafeteria-type dining with a bar on the side, for those who find it suiting to enjoy an after-dinner cocktail.

All of these options are available to students at affordable prices. Even the well-known Top of the Campus restaurant has reasonable prices that fit into a student's budget nicely.

The T.O.C. also offers students the option of using their meal card there, with which they receive special meal discounts.

But if you're looking for more informal dining, you would most likely prefer locations such as the Hatch, the Newman Center, Earthfoods, the Coffee Shop, or the Grad Lounge.

Not only are these places where students can receive quick service during the day when they are rushing to eat between classes, but they are also places where students frequently study and socialize.

The Hatch has a cafeteria-like atmosphere, where the food is laid out and students pick and choose their items, paying a cashier at the end of the line.

Turn to FOOD, page 2

Polymer Research Center may be operational by January of 1995

COLLEGIAN / ARAM COMEAU
The Silvio O. Conte National Center for Polymer Research, under construction for three years, is scheduled to be fully operational by January 1995.

By TRACY MONAHAN
Collegian Staff

The Silvio O. Conte National Center for Polymer Research, located on Governors Drive, will hopefully be fully operational by January 1995, according to John Robinson, the project manager.

The delays on the project, which has been under construction for the past three years, are not unforeseen, he said. Robinson said he believes the main problem is just getting things to work properly.

"The center is like a space shuttle," Robinson said. "By comparison, the other buildings on campus are Fords and Chevys. It often takes longer than people think or would like [to finish projects like this]."

Robinson said he hopes to start moving people in by mid- October. The move-in process will begin on the top floors and go down, possibly taking two weeks to do each floor.

"These things don't happen instantaneously," Robinson said. "It will take a couple of months to get

Turn to CENTER, page 2

Spring cleaning

COLLEGIAN / ARAM COMEAU
Rachel Solomon, a senior theater major, cleans a rug the old-fashioned way outside the Fine Arts Center.

Underage drinkers in danger

By KELLY SPANG
Collegian Staff

Over 1,500 people crowded into a spring afternoon party located off of North Pleasant Street. There were 12 kegs of beer and a live band.

Activities ended shortly into the afternoon, however, when the police arrived to break up the scene. Over 30 people were arrested. The police carried video cameras throughout the party, taping students as they passed.

This party is only one of the many broken-up parties throughout the past semester of which many who attended were underage drinkers.

While some students may look forward to college as a time of drunken experiences, the University of Massachusetts and the local police are committed to ending underage drinking - or at least making it difficult for minors to find alcohol.

A bylaw passed two years ago by the town of Amherst restricted the possession of a keg within the town limits by requiring a permit.

Patrolman Charles Sherpa said the bylaw was enacted to scale back illegal drinking. To date, he said it has been effective.

The focus of the bylaw is the possession of a keg, Sherpa said. He said anyone of age can buy a keg in the area, but in order have a keg in an apartment or house, a permit is required.

The license procedure involves filling out an application, a background check, and an interview with the captain. Applicants must inform the police where the keg will be located. The permit is only good for one day.

Violations of the keg law can result in fines and also arrests. Sherpa said it is illegal anywhere in Massachusetts to sell alcohol without the proper approval. People who buy kegs and sell cups at parties are in violation of the state law and may be arrested.

If a keg is found a household

Turn to BEER, page 7

■ tutoring

continued from page 1

note-taking.

"We will have a very structural training program for tutors and they will be able to obtain a certification. There will be different levels of certification," Segura said.

Segura said they are hoping to start training people to tutor this spring semester. Anyone can go through this training, but only those who actually work for the center will be paid.

The center will also help tutor students through computers. The computers will have many software programs and provide assistant instruction.

"They [the computers] will be used to enhance their learning and to build up their skills where they are weak," Aitken said.

One example of how the computers will assist students is with their foreign language classes. "It will help brush up on a specific aspect the student is having trouble with," Aitken said.

"The end result of this we will hopefully improve the retention rates of the University," Segura said.

■ food

continued from page 1

There is a grill area, a deli and a place to get pizza, as well as a bar in the back where you can find pool tables, music and occasional live acts.

Earthfoods supplies students with healthier food options in their promotion of organic selections.

The Newman Center, the Coffee Shop and the Grad Lounge all have a coffee shop atmosphere where breakfast and lunch are the specialties, and there is a lot of fast-food frenzy, come the peak hours of the day.

The Blue Wall and the People's Market are also places where students can grab a quick bite, without the hassle and time constraints of sit-down dining.

And finally, when those exams start to kick in and you have no time to stock up on dorm room munchies, there are the Munchy Stores, located in each Dining Common.

GLB lecture series offers credit

By BEN GEMAN
Collegian Staff

Students interested in lesbian, gay and bisexual issues will have the chance to turn their interest into academic credit next fall.

The Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns offers a one credit independent study based on the program's Brown Bag Series in Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Studies.

The Brown Bag Series, a weekly lecture and discussion forum featuring presentations by experts in GLB studies, begins its third year in the fall.

The lecture series attracts speakers such as professors and playwrights from the Five-College system and other universities around the country.

Topics addressed in last spring's lecture series included the controversies surrounding the teaching of lesbian and gay curricula in public education, as well as privacy and free speech issues in the gay, lesbian and bisexual rights movement.

Students taking the independent study will attend the weekly lectures and write a series of short papers in response to the topics addressed.

"Students had expressed interest in taking courses dealing with lesbian and gay studies," said Dr. Felice Yeskel, director of the Program for Gay, Lesbian and Bisexual Concerns. "It's a way to encourage gay and lesbian studies on campus."

The program headquarters, located in Crampton Hall in the Southwest Residential Area, offers a variety of resources and services, such as a library and a response network for victims of homophobic discrimination and harassment.

"One thing that we find is that students don't realize there's an administrative office on campus to serve them," said Yeskel.

The program also holds workshops for faculty members and graduate students to help further the integration of GLB topics into courses at the University.

Turn to GLB, page 7

■ center

continued from page 1

things back in operation."

Last January, Jim Cahill, director of planning and facilities development, said the building was originally supposed to open this June.

The building is named for the late Rep. Silvio O. Conte, a local legislator who was instrumental in lobbying the state for the money to build the center.

The ground on which the building stands was dedicated by Gov. William F. Weld in a ceremony on July 31, 1991. The event was also attended by Corinne Conte, widow of Silvio O. Conte, and various local politicians.

The building's price tag of $56 million is being paid by the government. The state is paying $36 million and the federal government is paying the remaining $20 million.

According to Cahill, the construction firm of R.W. Granger built the center. The contract specifies June 1994 as the projected completion date.

The center will be the new home of the polymer science research department. At present, the department is scattered throughout Goessman, Lederle Graduate Research Tower and other locations across the campus.

The polymer science research department is mostly made up of graduate and post-doctoral students.

The building consists of two wings. One is offices for the faculty and researchers in the department and the other is the laboratory wing.

Instrument, chemical, wet bench and physics labs will all be included in the laboratory support wing. There will also be two teaching labs. Cahill said he thinks the department will schedule the classes that will be held in those labs.

The Department of Defense granted the money to fund the center's construction, but Cahill said the research conducted in the building will all be public record.

Final decisions have yet to be reached on the building's security system, Robinson said, and the main delay is in waiting for the rest of the campus to decide which system will be used campus-wide.

Robinson said initially security will be like in any other buildings on campus.

The arch in front of the building is a strictly architectural feature. It is an arcade with a sidewalk underneath and it will be lighted.

"That's a little architectural delight," Cahill said.

The architectural firms involved in the planning of the building are Ellen Zweig Associates of Cambridge and Whitney Atwood Norcross of Boston.

The area in front of the building will also be highly landscaped. The fall planting has been completed and Cahill said the spring planting is moving on schedule.

adventura travel
549-1256 Amherst Carriage Shops 233 N. Pleasant
584-9441 Northampton 122 Main Open Sat.
"Best of the Valley" Award
We Can Save You Time & Money
Senior • Student • Business • Vacation Travel
AIR • CRUISE • RAIL • RESORTS
Europe • Asia • Caribbean • USA
22nd YEAR

College Students
Would 100% Free Tuition Put a Smile on Your Face?
That's right! The Massachusetts Army National Guard offers 100% Free Tuition for state colleges and universities in Massachusetts. The commitment is only about one weekend a month and two weeks a year. And there's more.
You'll receive up to $6,800 in education assistance with the Montgomery GI Bill and you'll earn a salary over your six-year enlistment.
You'll receive job skills training in technical fields such as electronics, communications, or computers and have the adventure of your life!
Let your local Massachusetts Army National Guard recruiter put a smile on your face today.
CALL: 413-586-8681/8682
OR 1-800-322-1338
MASSACHUSETTS ARMY NATIONAL GUARD
Americans At Their Best.
The Army National Guard is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Come Clean With Us!!
Speedwash
11 Pray St. Amherst • 549-1665
Open 24 Hours
Drop-off service available:
Mon. & Tues. 2pm - 10pm
Wed., Thurs. & Fri. 2pm - 10pm
Sat. 10am - 6pm
South Towne Commons Laundromat
479 West St. South Amherst
Open 7 days/week, 7am - 10pm

For the Dancer...
Gymnast...
Fun Bodywear!! Great Shoes!!
& Fitness Minded
Dance Stuff
We Have All Supplies for Dance Majors
220 N. Pleasnat Street (Rear), Amherst, MA
Tues., Wed., Fri., Sat. – 10-5
Thurs. – 10-7
253-5201

From the surreal to the sublime ~ all the good news ~ all in good time.

FACES WORLD NEWS

Volume One Summer 1994 Issue One

STUDENTS FOUND LIVING IN CONCRETE BOXES!

▲ Faces team works to improve students living conditions.

Amherst — Four concrete walls can look pretty depressing. How about sprucing them up with a print by your favorite artist, or maybe a poster of a hero(Einstein? Malcolm X? Michael Jordan? Madonna?). Those linoleum floors get cold – a nice cotton rug will take care of it. And no dorm decor is complete without a colorful Indian tapestry on the bed.

Of course the most important area of your room – where you'll be spending the most time – is your study area. You've got a desk and a chair. Do you have a lamp? Proper lighting is essential for a comfortable work space. Next you'll need to get organized. How about some stackable file crates to keep your papers straight? Or a bookcase for all your books (and stereo). A desk organizer will keep your pens and pencils from rolling onto the floor. And don't forget a wastebasket!

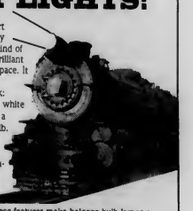
You'll find a huge selection of lamps, bedspreads, rugs, posters, small furniture items and other things you need for your dorm room (and for you) at Faces in downtown Northampton.

AMAZING LITTLE STARS THAT GLOW!

What is the attraction students have with Faces Glow Stars? Common answers are: "They make my room feel bigger," "I feel like I'm outside," or "They help me relax while I'm studying." A few students recreate the constellations but most just make up their own.

SAVE 35% ON ANY ONE ITEM!
Now through July 14th, 1994

Faces
Main Street, Northampton
Open 7 Days
Limit one coupon per customer



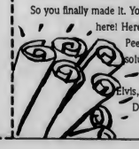
SAVE 25% ON ANY ONE ITEM!
From July 15th through September 15th

CG1001

FACES: "WE'RE THE BIGGEST STORE IN TOWN!"

Northampton — Blah blah blah blah blah blah, blah blah blah blah blah. Blah blah blah blah blah blah blah, etc.

BRIGHT LIGHTS! BRIGHT LIGHTS!



Have you ever gone to a concert and been absolutely blown away by the light show? The same kind of lamp that makes a concert so brilliant can is available for your living space. It is a halogen-bulb lamp.

Here's how halogen lamps work: Halogen gases glow pure bright white when electricity is run through a tungsten filament inside the bulb. When the lamp is turned off, the tungsten that was burned off recombines into the bulb filament. Because of this, halogen bulbs have an extremely long life. They also use less energy than conventional bulbs. These features make halogen-bulb lamps a good choice for rock bands and students alike.

Faces sells a wide variety of halogen desk and floor lamps, as well as conventional and fluorescent lamps.

POSTERS GALORE!

So you finally made it. You're in. You're within the walls. You are here! Here in a small room. Here in an ugly room. Peeling wallpaper. Dreary. Faces has the solution – hundreds of poster and prints to choose from. From National Forests to Elvis, from Monet to 3-D. Great prices - all Downstairs at Faces.

Delivery Hours:
11:30am to 2:00am

SUPERIOR PIZZA
17 MONTAGUE ROAD, AMHERST
549-0626

PIZZA

	Small	Large
Plain	$4.25	$7.65
Ricotta Cheese	4.95	9.00
White Pizza	4.95	9.00
Pesto	4.95	9.00
Fresh Garlic	4.95	9.00
Onions	4.95	9.00
Green Peppers	4.95	9.00
Mushrooms	4.95	9.00
Sliced Tomatoes	4.95	9.00
Broccoli	4.95	9.00
Spinach & Potato	4.95	9.00
Chicken	4.95	9.00
Eggplant	4.95	9.00
Salami	4.95	9.00
Ham	4.95	9.00
Hamburg	4.95	9.00
Sausage	4.95	9.00
Pepperoni	4.95	9.00
Canadian Bacon	4.95	9.00
Bacon	4.95	9.00
Olive	4.95	9.00
Zesti Olive	4.95	9.00
Anchovies	4.95	9.00
Clams Pizza	4.95	9.00
Pineapple	4.95	9.00
Two-Way Combo	5.70	10.25
Three-Way Combo	6.30	11.30
Four-Way Combo	7.35	12.30
Super Special	7.90	15.70
Extra Meta	1.00	1.20
Extra Cheese	1.00	1.80

STEAK GRINDERS

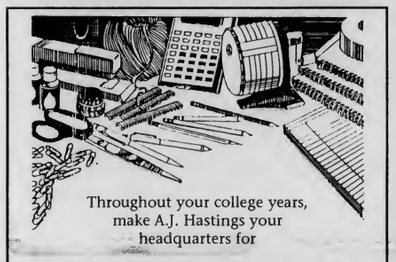
	Small	Large
Plain	3.15	4.55
With Cheese	3.50	4.85
With Onions	3.60	4.95
With Peppers	3.60	4.95
With Mushrooms	3.95	5.35
With Egg	4.55	5.70

SALADS

	Small	Large
Greek	3.50	4.75
Chef	3.50	4.75
Ceasar	3.50	4.75
Antipasto	3.95	5.25

GRINDERS
Toasted or Cold

	Small 8"	Large 12"
Calzone	4.00
Greek Gyros	3.65
Meatless	3.10	4.25
Eggplant	3.50	4.75
Salami	3.50	4.75
Genova	3.50	4.75
Meatball	3.50	4.75
Sausage	3.50	4.75
Ham	3.50	4.75
Italian	3.50	4.75
Tuna	3.80	4.95
Roast Beef	3.80	4.95
Ham & Egg	3.80	4.95
Pepper & Egg	3.80	4.95
Pastrami	3.80	4.95
Turkey	3.80	4.95
Superior Sub	3.95	5.10
Barbecue Rib	3.95	5.10
Veal Cutlet	3.95	5.10
Chicken Cutlet	3.95	5.10
Pepperoni	3.50	4.75
Extra Meat	.50	.60
Extra Cheese	.50	.60



SPAGHETTI
(With Bread & Butter)

With Sauce	4.30
Meatballs	4.75
Sausage	4.75
Mushrooms	4.75
Pesto	4.75

DINNERS
(With Bread & Butter)

Lasagna	5.75
Manicotti	5.75
Ravioli	5.75
Stuffed Shells	5.75
Tortellini	5.75

TAX IS INCLUDED IN ALL PRICES

Throughout your college years, make A.J. Hastings your headquarters for SCHOOL SUPPLIES!

Count on us for everything from your first freshman notebook to your final thesis paper... plus all those years of pens, pencils, paper clips, typewriter ribbons, etc., in-between!

A·J·Hastings, Inc.
—Newsdealer and Stationer—
"Conveniently located in the center of Amherst"
45 South Pleasant Street
OPEN: Weekdays 5a.m. to 9 p.m., Sundays, 5a.m. to 5p.m.

THE UNITED STATES MARINE CORPS
Officer Selection Office of Western New England

- For those of you who are coming to UMASS looking to do more than just getting a degree
- Who look to capitalize on your talents, intelligence, and desire to be successful, and above all want to be a LEADER
- Then the experience and challenge of being an OFFICER OF MARINES can be invaluable to you
- Currently we are looking for the future leaders and pilots of the MARINE CORPS
- If you think you have what it takes to be an OFFICER OF MARINES, call Captain Blaziz or Master Sergeant Zahn at 1-800-255-8762

Information Packets are available upon request.

Bicycle thefts are prevalent on campus

By GERI SAHN and KELLY SPANG
Collegian Staff

COLLEGIAN / AKAM COHEAN

A student registering his bicycle with University police looks for the serial number on the frame. Registration helps campus police locate the owners of recovered stolen bicycles.

The University of Massachusetts Police Department is warning bike owners that is necessary to protect their property, especially with the money to be made in the theft of bikes.

While police arrested two students last winter for an organized bike theft ring, police officials are encouraging all students and faculty who ride bikes on campus to make sure their bicycles are registered with the police.

The registrations are free and may be done at the police station in Dickinson Hall. There are often registration drives held at various locations on campus throughout the semester.

Registering a bike helps the police to locate it because the owner's information is entered into a computerized database, according to Larry Holmes of Security Services.

"The program goal is to prevent theft before it occurs," he said. "We want you to continue to keep your bike."

An example of bike theft on campus was the arrest of two students, Adrian Erdman, 20, of Bedford and Brian L. Galloway, 20, of Lexington in December 1993 by UMass police officials for their bike theft operation based out of a dormitory rooms.

Police Chief and Director of Public Safety Jack Luippold said he could not say for sure whether the individuals arrested were responsible for a majority of bikes stolen on campus, but he did say that this was an example of the profit to be made in bike theft.

"With the prices of bikes and the number of people relying on bikes for transportation, bike thefts have become a big business," he said.

Police discovered the bike theft operation after UMass police pulled the two over and found three bike frames in the back seat of their car. Soon after, the police obtained a search warrant to look in their rooms in the Butterfield dormitory where police said they found an estimated $8,000 worth of bicycle parts, as well as several bicycles, stolen tools, a hacksaw, cable and bolt cutters.

The bike parts included items such as wheels, tires, chains, frames, tubes and mountain bike parts.

In April, both Erdman and Galloway pled guilty in the Hampshire County District Court in Northampton to 10 felony counts. The charges included possession of burglary tools, larceny of property, and illegal possession of alcohol.

Judge Michael Ryan sentenced them to one year in the Hampshire County House of Corrections and 30 days direct. Erdman and Galloway must also complete 100 hours of community service, cooperate with the UMass Police Department to help locate bike owners and pay a restitution fee of $30.

They will also be on probation for a year and be under supervision for an additional year.

Luippold said registration of bikes is important in the recovery of stolen bikes. He said in the incident of Erdman and Galloway, a man was able to recover his bike because he gave the registration number and the serial number.

"It's very difficult to identify a bike by saying it was red and had a scratch," he said.

Registering a bike requires recording the information on the bike, such as the serial number. Engraving of the bike is also an option to mark a bike in a few locations with the owner's name, driver's license number, and state of residence.

Luippold said the advantage of registering a bike is to make the owner's property safe.

"If a bike is registered, a thief may think twice about taking the bike as opposed to the bike next to it, which may not have the registration," he said.

Police officials also advise bike owners to use U-shaped locks because they said chains and cables are easily defeated.

Made to last for decades, or until graduation, whichever comes first.

Pick up a pair of shoes built to last. Dr. Martens Hikers. With their beer-proof leather and pizza-resistant soles, you'll find there's no better shoe for the rigors of college life.

Dr. AirWair Martens
strut DESIGNER SHOES FOR LESS
197 Main St. Northampton, MA

WELCOME TO THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS
While on campus come to the University Store conveniently located in the Campus Center

Officially Licensed UMASS Clothing & Gifts
COMPUTERS • SOFTWARE • COMPUTER BOOKS & ACCESORIES
SCHOOL, ART & OFFICE SUPPLIES • TAPES & CD'S • CARDS & GIFTS
BOOKS & MAGAZINES • DORM ACCESORIES • FILM & DEVELOPING HEALTH & BEAUTY CARE • SOUVENIRS • SPORTING GOODS
CANDY & SNACKS

VISIT OUR OTHER LOCATIONS ON CAMPUS

THE TEXTBOOK ANNEX	MINI STORE	WORCESTER MUNCHY STORE	FRANKLIN MUNCHY STORE
Physical Plant Building	Student Union	Worcester Dining Commons	Franklin Dining Commons
Textbooks & Course Material	Candy & Snacks	Convenience Stores for Snacks • Groceries & Supplies

- COUPON -
FREE WINDOW DECAL
UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS
with the purchase of Imprinted Clothing at the University Store - Campus Center Valid at the University Store Only through 8/31/94.

- COUPON -
FREE SINGLE SUBJECT IMPRINTED SPIRAL NOTEBOOK with any purchase over $5.00.
Valid at the University Store - Campus Center for RS 32-340 through 8/31/94.

UNIVERSITY STORE
CAMPUS CENTER
545-2619
SUMMER HOURS M-F 8:30AM - 4:30PM

Need a Job in the Fall? The University Store will be hiring early in the semester at all locations...

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded in 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

DARIENNE J. HOSLEY Editor-in-Chief
Managing Editor ARTHUR STAPLETON JR. | MICHAEL MCRAE Business Manager
Arts & Living Editor JON LUPO | ANDREW D. DAVIDSON Production Manager
Black Affairs Editor POSITION VACANT | LISA TANNENBAUM Advertising Manager
Developing Nations Editor SOMA PAZ | JOHN KHACHADOORIAN Finance Manager
Editorial/Opinion Editor TRACY MONAHAN | MARNI E. HELFNER Night Graphics Manager
Gay Lesbian Bisexual Issues Editor STEPHEN C. CAMPBELL | JAMES P. GAMLEY Day Graphics Manager
Jewish Affairs Editor JACOB W. MICHAELS | POSITION VACANT Circulation Manager
Multicultural Affairs Editor EVELYN A. DE JESUS | ERIC ABENARA Subscriptions Manager
News Editor KELLY SPANG | MAUREEN MAJEWONSKI Senior Bookkeeper
Photography Editor NATHAN MARTIN | BLAKE PHILLIPS Graphics Professional
Sports Editors ANDREW BRYCE, MATTHEW VAUTOUR | POSITION VACANT Classified Advertising
Women's Issues Editor POSITION VACANT | TURLEY PUBLICATIONS Printing Services

113 CAMPUS CENTER BASEMENT · UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS · AMHERST, MA 01003 · (413) 545-3500 · FAX (413) 545-1992

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian is published Monday–Friday during the University of Massachusetts calendar semester. For advertising rates and information, call (413) 545-3500 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. The Collegian is financially independent from the University of Massachusetts, operating solely on revenues generated by advertising sales. Letters to the editor are encouraged and will be printed on a space-available basis. All submissions must be typed, kept to a maximum of 400 words, and should include the writer's name, address, year and major, as well as a phone number for verification purposes. The Collegian reserves the right to edit submissions for grammar, clarity and length. Persons wishing to submit guest columns should contact the Editorial/Opinion editor in advance. The views and opinions expressed on this page are those of the individual writer or cartoonist and do not necessarily represent those of the Collegian. Unsigned editorials reflect the majority opinion of the Editorial Board.

You too can leave UMass

I've done a lot over this past year. Not that my grade point average reflects this, mind you, but it really has been a big year. I've learned quite a bit, and most of this has been done outside of the classroom. The one great opportunity I took advantage of, and which every University of Massachusetts student should know about is the National Student Exchange Program.

Last August, my friend Jay and I packed our lives into his Chevy Blazer and headed down to the University of South Carolina. What followed were three months of sun, fun and football in a new and exciting culture. The steps involved in making this trip a reality were not as difficult as you might think.

Caleb Cochran

It all started in January, when Jay and I had just about had it with winter in Massachusetts. We started to kick around the idea of spending a semester somewhere very warm and very far away. We thought about Louisiana State, Georgia and a few other schools before deciding on North Carolina State. So, we filled out the necessary paperwork (there's not much), paid our application fee of $60, and waited for a reply.

I knew we were in trouble when the coordinator of the exchange program called me up and told me that she needed to have a talk with Jay and me. I had a funny feeling that we didn't get in. And I was right. It turned out that since we sent our applications in for the second deadline instead of the first deadline, all the available slots at N.C. State were filled. We were then given a list of schools that we could still exchange to. We were also told that there were two openings at the University of South Carolina that were ours for the taking if we wanted them.

Well, Jay and I sat down and decided that since our main objective was to get warm and experience the South, another three or four hours in the car wasn't going to kill us. We accepted the offer to attend USC.

Then the real fun began. We began to get all kinds of mail about the school and its dining arrangements, living arrangements, orientation, billing, cable and all kinds of other fun stuff. I felt like an incoming freshman all over again. Since we had never been to the University, we blindly picked a few buildings which looked okay to live in. I can't remember which building we wanted to live in, but we soon received word that we would be living in Columbia Hall. This meant nothing to either of us.

This brings us back to the morning when we packed up and headed off. The ride down was one of the best times I had during the entire exchange experience. We left my house around 7 a.m. and arrived at our destination for the evening, Williamsburg, Va., at around 8 p.m. We checked in at the local Howard Johnson's and then made a beeline for Williamsburg's main attraction, Busch Gardens. If you haven't made the trip, I highly recommend it. By far the coolest amusement park this side of Disney.

Anyway, the next morning we were on the road again. We arrived in Columbia, S.C., at around 3 p.m. We knew we were in a different land when we heard a chorus of "y'all's" coming from every direction. "Hey, y'all!" "Have a good summer, y'all?" "Welcome back, y'all!" "Y'all from Massachusetts?" You get the point.

And so began our semester in the South. We learned a lot over the next three months. We met people from all over the country. My next-door neighbor was from my mother's hometown in New Jersey. One of our good friends was from Rochester, N.Y. My friend Dean was from Winston-Salem, N.C., and my friend Jack was from Idaho. We also met plenty of folks from South Carolina, including our suitemates, Ed and Lester. I got to spend a weekend in Atlanta and a weekend at Myrtle Beach.

I haven't even touched on many of the great experiences that I had on my semester on exchange. If you've thought about going on exchange, go down to the NSE office in Machmer Hall and talk to someone about it. The opportunity is there; it's up to you to take advantage of it.

Caleb Cochran is a Collegian columnist.

Opportunity knocks once

Opportunity.

It's such a wonderful word. It's such a mysterious word. It's such an overused word.

Over the course of this orientation period and probably the first few weeks of classes, you will no doubt hear from Vice Chancellor Dead Head and Dean of Creampuffs what bold and new opportunities await as you begin your college career.

They're right, sort of. As you will learn, if you haven't already, the University of Massachusetts is big. Big campus, big classes, big parties. As you continue on down that UMass road, however, this place tends to shrink.

There are only so many nights you can walk home bombed from Hobart Lane (this is not a promotion for underage drinking), stop for a slice at Antonio's, or sit in your room and play Sega while listening to a little Lionel Richie before you start to get restless.

It is at that time where you must be brave. You must take advantage of the opportunities and horizons that are much too big to be contained by the intersection of Rtes. 9 and 116.

Sean P. Hayden

It is at that time where you must be brave. You must take advantage of the opportunities and horizons that are much too big to be contained by the intersection of Rtes. 9 and 116.

Live a little and you will be greatly rewarded — I'm living proof. It wasn't more than a couple of months ago when, tired of the same old scene, me, a couple of buddies and some brew (this is not a promotion for drinking and driving) hopped into my van (actually my dad's) and began our odyssey.

We decided to explore and go to New York City and come back with eight million stories of our own.

It was more of a pilgrimage actually. Since November my two buddies and I have talked about heading to the Big Apple to see one of our favorite bands, Black 47, play at New York's finest watering hole, Paddy Reilly's. Some six months later, we were on our way.

Travelling to New York gave us the opportunity to drive in the city, something we had never done. Driving in the city gave us the opportunity to go to Paddy Reilly's, something else we had never done. Going to Paddy Reilly's gave us the opportunity to see Black 47 live, something else most of us had never done.

Seeing the band perform live was compensation enough for our four-hour ride, but as it turned out, we weren't even close to being done.

After the show, we got to party with Larry, Ham, Chris and the rest of the band at the end of the bar, share a few pints, and talk a little trash.

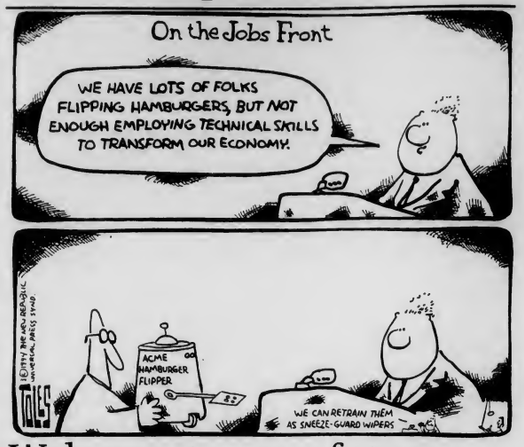
That led us to our next adventure. When I looked over my shoulder, who did I see standing behind me but George Wendt, who played Norm on the television show "Cheers." We met Norm himself in an Irish pub in the Bronx section of N.Y.C. Not only that, but we got the chance to hang with him and act like goofs with him, insult him (sorry, George), and watch him double fist the Guiness.

After hanging with The Man for a while and the band for a little while longer (after Wendt left to go to the "Saturday Night Live" cast party, to which we could not find directions, due not to lack of persistence) it was time to shuffle off back to Amherst.

Monsignor Steve Duggan, world famous proprietor, set us up with a Bailey's and Jameson's and sent us on our way. Where he was sending us I can't remember. What I can remember is waking up at 7 a.m. as my friend pulled up to a parking spot in the good, old UMass D Lot.

The greatest night of the semester was over for us. What was not over was the memory of one of the best adventures the three of us have had during our time here at UMass. But now it was back to UMass and back to finals, back to Hobart, and back to the Tower Library.

Soon enough, though, it will be back to the city and to who knows what?



This could have been you. The opportunity is there. Take advantage of it.

Sean P. Hayden is a Collegian columnist who graduated in May and has jammed to "Funky Ceili" on numerous occasions.

Doonesbury by Garry Trudeau

Opinion

Welcome to your future

I imagine that for many first-year students, your arrival at the University of Massachusetts will seem like that wonderful old description of air travel: "hours of boredom interrupted by moments of sheer terror."

I want to welcome you to the University with assurances that after the initial shock, your life at UMass will quickly settle down. It has been suggested that we change the name of the process you are presently enduring to "Summer Disorientation." It reflects more accurately the frame of mind that most intelligent human beings experience when they arrive on the campus for the first time. If it's any consolation, summer orientations used to be much worse. Some of us remember the days when college freshmen had to wear beanies with propellers on them, and endure the sophomoric hazing of older students.

I need you to help me change a concept that has been plaguing our campus for quite a few years. The University suffers from one of the greatest ironies in higher education. It has a much healthier reputation out of state than in Massachusetts. Why this local opposition? Maybe it has to do with human nature's tendency to take for granted the things most near and dear. Or perhaps it's that fine old Massachusetts tradition of bashing local heroes, notably the Red Sox and Patriots. Or possibly the answer lurks within an old Groucho Marx quip: "I don't want to belong to any club that would accept me as a member."

On the other hand, why does UMass have such a glowing reputation elsewhere? Part of the credit must go to the national renown of our basketball program. Or perhaps it's the two astronomers who did their 1993 Nobel prize winning research here. Maybe it's simply our famous alumni, the likes of Bill Cosby, Julius Erving, Natalie Cole, Rick Pitino, Paul Theroux and Richard Gere. All these elements leave a good impression. But we like to think that the real reason for our widespread prestige is based on old- fashioned grounds. We earned it.

The truth is very simple. In the geography of American higher education, Massachusetts is the capital. And in Massachusetts no other institution combines such fine education, fine value and fine location as UMass Amherst. Period.

David K. Scott

Together, we can set the record straight. The difficulty of getting our just dues in Massachusetts recalls a famous quote about publishing poetry in America. "It's like dropping a rose petal down the Grand Canyon and waiting for the echo."

Whatever the reasons, the truth is very simple. In the geography of American higher education, Massachusetts is the capital. And in Massachusetts no other combines such a fine education, fine value and fine location as UMass Amherst. Period.

We here at UMass have a lofty ambition, almost as lofty as the binary pulsar discovered by our Nobel winners, Joseph Taylor and Russell Hulse. We want to become the best public university system of its kind in the nation by the year 2000. Or shortly thereafter. To do that, we need the best and the brightest students of any public university system in the nation. Students like you.

As I welcome you to UMass and wish you the best of luck in your years on campus, I want you to know that I am entrusting you with the future of the University. I am confident that I leave it in good hands. When Bill Cosby visited his alma mater recently, he advised that when defending UMass, "a little truth and hyperventilation." In all, that's not a bad definition of scholarship.

David K. Scott is the chancellor at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

An expert view of campus

Now that you've signed on to spend next semester here in the Happy Valley, there are several tips we down in the basement feel you should all know. So sit back and relax, because everyone you've met the last couple days in Northeast — umm, you probably won't see again.

Arthur Stapleton Jr.

Let's take a tour around campus and I'll enlighten you as to the way things work. In the middle of it all, next to that big pool of water called the pond, is the tower library.

It has no name and has been the focal point of lobbying by protesters over the past two semesters. Speaking of protesters, take a stroll to the Student Union Building, which is a hop, skip and a jump from the library. On the steps during the semester, you'll be able to participate in rallies of all kinds, ranging from banning the Minuteman mascot to getting rid of the scrod in the D.C.

Oh yeah, D.C. is short for dining commons, and will be the place of many fond memories in your first semester. Fond of the weekend morning brunches, when everyone (and i mean everyone) stumbles in at half past 12, half-hung over, half-tired and groggy, afraid of discovering some disaster that happened the night before.

You're probably picking where you want to live about now, and are hearing different rumors about different residential areas.

The place you are staying in now — get out and don't come back if you're looking for a party atmosphere. Don't worry, though, you might meet someone in the fall who lives in Northeast, in between engineering classes.

Orchard Hill — there's an interesting place. I once told a friend of mine who lived on the Hill that the reason I'd never been up there was because it was too quiet. She challenged me on the spot to come up to Grayson and see that not all Orchard Hill people are quiet.

The freshmen who will be the most unhappy come the first week of school are those who get put in Sylvan — land of the suites. I hope you have a car in order to make the trek every day back from classes.

Central's cool if you can get it. The people are somewhat laid back as they are in Orchard Hill; one problem — it's not in the center of campus if you get stuck in Van Meter.

Finally, we get to Southwest. There's more security here than at the Pentagon. To sign a 15-year-old in, you need eight forms of I.D. and you get frisked at the door.

I hope you've enjoyed your brief tour of UMass; it's probably not as bad as it seems. There's always Antonio's, Hobart Lane, men's basketball in the William D. Mullins Center, softball at Totman Field, hoops at the Horseshoe...Give me a call when you get here in September and I'll personally show you around.

Arthur Stapleton Jr. is a Collegian columnist.

Columnists for the editorial page at the Massachusetts Daily Collegian will be chosen during the first week of classes next fall. Anyone interested in being a columnist should prepare a sample column of roughly 70 lines (which equals out to about two pages, typed double-spaced).

A meeting for potential columnists will be held, at which applications will be passed out. The applications are to be filled out and handed in with the sample column. Look for ads (like this one) on the editorial page which will tell you time, place, etc. Only UMass undergraduates can be columnists.

The editorial page at the Collegian welcomes all letters from the Five College area. Letters must be typed, double spaced. To submit please send them to Editorial Editor, 113 Campus Center Basement, UMass. We reserve the right to edit any letters.

Arts & Living

Get ready for a summer of super stars

• ED HUMPHRIES •
Collegian Staff

Arnold Scharzenegger stars in True Lies.

Vacation cinema. It's the best of times. It's the worst of times. it can be the summer of our happiness and the winter of our heart's discontent.

But take heed faithful reader, for this summer bodes a plethora of laughs, spills, crashes and thrills. Arnold's back. So is Eddie. And kicking it all off is a tale from pre-history.

So take this preview section as a guide; not a dictum nor a Bible, but a road map to the twists and turns, the highs and lows of Cineplex mayhem. Kick back. Soak in the A.C. (but remember JujyFruits — good, movie popcorn — bad!). Enjoy.

Gunfights, Impalements, Explosions et cetera...

Summer brings the biggest explosions, the best special effects and the baddest bad guys (with a villainous wink of course.) This summer the big guns are loaded, safety off.

First up Eddie Murphy pines for a much-needed hit with a return to wise-crack form in Beverly Hills Cop III, where his Axel Foley battles bad guys at a dino-themed amusement park. (Suffer the extinction, pal.)

Save that money though because Arnold Schwarzenegger mounts his comeback teaming with T2 director James Cameron for the action-comedy True Lies. The buzz is good, the casting is eclectic (Jamie Lee Curtis, Tom Arnold) and the trailer looks great, stamping that "lost" action hero status null and void.

Jean Claude Van Damme takes action in Time Cop.

Also showing promise is Chuck Russel's The Mask, based on Dark Horse Comics' cult classic and starring Jim Carrey and a slew of Industrial Lights and Magic effects. This could ease those Ace Ventura nightmares.

Alec Baldwin does the brooding hero thing in The Shadow while Jean Claude Van Damme reaps bigger budgets and higher body counts in Time Cop. Stallone teams with Sharon Stone in The Specialist while Jeff Bridges stops pyromaniac Jones (Tommy Lee, that is) from kindling the Boston skyline in Blown Away. Meanwhile, unlikely action hero Keanu Reeves films "Die Hard-on-a-bus" in Speed and Kurt Russell and James Spader play galaxy-tripping archaeologists in Star Gate.

Finally, summer sees Charlie Sheen and Nastassja Kinski in the Point Break retelling Terminal Velocity. What's the point?

Back In the Saddle...

It's no secret, westerns rule box office bonanza. Tumbleweeds, they be no more. This summer features four installments of revisionist horse opera.

Lawrence Kasdan's Wyatt Earp seeks to erase the damage quasi-revisionist Tombstone hath previously wrought on the Earp-Holliday myth. Kevin Costner is Earp, Dennis Quaid is Holliday and with Kasdan at the reigns the result is likely to be overwrought, overblown and very entertaining.

Expect stylized violence from Sam Raimi's The Quick and the Dead with Sharon Stone gunning for Gene Hackman alongside Leonardo DiCaprio. In Maverick, Mel Gibson stars with Jodie Foster, James Garner and Clint Black in the big screen treatment of the small screen card-shark comedy.

The mischievous Jodie Foster steals the show in Maverick.

Completing the roundup is The Cowboy Way with Woody Harrelson and Kiefer Sutherland as two wayward cowpokes lost in contemporary New York City. While not exactly a western, that's a hell of a lot better than calling this comedy.

Things That Go Bump...

Thrillers reign supreme no matter what the season. Summer heat feels ceiluloid chills.

Leave it to the literary gods to deliver the plots. First Phillip Noyce crafts Tom Clancy's spy game Clear and Present Danger, returning Harrison Ford to CIA sleuth Jack Ryan territory once again. Joel Schumacher offers John Grisham's The Client with Susan Sarandon and hard laborer Tommy Lee Jones.

Jack is back in Wolf with Nicholson as a book publisher by day, carnivore by night, hungry for the affections of Michelle Pfeiffer. Meryl Streep braves white water (rapids, that is) and a murderous Kevin Bacon in Curtis Hanson's The River Wild, while the late Brandon Lee displays what could have been, subbing character development for martial arts in the long-awaited grim fairy tale The Crow.

Finally reservoir dog Quentin Tarentino offers Bruce Willis, Patricia Arquette, Christopher Walken (and others) in the "true" crime anthology Pulp Fiction. Bruce Willis appears again in the erotic thriller Color of Night where he plays a shrink who exposes both his (suppress those laughs) emotional self and (once again!) physical being while seeking the serial killer threatening his lover (Jane March) and his therapy group. (Groan!)

Divine (and not so) Comedies...

Yabba dabba doo! Those who haven't heard, crawl out from under your rock, The Flintstones are coming. The casting is eclectic. John Goodman and Rick Moranis as Fred and Barney. Great! Kyle MacLachlan as Mr. Slate. Huh! With music by the B.C. 52's it should be innocuous but fun.

Rob Reiner strikes again, this time with North, a fantasy comedy starring Elijah Wood as a boy who deserts his parents in search of a perfect home. Fantasy is the hallmark of Robert Zemeckis' Forrest Gump with Tom Hanks playing a mildly retarded fellow sent time-tripping through various events in American history. The effects are supposed to be amazing.

Tom Hanks plays another tough role in Forrest Gump.

Billy Crystal reteams with Jack Palance, Daniel Stern and newcomer Jon Lovitz in City Slickers II: The Legend of Curly's Gold. Gimmick alert: Palance plays dead trailboss Curly's twin brother.

Veteran dramatic directors try their hand with comedy. First up, Spike Lee brings Crooklyn, a comic slice of life set in a remote burg in Brooklyn and based on Spike's family. Oliver Stone meets Quentin Tarentino in Natural Born Killers skewering the media blitz for serial killer "flavors of the month" Woody Harreison and Juliette Lewis.

As for the rest: Danny Devito teaches grunts in Penny Marshall's Renaissance Man, MacCauley Culkin tutors convict dad Ted Danson in Getting Even with Dad, and Damon Wayan's imparts lessons upon crooks in the superhero spoof Blankman.

Later Nick Nolte and Julia Roberts play dueling reporters in I Love Trouble; Adam Sandler, Brendan Fraser and Steve Buscemi are radical rock group members in Airheads; and Nicholas Cage tips Bridget Fonda $1 million dollars in Andrew Bergman's It Could Happen to You. Finally Pauly Shore enlists In the Army Now and Leonard Nimoy casts Patricia Arquette in Holy Matrimony.

Yabba Dabba Doo! John Goodman appears as Fred Flintstone in The Flintstones.

Don't Be So Dramatic...

Dramas are scarce this summer. The most notable is Tim Burton's Ed Wood, starring Johnny Depp as the late schlock film producer responsible for Plan 9 from Outer Space and instilled with a penchant for women's lingerie and Bela Lugosi (a natural combo.) Burton fiimed in black and white and has scaled down his sideshow grotesques. Should be interesting.

Veteran director John Schleisenger (Midnight Cowboy) returns with The Innocent, a World War II spy drama starring Campbell Scott and Anthony Hopkins as Allies trapped behind enemy lines.

Also pining for emotions and Oscar clips, widower Roy Liotta hires housekeeper Whoopi Goldberg to watch his children in Corrina-Corrina and slacker woes reach an ultimatum in the angst-ridden S.F.W. — the acronym standing for some very bad words.

Child's Play...

The big one: The Lion King. The animation looks great. The soundtrack boasts original Elton John tracks. The cast features a gaggie of furry friends. The jungle will shake. Walt Disney Pictures feels bulging pockets. Hey, kids aren't the only ones who see movies twice.

Wayne's World director Penelope Spheeris taps the TV market with (shrug) The Little Rascals. The California Angels find some help from above in Angels in the Outfield and finally John Hughes presents yet another contrived creation in the abduction caper Baby's Day Out.

Michelle Pfeiffer is the object of Jack Nicholson's affections in Wolf.

Bruce Willis stars in Pulp Fiction and Color of Night this summer.

Harrison Ford returns as CIA agent Jack Ryan in Clear and Present Danger.

Hot-Shot Charlie Sheen takes the lead in Terminal Velocity.

Music fan remembers blasts of groups past

While columnists like myself sit around and consistently rank on groups like Stone Temple Pilots or the Lemonheads, it is hard not to see that these groups are still light years ahead of what used to pass for popular music in the late eighties.

I'll take Pearl Jam over Bon Jovi any day, and we are slowly (hopefully) moving toward a time when musicians don't have to sacrifice integrity to be superstars. Pearl Jam has still not released a single or video to accompany Vs., and I think that's fantastic. Nine Inch Nails are chart topers, and Pavement is poised to be this decade's R.E.M.

SOUNDS FROM THE VALLEY

Compiled by Brian Babineau

The roots of this music movement lie deep in the mid- eighties, and the important bands upon which the foundations of today's alternative sound are built. Not to slight the rock monsters of the seventies, but without the crucial sounds of Husker Du, The Replacements, XTC and R.E.M. adding fuel to the arena rock flame started in the seventies, we would still be stuck with Warrant and Poison as our excuse for rock and roll. Now isn't that scary?

Through four years of college, I have had the benefit of watching this change, and using some of the better bands as my personal soundtrack for life. I can't imagine my freshman year without the psychedelic beauty of the Stone Roses or the dirge-disco of Pretty Hate Machine. My sophomore year would have been dull if not for the roar of Nevermind or the funk-rap-rock stew of the Beasties' Check Your Head.

Junior year would have been horrible without the instant Pavement classic Slanted and Enchanted, and the Smashing Pumpkins' gorgeous, dreamy Siamese Dream made this past year that much better.

Truly, music is crucial in any respect. It provides memories, enhances moods, induces sing alongs, makes you cry. In college especially, music is everywhere, literally — in your car, in your bathroom, at parties and in bars, on your Walkman and on your answering machines.

When you look back on college years, it will probably be hard to separate memory from music in a lot of respects. So don't even try. Just play your songs and take a second to realize how important music really is. it is the soundtrack to all our lives, so stop and listen...

PHOTO COURTESY OF JOSEPH CULTICE

Trent Reznor of Nince Inch Nails

If you are interested in writing for the Sassiest Arts & Living Department in the contiguous United States
Come down to the Collegian
Campus Center Basement
and ask for
Jon Lupo, Arts & Living Editor

If the obstacle is price, we've just helped you get over it.
Bicycle World Too
Our Only Business is Bikes
Amherst 253-7722 • 63 South Pleasant St. (rear) • Behind Bonducci's • Greenfield 774-3701

Collegian Graphics...We're up all night putting together New England's largest college daily.

CTB CENTRAL TRAVEL
Your Student Travel Experts
Air Car Tour Hotel Cruise Train/Eurail
Complete Travel Services
We Get You There With Money to Spare
CENTRAL TRAVEL • 549-4900
25A Pray St. • Amherst, MA 01002
No Charge for American Express Vouchers

The Mercantile
Northampton 16 Center St 584-1205
Amherst Cottage Shops 549-1306
Mon-Sats 10-6 Sun 12-5 Thurs & Fri til 9

University Dining Services Welcomes
THE CLASS OF 1998

THIS SUMMER -
You'll get a little 'taste' of our dining halls
But This Fall The Options Are Endless

From Main Course Items to...
• VEGETARIAN SELECTIONS •
Basics-Worcester & Berkshire
• PASTABILITIES •
Worcester
• MARTY'S DELI •
Franklin
• THE QUICK STOP •
Hampshire
• KOSHER DINING •
Hampden
Sandwich Bar Options • Great Deserts from our own Bake Shop • Special Events - like Country Breakfast, Steak & Salad Night, International Theme Night & More!
Flexible Plans & Flexible Hours

THIS SUMMER -
in the Campus Center You'll Also Find...

THE COFFEE SHOP... 7AM~5:30PM Sun - Sat
THE BLUE WALL CAFETERIA...11AM~1:30PM Mon-Fri
THE BLUEWALL COFFEE HOUSE... 11:30AM~5PM Mon-Fri
THE TOC RESTAURANT... 11:30AM~2PM Mon-Fri
THE GRADUATE LOUNGE... 9AM~8PM Mon-Fri
~ and across campus ~
THE WHITMORE SNACKBAR... 7AM~4PM Mon-Fri

But, in the Fall, hours expand...
THE HATCH (Student Union) • TOC LOUNGE (Campus Center) • & the HAMPDEN SNACK BAR (Southwest) ... Open!
There are...
Back-to-school specials • plenty of job opporunities • birthday & special occasion cakes made to order (Bluewall Coffee House & Hampden Snack Bar and Much More!

THE MASSACHUSETTS DAILY
COLLEGIAN
The Largest College Daily Newspaper in New England • Founded In 1890 • Published Daily Since 1967

If You're Interested in ...
Journalism • Photography • Advertising • Desktop Publishing • Business

Then the Collegian wants you!

The Newsroom
We're always looking for new writers at any of the desks (News, Arts & Living, Ed/Op, Sports, Women's Issues, Multicultural Affairs, GLB Affairs, Black Affairs, Developing Nations & Jewish Affairs).

Photography
Aspiring photographers can gain experience in all aspects of photography (Shooting, Developing & Layout).

Business
All you SOM majors (and anyone else) come on down. We're always in need of people to help with classifieds, advertising and finances.

Graphics
If you you want to learn who's behind the production of the Collegian, come on down to the graphics office and check us out.

How to get involved in the Collegian in three easy steps:

1. Get up some gumption. (it shouldn't take that much — try downing a liter of Jolt.)

2. Come on down. (we're easy to find — in the Campus Center basement, not on the end with the ATMs but on the other end...you know.)

3. Talk to someone. (there's a lot of people who would be really happy to know you want to work with us.)

The Collegian:
We promise to like you the way your parents never did... but we won't lend you any money.

The first staff meetings will be announced in the first week's publication. Keep your eyes peeled for ads telling you when and where.

The Collegian...
...Get Involved!
113 Campus Center Basement
545-3500

UM to promote diversity

By DARIENNE J. HOSLEY
Collegian Staff

Talking about multiculturalism is easy, but the University of Massachusetts is attempting to tackle the issue in concrete terms through academic programs, workshops and conferences.

Like colleges and universities across the country, UMass has found itself grappling with the issue of encouraging and embracing diversity among its students. The diversity academic requirement is one step the administration has taken to bring the issue to college students' attention, but they have recently gone beyond the classroom through more ambitious projects.

The first five-campus conference in the history of the University was held last September to address "Strategies for Combating Racism and Promoting Civility." More than 600 faculty and staff from the Amherst, Boston, Dartmouth, Lowell and Worcester campuses attended the two-day series of lectures, discussion and workshops.

Keynote speaker Bill Cosby approached the issue with his trademark humor at the Williams D. Mullins Center.

"The silent hatred that we all carry needs to be stripped. You need to grow up," he said. "There's no excuse."

The conference was the symbolic start of President Michael K. Hooker's attempt to form a model, multicultural community. Some student and faculty critics charged that the event misdirected energy.

"Instead of a public relations exercise," said Shyamala Ivatury, president of the Graduate Student Senate, "We [the GSS] think it's better if they keep their commitment to increase minority enrollment to 30 percent."

As of fall 1993, undergraduate minority enrollment stood at slightly more than 12 percent.

"I think the skeptics have a point," said Rita Poussaint Nethersole, director of student affairs in the President's Office. "It is possible for these to be very grandstand events, with nothing behind them, but that's not President Hooker's style.

"It raises the issue to the level of the President's Office and the Board of Trustees, and that's a very important statement. However, if that's the only statement, it's pretty meaningless."

Nethersole said another system-wide conference on fighting racism is being organized for spring 1995. To be held at the Dartmouth campus, it will be student-organized and student-run. The University has been asked by the New England College Council of Presidents to open the conference to colleges and universities throughout New England.

Last fall's University-wide event was followed up by smaller discussions and workshops at each university, such as the campus conferences on diversity held at the Dartmouth and Lowell campuses this spring.

■ beer

continued from page 2

without a permit, each person listed on the lease will be fined $200 and anyone on the lease not 21 years old may be arrested as a minor in possession of alcohol, Sherpa said.

On campus, underage drinkers may not have or drink alcohol in the residence halls or outside, according to the 1993-93 Residence Hall Manual. Only 21-year-old may have alcohol, and they may not give any to minors.

Jack Luippold, UMass police chief and director of public safety said the problem is many incoming students do not think the laws extend to the campus.

The University abides by all the state laws in its handbooks.

For students who violate the alcohol guidelines set out in the manual, the Residential Education Alcohol Program is offered. This program is part of the disciplinary action taken for alcohol policies violations and involves a series of educational workshops.

■ tuition

continued from page 1

morning hours. Scott committed to a zero percent increase provided the Legislature allocated a 3 percent increase to the overall University budget. Scott also agreed to move the focus of the fight for lower costs to the Statehouse.

"The focus will be moved out of the campus to the state where it should be," said Matt Paveti, former speaker of the Undergraduate Student Senate. "We can channel all the energy from (Friday) to the state for a 3 percent increase from the Legislature."

Any money given by the Legislature goes to all five campuses of the UMass system. Hooker and the Board of Trustees submits a budget to the Legislature for the consideration of funds.

Later in the semester, the Board of Trustees supported an increase of tuition and fees equal to that of the rate of inflation. The total, including tuition, fees, and room and board will be an increase of 2.5 percent in-state. The increase for out-of-state students will be less, only about 1.5 percent out of state, said spokesman Danny Chun.

In keeping with his agreement, Scott accompanied students to the second annul Statehouse Day in which students from all five campus go to the Statehouse to lobby for more appropriation from the Legislature.

SGA representatives and other students mobilized a campaign to contact every students' parents who lived in the district of the Ways and Means committee to lobby for increased funding for the university system. The Ways and Means in both the House and the Senate control budge issues.

They also stood around campus a few days before Statehouse Day to persuade students to come to Boston.

About 300 people from the Amherst campus and 400 participants total went to the Statehouse in late April to ask for $21.8 million. Representatives from each campus included alumni, parents, students and faculty. They spoke to the representatives from their hometowns as well as the Chairs of the Ways and Means Committees.

Many of the students brought real-life stories of ways the budget cuts have affected them, including classes being cancelled and art work being destroyed because of leaks in the Fine Arts Center roof.

■ GLB

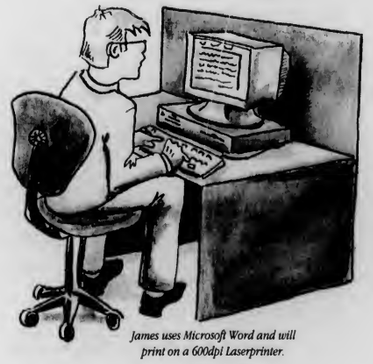
continued from page 2

A monthly newsletter, The Blatant, is published by the program, and offers a computerized database providing information about legal assistance, AIDS and therapy options.



Other programs include a monthly Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Cafe, which brings in comics, performance artists, singers, poets and the annual Bisexual, Gay and Lesbian Awareness Days.

This fall the program will be co-sponsoring a series of speakers, presentations, panels and films dealing with censorship in the arts.

The program may also co-sponsor, along with the Distinguished Visitors Program, a campus presentation by Los Angeles performance artist Tim Miller.

Miller had his funding withdrawn by the National Endowment for the Arts in 1992 due to the controversial nature of his work.

James finishes his thesis on Transcendental Meditation.

James uses Microsoft Word and will print on a 600dpi Laserprinter.

Write your thesis, design documents, scan images and explore the user friendly world of Macintosh at the area's most resourceful and supportive computer work space. For even greater convenience, complete your next project in your home or office through our weekly and monthly rental programs. And when your ready to purchase a system of your own, we'll help you make the best purchase decision for the best price.

YES is the Answer
38 Main Street • Northampton, MA • 585-0007
YES COMPUTERS

RESERVE OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS

BELIEVE IT OR NOT, THIS GUY IS IN CLASS.

Excitement and adventure is the course description, and Army ROTC is the name. It's the one college elective that builds your self-confidence, develops your leadership potential and helps you take on the challenges of command.
There's no obligation until your junior year, and that means there's no reason not to try it out right now.

ARMY ROTC
THE SMARTEST COLLEGE COURSE YOU CAN TAKE.

CONTACT CAPTAIN PAUL GUELLE
545-2321

BEFORE YOU TAKE OFF, LEARN HOW TO USE WORLDPHONE®

Open the door.

Pick up the receiver.

Dial the WorldPhone access number.

Start speaking to virtually anyone, anywhere around the world.

You've got your tickets, rail pass, guide books and backpack. Now all you need while you travel overseas is the WorldPhone access number for the country that you're going to.* That's it. That's all. Done.

With WorldPhone you can call from country to country or back to the U.S., without language barriers, currency problems, or outrageous hotel surcharges.

You can use your MCI Card,® local telephone card or call collect, all at the same low rates, and you'll get an operator who speaks your language. And if you're a member of MCI Friends & Family,® you will save an additional 20% on calls you make to other MCI customers in your Calling Circle.®

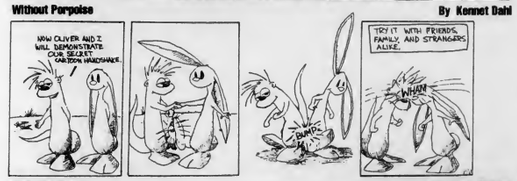
This may be the most valuable thing that you'll learn all summer.

For more information see the WorldPhone insert in this issue or call 1-800-996-7535.

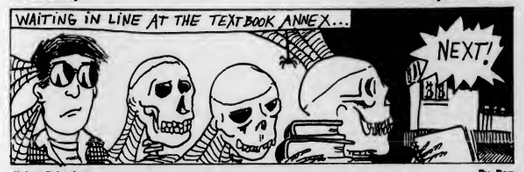
*Service available from over 90 countries. © MCI Telecommunications Corporation, 1994

WORLDPHONE℠ From MCI

Let It Take You Around The World.



Jim's Journal By Jim

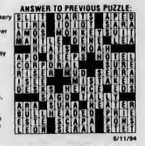


Bruno By C. Baldwin

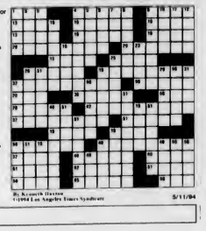
Without Porpoise By Kennet Dahl

Virtual Reality By Mark Warnat

Urban Schocker By Dog



Daily Crossword
Edited by Trude Michel Jaffe



ACROSS
1 Spade or Hammer
4 Rags-to-riches author
9 "— Performance": Tudor ballet
13 One
15 "... for better or —"
16 Group of poems
17 "The Sun — Rises"
18 Leka Indians
19 Female lobsters
20 Hold back
22 Come forth
24 Baseball goals
25 Biblical brother
26 The Plain People
28 Gave in
32 Went forward
34 Guileless
35 — da vie
36 German composer Max: 1872-1915
38 Stannum
39 Beatle percussionist
42 In a meticulous way
45 Combustion or altairs
47 Tints
48 Emulate
1 Across
49 Architect van der Rohe
50 Mortar companion
53 Hussar, e.g.
57 Jacob's first wife
58 Desist
60 Luxury
61 "Judith" composer
62 Beethoven dedicatee
63 Stalagand vehicle: 1967
64 Cyrano's outstanding feature
65 Parts of the rural landscape
66 — Cruces

DOWN
1 Ski lift part
2 Perry's creator
3 Lewis's "— Timberlane"
4 In the direction of the wind
5 Nocturnal primate
6 — and beer it
7 Japan add-on
8 Close once more
9 Place of misery
10 Mimic
11 — John Silver
12 Cape fox
14 — novel
21 Greet the day
23 Aspect
25 One who gives in
26 Spider, old style
27 Bucephalus, for one
28 Like a sing
29 Eert or duke
30 Misfortunes
31 Republista
32 "Iolanthe or the Peer and the —"
33 Transfer picture
37 Certain AARP members
40 "— behind me, Satan."
41 Kind of axiom
43 Marcutto and Tybalt
44 Invisible
46 Nephew's sisters
48 Fast, in music
50 Blueprint
51 Architect Saarinen
52 — sweet
53 "— to the chief..."
54 Heavy hammer
55 Four-footed "Thin Man" star
56 Monster's loch
59 Actor Welsch

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE:

5/11/94

© Kenneth Haxton ©1994 Los Angeles Times Syndicate 5/11/94

Quote of the Day

"If you obey all the rules you miss all the fun."
—Katharine Hepburn

Today's Staff

Night Editor.....Emily Marino
Copy Editor.....Brian Gormley
Photo Technician.....Rebecca Peterson
Production Supervisor.....Marni E. Helfner
Production.....Michael Stern, Greg Iafrate, Tony Morse

The Far Side By Gary Larson

After many years of marital bliss, tension enters the Kent household.

Your Horoscope
By Joana Dixon

ARIES (March 21–April 19): Financial luck on a large scale is a real possibility; cultivate new business contacts. A brief romantic interlude leaves you wanting more from a partner.

TAURUS (April 20–May 20): Travel plans could change at the last minute. Public recognition is possible. A sudden personal decision may work out even better than anticipated! Loved ones are very interested.

GEMINI (May 21–June 20): Have faith in your ideas and special talents. Your dreams are particularly significant now. Put your writing skills to work. Read the fine print before affixing your signature to a contract.

CANCER (June 21–July 22): This month, your greatest satisfaction will come through your work. If planning a trip, consider going by water. Financial matters are up and down, but mostly up.

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22): Keeping the cost of doing business down may be more difficult than ever. You can only try. Community service is a rewarding way for retirees to make new friends. Invite someone over for lunch or coffee and make them feel at home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22): Many of the projects you have in mind should be kept secret for now. Wise associates make the best advisers today. Step out of your shell and hold the disadvantaged. New friendships will develop.

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22): Anyone who asks you to lend money or back a risky venture should be refused. Why take needless chances? Fame can be transitory. A romantic partner's respect and admiration could be permanent.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23–Nov. 21): Only the soundest financial practices are valid during these times. Ignore any claims to the contrary. Your eagle eyes help you spot bargains while shopping.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21): You can open new doors now. Push harder for an overdue promotion. A special creative project could win you a helpful admirer. Postpone signing agreements until tomorrow.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19): You can own your own home and should be looking into it. Keep your ambition in perspective; walking over people will backfire. Own up to your mistakes. Kindness will help strengthen family ties.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18): A suggestion that improves job efficiency could bring you a promotion or preferential treatment from the boss. Get rid of some emotional baggage. Dwelling on old disappointments is waste of time.

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20): A lot can be accomplished this morning. Discuss joint financial interests or shared belongings behind closed doors. Business and pleasure will mix satisfactorily later today.

■ review

continued from page 10

Spring Notables: The women's lacrosse program enjoyed its first full season of competition since 1990 and went 3–10 . . . Women's track continues to impress, finishing with an 11–0 record in dual meets making it the second straight season they have gone undefeated in dual meets . . . women's tennis finished the season at 6–1.

Stay tuned as all of the athletic programs look to improve on their outstanding 1993–94 performances during the '94– '95 campaign.

■ softball

continued from page 10

nered national honors in the form of the eighth best team batting average from coast to coast (.324). Seven Minutemen regulars topped the .300 mark, paced by freshman Ryan Jette's .395 clip. Departed left fielder stalwart Justin Howard set the school record for hits (190) while batting .337 with a team-high 46 RBIs.

UMass lost ace Peter Ferrari (6–2, 2.07 ERA before A–10 Tournament) to graduation, but the staff he anchored in 1994 should only improve with age this season. Jay Murphy, David Dart, and Chad Sullivan, all tied for second on the club in wins with five apiece, all return to the rotation for 1995.

Senior–to–be shortstop Greg LaRocca was named a captain last season, an honor seldom bestowed on underclassmen. The star from Manchester, N.H., looks to expand on a fine junior campaign in which he batted .374 (second to Jette) with nine home runs.

A good bet to share captain's duties with LaRocca is fellow senior Bill Knight, who should approach the UMass career home run mark of 32 held by Steve Allen ('88). The Holliston, Massachusetts native jacked seven round trippers one year ago, bringing his career total to 24.

Joining Jette in the outfield is a pair of young but proven performers. Mareina was not the only freshman to step in and excel as a UMass centerfielder; Amherst's Nate Murphy did it too. The rangy former teammate of Sullivan's at Amherst High School hit .293 in his first year while pacing the team in sacrifices with eight. Nelson Ubaldo should see time in the outfield, as he batted .333 while making just one error in a valuable reserve role.

All told, much of the strength for UMass' baseball and softball squads will get another chance at greatness in 1995. For in 1994, they certainly shone on the diamond.

■ field hockey

continued from page 10

Donnelly. "Its an honor to be chosen to replace Pam."

Hixon may not be the only one representing UMass at the 1996 games. Senior forward Jenn Salisbury is expected to try out for the U.S. squad and goaltender Hilary Rose is expected to earn a spot on the Great Britain team.

Hixon insists she will return UMass following the Olympics to renew her quest for a national championship.

■ ice hockey

continued from page 10

Mallen hopes to surprise some people when the Minutemen make the jump to big time.

"We're hoping for great things," he said. "We hope to take a Florida Panthers approach. I would really like to be competitive in Hockey East in the next two or three years. We're not going to get to a national championship until we're competitive in Hockey East."

Hockey East Commissioner Bob DeGregorio warns UMass fans not to get over–anxious.

"People at UMass have to be patient," said DeGregorio. "If they think they're going to be skating around with a Hockey East Cup in two years, they're mistaken."

If the future goes as well as the first season, Mallen hopes to be a mainstay at UMass.

"This is definitely not a stepping stone job. I would like to be here for a long, long time. I've been given the resources necessary to make the program grow," he said. "It's going to take a while to get this program going. I would like to raise my children in this town. I would like to make a name for UMass hockey and put my imprint on the program for a long time to come."

After less than a year here, Mallen has made his mark.

"I have a great sense of pride and accomplishment with this team. This is going to be a special year when I look back, because its the year we put UMass hockey back on the map," he said.

We want to take this time to welcome all incoming students. You're going to be seeing a lot of The Massachusetts Daily Collegian in the upcoming semester, and hopefully you'll want to get involved.

As for the sports page, we're looking for prospective writers who are interested in joining the sports staff. You can gain valuable experience writing for the sports page, and some of us are actually pretty nice people.

Let's face it — you know you're going to read the Collegian each day, and you know you're going to read the sports page attentively. Why not join us on our adventures into the UMass sports world? It is a truly gratifying experience.

Don't be afraid of us, we will not hurt you. Come down to the office (113 Campus Center basement — opposite end of the bank machines), or give us a call at 545–1762.

The sports page is steadily growing, and we want you to be a part of it. You can't beat having your name in print.

Sincerely,

Andrew Bryce
Andrew Bryce

Matt Vautour
Matt Vautour

Sports editors

Anthony's

"The Biggest Stars Shine Only at Anthony's"

FEEL THE HEAT

This Summer With The Hottest Entertainment in Town!

18 & Over Allowed!
7 DAYS A WEEK!!!
Limited Seating • Positive ID Required

Sun-Tues 5pm-2am • Wed-Sat 12pm-2am
500 New Ludlow Rd. South Hadley, MA
Rt. 91 North to Moss Pike East to Exit 5
left on Rt. 33, turn right across from BigY (413) 536-0502

"One day I decided to sell my bike and my car, and in the spirit of Walden Woods & Don Henley, I would walk everywhere from now on.

I also decided that the best way to get rid of them and make a whole ton of cash (that I wouldn't donate any of) was to advertise in the Collegian Classifieds.

Needless to say, I sold my bike and car, but when I looked to see my classified in the paper I saw a really cool classified for a motorcycle.

Screw the environment, now I ride with the wind and death at my side."

Collegian Classifieds They really work. Campus Center Basement 545-3500

Sports

The past year in UM athletics

By SEAN P. HAYDEN
Collegian Staff

Odds are the University of Massachusetts athletic programs are sorry to see the 1993–1994 year come to an end with all the success the individual teams enjoyed over that span.

And odds are they are just as excited to see the '94–'95 year to begin so they can start up right where they left off.

ARAM COMEAN/COLLEGIAN

Mike Williams proved himself worthy of his nickname "Mr. Clutch", as he twice beat Temple with game–winning shots.

This past school year was one of the most successful in the history of the University's athletic teams.

The tone was set early in the fall for the rest of the year, and the school banner was predominantly carried in the fall by the women's teams.

Not one women's team finished the fall with a sub–.500 record, with the women's tennis team checking in with an even 5–5 record in its first full season of play, including a fourth place showing at the New England Championships.

Another first–year program, the women's volleyball team, blossomed under first–year Coach Bonnie Kenny, finishing the season at 17–14 and surprising two–time Atlantic–10 defending champion Rhode Island in the tournament quarterfinals.

The three most successful women's programs were field hockey, soccer and cross–country.

The lady harriers registered an unblemished 5–0 record in the fall and extended their unbeaten dual meet winning streak to 14 meets.

Coach Pam Hixon and the field hockey team enjoyed another banner year. The season saw Hixon win her 250th career game (she finished the season with 255, becoming the nation's winningest active coach); the Minutewomen upset two–time defending national champion Old Dominion; another A–10 tournament championship; a national ranking as high as No. 3; a 13th consecutive NCAA Tournament berth; All–America honors for three Minutewomen: Tara Jelley, Holly Hockenbrock and Jenn Salisbury; and finally, the naming of Hixon as the U.S. national head coach where she will lead the U.S. squad at the 1996 Summer Olympics in Atlanta.

What can top that? How about a Final Four appearance for the women's soccer team? The Minutewomen finished the season at 17–3–3 and won the inaugural A–10 tournament championship. Coach Jim Rudy got his 150th career win and was named A–10 Coach of the Year and NCAA Northeast Region Coach of the Year while three of his players were honored as All–Americans: Nicole Roberts, Briana Scurry and Paula Wilkins. In addition, Scurry was named Missouri Athletic Club/Adidas National Goalkeeper of the Year.

Fall Notables: Mike Hodges' football team, after starting out at 1–2, finished the season at 8–3 with a 43–29 Homecoming win over then–No. 7 Delaware. Massachusetts was led by All–Americans Matt Rajotte and Bill Durkin, who was recently signed to a free agent contract by the New England Patriots . . . The men's water polo team (21–6) became the first–ever Eastern team to defeat a California team in the history of the NCAA Tournament . . . Men's soccer senior Randy Jacobs broke the all–time school record for goals with 39.

The one team everyone thinks when they think UMass — the men's basketball team — enjoyed a historic season. The Minutemen let the nation know early in the season that they would be a force with a dramatic 91–86 overtime win over defending national champs and then–No. 1 North Carolina in the NIT Preseason Tournament semi–finals.

Massachusetts (28–7) enjoyed a banner year, becoming the first team to win three consecutive A–10 regular season and tourney championships, the first team to ever defeat Temple three times in one season and being ranked as high as No. 6 in the Associated Press poll before being bounced prematurely by a young, hungry Maryland team in the second round of the NCAA Tournament in Wichita, Kan.

The women's basketball team, under the direction of Coach Joanie O'Brien, enjoyed a 14–14 season, the first non– losing season the team has had since 1986–87. Led by All– Atlantic 10 performers Octavia Thomas, Melissa Gurile, Beth Kuzmeski and Crystal Carroli, the Minutewomen became the first Minutewomen team ever to advance to the semifinal round of the A–10 Tournament with a 76–63 upset of St. Joseph's.

Ice hockey made its return to campus as Coach Joe Mallen led the first Minutemen team into competition in 15 years and finished with a school–record 20 wins against nine losses. The action promises to get even better for Massachusetts as it begins play in Hockey East, one of the most competitive conferences in all collegiate hockey.

Supposed to be a rebuilding year, the Massachusetts women's gymnastics team shocked everybody but themselves and Head Coach David Kuzara with its success. The Minutewomen finished with a 14–4 record, the 14 wins being the most ever by a Massachusetts women's gym team, and a third place finish at the A–10 Championships. Senior Margaret Furtado was named A–10 Gymnast of the Year, and Tara Swartz, Shaheda Keels and Lianne Laing were tabbed as All A–10 performers.

Roy Johnson's men's team captured its sixth straight New England Championship and finished with a 5–3 overall record.

Winter Notables: The men's swimming and diving team had an undefeated 12–0 season and won its eighth consecutive New England Championship . . . Freshman Tom Schaefer of the men's ski team went undefeated in the regular season with 12 wins.

The story of the spring was indeed the performance turned in by the Massachusetts baseball team. The Minutemen finished with a conference–record 19 wins and received the No. 1 seed in the conference championship at Boyertown, PA. Mike Stone was honored as Coach of the Year.

MATT KAHN/COLLEGIAN

The women's soccer team, shown here in action at Garber Field, gained national attention with its Final Four appearance.

The Minutewomen softball team posted a 29–17 (as of press time) record and received the No. 1 seed in the A–10 Tournament as Massachusetts won its fourth straight A–10 regular season title. The Minutewomen were led by A–10 Pitcher of the Year Kelly Daut, who as of press time, has a 17–8 record with two no–hitters, and A–10 Rookie of the Year Chris Martens, whose .427 batting average was tops in the league.

The Gorillas staked their claim as one of the finest lax programs in the nation, finishing with a 9–5 record and a No. 12 national ranking.

Despite narrowly missing the postseason, the Gorillas had many positives. Perhaps the brightest of those positives was the play of their freshmen, who will give the Gorillas a chance to continue their success in the future. The team will return a strong young nucleus next year, and have a chance to improve on this year's performance.

Turn to REVIEW, page 9

Burks, Norville join mix

By ARTHUR STAPLETON JR.
Collegian Staff

Guard Andre Burks and forward Inus Norville, teammates at Hargrave Military Academy in Chatham, Va., have signed letters of intent to play for the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team and head coach John Calipari next season.

Burks, a 6–foot point man from Baton Rouge, La., averaged 21.5 points, 9.5 assists, 5.5 rebounds and 3.5 steals per game for Hargrave last season and is bringing his 42– inch vertical leap to Amherst. One recruiting service had Burks ranked as the No. 1 prep point guard in the nation.

The Minutemen return starting point guard and co–captain Derek Kellogg and key reserve guard Edgar Padilla to the line–up as well. If Burks moves to the shooting guard spot, he has to contend with starter Mike Williams and Carmelo Travieso.

"The people in Amherst have never seen anything like him," said Hargrave Coach Mike Byrnes. "He's done things you don't see in the NBA. He is also a tremendous defender, a good ball handler and also just a phenomenal kid. He is a Will Herndon at 6–foot."

"Andre is an exciting addition to the team," said Calipari. "He really adds another dimension to our team. He has great speed, great athleticism — with the ability to create havoc on the floor."

Burks will play in the Boston Shootout this summer, among other tournaments. Norville, a 6–foot–9 power forward, is expected to add size and strength to the already potent Minuteman frontline if he passes the NCAA minimum score of 700 on the SATs. It is expected that Norville will sit out his freshman year in Amherst under Proposition 48, while some expect Burks to make the grade.

* * * * *

The Minutemen will open the 1994–95 season against defending national champion Arkansas in Springfield at the Tip–Off Classic, looking to knock off the No. 1 team in the country for the second straight year. Massachusetts defeated then–No. 1 North Carolina in the Preseason NIT, 91–86, in overtime, at Madison Square Garden.

A rematch with the Maryland Terrapins looms large for Calipari's squad next season, not in Wichita, Kan., but down in College Park, Md. The Minutemen were knocked out of the NCAA's second round by Coach Gary Williams' Terps in last year's tourney. The contest is a return trip from Maryland's participation in the 1993–94 Abdow's Hall of Fame Classic which was won by Massachusetts.

Massachusetts will take part in the John Wooden Classic in California next season — a special two–game set that features the Minutemen taking on Kansas, while Kentucky faces UCLA.

In a return contest from the Final Rage in the Cage, Massachusetts will travel to the Bayou to play the Ragin' Cajuns of Southwest Louisiana and their coach, Marty Fletcher.

Other games in the works include: a contest in the Meadowlands Arena in New Jersey against Metro Conference powerhouse and potential Top 5 club, Louisville; a trip to battle LaSalle in nearby Philadelphia for Atlantic City, N.J., native co–captain Lou Roe; non–conference games in the William D. Mullins Center against three 1994 NCAA teams, St. Louis, Texas and Western Kentucky; a game in the Hartford Civic Center against Central Connecticut State, for Hartford natives Williams and center Marcus Camby.

Sharp gems on the diamond

By TED KOTTLER
Collegian Staff

It was a memorable campaign for both the University of Massachusetts softball and baseball entries, both of which captured Atlantic–10 Championships. For Mike Stone's hardball crew, it was their first such honor, while Elaine Sortino guided her youthful squad to its sixth consecutive league crown.

Many of the women you'll see on Totman Field this spring are returnees from a roster that went 28–17 in the regular season; ace Kelly Daut, who shifted effortlessly from the No. 2 role into the top slot, hurling two no–hitters (versus Rhode Island and Vermont) and seven shutouts.

The Toronto Blue Jays back–to–back World Series titles in 1992 and 1993 gave Canada unlimited credibility in baseball circles, and UMass' Chris Martens of Swift Current, Saskatchewan, did the same for softball north of the border in just one season. The versatile freshman led the Minutewomen in nearly all offensive categories, and is on pace to shatter a horde of UMass career records.

ARAM COMEAN/COLLEGIAN

Righthanded pitcher Peter Ferrari delivers a pitch to catcher Andy Pelis at Earl Lorden Field, as centerfielder Nate Murphy looks on from a distance.

Martens batted a robust .427 with three home runs, 33 RBIs and a slugging percentage of .667. Martens started most games in 1994 in left field, but she may be asked to replace departed first baseman Rachel Lawson.

UMass led the Atlantic 10 in fielding percentage (.949) thanks largely to the virtually error–free play of two dynamite freshmen, centerfielder Stephanie Mareina and second baseman Michelle Methot. Mareina started every game in 1994 and committed just one error while making a number of spectacular grabs. Methot appears to be one of UMass' best all–around talents.

UMass' baseball team gar–

Turn to SOFTBALL, page 9

Durkin signs on with Pats

By ANDREW BRYCE
Collegian Staff

Former University of Massachusetts offensive guard Bill Durkin has been signed by the New England Patriots. The Minuteman co–captain becomes the 15th rookie free agent to come to terms with the franchise since the NFL Draft in April.

ARAM COMEAN/COLLEGIAN

Offensive lineman Bill Durkin, who established himself as a force at UMass, has recently signed a contract with Bill Parcells and the New England Patriots.

Mike Hodges, head football coach at UMass, sees the signing as having positive benefits for both the Patriots and his former player.

"It's great for a lot of reasons. [Patriots' head coach] Bill Parcells loves to run–block, which is one of Durkin's strong points. He's a big offensive lineman as he's close to 290 pounds. I'm really excited for him," Hodges said.

"It'll be good for him, now that he has eight hours a day to devote to it. He's a competitor and a great football player."

Terms of Durkin's agreement were not disclosed at the time of his signing. The 6–foot–5, 281–pound lineman from Stratford, Conn., is the 10th rookie free agent to sign on with the Patriots. Five other free agents have come to terms, but have not signed contracts.

Durkin, who earned first team honors in the Yankee Conference, ECAC and New England last season, was part of the Minuteman rushing attack that set a school record with 3,261 rushing yards in the 1993 season.

—material from the Associated Press contributed to this story.

Soaring success for teams wielding hot sticks

• Hixon to coach U.S. in Olympics

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

When the United States Field Hockey Team takes the field at the 1996 Summer Olympics in Atlanta, it will be University of Massachusetts Coach Pam Hixon leading the squad into battle.

Hixon will take a two–year leave of absence from UMass to concentrate on the national program. In addition to the Olympics, she will take the team to the Pan American Games and the World Cup in Dublin, Ireland. She will also be in charge of strengthening the youth program and establishing a national coaching staff.

"The position is similar to college and recruiting, but on a larger scale," Hixon said.

"It was a difficult decision. UMass field hockey is definitely on the rise, and I've enjoyed our teams and our success, but coaching a team with this much talent is a challenging, fascinating thought," she said.

The chance to represent her country again was also a factor in her decision. Hixon played for the U.S. National Team from 1969–1979.

"Representing the United States in the international competition is difficult to describe unless you're a part of it," said Hixon. "Hearing the national anthem is overwhelming. It's a incredible experience."

The resume Hixon brings to the position is impressive. She was named the 1981 Collegiate Coach of the Year in her fourth season, and has captured the Atlantic 10 and Northeast Regional Coach of the Year Awards several times. Her 254 career victories ranks first among active coaches.

Hixon inherits a program that is seeking respect. After earning a bronze medal at the 1984 Olympics, the United States finished last at the 1988 Games and failed to qualify in 1992. In 1996, the Americans will be guaranteed an Olympic berth because they are the host country, but just participating is not enough for Hixon.

"Improving our position in the world is one of my goals," said Hixon. "We want to do more than just show up. It's going to take a lot of hard work. We will give ourselves every opportunity to compete for our dreams."

On the home front, Hixon's players have been supportive.

"We're obviously going to miss her," said goalie Stacy Walker, "but there is no more qualified person for the job. It'll be a tough adjustment."

Replacing Hixon during her two–year hiatus will be former Rhode Island coach and UMass alumnus Megan Donnelly.

"I'm very excited," said

Turn to FIELD HOCKEY, page 9

• Mallen and Co. to Hockey East

By MATT VAUTOUR
Collegian Staff

After 15 years in hibernation, ice hockey returned to the University of Massachusetts and its first season was bigger and better than ever before.

The Minutemen went 20–9 in their return campaign, playing a mixture of Division I, II and III teams.

Coach Joe Mallen was excited by his predominantly freshman team's first year's success.

"We met and exceeded out team goals in a very big way," he said. "We've done absolutely over and above anything that I ever thought was possible. The amount of playing time these guys got as freshmen, was much more that the average freshmen would get on a hockey east team. We learned a million valuable lessons."

"Nobody would have thought 20 victories," said Athletic Director Bob Marcum. "They've carved themselves a special place in the history of UMass hockey."

After an impressive first campaign, Mallen and the Minutemen will focus on improving all areas of the team to be prepared for next year's jump to Hockey East.

Goaltending: With highly recruited Brian Reagan joining the two returning netminders, Mallen will have a potential three–way battle for the top goalie job. Dave Kilduff was the workhorse for the Minutemen, posting a 14–4 record on the season. Rich Moriarty played well in the final stretch of the season, including solid performances in UMass' only win against a Division I opponent (4–3 over Army) and a 4–1 loss to Hockey East rival Merrimack.

"We showed a lot of promise in the goal," Mallen said. "We think that both guys did a pretty good job for us over all. We think that the goalie situation is going to be a great situation and a very competitive situation."

Defense: The Minutemen pointmen sorely missed Captain Jaynen Rissling during his five–week absence, but improved as a unit throughout the season.

Mallen is recruiting a couple of defensemen who will be competing with this year's unit to help make the transition into Hockey East.

Offense: The Minutemen offense was potent all season, netting 176 goals in their 29 games. The nucleus off Rob Bonneau, Blair Wagar, Mike Evans, Blair Manning Warren Norris, Dennis Wright and Tom Perry will be counted on to build on their impressive first seasons to contribute next year.

"Our players have to get stronger, quicker, and more explosive," said Mallen. "They're going to have to learn to move and shoot the puck quicker when they have time to do so."

Turn to ICE HOCKEY, page 9